The woman, mistaking Christ's meaning, and taking his discourse literally, with some sort of disdain answered, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep; from whence then hast thou that living water? and therefore concludes his boasts were absurd, and his offers a mere jest. They who are wholly taken up with the objects of sense, have no understanding of spiritual things; they are foolishness to them: the hidden springs of grace in Christ being unseen, are disbelieved. Besides, she regards it as a great piece of presumption in him, to prefer any other waters before those of a well so highly distinguished. Art thou greater than our father Jacob, from whom we Samaritans, as well as you Jews, claim our descent, which gave us this well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle? Vain boasts these! when they had so poor a title to claim kindred with the patriarch, and were no better than usurpers of that country, which they pretended came to them by gift from Jacob to Joseph, and so in a right line of descent to them. The bitterest enemies of the church thus often usurp, and would monopolize its privileges.

Though she had spoken foolishly and perversely, Christ kindly bore with her, and continued his discourse, saying, Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again; this was but common water, and could only slake the present thirst, which must soon return; but whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst. All the comforts of the world are insufficient to give any abiding satisfaction; Christ alone can bestow the substantial portion on the soul. They who pant after the earth, and its enjoyments, drink and thirst again; but the water that I shall give him, shall be in him a well springing up into everlasting life. Such is Christ, when formed in the believer's heart. [1.] He delivers the soul from the dominion of all the former insatiable appetites and inclinations after sensual objects. [2.] He furnishes us with continual supplies of grace and consolation from himself, the everflowing, overflowing fountain of mercies: so that in our heavenly journey we can never faint nor be weary, drinking of these living streams, as of the water from the rock, which followed Israel's camp through the desert. [3.] Wherever his grace is thus implanted in the soul, it bears the affections heavenward, and never fails till it is consummated in glory everlasting.

The woman, either seriously desiring what, could it be possessed, would save her so much trouble, or ridiculing pretensions she had no apprehension he could make good, replied, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw.

To impress deeper seriousness upon her soul, or to convince her of the dignity of his character, of which she was not at all apprized, Jesus turned the discourse to another topic, which he knew must nearly and deeply affect her, and bringing her sin home to her conscience, would engage her to embrace him as her Saviour. Therefore he saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither. Conscious of the guilty state in which she at present lived, she wanted to conceal her shame, and said, I have no husband, conceiving it impossible for him to detect the lie. But, to her amazement, she finds him intimately acquainted with all the most secret transactions of her life, which he lays before her. Thou hast well said, I have no husband; so far is true; for thou hast had five husbands, from whom, probably for her adulterous conduct, she had been successively divorced; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly; the person with whom she now cohabited, not being married to her, or her former husbands being yet living. He doth not reproach her either with her evasion or lewdness, but rather leaves it to her conscience to make the application. Gentle reproofs, by insinuation, are often more effectual than more immediate and rough rebuke.

Struck with what she heard, and convicted in her own conscience, she would willingly have turned off the discourse from so painful a subject; and persuaded, by what he had told her, of his more than human knowledge, she proposes to him the grand point in debate between the Jews and Samaritans: Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; there Abraham built an altar, (Gen. xii. 6, 7.) and the tribe of Joseph stood, when the blessings and curses were pronounced by the tribes on mount Ebal and Gerizim; and therefore on this mountain Gerizim, the Samaritans insisted sacrifices and offering should alone be offered to God, in the temple which they built there: and ye, that are Jews, say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship, at the temple on mount Zion, where alone the oblations on God's altar are accepted; and therefore she wished, that he, who appeared so able, would resolve her in this important point. That God should be worshipped, there was no doubt: they who live in the neglect of his worship, are worse than Jews or Samaritans. The question was, Where was the place of Divine appointment? and herein she did well to improve the present opportunity in converse about divine things, when she had with her so able an adviser.

Jesus kindly leads her even farther than her inquiry reached. He saith unto her, Woman, believe me, and, since you esteem me a prophet, weigh well what I am now about to declare, the hour cometh, when a final period shall be put to all ceremonial distinctions, and the peculiar holiness of places set apart for the worship of the Divine Being: when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father; that is to say, exclusively; since under the gospel dispensation every place was alike acceptable to God, where holy hands were lifted up without wrath or doubting; and shortly both the temple at Gerizim and on mount Zion would be made desolate, and no sacrifices be any longer offered there. Indeed at present the Samaritans were wholly wrong, Ye worship ye know not what, ignorant of the true God, (2 Kings xvii. 26.) regarding him as a local deity, and debasing the worship which they pretended to pay him with idolatrous superstitions. We know what we worship, for God is known in Israel; and he, as one of that nation after the flesh, reckoned himself among the true worshippers, who paid their adorations according to the divine prescription, and were possessed of that revelation which he had been graciously pleased to make of himself in his sacred oracles. For salvation is of the Jews; the promises of salvation were peculiarly made to them; the means of grace confined for the most part to them, and he who came to be the salvation of the ends of the earth, sprang from them. But, though in this respect the Samaritans were utterly wrong, and not to be compared with Abraham's true descendants, yet these distinctions of nations and places were now about to cease; the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth. The place of worship is now become indifferent; the spirit and temper of the worshipper alone makes the acceptable service. All carnal ordinances are abolished, and a spiritual worship is introduced, wherein the heart, under the powerful influences of the Holy Ghost, must be lifted up in faith and love to God; and in truth, with simplicity and godly sincerity, according to the divine institution, and through Christ alone, who is the way, the truth, and the life: for the Father seeketh such to worship him: he will graciously accept their services, and can be pleased with no other; and such worshippers by his grace he fashions and finds, though few, compared with the formal, lifeless, hypocritical, or ignorant worshippers, who are utter strangers to such spirituality. For God is a Spirit, of infinite perfections, incorporeal, invisible, eternal, omniscient, requiring not the adoration of the lip or the knee, but of the heart; and they that worship him, must worship him in spirit and in truth; without which, the place, the form, the manner of our religious worship, avails nothing, and are in his view of no account. And what Christ saith to her is an eternal truth, and merits our most serious notice and regard, that so we may not mock God, and deceive ourselves, when we approach him in the ordinances of his worship.

The woman, though unable to object to the truths here advanced, yet professes to suspend her judgment till he should come, who would set all things right. She saith unto him, I now that Messiah cometh, (which is called in the Greek, Christ, or the anointed,) this expectation being generally entertained by the Samaritans, as well as Jews. When he is come, whom we expect as ready to appear, he will tell us all things, will put an end to our controversies, clear up our doubts, and give us a distinct knowledge of all the will of God. Hereupon Jesus, in answer to her expectations of the Messiah's coming, plainly declares to her his character; I that speak unto thee, am he: so much nearer to us is the dear Saviour often than we are aware. Speak, Lord, to my heart, and make me to know that thou art with me, and in me!

27. ¶ [e] And upon this came his disciples, and [f] marvelled that he talked with the woman: * yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her? 28. [g] The woman then left her water-pot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, 29. [h] Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ? 30. [i] Then they went out of the city, and came unto him. 31. ¶ In the mean while his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat. 32. But he said unto them, [k] I have meat to eat that ye know not of. 33. [l] Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat? 34. Jesus saith unto them, [m] My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. 35. Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; [n] for they are white already to harvest. 36. [o] And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: [p] that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together. 37. And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth. 38. [q] I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour: [r] other men laboured, and [s] ye are entered into their labours. 39. ¶ [t] And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did. 40. So, [u] when the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days. 41. [x] And many more believed because of his own word; 42. And said unto the woman, [y] Now we believe, not because of thy saying: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that [z] this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.

e Gen. 35. 13. Luke 24. 31.
f Luke 7. 39. ver. 9.
* Rather, with a woman.
g Phil. 3. 7—9. Mat. 19. 27, 29. ver. 7. Song 5. 10. Acts 20. 24. & 21. 13.
h Ch. 1. 42. Ps. 34. 8. & 66. 16. Rev. 22. 17. Song 3. 11. & 5. 10—16. ver. 18—25.
i Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. & 43. 6. & 60. 8. & 45. 22, 24. Ps. 22. 27. & 68. 22.
k Job 23. 12. Ps. 19. 10. & 40. 8. ver. 34. ch. 6. 38.
l Mat. 16. 6—9. Luke 9. 45. ch. 12. 16. & 3. 12. m Ps. 40. 8. ch. 1. 4. & 6. 38. with Is. 61. 1—3. Luke 19. 10. It delights my soul to convert these Samaritans.
n Mat. 9. 37. Luke 10. 2. ver. 30. Mat. 11. 12. Luke 7. 29. & 16. 16.
o Mat. 10. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. 1 Thes. 2. 19, 20 Rom. 1. 13.
p Heb. 11. 40. Rev. 18. 20.
q Acts 2. 41. & 4. 4, 32. & 5. 14. & 6. 7.
r 2 Chr. 36. 15. Jer. 44. 4. Acts 10. 43. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 12. Rom. 15. 4.
s Acts ii, xiii. & 26. 22, 23. & 28. 23.
t Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. & 35. 1. & 60. 3. with ver. 29, 42. u Gen. 32. 26. Mat. 15. 24—28. 2 Cor. 6. 1, 2. Luke 19. 9, 10. Mat. 7. 7. John 16. 24. x Is. 42. 1, 6. & 60. 3. Rom. 15. 8—12, 16.
y Gen. 49. 10. ch. 17. 8.
z 1 John 4. 14. & 2. 2. Mat. 18. 11. & 20. 28. & 28. 18, 19. Luke 2. 10, 11, 32. & 19. 10. Mark 16. 15, 16. ch. 3. 14—16. & 6. 37. 1 John 4. 14.

Verses 27—42. Just as the Lord had so far advanced in his discourse, and manifested his glorious character to this poor Samaritan, we are told,

1. The interruption given to the conversation by the arrival of the disciples who had been sent to procure provisions: and, influenced by the common Jewish prejudices, they marvelled to see him thus engaged with a Samaritan woman. Yet, submitting to his will and wisdom, and with deepest reverence silent before him, none dared presume to ask him, what he sought of the woman, or what he said to her. Note, We may not question the Lord concerning any of the dispensations of his providence or grace, but rest assured that he doth all things well.

2. Deeply convinced, by what Jesus had spoken, of his being indeed the Messiah, with eagerness and joy the woman ran back to the city, leaving her water-pot behind her, careless about that, when the great concern engaged her soul; and said to the men, the inhabitants of the place, Come, opportunity is precious, and not a moment to be lost: come see a man which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ? He told me such secret passages of my life, which none but God could know, and hath impressed such a sense of them on my conscience, as fully convinces me he is the promised Messiah; haste therefore to him, and judge for yourselves, that you may be convinced also. Note, (1.) They who run on Christ's errands, gladly disencumber themselves of every thing which would retard their speed, and sit loose to all they leave behind them. (2.) When we have ourselves tasted that the Lord is gracious, we cannot but delight to invite others to come and see how good he is, and to partake with us in his rich mercies. (3.) We never know Christ truly, till experimentally feeling the convictions of his word and Spirit, and brought to a deep and humbling discovery of our sins, we feel the necessity of that salvation which he brings.

3. Multitudes on this strange report, bad as the woman's character had been, resolved to go and see for themselves; no doubt invisibly drawn also by the Saviour's grace to come to him, who had such signal mercies in store for them.

4. Christ in the meantime improved the interval in profitable discourse with his disciples. So set was his mind on the blessed work before him, that, though hungry, he forgot for a while to eat his bread. The disciples pressed him, as weary, and fasting too long, to eat of the provision they had brought; but he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of. The gracious work begun on the heart of this poor Samaritan woman, and the prospect of multitudes flocking towards him, were more delightful and refreshing to his soul, than the richest entertainment to his body. The disciples, who understood him literally, with surprise said one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat? so dull were they of understanding. But their Master soon corrected their mistake, saying unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work; this is my greatest satisfaction, to be engaged in the blessed work of seeking and saving that which was lost, for which great end I came into the world, and from which I shall never desist till it is completed; and what was his delight should be theirs, as the husbandman labours with satisfaction in the view of the approaching harvest. Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Doth this joyous season please you in the prospect? Behold an infinitely better is in view; I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, (where probably multitudes of the Samaritans now appeared in view,) for they are white already to harvest; immortal souls are ready to be gathered in to the gospel church, and therefore this is no time to eat and drink, but to rise and labour. And, for an inducement hereunto, he suggests the glorious recompense of reward, which would be the wages of their fidelity: He that reapeth, receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto eternal life; the wages of present comfort and increasing strength and success in his labours, and in the world to come life everlasting; and this not only for himself, but for many of those among whom he ministers; for he shall not only save his own soul, but those that hear him, 1 Tim. iv. 16. the blessed effects of which will be, that he that soweth, and he that reapeth, may rejoice together. The ministers who begin, and they who carry on the good work, will alike partake of the comfort of it. And herein is that proverbial saying true, One soweth and another reapeth: the apostles reaped what the prophets sowed; and, after their Master's resurrection, gathered a plenteous harvest of souls, among whom he had sown the seed of eternal life. I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours: the writings of the prophets, and the preaching of John, greatly facilitated their ministry, and contributed to its success; and going forth with such advantages, they had peculiar encouragement, and double cause for their diligence. Note, (1.) Gospel ministers, like harvest men, must labour diligently and cheerfully in the service of God, and of immortal souls. (2.) When the people appear eager and attentive to hear, it is a most powerful excitement to the minister, to preach with liveliness and zeal. (3.) Nothing will turn to so glorious an account in the day of God, as immortal souls gained to his kingdom through our ministry. (4.) The preachers of the gospel have different talents; some more adapted to break up the fallow ground, and sow the seed; others to nourish up, and rear to maturity, the trees of righteousness; each are useful in their place, and will rejoice together at the last in the fruit of their joint labours.

5. Great was the effect of the woman's testimony concerning Christ. Many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did. She was indeed a weak instrument, but God can work by the most unlikely means. Persuaded of his prophetical character, and receiving him as the Messiah, they humbly besought him to favour them with his company for a while, that they might enjoy his holy instructions. Nor did he disdain their requests, but abode with them two days, teaching them concerning the things that made for their everlasting peace. And so powerful was his ministry among them, that many more believed because of his word: not only those who believed in him on the woman's report, were confirmed in the faith; but those who had paid less regard to her, now felt the divine conviction of the Saviour's discourses, and said unto the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy saying, merely, but on the most unshaken authority of the word of Jesus himself; for we have heard him ourselves, and know, by the powerful energy of his word upon our consciences, that this is indeed the Christ, the so long promised and expected Saviour of the world; not of the Jews only, but of the Samaritans also, and of all the nations of the earth to whom his gospel should come, and who should receive this word of salvation. Note, (1.) The greatest fruit is often reaped where it was least expected. The Samaritans readily embraced that Saviour whom the Jews rejected. (2.) Christ is indeed the Saviour of the world; but we must believe in him before we ourselves can be experimentally acquainted with his salvation.

43. ¶ [a] Now after two days he departed thence, [b] and went into Galilee. 44. For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country. 45. [c] Then, when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen [d] all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: for they also went unto the feast. 46. So Jesus came again into [e] Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain [f] nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. 47. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judea into [a] Mat. 15. 24. Rom. 15. 8.

[b] Mat. 4. 13. & 13. 57. Luke 4. 24, 31, 38. Mark 6. 4. ch. 7. 1.
[c] Mat. 4. 43, 24. Mark 1. 14. Luke 4. 31, 32.
[d] Ch. 2. 13—23. Luke 13. 1. Exod. 23. 14—17. & 34. 23. Deut. 16. 1.
[e] Josh. 19. 28. ch. 2. 1—11.
[f] Or officer of the court, or ruler. Mat. 9. 18.

Galilee, he went unto him, and [g] besought him that he would come down, and heal his son; for he was at the point of death. 48. Then said Jesus unto him, [h] Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe. 49. The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, [i] come down ere my child die. 50. Jesus saith unto him, [k] Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man [l] believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way. 51. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, [m] Thy son liveth. 52. Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him. 53. So the father knew that it was at the same hour in the which Jesus [n] said unto him, Thy son liveth: [o] and himself believed, and his whole house. 54. This is again the second miracle that Jesus did, [p] when he was come out of Judea into Galilee.*

g Ps. 78. 34. Hos. 5. 15. Mat. 9. 18. & 15. 22. & 17. 14, 15. Ps. 50. 15. Mat. 7. 7.

h 1 Cor. 1. 1, 22. Acts 2. 22. ch. 2. 18.

i Ch. 11. 21, 32, 37. Mark 5. 35, 36.

k Mark 2. 9. & 3. 5.

l Ch. 11. 25. Acts 14. 9. Mat. 8. 13. & 9. 22. & 15. 28.

m Ps. 71. 20. Mark 9. 23. Mat. 8. 13. & 15. 28.

n Ps. 107. 20. & 33. 9.

o Acts 16. 15, 34. & 18. 8. Gen. 18. 19. Josh. 24. 15.

p In Cana. ch. 2. 1—12.

* The words do not necessarily imply more than that this, the second of our Lord's miracles in that country, was performed after returning from Judea to Galilee.

Verses 43—54. Jesus made but a short visit to Sychar; he had other work to do, and therefore after two days he departed thence. Yet perhaps two more successful days passed not during his ministry; a gracious earnest of the success which his gospel should meet in the heathen world, when, instead of being confined almost wholly, as at present, to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, it should be preached to every creature.

1. Christ pursued his journey to Galilee, but went not to Nazareth, well knowing, as he had before observed and experienced, that a prophet had no honour in his own country. Those with whom we have been brought up from infancy, usually pay little respect to the person as their teacher, with whom they have been familiar, as their junior, their schoolfellow, or their companion.

2. The Galileans gladly received him, having seen his miracles at the feast of the passover, to celebrate which, distant as they were, they went up with the other Jews to Jerusalem. Note, They who love God's ordinances, will not grudge to go far to enjoy them, and will never have reason to regret their pains.

3. He visited, among other places, Cana, where his first miracle was wrought of turning the water into wine; and there another notable miracle is wrought by him, which is not recorded by any of the other evangelists.

[1.] The person who made application to him was a nobleman; probably one of Herod's courtiers, perhaps Chuza, Luke viii. 3. or Manaen, Acts xiii. 1. and the patient was his own son. Note, (1.) Greatness is no protection from disease, nor from any of the common calamities incident to humanity. (2.) Afflictions often drive those to Christ, who otherwise, probably had never applied to him, and then indeed they are blessings in disguise.

[2.] His address was earnest, and bespoke his confidence in the power of Jesus. He came himself from Capernaum to Cana, about fifteen miles, to beg his help. The case was desperate, and past all other aid but his; for his child was at the point of death; and therefore he entreats him to hasten down without delay. He thought the presence of Jesus was needful to the cure, herein dishonourably limiting the Holy One of Israel. Note, Our sins have reduced us all to the point of eternal death: unless Jesus save, we must inevitably perish.

[3.] Christ rebukes his confined notions of his almighty power, and the backwardness of the Jews in general to believe. The Samaritans believed as soon as he had preached among them: but they required repeated signs and wonders, not satisfied with those which they had already seen him work at Jerusalem, during the feast.

[4.] The nobleman renews his importunate request. Every moment of delay was, in his apprehension, imminently dangerous; for though he had faith in Christ, that he could cure his son if he was present with him; yet he seems to have no apprehension that he could heal at a distance; or, if the child was dead, restore him to life again.

[5.] Christ relieves him of his pain, saying, Go thy way; thy son liveth. Nothing more was needful to the cure: his word wrought as effectually at a distance, as if he had gone in person. He speaks, and it is done. O that we had but faith to trust him at all times!

[6.] The power which wrought the cure of the son, as effectually influenced the heart of the father; so that in full assurance of faith he departed, perfectly satisfied, that the word which Jesus had spoken was sure, and that he should find his son alive and well. He appeared thus a true son of Abraham, and none like him ever trusted the Lord, and was confounded.

[7.] His servants met him, as he returned, with the joyful news of his son's recovery; and on inquiring when the happy change took place, they told him, at the seventh hour the fever left him; not gradually, but in a moment he recovered; and the father immediately remembered that was precisely the hour when Jesus had spoken to him.

[8.] The effect of this miracle was the conversion of himself and his family. Himself believed, and his whole house. He had begun to believe before; now his faith was more confirmed in Jesus as the Messiah, and he became a professed disciple; whilst his household, who were eye-witnesses of the miracle, followed his example. Note, (1.) One word of Jesus spoken to the heart, works effectually to our salvation. (2.) When the Master of the family sets the gracious example, it is often greatly influential to all his house.

Lastly, The evangelist remarks this, as the second miracle Jesus had wrought in Cana of Galilee. By two and three witnesses thus he established the authority of his mission, and probably the quality of the patient made the cure to be the more observed. When persons of superior rank are singled out by the grace of the Redeemer, the change wrought on them engages more particular attention.

CHAP. V.—ANNO DOMINI, 31.

We have in this chapter a miracle and a sermon. 1. The miracle was the cure of an impotent man, that had been diseased thirty-eight years, ver. 1—16. 2. The sermon was, Christ's vindication of himself before the Sanhedrim, when he was prosecuted as a criminal for healing the man on the sabbath-day; in which, (1.) He asserts his authority as Messiah, and Mediator between God and man, ver. 17—29. (2.) He proves it by the testimony of his Father, of John the Baptist, of his miracles, and of the Scriptures of the Old Testament, and condemns the Jews for their unbelief, ver. 30—47.

cir. 31.

1. AFTER [a] this there was a feast of the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. 2. Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep [b] market a [c] pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue * Bethesda, a Lev. 23. 2. Deut. 16. 1. Num. 28. 16. Exod. 23. 14—17. & 34. 23. Heb. 10. 25.

b Or gate. Neh. 3. 1. & 12. 39.

c Is. 8. 6. & 22. 9.

* House of mercy.

having five porches. 3. In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, [d] withered, waiting for the moving of the water. 4. For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: [e] whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in, was made whole of whatsoever disease he had. 5. And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity [f] thirty and eight years. 6. When Jesus saw him lie, and [g] knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, [h] Wilt thou be made whole? 7. The impotent man answered him, Sir, [i] I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down [k] before me. 8. Jesus saith unto him, [l] Rise, take up thy bed, and walk. 9. And [m] immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath. 10. ¶ The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath day; [n] it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed. 11. He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk. 12. Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk? 13. And he that was healed wist not who it was: for Jesus [o] had conveyed himself away, † a multitude being in that place. 14. Afterward Jesus findeth him in [p] the temple, and said unto him, [q] Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee. 15. The man departed, and [r] told the Jews that it was Jesus which had made him whole. 16. And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, [s] and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

d 1 Kin 13. 4. Mark 3. 1, 4.

e Zech. 13. 1. & 14. 8. Rev. 22. 1, 2, 17. This healing pool was one of the last types of Christ, and his gospel, as healing diseased sinners.

f Acts 3. 2. Luke 13. 16. ch. 9. 1, 23.

g Ch. 21. 17. Heb. 4. 13.

h Is. 65. 1. Jer. 13. 27. Luke 19. 41.

i Deut. 32. 36. Ps. 72. 12—14. & 142. 4. & 102. 17.

k And so he got no good. ver. 4.

l Mark 2. 11. Luke 5. 24. Mat. 9. 6. Is. 65. 24.

m Ps. 33. 9. & 107. 20. ch. 9. 7. Mark 1. 31, 42. & 2. 12. & 3. 5. & 5. 13, 29, 42. & 7. 30, 35. & 8. 25. & 9. 27. & 10. 52. Is. 35. 6. ch. 9. 14.

n Jer. 17. 21, 22. Neh. 13. 19. Mark 2. 24. Luke 6. 2, 7, 9. & 13. 14, 15. & 14. 1, 3. Exod. 20. 10. & 31. 12. & 35. 3. Num. 15. 32, 36. Mat. 12. 2.

o Luke 4. 30. ch. 8. 59.

† Or from the multitude that was.

p Is. 38. 22. Ps. 84. 1, 2, 10. & 66. 13—15.

q Ch. 8. 11. Ezra 9. 13, 14. 1 Pet. 4. 3. Lev. 26. 21. Mat. 12. 45.

r Mark 1. 45. & 7. 36. ch. 4. 29.

s Ch. 7. 23. & 9. 16. Luke 6. 2, 6—11. & 13. 10—17. & 14. 1—6. ver. 9.

Verses 1—16. The feast here spoken of was probably the passover; the second, which our Lord kept at Jerusalem, after his public entrance on the ministry: and there he works the following notable miracle.

1. The place where the miracle was wrought is very remarkable. It was a pool of water near the sheep-gate, Neh. iii. 1. called Bethesda, or the House of Mercy, surrounded with cloisters, or covered walks, where the impotent lay sheltered, who came with their several complaints, blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water in hopes of a cure. For this pool was impregnated with a strange virtue at certain seasons, owing to the descent of an angel who troubled the waters, and the first person who immediately stepped in, was cured of whatever disease he had.

When this healing power began to be communicated to the waters, or when it ceased, the Jewish historians are entirely silent; it served however to show God had not left his people without witness, and represented that fountain which should be opened in the Saviour's side, in which whosoever washed should be made clean. This fountain hath not at seasons merely, but at all times, the power of healing; and therefore whosoever continues under his spiritual maladies, has only his own negligence to blame, that he will not come to Christ that he may be cured.

2. The person on whom the cure was wrought had been thirty-eight years under his infirmity, probably paralytic, and unable to move; and therefore, when Jesus, passing by, compassionately observed his pitiable case, and graciously addressed him, Wilt thou be made whole? he relates his unhappy condition, and his continual disappointment, whilst some other stepped in before he could find a friend to assist him to reach the troubled waters, so that he began now to despair of ever obtaining his cure. Note, (1.) What thankfulness do we owe to our preserving God, if we enjoy perfect health and strength, whilst others totter with weakness and disease, and wearisome days and nights are appointed to them? (2.) The compassionate eye of Jesus is on the afflicted: and though he suffers them to be long exercised, he will pass by them in due season, and deliver them. (3.) They who would receive a cure from him of their spiritual maladies, ought at least to be waiting at the pool of ordinances, where Jesus usually manifests his power and grace.

3. Christ with a word heals his disease, bidding him arise, take up his bed, and walk; and such power accompanied his command, that the impotent man instantly felt his strength return; arose perfectly cured; and taking up his bed, walked away in the sight, and to the amazement of the beholders; and the same day was the sabbath. Note. (1.) When Christ speaks to the impotent soul, he gives ability for that which he commands. (2.) They who are healed by his grace, will instantly be obedient to his will.

4. As, according to the tradition of the elders, it was accounted unlawful to carry a bed on the sabbath-day; the Jews jealous, therefore, for the honour of the sacred day of rest, rebuked him for being guilty of such a profanation. The man thought he had sufficient authority, when he who healed him gave him his orders, and pleads the command of the person who had wrought the cure upon him. They suspected who had done the miracle, and wanted the man to accuse his kind benefactor, against whom they wished to proceed as a sabbath-breaker. What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed and walk? With such contempt and indignation do they speak of Christ, as if he was a mere man, and a wicked man too, notoriously guilty of a breach of God's law. The man, who knew not Jesus, could give them no information: for he had disappeared immediately, mixing among the crowd, probably to avoid the admiration of some, and the malignity of others, who he knew would be offended at him for this glorious act of mercy, because it was the sabbath-day. Note, (1.) The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath; therefore works of mercy and charity are always commendable. (2.) They who are eminent for well-doing, may expect to pass through evil report as well as good report.

5. Soon after the poor man going up to the temple, probably to return thanks for his late mercies, met Jesus there, who gave him a solemn caution with regard to his future conduct; sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee. Should he provoke the wrath of God by his sins, it would yet be worse than his past long affliction. The man in the simplicity of his heart went and told the Jews that it was Jesus which had made him whole: probably he hoped this notable miracle might engage them to acknowledge him as the Messiah; but so far were they from being led to admire his character, that, filled with envy and enmity, they sought to slay Jesus; and for a pretext pleaded that this work of mercy was a profanation of the sabbath. Note, (1.) They who have received signal mercies from God, are peculiarly bound to be found in the temple, offering up their thanksgivings. (2.) In the Lord's house we may expect to be favoured with his presence. (3.) Sin is at the root of all our sufferings in time and eternity. (4.) They who are by grace delivered from the power and punishment of sin, should be doubly watchful not to return again unto folly. (5.) Many cover, with pretended zeal for religion, their enmity against the most faithful servants of Christ.

17. ¶ But Jesus answered them, [t] My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. 18. Therefore the Jews [u] sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, [x] making himself equal with God. 19. ¶ Then answered Jesus, and said unto them, [y] Verily, verily, I say unto you, [z] The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise. 20. [a] For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel. 21. For as the Father [b] raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will. 22. For the Father judgeth no man, [c] but hath committed all judgment unto the Son: 23. [d] That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father which hath sent him. 24. [e] Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life. 25. Verily, verily, I say unto you, [f] The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live. 26. [g] For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself; 27. [h] And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man. 28. Marvel not at [i] this: [k] for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, 29. And shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation. 30. [l] I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just; because [m] I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me.

t Ver. 21. ch. 9. 4. & 14. 10.
u Ch. 7. 19. & 8. 7. & 10. 32, 33. & 19. 7.
x Phil. 2. 6. ch. 10. 30. & 14. 9. Zech. 13. 7.
y See ch. 3. 3, 5. & 1. 51.
z Ver. 21, 30. ch. 8. 28. & 9. 4. & 12. 49. & 14. 10. & 1. 3. Heb. 1. 2, 3. Eph. 3. 9. Prov. 8. 22—31. Is. 9. 6. a Mat. 3. 17. & 12. 18. & 17. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 17. ch. 1. 18. & 3. 35. & 8. 28. & 14. 12. & 17. 2. & 10. 18. ver. 21—29.
b Rom. 4. 19. Deut. 32. 39. Luke 7. 14. & 8. 54. ch. 11. 25, 43. Mat. 27. 52, 53.
c Ver. 27. ch. 3. 35. & 17. 2. & 13. 3. Mat. 11. 27. & 25. 31—46. & 28. 18. 1 Pet. 4. 5. Rom. 2. 16. & 14. 10. 2 Cor. 5. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 1. Acts 10. 42. & 17. 31.
d Ps. 2. 12. & 54. 11. ch. 4. 1. Mat. 28. 19. Rev. 5. 8—13. 1 John 2. 23. & 5. 10. e Mat. 7. 24, 25. ch. 3. 15, 16, 18, 36. & 6. 40, 47. & 8. 51. & 20. 31. Rom. 8. 1,, 2. Eph. 2. 5, 6. 1 John 3. 14.
f See ver. 21. Eph. 2. 1, 5. & 5. 14. Luke 9. 60. & 15. 24, 32. Rom. 6. 4, 13. Gal. 2. 20. Col. 2. 13. 1 Cor. 15. 45. Rev. 3. 1.
g Jer. 10. 10. ch. 17. 2. 1 John 5. 20. 1 Tim. 6. 15. ch. 1. 4. & 11. 25. 1 Cor. 15. 45. ver. 21.
h Dan. 7. 13, 14. ch. 28. 18. Eph. 1. 20—23. Phil. 2. 9—11. 1 Pet. 3. 22. Acts 17. 31. see ver. 22. Acts 10. 42.
i Ver. 21, 25. Luke 7. 14. & 9. 54. ch. 11. 43. Eph. 2. 1, 5. Gal. 2. 20. k Job 19. 25, 26. Is. 26. 19. Dan. 12. 2, 3. Mat. 25. 31—46. 1 Thes. 4. 16, 17. 2 Thes. 1. 8, 9. Rev. 20. 11—15.
l Ver. 19. ch. 6. 38. & 8. 28. Is. 11. 2—5. Heb. 3. 6.
m Ps. 40. 8. Mat. 26. 30. ch. 4. 34. & 18. 11. & 6. 38.

Verses 17—30. We have here our Lord's vindication of himself from the charge laid against him as a sabbath-breaker.

1. He argues from his Father's works to his own. My Father worketh hitherto; by his continual operation, every day he administers the affairs of the kingdom of providence; and I work as one with him, in nature and operation; and therefore my works of power and grace can be no more the subject of blame, than his. Most absurd, therefore, was the charge laid against him as a sabbath-breaker, who was Lord of the sabbath, and one with the eternal Father, the Maker and preserver of all things.

2. This defence exasperated them but the more. Such a claim to God as his own Father, (πατερα ιδιον) in that peculiar sense, as implied a co-equality with him in power, authority, and operation, they regarded as the highest blasphemy, and more deserving of death than even the breach of the sabbath.

3. Far from blaming his enemies as perverting his words, he vindicates what he had said; asserting and proving in the most exalted sense the eternal union and co-equality between the Father and the Son, and his title to the dignity of the undivided Godhead, Verily, verily, I say unto you, what I speak is certain, and my words truth itself; The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do; such is the unity of their nature, that they are alike intimately acquainted with each other's counsels and designs, having one eternal mind. The Son, therefore, never acts separate from the Father, but with his consent and co-operation: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise; whatever the Father doth in the continual agency of his providence, the Son, as one with him, is a co-worker, and acts with the same divine power and authority as the Father himself. For the Father loveth the Son, an infinite mutual complacence subsists between the divine persons, and showeth him all things that himself doeth, communicating with him all his counsels and designs, and doing nothing in the kingdom of grace or providence, but in conjunction with him; and he will show him greater things than these, performing by him and with him, greater miracles of power and goodness than this wrought on the impotent man, that ye may marvel: either led to admire my works, and believe in my divine mission, or to wonder and perish in obstinate infidelity.

In confirmation of what he had said, he instances his own divine power in two most remarkable particulars, each of which are interwoven in his discourse, and nearly connected.

[1.] He hath power equally with the Father to quicken the dead. He is the prince of life, and by his own sovereign will and pleasure raises up whom he will: self-existent as the Father, he hath life in himself, ver. 26. or as the Father hath life in himself; intending in his eternal mind to bestow it on his chosen people, so hath he given the Son to have life in himself; in the economy of man's redemption this life eternal is lodged in the hands of the Son, resides in him, and is to be derived from him; and he bestows it sovereignly, according to the good pleasure of his will. By him,

(1.) The souls of sinners are raised from the death of trespasses in which they lay; by the effectual word of gospel grace they are called from the grave of corruption, and awake to newness of life: and the hour is coming, yea, now is, when this great work shall be performed: now by his own ministry, hereafter more abundantly by his apostles' preaching. Note, (1.) Our souls, by the fall, are become utterly incapable of all spiritual good, insensible to our real state of misery, and altogether dead before God, as much as the corpse which is laid in the coffin is insensible to what passes around it, and utterly disqualified for every action of life. (2.) Our hearts must experience a spiritual resurrection to newness of life here, or we can never hope for eternal life hereafter. (3.) The voice of Jesus in his word, made effectual by his Spirit, is the powerful agent which accomplishes this glorious work.

(2.) By him the dead bodies of men shall be raised up at the last day. Nor need any marvel, that he who first created man upon earth, should be able to repair the ruined tabernacle, and restore it from dust: all, from the first man whom God formed, to the last whom death shall seize, shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and instantly at his word, shall come forth, leaving the prison of the grave, restored to life that never more shall end. Though according to their several characters, very different will their doom be; they that have done good, whose hearts were renewed by divine grace, and whose works and ways evidenced faith unfeigned, and love without dissimulation, they, and only they, will rise unto the resurrection of life, to that state of immortal bliss and glory, which shall be the reward of their fidelity: and they that have done evil, have continued under the power and dominion of their native corruption, have lived without experiencing a divine change upon their hearts, and died under the guilt of unrepented sin, they shall be raised unto the resurrection of damnation, condemned to those eternal torments which are the wages of sin, without measure and without end; lying down in hell under that wrath of God, which is for ever wrath to come. How awful! how alarming the admonition! O that we might feel the weighty import of it, and prepare to meet our God!

[2.] He hath the power of finally determining the everlasting state of men and angels. Not only as God the Son is the Judge of all, in common with the Father, administering all the affairs of the kingdom of providence and grace, and without him the Father judgeth no man; but as Mediator also, he hath a peculiar authority delegated to him, to execute the judgment as the Son of man; to pronounce sentence from his throne at the last day, to take vengeance on all who have been rebellious against his government, and despised or rejected his salvation; and to fix, by an irrevocable decree, the eternal blessedness of his redeemed people; and the rule of his judgment at that day will be his own word, Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life; where we may observe, (1.) The sinner's title to glory, faith in the Redeemer. (2.) The effect of it; deliverance from all condemnation in time and eternity: for who can lay ought to the charge of those whom God justifieth? (3.) They who have passed from spiritual death to spiritual life, have therein the earnest and foretaste of eternal life. (4.) The judgment of Jesus is just, ver. 30. for all he doth is according to the eternal counsels of wisdom between the Father and the Son, ver. 29. in correspondence with the will of the Father, and according to the commission he hath received from him. Such, then, being his infinite dignity, the Son, who is in glory equal, in majesty co-eternal, must be honoured, worshipped, and adored, even as the Father; and so far from its being blasphemous, and derogatory from the Father's glory, that he should thus claim equality with him, in nature, perfections, and uncreated excellence; so inseparably connected are they, and their honour and interest so entirely the same, that the Father regards every instance of disrespect shown to his Son, as dishonour done to himself; both as he is one with him in the same undivided Godhead, and also as he is the Son of man sent from him, commissioned by him, and, as his ambassador, representing himself.

31. ¶ If I [n] bear witness of myself, my witness is not true. 32. [o] There is another that beareth witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me is true. 33. [p] Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the truth. 34. But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say, [q] that ye might be saved. 35. [r] He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light. 36. ¶ But I have greater witness than that of John: for the [s] works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me. 37. And the Father himself, which hath sent me, [t] hath borne witness of me. [u] Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor seen his shape. 38. And ye have not his word [x] abiding in you: [y] for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not. 39. ¶ [z] Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: [a] and they are they which testify of me. 40. [b] And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life. 41. ¶ [c] I receive not honour from men. 42. But [d] I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you. 43. [e] I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: [f] if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive. 44. [g] How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only? 45. ¶ Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father: [h] there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, [i] in whom ye trust. 46. For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me; [k] for he wrote of me. 47. But [l] if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

n i. e. I alone. Ch. 8. 14. ver. 32, 33, 36. ch. 14. 12. Num. 35. 30. Deut. 17. 6.

o Ch. 1. 6—8, 15, 26, 27, 29—36. & 3. 28—36. Mat. 3. 11, 12. Mark 1. 7. Luke 3. 16. Acts 13. 25. or Is. 42. 1. Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5.

p Ch. 1. 19—27. Mal. 3. 1. & 4. 5, 6. Is. 40. 3—9.

q ch. 1. 15, 29, 36. Luke 19. 10. ch. 20. 31. Rom. 15. 4. 1 Tim. 4. 16.

r Mat. iii. & 11. 7—14. & 21. 26. & 17. 12, 13. Mark 1. 2—11. & 6. 14, 20. Luke 1. 15—17, 76, 77. & iii. ch. 1. 6—36. & 3. 28—36. Gal. 4. 15. Mat. 13. 20, 21. 2 Pet. 1. 19.

s Ch. 10. 25, 38. & 14. 12. Mat. 11. 4, 5.

t Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. Is. 42. 1—7. 2 Pet. 1. 17. ch. 8. 18. & 12. 28. & 14. 10.

u Exod. 20. 19. & 33. 20. Deut. 4. 12. 1 Tim. 6. 16. 1 John 4. 12. ch. 1. 18.

x Ps. 119. 11. 1 John 2. 14. Prov. 2. 1, 2. & 6. 21. & 7. 1, 2. Deut. 6. 6—9.

y Is. 49. 7. & 53. 1—3. ch. 1. 11. Luke 7. 30.

z Deut. 6. 6—9. Is. 8. 20. & 34. 16. Acts 17. 11. Luke 16. 29, 31.

a See Luke 16. 29. & 24. 27, 44. ch. 1. 45. ver. 46.

b Rom. 8. 7. ch. 5. 11. & 3. 19. Is. 49. 7. & 53. 1—3. Ps. 31. 11. Hos. 11. 2, 7. Heb. 10. 29.

c Ch. 6. 15. ver. 34. 2 Cor. 8. 9. 1 Thes. 2. 6. Mat. 20. 28.

d Jer. 17. 9, 10. Rev. 2. 23. Luke 16. 15. Mat. 23. 13—28.

e Ch. 3. 16. Exod. 23. 31. Heb. 5. 4, 5. with Is. 53. 2, 3. ch. 1. 11.

f Mat. 24. 6, 24. Acts 5. 36, 37. & 21. 38.

g Ch. 12. 43. Rom. 2. 29.

h Rom. 3. 19, 20. & 7. 9—14. Gal. 3. 10. ver. 46.

i Ch. 8. 6. Mat. 19. 7. Acts 6. 11, 14. & 12. 3. & 17. 18. & 22. 18. & 49. 10. Deut. 13. 15—18. Exod. xii, xxv—xxx. Lev. i—xvi. Num. iii, iv, viii, xv, xxviii, xxix. Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 4. 24. Col. 2. 17. Heb. viii—x.

k Gen. 3. 15. l Luke 16. 29. Rom. 10. 7.

Verses 31—47. In confirmation of the glorious character he assumed, and his mission from the Father, he proceeds to produce other evidence than his own; admitting, that if what he asserted was utterly unsupported, they might reject his testimony of himself as untrue.

1. John the Baptist bore witness of him, and to his evidence Christ appeals, fully assured it was true: and they themselves, who applied to him as a prophet, were bound to embrace his testimony, which in the most solemn manner he delivered to those deputies of the Sanhedrim who were sent to inquire who he was, and under what authority he acted. He plainly asserted Christ's divine character, chap. i. 19—30. and his evidence they could not but allow to be most respectable. For though he was not that light, the Messiah, he was a burning and a shining light; his exemplary conduct and zealous preaching bespoke the simplicity of his soul, and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light. They gloried in him at first, and raised their expectations high, but when he would neither himself assume the character of the Messiah, nor declare himself that Elias whom they expected, they could not bear the sharpness of his rebukes, and the plainness of his testimony to that Messiah whom they rejected; and therefore they soon fell off and neglected him: not that Christ indeed needed human testimony, he had far greater; but for their conviction he mentions this, if any thing might be the means of rescuing them from ruin. Note, (1.) Every minister of Jesus, like John, should burn with zeal for his glory, and shine in all holy conversation, that he may adorn and give weight to the doctrine he preaches. (2.) Many at first seem to rejoice in the light of the gospel, who soon grow cold and careless, and neglect so great a salvation. (3.) They who trifle with their mercies, are justly deprived of them.

2. He appeals to a greater witness than that of John, even to his own works, which bore witness of him. His whole life and ministry bespoke his glorious character, and especially his miracles, wrought by his own divine power, evidenced his mission from God. And greater works than he had yet done remained for him to finish; to leave them at last without excuse, if they obstinately persisted in their infidelity.

3. God the Father himself had expressly borne witness to him by a voice from heaven at his baptism, Mat. iii. 16, 17. which was solemnly repeated, Mat. xvii. 5. at his transfiguration, and this was a singular attestation, such as has never before on any occasion been vouchsafed. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor seen his shape; all the voices that were heard, and the appearances that were seen, under the Old Testament, were either those of the Son in a human form, or of the angels employed by him in his ministry; then first when the Father in person spoke from heaven at the baptism of his Son, was his voice audibly heard, and a visible manifestation made of his glory. And ye have not his word abiding in you; neither this immediate testimony from heaven, nor his former word by his prophets had ever made any abiding impression; for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not; after all this evidence they, notwithstanding, rejected the testimony of God, and refused to believe in his Messiah. Note, (1.) When God sends, he will bear witness to his own servants, and attest with his Spirit the commission he hath given them. (2.) Many have the word of God in their hands, and sounding in their ears, and yet have it not abiding in their hearts.

4. He refers them to their own Scriptures for the proof of his divine character and mission. Search the Scriptures, or ye do search them. The Scriptures were by many of them much studied, and they boasted of their wisdom in these sacred oracles, but they were really great strangers to the meaning of them; they had need therefore look farther and deeper than ever yet they had done, and he ventures to rest his cause upon an appeal to these authentic records which they themselves so highly and justly valued: for in them ye think ye have eternal life; they placed the chief stress of their religion upon the knowledge of the law; and flattered themselves, by constantly reading these sacred writings and getting them by rote, they were sure of heaven. Now, these, saith he, are they that testify of me, all the types, promises, prophecies, centre in him, and refer to him; and yet ye will not come to me, that ye may have life; such were their prejudices and wilful blindness, that though the Scriptures were so express in pointing him out to their notice, they would not submit to apply to him, that they might obtain the pardon, life, and salvation, which he alone could give. Not that he affected to exalt himself, to gather a party, or obtain temporal dominion. I receive not honour from men; he neither courted nor needed human applause, his only aim was to advance his Father's glory. But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you; he tried their hearts, and notwithstanding all their high pretences of zeal for God's honour, the love of the world predominated in their affections, and they had really no heartfelt and sincere regard to God or godliness, and rejected him because he did not correspond with their earthly expectations. Hence, though I am come in my Father's name, with evidences of a divine mission so strong and striking, ye receive me not, because the salvation he brought was spiritual, from sin, and death, and hell: and he so sharply rebuked their vices, and undeceived them in their vain expectation of a temporal Messiah, who should come with outward pomp and grandeur, therefore they rejected him: but if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive, eager to embrace every impostor who pretended to deliver them from the Roman yoke, and aggrandize their nation, though vouching no authority but his own vain boastings. And being under the influence of such a carnal mind how can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour which cometh from God only? Their spirit and temper, and proud affection of pre-eminence, were the reverse of the kingdom which Christ came to erect; where humility and self-denial stood in the first and most distinguished place; and must for ever exclude them from the spiritual, substantial, and eternal honours which God alone bestows on the children of his grace, and the heirs of his glory. Learn hence, (1.) The necessity of deep and serious examination of the Scriptures, comparing spiritual things with spiritual, and diligently seeking for Christ in them, who is the sum and substance of them; for without the practical knowledge of him, all other attainments in the letter, language, and phrases of the Scripture, are really no better than splendid ignorance. (2.) In the Scriptures eternal life is to be obtained, because they reveal to us that Redeemer, who is the author of it to all who obey him. The Old Testament, as well as the New, is full of him; the moral law drives us for refuge to him, the types of the ceremonial law all prefigure him, the prophecies all centre in him. He is indeed all, and in all. (3.) All who come by faith to Christ, embracing the salvation which is in him, will assuredly find pardon, grace, and glory; the reason why any sinners perish is this, that blinded by ignorance, or perverted by pride and self-righteousness, they will not come to Christ, that they might have life. Their eternal ruin, therefore, lies at their own door. (4.) Christ searcheth the heart and trieth the reins; he knoweth what is in man, and under the guise of the warmest profession of religion, can discover the enmity which reigns within, against himself and his gospel. (5.) Where inordinate love of this world prevails, and ambition, covetousness, and desire of human applause, possess the soul, it is impossible the love of God should dwell there. No man can serve two masters. (6.) When men choose those false prophets, who flatter them in their iniquities, and run without being sent, and pleased with their smooth prophecies turn a deaf ear to the warning voice of truth, justly doth God give up such to the delusions they have chosen. (7.) True honour comes from God alone; his estimation of us, not that of all the world beside, stamps our character with excellence or infamy. His approbation, therefore, a gracious soul desires in the first place. (8.) Whilst our hearts chiefly affect earthly honours, it is impossible we should believe in, embrace, and submit to him, whose kingdom is not of this world, and whose first demand from us is to take up our cross and follow him, as men wondered at.

Lastly, Christ turns them over to Moses, in whose writings they so much gloried, for a proof of his mission, and as their accuser, if they persisted in their infidelity. Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father, as if I came to spy out your faults, with a view to your condemnation; No: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. That law on which they trusted for salvation must needs condemn them as transgressors; and Moses in person at the last day must, to their confusion, testify against their impenitence and unbelief. For had ye be- lieved Moses, ye would have believed me, for he wrote of me, as the great Prophet who should arise; as the great End of the Law, moral and ceremonial, to whom both pointed; but if ye believe not his writings, for whom you pretend such high veneration, and are not convinced by them of my divine mission, how shall ye believe my words? against whom you entertain such inveterate prejudices, and whom you treat with such insolent contempt? Note, (1.) Many make their boast in those privileges which will at last prove their most aggravated condemnation, because they have abused them. (2.) They who refuse to fly by faith for refuge to the gospel of Christ, must inevitably perish under the accusations of the law of Moses.

CHAP. VI.—ANNO DOMINI, 32.

In this chapter we have, 1. The miracles of the loaves, ver. 1—14. 2. Christ's walking upon the water, ver. 15—21. 3. The people's flocking after him to Capernaum, ver. 22—25. 4. His conference with them, occasioned by the miracle of the loaves, in which he reproves them for seeking carnal food, and directs them to spiritual food, ver. 26, 27. showing them how they must labour for spiritual food, ver. 28, 29. and what that spiritual food is, ver. 30—59. 5. Their discontent at what he said, and the reproof he gave them for it, ver. 60—65. 6. The apostasy of many from him, and his discourse with his disciples, that adhered to him upon that occasion, ver. 66—71.

cir. 32.

1. AFTER these things [a] Jesus went over the [b] sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias. 2. [c] And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased. 3. And [d] Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples. 4. [e] And the passover, a feast of the Jews was nigh. 5. [f] When Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat? 6. And this he said to [g] prove him: for he himself knew what he would do. 7. Philip answered him, [h] Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little. 8. One of his disciples, [i] Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him, 9. There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: [k] but what are they among so many? 10. And Jesus said, [l] Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand. 11. And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had [m] given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes, as much as they would. 12. When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, [n] Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost. 13. Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten. 14. Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, [o] This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

[a] Mat. 14. 13—21. Mark 6. 31—44. Luke 9. 10—17.

[b] Mat. 4. 18, & 15. 29. & 14. 34. Luke 5. 1. Num. 34. 12. Josh. 2. 3.

[c] Mat. 4. 23—25. & 8. 1. & 11. 7. & 12. 15. & 15. 1. & 14. 13, 14.

[d] Ver. 15. Mat. 5. 1. & 14. 23. & 15. 29. Luke 6. 12. & 9. 28.

[e] Lev. 23. 5. Exod. 12. 6. Deut. 16. 1. Num. 28. 6.

[f] Mat. 14. 15. Mark 6. 35. Luke 9. 12. ch. 4. 35.

[g] Gen. 22. 1. Deut. 8. 2, 16. & 33. 8. 2 Chr. 32. 31.

[h] i. e. £6: 9*s.* Num. 11. 21, 22. Mark 6. 37.

[i] Ch. 1. 40—44. Mat. 4. 18.

[k] Num. 11. 21, 22. 2 Kin. 4. 43. Mat. 14. 17. Mark 6. 38. Luke 9. 13. ver. 6.

[l] Mat. 14. 19. Mark 6. 41—43. Luke 9. 16, 17. Ps. 37. 16. Prov. 13. 25. & 15. 16, 17.

[m] Neh. 9. 25. 1 Sam. 9. 13. Mat. 15. 36. & 26. 27. & 24. 45. Exod. 23. 25. Rom. 14. 6. 1 Tim. 4. 5.

[n] 1 Kin. 17. 15, 16. Prov. 3. 9, 10. & 11. 24, 25. Phil. 4. 19. The disciples had much more left than at the beginning.

[o] Gen. 49. 10. Deut. 18. 15—18. Is. 7. 14. & 9. 6. & 35. 4. Luke 7. 16. & 24. 19. ch. 1. 21. & 4. 19, 25, 42. & 7. 40.

Verses 1—14. The miracle here recorded is the only one which all the four evangelists have mentioned. We have,

1. The time and place, when and where it was wrought. Christ had crossed the lake of Gennesaret, called the sea of Tiberias, from a city Herod had built on the border of it, in honour of the emperor Tiberius. Multitudes followed him; not so much, it seems, affected by his doctrine, as drawn by his miracles. However, the Lord was ready to receive them; and going up into a mountain, for the convenience of being heard, sat there with his disciples, and taught the listening crowd: and the passover, the third since his entrance on the ministry, now approached.

2. The miracle itself. Beholding with compassion the multitudes who were assembled on this occasion, our Lord addressed himself to Philip, and asked him, in order to try his faith, being himself resolved what to do, Where they could get bread to feed that multitude? Philip, dull of apprehension, looked only to human aid, and suggests, that two hundred pennyworth of bread (about six pounds five shillings, which probably was all their common stock) would not be sufficient to give each a morsel. Andrew, hearing the discourse, suggests, there was a lad in the company that had five barley loaves and two small fishes: but these indeed would be as nothing among such a multitude. But where human means fail, the divine power is not straitened. Commanding his disciples, therefore, to seat the multitude in order, where the grass was their carpet, and the earth their table, with his divine benediction he consecrated the scanty provision, and breaking the bread and fishes, gave them to his disciples, who distributed them to the multitude: and marvellous to behold! under their hands the meat continued to grow as it descended down the ranks; and not only afforded enough for a plentiful meal to all that vast multitude, but such a quantity of fragments as filled twelve baskets full. Note, (1.) When the Lord is pleased at times to leave us in perplexity, he hath designs of his own to answer, and knows what he intends to do. (2.) Christ's disciples must not disdain coarse and scanty fare, but be content, when his providence so ordains, to put up with barley cakes, and be thankful for them; and then this poor provision, with the benediction of Jesus, shall yield a richer entertainment than all the delicacies of the luxurious. (3.) They who call a fish-meal fasting, seem to cast a reproach on the rich feast with which Jesus entertained his followers. (4.) Bread must never be wasted, even the fragments of barley cakes are carefully gathered up. If we are full, others are fasting, who will be glad of our leavings; good economy is the means to enable us for more extensive charity.

3. Great was the effect, for the time at least, produced by this miracle on the minds of the people. They concluded this must be that great prophet spoken of by Moses, Deut. xviii. 15. who should come into the world.

15. ¶ [q] When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone. 16. [r] And when even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea, 17. And entered into a ship, and * went over the sea toward [s] Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them. 18. And [t] the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew. 19. So, when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty [u] furlongs, they see Jesus [x] walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: [y] and they were afraid. 20. But he saith unto them, It is I; be not afraid. 21. Then [z] they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at land whither they went.

[q] Ch. 5. 41. & 18. 36. & 19. 14, 15. Mat. 21. 9. Acts 14. 13. Mark 6. 46. Mat. 14. 23. ch. 2. 24.

[r] Mat. 14. 22—33. Mark 6. 45—54.

* Westward.

s Ch. 2. 12. & 4. 46. Mat. 4. 13. & 11. 23.

t Ps. 107. 27. & 135. 7.

u A furlong is the eighth part of a mile. Luke 24. 13.

x Job 9. 8. Ps. 29. 10. & 93. 4. & 89. 9.

y Mat. 14. 25—33. Mark 6. 48—51. Is. 40. 27, 28. & 41. 10, 14. & 43. 1, 2. & 46. 3, 4. Rev. 1. 17, 18. Is. 51. 12, 13.

z Song 3. 4. Ps. 24. 7. 10. Luke 2. 28—30. Rev. 3. 20.

Verses 15—21. We have here,

1. The retirement of the Lord Jesus. They whom he had in so astonishing a manner fed, were immediately for proclaiming him king of the Jews, and erecting his standard; expecting, according to their mistaken prejudices, that he would set up a temporal dominion, rescue them from the Roman yoke, and place them at the head of the nations. But far different was the kingdom he came to establish; therefore, fearing lest their irregular zeal should hurry them into some seditious behaviour, and that against his will they might attempt to force the royalty upon him, he left them and went up again into the mountain alone. Note, (1.) Christ's kingdom is not of this world, his true disciples will never seek their portion here below. (2.) His ministers must avoid every thing that may give the shadow of offence to the secular powers, never intermeddling with civil affairs, but teaching all dutiful submission to the powers that are.

2. Whilst the Master was in the mountain, the disciples were tossing on the tempestuous waves. By the command of their Lord they had gone on shipboard, in order to cross the lake; but now the storm arose, the night was dark, the wind contrary, and their Master not come to them, which heightened their distress. Note, (1.) After the sweetest seasons of refreshment, sometimes the darkest days of temptation succeed. (2.) It is one of the heaviest afflictions to the soul under trials, when the presence of Jesus is withdrawn, and we are left under darkness and desertion. (3.) They who embark in Christ's cause must prepare for a storm. The way to glory lies through much tribulation.

3. In their extremity help approaches. In the way of duty we need never despair; Christ will deliver us in the needful time of trouble. He came to them miraculously walking on the waters; but they, affrighted, thought it had been an apparition, till his well-known voice quieted their fears: when he was so nigh, no evil could hurt them. Note, (1.) We often terrify ourselves with unnecessary apprehensions of danger, and when our minds are dejected, are ready to fear that the very means that are working for our good, portend an increase of our misery. (2.) Jesus alone, by his all-powerful word, can speak peace to the sinner's troubled mind.

4. With joy they welcomed their Master's arrival; and in a moment the ship, by a miracle, was at the place of their destination. Note, (1.) Christ is doubly precious to the soul; when mourning after him, and walking in darkness, he returns, and lifts up the light of his countenance, and dissipates every cloud of sorrow. (2.) The church, and every faithful soul embarked on this tempestuous world, experience many a storm; but their everlasting safety is secured, they shall never finally be cast away. (3.) It will be a pleasing surprise to many a trembling believer, when he shall find himself at death safely landed on the shores of eternal rest.

22. ¶ The day following, when the people, which stood on the other side of the sea, saw that there was none other boat there, save that one whereinto his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were gone away alone; 23. (Howbeit there came other boats from [a] Tiberias, nigh unto the place [b] where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks:) 24. When the people therefore saw that Jesus was not [c] there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to [d] Capernaum, seeking for Jesus. 25. And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither? 26. Jesus answered them, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [e] Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled. 27. † Labour not for [f] the meat which perisheth, but for [g] that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which [h] the Son of man shall give unto you: [i] for him hath God the Father sealed.‡

a Or Cinneroth. Josh. 11. 2. Num. 34. 11. ver. 1.

b Ver. 10, 11.

c Ver. 15.

d A city on the west of the sea of Galilee. Ver. 17.

e Ps. 78. 34, 37. Is. 58. 2. Rom. 16. 18. Phil. 2. 21. Jam. 4. 3, 4.

† Or work not.

f Ch. 4. 13. Eccl. 1. 2. & 5. 11. Mat. 6. 19, 20. Col. 3. 2. & 2. 22. 1 Cor. 6. 13.

g Ver. 40, 54. ch. 4. 14. Luke 10. 42.

h Is. 55. 1—3. ch. 17. 2. Rom. 6. 23. 1 Cor. 15. 10.

i Acts 2. 22. & 10. 38. Is. 11. 2—4. & 61. 1. ch. 3. 34. 2 Pet. 1. 17. Mat. 3. 16, 17. & 17. 5.

‡ Or, For to Him, the Father, that is God, hath given his attestation.

Verses 22—27. All night the multitude seemed to have waited for the return of Jesus from the mountain in the morning: for as they saw the disciples embark, and leave their Master behind them, and there was no other boat in which he could follow them, they concluded he must still be on that side of the water; but not finding him there as they expected, we are told,

1. How carefully they followed him. Some boats arriving in the morning from Tiberias, near that place where they had been miraculously fed through the benediction of Jesus, they crossed the lake to Capernaum, hoping to find him there, where he usually made his abode. Note, (1.) They who love Christ truly; will stick at no pains in following him. (2.) When we are found in God's way, his providence is often seen, most graciously to second our good designs and desires.

2. They found him on the other side of the sea, and could not but express their astonishment how he could come thither, having no convenience for crossing the lake. Note, Many eagerly run after Christ and his gospel, pretending great zeal for hearing, who never truly come to him by faith, nor receive the ingrafted word to the saving of their souls.

3. Christ, who knew the spirit and temper with which they followed him, replies to their question in such a manner, as he saw their state required.

[1.] He rebukes them for the corrupt principle on which they acted. They followed him, not because they were convinced by his doctrine and miracles, and believed in him to the saving of their souls, but merely because they had been fed at his cost, and expected yet greater temporal advantages from him when he should set up his kingdom. Note, Many follow Christ for the loaves, who have no love for his gospel.

[2.] He exhorts them to seek a better portion. Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you. The world and all the things of it perish in the using, and we are dying daily, and cannot long possess any thing here below. It is therefore the most egregious folly to lay out all our labour on so transitory a portion, and most criminal to make our profession of religion subservient to the base purposes of earthly advantages. Christ proposes to us a nobler good, even that spiritual food of his grace, by which our immortal souls may be fed, and we may grow up to the participation of that eternal life, which the Son of man hath to bestow on every truly faithful soul: for him hath God the Father sealed, fully commissioned and authorized him to give this eternal life to his redeemed people, and to feed them with that living bread, of which, if a man eat, he shall never die. Note, (1.) All our blessings, in time and eternity, come from the free gift of our Redeemer. (2.) None who come to Jesus, seeking the living bread, will be denied, for he feedeth the hungry.

28. Then said they unto him, [k] What shall we do, that we might work the works of God? 29. Jesus answered and said unto them, [l] This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent. 30. ¶ They said therefore unto him, [m] What sign shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what doest thou work? 31. [n] Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat. * 32. Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you [o] the true bread from heaven. 33. [p] For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world. 34. Then said they unto him, Lord, [q] evermore give us this bread. 35. And Jesus said unto them, [r] I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. 36. But I said unto you, That [s] ye also have seen me, and believe not. 37. [t] All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out. 38. For [u] I came down from heaven, [x] not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me. 39. And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me [y] I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. 40. And this is the will of him that sent me, [z] that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day. 41. The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven. 42. And they said, [b] Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven? 43. Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves. 44. [c] No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day. 45. [d] It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. [e] Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me. 46. [f] Not that any man hath seen the Father, save he which is of God, he hath seen the Father. 47. [g] Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life. 48. [h] I am that bread of life. 49. [i] Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. 50. [k] This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die. 51. [l] I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is [m] my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. 52. [n] The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, [o] How can this man give us his flesh to eat? 53. Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [p] Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. 54. [q] Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life: and I will raise him up at the last day. 55. For [r] my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. 56. [s] He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, [t] dwelleth in me, and I in him. 57. [u] As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father; [x] so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me. 58. [y] This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead: he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever. 59. These things said he in [z] the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

k Deut. 5. 26. Mic. 6. 7, 8. Mat. 19. 16.

l Exod. 23. 21. 1 John 3. 23. & 5. 10—12. ch. 3. 15—18, 36. & 14. 1. Ps. 2. 12. & 45. 10, 11.

m Mat. 12. 38. & 16. 1. ch. 2. 18. 1 Cor. 1. 22.

n Exod. 16. 4, 14. Num. 11. 7. Neh. 9. 15, 20 Ps. 78. 24, 25. 1 Cor. 10. 3. ver. 49.

* Or, he gave them bread of heaven to eat.

o Ver. 33, 35, 48, 50, 51, 53—58. ch. 3. 16. 1 John 4. 9, 10, 14. Gal. 1. 20.

p Ch. 10. 9. & 3. 14, 16, 17. & 14. 6. & 1. 4. 1 Tim. 1. 15, 16.

q Ch. 4. 15. Ps. 4. 6. ver. 26.

r Ver. 47—58, 41. ch. 7. 37. & 4. 14. Is. 55. 1, 2. Prov. 9. 5. Col. 2. 10, 19. Gal. 2. 20.

s Ver. 14, 26, 34, 64. ch. 1. 11. & 5. 40. & 12. 37. Is. 53. 2, 3.

t 2 Tim. 2. 19. Rom. 11. 5, 7. ch. 17. 6. & 10. 26—29. 1 John 2. 19. Mat. 11. 28. Is. 45. 17, 22. & 55. 1. Mat. 24. 24. ver. 39.

u Eph. 4. 9. 1 Tim. 1. 15.

x Ps. 40. 8. Is. 42. 1. & 49. 3. Mat. 20. 28. & 26. 39. ch. 4. 34. & 5. 30. Phil. 2. 7, 8. Heb. 5. 8.

y Ch. 10. 28. & 17. 12. & 18. 9. & 5. 28, 29. 1 John 2. 19. Jude 1. Col. 3. 3.

z Ch. 3. 15—18. & 14. 19. 1 a. 42. 6, 7. & 49. 6, 8. ver. 37.

a Ver. 52, 60, 61, 66. Luke 5. 30. & 15. 2. & 19. 7.

b Mat. 13. 55. Mark 6. 3. Luke 4. 23. with Mat. 23. 42—45. Gal. 4. 4. Rom. 9. 5. & 8. 7. & 1. 3.

c 1 Cor. 4. 7. ver. 65. Phil. 1. 29. Song 1. 4. Jer. 17. 9. Rom. 8. 7, 8. Tit. 3. 3, 5.

d Is. 54. 13. Jer. 31. 33, 34. Heb. 8. 10—12. & 10. 16.

e Gal. 1. 15, 16. Eph. 1. 17—20. Acts 26. 17, 18 Phil. 1. 29. 2 Cor. 4. 6.

f Mat. 11. 27. ch. 1. 18. & 5. 37. & 14. 9, 10. Luke 10. 22. 1 Tim. 6. 16. 1 John 4. 12. 2 Cor. 4. 6. None but Christ hath any immediate knowledge of, or from, the Father.

g Ch. 3. 15, 16, 36. ver. 27, 33, 35, 40, 54, 57, 58. ch. 10. 28, 29. Is. 45. 17.

h Ver. 35, 40, 47, 51, 54, 57, &c. ch. 10. 10. Gal. 2. 20. Col. 3. 3, 4.

i Exod. 16. 4, 15. Neh. 9. 15, 20. Ps. 78. 24. ver. 31. Num. 26. 65. Judg. 2. 10.

k Ver. 32, 33, 38, 41, 47, 48.

l Ver. 33, 35, 47, 48. ch. 3. 13. Eph. 4. 9. 1 Cor. 15. 45, 47. 1 John 5. 12.

m Ver. 52—57. Is. 53. 4, 5. Heb. 10. 5, 10. Mat. 20. 28. Tit. 2. 14. 1 Tim. 2. 5, 6. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18. Rev. 5. 9. Prov. 9. 2.

n Ch. 7. 43. & 9. 16. & 10. 19.

o Ch. 3. 4, 9. & 4. 11. 1 Cor. 2. 14.

p Mark 16. 16. ch. 3. 18, 36. Gal. 2. 20. Phil. 3. 9, 10. 1 Cor. 1. 30.

q Ch. 1. 14. & 3. 15, 16, 18, 36. & 4. 14, 27, 40. Gal. 2. 20. Rom. 8. 1—4, 28—39. & 5. 21.

r Gal. 2. 16, 20, 21. 1 Cor. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 5. 17, 21. Col. 2. 3, 9, 10. & 3. 11. Phil. 3. 7—10.

s Ps. 34. 8. Prov. 9. 5. Is. 25. 6. & 55. 1—3. ch. 1. 11. & 3. 15. 1 John 3. 24.

t Ch. 14. 20. & 17. 23. & 15. 3, 4. 1 John 4. 12—16. Eph. 5. 30. 1 Cor. 1. 30. & 6. 17. Gal. 2. 20. 1 John 3. 24. & 5. 10, 12.

u Jer. 10. 10. & 2. 13. Deut. 5. 26. ch. 5. 26. & 3. 34.

x Ch. 14. 6, 19. Col. 3. 3, 4. & 2. 19. Gal. 2. 20.

y Ver. 31—40, 47—57. ch. 3. 13. & 10. 10. Rom. 5. 21.

z Ch. 18. 20. Ps. 22. 22. & 40. 9, 10. Rom. 15. 8.

Verses 28—59. In consequence of what he had spoken, the persons who heard him entered into conference with him, how they might attain that everlasting life he mentioned.

1. They said unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God? He had commanded them to labour for the enduring meat, and they wanted to know what they must do; whether any thing more was necessary than obedience to the law of Moses: for they founded all their expectations on their own doings and duties, and thought of no other way to righteousness and life eternal than by the works of the law.

2. Christ replied, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent. It is not by doing, but by believing, that righteousness and salvation are attainable; faith in Jesus, in his divine character as the Messiah, and in the all-sufficiency of his blood and righteousness to justify the ungodly, is the principal thing, without which it is impossible to please God. And this faith is his own work in the soul, which we can no more give ourselves, than we can create a world.

3. They answered again, What sign showest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what doest thou work? They overlooked the miracles he had already performed and demanded greater. For since he seemed to assume higher authority than that of Moses, they thought he should produce greater evidences of a divine commission: it is true he had by miracle yesterday fed five thousand, but they suggest Moses did much more. Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat. The number there was much greater, the miracle daily continued, and the fare far more delicious than barley loaves.

4. Christ rectifies their mistake. They ascribed to Moses what was not his, but God's gift. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; it doth not appear he had the least concern in procuring it; neither did it come from heaven as they imagined, but merely from the clouds, and served only to support a mortal life: but my Father, who gave you the manna, giveth you the true bread from heaven, of which that was the type and figure. For the bread of God, is he (or that) which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world, a provision as much superior to the manna in the wilderness, as the throne of God is beyond the clouds, and life eternal exceeds the present moment of mortality.

5. Ignorantly mistaking his meaning, as if he spoke of material bread, they said unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread. They eagerly desire that heavenly provision, whose properties were so excellent, and so far surpassed the manna which their fathers did eat in the wilderness. They indeed understood not what they asked; but if we have tasted of the heavenly manna, have fed upon the word of Jesus, and feasted on the sweet and precious promises which are in him, we shall not cease with deep sensibility to cry, Lord, evermore give us this bread!

6. Christ plainly informs them of his meaning. I am the bread of life; he spoke not of bread literally, or of a merely temporal happiness, but of himself; a divine person become incarnate to give spiritual life to immortal souls. He is the bread of life; our bodies could better live without daily food, than our spirits without the constant supplies of his grace. He is both the quickening principle of our spiritual life, and the constant support of it. Therefore saith Christ, he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth in me shall never thirst; whosoever by faith applies to Jesus shall never want the richest provision to satisfy the most enlarged desires of his soul. But I said unto you, that ye also have seen me, and believe not; they had seen his miracles, yet through their earthly mindedness, and attachment to worldly interest, they received him not as a spiritual Redeemer, nor trusted upon him for eternal life. Some, indeed, there were who would embrace his gospel, and be saved by it. All that the Father giveth me, according to the everlasting covenant of grace, as a peculiar people, shall come unto me; drawn by almighty cords of grace irresistible, and enabled to exercise faith in me: and him that cometh to me, under whatever load of guilt or corruption he groans, I will in no wise cast out. The Saviour's arms of mercy are open to receive the miserable and the desperate: no sinner who flies to him need fear a repulse, however great or aggravated his iniquities may be, pardon, peace, grace, and glory, are assured to him by the promises of the God who cannot lie. For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me; not on an errand of uncertainty, or to carry on any design separately from his Father; but as his ambassador, qualified and commissioned to execute that glorious work of man's redemption to which he was appointed; and ready to do and suffer whatever the determinate counsel of God hath ordained. And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me, I should lose none, but raise it up again at the last day. From whence we learn, (1.) That according to the covenant of redemption, a certain number of sinners are given to Jesus Christ, in whom he shall see the travail of his soul: and herein he acts as the eternal King, sovereignly exercising mercy to some, when he might, in justice, have condemned all to suffer the wages of sin. (2.) Christ will infallibly take care of those whose interests are lodged in his hands; his grace shall find them out, his power preserve them; and neither the wiles of Satan, nor the temptations of the world, nor the perverseness of the fallen heart, shall be able to defeat his purposes of love towards them: not one shall be lost, of those whose sins he bore. (3.) As the Saviour undertakes to deliver his people from sin and all its consequences, death, which is the wages of sin, shall not have dominion over them; as by his grace their souls are rescued from the power of corruption, their bodies shall also be redeemed from the grave, and raised up in glory at the great day of his appearing. (4.) All those have a part in this salvation who hear, and by faith, embrace the gospel which Christ declares. For this is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day; the gospel proposes a free salvation, through Jesus, to every miserable sinner, and whoever receives the record of God concerning his Son, sees his own deep need of the Saviour, and the all-sufficiency of Jesus, becomes a partaker of that present life of grace, which is the earnest of the eternal life of glory. They who perish owe it to their infidelity; they reject the counsel of God against their own souls, and will not come to Christ that they may have life; either through ignorance, insensible to their own misery and want of a Saviour; or through pride, going about to establish their own righteousness instead of submitting to the righteousness of God.

7. Perceiving now that Christ plainly pointed at himself, as the living bread endued with such wonderful properties, the Jews murmured and cavilled at him, as if he assumed to himself extravagant honours, in pretending to come down from heaven, and being the bread of life, and they objected his known descent from Joseph and Mary. Is not this Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven? when his earthly original is so evident.

8. Christ confutes their cavils, and answers their murmurings. He said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves; he knew their thoughts, and the prejudices they entertained against him arising from that native corruption of their hearts, which nothing but almighty grace could subdue. For no man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me, draw him; such is the present state of fallen man, that he is under an utter impotence to turn unto God, unless drawn by the Spirit of God, and enabled to believe in his dear Son. And to as many as are thus drawn to him, Christ saith, I will raise him up at the last day; and the way in which the sinner is thus wrought upon, is according as it is written in the prophets, Isa. liv. 13. Jer. xxxi. 34. They shall be all taught of God, by his revealed word, and the illuminations of his Spirit. Every one therefore that hath heard and learned of the Father, speaking in his word, and by his Spirit to the soul, cometh unto me, trusting on Jesus alone for pardon, righteousness, and salvation; and without such divine teaching and spiritual illumination, the natural man cannot receive the truths of revelation, nor believe in the Son of God. Not that any man hath seen the Father, visibly or personally instructing him, save he which is of God, his incarnate Son, he hath seen the Father; is privy to all his counsels and designs; by him all divine discoveries are made, and through his agency the effectual power is communicated to our souls, to hear and receive the gospel word. Verily, verily, I say unto you, as a most undoubted truth, He that believeth on me, hath everlasting life; the true believer is already possessed of it by right and title, through Jesus, his glorious covenant-head and representative; embraces it in faith and hope, hath the earnest and foretastes of it in present grace, and must necessarily be brought to the actual enjoyment of eternal glory hereafter. I am the bread of life; it is from Christ our spiritual life is derived, through him it is supported, and by him it shall be perfected. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead; miraculous as their provision was, it only maintained for a while a temporal life, and did not prevent the ravages of death, or render them immortal. But this is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die; for whoever by faith truly feeds upon Christ, shall never die eternally. I am the living bread which came down from heaven, to be the author of spiritual and eternal life; if any man eat of this bread, hungering after the pardon, righteousness, and salvation which Jesus brings, he shall live for ever; though not immortal upon earth, yet sure of an eternity of glory in heaven: and the bread that I will give, is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. His human body, offered up as the great sacrifice for sinners, would be the grand procuring cause of all those inestimable blessings he had mentioned; of which not only the Jews, but the Gentile world would be made partakers.

9. The gross and carnal ideas of the Jews still prevented them from comprehending his meaning. And they strove among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat? Concluding the assertion absurd and improbable, because they understood him, as if speaking of his human flesh, which should be eaten like bread; an opinion as monstrous as that which the Romish church hath since adopted concerning the flesh of Jesus as corporally eaten in the eucharist.

Lastly, Christ confirms and explains what he had said concerning his flesh. It was of absolute necessity, that in a spiritual sense, that should be done which was figuratively represented by eating his flesh, and drinking his blood; even that they should be vitally united to him by faith, and become one with him, as the food which is eaten incorporates with our bodies. For verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you; without this union of our souls to him, we can neither have spiritual life here, nor eternal life hereafter. But whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood, not merely partaking of the elements which represent these; depending on which, many deceive themselves, and think, if they can but receive the sacrament before they die, they shall infallibly be saved; when neither living nor dying will those outward signs at all profit those who are strangers to the inward and spiritual grace; I say, it is not partaking of the outward elements, but the spiritual feeding upon Christ and his saving benefits by faith which is here meant; and whoever doeth that, hath eternal life, is now entitled to it, and will shortly be put in possession of it; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed; affording the most delightful nourishment and feast for the soul infinitely exceeding any corporal refreshment. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, with spiritual appetite and discernment, dwelleth in me, and I in him. He is incorporated with Christ as a member of his body mystical, is entitled to the remission of sins and acceptance with God, which, by the blood-shedding of Jesus, is obtained for all who believe in him, and hath Christ as the quickening Spirit formed in his heart, the principle of spiritual life, which shall reach its utmost perfection in eternal glory; the union between him and us once formed being ever after indissoluble. For as the living Father, who is the fountain of life to every creature, hath sent me, and I, as a man and mediator, commissioned by him, live by the Father, supported and enabled to finish the work he hath given me to do; so he that eateth me, united to me by faith, shall live by me; receiving out of my fulness, as the branches are fed by the living root, and their life as eternal as my own. Because I live, ye shall live also. This then is the conclusion of the whole; I am that bread which came down from heaven, concerning which I spoke before, and the properties of which are so transcendently excellent: not as your fathers did eat manna, far different is this bread; that was from the clouds, this from the highest heavens; that was but the type, this the antitype and substance; that only supported a momentary life; they who fed thereupon, were subject to all the diseases and decays incident to mortality, and are dead; but he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever.

This discourse Jesus held in the synagogue at Capernaum, publicly and openly, that all who desired it might hear and receive his heavenly doctrines. Note, Truth seeks no covert. The gospel of Jesus must be declared openly, and will bear the severest inquiry. His word is truth.

60. ¶ [a] Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is an hard saying; who can hear it? 61. When Jesus [b] knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said unto them, Doth this offend you? 62. [c] What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before? 63. [d] It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are [e] spirit and they are life. 64. [f] But there are some of you that believe not. For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who should betray him. 65. And he said, Therefore said I unto you, [g] that no man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father. 66. ¶ [h] From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. 67. Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? 68. Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, [i] to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. 69. [k] And we believe, and are sure, that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God. 70. Jesus answered them, [l] Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is [m] a devil? 71. He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon; for [n] he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

[a] Ver. 41, 42, 52, 66. Rom. 8. 7. 1 Cor. 2. 14. Deut. 29. 4.
[b] Jer. 17. 10. ch. 2. 24, 25. & 21. 17. Acts 1. 24. Heb. 4. 13. Rev. 2. 23.
[c] Ch. 3. 13. & 1. 18. Mark 16. 19. Luke 24 51. Acts 1. 9, 11. Eph. 4. 8. ch. 16. 5, 15, 17. 28. & 17. 11. Ps. 110. 1.
[d] 2 Cor. 3. 6. 1 Pet. 3. 18. 1 Cor. 15. 45. Heb. 9. 14.
[e] 1 Cor. 2. 10—14. Eph. 1. 17—20. 1 Thes. 2. 13. & 1. 5. Ps. 19. 7—10. Heb. 4. 12. Ps. 119. 50, 93, 130.
[f] Ver. 61. ch. 2. 24, 25. & 13. 11. ver. 61, 70, 71. Heb. 4. 13. Acts 15. 18. Is. 46. 9, 10.
[g] Ver. 44. ch. 10. 26. & 12. 37—40. Phil. 1. 29. Eph. 2. 8, 9.
[h] Ver. 67. Gal. 3. 1, 3. 1 John 2. 19. Phil. 2. 21. 2 Tim. 1. 15. & 4. 10. 2 Pet. 2. 21, 22. Heb. 10. 38. Luke 9. 62.
[i] Ps. 73. 25. Acts 4. 12. & 5. 20. ver. 63. Mat. 7. 29.
[k] Mat. 16. 16. Luke 9. 20. ch. 11. 27. & 1. 45, 46, 49. Acts 8. 37. & 16. 31.
[l] Mat. 10. 2—4. Mark 3. 14—19. Luke 6. 13—16.
[m] Ch. 8. 48. & 13. 2, 21, 27.
[n] Mat. 26. 14—16, 21—35, 47—56. & 27. 3—5. Mark xiv. Luke xxii. ch. xiii, xviii. Acts 1. 16—20. Ps. 41. 9. & 55. 13, 14.

Verses 60—71. We have here an account of the different effects produced by this discourse on the minds of the hearers.

1. Many who had followed him till then, as his nominal disciples, were highly shocked at what they heard, taking it in a gross and carnal sense, and not entering into the spirit of his words; or they were offended at the divine original and the operation which he claimed as co-equal with God the Father, or, because it was mysterious, they disbelieved his doctrine as absurd; as the infidels and scoffers of our day, who, because the mysteries of grace appear not agreeable to their fallen reason, suppose it a mark of superior understanding to reject them.

2. Christ was apprized of their murmurings: for he sees the hard thoughts which sinners entertain of him, as well as hears their hard speeches. He searcheth the heart, and therefore replies, Doth this offend you? If the coming down of the Son of man from heaven appears so incredible, What, and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before? This would perhaps yet more astonish them, considering the meanness of his present appearance, and might seem still more improbable to happen. As to what he had observed about eating his flesh, this must be understood not corporally, but spiritually: It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing: the bare participation of the outward ordinances avails nothing to procure eternal life. The sinner's soul must first be quickened by the power of the Spirit of Jesus, and brought to the discernment of spiritual things, otherwise the most nourishing words of his gospel convey no more to the inward man, than meat doth to the dead corpse. The words that I speak unto you, saith he, they are spirit, and they are life; to be understood not in a literal but spiritual sense, and, accompanied by the power of the Holy Ghost, become the means of quickening the dead sinner's soul, and maintaining the life which Christ bestows, till it is perfected in eternity. But there are some of you that believe not; professing to be disciples, but in truth not at all experimentally acquainted with the doctrines of the gospel; for Jesus knew from the beginning, who they were that believed not, and who should betray him. And he said, Therefore said I unto you, that no man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father, being powerfully drawn by his effectual grace. Note, (1.) Christ knoweth the heart, and sees the infidelity which reigns within, though covered with the most plausible cloak of profession. (2.) Apostates prove they were always hypocrites. (3.) Unless the Lord draw us by his grace, we have neither inclination nor ability to follow him.

3. Many who had murmured before, now utterly withdrew, and returned to their former occupations, to their own sinful ways, and Pharisaical teachers, and never made any farther profession, nor attended any more on his ministry. We are not to wonder if we see apostates: nay many, of whom we had formed the most sanguine hopes, go back: it was so from the beginning.

4. Christ hereupon addressed his twelve chosen ones, that he might draw from them a profession of their faith in him; Will ye also go away? Not that he doubted their sincerity, but it bespeaks his affection towards them, and his confidence in them, that, whatever others did, they would never follow so bad examples: but in general, at least, cleave to him with unshaken fidelity.

5. Peter's zealous heart cannot bear the suspicion which the question seemed to intimate, and therefore, in the name of his brethren, he nobly replies, Lord, to whom shall we go? Out of thee we can hope for neither pardon, peace, grace, nor glory. Turn where we will, misery and destruction meet us. Thou, and thou alone, hast the words of eternal life; and we believe all that thou hast lately spoken, and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God. Note, (1.) Peter's reply must be the answer of every faithful soul, when tempted to quit his profession: To whom shall we go for life and peace? To our sins? they will destroy us. To our own works and endeavours? they cannot justify or save us. To the world? it will deceive our expectations. Christ, and Christ alone, is the only foundation of hope and fountain of happiness to a fallen sinner: out of him, nothing but wrath and ruin remain for us. (2.) The more steadily and assuredly we trust in the Son of God, the more we honour him. And that faith which gives him glory, will bring us the most reviving consolations.

6. Jesus answered them, to check too great self-confidence, and prepare them for the issue, Have not I chosen you twelve to the distinguished honour of apostleship, and one of you is a devil? possessed by that wicked spirit, in his heart a traitor and a murderer. He spoke of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon; for he it was that should betray him as Christ full well knew, though he was one of the twelve, which aggravated his guilt. Note, (1.) A man, like Judas, may have been the means of casting out devils from others, and yet be a devil himself. Among the most flaming professors there will be found hypocrites and apostates. Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. (2.) The purest societies on earth cannot answer for all their members. It is in heaven alone that the wheat will be free from the chaff.

CHAP. VII.—ANNO DOMINI, 32.

In this chapter we have, 1. Christ's declining for some time to appear publicly in Judea, ver. 1. 2. His design to go up to Jerusalem at the feast of tabernacles, and his discourse with his kindred in Galilee concerning his going up to the feast, ver. 3—13. 3. His preaching publicly in the temple at that feast. (1.) In the midst of the feast, ver. 14, 15. we have his discourse with the Jews, [1.] Concerning his doctrine, ver. 16—18. [2.] Concerning the crime of sabbath-breaking laid to his charge, ver. 19—24. [3.] Concerning himself, both whence he came, and whither he was going, ver. 25—36. (2.) On the last day of the feast, [1.] His gracious invitation to poor souls to come to him, ver. 37—39. [2.] The reception that it met with. 1. Many of the people disputed about it, ver. 40—44. 2. The chief priests would have brought him into trouble for it, but were first balked by their officers, ver. 45—49. and then silenced by one of their own court, ver. 50—53.

1. AFTER these things Jesus [a] walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, [b] because the Jews sought to kill him. 2. [c] Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles was at hand. 3. His [d] brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples * also may see the works that thou doest. 4. [e] For there is no man that doeth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world. 5. [f] For neither did his brethren believe in him. 6. Then Jesus said unto them, [g] My time is not yet come; but your time is alway ready. 7. [h] The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil. 8. Go ye up unto this feast: [i] I go not up yet unto this feast; for my time is not yet full come. 9. When he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee. 10. But when his brethren were gone up, [k] then went he alone up unto the feast, [l] not openly, but as it were in secret. 11. ¶ [m] Then the Jews

[a] Acts 10. 38. Luke 4. 44.
[b] Ch. 5. 16, 18. ver. 19. 23. Mat. 21. 38. Mark 12. 7. 1 Thes. 2. 15.
[c] Lev. 23. 34—36. Deut. 16. 13. Num. 29. 13—38. Neh. 8. 14—18.
[d] Kinsmen. Mat. 12. 46. Mark 3. 31. Acts 1. 14.
* There.
[e] Ver. 10. ch. 18. 20. & 12. 19, 46. & 5. 44. Acts 2. 5. Mat. 6. 1, 2, 5, 16.
[f] Ch. 1. 11. Mark 3. 21. Luke 4. 24. Jer. 20. 10.
[g] Ch. 2. 4. & 8. 20. ver. 7. 8, 30.
[h] Ch. 3. 19. & 14. 17. & 5. 18, 19 Jam 4. 4.
[i] Ch. 2. 4. & 8. 20. ver. 6, 30.
[k] Ps. 40. 8. & 26. 8. Mat. 13. 15. Gal. 4. 4. Rom. 10. 4.
[l] Amos 5. 13. Mat. 10. 16, 17. Eph. 5. 15, 17. Amos 5. 13. ch. 8. 59.
[m] Ch. 11. 56.

sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he? 12. [n] And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but he deceiveth the people. 13. [o] Howbeit, no man spake openly of him, for fear of the Jews.

n Ch. 9. 16. & 10. 19. & 6. 14. ver. 40. Luke 7. 16. Mat. 16. 14. & 21. 46. & 10. 25. Ps. 22. 6. & 69. 20.

o Ch. 9. 22. & 12. 42, 43. & 19. 38. & 3. 2. Prov. 29. 25.

Verses 1—13. As the inveterate malignity of the chief priests and Pharisees led them to determine the death of Jesus, by popular fury or by form of law, to avoid their devices he continued in Galilee. They who had refused the light of truth, have it justly withdrawn from them; and where our enemies rage, and our safety is in danger, it is prudent to depart, and carry that gospel of God to others, which sinners against their own souls reject and persecute. We have here,

1. The conversation which passed in Galilee between Jesus and some of his relations. The feast of tabernacles being at hand, when a great concourse of people would be assembled in Jerusalem;

(1.) They urge him to make his public appearance there, and not stay in that obscure part of the country, but go up to the metropolis and show himself, and his wondrous works, if really they would bear the test of examination: since this could not fail of getting him disciples among the great men at Jerusalem, and of confirming those he had already made, who would be assembled there on this solemnity. And they suggest this would be the way most effectually to advance his own reputation and honour, which they sinfully imagined he, like the men of the world, designed. For neither did his brethren believe in him. As he did not answer their expectations in erecting a temporal kingdom, they began to suspect he was not the Messiah, which they at first hoped; and therefore wanted him to declare himself, and produce his credentials, or go up to Jerusalem, where his pretensions, if false, might be detected. Note, (1.) Many appear at public ordinances to show themselves, not to ascribe glory to God, but to secure reputation to themselves. (2.) They who want a temporal kingdom evidently prove that they are faithless followers of Christ.

(2.) Christ mildly replies to their perverse suggestions, My time is not yet come for going up to the feast, but your time is always ready, you may appear there at any time without any danger; they seek not your lives as they do mine. The world cannot hate you, because your spirit, temper, and conduct, are but too conformed thereunto; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil, which cannot but exasperate those who determine not to part with their beloved sins. Go ye, therefore, up unto the feast without delay: I go not up yet unto this feast, for my time is not yet full come. Note, (1.) Christ hath fixed the time for all his purposes, and we may be assured that is the best time, and therefore are bound cheerfully and confidently to wait his leisure. (2.) Sinners hate the light of truth, and cannot but be exasperated with those reproofs, to which they obstinately refuse to submit. (3.) Whatever pretences men make for their enmity against the gospel and preachers of it, the true cause is this, they cannot endure the testimony borne against their evil deeds. (4.) They who go to ordinances with a hypocritical spirit may never expect the comfort of Christ's presence in them.

2. The journey of Jesus to Jerusalem. He staid a while longer in Galilee, till his brethren were gone up to the feast; and then, when his time was come, he went himself, not openly, but as it were in secret, that he might give no offence to the ruling powers, who, if he came with a multitude, might interpret it into a seditious design. Note, Though the cause of Christ cannot be carried on without notice, it will be prudent to do it with as little noise as possible. We need not provoke needless opposition: it will come fast enough upon us, if we are faithful.

3. The expectation which was raised of him. The Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he? Some wished to see him out of curiosity; some out of malice, hoping to destroy him; and some out of better motives, expecting to receive some gracious instructions from him. And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him, their sentiments being greatly divided: some said he is a good man, convinced by his miracles, struck with his exemplary life, and influenced by his holy doctrine; others, hardened in infidelity, though they had not one single charge of evil to produce against him, said, Nay, but he deceiveth the people, as if there were some latent imposture under these specious appearances. Howbeit, no man spoke openly of him, for fear of the Jews. Whatever good opinion any formed of him, they were very cautious how they spoke their sentiments, it being highly dangerous to appear among his approvers, when those who were in power were known to be the avowed enemies and bitter persecutors of him and his disciples. Note, (1.) Christ's ministers, like himself, must expect to pass through evil report and good report; as deceivers, and yet true. (2.) They who are obstinate in rejecting the truth, will find something to quarrel with in the most spotless characters, and suppose those who act with greatest simplicity for God's glory, are carrying on some design of their own.

14. ¶ Now, about the midst of the feast, Jesus went up [p] into the temple, and taught. 15. And the Jews marvelled, saying, [q] How knoweth this man † letters, having never learned? 16. Jesus answered them, and said, [r] My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. 17. [s] If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself. 18. [t] He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him. 19. [u] Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? [x] Why go ye about to kill me? 20. The people answered and said, [y] Thou hast a devil: who goeth about to kill thee? 21. Jesus answered and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel. 22. [z] Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision; (not because it is of Moses, but of the fathers;) and ye on the sabbath day circumcise a man. 23. If a man on the sabbath day receive circumcision, ‡ that the law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me, because I have made a man [a] every whit whole on the sabbath day? 24. [b] Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment. 25. Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he whom they seek to kill? 26. But, [c] lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing p Mal. 3. 1. Hag. 2. 7, 8. ch. 5. 14. & 8. 2. & 18. 20.

q Mat. 13. 54. Mark 6. 8. Luke 4. 16—22.

† Or, whence cometh this man's learning?

r Ch. 8. 28. & 12. 49. & 14. 10, 24. Exod. 23. 21.

s Or, whosoever is minded to do his will. Mat. 6. 22. & 13. 11. & 11. 25. Hos. 6. 2, 3. ch. 8. 31, 32, 47. & 10. 4, 27. & 18. 37.

t Ch. 5. 41. 1 Thes. 2. 6. Gal. 1. 10, 16. 1 Pet. 4. 11.

u Exod. 24. 3. ch. 1. 17. Acts 7. 38, 53. Mat. 15. 6.

x Ch. 5. 16, 18. & 10. 32, 36, 39. & 11. 53. Mat. 12. 14. ver. 25.

y Ch. 8. 48, 52. & 10. 20. Acts 26. 24. Mat. 10. 25. & 12. 24.

z Lev. 12 3. Gen. 17. 10—14. Gal. 3. 17.

‡ Or, without breaking the law of Moses.

a In soul and body, Ch. 5. 8, 9.

b Deut. 1. 16, 17. & 16. 19. Prov. 24. 23. ch. 8. 15. Jam. 2. 1. Mat. 7. 2. Gal. 2. 6.

c Ps. 40. 9, 10. & 22. 22. Prov. 28. 1. Is. 50. 7, 8. Eph. 6. 20. Acts 4. 13.

unto him. [d] Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ? 27. Howbeit, [e] we know this man whence he is: but when Christ cometh, [f] no man knoweth whence he is. 28. Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, [g] Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: [h] and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not. 29. But I know him; for I am from him, and he hath sent me. 30. [i] Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, [k] because his hour was not yet come. 31. And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done? 32. ¶ The Pharisees heard [l] that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him. 33. Then said Jesus * unto them, [m] Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me. 34. [n] Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come. 35. Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto the [o] dispersed among the † Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles? 36. [p] What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me? and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

d Ver. 48. Luke 7. 30. ch. 9. 22. & 11. 47—53. & 12. 42.

e Ch. 6. 42. Mat. 13. 55. Mark 6. 3. Luke 4. 22. ver. 15.

f False. Is. 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. & 30. 21. Mic. 5. 2. ver. 42.

g Mat. 2. 1, 23. Luke 1. 26. & 2. 4, 39, 51. & 4. 16, 22. & 19. 37

h Ch. 8. 14. & 1. 18. & 3. 2. & 5. 32, 43. & 8. 16, 18, 26, 42, 54, 55. & 10. 15, 36. & 12. 49. & 14. 10, 31. & 16. 3, 28. Mat. 11. 27.

i Mark 11. 18. Luke 19. 47. & 20. 19. ver. 19. ch. 10. 39.

k Ch. 8. 20. & 9. 4, 5. Luke 13. 32, 33.

l Ver. 7—31. ch. 11. 46—53, 57. & 12. 19. ver. 19.

* Or, Jesus therefore said.

m Ch. 13. 33. & 16. 16. Mark 16. 19. Heb. 1. 3.

n Ch. 13. 33. & 8. 21, 24. Mat. 22. 39. Luke 13. 35. Prov. 1. 24—28. Hos. 5. 6.

o Is. 11. 12. & 27. 12, 13. Jam. 1. 1. 1 Pet. 1. 1. Acts 22. 21.

† Or Greeks.

p Is. 27. 11. & 29. 10. & 44. 18. & 6. 9, 10. Hos. 4. 1, 6. 1 Cor. 2. 14. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4.

Verses 14—36. When Christ was come up to Jerusalem, about the midst of the feast, we find him, where indeed we might expect to meet him, in the temple, teaching the people. He would show, he was neither ashamed of the doctrine he preached, nor afraid of the enemies who threatened him. We are told,

1. The admiration which the hearers expressed at his preaching, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned? Though he had been brought up in none of their schools, he appeared so wise in the Scriptures, opened them with such evidence, and reasoned upon them with such force of argument, as could not but astonish them; and probably led some to conclude, that such extraordinary gifts were not attained without diabolical assistance.

2. The reply of Jesus. My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. As Mediator, he received his mission, and ability to discharge his office, from his Father; and needed no human assistance, nor advanced ought of his own invention. What he taught was divine in its original, and designed ultimately to advance the glory of God, from whom it came. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself: he that, laying aside his prejudices, as an humble inquirer, comes, desiring to be taught, shall find such evidence in the gospel, as to demonstrate the divine authority of its author, and shall experience such powerful and blessed effects produced thereby, as shall most indubitably prove it to be the word (not of man, but) of God. He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory; an impostor would seek to advance his own reputation and interest, as the false teachers did: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, as Christ did, and all his faithful ministers will do, the same is true, he evidences hereby the simplicity of his heart: and no unrighteousness is in him, no fraud nor falsehood in his preaching or designs. They pretended indeed great zeal for the law of Moses, and founded the suggestions of his being an impostor on the supposition that he violated the sabbath, and taught men to disregard the Mosaical institutions; when, in fact, they themselves were living in the grossest violation of the plainest precepts of it: Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? Why go ye about to kill me? purposing to murder him, because of the miracle he had wrought on the impotent man on the sabbath-day. Note, (1.) They who speak of themselves, without a divine call, and for themselves, with a view to their own honour and advantage, evidently show the falsehood of their religious pretensions: these God hath never sent. (2.) Many pretend a great zeal for the interests of morality, and a jealousy lest the grace of the gospel should entrench upon them, who live themselves in the open violation of the divine law.

3. The people who were really ignorant of the designs of the enemies of Jesus, or at least affected to be so, express their surprise at the accusation he brought against them. They answered and said, Thou hast a devil; thou talkest as one possessed: Who goeth about to kill thee? They would insinuate that his fears were groundless, the charge unjust, and himself a liar. Let us not wonder if we suffer the most vile aspersions, are counted madmen, liars, devils. The Son of God was thus reproached before us.

4. Overlooking their perverseness and abuse, our Lord proceeds to vindicate that action which they had so much condemned, and for which they went about to kill him. I have done one work, in healing the impotent man: and ye all marvel, because it was done on the sabbath-day: as if this was inconsistent with the character he professed as a teacher sent from God. And yet they themselves commonly practised what might much more justly be regarded as a breach of the sabbath, than his healing a cripple by a word speaking. Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision, as an ordinance to be observed among you, (not because it is of Moses, instituted by him; but of the fathers, being commanded of God to Abraham long before the days of Moses,) and ye on the sabbath circumcise a man. If a man on the sabbath-day receive circumcision, that the law of Moses should not be broken, which enjoins it to be performed on the eighth day, whenever that happened, are ye angry with me, because I have made a man every whit whole on the sabbath-day? when they allowed themselves to circumcise and dress a wound on that day, how could they with any show of reason, censure him, who, without the least trouble, merely by a word, had cured an object so miserable? Partial judges were they indeed, and justly therefore doth he rebuke them, judge not according to the appearance, with respect of persons, condemning that in him which they allowed in their own countrymen; or because of the meanness of his outward circumstances, paying a higher respect to the decisions of their own more specious and pompous rabbins than to his: but judge righteous judgment, weighing the real merits of the case, without prejudice, and then they would be convinced, that their own practice would be a full vindication of his conduct. Note, (1.) Unreasonable and wicked men are they indeed, who censure and condemn others for what they allow, nay, approve in themselves. (2.) Such is the force of prejudice, that it often blinds the eyes against the most glaring conviction. (3.) All is not gold which glitters: we must look farther than appearances, if we would learn the true characters of men. (4.) Christ's words and works demand nothing but an impartial examination to prove their excellence.

5. Some of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to whom the designs of the chief priests and rulers, were no secret, were exceedingly astonished at the boldness of Christ's discourse, and wondered they did not immediately attempt to seize him, suggesting as if their withholding their hands from him gave suspicion that they had changed their sentiments concerning him, and began themselves to think him the Messiah. As for themselves, they could entertain no such imagination, because they knew whence he was: but, when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is: the Scripture having spoken of him as like Melchizedek, whose descent is unknown, as one whose goings forth have been from everlasting, and whose generation none can declare. Their reasoning however was fallacious; for, though these Scriptures were true with regard to his divine nature and designation to his mediatorial office, of whom he should spring, and where he should be born in his human nature, had been expressly determined. Note, (1.) God hath restraints upon the hands and hearts of wicked men, and marvellously withholds them from the evil which they design and have an opportunity to perform. (2.) They who mistake the Scriptures err most dangerously, as they support themselves in their own imagination with the conceit of divine authority.

6. Christ replies to these cavils. It was true they knew his earthly descent; their grand mistake lay in not looking higher, to his original from above, and his mission from God. I am not come of myself, assuming this honour; but he that sent me is true to all his promises made of and to the Messiah; whom ye know not; for though they believed in one eternal Jehovah, they did not truly know the Scripture God, as subsisting in Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; but I know him, his perfections and purposes; for I am from him, by essential emanation, as the beams from the sun; and he hath sent me, in the character of Mediator, to accomplish the salvation of his people.

7. Very different were the effects produced upon the hearers. Some were highly incensed by his declarations, and would have instantly seized him; but they were under a divine restraint; the determinate hour fixed in the divine counsels not being yet come. Others, especially of the common people, struck with what they heard and saw, could not withhold from expressing their persuasion that this must be the Christ; for it could not be conceived, whenever he came, that he should do greater miracles than Jesus wrought. Note, (1.) Though the enmity of wicked men be ever so great against us, it is a comfortable consideration that they can do nothing without a divine permission; and all their power or policy must prove abortive to oppress the faithful ministers of Christ, who bear testimony to his truth, till the hour appointed in God's eternal counsels come. (2.) They who receive the gospel of Jesus are usually such as man despiseth, as being of the poor and unlearned multitude. What therefore the world accounts their reproach, that they are chiefly followed by such, the ministers of the gospel should esteem their honour.

8. The Pharisees and rulers, jealous lest his credit and influence with the people should increase, could not hear these murmurs without indignation, and therefore immediately despatched officers to arrest him, and to bring him before the Sanhedrim. Note, Wicked instruments will not be wanting where power is in the hands of persecutors.

9. Christ, who knew what was plotting against him, addressed the officers and people, saying, Yet a little while I am with you, and till that time was expired all their malicious attempts were impotent; and then I go unto him that sent me, to my Father from whom I came. Ye shall seek me; when your calamity comes, you will wish for the Messiah; and shall not find me, nor obtain the least relief or respite, looking for help from heaven in vain: and where I am, thither ye cannot come, banished for ever from that glory where I am. Though Christ's human nature was on earth, in his divine nature he was still enthroned in the light which no man can approach unto. Note, (1.) It is too late to cry for mercy when it is the time of judgment. They who reject the Saviour upon earth, and die faithless and impenitent, must never hope to be with him where he is, in heaven. (2.) A little while will deliver the faithful out of all their troubles. Let us therefore patiently endure. The time is short.

Lastly, Mistaking his meaning, they bewildered themselves in idle and vain reasonings whither he would go, that they should not find him, whether among the dispersed Jews, or among the Gentiles: as if he could find no disciples among those who were judges of his pretensions; or as defying him to go where they could not follow him.

37. [q] In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, [r] If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. 38. [s] He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water. 39. (For [t] this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: [u] for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified.) 40. ¶ Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, [x] Of a truth this is the prophet. 41. Others said, [y] This is the Christ. But some said, [z] Shall Christ come out of Galilee? 42. [a] Hath not the scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was? 43. [b] So there was a division among the people because of him. 44. And some of them would have taken him: but [c] no man laid hands on him.

q Lev. 22. 36. Num. 29. 35—38.
r Is. 55. 1. & 45. 22. Mat. 11. 28. Rev. 3. 20. & 22. 17. ch. 4. 10. s Deut. 18. 15. Prov. 18. 4. & 10. 11. Is. 12. 3. & 35. 6. & 44. 3. & 58. 11. Joel 2. 28. Zech. 14. 8.
t Is. 44. 3. Joel 2. 28. ch. 4. 14. Luke 24. 49. Acts 1. 4, 5, 8. & 19. 2. Eph. 1. 13. Prov. 1. 23.
u Ch. 16. 7. Zech. 13. 1. Acts 2. 3, 17, 33. & 4. 31. & 8. 17. & 10. 44. Eph. 4. 8—10. ch. 12. 16. Ps. 68. 18. x Deut. 18. 15—18. Mat. 21. 16. Luke 7. 6. & 24. 19. ch. 1. 21. & xix. & 6. 14. ver. 31. Luke 24. 19.
y Ch. 1. 41, 45, 49. & 4. 29, 42. & 6. 69.
z Ch. 1. 46. ver. 52.
a Ps. 132. 11. Is. 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. Ezek. 34. 23. Mic. 5. 2. Mat. 2. 1, 5. Luke 2. 4. b Ch. 9. 16. & 10. 19. ver. 12, 25, 31, 40, 41. Acts 23. 7.
c Ver. 30, 46. ch. 8. 20.

Verses 37—44. The officers returned without executing their commission, and Jesus went on in the public exercise of his ministry. We have,

I. His discourse in the last day of the feast, when a vast concourse attended at the temple, and they used with great solemnity to draw water from the pool of Siloam, and pour it out with great rejoicings. On which he took occasion to speak of himself as the living water. He cried, if any man thirst let him come unto me, and drink: Earnest to invite poor sinners to partake of his rich grace, he lifted up his voice aloud, and urged them to come to him and be happy. The invitation is general, to any man that thirsts: and none can truly come to Christ but they who feel the want of him, and therefore hunger and thirst after him and his righteousness; to such Christ is a fountain of living waters, refreshing and satisfying the longing desires of the soul. He that believeth on me, as the only Saviour, and reposes his entire confidence on my all-sufficiency to supply his every want, as the Scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow fountains of living water; such an abundance of spiritual gifts, graces, and consolations shall be bestowed upon him, that, like a perpetual and copious fountain, they shall flow forth in streams of righteousness, and diffuse blessings on every side, Isa. xli. 18. xliii. 20. xliv. 3. lviii. 11. Joel ii. 28.

2. The evangelist explains the meaning of Christ's words. This spoke he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive, in a more abundant and glorious manner than had been ever vouchsafed before: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, in that most plentiful effusion of his divine influences which was promised, Joel ii. 28. because that Jesus was not yet glorified: and it was needful he should first pass through his state of humiliation, and enter into his glory: when, on the day of Pentecost, the most astonishing outpouring of the Spirit should attest the Saviour's exaltation, and not only the miraculous powers communicated by him should evidence the divine authority under which the apostles acted, but the strongest demonstrations of his effectual power should accompany their preaching, and under the gospel dispensation the souls of those who were converted should be filled with the largest measures of light, holiness, and joy.

3. The people were divided greatly in their sentiments concerning Christ. Many, struck with his divine teaching, could not help expressing their persuasion of his mission from God, as that prophet promised, Deut. xviii. 15. which they understood as the forerunner of the Messiah. Others went farther, thinking him not the harbinger, but the King Messiah himself. But others, prejudiced by their national pride, and false notions of the Messiah, objected that he came out of Galilee, whereas Christ was to descend from the lineage of David, and to come from Bethlehem, the residence of David's ancestors, as he did, though they knew it not. Thus, whilst the sentiments of the people were divided, the officers and his enemies, though they would fain have arrested him, were restrained by a divine power and offered him no violence. Note, (1.) The gospel of Christ often creates great divisions; for, though it breathes nothing but peace, they who refuse to receive the truth cannot but oppose it. (2.) Many flatter themselves they have right on their side, for want of examining into facts and evidences, when their conclusions would often be found utterly unsupported.

45. ¶ Then came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him? 46. The officers answered, [d] Never man spake like this man. 47. Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived? 48. [e] Have any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him? 49. But this people who knoweth not the law are cursed. 50. Nicodemus saith unto them, ([f] he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them,) 51. [g] Doth our law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth? 52. They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look, [h] for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet. 53. [i] And every man went unto his own house.

d Mat. 7. 28, 29. Luke 4. 22. ver. 26.
e Ver. 26. ch. 12. 42. & 9. 22. 1 Cor. 1. 20—24, 26, 27. & 2. 8. Acts 6. 7. Mat. 11. 25.
f Ch. 3. 2. & 19. 39.
g Exod. 23. 2—8. Deut. 17. 8. & 1. 17. & 19. 15 2 Chr. 19. 6, 7. 1 Kin. 3. 16—28.
h Is. 9. 1, 2. Mat. 4. 15. ch. 1. 46. ver. 41. 2 Kin. 14. 25. 1 Kin. 17. 1.
i Job 5. 12, 13. Ps. 33. 10. & 76. 5. & 35. 4. & 40. 14. & 59. 11, 12. & 56. 9.

Verses 45—53. Whilst the chief priests and Pharisees, as in duty bound, should have been in the temple, leading the devotions of the people, we find them maliciously consulting how to destroy the Lord of that sacred place, for which they professed so high a veneration.

1. The officers returned without the prisoner, and are sharply questioned why they have not executed their orders. They honestly acknowledge they could not; they were so overawed with the majesty of Jesus, with the power and evidence of his discourse, that their hearts failed them. Never man spake like this man. Note, There is a power accompanying the preaching of the gospel, which hath often disarmed the rage of bitterest enemies, and made those bow down before the word of truth who came to disturb the preacher.

2. The Pharisees with indignation, upbraided them with their weakness: Are ye also deceived? Can men of your sense and rank be imposed upon by such a delusion? Have any of the rulers, or the Pharisees believed on him? Men of the greatest abilities, fashion, and reputation; the wisest and most devout: but this people who know not the law, the vulgar herd, are cursed; abandoned of God to every impostor, and through their ignorance of the law, unable to judge of his pretensions. Note, (1.) Few of the rulers and Pharisees, the great men, and pious devotees, who valued themselves on their own goodness, are found among the disciples of Jesus in any age. (2.) Many are prejudiced against the gospel, because they see the profession of it is unfashionable, and not the way to the world's preferment. (3.) It is common with this world's wise men to treat the poor disciples of Jesus as an ignorant, contemptible, deluded set of creatures; yet to the babes hath God revealed, what they, who boast of their superior wisdom, never knew. (4.) The curse causeless will not fall, but upon the head of him that utters it.

3. Nicodemus, who had visited Jesus by night, chap. iii. 2. and was secretly a disciple, could not hear those infamous and unjust reflections, unmoved; and therefore assuming courage, he remonstrated against their unreasonable and illegal manner of proceeding. They condemned unheard, contrary to all rules of justice and equity; whereas, at least, they should have given Christ an impartial hearing, and examined thoroughly into facts, before they decided on the merits of the case. Nothing could be more sensible and just than the maxim, but it doth not appear that any seconded or supported the motion. Note, (1.) Christ hath some that dare own his cause, even among the great and noble. (2.) It is highly wicked and unjust to condemn any man till he hath had a fair hearing, and liberty to speak in his own defence.

4. Instead of refuting the force of his argument they fell to reviling: Art thou also of Galilee? A disciple of this despicable Galilean? Search, and look, for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet. They concluded Jesus had been born in Galilee, because he had made it his chief abode; and as false was their assertion concerning the Scriptures; for Jonah was of Galilee, and probably Nahum and Elijah also. Note, (1.) It is a sure sign of a bad cause, when men have recourse to abuse in the stead of argument. (2.) Many confidently appeal to the Scriptures, as if it was the same thing to assert and prove: but we must examine for ourselves, and not take the Scriptures upon trust.

5. Hereupon the council separated, and each retired to his own house, unable to answer Nicodemus, and ashamed to proceed farther, where the injustice was so glaring. Note, One faithful man, who dares make a stand for Christ, will often silence and confound a whole company of gainsayers.

CHAP. VIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 30.

In this chapter we have, 1. Christ's evading the snare which the Jews laid for him, in bringing to him a woman taken in adultery, ver. 1—11. 2. Divers discourses or conferences of his with the Jews that cavilled at him, and sought occasion against him, and made every thing he said a matter of controversy. (1.) Concerning his being the light of the world, ver. 12—20. (2.) Concerning the ruin of the unbelieving Jews, ver. 21—30. (3.) Concerning liberty and bondage, ver. 31—37. (4.) Concerning his Father and their Father, ver. 38—47. (5.) Here is his discourse in answer to their blasphemous reproaches, ver. 48—50. (6.) Concerning the immortality of believers, ver. 51—59. And in all this he endured the contradiction of sinners against himself.

1. JESUS [a] went unto the mount of Olives. 2. And [b] early in the morning a Luke 21. 37. & 19. 37. Mark 13. 3. & 11. 1. ch. 11. 1, 18.

Eccl. 9. 10. Ps. 40. 8. ch. 4. 34. Prov. 8 17.

he came again into the temple, and [c] all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them. 3. And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst, 4. They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. 5. [d] Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou? 6. This they said, [e] tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But [f] Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground,* as though he heard them not. 7. So, when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, [g] He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her. 8. And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground. 9. [h] And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst. 10. When Jesus had lifted up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?† 11. She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, [i] Neither do I condemn thee:‡ go, and sin no more.

c Luke 21. 38. Ps. 22. 22. & 40. 9, 10. Deut. 18. 15—18. Is. 40. 11. Mic. 4. 4.

d Lev. 20. 10. Deut. 22. 21, 22. Ezek. 16. 38, 40.

e Mat. 16. 1. & 19. 3. & 22. 15, 18. Luke 11. 53, 54. Ps. 95. 9.

f Amos 5. 13. Mat. 10. 16, 17. Joh 5. 12, 13. Eph. 5. 15.

* Rather, was writing with his finger upon the ground.

g Deut. 17. 7. Rom. 2. 1, 3, 22, 23.

h Joh 5. 13. Ps. 9. 16. Rom. 2. 15.

† Or, Hath nobody passed sentence on thee?

i Luke 9. 56. ch. 3. 17.

‡ Or, Neither do I pass sentence on thee.

Verses 1—11. According to the usual custom, our Lord at evening went unto the mount of Olives: perhaps to the house of his friend Lazarus; or to retire for communion with God; or to avoid the danger of some popular tumult, which his implacable enemies might attempt to raise against him in the night. In the morning early he returned to the temple, and sat down, as one having authority to preach the gospel to the multitudes which crowded around him. Note, Early rising to wait upon God will be a gracious presage of a happy day.

Whilst Christ was engaged in this blessed employment we are told the interruption he met with from his envenomed enemies.

1. They proposed a case to him, the decision of which they flattered themselves would bring him into disgrace with the people, to embroil him with the government. They bring a woman taken in adultery, in the very act; for, though such deeds of darkness usually are concealed with deepest cunning, God is sometimes pleased strangely to bring to light such deadly works, and to expose those to the infamy of the world, who are emboldened to transgress in the foolish confidence that no eye seeth me. The proof was evident, the law express: but, as he assumed authority to make alterations therein, they desire to know what was his judgment on the case, hoping to get some matter of accusation against him. On the one hand, if he should command the law to be put in force, they would accuse him to the Roman government as pronouncing sentence of death, and assuming judicial authority; and to the people, as acting inconsistent with himself, who invited publicans and sinners to come to him, and willingly conversed and ate and drank with them. On the other, if he should acquit her, or refuse to confirm the sentence the law had pronounced, they would brand him as an enemy to the divine institutions, a violator of the law, and a patron of the most scandalous enormities.

2. Christ, who knew their wickedness, seemed to pay no regard to the case they proposed; stooping down and writing on the ground as though he heard them not. But, as they now thought he was in a dilemma from which he could not disentangle himself, they urged him vehemently to answer their question. When raising himself with majesty and wisdom which confounded his enemies, he bids him that was without sin, cast the first stone at her. Since the hands of the witnesses should be first upon the criminals, Deut. xvii. 7. it became them, who appeared so zealous in punishing the sins of others, to see that they were themselves free from the like or more infamous crimes: else it would be strangely absurd in them to execute the sentence, however just. Thus he testified his approbation of the law, without encouraging their prosecution: and effectually saved his own reputation, without any express condemnation of the poor criminal. Note, (1.) When we have to deal with crafty foes, a cautious answer is but needful prudence. (2.) Before we condemn others, we should first take care that we are not chargeable with the same or greater evils than we censure in them.

3. Whilst he stooped again to the ground, to give them a moment's time to pause, reflect, and retire; they, convicted by their consciences, slunk away, fearing lest their own sins should be brought to light to their confusion. The eldest led the way, and the younger followed: so that, all these malignant accusers being fled, the woman was left alone with Jesus, and those who before had been attending his ministry. Note, (1.) Many are more afraid of being ashamed for their sins than of being damned. (2.) They, who, under convictions, fly from Christ, to get rid of them, instead of coming to him with humble confession to obtain pardon, wilfully destroy themselves.

4. The trembling criminal still stood at his bar, when, lifting up himself, the merciful judge questions her, Where are those thine accusers? hath none condemned thee? nor offered to cast a stone at thee? She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more. As he came not on earth to be a temporal judge, he left the sword of magistracy to the powers that ruled; and dismissed her, with a solemn warning to beware of returning again unto wickedness, lest a more dreadful punishment than the civil magistrate could inflict should be her portion in the last great day. Note, (1.) Jesus is now a merciful Saviour: he will shortly be an inexorable Judge. Wise and happy are they who improve the moment of opportunity, and seek to him for mercy whilst mercy may be found. (2.) The greatest crimes, even adultery, may be forgiven to those who come by faith to a dying Redeemer, and wash their polluted souls in the fountain of his blood. (3.) Those whom Jesus pardons he saves not in their sins, but from them: they go to lead a new life, whose sentence of death he reverses. There is an inseparable union between justifying and sanctifying grace.

12. ¶ Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, [k] I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. 13. The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true. 14. Jesus answered and said unto them, [l] Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: [m] for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence k Ch. 1. 4, 5, 9. & 9. 5. & 12. 35, 46. Is. 49. 6. & 42. 6, 7. Luke 2. 32.

l Ch. 5. 31. & 14. 6. Rev. 1. 5. & 3. 14.

m Ch. 7. 28, 29. & 1. 18. & 3. 2. & 5. 32, 43. & 8 18, 19, 26, 42, 54, 55. & 10. 15, 36. & 12. 49. & 14. 10, 31. & 16. 3, 28.

I come, and whither I go. 15. [n] Ye judge after the flesh: [o] I judge no man. 16. [p] And yet, if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me. 17. [q] It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true. 18. [r] I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me. 19. Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, [s] Ye neither know me, nor my Father: [t] if ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also. 20. These words spake Jesus [u] in the treasury, as he taught in the temple: and [x] no man laid hands on him; for his hour was not yet come.

n 1 Sam. 16. 7. ch. 7. 24.
o Ch. 3. 17. & 12. 47. & 5. 45. Luke 9. 56. & 12. 14. p Ch. 2. 24, 25. & 5. 22, 32, 42, 43. ver. 29. ch. 16. 32.
q Deut. 17. 6. & 19. 15. Mat. 18. 16. 2 Cor. 13. 1. Heb. 10. 28. r Rev. 1. 5. & 3. 14. ch. 5. 36, 37. Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. Heb. 2. 4. s Hos. 4. 1, 6. Is. 27. 11. ch. 16. 3. & 5. 18. Is. 29. 10. & 44. 18. t Ch. 1. 18. & 5. 17. & 10. 30. & 14. 6, 9, 10. & 17. 3. Heb. 1. 3. Col. 1. 15. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Zech. 13. 7. Phil. 2. 6.
u Mark 12. 41. 1 Chr. 9. 26.
x Ch. 7. 30. Luke 20. 43, 47. & 20. 19. & 22. 53.

Verses 12—20. Though the Pharisaical accusers of this adulteress had been confounded, some of their brethren remained to cavil at the gracious words which proceeded out of the Saviour's lips.

1. Christ, re-assuming his discourse to the people, took occasion to speak of himself under the glorious character of the Sun of Righteousness, saying, I am the light of the world. What the sun is to the world, that Christ must be to the soul. Without him, universal spiritual darkness spreads over us its dreadful, baleful influence. But he that followeth me, receives my gospel, and treads in my steps, shall not walk in darkness; the eyes of his mind shall be enlightened to know the truth, and his soul enabled for, and directed in, the practice of it; so that the darkness of error and sin shall not deceive and mislead him, but he shall have the light of life, the saving light of gospel grace here, and the eternal life of glory hereafter. Blessed and happy are they who walk in this light of the Lord.

2. He vindicates himself from the objections which the Pharisees made, who said, Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true; as if, in his own cause these assertions were the mere boasts of self-commendation: overlooking the testimony which John bore to his character, and the evidence which all the miracles Christ did brought along with them. He answered, and said unto them, Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true. If, in ordinary cases, a man's own testimony concerning himself may be well called in question, yet in the case of messengers sent from God, the matter is otherwise. The message he brought was itself a proof of his mission, considering the circumstances in which he appeared. For I know whence I came, and whither I go. He knew his own divine mission, and that, as he came from the Father, he must shortly return to him again; of which he had given them striking evidence in the miracles he had wrought. But ye cannot tell whence I come, nor whither I go, wilfully blind to the truths he brought, and rejecting the credentials which he produced. Ye judge after the flesh, and from the meanness of his outward appearance, concluded it was impossible that this should be he who should deliver Israel: and they who judge thus after the flesh in spiritual matters, are sure to be in the wrong. I judge no man, not at all intermeddling in acts of judicial power, nor assuming any authority; nor was it his office at present to condemn any, but to seek and save that which was lost. And yet, if I judge, my judgment is true, as being the searcher of all hearts, and beholding all things naked and open before him; for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me; such an inseparable union subsisting between us, as that my judgment is according to his, and all I speak is in express conformity with his will, who gave me my mission. It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men, credible witnesses, is true, and sufficient for the proof of any matter of the greatest consequence. I am one that bear witness of myself, as the Messiah, which my doctrine and works declare me to be; and the Father that sent me beareth witness with me, not only in all the prophecies of old, but in repeated voices heard from heaven. Here therefore are two witnesses of divine authority to prove the truth.

3. The Pharisees, with contempt of his pretensions, replied, Where is thy Father? what, Joseph the carpenter? is he the witness? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me nor my Father: are not acquainted with my divine original: if ye had known me, as the Son of God, ye should have known my Father also, as we are one in nature, counsel, and operation: the knowledge of me includes the knowledge of my Father, as I am the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person. Thus freely and fully doth Jesus assert his eternal power, Godhead, and unity with the Father. These words spoke Jesus in the treasury, as he taught in the temple: and no man laid hands on him, for his hour was not yet come. And, till God's decreed and appointed moment comes, the malice of persecutors and the rage of devils are alike impotent and vain.

21. Then said Jesus again unto them, [y] I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall [z] die in your sins: [a] whither I go, ye cannot come. 22. Then said the Jews, [b] Will he kill himself? because he saith, Whither I go, ye cannot come. 23. And he said unto them, [c] Ye are from beneath; [d] I am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world. 24. I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins: for if ye [e] believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins. 25. Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto them, [f] Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning. 26. [g] I have many things to say and to judge of you: but he that sent me is true; and [h] I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him. 27. [i] They understood not that he spake to them of the Father. 28. Then said Jesus unto them, [k] When ye have lifted up the Son of man, [l] then shall ye know that I am he, and that [m] I do nothing of myself; but, as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things. 29. [n] And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for [o] I do always those things that please him. 30. As he spake these words, [p] many believed on him.

y Luke 19. 12. Mat. 25. 24. ch. 7. 34.
z Job 20. 11. Ezek. 3. 18, 19. Prov. 14. 32. Ps. 9. 17. a See ch. 7. 34. & 13. 33. Prov. 1. 24—28. Mat. 7. 23. & 25. 41.
b Ps. 22. 6. & 69. 19, 20. c Ch. 3. 3, 6. Ps. 17. 14. 1 Cor. 2. 14. Rom. 8. 7, 8. Rev. 1. 7. Jam. 3. 15. & 4. 4. 1 John 2. 15, 16. Phil. 3. 19.
d Ch. 1. 14, 18. & 3. 16, 35. 1 Cor. 15. 47. Rom. 9. 5. ch. 18. 36.
e Ch. 3. 18, 36. Acts 4. 12. Heb. 2. 3. & 10. 29.
f Heb. 13. 8. ch. 5. 17—47. Is. 9. 6, 7.
g Heb. 4. 13. ch. 7. 28.
h Ch. 3. 32. & 15.
i 1 Cor. 2. 11. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4. Is. 6. 9, 10. & 42. 19. k Ch. 3. 14. & 12. 32, 33. & 19. 18. 1 Cor. 2. 8.
l Mat. 27. 50—54. Acts ii—vi. Luke 20. 21—27. & 19. 43, 44. Rom. 1. 4. 1 Cor. 15. 4.
m Ch. 5. 19, 30. & 3. 11.
n Ver. 16. ch. 14. 10. & 16. 32. Is. 42. 1, 6. & 49. 2, 8. & 50. 7, 9. Heb. 9. 14.
o Is. 42. 1, 21. Mat. 3. 15, 17. & 17. 5. Mark 14. 36. ch. 4. 34. & 5. 30. & 6. 38. Heb. 10. 5—10. & 2. 10. & 5. 8.
p Ch. 2. 23. & 6. 14. & 7. 31. & 10. 42.

Verses 21—30. Words of terror to awaken their consciences, as well as words of grace to engage their hearts, did the Redeemer employ, if any thing might at last effectually work upon them.

1. He warns them of their approaching ruin, and the cause of it. Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, to the Father; and ye shall seek me, when your calamities overtake you, and shall long for the Messiah to save you from them; and shall die in your sins, or your sin, under the guilt of all your other iniquities, and especially that capital one of unbelief, and rejection of me and my gospel: whither I go, ye cannot come: the gates of eternal life and glory will be for ever barred against you, and no entrance permitted you into those regions of blessedness, where I shall shortly be. Note, (1.) Unbelief is the damning evil. It is the sin against our remedy, and necessarily leads men to destruction. (2.) They who refuse to embrace the Saviour in faith and love, and to follow him in holy obedience here, must never expect admission into his eternal kingdom of glory hereafter.

2. The Jews, instead of trembling before the warnings of Jesus, treated them with derision, saying, Will he kill himself? to get rid of his enemies, and be out of their reach.

3. In reply to their malicious suggestion, he answers, Ye are from beneath, earthly and sensual in your spirit and temper, and therefore cannot understand and follow me; I am from above, celestial in my original, and my conversation in heaven: ye are of this world, affecting and pursuing its honours, interests, pleasures, and esteem; I am not of this world, dead to it in my affections, and looking forward to that blessed world to which I go. I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins, as you must infallibly do, if you continue in your present state of impenitence, worldly-mindedness, and unbelief: for if ye believe not that I am he, the eternal, unchangeable, Jehovah, or the Messiah, the Light of the world, the Saviour of the miserable, ye shall die in your sins, no pardon or redemption being possible for those who reject the grace of the gospel. Jesus alone can deliver the soul from the guilt, power, and punishment of sin; and out of him there is no help or hope of salvation.

4. With a repetition of the like taunt as before, they replied, Who art thou? that talkest such great things, and threatenest so highly; Jesus saith unto them, Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning, the great object of faith since the first promise was given, and the same Messiah which from the beginning of my ministry I have proved myself to be. I have many things to say and to judge of you, to upbraid your infidelity, and prove the inexcusableness of your impenitence; these are reserved for an after-reckoning: but he that sent me is true, both in fulfilling his promises and his threatenings; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him, both the purposes of his grace to his people, and the inevitable ruin which will attend those who reject his Christ, and which the issue will infallibly prove to be a true testimony. They understood not that he spoke to them of the Father; their hearts were hardened in sin, and their minds blinded by prejudice. Note, The plainest truths of God, the most solemn warnings of danger, are not apprehended nor understood. The god of this world hath blinded the minds of sinners, and they continue stupid and insensible.

5. Christ refers them to a future day for a full conviction of what at present they will not believe. When ye have lifted up the Son of man upon the cross, as the brazen serpent, in consequence of which sufferings his exaltation to glory would follow, then shall ye know that I am he, the true Messiah, as the wonders which happened during his hanging upon the cross bespoke him to be; as was proved by his resurrection and ascension to glory; as many of them to their eternal comfort perceived, when by his Spirit their souls were converted, and turned to him whom they had pierced; and as the rest would terribly feel, when shortly he should take vengeance on their nation, cut them off by the Roman sword, and doom them to eternal misery. Then will ye be convinced, saith he, that I do nothing of myself, without divine authority; but as the Father hath taught me, I speak these things, in exact correspondence with the instructions that, as man and mediator, I have received from him; and he that sent me, is with me, Christ being in nature and essence one with the Father, and having in his presence, power, and Spirit, to enable him for, and encourage him in, the great work of redemption. The Father hath not left me alone, without the clearest demonstrations of his favour and regard; for I do always those things that please him; and therefore he cannot but take the highest complacency in me and my undertaking, which is in such exact conformity to his will, and ultimately tends so highly to advance his glory. Note, (1.) All must know, by happy or dreadful experience, that Jesus is the Christ: they who are not convinced of it by his word and Spirit, will prove it in the judgments he will inflict upon them. (2.) However much we may be deserted of the world, God will never leave nor forsake his faithful servants; and we can want neither company nor comfort, if his blessed presence be with us.

6. Great was the effect produced by these words. As he spoke them, many believed on him, as come with a divine commission from God, and the true Messiah; at least, so far were they convinced, as to make a profession of their faith, though by the sequel it seems that many of them were far from being sound converts. Note, Many for a time make a fair profession, whose hearts are not right with God, and who abide not steadfastly in his covenant.

31. ¶ Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, [q] If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; 32. [r] And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. 33. ¶ They answered him, [s] We be Abraham's seed, and [t] were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? 34. Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [u] Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin. 35. [x] And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: [y] but the Son abideth ever. 36. [z] If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed. 37. I know that ye are [a] Abraham's seed; [b] but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.

p Ch. 2. 24. & 6. 66. Mat. 24. 13. Heb. 3. 14. & 10. 38, 39. Gal. 6. 9.
r Ch. 7. 17. Hos. 6. 3. Mat. 13. 11. Is. 42. 7. & 61. 1. 2 Cor. 3. 17, 18. Rom. 8. 2, 15, & 6. 14, 18, 22. & 7. 4. Tit. 3. 3, 5. Jam. 1. 25. & 2. 12. 1 Cor. 7. 22, 23. ver. 36.
s Mat. 3. 9. ver. 39.
t Exod. i—x. Judg. iii, iv, vi, x. Ezra ix. Neh. v.
u Rom. 6. 16, 20. 2 Pet. 2. 19. Prov. 5. 22. Eph. 2. 2, 3. Tit. 3. 3.
x Gen. 21. 10. Gal. 4. 30. Ezek. 46. 17. Mat. 8. 12. & 21. 41, 43. Rom. 11. 7—11.
y Heb. 3. 6. & 13. 8. Is. 9. 6, 7. Dan. 7. 14. Job 17. 9. Prov 4. 18. 1 Pet. 1. 5. Jude 1. Col. 3. 4.
z Ver. 32. Is. 49. 24—26. & 45. 17. Rom. 8. 2. Gal. 5. 1. Rev. 5. 9. & 1. 5, 6. & 2. 7, 10, 17, 26. & 3. 5, 12, 21. 2 Cor. 3. 17.
a Mat. 3. 9. Acts 13. 26.
b Ch. 5. 16, 18. & 7. 1, 19, 25. Mat. 13. 15. 1 Cor. 2. 14.

Verses 31—37. We have here,

1. Christ's address to those Jews who professed to believe in him. If ye continue in my word, faithfully adhere to the gospel and the profession of it, unmoved with any opposition, and cordially prove your obedience to it in all holy conversation and godliness; then are ye my disciples indeed: I will own and accept you as such: and ye shall know the truth, obtain deeper and clearer discoveries of it; and the truth shall make you free, free from guilt, through the knowledge of the Redeemer's blood and righteousness, free from the dominion of sin and Satan, through the powerful operations of the Spirit; free from ignorance and error, through divine teaching; free from the bondage of the law and corruption, and brought into the glorious liberty of the sons of God. Note, (1.) The proof of the true discipleship is seen in our abiding in faith, and adherence to Jesus and his gospel. Many profess to believe for a while, who, in time of temptation, fall away. (2.) Our measure of attainments in knowledge and grace is very imperfect here: we have need to be looking up continually for daily supplies of divine light and love, and Christ's faithful followers shall find both abundantly dispensed to them from on high. (3.) That is true liberty, when our souls are brought to God's happy service, and delivered from the servitude of sin and Satan.

2. The Jews who heard him felt their pride hurt by the insinuation of their subjection, which Christ intimated, and with indignation replied, We are Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? They boast of their descent from that patriarch, as their great honour, and with the strangest effrontery profess to have enjoyed uninterrupted liberty as their birthright and privilege; when it was so notorious, that, under a multitude of enemies they had suffered the most afflictive servitude and captivity, and were now a conquered province of the Roman empire.

3. Waving the discussion of the point relative to their civil liberty, concerning which he spoke not, he lets them know there is a more dreadful servitude than that of the body, even of the immortal soul, under the yoke of Sin and Satan. Whoso committeth sin, is the servant of sin; he that makes a practice of sin, and lives habitually under the power of it, is the worst of slaves, whatever his civil liberties may be, however noble his descent, or high his church privileges. And the servant abideth not in the house always; but as the son of the bondwoman was cast out of Abraham's family, so would all the impenitent and unbelieving among the Jews be cut off from the church of God; as every unfaithful professor will be, who continues to live in his sins, however high an opinion he may have entertained of himself, or however respectfully others may have thought of him: but the Son abideth ever; he who is Abraham's promised seed emphatically, the true Isaac, his is the inheritance; and all who claim under him, as the sons of God by faith, have a sure title to a place among the household of God. If the Son therefore shall make you free, the Son of God, the Lord of the house, where Moses himself was but a servant, ye shall be free indeed; not with that imaginary freedom, of which the Jews boasted, but (ἀντως) that real liberty which only Jesus can give to the fallen, corrupt, and guilty soul. He makes his people free, (1.) From the arrests of the law; by an obedience unto death he hath satisfied all its demands, and found a ransom for us. (2.) From corruption; his Spirit both delivers us from the blindness of error, and from the power of sin. (3.) As free-born sons we are adopted into God's family, enjoy all the privileges to which perfect obedience in our own persons could have entitled us, and have an assured title to the eternal kingdom.

4. He applies this case to them. I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but, very unlike that patriarch in your spirit and temper, ye seek to kill me; and the reason is, because my word hath no place in you; your hearts are steeled against it; you cannot bear the humbling truths I deliver, and your pride, prejudices, and self-righteousness, effectually prevent their influence: and where this is the case with any soul, there the gospel is as water spilled on the ground, utterly unprofitable.

38. [c] I speak that which I have seen with my Father; and ye [d] do that which ye have seen with your father.* 39. They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were [e] Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham. 40. [f] But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham. 41. [g] Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; [h] we have one Father, even God. 42. Jesus said unto them, [i] If God were your Father, ye would love me: for [k] I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me. 43. [l] Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word. 44. [m] Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. [n] He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it. 45. And [o] because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not. 46. [p] Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me? 47. [q] He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.

c Ch. 3. 32. & 5. 19, 30. & 14. 10, 24. ver. 26.

d Ver. 37, 40, 44.

* Or, Ye do what ye have learned from your father.

e Rom. 2. 28, 29. & 4. 12, 16. & 9. 7. Gal. 3. 7, 29. with Mat. 3. 9.

f Ver. 37. ch. 7. 19. Gal. 4. 16. Ps. 109. 4.

g Ver. 37, 38, 40, 44.

h Is. 63. 16. & 64. 8. Mal. 1. 6. Mic. 3. 11. Jer. 7. 4.

i Ch. 15. 23, 24. 1 John 5. 1. & 4. 19.

k Ch. 1. 14. & 3. 16. & 5. 43. & 7 28, 29. & 16. 27, 28. & 17. 8, 25. Gal. 4. 4.

l Ver. 27. 2 Cor. 2. 3, 4. ch. 7. 17. 1 Cor. 2. 14. Rom. 8. 7, 8.

m Ver. 38, 40. Tit. 3. 3. 1 Thes. 2. 14, 15. 1 John 3. 8, 10. Mat. 12. 29. & 13. 30.

n Jude 6. Gen. 3. 1—6. Rom. 5. 12. 1 Pet. 5. 8. 2 Cor. 2. 11. & 11. 3, 14. Eph. 2. 2. 1 John 3. 8. 1 Kin. 22. 22.

o Ver. 25. ch. 5. 17—43. Is. 53. 1. Gal. 4. 16.

p Heb. 7. 26. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 22.

q Ch. 10. 26, 27. ver. 37, 43, 45. ch. 6. 44, 65.

Verses 38—47. Christ proceeds in his discourse.

1. He points out the cause of the contrariety of sentiments which subsisted between them. I speak that which I have seen with my Father, as perfectly knowing his mind and will, and from eternity acquainted with all his counsels and designs; and ye do that which ye have seen with your father; your works show whose children you are, whose example you imitate, and under what father's tuition you have been brought up.

2. Fired with resentment, as if he reflected upon their pedigree, they boasted their descent from Abraham, the friend of God, of whom they could surely learn nothing that was evil. Jesus answered them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham; but, very opposite to his faith and obedience is your conduct, ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard from God; a truth so needful to be known, that I am the very promised Messiah, the eternal Son of the Father: this did not Abraham; his submission to the first notice of God's will was eminent; and such a murderous spirit, as to contrive the death of any man, much less of a messenger sent from heaven, never dwelt in his bosom; therefore it is sufficiently evident, that your relation to him can never be proved by your temper; for ye do the deeds of your father, and who that is, let your conduct tell. Note, It is often prudent, in conveying unpleasing truths, to state the premises, and let the persons themselves draw the conclusion.

3. With indignation they replied, perceiving he spoke not in a literal but figurative sense, We be not born of fornication; are not idolaters, nor their descendants; have never gone a whoring from God: we have one Father, whom we worship and adore, even Jehovah, the only living and true God. But alas! they who flatter themselves they have the true religion, because they make profession of it, whilst their practice is utterly contradictory to sound godliness, deceive their own souls.

4. Christ shows them their fatal mistake. God could not be their Father whilst their ways were so perverse before him; if God were your Father, you would love me, and embrace the truth I deliver to you; for I proceeded forth, and came from God, as my Father, and one in nature with him: neither came I of myself, but he sent me, to accomplish the great designs of his grace, as the Redeemer of his elect children. Why do ye not understand my speech? the reason is, because ye cannot hear my word; your hearts are averse to the truth, and prejudiced against me; and how then can God be your Father. Ye are of your father the devil; he is the spirit which worketh in you; and the lusts of your father ye will do; obstinately bent on following the dictates of pride, malice, and envy, the grand characteristics of this foul fiend. He was a murderer from the beginning; seducing man in paradise from his allegiance to God, he thereby exposed the whole human race to death spiritual, temporal, and eternal; and ever since, from the days of righteous Abel, at his instigation have those horrid deeds of bloodshed and murder been committed, under which the earth groans. And he abode not in the truth; he lost the purity and rectitude of his own nature, and then by a daring lie tempted man to disbelieve the divine commination respecting the forbidden fruit; because there is no truth in him; his kingdom is supported by falsehood and delusion; all the errors and heresies that rend the church, and all the vain hopes that lull sinners to ruin, derive from him their origin. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar, and the father of it: all his temptations from the beginning have been, and are, a tissue of falsehoods; his own devising; the genuine offspring of his apostate spirit; and as he is in himself faithless in his nature, so is he the father of all lies and liars; they are his children; they bear his strong and striking lineaments, and evidence clearly from whom they are descended: they obey his commands, and follow his example. And because I tell you the truth, the truth of my gospel, mission, and divine character, ye believe me not; such is your miserable infatuation and delusion, that ye are more disposed to believe the devil's lie, than God's truth; so enslaved are you by this wicked spirit. Which of you convinceth me of sin? either of immorality in conduct, or unsoundness of doctrine? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me? when every circumstance conspires to prove my mission divine, how inexcusable is your obstinacy! He that is of God, as you pretend to be, heareth God's word; desirous to know, and willing to obey it: ye therefore hear them not, and pay no regard to what I declare to you, because ye are not of God; are not his children, nor influenced by his Spirit, but under the power and dominion of the god of this world, the spirit that worketh in the children of disobedience. Note, (1.) They who have God for their Father, will show it by an unfeigned love to the Lord Jesus Christ: by a solemn attention to his word, and faithful obedience to his will. (2.) They who do the devil's works, are infallibly the devil's children. By their fruits ye shall know them: Pride, envy, malice, enmity against those that are good, lying, rage, &c. these are the features of Satan, and mark his genuine offspring. (3.) Christ's ministers and people, like their Master, must give diligence to keep a conscience void of offence, that their most envenomed enemies may have no evil thing justly to say of them. (4.) They who slight and disregard the Redeemer's gospel and those who preach it, despise not men, but God, and therein prove the unsubdued enmity and apostasy of their hearts.

48. ¶ Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art [r] a Samaritan, and hast a devil? 49. Jesus answered, [s] I have not a devil; but [t] I honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me. 50. [u] And I seek not mine own glory: [x] there is one that seeketh and judgeth. 51. Verily, verily, I say unto you, [y] If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death. 52. Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. [z] Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste of death. 53. [a] Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophets are dead: who makest thou thyself? 54. Jesus answered, [b] If I honour myself, my honour is nothing: [c] it is my Father that honoureth me; of whom ye say that he is your God: 55. [d] Yet ye have not known him; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: [e] but I know him, and keep his saying. 56. Your father Abraham [f] rejoiced to see my day: and he saw* it, and was glad. 57. Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham? 58. Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [g] Before Abraham was, I am. 59. ¶ [h] Then took they up stones to cast at him: [i] but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.

r Ch. 4. 9. & 7. 20. & 10. 20. Mat. 10. 25. & 12. 24, 31. Ps. 22. 6, 7. & 69. 20. s Mat. 11. 29. 1 Pet. 2. 23. 2 Tim. 2. 24, 25. Prov. 15. 1.
t Ver. 29. ch. 17. 4. Is. 42. 21. Mat. 3. 15, 17.
u Ch. 7. 18. & 5. 41.
x Ch. 5. 24. & 12. 43. or 5. 22, 23. Phil. 2. 9—11.
y Ch. 3. 15, 16, 36. & 6. 40, 47. & 5. 24. & 11. 26.
z Zech. 1. 5. Heb. 11. 13.
a Ch. 4. 12. with Is. 9. 6. Rom. 9. 5. b Ver. 50. ch. 5. 30, 31. 2 Cor. 10. 18. Prov. 26. 12, 16. c Ch. 13. 31, 32. & 16. 14. & 17. 5. & 5. 20—29. Eph. 1. 20—23. Phil. 2. 9—11. Acts 3. 13. with ver. 41.
d Ch. 7. 28. Eph. 5. 18. Is. 6. 9, 10. & 42. 19, 20.
e Mat. 11. 27. & 3. 15, 17. ch. 1. 18. & 7. 29. & 14. 9, 10. & 4. 34. ver. 29. & 17. 4, 6.
f Or, longed, desired earnestly. Gen. 12. 3. & 22. 18. & 15. 6. Gal. 3. 6, 8, 16.
* His faith was equivalent to seeing.
g Ps. 2. 7. Prov. 8. 22—30. Mic. 5. 2. Is. 9. 6. ch. 1. 2. & 17. 5, 24. & 10. 30. Exod. 3. 14, 18. Heb. 13. 8.
h Luke 4. 29, 30. ch. 10. 31, 39. Lev. 24. 16.
i Luke 24. 31. Mat. 10. 16, 23. ch. 10. 39, 40. & 11. 54. & 7. 1.

Verses 48—59. The Jews, cut to the heart at this sharp rebuke, were exceedingly exasperated.

1. They began to abuse him with the most virulent language. Say we not well, that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil? They would represent him as an enemy to their religion and nation: as one in league with Satan, to whose influence they ascribed the miracles Christ performed; or as a lunatic and madman, possessed by this spirit, thus to call the children of Abraham the children of the devil. Note, It is no uncommon thing to hear the best of men branded with the most opprobrious names, abused as satanical, or treated with contempt as madmen; but wisdom is justified of all her children.

2. Christ meekly replies to so unjust and malicious an accusation, I have not a devil; neither act in concert with him, nor am possessed by him: but I honour my Father; far from derogating from his honour, as you would infer from my pretensions, the great end I propose in all my words and works is to advance it; and I seek not my own glory, in contradistinction to him; there is one that seeketh and judgeth, that will secure me an interest in the hearts of his people, will vindicate my injured character, and avenge the contempt and indignity you cast upon me. But, however slightly and meanly you may think of me, verily, verily, I say unto you, as the most assured truth, If a man keep my saying, really believes, embraces, and obeys my gospel, he shall never see death, the second, the eternal death, the wages of sin. Note, (1.) The most unprovoked abuse must be returned with mildness; the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God. (2.) When we are conscious our design is the advancement of the divine glory, we need not be concerned about any malignant interpretation put on our conduct. (3.) They are disciples indeed who hear the word of God and keep it, embracing the promises as the most invaluable treasure, and obedient to the commands, as the approved rule of duty. (4.) They who thus walk, have nothing to fear from death; the sting of it is taken away; the power of spiritual death is destroyed: and the grave is now become the gate of eternal life and glory.

3. More confirmed in their prejudices, instead of embracing the glorious privilege to which Christ invited them, they said,

Now we know thou hast a devil, and art stark mad to talk at so strange a rate. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my sayings he shall never taste of death. Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? though so eminently the friend of God; and the prophets are dead, who were so highly favoured of him; whom makest thou thyself? what insufferable arrogance, to pretend a power of bestowing that immortality upon thy followers, which God himself never vouchsafed to his most eminent saints and servants?

4. Christ answers their cavil, and vindicates what he had asserted. If I honour myself, and assume a character which I could not support with the most powerful evidence, my honour is nothing, and you might treat it as an empty boast: but it is my Father that honoureth me, bearing witness to my divine mission and authority, and expressing his full approbation of me as his Son, of whom ye say that he is your God; glorying, as descendants from the patriarchs, in your covenant relation to him. Yet ye have not known him, his nature and perfections, his mind and will; but I know him, most intimately acquainted with his person and counsel: and if I should say, I know him not, and should retract ought that I have advanced concerning the perfect knowledge I have of him from eternity, I should be a liar like unto you; but I know him, and keep his saying; always doing the things which please him, and acting in exact conformity with his mind and will. Your father Abraham rejoiced, or was very desirous to see my day, and longed for my coming in the human nature to redeem the Israel of God; and he saw it by faith, though distant, yet surely approaching. He beheld in Isaac born; in the promise made to his seed; in Melchizedek; in the sacrifice of his son, and the ram provided in his stead; and in the visible appearance of the Lord himself, Gen. xviii. 2. in all these he beheld the incarnate Saviour, and was glad, exulted in the glorious hope of my appearing in the fulness of time. Note, (1.) The affectation of honour, and courting men's admiration, is the sure evidence of not deserving it. (2.) What was Christ's labour must be ours, to advance not our own, but God's glory. (3.) Many profess to know God, who in works deny him, and against whom their very privileges and opportunities of knowing him will rise up to their great condemnation. (4.) The surest evidence of a right knowledge of God is a practical improvement of his sayings, and submitting to his blessed word and will. (5.) The appearing of Christ is the desire and delight of the faithful, as it is the terror of the wicked; and he will come, and will not tarry. The Lord is at hand. (6.) They who by faith now look to Jesus, and wait for him, shall soon see him face to face, and rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

5. With sovereign contempt do the Jews treat his declaration, perverting his words, as if he had asserted that Abraham saw him in the flesh. Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham? or he thee, when he hath been dead above two thousand years before? How ridiculous the pretension! They judged of Christ's age probably by his look: incessant labours perhaps had marred his visage, and brought on, before their time, the wrinkles of age.

6. He plainly asserts to them his eternal self-existence, as an answer to their objection. Verily, verily, I say unto you, as the most certain and undoubted truth, Before Abraham was born, or had a being, I am the same unchangeable Jehovah, who, by this name, made myself known to Moses in the bush, Exod. iii. 14. and therefore must be infinitely superior and prior to Abraham.

7. Enraged beyond all bounds of forbearance at such an assertion, which they regarded as the most impudent blasphemy, the Jews took up stones to cast at him, intending to murder him on the spot: but Jesus hid himself, by his divine power probably withholding their eyes from perceiving him, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by, escaping their fury, because his hour was not yet come. Note, (1.) It is prudent to hide ourselves when we see the approaching danger. (2.) They who drive Christ from them, are justly abandoned by him to judicial blindness and hardness of heart.

CHAP. IX.—ANNO DOMINI, 32.

In this chapter we have, 1. The miraculous cure of a man that was born blind, ver. 1—7. 2. The discourses which were occasioned by it: (1.) A discourse of the neighbours among themselves, and with the man, ver. 8—12. (2.) Between the Pharisees and the man, ver. 13—34. (3.) Between Christ and the poor man, ver. 35—38. (4.) Between Christ and the Pharisees, ver. 39. ad finem.

1. AND as *Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth. 2. And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who [a] did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind? 3. Jesus answered, [b] Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: [c] but that the works of God should be made manifest in him. 4. I must work the works of him that sent me, [d] while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work. 5. As long as I am in the world, [e] I am the light of the world. 6. When he had thus spoken, [f] he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he † anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay, 7. And said unto him, [g] Go, wash in the [h] pool of Siloam, (which is, by interpretation, [i] Sent.) He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.

* Some months after.

a Ver. 34. Luke 13. 2, 4. Acts 28. 4.

b Mat. 7. 1. Luke 13. 1—5.

c Ch. 11. 4. Is. 35. 5. Mat. 11. 5. ch. 14. 11. & 2. 11.

d Luke 13. 32, 33. & 19. 42. Eccl. 9. 10. Eph. 5. 16. ch. 4. 34. & 5. 19. & 13. 9. & 12. 35. & 17. 4.

e Ch. 1. 5, 9. & 3. 19. & 8. 12. & 12. 35, 46. Luke 2. 32. Mal. 4. 2. Is. 42. 6, 7. & 49. 6. with Rev. 3. 18.

f Mark 7. 33. & 8. 23.

† Or spread the clay upon the eyes of the blind man.

g 2 Kin. 5. 10.

h Neh. 3. 15. Is. 8. 6.

i Ch. 10. 36. Rom. 8. 3. Gal. 4. 4. Acts 3. 26.

Verses 1—7. The connection between this chapter and the foregoing seems to speak as if the events here recorded immediately followed the preceding, though others suppose they happened at the distance of three months; those being done at the feast of tabernacles, these at the feast of dedication, chap. x. 22. We have here the cure of a poor blind man.

1. Jesus observed him as he passed by, and knew his pitiable case, that he was blind from his birth. Such are we by nature; born in sin, and conceived in wickedness; blind to every spiritual object, and utterly unable to find the way to eternal life and peace, till Jesus passing by, regards us with the eyes of his compassion, and is found by them who sought him not.

2. The disciples hereupon proposed a curious question to their Master: Who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind? They seem to have entertained something of the Pythagorean opinion concerning the pre-existence and transmigration of souls from one body to another; and that the commission of some signal offence in a former body might be punished with the present affliction; or that the sin of the parents might have entailed this judgment on their offspring.

3. Christ answers their question, by way of rectifying their mistakes, and checking such censorious conclusions. Neither hath this man sinned nor his parents: not that they had never committed actual sin, nor been born in original corruption; but that it was not because of any particular crime which either had committed, that this blindness was inflicted: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him, and the Messiah be exalted in working a miraculous cure upon him. Note, (1.) We are not to judge of men's sins by their sufferings, it being often the lot of God's dearest children to be most severely afflicted. (2.) God has purposes of his own glory to answer in those afflictive providences, the reason of which we cannot always discern; and this is at least a sufficient reason to reconcile us to them.

4. He gives the reason of his readiness to help this poor man. I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is yet day. He was sent upon earth to do good to the bodies as well as souls of men; and therefore whilst his personal ministry lasted, this was his proper employment. The night cometh when no man can work; when death should put a period to his mortal days, his works of healing would then be done. As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world; both corporally giving eyes to the blind, and enabling them to see the day; but more peculiarly in a spiritual sense, as the Sun of Righteousness arisen with healing in his wings, the only true light that can guide the benighted souls of men into the paths of eternal life. Note, (1.) Life is our day of usefulness, the moment in which we can serve and glorify God; we have need therefore to be diligent to redeem the time, and lay ourselves out in his blessed service. The night of death is near, when no work can be done for Christ and for souls; how precious then is every passing hour! (2.) What the sun is to the natural world, that Christ is to the spiritual world: without him all is darkness; we know nothing of God, or ourselves, our true happiness, our proper work, or the great end of our being; and he must not only shine upon us as the light, but shine into our hearts, giving us also the faculty of vision.

5. He gives sight to the blind man, and this in a way different from the miracles he usually performed, which were done with a word. He spat on the ground and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay, and said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam (which is, by interpretation, Sent,) and was the figure of the kingdom of the Messiah, Isa. viii. 6. The blind man immediately obeyed his orders, and instantly felt his eyes opened, and his sight perfectly restored. Note, (1.) The word of the gospel is as this clay, unable of itself to communicate spiritual light to the soul; but, when applied by the powerful hand of Jesus, becomes effectual to open the eyes of the mind. (2.) Obedient faith never fails of bringing relief. They who at Christ's command perseveringly wait upon him in the way of his ordinances, will find their darkness enlightened, their doubts removed, their weakness strengthened, their souls comforted.

8. ¶ The neighbours therefore, and they which before had seen him that he was blind,* said, Is not this he that sat and begged? 9. Some said, This is he; others said, He is like him: but he said, I am he. 10. Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened? 11. He answered and said, A man that is called [k] Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight. 12. Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

* Or. they who had before seen him blind.

k Mat. 1. 21, 25. Luke 1. 47. & 2. 10, 11. 1 Thes. 1. 10. Tit. 2. 13, 14.

Verses 8—12. We have here,

1. The amazement of the neighbours, who could scarce persuade themselves that he was the same man whom they had seen stretched along, a poor blind beggar, by the way side during so many years. Some affirmed it was the same man; others doubted, though they owned the resemblance; till the man himself ended the dispute, by affirming he was the very person. Note, They who have experienced the power of the healing grace of Jesus upon their souls, should be ready to own it, to the glory of his great name.

2. In answer to their question, how he came to recover his sight, after being blind from his birth, he informed them, that a man called Jesus, had made clay, anointed his eyes, sent him to the pool of Siloam to wash, and that instantly thereupon he received his sight. Note, If the opening of the eyes of a dark body awakened such concern to inquire how it was done, much more ought the opening the eyes of the darkened minds of sinners to be matter of astonishment, and awaken our notice and inquiries.

3. They hereupon put another question to him; either out of desire to know this wonderful person, or more probably with a malicious design to seize one whom the Pharisees had proscribed. Where is he? He said, I know not; Christ having departed when he had performed the cure. Thus in the work of grace upon the soul we see and feel the blessed change, though the hand which produces it is unseen.

13. ¶ They brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind. 14. And it was [l] the sabbath-day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes. 15. [m] Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight. He said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see. 16. Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man [n] is not of God, because he [o] keepeth not the sabbath-day. [p] Others said, How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? and there was a division among them. 17. They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him? that he hath opened thine eyes? † He said, [q] He is a prophet. 18. But the ‡ Jews [r] did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight. 19. And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see? 20. His parents answered them and said, We [r] know that this is our son, and that he was born blind: 21. But by what means he now seeth, we know not: or who hath [s] opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; ask him: he shall speak for himself. [t] 22. These words spake his parents, [s] because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that [t] if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue. ‖ 23. Therefore said his parents, He is of age; ask him. 24. Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, l Ch. 5. 9, 16. Luke 6. 7, 9. & 13. 10—16. & 14. 1—5.

m Ch. 5. 9. Mark 1. 21, 25, 26. Luke 6. 7. & 13. 14. & 14. 3, 4. ver. 16.

n Ch. 3. 2. ver. 33.

o Ch. 5. 9, 16. Luke 6. 7, 9. & 13. 10—16. & 14. 1—5. with Exod. 31. 12. & 35. 2, 3. Num. 15. 31—36. Exod. 20. 10.

p Ch. 7. 12, 43. & 10. 19.

† Or, What sayest thou of him for giving thee sight?

q Ch. 1. 21. & 4. 19. & 6. 14. Deut. 18. 15—18. Acts 3. 22. & 7. 37. & 10. 36, 38.

‡ Members of the Sanhedrim.

r Gen. 19. 14. Is. 7. 9. Luke 24. 25.

s Ch. 7. 13. & 19. 38. & 20. 19.

t Ch. 12. 42. & 16. 2. & 7. 13. & 19. 7. Is. 65. 5. Rev. 13. 17. Acts 4. 18. & 5. 40.

‖ Should be expelled the synagogue. This corresponds, in their discipline, to what we call excommunication.

u Josh. 7. 19. 1 Sam. 6. 5. Rom. 16. 18.
x Ver. 16. Gen. 13. 13. Luke 7. 39. & 15. 2. y Jer. 20. 10. & 18. 18.
* Or, Did ye not hear?
z Zech. 7. 11, 12. Mat. 7. 6. Prov. 26. 4, 5.
a Ch. 5. 45. & 7. 19. Acts 6. 11, 14. Rom. 2. 17. b Exod. ii. Deut. xxxi. Mal. 1. 4.
c Luke 15. 2. & 23. 2. ver. 16, 24.
d Ch. 8. 14.
e Ch. 3. 12. Mat. 11. 5. Is. 35. 4, 5. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4. 1 Cor. 2. 14.
f Job 27. 9. & 35. 12. Ps. 18. 41. & 66. 18. Prov. 1. 28. & 15. 8, 29. & 28. 9. Is. 1. 15. Jer. 11. 11. Ezek. 8. 18. Mic. 3. 4. Zech. 7. 13. Jer. 11. 11. & 14. 12.
g Ps. 34. 6, 15. & 91. 15. Jam. 5. 16—18. Ps. 18. 6. & 50. 15. & 65. 2.
h Is. 35. 5. & 42. 7. Mat. 11. 5. with ver. 16.
i Ver. 2. Acts 28. 4. Luke 13. 1—5.
k Ch. 7. 48, 49. & 11. 49.
l Or excommunicated him. Ver. 22 ch. 12. 42. & 16. 2. & 15. 6.

u Give God the praise: we know that this man is x a sinner. 25. He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see. 26. y Then said they to him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes? 27. He answered them, I have told you already, and z ye did not hear: * wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples? 28. Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are a Moses' disciples. 29. We know that b God spake unto Moses: as for c this fellow, d we know not from whence he is. 30. The man answered and said unto them, Why e herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes. 31. f Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him g he heareth. 32. Since the world began was it not heard h that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind. 33. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing. 34. ¶ They answered and said unto him, i Thou wast altogether born in sins, and k dost thou teach us? And they l cast him out.

Verses 13—34. Far from being induced by this wondrous miracle to admire the person who wrought it, we find them incensed, and ready to prosecute Jesus as a criminal.

1. Information is lodged against him before the rulers and the Pharisees: and the man who had been lately blind, is brought before the Sanhedrim, because it was the sabbath-day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes, which they regarded as a vile profanation of the day.

2. The Pharisees interrogate the man concerning the matter, very loath to be persuaded of the fact, and determined to find fault, where wonder and praise should have filled their hearts and tongues. The man simply gives a narrative of his case and cure, which divided the sentiments of the council. Some said, admitting the fact, this man is not of God, whatever miracles he may pretend to work, because he keepeth not the sabbath-day; for they regarded the making clay of the spittle as a violation of the strict rest enjoined by the tradition of the elders. Others were loath to admit the fact, and would fain overthrow its evidence; fearing, lest if it was allowed to be true, the people would justly conclude that no wicked man could work such miracles, and thereby the authority of Jesus would be established: or rather, How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? are the words of some, such as Joseph and Nicodemus, who justly objected, that such miracles of grace were a strong evidence of a divine mission, and of God's approbation of the person who wrought them; and this occasioned some debates in the council. Some of them hereupon demanded of the man what he thought of Jesus, and whether he had really opened his eyes. The man from just experience owns, he could not but conclude he must be a prophet. Note, (1.) A poor blind beggar often judges more wisely concerning Christ and his character, than those who boast themselves masters in Israel. (2.) Some, even of the great, are called; and their conduct and testimony leaves the rest at least more inexcusable.

3. They cite the father and mother of the man to appear at their bar, hoping to find some way to invalidate the credit of the miracle, but they only the more confirmed it; so easily can God take the wise in their own craftiness. They question the parents of the man, Whether this was their son? whether he was born blind? and how he now came to see? To the two first questions they gave a clear and explicit answer. He was their son, and had been born blind. How he now saw was a question which they cared not, for certain reasons, to enter into; and therefore rather referred the matter to their son, who was of age, and therefore able to answer for himself. For the truth was, they were timorous and apprehensive of the consequences of making that open confession, which gratitude and truth demanded; because they were afraid they should be excommunicated, according to the Jewish law which the Sanhedrim had passed, that if any should own Jesus as the Messiah, he should be put out of the synagogue: and therefore they were willing to trim, and leave the question for their son to resolve. Note, (1.) The church's censures, when wicked men are in authority, have often been laid on her best friends. (2.) The true religion of Jesus will ever be a suffering cause, even where the public profession of it is made; experimental godliness being only possessed by a few. (3.) When the profession of Christ only exposes us to persecution, many are ready to conceal their religion in order to escape the cross.

4. The council finding they got nothing to their satisfaction from the parents, again called the man himself; and unable to deny that a notable miracle was wrought, endeavoured to rob the Lord Jesus of the honour due to him for it, saying, Give God the praise, who hath done the work; but we know that this man is a sinner, and therefore though God may please to use wicked instruments for the accomplishment of his purposes, yet the praise is only due to himself. So confidently do they speak, who, when challenged to bring a single proof of sin against Jesus, could not have the confidence to lodge one accusation. Note, Many endeavour thus to supply the want of argument, with confident assertions of virulent abuse.

5. The man replied, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not, I will not determine; though I have all the reason in the world to believe the contrary: but one thing I know, by happy experience, that whereas I was blind, now I see, and cannot be persuaded out of my senses. Note, Many captious questions may be put to a gracious soul, in order to shake the ground of his confidence; but though he may not be able to give a distinct account how that spiritual change is wrought, which he experiences, yet he can say, I know it is wrought: my understanding is enlightened; my heart is changed.

6. Again they demand an answer to their questions, in hopes that through inadvertence or fear he might falter in his evidence, or vary from what he had advanced; but his reply more exasperated them. He answered them, I have told you already, distinctly and clearly, and ye did not hear, so as to regard or credit what I said: wherefore would ye hear it again? to what purpose do you desire it? will ye also be his disciples? which he suggests, either ironically, as knowing their aversion to Jesus; or seriously, as very willing to repeat what he had said a thousand times over, if they had the least disposition to hear and believe him, and come to Jesus as their Lord and Master.

7. With rage and resentment at the mention of this, they bitterly revile him. Thou art his disciple, a poor deluded wretch; but we are Moses' disciples, the followers of that great lawgiver of Israel, and who ought to be regarded as the guides in religious matters, and not to be taught by such a fellow as thee. We know that God spake unto Moses, face to face on the Mount, and delivered the law under a divine commission: but as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is: in truth they desired not to know, and would not examine the evidence he had produced of his divine original and authority; for then they might have seen that there was a perfect agreement between Jesus and Moses; and that instead of the worthless fellow whom they scornfully rejected, this was the great Prophet of whom Moses spoke. Note, (1.) Many boast of those external privileges which only serve to aggravate their guilt. (2.) The servants of Jesus, like their Master, have often been treated with insolence and contempt, as upstart fellows whom nobody knows. (3.) Many are branded as forsaking the good old religion, who are in fact the very espousers of it, by those who, resting upon the form of godliness, are utter strangers to the power of it.

8. Once more the man replies, Why, herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, when he hath given such an incontestable evidence of his divine mission, by this amazing miracle, and he hath opened mine eyes. Now we know, we, who are common people, and much more persons of your learning and sagacity, that God heareth not sinners, nor grants their prayers, much less would he enable them to perform miracles to support an imposture: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth; and in the present case, the miracle Jesus hath wrought is an express testimony of God's approbation of him. Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind: such a thing not the greatest of the prophets, not even Moses himself, had ever performed. If therefore, this man was not of God, sent by him, and owned of him, he could do nothing; since it cannot be imagined God would enable a bad man to work such extraordinary miracles to carry on a bad cause, and promote delusion. A conclusion most reasonable and unanswerable, and drawn from premises the most evident and allowed. Note, (1.) An impenitent sinner, who persists in his iniquities, can never expect God will hear or answer his prayers. (2.) They who in Spirit worship God, and in simplicity obey him, may be assured he will hear and grant all their petitions. (3.) A poor unlettered man, when taught of God, is able to confound the wisest doctors who are with all their learning strangers to divine teaching.

9. Unable to answer his reasoning, they make up in violence and abuse what they want in argument. Thou wast altogether born in sin, and dost thou teach us? Thou, a vile fellow, stigmatized from thy birth, as carrying a body inhabited by a viler soul; a poor ignorant wretch, a companion of beggars from thy birth; dost thou pretend to direct us, the guides and rulers of the church, famed for wisdom and sanctity, and invested with chief authority. What insolence, what arrogance is thine! And they cast him out, excommunicated him immediately, and cut him off from the congregation of Israel. But the curse causeless shall not fall; the anathemas of church rulers, who abuse their authority, shall only light upon their own head. Note, Proud worldly-wise men despise the poor, and think their own self-sufficiency above all need of others' help and teaching; whereas none who know themselves, will ever think themselves too wise to learn, or too good to mend.

35. ¶ Jesus heard that they had cast him out; [m] and when he had found him, he said unto him, [n] Dost thou believe on the [o] Son of God? 36. He answered and said, [p] Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him? 37. And Jesus said unto him, [q] Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee. 38. And he said, [r] Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

m Ch. 5. 14. Is. 65. 1. Ps. 27. 10. & 46. 1. Gen. 22. 14.
n Ch. 3. 15—18, 36. & 11. 25, 26, 40. & 16. 31. & 1. 50. Acts 8. 37. Luke 8. 25.
o Ps. 2. 7, 12. Mat. 3. 17, 14. 33. & 16. 16. & 26. 63. ch. 10. 30. p Prov. 30. 3, 4. Song 5. 9. & 6. 1.
q Ch. 4. 26. & 8. 25, 58.
r Mark 9. 24. ch. 11. 27. & 20. 28. Ps. 2. 12. & 45. 11.

Verses 35—38. The unjust act of these oppressive church rulers was soon noised abroad, and came to the ears of Jesus. Hereupon we are told,

1. That Christ found him; he went in search of him, probably to encourage and comfort him under the persecution he suffered for the truth, and said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God, the promised Messiah? Note, (1.) Though wicked men may abuse their power in casting out the faithful servants of Jesus, he will visit his outcasts with his love, and own them under their sufferings for his sake. (2.) True faith in the Son of God is the great attainment; to know and trust in him, is everlasting life.

2. The poor man replied with earnestness, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him? I do expect him, and should be happy to find him; and wish for nothing more than to be directed to him, that I might by faith embrace him.

3. Christ gives him a clear declaration of his own office and character, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee; whose power thou hast experienced, and is so much nearer to thee than thou art aware of; as he often is to his dear people, when they are afflicted and mourning his absence.

4. That moment, by the power of Jesus, he was enabled to exercise divine faith in his heart, and he makes an open profession of it: Lord, I believe; and he worshipped him; giving him that divine honour which was due to him, as the eternal Son of God. For they who truly know and believe in him, pay the same worship and honour to the Son, even as to the Father.

39. ¶ And Jesus said, [s] For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see, and that they which see might be made blind. 40. And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, [t] Are we blind also? 41. Jesus said unto them, [u] If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.

s Ch. 5. 22, 27. & 12. 47. & 3. 17. Luke 2. 34. 2 Cor. 2. 16. & 4. 3, 4, 6. & 3. 14. ver. 25, 36, 38. Mat. 11. 25. & 13. 13.
t Ver. 28, 34. ch. 7. 48, 49. Rom. 2. 19, 20.
u Ch. 15. 22, 24 Heb. 10. 26. Prov. 26. 12. 42. 19, 20.

Verses 39—41. Whilst Jesus so kindly encouraged and comforted the poor sufferer, he pronounces just judgment on his malicious persecutors.

1. He gives a general account of the design of his mission. Jesus said, For judgment am I come into this world, to fulfil the decree of God; revealing his truth for the illumination of some, and inflicting judicial blindness on others who rejected it: that they which see not, might see, both corporally and spiritually; not only opening, by miracle, the eyes of men's bodies, but by his grace shining into their benighted souls: and that they which see, conceit themselves wise and knowing in the things of God, might be made blind, given up for their pride and self-sufficiency to the blindness, hardness, and impenitence of their own hearts.

2. The Pharisees supposing they were meant, with indignation replied, Are we blind also? Dare you insolently suggest, that we, the guides of the people, and the light of the land, are in darkness ourselves? Note, Nothing more offends the proud and self-righteous, than to call in question their knowledge or goodness: and their passion on such occasions is a fresh proof of the truth of the charge laid against them.

3. Christ answered, If ye were blind, really destitute of the means of knowledge, as the Gentile world, or, deeply sensible of your own native blindness, desired to be led unto me the light of life, ye should have no sin; none comparatively speaking; or you would have submitted to a better wisdom and righteousness than your own, whereby ye might have been justified from all things, and your sins be pardoned: but now ye say, We see; conceited of your knowledge, and puffed up with pride, and therefore your sin remaineth; aggravated by the pretensions you make, and the abuse of the means of grace you have enjoyed. Note, None are so far from divine wisdom, as those who are wise in their own conceits; none so far from real goodness, as those who value themselves on their own excellence. Publicans and harlots shall enter the kingdom of heaven before such as these.

CHAP. X.—ANNO DOMINI, 32.

In this chapter we have, 1. Christ's parabolical discourse concerning himself, as the door of the sheep, and the shepherd of the sheep, ver. 1—18. 2. The various sentiments of the people upon it, ver. 19—21. 3. The dispute Christ had with the Jews in the temple at the feast of dedication, ver. 22—39. 4. His departure into the country thereupon, ver. 40—42.

1. VERILY, verily, I say unto you, [a] He that entereth not by the [b] door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. 2. [c] But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. 3. To him [d] the porter openeth; [e] and the sheep hear his voice: and [f] he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. 4. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, [g] he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him; for [h] they know his voice. 5. And [i] a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers. 6. This parable spake Jesus unto them: [k] but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them. 7. Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [l] I am the door of the sheep. 8. All [m] that ever came before me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not hear them. 9. [n] I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. 10. [o] The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: [p] I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. 11. [q] I am the good shepherd: [r] the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. 12. [s] But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the [t] wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep. 13. The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep. 14. [u] I am the good shepherd, and [x] know my sheep, [y] and am known of mine. 15. [z] As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and [a] I lay down my life for the sheep. 16. [b] And other sheep I have which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd. 17. [c] Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. 18. [d] No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. [e] This commandment have I received of my Father.

a Is. 56. 10—12. Jer. 23. 21, 32. Ezek. xiii. & 34. 2, 10. ver. 10. Heb. 5. 4. Mat. 7. 15 & 23. 1—28. Rom. 10. 15.
b Ver. 2, 7, 9. ch. 14. 6.
c Acts 20. 28. 1 Cor. 12. 28. Eph. 4. 11—13. Heb. 5. 4, 5. Is. 61. 1. & 40. 11. d Is. 11. 2—4. Heb. 2. 4. 1 Pet. 1. 12. 1 Cor. 16. 9.
e Ps. 22. 22. & 40. 9, 10. ch. 6. 37, 45.
f Exod. 33. 12, 17. Phil. 4. 3. 2 Tim. 2. 19. Is. 49. 10. Rev. 7. 17. Rom. 8. 30.
g Mat. 11. 29. & 16. 24. Heb. 13. 12. 1 Pet. 2. 1, 2.
h Song 2. 8. & 5. 2.
i Mat. 7. 15. Prov. 19. 27. Eph. 4. 14. Gal. 1. 8. Col. 1. 23. & 2. 8.
k Ch. 6. 52. & 7. 36. & 8. 27, 43. 1 Cor. 2. 14. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4. Eph. 4. 18. Is. 29. 11, 12.
l Ver. 1, 9. ch. 14. 6. Eph. 2. 18. Heb. 10. 19—22. Ezek. 34. 31.
m Acts 5. 36, 37. Jer. 50. 6. & 23. 1, 32. Ezek. 34. 2. n See ver. 1, 7. Ezek. 34. 14. Ps. 23. 1—6. Is. 40. 11. & 45. 17. Zech. 10. 12. Is. 49. 9, 10. Rom. 5. 1—5. 1 Cor. 5. 22, 23. Col. 3. 11.
o Mat. 7. 15. & 23. 14. 2 Pet. 2. 1. p Mat. 20. 28. & 18. 11. Ezek. 34. 16. ch. 3. 14—18. & 6. 32—58. Rom. 5. 11, 15—21. Heb. 7. 25. Is. 45. 17.
q Ps. 23. 1, 2. Is. 49. 11. Jer. 23. 5, 6. Ezek. 34. 23, 29. & 37. 24. Mic. 5. 4. Heb. 13. 20. 1 Pet. 5. 4. & 2. 25. ver. 14, 16.
r Tit. 2. 14. Mat. 20. 28. Rev. 5. 9. ch. 18. 11. Mat. xxvi, xxvii. ver. 15, 17, 18. Eph. 5. 2. s Zech. 11. 16, 17. Is. 56. 10—12. 2 Tim. 4. 10. 2 Pet. 2. 3.
t Mat. 7. 15. Acts 20. 29. Song 2. 15. 2 Pet. 2. 1.
u Ver. 11. Heb 2. 17. Ezek. 34. 11—16. Ps. xxiii.
x Ver. 27. ch. 13. 18. Ps. 1. 6. Tit. 2. 19.
y Gal. 1. 16. Eph. 1. 17—19. & 3. 17—19. Phil. 3. 8—10. 1 John 5. 20. 1 Pet. 2. 7. & 1. 8. 2 Tim. 1. 12.
z Mat. 11. 27. ch. 1. 18. & 8. 29, 55. & 15. 9, 10.
a Ver. 11. Rom. 5. 6—11. & 8. 3, 4, 32, 33. 1 Thes. 5. 10. 1 Tim. 2. 5, 6. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18. 1 John 2. 2. b Is. 56. 8. & 43. 6. & 11. 10. Ezek. 37. 22. Hos. 1. 11. Zech. 2. 11. & 8. 20, 23. Eph. 2. 14. 1 Pet. 2. 25. c Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. Is. 42. 1, 21. & 55, 10. & 9. 14, 2—12. Acts 3. 15. ch. 2. 19. ver. 11, 15. Heb. 2. 9, 10. d Acts 3. 15. Mat. 20. 28. & 16. 24. & 17. 22, 23. & 20. 18, 19. 27, 28.
e Ps. 40. 6—8. ch. 14. 31. Acts 23. 24. & 4.

Verses 1—18. As the Pharisees and priests arrogated to themselves the dominion over the church, and boasted of their authority, wisdom, and sanctity, as the only true pastors; traducing Jesus as an impostor, because he acted without their ordination; Christ here, in a parable, warns the people against these faithless pastors.

1. He proposes a parable to them, borrowed from a shepherd and his flock, Verily, verily, I say unto you, with deepest solemnity, and most infallible certainty, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber; such a clandestine entry shows the ill design on which he comes. The sheepfold is the church of God, where the faithful are united together in love, and share in the provision of gospel ordinances provided for them: the door is Christ himself, by whom the faithful enter, and who, by his Spirit, calls and qualifies his ministers for their work. The thieves are those who intrude into the ministry without a divine call, influenced by the hopes of the honours and profits of the service, instead of being inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost, and animated by love to Jesus and zeal for immortal souls. But he that entereth in by the door, is the shepherd of the sheep, whom Jesus calls and qualifies for his office; and who, with fidelity and diligence attends, feeds, and watches over, those gracious souls whom the Saviour commits to his care. To him the porter openeth, and the sheep hear his voice: the Spirit of God makes his ministry successful, and opens the hearts of sinners to receive the gospel he preaches; and he calleth his own sheep by name: the Lord knoweth those that are his, and, by his effectual power upon their hearts, calls them to himself by the instrumentality of his under shepherds, who also are personally and particularly acquainted with their own peculiar flocks; and leadeth them out into green pastures of ordinances, and beside the waters of comfort. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them as their shepherd, to protect them from danger, and the sheep follow him, close at his footsteps, imitating his example, for they know his voice; they have a discernment of gospel truth, and approve of, and submit to, his teachings. But a stranger will they not follow, for they know not the voice of strangers; they discover the false principles or bad practices of those who set up for pretended guides, and will not put their souls under their tuition, or be influenced by their examples.

2. The Jews understood not the meaning of his discourse, and therefore Christ more explicitly opens to them his meaning.

(1.) He is the door; the only way of access to God and glory is through him, and none can enter into the ministry but by his call, and under his commission. All that went before, with pretensions to the character of the Messiah and those who, with-but an eye to him, exercised their ministry; or who endeavoured, as the Scribes and Pharisees of that age did, to prejudice the people against the true Messiah's character, all these were thieves and robbers, intruders into the office to which God never called them, and robbing him of his glory: but from their delusive teachings the Lord preserved his own people, so that they were not deceived by them, nor paid regard to the teachings of these false shepherds. But of himself Christ saith, I am the door of access to, and acceptance with, God: by me, through faith in my name, if any man enter in, he shall be saved from sin, from the condemning guilt and enslaving power of it, from the law, and the curse which it pronounces; from Satan, and all the powers of evil; from deceivers, and all their wiles; yea, he shall be saved with an everlasting salvation, and shall go in and out, and shall find pasture, during his journey through life; he shall have free access to the ordinances, possess a glorious liberty in the Spirit, be safe under the Shepherd's constant care, and be fed with the sweetest refreshments which the grace of the gospel ministers. Blessed and happy are they who thus walk under the constant guard and guidance of the divine Redeemer.

(2.) He is the shepherd, the great, the good, the true shepherd.

[1.] The gracious design which he is come upon is quite different from that of the false teachers. They, by their pernicious heresies, steal away the heart of the unwary, prejudice them against the truth, and whilst they promise them life and salvation, really murder their souls; and seek by persecutions to destroy or disperse the flock of Christ, which they cannot deceive; whilst he is come, that his people and the sheep of his pasture may have life, the life of grace here, and of glory hereafter: yea, that they might have it more abundantly, fuller assurance of it than ever they had before; or in a more abundant measure, and with greater glory and advantage than even Adam in innocence possessed.

[2.] The way in which he obtains these privileges for his people, is by his death for them. I am the good shepherd eminently so; and as the greatest instance of it, the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep, as I am ready to do, dying in their stead, to redeem them from sin, death, and hell. And herein Christ's love towards them is in the most convincing manner evidenced. But he that is a hireling, and not the shepherd, who serves for lucre merely, not for the love of souls, whose own the sheep are not, regarding them with none of that affectionate concern which the owner feels; such a one seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep; whenever danger approaches, he deserts his post, and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep, perverting and seducing them. The hireling fleeth, because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep: behold the true character of the false and faithless shepherd. (1.) He is one who serves for hire, and makes the ministry his trade. (2.) He feels no concern about the souls of men; and if he gets the revenues of the church, concerns himself not if the devil runs away with his flock. (3.) He never exposes himself to any danger nor labour in the ministry, only careful about his own safety, and consulting his own ease. The reverse is the character of a good minister; like his Master, his bosom glows with desire after the salvation of men's souls; he is ready to spend and be spent in the service of the ministry; he labours willingly, not for hire but from principle; and no dangers can deter him from his duty, or drive him to desert his post.

[3.] As the good shepherd, he is acquainted intimately with his flock and their concerns, and takes care of them. I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine; Christ knows particularly those that are his; he regards them with tenderest affection; takes cognizance of all their wants, and kindly relieves and supplies them; and he is known by his people as the great object of their faith and hope, the author of their joy and happiness. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father; such intimate knowledge of each other as subsists between the Father and the Son, subsists also between Christ and his people: and I lay down my life for the sheep, to testify his love, and to accomplish the eternal designs of grace towards them. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold, out of the pale of the Jewish church; them also must I bring, according to the eternal decrees of the covenant of grace, from their guilt, misery, and ruin, into a state of favour and acceptance with God; and they shall hear my voice, effectually wrought upon by the mighty and irresistible influences of the Divine Spirit; and there shall be one fold and one shepherd; when all true believers, both Jews and Gentiles, shall be united in one glorious church under their common head, Christ Jesus, and share the same blessings and privileges. Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life; highly well pleased in my undertaking whereby such glory would accrue to him, and salvation, certain and eternal, be obtained for the redeemed: for I lay it down that I might take it again, rising for their justification, and thus effectually triumphing over all their foes. No man taketh it from me, neither force nor fraud avail any thing, till my own time comes; but I lay it down of myself, voluntarily, with my own consent; I have power to lay it down, a right and authority to lay it down as a satisfaction to divine justice; and I have power to take it again; having made the atonement, by my own almighty power I will quicken my dead body, and raise it to eternal life and glory. This commandment have I received of my Father; according to the eternal counsels between them, he had engaged thus to die for his people, and herein he delighted to do the will of God.

19. ¶ [f] There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings. 20. And many of them said, [g] He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him? 21. Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil. [h] Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?

[f] Ch. 9. 16. & 7. 41—43. Mat. 10. 34, 35.
[g] Ch. 7. 20. & 8. 46, 52. Mat. 9. 34. Mark 3. 21.
[h] Exod. 4. 11. Ps. 94. 9. & 146. 8. Is. 35. 5. ch. 9. 6, 7, 32.

Verses 19—21. The discourse of Jesus gave occasion for warm debates among the Jews, whose sentiments were greatly divided concerning them.

1. Many, who were his enemies, cried out, He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him? Can you be so weak and deluded, as to attend to such absurd and blasphemous nonsense? Thus doth the world often scoff at the serious discourses of Christ's faithful ministers, and ridicule and revile those who pay attention to their preaching: but we should neither be threatened nor laughed out of our religion.

2. Others entertained very different sentiments, and said very sensibly, These are not the words of him that hath a devil; the nature of his doctrine, and his manner of speaking, savour nothing of insanity; nor can possibly tend to advance, but to destroy Satan's kingdom. Besides, Can a devil open the eyes of the blind? Can a madman, or much less a bad man, under diabolical influence, perform such a miracle? The supposition is absurd and incredible. It evidently appeared that this was the finger of God.

22. ¶ And it was at Jerusalem the * feast of the dedication, and it was winter. 23. And Jesus walked in the temple in [i] Solomon's porch. 24. Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou [k] make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly. 25. Jesus answered them, [l] I

* Which Judas Maccabeus instituted.
[i] Acts 3. 11. & 5. 12. Built where he had built one, and called by his name.
[k] Or hold us in suspense, Ch. 16. 29. Mat. 11. 3.
[l] Ch. 5. 17—43. & 6. 27—64. & 8. 12, 24, 58.

told you, and ye believed not: [m] the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me. 26. [n] But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you. 27. [o] My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: 28. [p] And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand. 29. My Father, [q] which gave them me, is greater than all; and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand. 30. [r] I and my Father are one. 31. ¶ [s] Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him. 32. Jesus answered them, [t] Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; [u] for which of those works do ye stone me? 33. The Jews answered him, saying, [x] For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God. 34. Jesus answered them, [y] Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods? 35. If he called them gods [z] unto whom the word of God came, (and [a] the scripture cannot be broken,) 36. Say ye of him, whom [b] the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, [c] I am the Son of God? 37. [d] If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not. 38. But if I do, though ye believe not me, [e] believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him.

m Ch. 5. 36. & 14. 10, 11. ver. 32, 38. Mat. 11. 5. Acts 10. 38.
n Ch. 8. 47. & 12. 37—40. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4. Rom. 11. 7, 8. ch. 6. 44, 65. Acts 13. 48. 1 John 4. 6.
o Ver. 4, 14. 2 Tim. 2. 19. ch. 9. 37, 44, 45. Acts 13. 48. Mat. 19. 24. Heb. 12. 1, 2. p Ver. 9, 10. ch. 11. 25. Rom. 6. 21. & 5. 21. Col. 3. 3, 4. Jude 1. ch. 6. 37. & 17. 2, 11, 12. & 18. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 5. Mat. 16. 18, 27. Deut. 33. 3. Ps. 125. 1, 2. Is. 45. 17. & 26. 1—4. & 46. 3, 4.
q Ch. 14. 28. & 17. 6. & 6. 37. Mat. 11. 27.
r 1 John 5. 7. ch. 14. 9, 10. & 17. 11, 22. ver. 38. Mat. 28. 19.
s Ch. 5. 18. & 8. 59. Luke 4. 29.
t Mat. 11. 5. ch. 5. 17, 18, 36. Luke 24. 19. Acts 10. 38. u Ps. 109. 4. Eccl. 4. 4.
x Lev. 24. 16. ch. 5. 18. ver. 30.
y Ps. 82. 6. Exod. 2. 28.
z Deut. 17. 15. Exod. 7. 2. Rom. 13. 1. a Num. 23. 19. Mat. 5. 18. Luke 16. 17. Tit. 1. 2. b Ch. 6. 27. & 3. 17. & 6. 57. Is. 42. 1. & 49. 1—3, 6, 8. & 48. 16. & 61. 1—3. & 11. 2—5. Gal. 4. 4. c Ch. 5. 17, 18. Luke 1. 35. Ps. 2. 7, 12. Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. ch. 1. 14, 34, 49. & 3. 16—18. ver. 30.
d Ch. 15. 24. & 5. 31.
e Mat. 2. 11. ch. 5. 36. & 14. 10, 11. & 15. 24. & 17. 21, 22. ver. 25, 30, 32.

Verses 22—38. We have here another discourse between Jesus and the Jews. We have,

1. The time and place. It was the feast of dedication, observed in remembrance of the renovation of the temple service, when Judas Maccabæus dedicated the new altar, and cleansed the temple which Antiochus had profaned, which was in the winter, in the month of December. And therefore Christ walked under cover, in a placed called Solomon's porch; a magnificent building, which, standing on the same ground where Solomon's porch formerly stood, continued to bear that name.

2. Hither the Jews came to him; and surrounding him, in order to pick a quarrel with him, they urged him to tell them plainly and boldly; and leave them no longer in suspense by his figurative and dark expressions, whether he were the Christ or not.

3. Christ knew their malicious designs, and therefore answered them, I told you, in terms sufficiently plain, if you chose to understand them, and ye believed not, and were determined not to believe: it was vain, therefore, to add farther assertion, and he chose to refer them to the miracles which abundantly proved his mission; the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me. But ye believe not, obstinate in your infidelity, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you; their temper and dispositions plainly showed they were not, and Christ knew they were not of those whom the Father had given him, whose character and conduct he describes. My sheep hear my voice, with attention, discernment, and spiritual delight, and I know them, take cognizance of them, and distinguish them with my peculiar favour and regard; and they follow me in the ways of truth and righteousness, obedient to my word, and imitating my example. And I give unto them eternal life; they have a present sure title thereto, experience the beginnings of it here, and shall be put into the full possession of it after death; and they shall never perish; no wiles of Satan, craft of men, no power of corruption, shall be able finally and fatally to prevail against them and separate them from the love and protection of me their shepherd: neither shall any pluck them out of my hand, whatever efforts the devil, the world, and the flesh may make to destroy them. My Father which gave them me is greater than all their foes, and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand; they must be safe when omnipotence is their guard. I and my Father are one, in nature, essence, and perfections, and our power, wisdom, and truth, are engaged for the preservation of the redeemed flock. Note, (1.) Eternal life is wholly the gift of God through Jesus Christ. (2.) They whom Christ will save, can never perish. O that we had faith to trust him!

4. The Jews, fired with rage, could no longer refrain, but took up stones to stone him as a blasphemer.

5. Jesus mildly expostulated with them on their baseness, saying, Many good works have I showed you from my Father; works of such benevolence and wonder, as evidenced his mission divine: for which of those works do you stone me? how horrid is your ingratitude! how base your returns! Note, (1.) Nothing aggravates our sins against God, so much as our vile ingratitude. (2.) If we meet with the most ungrateful returns from those on whom we had conferred the greatest obligations, we may not think it strange: Jesus was so treated before us.

6. The Jews attempt to vindicate their conduct, saying, For a good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God; for, in this light they interpreted his claim of unity with the Father, and his assuming the incommunicable attributes of the Deity. Note, Pretended zeal for God's honour hath been the pretext which persecutors have often used to cover the most violent outrages against his most faithful servants.

7. Christ proves he had the fullest right to those divine honours which he claimed. Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods? Psalm lxxxii. 6. If he called them gods, who as magistrates were the types of the King Messiah, and unto whom the word of God came; entrusted by him with the government of the Jewish church and nation; and the scripture cannot be broken, but must receive its accomplishment in that Messiah, who really possesses divine honour and authority, and is entitled to that high name which they bore as his representatives; say ye then of whom the Father hath sanctified, and set apart before the worlds were, and in the fulness of time sent into the world, Thou blasphemest, because I said, I am the Son of God? But besides the scripture testimony, I appeal to my miracles. If I do not the works of my Father, as great as might be expected from him, and by my own power as God; if these do not speak my divine character, and that I am entitled to the honour I claim as the Son of God, believe me not; I am content to be rejected by you; but if I do works so great, and in such a manner, as declare my divine power and Godhead, though ye believe not me, on my own word and assertions, believe the works, those unexceptionable evidences, that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him; we being one in nature and essence, having the most intimate union and communion in the same undivided Godhead.

39. ¶ [f] Therefore they sought again to take him: but he escaped out of their

f Ver. 31. ch. 5. 16, 18. & 8. 59. & 7. 30, 44. Luke 4. 29, 30.

hand, 40. And [g] went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode. 41. [h] And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man were true. 42. [i] And many believed on him there.

[g] Mat. 10. 23. ch. 1. 28. & 7. 1. & 11. 54.
[h] Mark 1. 45. Mat. 4. 23—25. Luke 5. 1. ch. 3. 30. Gen. 49. 10. Ps. 72. 17—19. & 22. 30.
[i] Ch. 2. 23. & 4. 39, 41. & 8. 30. & 11. 45. & 12. 42.

Verses 39—42. Far from appeasing their fury, Christ by maintaining his right to the essential glories of Divinity, exasperated them to the highest pitch. Whereupon,

1. They sought again to take him; concluding they had now full evidence against him to convict him as a blasphemer, and get him legally condemned by the Sanhedrim, and put to death.

2. As the time for Christ's suffering was not yet come, he escaped out of their hand; either holding their arms by an invisible power from seizing him, or their eyes from seeing him.

3. He retired beyond Jordan, into the place where John at first baptized: and there he abode, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and gathering probably some fruit from the seed, which John had sown there about two or three years before.

4. Multitudes resorted to him there, drawn by his preaching and miracles: and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man were true. He appears with that transcendent greatness and glory, in which John spoke of him. And many believed on him there, as the true Messiah. Note, (1.) Though persecutors drive the ministers of Christ from one place, God will take care to send them where he hath greater work for them to do. (2.) Jesus will be peculiarly welcome with his gospel to those, whose hearts, by the sharp convictions of the law, as by the austere Baptist's ministry, are broken with a humbling sense of sin.

CHAP. XI.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

Here is, 1. The tidings sent to our Lord Jesus of the sickness of Lazarus, and his entertainment of those tidings, ver. 1—15. 2. The visit he made to Lazarus' relations when he had heard of his death, and their entertainment of the visit, ver. 17—32. 3. The miracle wrought in the raising of Lazarus from the dead, ver. 33—44. 4. The effect wrought by this miracle upon others, ver. 45—57.

1. NOW a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of [a] Bethany, the town of [b] Mary and her sister Martha. 2. ([c] It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.) 3. Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, [d] he whom thou lovest is sick. 4. When Jesus heard that, he said, [e] This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby. 5. Now [f] Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus. 6. When he had heard therefore that he was sick, [g] he abode two days still in the same place where he was. 7. Then after that saith he to his disciples, [h] Let us go into Judea again. 8. His disciples say unto him, Master, [i] the Jews of late sought to stone thee; and goest thou thither again? 9. Jesus answered, [k] Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world. 10. [l] But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.* 11. These things said he: and after that he saith unto them, [m] Our friend Lazarus [n] sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep. 12. Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, † he shall do well. 13. Howbeit, Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep. 14. [o] Then said Jesus unto them [o] plainly, [p] Lazarus is dead. 15. And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent [p] ye may believe; nevertheless, let us go unto him. 16. Then said [q] Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellow-disciples, [r] Let us also go, that we may die with him.

[a] Mat. 21. 1. Mark 11. 1. ch. 12. 1.
[b] Luke 10. 38—42.
[c] Ch. 12. 3. Mat. 26. 6, 7. Mark 14. 3. Luke 7. 37, 38.
[d] Ch. 13. 23. Ps. 16. 3. Heb. 12. 6. Mark 10. 21.
[e] Or, will not prove fatal. Mark 5. 39. ch. 9. 3. ver. 15, 40. 2 Cor. 12. 9.
[f] See ver. 3.
[g] Hos. 6. 2. Deut. 32. 36. Gen. 22. 14. Is. 30. 18. with ch. 10. 40.
[h] Acts 20. 22—24. & 21. 13.
[i] Ch. 10. 31, 39 Mat. 16. 21, 22. Acts 21. 12.
[k] Ch. 9. 4. Luke 13. 32, 33. There is no danger of death till my work be finished.
[l] Ch. 9. 4. & 12. 35. Ps. 104. 22, 23. When my work is finished I cannot escape death.
* Rather, in it.
[m] Is. 41. 8. Jam. 2. 23. ch. 15. 9, 14, 15. 2 Chr. 20. 7.
[n] Mat. 9. 24. ver. 13. Acts 7. 60. & 13. 36. 1 Thes. 4. 14, 15.
† It is a token that he is past danger.
[o] Ch. 10. 24. & 16. 25.
[p] Ver. 4. ch. 9. 3. & 2. 11. & 4. 48. & 5. 36. & 10. 38. & 14. 10, 11.
[q] Mat. 10. 3. Mark 3. 18. Luke 6. 15. ch. 20. 24—29. & 21. 2.
[r] Ver. 8. Mat. 26. 35. Let us risk our lives along with our Master, and die as well as Lazarus.

Verses 1—16. The miracle contained in this chapter is recorded by this evangelist alone. We have,

1. The persons particularly interested. Lazarus, a particular friend of Christ's, who was now sick at Bethany, a little village near Jerusalem, where he had lived with Mary and her sister Martha; at whose house Jesus seems to have chiefly resided, when he went up to Jerusalem on the great festivals. Mary, whose brother was ill, was a woman of singular piety, which particularly appeared in the respect she paid our Lord some time after this, chap. xii. 3. when at a public entertainment she anointed his feet with a box of precious ointment, and wiped them with her hair. Note, Christ keeps a faithful account, and will not fail to make honourable mention of all the works of faith and labours of love done for his sake by his faithful people.

2. The sisters, anxious for their brother, who was so dear to them, despatched a messenger to acquaint their Lord and Master of his imminent danger: knowing it would be enough to mention the case to him, since he who was sick was a person he loved so tenderly. Note, (1.) When we ourselves, or our dear relatives are sick, we must spread the case before the compassionate Saviour, and commit it with humble submission to his care. (2.) They are happy souls indeed, who are distinguished as the disciples whom Jesus eminently loves. (3.) The dearest children of God share in the common afflictions incident to humanity; yea, often are most severely exercised.

3. Christ foretold the issue of the sickness, that it should not be unto death; at least that death should not keep him as his prisoner, but that the glory of God should be most eminently displayed in his recovery, for which end this sickness was sent. Note, (1.) It is a great consolation to every child of God, that in all his sufferings, God hath purposes of his own glory to answer. (2.) Though we are sick, even unto death, we know if Jesus loves us, that the perishing of the outward man can do us no real harm, but will open for our disembodied souls a passage to eternal life and blessedness.

4. He defers his visit to Lazarus two days, though his love to him and the family was well known, and very singular; and this he did to prove their faith and patience, and give them a more singular manifestation of his power and grace. Note, Christ's very delays, however irksome and trying to us, are designed in the issue for our greater comfort and his greater glory.

5. When the two days were expired, Christ calls upon his disciples to attend them to Bethany, designing to carry relief to the afflicted family there. But they expostulate with him on the danger to which he must expose himself by such a journey, when so lately the Jews had attempted to murder him, and still harboured the same malicious intentions: but perhaps this concern for his safety was not without some regard to their own also, who were so nearly connected with him; for very apt are we to mix selfish considerations where we seem to mean only our divine Master's honour and interests. In reply to their suggestions, he answers, Are there not twelve hours in the day, according to general estimation, allotted for labour? if any man walk in the day he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of the world, that sun which gilds his path, and makes his way plain before his face. Thus whilst the time of life appointed by the Father, lasts, I fear no danger, and go forward in my work; but if a man walk in the night he stumbleth, because there is no light in him. So when my day of work expires, then, and not till then, shall I be suffered to fall into the hand of my foes. Note, (1.) The consideration how soon the night of death approaches, should quicken our diligence, whilst yet the day of life continues, to redeem the time, and finish the work Christ hath given us to do. (2.) They who walk under the guidance of the word and Spirit of Jesus, go on their way unmoved; whilst they who follow any other guide are sure to stumble upon the dark mountains of error, and fall into the pit of destruction.

6. He informs them of the death of their common friend Lazarus, and his design to raise him up again to life, which he represents under the figure of sleep. Our friend Lazarus sleepeth, but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep. The disciples understanding him literally, thought this a favourable symptom, and that he would do well without their Master's going into the jaws of danger. But as he spoke of his death under this figure, and not of common rest, as they apprehended, he rectified their mistake by plainly telling them, Lazarus is dead; and adds, I am glad, for your sakes, that I was not there before he died, to the intent ye may believe, when by his resurrection from the grave, after so long a time, your faith may receive the greater confirmation. Nevertheless, though he is dead, let us go unto him. Note, (1.) Sleep is death's lesser mysteries; and every day that we awake from our beds, we experience a kind of resurrection. (2.) The great restorative to weak and wearied nature is soft repose: but no sleep is so sweet to the body, as the sleep of death to the gracious soul, from which he awakes in eternal day.

7. Thomas, called Didymus, or the twin, on hearing what Jesus had said, and his resolution to go into Judea, said to his fellow-disciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him; either with Lazarus, whom he loved so much as not to wish to survive him, or rather with their Master; who, by going, seemed to expose his life to inevitable danger; and he, zealous to attend him, offers himself, and encourages his brethren to cleave to him wherever he went, though death itself should be the consequence. Note, (1.) The loss of those on whom our fond affections were placed, often embitters life, and makes death appear desirable. (2.) To go to join the spirits of just men made perfect, is indeed a consummation devoutly to be wished for. (3.) Faithful disciples will be intimidated by no danger from following their Master, and encouraging each other to stand fast in the day of trial.

17. Then, when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already. 18. Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, † about fifteen furlongs off. 19. And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, [a] to comfort them concerning their brother. 20. Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: [t] but Mary sat still in the house. 21. Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, [u] if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. 22. But I know, that even now, [u] whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee. 23. Jesus saith unto her, [x] Thy brother shall rise again. 24. Martha saith unto him, [y] I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. 25. Jesus said unto her, [z] I am the resurrection and the life: [a] he that believeth on me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: 26. [b] And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. [c] Believest thou this? 27. She saith unto him, [d] Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world.* 28. And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, [e] The Master is come, and calleth for thee. 29. [f] As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him. 30. Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him. 31. The Jews then which were with her in the house, and [g] comforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up hastily and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave to weep there. 32. Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, [h] she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, [i] Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

† That is, near two miles.

[a] Gen. 37. 35. Job 2. 11. Rom. 12. 15. 1 Thes. 5. 14. & 4. 18. Eccl. 7. 2.

[t] 2 Kin. 5. 11. ch. 4. 47, 49. Mat. 9. 18.

[u] Ver. 41, 42. ch. 9. 30, 31. ver. 43, 44. Mat. 9. 25, 26.

[x] Luke 14. 14. ch. 5. 29. 1 Thes. 4. 14. Is. 26. 19. Dan. 12. 2.

[y] Acts 23. 8. & 25. 15.

[z] That is, I am the author of the resurrection and life. 1 Cor. 15. 22, 45. ch. 6. 39, 44. & 14. 6. & 1. 4. & 5. 21, 25.

[a] Job 19. 26, 27. Rom. 8. 11. 1 Cor. xv. Phil. 3. 11, 21.

[b] Rev. 20. 6. ch. 3. 15—18, 36. & 8. 51, 52. & 10. 28, 29. & 6. 35—38. 1 John 5. 10—12.

[c] Ch. 16. 31. & 9. 35. Luke 8. 25. Mark 9. 23.

[d] Mat. 16. 16. ch. 1. 49. & 6. 14, 69. & 4. 42. & 9. 38. Acts 8. 37.

* Or, Thou art the Messiah, the Son of God, he who cometh into the world.

[e] Mat. 23. 8—10. & 26. 18. ch. 13. 13. & 20. 16. Mark 5. 35. & 9. 5. & 10. 17. Eccl. 9. 10.

[f] Ps. 119. 59, 60. Prov. 27. 1.

[g] See ver. 13.

[h] Luke 7. 38. & 10. 39. Ps. 45. 11. Mat. 2. 11. Mark 5. 33. Luke 5. 8.

[i] Ver. 21. Mat. 9. 18. ch. 4. 47, 49. 2 Kin. 5. 11.

Verses 17—32. Jesus having declared his purpose, began his journey with his disciples; and arrived at Bethany, which was distant from Jerusalem about two miles.

1. He found a melancholy scene. The house, where with joy he had lately been entertained, is drowned in tears; such awful changes do we often see after the shortest absence from our friends. Lazarus had lain in the grave four days already, and many of the Jews from Jerusalem, which was near, had come to console the afflicted sisters. Note, (1.) It is kind to weep with those that weep; and, by partaking, to alleviate the sorrows of the miserable. (2.) When we lose our dearest relatives, if they fall asleep in Jesus, we have abundant reason to be comforted concerning our brother; his lot is to be envied; our tears should rather flow for ourselves left yet behind, to conflict with the powers of evil. (3.) The house of most distinguished piety is not barred against affliction; but though we sorrow as men, we can rejoice as believers. There is hope in the end.

2. Martha no sooner heard of the Master's approach, than she went to meet him; whilst Mary, who had not yet heard of his arrival, sat still in the house. We are here told what passed at this first interview.

[1.] Martha with deep respect addressing the Saviour, said, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died; so confident was she of his power and compassion, though her weakness appeared in supposing his bodily presence necessary to the cure. But I know that even now, desperate as the case is, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee; she mentioned no particulars, but meekly referred the case to his grace and wisdom. Note, In our deepest sorrows, our only relief is to draw near to Jesus, to tell him our griefs, and cast our care upon him.

[2.] Christ answers her with good words, and comfortable words. Thy brother shall rise again. He expresses it so as to leave it doubtful, whether he meant a present or future resurrection: in either view it administered matter for her faith, and hope, and consolation. Note, It is a most reviving consideration when death robs us of our brethren in Jesus, that the separation is but short; we shall meet them again at the resurrection of the just.

[3.] Martha professes her faith in what her Lord had spoken. I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day; that there should be a resurrection she was persuaded, and that Lazarus would rise among the just; but though this was some consolation, her loss hung heavy upon her.

[4.] Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; not only by his prayer could he obtain life from God for whom he would, but he had the power of life in himself, and at his own pleasure could raise the dead, and call the things that are not, as though they were. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; his body, as well as soul, shall live in the eternal world; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, quickened to spiritual life, and walking now by faith, shall never die; shall never lose the life of grace he possesses, which is the beginning of the life of glory; and though this body may return to the dust, from whence it came, yet shall it be raised again, and be made immortal as his never-dying soul. Believest thou this? A solemn question which we should often put to ourselves. The resurrection of the body is to sense improbable, impossible; but faith overlooks every difficulty. He who raised us from the dust at first, can again re-assemble the scattered atoms, and bring bone to his bone. Note, (1.) Christ is the author of natural life; in him we live, and move, and have our being: of spiritual life; by his power and his Spirit we are quickened from the death of sin: of eternal life; as he hath procured the title for us, and by him we shall be raised up at the last day. (2.) They who have this faith in them, are truly blessed and happy; they live in comfort, and die in hope.

[5.] Martha said unto him, Yea, Lord, I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world; the true Messiah so long promised, so greatly expected; and that thou hast all power to do whatsoever thou pleasest, and that nothing is impossible with thee. Note, They who know the Saviour's all-sufficiency, may comfortably and confidently rest all their hopes upon him.

3. Mary comes to meet the Lord. Martha, in haste to communicate the glad news, and to make her sister partaker of the blessings of his converse, goes and secretly whispers to her that Jesus the Master was come, and wished to see her. Eager to meet him, she hastily arose, and came to him without the town where he had halted, as nearer the grave where his business lay. The Jews, who came to condole with her, observing her sudden departure, concluded she was gone to the grave to weep, and followed her. But Mary had now found her Lord, and at his feet poured out with tears her sorrowful complaint, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. Note, (1.) Gracious souls delight to be instrumental in bringing others to Jesus, to partake of his consolations. (2.) Christ is a better comforter than ten thousand friends: at his feet under all our sorrows let us be found, and he will calm our troubled breasts. (3.) It is kind to visit the house of mourning, and seek to divert from inordinate sorrow the afflicted, who often study how to sharpen and aggravate their own griefs. (4.) We are often apt to torment and grieve ourselves unnecessarily with apprehensions that something was neglected or overlooked, that might have been done for our departed friends, instead of submitting to the divine decree with silent resignation.

33. When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, [k] he groaned in the spirit, and [*] was troubled, 34. And said, Where have ye laid him? They say unto him, Lord, come and see. 35. [l] Jesus wept. 36. Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him! 37. And some of them said, Could not this man, [m] which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died? 38. Jesus therefore again [n] groaning in himself, cometh to the grave. [o] It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it. [†] 39. Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, [p] by this time he stinketh; for he hath been dead four days. 40. Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, [q] that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God? 41. Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, [r] I thank thee that thou hast heard me. 42. And I knew [s] that thou hearest me always: but [t] because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. 43. And when he had thus spoken, he cried with a loud voice, [u] Lazarus, come forth. 44. And he that was dead came forth, [x] bound hand and foot with grave clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

k Heb. 2. 17. & 4. 15. Mark 3. 5.

* Gr. he troubled himself.

l Luke 19. 41. Is. 53. 3. Heb. 2. 17, 18. & 4. 15. Rom. 12. 15. On account of the afflicting circumstances, and at the unbelief of the spectators.

m Ch. 9. 6.

n Heb. 5. 7. ver. 41. Rom. 8. 26. Ps. 6. 6.

o Gen. 23. 19, 20. Mat. 27. 60.

† Or, and shut up with a stone.

p Ver. 17. Gen. 22. 14. Deut. 32. 36.

q Ver. 25, 26, 34. 2 Chr. 20. 20. Mark 9. 23. Rom. 4. 6, 17—20. with Mat. 13. 58. Luke 1. 20, 45.

r Mat. 11. 25. Luke 10. 21. Phil. 4. 6.

s Mat. 3. 17. ch. 8. 29. Heb. 5. 7. & 7. 25.

t Ver. 31, 45. ch. 12. 30. & 2. 11. & 20. 31. & 10. 38. & 14. 11.

u Luke 7. 14. & 8. 54. Acts 9. 40. Rom. 4. 17. Ps. 33. 9.

x With ch. 20. 5. He was to return to death after some time.

Verses 33—44. We have here,

1. The compassion of Jesus. He felt for the anguish which appeared in the tears so plentifully shed; he groaned in the spirit, and was troubled; either sympathizing with Mary and her friends in their grief, or, as the words seem in their signification to intimate, with indignation at the unbelief and hardness of heart which he saw in many of the Jews there present; and knowing his own designs of grace, he asked, Where have ye laid him? Not that he could be unacquainted with any event, but that it might appear there was no contrivance between him and the relations of the deceased; They say unto him, Lord, come and see; and being come to the place, he, whose tender heart felt deeply for human misery, and as man possessed the tenderest feelings of our nature, gave vent to his grief; Jesus wept. Note, (1.) Jesus was very man as well as very God, and subject to all our sinless passions and infirmities. (2.) Tears of tender sympathy become the disciples of Jesus, who are commanded to weep with those that weep.

2. The reflections made by those present on the tears of Jesus. Some said, and the observation was most natural, Behold how he loved him! Others, with more malignant insinuations, suggest, Could not this man which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died? Intimating, that had he really possessed the power he pretended, he would have kept his friend from death; but as he could not do this, it was to be suspected that what had passed for so extraordinary a miracle before, was really a mere sham. Note, (1.) If we consider what Jesus hath done, how he hath shed not only tears, but drops of blood for us, with much more reason may we say, Behold how he loveth us! (2.) They who determine to cavil, will always find a pretence.

3. Jesus, groaning in spirit at the malice and wickedness of such a suggestion, cometh to the grave; which, according to their usual method of burying the dead, was a cave, with a stone laid on its mouth. This he bids them remove, that all might be convinced of Lazarus' death, by the putrefaction of the corpse. Martha, concluding from the time he had lain in the grave, that the body must be very offensive, and thinking it too late to hope for his revival, would have diverted Jesus from his purpose, but he said unto her, Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God, displayed in a more eminent manner than hath yet appeared? And herein he probably refers to something which he had said in the former conversation with her, which is not recorded by the evangelist. Note, (1.) Nothing serves more deeply to mortify our pride in any bodily excellences, than the reflection how awful will be the change, when we have lain but a few days in the grave. (2.) If we have true faith, we shall surely see the great salvation of God, whatever difficulties may seem to be in our way.

4. The grave being opened, and the corpse discovered, Jesus lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me; not as imploring assistance for the performing the miracle of Lazarus' resurrection, which by his own power he would accomplish, but as thanking him for the present opportunity afforded him, for the display of his divine power and authority. And I knew that thou hearest me always, because my will and thine are one: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they might believe that thou hast sent me, and be assured of my being the true Messiah by this stupendous miracle, which will add still greater evidence to my mission. Note, (1.) In our approaches to God, we should draw near to him as the Father of mercies, with full confidence in his faithfulness, power, and love. (2.) Thanksgivings for past mercies are an encouragement to the present exercise of our faith. (3.) Christ is an all-prevailing advocate; his prayers for us are always heard; therefore we may boldly draw near to a throne of grace.

5. By a word the miracle is wrought. With the voice of majesty, as the Lord of life, he speaks aloud, Lazarus, come forth; and instantly, obedient to his command, death surrenders his prisoner: by omnipotent power the corpse is raised, Lazarus comes forth alive, enveloped with all the swathings, and the napkin round his face, as he was laid in the grave. Jesus bids them loose him, and let him go; being perfectly restored to health and strength, he was as able as ever to walk to his own house. Note, (1.) Such is the mighty call of Jesus to the soul dead in trespasses and sin; and power accompanies his gospel, by which the dead are quickened to newness of life. (2.) The change in a resurrection day will be thus instantaneous, in the twinkling of an eye, 1 Cor. xv. 52.

45. [y] Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him. 46. [z] But some of them went their ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done. 47. ¶ [a] Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, [b] What do we? for this man doeth many miracles. 48. If we let him thus alone, [c] all men will believe on him: [d] and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation. 49. And one of them named [e] Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, [f] Ye know nothing at all, 50. Nor consider that [g] it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. 51. And this spake he not of himself: but being high priest that year, he prophesied that [h] Jesus should die for that nation; 52. And not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad. 53. [i] Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death. 54. [k] Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called [l] Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples. 55. ¶ [k] [m] And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, [n] to purify themselves. 56. [o] Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast? 57. [p] Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

[y] Ch. 2. 23. & 4. 39, 41. & 8. 30. & 10. 42. & 12. 11, 43.
[z] Ch. 5. 15. Acts 5. 25. 1 Sam. 29, 10.
[a] Ps. 2. 1—4. Mat. 26. 3. Mark 14. 1. Acts 4. 6, 27.
[b] Ch. 12. 19. Acts 4. 16.
[c] Gen. 49. 10. Is. 9. 6, 7. & 11. 10. & 42. 6, 7. & 49. 6.
[d] Dan. 9. 26, 27. Deut. 28. 51—68. Mat. 22. 7. Luke 19. 27, 42—44. & 21. 20, 24.
[e] Luke 3. 2. ch. 18. 14. Acts 4. 6.
[f] Ch. 7. 48, 49. Or, ye are utterly at a loss. They were in perplexity; they knew not what to resolve on.
[g] Ver. 48. ch. 19. 12. & 18. 14. He meant that they had better murder Christ, than provoke the Romans against them all.
[h] Mat. 20. 28. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18. Rev. 5. 9. 1 John 2. 2. Gal. 3. 13, 28. ch. 10. 15, 16. Eph. 2. 13—22. & 3. 6—9. Is. 49. 6.
[i] Ps. 2. 1—4. & 22. 12, 16. & 31. 13.
[k] Ch. 4. 1—3. & 7. 1, 10. & 10. 40.
[l] 2 Chr. 13. 19.
[m] Exod. 12. 6. & 23. 14—17. & 34. 23. Deut. 16. 1. Lev. 23. 5.
[n] Gen. 35. 2. Exod. 19. 10. 2 Chr. 30. 15, 18. Num. 9. 6.
[o] Ch. 7. 11, 12.
[p] Ch. 5. 16, 18. & 8. 59. & 10. 31, 32. Ps. 109. 4. ver. 12, 16, 22.

Verses 45—57. This miracle produced very different effects upon the spectators.

1. Many of the Jews there present, who had come to console the sorrowful sisters, struck with the evidence of the divine power of Jesus, believed in him as the Messiah. Thus their kindness to the afflicted was repaid with the best of spiritual blessings upon their own souls.

2. Others, obstinate in infidelity, and exasperated, instead of being convinced by what they had seen, went with malicious wickedness to the Pharisees, who were members of the Sanhedrim, and informed them what was done, that they might take measures to suppress the increasing fame of Jesus.

3. A council is instantly summoned, in order to deliberate on some more vigorous methods to stop this man. Being assembled, they said, What do we? How dilatory are our proceedings?

How long shall we see ourselves run down, and our interests in the people usurped? for this man doeth many miracles, which could not be denied; and if we let him thus alone to root himself in the people's affections, all men will believe in him as the Messiah, and set him up as king: the consequence of which will be, that the Romans will come to crush such a rebellion, and take away both our place and nation. This they dreadfully apprehended; and by the very methods they took to prevent it, filled up the measure of their iniquities, and brought that very destruction which they feared upon their own heads. Note, (1.) The enemies of Christ have often pretended zeal for the public good, as a pretence to persecute the public's best friends. (2.) They who, under the influence of carnal policy, by wicked methods think to extricate themselves from their difficulties, only pull down the more surely that ruin which they seek to shun.

4. Caiaphas, the high priest that year (this dignity and office under the Roman government having become venal, and the persons being often changed,) a man of a Sadducean spirit, Acts v. 17. unconcerned about a judgment to come, with daring effrontery and haughtiness said, Ye know nothing at all, to sit thus debating and deliberating; nor consider that it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not: when matters are come to such a crisis, there can be no ground to hesitate about proceeding, nor need we enter into the inquiry whether he be a prophet or no; the case is desperate, and requires a desperate remedy: better is it, though he were innocent, to destroy him, than endanger, by a foolish lenity, the safety of the nation. Note, (1.) When secular interest, court favour, bribery, and corruption, exalt men to the highest offices in the church, no marvel if the chief rulers are arch-persecutors. (2.) Reason and justice stand in little stead, where power is in the hand of oppressors.

5. The evangelist informs us, that Caiaphas spoke not this of himself; but being high priest that year, whose words would be looked upon as oracular, God so ordered it that he should express his sentiments in such a way, as that, though he designed the most malignant and murderous counsel, he declared the most important and glorious truth, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation, as the Messiah, to redeem his people: and not for that nation only, to save the elect remnant, Rom. xi. 3. of the Jewish people, but that also he should gather in one the children of God that were scattered abroad; even those of the Gentiles also, wherever dispersed, as well as Jews, who were predestinated to the adoption of children by Christ Jesus, Eph. i. 5. and designed to become one fold under one shepherd.

6. Caiaphas' discourse determined the council, and from that day forward, with resolute purpose, they took council to put Jesus to death, and thought only on the properest means to execute their design.

7. Christ, who knew this combination against him, and the determination of his implacable enemies, withdrew, and walked no more openly among the Jews; retiring to a city called Ephraim, in the least frequented part of the country, where he spent his time in conversation with his disciples. The hour of his departure approaching, this season was most usefully employed in teaching them the things which pertained to the kingdom of God.

8. The last passover which our Lord was to celebrate on earth, now drew nigh; and multitudes, according to custom, resorted to Jerusalem, to purify themselves from any ceremonial uncleanness which they had contracted, before the feast began, that they might be legally prepared to partake of it. Many inquiries were then made concerning Jesus, by those who met together in the temple; it being a question much agitated among them, whether he would venture to come up to the feast or not? For the chief priests had issued strict orders, that if any man knew where he was he should show it, that they might arrest him, and put him to death. And this made some doubt, whether such an open declaration of their intentions might not intimidate him, whilst others would have been glad to have had an opportunity of delivering him up to his implacable enemies. Note, When rulers are wicked, they never want instruments to execute their iniquitous purposes.

CHAP. XII.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter we are told, 1. How Mary anointed the feet of Jesus at Bethany, ver. 1—8. 2. The consultation of the chief priests to kill him and Lazarus, whom the people flocked to see, ver. 9—11. 3. He enters Jerusalem in triumph, ver. 12—19. 4. The Greeks desire to see him, ver. 20—22. 5. He foretells his death, ver. 23—33. 6. He solemnly warns the Jews, ver. 34—36. 7. They in general persist in their infidelity, though some of the rulers believed, but durst not own him, ver. 37—43. 8. He asserts his divine mission, ver. 44—50.

1. THEN [a] Jesus, six days before the passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead. 2. [b] There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him. 3. Then took [c] Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment. 4. [d] Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him, 5. Why was not this ointment sold for * three hundred pence, and given to the poor? 6. [e] This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein. 7. [f] Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my [g] burying hath she kept this. 8. For [h] the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always. 9. ¶ [i] Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead. 10. [k] But the chief priests consulted † that they might put Lazarus also to death; 11. [l] Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

[a] Mark 14. 3—9. Mat. 26. 6—13. ch. 11. 1—45.
[b] Luke 10. 38—41. ch. 11. 1, 5, 19—28, 39—44.
[c] Ch. 11. 2, 28, 32. Luke 10. 39, 42. Mat. 26. 7. Mark 14. 3. with Luke 7. 37, 38.
[d] Mat. 26. 8, 9. Mark 14. 4, 5. Eccl. 4. 4. Job 5. 2. 1 Thes. 2. 5. Ps. 55. 21.
* Nine pounds six shillings.
[e] Ps. 12. 2. & 55. 21. Prov. 26. 25.
[f] Ps. 109. 31. Zech. 3. 2. Gen. 3. 4.
[g] Mat 26. 12. & 27. 57—60. Mark 14. 8. & 15. 42—47. Luke 24. 50—56. ch. 19. 38—42. Is. 53. 9.
[h] Deut. 15. 11. Mat. 26. 11. Mark 14. 7.
[i] Ch. 11. 44, 45. Mark 1. 45. Acts 17. 21.
[k] Ch. 11. 47—53, 57. Prov. 1. 16. & 4. 16.
† Determined; literally, had resolved.
[l] Ch. 16. 18, 20, 24, 25. Acts 13. 45. Eccl. 4. 4. Mark 15. 10. & 11. 18. ch. 2. 23. & 11. 45.

Verses 1—11. We have here,

1. The visit of Jesus to Bethany. He came there six days before the passover, and took up his lodgings with Lazarus, a person now uncommonly distinguished, as having been dead, and miraculously restored to life by his power. He knew the danger to which he exposed himself; but his hour approached, and therefore he offered himself a willing sacrifice, as the true paschal Lamb, who should be sacrificed for us.

2. Lazarus and his sisters gave him a most welcome reception, and in honour of their guest made a great supper: and Martha, to do honour to her heavenly visitant, waited herself upon him, whilst Lazarus sat at the table with him, a living monument of his power and grace.

3. During the entertainment, Mary, to testify her deep respect for her divine Lord and Master, came with a pound of very costly spikenard, and anointed his feet, wiping them with her hair; and the odour of the ointment filled the house: expressing hereby her faith, love, and deep humility, receiving him as the anointed Messiah, and paying her dutiful homage to him. Note, No fragrance of the sweetest perfume can adequately represent that sweet savour of Christ, and of the graces of his Spirit, which fill the believer's soul with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

4. Judas, in heart a traitor, but yet in profession ranked among the apostles, pretending charity for the poor, testified indignation at this act of respect shown to his Master, as if it had been an unnecessary piece of waste: not indeed that this divine grace of charity ever glowed in his false bosom, but because he was a thief; and being intrusted with the common purse, he had purloined part of the money which was put into it, and applied it to his own use, and hoped if this ointment had been sold, and the money brought into their joint stock, some part of it might be easily secreted. Note, (1.) Hypocrites, when they make the most zealous profession, really dislike that serious godliness they discover in others; and their worldly mindedness in trifles shows how ready they will be to apostatize, the moment a greater temptation besets them. (2.) Satan transforms himself often into an angel of light, and gilds with specious names and pretences the vilest purposes. Thus worldly wisdom is called rational prudence; and covetousness wears the mark of zeal against others' extravagance. (3.) The love of money is usually most fatal to the soul. They who are fond of the bag, will not long be faithful to their Lord.

5. Christ vindicates what Mary did from the ill construction which Judas had put upon it. Jesus said, Let her alone; neither blame nor trouble her: against the day of my burial hath she kept this; so divine providence ordered it, that, though she knew not his approaching death, she thus should embalm him when alive, because she would have no opportunity to perform that kind office when he was dead. Besides, he adds, the poor always ye have with you; such objects would never be wanting whereon to exercise their charity; but me ye have not always; and therefore during the short moment of his stay with them, they could not be too sedulous to show him every token of respect and honour. Note, Opportunities to serve Christ are precious, and must be embraced without delay.

6. Multitudes of people from Jerusalem flocked to Bethany, in order to gratify their curiosity with a sight of Jesus, concerning whom they had heard so much; and also to see Lazarus, who had been raised from the dead, the fame of which miracle had been greatly spread.

7. The chief priests, far from being affected with such an instance of Christ's power, not only persisted in their bloody purpose to murder him, but also consulted to put Lazarus to death, being filled with rage and envy, that many of the Jews, struck with the evidence of this miracle, had deserted their party and joined themselves to Jesus, professing their faith in him as the Messiah. Note, (1.) They who are most eminently distinguished with God's favour, are the objects against whom wicked men level their most malignant enmity. (2.) The stronger the evidence is, the more exasperated do they grow who obstinately resolve not to be convinced.

12. ¶ [m] On the next day, much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was come to Jerusalem,

[m] Mat. 21. 8—11. Mark 11. 8—10. Luke 19. 36—38.

13. Took branches of palm-trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, [n] Hosanna: blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord. 14. And Jesus, when he had found a young ass, sat thereon; as it is written, 15. [o] Fear not, daughter of Zion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt. 16. [p] These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was [q] glorified, then [r] remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him. 17. [s] The people therefore, that was with him when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record. 18. [t] For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle. 19. The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, [u] Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing?* behold, the world is gone after him.

[n] Ps. 118. 25, 26. & 72. 17—19. 1 Tim. 1. 17. Rev. 6. 9. Mat. 23. 39. & 21. 1—7. Mark 11. 1—7. Luke 19. 29—35.

[o] Zech. 9. 9. Is. 62. 11. Mat. 21. 5. with Deut. 17. 16.

[p] Luke 9. 45. & 2. 50. & 18. 34. & 24. 25, 45.

[q] Ch. 7. 39. & 17. 5. & 13. 31. Mark 16. 19. Heb. 1. 3. & 4. 15. & 8. 1.

[r] Ch. 14. 26. & 2. 22.

[s] Ch. 11. 31, 45, 46. Is. 43. 10. Ps. 105. 2. & 145. 6, 7.

[t] Ver. 9, 12.

[u] Ch. 11. 47. & 3. 26. Eccl. 4. 4. Prov. 27. 4. Job 5. 2. Mat. 27. 18. & 21. 15. Luke 19. 47, 48.

* Ye have no influence.

Verses 12—19. The triumphal entry of our Lord into Jerusalem is recorded by all the evangelists.

1. A vast crowd, with loudest acclamations and every expression of joy attended him. A great multitude, who were come to the feast when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, from Bethany, went forth to meet him, and welcome his arrival, with palm-branches in their hands, the emblem of that victory which Jesus was shortly to obtain over sin and Satan, the issue of which conflict was already sure: and with loud hosannas they cried, Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord. They acknowledge Jesus as the King Messiah, so long expected to sit on David's throne; they wish him all prosperity, success, and happiness; and hail the glad day of his appearing. Note, With great joy doth the sinner welcome the Saviour to the throne of his heart, and wishes him to set up his throne there for ever and ever.

2. He made his entry, not with the pomp of earthly majesty, but, as better suited to his state of humiliation, on an ass's colt; that thus also he might fulfil the Scripture, which had said, Fear not, daughter of Zion: behold thy King cometh, to save thee from all thy spiritual foes, sitting on an ass's colt, that humble supplicants may be emboldened to approach him, and present their petitions. These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, and from his throne on high had sent his Spirit into their hearts, to open their understandings, that they might understand the Scripture, then remembered they that these things were written of him; and that, though at the time they had no thoughts about the fulfilment of the Scripture, they had done these things unto him, which had been foretold. Note, (1.) Christ is Zion's King, and he must reign till he hath put all his enemies and hers under his feet. (2.) The Scriptures are often fulfilled by those who at the time have not the least intention so to do. (3.) Many times the Scriptures are read without the least knowledge of their true meaning; but, when God opens the understanding, the Bible then becomes a book perfectly new, and treasures of wisdom are discovered in it which were utterly unknown before.

3. The reason of so great a multitude coming to usher Jesus into Jerusalem at this time was, that many of those who beheld the miracle of Lazarus' resurrection declared what they had seen: and such an astonishing work, attested by so many and credible eye-witnesses, could not but procure general admiration.

4. The Pharisees beheld with the utmost rage and vexation, the increasing respect paid to Jesus; and said one to another, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? instead of crushing him, all our attempts are baffled, and his rising fame threatens utterly to supplant us in the esteem of the people: behold, the world is gone after him; the generality of our followers have forsaken us, and commenced his disciples. It is high time to put some stop to these proceedings, or the grievance will be past redress. Note, (1.) They who oppose Christ, in vain lift up their impotent arm: against his church and kingdom no powers of earth or hell shall be able finally to prevail. (2.) Obstinate sinners grow more resolute and determined in sin, by the very checks which God gives them, and madly rush on the thick bosses of his buckler.

x 1 Kin. 8. 41. Gen. 9. 27. Acts 2. 10. & 17. 4. & 8. 27. i. e. Gentile proselytes.
y Ch. 1. 44, 45. & 6. 5, 8. & 14. 8, 9.
z Mat. 11. 8. Luke 23. 8. Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. & 43. 6. & 49. 12. & 66. 19. a Ch. 13. 1. & 31. 32. & 17. 1, 5. Is. 52. 13. & 53. 10—12. b Heb. 2. 10. Is. 4. 2. & 52. 14, 15. & 53. 2—12. Mat. 20. 28. 1 John 2. 1, 2. & 3. 8. & 4. 14. Rev. 5. 9. with 1 Cor. 15. 36.
c Mat. 10. 37—39. & 16. 25. & 19. 29. Mark 8. 35. Luke 9. 24. & 17. 33. & 18. 29, 30. Phil. 3. 7—10. d Mat. 11. 29, 30. & 16. 24. & 10. 38. Mark 8. 34. Luke 9. 23. & 14. 27. Heb. 12. 1, 2. e Ch. 14. 3. & 17. 24. 1 Thes. 4. 17. Phil. 1. 23. 2 Cor. 5. 8.
f 1 Sam. 2. 30. ch. 14. 21, 23. 2 Tim. 4. 8.

20. ¶ [x] And there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast: 21. The same came therefore to [y] Philip, which was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, [z] we would see Jesus. 22. Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip tell Jesus. 23. ¶ And Jesus answered them, saying, [a] The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified. 24. Verily, verily, I say unto you, [b] Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. 25. [c] He that loveth his life shall lose it: and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal. 26. [d] If any man serve me, let him follow me; and [e] where I am, there shall also my servant be: [f] if any man serve me, him will my Father honour.

Verses 20—26. Christ's fame had been spread far and wide. We have here,

1. The inquiry of some Greeks after him. They seem to have been devout men, proselytes from among the Gentiles, who came up to Jerusalem to worship: and, having heard so much of Jesus, were greatly desirous to see and converse with him: for which purpose they applied to Philip, with whom, probably, they might formerly have had some acquaintance. Note, (1.) They who have a real desire after Christ will seek him, and beg advice and assistance from those who are his ministering servants. It is good to know those that know the Saviour. (2.) The awakened sinner desires to see Jesus, his fulness of grace and all-sufficiency to save, to obtain an interest in his regard, and be admitted to communion with him.

2. Philip first consulted his brother Andrew, whether it was proper to mention the request of Gentiles to their Master; and, being agreed on the point, they informed Jesus of the matter. Note, In doubtful cases it is wisdom to consult a faithful friend.

3. Christ took occasion, from this application to him, to discourse on the glorious issue of his undertaking, when Jews and Gentiles by the power of his Spirit should be converted unto him. The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified; when, being lifted up on the cross, and exalted to the throne of his glory, he should draw all men unto him, and be honoured in the salvation of sinners from every nation, without distinction. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. So, he intimates, he must die, and be laid in the earth, that having thereby made the atonement, and brought in an everlasting righteousness, he might, in his resurrection, become the root and author of spiritual life to innumerable multitudes of his redeemed people, who should be raised by him from the death of sin unto the life of righteousness, and bring forth abundant fruits of grace, the glory of which would be ascribed to him alone. And as those whom he died to save, would, for his sake, when called and converted unto him, be exposed to the greatest sufferings, he suggests the most powerful arguments to engage their fidelity. He that loveth his life, and for fear of losing a temporal being, or the advantages of this world, deserts the cause of Jesus; shall lose it, and perish everlastingly: and he that hateth his life in this world, sitting loose to its honours, ease, and interests, when they stand in competition with Christ, and ready, if need be, to seal his testimony with his blood; he shall keep it unto life eternal, and be made for ever happy with God in glory. So that, if any man serve me, let him follow me, my example, the teachings of my word and Spirit, and the directions of my providence; and then, whatever difficulties, dangers, or sufferings he may be exposed to, where I am, there shall also my servant be, inheriting the same glory to which I shall be advanced; if any man serve me, in simplicity and godly sincerity; him will my Father honour, seating him on his own right hand, and causing him to sit down on my throne, as I am set down with the Father on his throne. Note, (1.) They who would faithfully follow Christ must prepare for sufferings. (2.) When we by faith look to and realize the glories of the world above, we cannot but sit loose to every thing here below. (3.) If Christ be our master, and our affections are placed upon him, where he is we shall shortly be. (4.) However dishonoured we may be by a world which lieth in wickedness, we shall find the most abundant recompense in the honour which cometh from God only.

27. [g] Now is my soul troubled: and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour. 28. [h] Father, glorify thy name. [i] Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I [k] have both glorified it, and will [l] glorify it again. 29. The people therefore, that stood by and heard it, said that it thundered: others said, An angel spake to him. 30. Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, [m] but for your sakes. 31. [n] Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out. 32. And I, if I be [o] lifted up from the earth, [p] will draw [q] all men unto me. 33. (This he said, signifying what death he should die.) 34. The people answered him, We have heard out of the law [r] that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The son of man must be lifted up? [s] who is this Son of man? 35. Then Jesus said unto them, [t] Yet a little while is the g Mat. 26. 37—39, 42. Mark 14. 33—36. Luke 12. 50. ch. 13. 21. Heb. 5. 7. Mat. 20. 28. Luke 22. 23.

h Ch. 18. 11. & 21. 19. Luke 2. 14. Heb. 2. 10.
i Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 17.
k Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. ch. 2. 11. & 9. 3. & 11. 4.
l Heb. 2. 10. Eph. 2. 20—22. & 3. 21. 1 Pet. 4. 11. Is. 49. 3. ch. 13. 31, 32.
m Ch. 11. 42.
n Ch. 5. 22, 27. & 14. 30. & 16. 11. 1 John 3. 8. Heb. 2. 14. Col. 2. 14, 15. Acts 26. 18. Eph. 2. 1, 2. & 6. 12. Mat. 12. 29. Luke 10. 18. Is. 49. 25.
o Ch. 3. 14. & 8. 28. Mat. 27. 26, 35, 40, 42. Gal. 6. 14.
p Song 1. 4. Jer. 31. 3. Hos. 11. 4. ch. 6. 44.
q Rom. 5. 18, 19. Heb. 2. 9, 10. Gal. 3. 28. Rev. 5. 9. Is. 11. 10. & 49. 6.
r 2 Sam. 7. 13. Ps. 89. 4. & 110. 4. Is. 9. 6, 7. Ezek. 37. 25. Dan. 2. 4. & 7. 14, 27. Mic. 4. 7. s Mat. 21. 10, 11. ch. 8. 53. & 1. 14. & 3. 16.
t Ch. 7. 33. & 16. 16. ver. 46. Is. 42. 6, 7. ch. 1. 5, 9. & 8. 12. & 9. 5.

u Ver. 36. Ps. 2. 12 2 Cor. 6. 1, 2. Jer. 13. 16. Zech. 10. 12. 1s. 2. 5. Eph. 5. 8, 14.
x Ps. 69. 22—28. & 21. 8—12.
y Eph. 4. 18. & 5. 9. 2 Cor. 3. 14, 15. Rom. 11. 7, 8. ch. 11. 10. z Heb. 4. 1. Eph. 5. 14. ch. 8. 16—20, 30. a Eph. 5. 8. 1 Thes. 5. 8. Luke 16. 8. 1 John 2. 9, 10. b Mat. 21. 17. ch. 8. 49. & 11. 54. Mat. 10. 23.

light with you. [u] Walk while ye have the light, lest [x] darkness come upon you: for [y] he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. 36. [z] While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be [a] the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and [b] departed, and did hide himself from them.

Verses 27—36. We have here,

1. The address of Jesus to his heavenly Father. Now is my soul troubled, with the prospect of his approaching sufferings, from which the humanity shrunk back; and what shall I say, in his distress? Father, save me from this hour; shall I desire to be excused the pains and death which I foresee? No; but for this cause came I unto this hour, according to the eternal counsels being appointed in the stead of sinners to bear their sins and carry their sorrows; and therefore he desired not to be saved from the sufferings to which he had consented, but to be supported under them, Father, glorify thy name, and by my death display, in the most eminent manner, the glory of thy justice, faithfulness, mercy, and every divine perfection. Note, (1.) The remembrance of the distress of the Redeemer's soul should be a relief to us when our spirits are troubled. He gave his soul an offering for sin, that he might take away the bitterness of it from ours. (2.) Though now for a little moment we feel distress, the time is near when every trouble shall end in everlasting joy. (3.) When we are under difficulties we must fly to God, humbly resign ourselves to his will, and beg for strength to glorify him in the fires.

2. The Father answers him by a voice from heaven. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, in the incarnation, obedience, miracles, and doctrine of Jesus; and will glorify it again, by his death, resurrection, and ascension.

3. The people who stood by heard, with astonishment, the voice; some more confusedly, who said it thundered, others more distinctly, who said that an angel spoke to him, either ignorantly or wilfully mistaking the glorious testimony.

4. Christ declares to them the meaning of what they heard. This voice came not because of me, for my satisfaction merely; but for your sakes, that you, my disciples, might be encouraged by this testimony borne to my divine mission. Now is the judgment of this world; the hour is near when the Jewish nation shall receive their doom, and a blessed change be wrought in the heathen world, when God shall separate the precious from the vile, and gather his chosen people to himself, the power of sin and Satan being broken: for now shall the prince of this world be cast out: the devil's usurped dominion over the souls of men shall be destroyed, his oracles in the heathen world be silenced, and at last his kingdom shall be finally rooted up: and this by a method which to human view may appear the most unlikely. I, if I be, or when I am, lifted up from the earth, on the cross as a sacrifice for sin, will draw all men unto me, Gentiles as well as Jews, who should be made partakers of all the inestimable blessings of his blood-shedding, and drawn to him by the irresistible cords of his dying love. (This he said, signifying what death he should die, even by crucifixion.) Note, (1.) Satan is now a vanquished foe; since Christ hath died, the head of this old serpent is bruised. (2.) Christ is the glorious centre of unity, the banner under which his redeemed with delight are gathered, and, cleaving to him in faith and love, are made more than conquerors by him over all their enemies. (3.) The cross of Christ is the powerfully attractive object, and therein all the glories of redeeming love are most eminently displayed, which effectually constrain the sinner's soul.

5. The people, hearing him speak of himself as about to be lifted up and die, object this as a confutation of the character which he assumed as the Messiah, because the Scriptures spoke of his continuing a king and priest for ever, Ps. cx. 4. lxxxix. 29. but they overlooked what the same Scriptures had said concerning his sufferings, and would not attend to the repeated notices which Christ had given of his rising again, and thus entering into his glory, which made his sufferings not at all inconsistent with his everlasting dominion: therefore they insultingly ask, Who is this Son of man? As if he himself could not possibly be the person of whom Daniel prophesied, since he acknowledged he must be lifted up and die. Note, They cannot but err, who take one part or text of Scripture, without considering its connection and relation with the rest. Thus many pervert the very life-giving truths of God, and make them a savour of death.

6. As Christ saw the ill spirit and temper that raised these cavils, he declines a direct answer to their question, and rather chooses to reply by warning them of their danger, if they neglected the present opportunity vouchsafed unto them. Then said Jesus unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you; either meaning himself, the Sun of Righteousness, now about to set in blood; or the gospel, which should for a season be continued among them: walk while ye have the light, make use of your day of grace; lest darkness come upon you, as it certainly will if you neglect the present salvation; you will then be given up to judicial blindness, the light of the gospel will be removed, and you will be left, as a man benighted, to stumble and fall into eternal misery: for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth, not apprized of the precipice which is before him, and the ruin which approaches. While, therefore, ye have the light, of my presence and gospel, believe in the light, receive me as the Messiah, and walk under the influence of my word; that ye may be the children of light, the children of grace on earth, of glory in heaven, admitted to the inheritance of the saints in light. Note, (1.) Nothing is more conducive to awaken the conscience, than the remembrance of the momentariness of our time, and the infinite importance of that eternity which depends upon our improvement of it. The day of life is short, the day of grace may be much shorter. To-day, therefore, whilst it is called to-day, harden not your hearts. (2.) They who are favoured with the light of the gospel, are under peculiar obligations to know and improve the day of their visitation. (3.) Christ is the light of a benighted world, and out of him there is nothing but blackness of darkness. They who know him not, nor the rich salvation which his blood and righteousness have obtained for us, are walking in the darkness of error and sin, and hastening into that eternal darkness where there is weeping and wailing, and gnashing of teeth. (4.) They only are children of the light who walk in the light as Christ also walked, habitually looking to him for direction, and desiring to follow his example.

Lastly, Christ, having finished this discourse, withdrew, and hid himself from them. He knew their wicked designs to apprehend him, and therefore, as his hour was not yet come, he concealed himself, probably at Bethany; abandoning them also hereby to their impenitence and unbelief. Wo to the sinner from whom Jesus finally departs, and leaves him to his own heart. His ruin is inevitable.

37. ¶ But though he had done so [c] many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him: 38. That the [d] saying of Esaias the prophet might be [e] fulfilled, which he spake, Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath [e] the arm of the Lord been revealed? 39. [f] Therefore they could not

c Ch. 1. 11. Mat. 11. 20. & 21. 14, 15. & 23. 37.
d Is. 53. 1. Rom. 10. 16.
e 1 Cor. 1. 24. Rom. 1. 16. Ps. 110. 2. 1 Thes. 1. 5. & 2. 13. Eph. 2. 17—20.
f 2 Thes. 2. 11. Rom. 1. 24, 28. & 11. 7, 8. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4.

believe, because that Esaias said again,
40. [g] He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them. 41. These things said Esaias, [h] when he saw his glory, and spake of him. 42. ¶ Nevertheless, [i] among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but [k] because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue:
43. [l] For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

[g] Is. 6. 5, 10. & 29. 10, 11. Mat. 13. 13—15. Mark 4. 11, 12. Luke 8. 10. Acts 28. 26, 27. Rom. 11. 8. Jer. 5. 21. Ezek. 12. 2. Is. 44. 18. & 42. 19, 20.

[h] Is. 6. 1—5.

[i] Ch. 2. 23. & 8. 30. & 10. 42. & 11. 45.

[k] Ch. 3. 2. & 9. 22. & 19. 38. & 7. 13. & 16. 2.

[l] Ch. 5. 44. Mat. 16. 2, 3. Luke 16. 15. with 1 Thes. 2. 4—6. Gal. 1. 10.

Verses 37—43. The miracles and preaching of the Lord Jesus were, we find, ineffectual to the conversion of the Jewish people.

1. Though he had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him. In general their hearts were obstinately hardened, and they could not bear to think of acknowledging one who appeared so mean and poor as their Messiah, concerning whom they had formed such high expectations.

2. Herein the prophecy of Isaiah was eminently fulfilled, Lord, who hath believed our report? the declaration made by Jesus and his ministers; and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed? how few have been effectually wrought upon by the power of the Spirit, and brought to the obedience of faith? Therefore they could not believe; they were under, not a fatal necessity, but a moral impotency; God had determined to leave them to the hardness and impenitency of their hearts, and had predicted their infidelity and destruction; which prophecy therefore now received its accomplishment, because that Esaias said again, Isa. vi. 9, 10, He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their hearts, giving them up to follow their own devices, and punishing them with the curse of impenitence: that they should not see with their eyes, nor hear with their ears, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them: they would not, and therefore they shall not. He abandons them to their wickedness, and they awfully fulfil the prophetic word. Note, (1.) God's spiritual judgments are a great deep. We know he is righteous, and will be found just when he judgeth. (2.) They cannot believe to whom the arm of the Lord is not revealed: for our minds are darkness, till God shines into us, to give us the light of the knowledge of his glory in the face of Jesus Christ. (3.) The Scripture must be fulfilled; and they cannot but perish whom God abandons to their own hearts' lusts.

3. The evangelist shows that the prophecy he had quoted looked farther than the times of Isaiah, even to the days of the Messiah, when the prophet saw his glory and spoke of it. The place referred to is Isa. vi. 1—10. and contains one of the most glorious visions of the eternal Jehovah in the whole book of Scripture, and the strongest and clearest proof of the proper and essential divinity of Jesus our Lord.

4. Though, in general, Christ was rejected by the Jewish people, Nevertheless, among the chief rulers also many believed on him, convinced in their consciences that he was the Messiah; but, because of the Pharisees, they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue; the Sanhedrim, his inveterate enemies, having thus determined; and, unwilling to take up this reproach of Christ, they were ashamed to own what they felt; for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God. Note, (1.) Many approve in their hearts the truths and practices, which the fear of man and the reproach of the world deter them from professing and following. (2.) They who are ashamed of Christ, and his gospel, may justly expect to be disowned by him in the great day of his appearing.

44. ¶ [m] Jesus cried, and said, [n] He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me. 45. [o] And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me. 46. [p] I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness. 47. And [q] if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him [r] not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. 48. [s] He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: [t] the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day. 49. [u] For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say, and what I should speak. 50. And I know that [x] his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

[m] Ch. 7. 37. Prov. 1. 20—23. & 8. 1—4.

[n] Mark 9. 37. 1 Pet. 1. 21. Mat. 10. 40. & ch. 13. 20.

[o] Ch. 14. 9, 10. 2 Cor. 4. 9. Col. 1. 15. Heb. 1. 3.

[p] Ch. 1. 5, 9. & 3. 19. & 9. 5, 39. & 12. ver. 35, 36.

[q] Ver. 48. Mat. 26. Luke 7. 30. Is. 53. 1.

[r] Not yet. Ch. 5. 45. & 8. 15, 16, 26. & 3. 17. Mark 16. 16. 1 Tim. 1. 15. Mat. 18. 11. & 20. 28. Luke 9. 56. & 19. 10. 2 Pet. 3. 9, 15.

[s] Deut. 18. 19. Heb. 2. 3. & 10. 29, 31. Luke 10. 16.

[t] Mark 16. 16. Rom. 2. 16. 2 Thes. 1. 8, 9. Rev. 20. 12.

[u] Ch. 3. 3, 11, 32. & 5. 20. & 8. 26, 38. & 14. 10. & 15. 15. & 7. 16. Deut. 18. 18.

[x] Ch. 6. 63. & 17. 3. & 20. 31. 1 John 2. 25. Ps. 19. 11. Is. 3. 10.

Verses 44—50. Jesus takes his last farewell of them, and leaves his finishing testimony, with earnestness addressing to them his discourse, if so be that at last, in this their day, they might know the things which made for their everlasting peace, before they should be for ever hid from their eyes.

1. He shows the excellence of faith. Jesus cried and said, He that believeth on me as the Messiah, the true and only Saviour of lost souls, believeth not on me only, or ultimately, but on him that sent me. And he that seeth me, by faith in my true character as God, as well as man, and in my office as commissioned from my Father, seeth him that sent me, from whom as Mediator I derive my authority, and whose glory and perfections are manifested in and by me: for I am come a light into the world, from heaven, where I shone eternally bright in uncreated glory, that whosoever believeth on me as the Author of eternal salvation, and bringing life and immortality to light by the gospel, expecting to receive from me direction and guidance in the way to glory; should not abide in darkness in the ways of error and sin, or go down into eternal darkness. Note, They who walk by faith in Jesus have the light of life before them, and can never finally or fatally err.

2. He warns them of the great peril of unbelief. If any man hear my words and believe not, wilfully rejecting the incontestable evidences of my divine mission; I judge him not, do not yet pass sentence upon him, but give him a longer respite: for I came not to judge the world, to take vengeance upon sinners; but to save the world, to bring to all in general, Gentiles as well as Jews, the glad tidings of a free and full salvation. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, making light of the gospel and despising its offers, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day, and rise up to witness against his obstinate infidelity and hardened impenitence. Note, (1.) The great end of Christ's coming into the world was the salvation of lost souls. They who reject him sin against their own mercies. (2.) In a judgment day, nothing will rise up to aggravate more fearfully the guilt of those that perish, than all the means of grace which they have abused and the word of the gospel preached to them, which they have slighted.

3. He declares the authority on which he acted. For I have not spoken of myself, as a private person, on my own authority; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak, under whose commission I act, and from whom I have received my instructions; and I know that his commandment is life everlasting, the doctrines, which from him I declare unto you, are the only means of leading sinners to eternal blessedness; whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak, and acting under his authority, and declaring his will, it would be at their peril if they rejected the truths which from God he delivered unto them. Note, (1.) They who would obtain everlasting life must attend to the word of Jesus. There, and only there, is it to be found. (2.) They who reject the gospel do it at their peril. Their ruin is inevitable.

CHAP. XIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

Having finished his public discourses, our Saviour improves the time in private with his disciples. In this chapter, 1. He washeth his disciples' feet, ver. 1—17. 2. He foretells who should betray him, ver. 18—30. 3. He instructs them in the great doctrine of his own death, and the great duty of brotherly love, ver. 31—35. 4. He foretells Peter's denying of him, ver. 36—38.

1. NOW [a] before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that [b] his hour was come, that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, [c] having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end. 2. And [d] supper being ended; ([e] the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;) 3. Jesus, knowing that [f] the Father had given all things into his hands, and that [g] he was come from God, and went to God; 4. [h] He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments, and took a towel, and girded himself. 5. After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to [i] wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. 6. Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter said unto him, Lord, [k] dost thou wash my feet? 7. Jesus answered and said unto him, [l] What I do thou knowest not now: but thou shalt know hereafter. 8. Peter saith unto him, [m] Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, [n] If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. 9. Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, [o] not my feet only, but also my hands and my head. 10. Jesus saith to him, He that is [p] washed needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and [q] ye are clean, but not all. 11. For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean. 12. So, after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, [r] Know ye what I have done to you? 13. [s] Ye call me Master and Lord: * and ye say well; for so I am. 14. [t] If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. 15. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. 16. [u] Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him. 17. [x] If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

[a] Mat. 26. 2. Mark 14. 1. Luke 22. 1.
[b] Ch. 7. 30. & 8. 20. & 12. 23. & 17. 1. Luke 22. 53.
[c] 2 Tim. 2. 19 ch. 17. 10—12. & 15. 13. Rom. 8. 29. Jer. 31. 3.
[d] Ver. 4, 26.
[e] Ver. 27. ch. 6. 70. Luke 22. 3. Acts 5. 3. Eph. 6. 16.
[f] Mat. 11. 27. & 28. 18. ch. 3. 35. & 5. 22, 27. & 17. 2. Heb. 1. 2. & 2. 8. Acts 2. 36. Ps. 89. 27. Eph. 2. 22.
[g] Ch. 1. 18. & 3. 13, 16. & 8. 14, 21, 42. & 7. 29, 33. & 10. 10, 18. & 14. 2. & 16. 27, 28. & 17. 4, 8, 11, 13. Ps. 110. 1.
[h] Luke 17. 8. & 12. 37. & 22. 27.
[i] 1 Sam. 25. 41. 1 Tim. 5. 10. ver. 14, 15, 16. Mat. 11. 29. with ver. 8, 10. Eph. 5. 26, 27. 1 John 1. 7. Rev. 1. 5.
[k] Luke 5. 8. Mat. 3. 14.
[l] Ver. 12. ch. 14. 26. & 12. 16.
[m] Luke 5. 8. Mat. 16. 22. & 26. 33, 35. Col. 2. 18, 23.
[n] Ch. 3. 3, 5. 1 Cor. 6. 11. Eph. 5. 26. Tit. 3. 5. Heb. 10. 22. Mat. 3. 11. Acts 1. 5. Ezek. 36. 25.
[o] Ps. 51. 2—7.
[p] 1 Thes. 5. 23. ch. 15. 3. & 17. 17. Acts 15. 9. Num. 23 21. Song 4. 7. Jer. 50. 20. 2 Cor. 5. 17, 21. Phil. 2. 15.
[q] Ch. 6. 64, 70, 71. & 17. 12. ver. 18, 21, 26.
[r] Mat. 13. 51. & 16. 9.
[s] Mat. 23. 8, 10. Luke 6. 46. 1 Cor. 8. 6. & 12. 3. Phil. 2. 11.
* Or, ye call me the Teacher, and the Master.
[t] Mat. 11. 29. Rom. 12. 10. Phil. 2. 3, 5. 1 Pet. 5. 5. Luke 22. 26, 27. 2 Cor. 8. 9. & 10. 1. Eph. 5. 2. 1 Pet. 2. 21. Gal. 5. 1, 2.
[u] Mat. 10. 24. Luke 6. 40. ch. 15. 20.
[x] Mat. 7. 21, 24. Rom. 2. 13. Jam. 1. 21—25. & 4. 17. Luke 12. 47, 48.

Verses 1—17. This transaction is supposed by some to have passed two days before the passover, during the supper at Simon's house in Bethany; though others imagine it was done at the paschal supper itself.

1. Christ in deepest humility condescends to wash his disciples' feet, to testify his love towards them, and set them an example. When he knew that his hour was come, that he should depart out of this world to the Father, by his death, resurrection, and ascension; having loved his own which were in the world, with an everlasting love, he loved them unto the end, unchangeable in his regards, and purposing to bring them to a state of everlasting happiness with himself. And, as an instance of his love, supper being ended, or, it being supper-time, (the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him,) Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, all power in heaven and in earth; and that he was come from God, and went to God; notwithstanding the transcendent glory which he possessed in consequence thereof, yet to make his humiliation more illustrious, and his love appear more astonishing, he riseth from supper, and laid aside his upper garments, and, as a servant, took a towel and girded himself, tucked it round his waist. After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. Note, (1.) Christ hath a peculiar people in this world, whom he distinguishes from all others with special marks of his love and regard, for whose sake he came into the world, and whom he will love to eternity, perfecting their salvation, and bringing them to be with him to enjoy him for ever and ever. (2.) The devil's wiles are fatally prevalent: even an apostle becomes his prey. Who need not then tremble for himself? (3.) Whilst the amazing humility of Jesus raises our highest admiration, we should learn to imitate his bright example and count nothing beneath us which may tend to God's glory, or the good of immortal souls.

2. We have the conversation which passed between Christ and Peter on this occasion. After having washed the feet of others he came to Peter, who, amazed at such condescension, could not bear to see his Master in so servile an office, and saith, Lord, dost thou, the God of glory, the divine Messiah, wash my feet, a vile sinner as I am? Jesus answered and said, What I do, thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter, be made acquainted with my purpose and design in this matter. Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet: he was shocked at the thought of his Master's degrading himself so low, and thought he never would consent that he should perform so mean a service to so worthless a creature as he felt himself to be. Jesus answered him, if I wash thee not, if thou art not spiritually washed from thy sins by my blood, and cleansed by my Spirit, which is signified by this washing of water, thou hast no part in me, no communion with me, no interest in me. Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head; convinced of his error, and desiring nothing so much as his favour, and communion with him, and sensible how polluted he was throughout, he longs to be thoroughly purged from corruption, and to be washed all over. Jesus saith to him, He that is washed, justified, and sanctified, needeth not, save to wash his feet by daily application to the same fountain of my blood, to cleanse him from the remaining corruption that cleaves to him, and the guilt daily contracted in this polluted world; and will not be hereby cast out of my favour; but is clean every whit, regarded as complete in me, and habitually freed from the dominion of sin: and ye are clean in this sense, but not all, not every individual of you. For he knew who should betray him, therefore he said, Ye are not all clean, Judas the traitor being of their number. Note, (1.) The condescensions of Jesus cannot but be the astonishment of the enlightened soul. (2.) Though God's dispensations appear dark and intricate, it becomes us never to object; we know not now, but we shall know hereafter, the reasons of his procedure. (3.) None have a part in Christ who are not cleansed by his heavenly washing. We cannot partake of his glory, if we are not first made partakers of his grace, washed by his blood, and cleansed by his Spirit. (4.) It is good not to be peremptory in our resolves, as we may see cause to change our minds. (5.) They who have tasted the grace of God in truth, desire the perfect sanctification of their hearts and lives. (6.) We need not only once to come to Jesus for pardon and grace, but every day to renew the exercise of faith and repentance. (7.) Christ tries the hearts of his professing people, and knows who are hypocrites, and who are disciples indeed.

3. Christ explains to them the meaning of what he had done. Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye ought also to wash one another's feet, condescending to every office of kindness towards the meanest disciple. And to reconcile them to duties so self-denying, he adds, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his Lord, neither he that is sent, greater than he that sent him. With such an example therefore before them, they need not think the lowest offices of charity a disparagement to them. If ye know these things, and understand my meaning, happy are ye if ye do them, and in your spirit and practice conform to my precepts and pattern. Note, (1.) Jesus is our Lord and Master; his teaching we must observe, his commands obey. (2.) A faithful disciple of Jesus studies how to serve his brethren, and is ready to condescend to the lowest in every work of faith and labour of love. (3.) Christ hath set us an example that we should follow his steps; what he enjoins on us he hath practised first himself. (4.) Knowledge is good, but practice is the life of religion. They are doubly criminal who know better and do worse.

18. ¶ I speak not of you all; [y] I know whom I have chosen: but, that the scripture may be fulfilled, [z] He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me. 19. [*] Now [a] I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he. 20. [b] Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. 21. When Jesus had thus said, [c] he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, [d] Verily, verily, I say unto you that one of you shall betray me. 22. [e] Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake. 23. Now there was leaning on Jesus' [*] bosom one of his disciples, [f] whom Jesus loved. 24. Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake. 25. He then, [g] lying on Jesus' breast, saith unto him, Lord, who is it? 26. Jesus [h] answered, He it is to whom I shall give a [i] sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. 27. And after the sop [k] Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, [l] That thou doest, do quickly. 28. Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him. 29. For some of them thought, because [m] Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor. 30. He then, having received the sop, [n] went immediately out: and it was night.

y 2 Tim. 2. 19. ch. 7. 12.
z Ps. 41. 9. Deut. 32. 15. Mat. 26. 23.
* Or From henceforth.
a Is. 41. 23. & 46. 10. ch. 14. 29. & 16. 4. b Mat. 10. 40. & 25. 40. Luke 10. 16. ch. 12. 44. 1 Pet. 1. 21. c Ch. 11. 33. & 12. 27. Mark 3. 5. Acts 17. 16. d Mat. 26. 21. Mark 14. 18. Luke 22. 21. Acts 1. 16, 17. 1 John 2. 19. ch. 6. 70. e Mat. 26. 22. Mark 14. 19. Luke 22. 23.
* Or, there was lying close to his breast.
f Ch. 19. 26. & 20. 2. & 21. 7, 20, 24. & 11. 3.
g They sat at meals in a recumbent posture. Ver. 23 ch. 21. 20.
h Softly to John alone. Ver. 28.
i Or morsel, i. e. the bitter herbs, Exod. 12. 8.
k Ver 2. Luke 22. 3. Ps. 109. 6. Acts 5. 3. Mat. 12. 45.
l Ps. 81. 11, 12. Rom. 1. 24, 26, 28. 2 Thes. 2. 10—12. Jam. 1. 13—15. Rev. 17 17.
m Ch. 12. 6.
n Prov. 1. 16. & 4. 16. Is. 59. 7. Rom. 3. 15. Job 24. 13, 14. ch. 3. 19, 20.

Verses 18—30. Christ knew who should betray him, and here he begins to point out the traitor to his disciples.

1. In general he lets them know there was a false disciple among them, on whom none of the things he had spoken would have any effect. I speak not of you all, as clean and faithful; I know whom I have chosen to salvation, as well as apostleship; but that the Scripture might be fulfilled, which said, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me, therefore have I called one to be an apostle whom I knew to be a traitor, notwithstanding all the kindness I have shown him. Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he, and may be the more confirmed in your faith of my divine omniscience and mediatorial character, when you see this prediction awfully verified. And to encourage you to be faithful, whatever falsehood you may see in others, or whatever humbling services you may be called to, Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send, receiveth me, and testifies his respect for me, in the honour paid to my ambassador; and he that receiveth me as the Messiah sent of God, receiveth him that sent me. When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, deeply affected with the traitor's guilt, and the ruin hanging over his head, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me. Note, (1.) The Lord knows those that are his, and whom he hath chosen to grace and glory, and they shall never perish. (2.) Many eat at Christ's table who most ungratefully lift up their heel against him, and with aggravated guilt prove faithless and betray him. (3.) Every true minister of Jesus is his ambassador, and represents his Prince's person. For his sake therefore he is to be honoured.

2. He points out Judas in particular as the person designed. Shocked at what they heard, doubtful which of them was meant, and anxious to know, each of them looked at the other, to observe whether either would betray any symptoms of guilt; and, as John, the beloved disciple, lay on a couch next below Jesus, as it were at his bosom, Simon Peter eager to be resolved, privately gave him a hint that he should softly ask their Master who was meant: when, taking an opportunity, he whispered, Lord, who is it? Jesus answered, so low as not to be heard by the rest, He it is to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it in the sauce. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, intimating to John that he was the person. Note, (1.) It is a bitter grief to true disciples to hear of the scandals brought upon Jesus by false professors of religion. (2.) Those are happy whom Jesus favours with his especial regard, and lays in the bosom of his love.

3. Judas immediately sets himself to accomplish his hellish purpose. After the sop, Satan entered into him, possessed his body and soul, and drove him to the precipice of destruction. Then said Jesus, What thou doest, do quickly, either challenging him to do his worst, or abandoning him to Satan's devices. None at the table having heard what he said to John, they suspected Christ had given Judas orders to provide something against the feast, or to distribute some relief to the poor, he being the purse bearer. Urged on by the power of the wicked one, he went out presently, fixed in his base and wicked purpose; and it was night, the fittest time for such deeds of darkness; and, however unseasonable the hour, so eagerly was he bent upon his treachery, that nothing could delay him. Note, (1.) When Christ abandons the sinner to Satan's power, he rushes headlong to ruin. (2.) They who withdraw from the society of the faithful, begin to show the apostasy of their hearts.

o Ps. 40. 8. ch. 18. 11. Luke 12. 50. Col. 2. 14, 15. Heb. 2. 10, 14. ch. 21. 19. & 12. 23, 28. Luke 2. 14.

p Ch. 12. 16, 23, 24, 27, 28. & 17. 1, 5, 6. & 7. 39. Phil. 2. 6—11. Is. 53. 10—12. Heb. 1. 3. Rev. 3. 21. Ps. 110. 1.

q Ch. 16. 16. & 7. 34. & 8. 21. & 14. 19.

r Lev. 19. 18. ch. 15. 12. Eph. 5. 2. 1 John 4. 21. & 2. 7, 8. & 3. 11, 16, 23. 1 Pet. 1. 22. & 3. 8, 9. Gal. 6. 2. Mat. 22. 39. Jam. 2. 8. 1 Thes. 4. 9. Rom. 12. 10. & 13. 8—10. Gal. 5. 14, 22. Heb. 13. 1.

s Acts 4. 32. & 2. 46. 1 John 2. 10. & 3. 14. & 4. 20.

31. ¶ Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, [o] Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him. 32. [p] If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him. 33. Little children, [q] yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you. 34. [r] A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. 35. [s] By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

Verses 31—35. When Judas was gone out, Jesus addressed himself to his faithful apostles.

1. He informs them, that the hour of his glorification was now nearly arrived. Jesus said, now is the Son of man glorified; he is ready by his sufferings to obtain the glorious victory over all his own and his people's foes, sin, Satan, death, and hell; and God is glorified in him: all his divine perfections being most eminently displayed in the obedience to death of the Redeemer. If God be glorified in him, his justice, truth, wisdom, mercy, exalted to the highest by his cross; God shall also glorify him in himself, or with himself; bringing him to the mediatorial throne in heaven: and shall straightway glorify him, in the amazing signs and wonders which should accompany the death of Jesus, and especially by his speedy resurrection.

2. He intimates to them, that the time of his stay with them would be very short. Little children, so tenderly and affectionately doth the Lord Jesus regard his dear people, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: longing for my bodily presence with you: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come: so now I say unto you; you must be content for a while under the irksome separation, till the hour of your glory shall also arrive, (ver. 36.) and ye shall then come to be with me where I am.

3. He charges them to cultivate mutual love. A new commandment I give unto you; not indeed now first enjoined, since it was the old commandment which had been from the beginning, but through the degeneracy of the times it had ceased to be practised, but was now more clearly explained, and enforced by new motives; a command the most excellent, and the fundamental law of that kingdom which he came to establish; that ye love one another, as I have loved you; ready to every act of kindness, and to part with every thing, if need be, even life itself, for the good of your brethren: and this was to be the characteristic mark of their discipleship; for by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another; they shall take knowledge of you that you have been with me, and learned of me. Note, The distinguishing badge of true Christianity is this spirit of fervent charity. Love is the image of Jesus: he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in him. This will make us meek and lowly towards our brethren; ready to pass by their provocations; to forgive their offences; to pity their infirmities; to bear with their differences in opinion or practice; to delight in their prosperity; to promote their good, spiritual and temporal; and ever to maintain towards them the kindest sentiments, and be constant in warmest applications to the throne of grace on their behalf. Then shall the wondering world say of us as of old, See how these Christians love one another. A spirit of selfishness, narrowness, bitterness, dispute, animosity, is a reproach to the profession of Christianity; and proves, that those who are actuated by it, deceive their own selves, when they call themselves the followers of Jesus.

t Ver. 24. ch. 21. 21. & 14. 5, 8, 22. & 16. 17.

u Ver. 33. ch. 21. 18, 19. 2 Pet. 1. 14.

x Ver. 33, 36. Mat. 26. 34, 35. Mark 14. 29, 31. Luke 22. 33.

y Mat. 26. 34. Mark 14. 30. Luke 22. 34. 1 Cor. 10. 12. Prov. 16. 18. & 29. 23. & 26. 12, 16.

36. ¶ Simon Peter said unto him, [t] Lord, Whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; [u] but thou shalt follow me afterwards. 37. Peter said unto him, Lord, [x] Why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake. 38. Jesus answered him, [y] Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice.

Verses 36—38. We have here a conference between Christ and Peter on what he had said, ver. 33.

1. Peter, dissatisfied perhaps with what Christ had spoken, ver. 33. is solicitous to know whither he was going, and therefore eagerly inquires. Probably he thought he was about to quit Judea, and, according to their prejudiced opinions of the Messiah, to erect his kingdom in some other part of the world.

2. Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; Christ had work yet for Peter to do upon earth, before he should gain the glorious crown of martyrdom; but thou shalt follow me afterwards, partaking both of my sufferings and glory. Note, Our eternal inheritance is secured for us; and though here we wait and suffer a while, the happy hour will arrive, when we shall come to be with Jesus where he is.

3. Peter, with too much self-confidence, unwilling his Master should doubt his courage, or determined purpose to cleave to him wherever he went, replied, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? what dangers or difficulties can deter me? I will lay down my life for thy sake, and will sooner die than desert thee.

4. Christ warns him of the weakness of his resolution, and how unable he would find himself for the last part of what he promised. Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? how little dost thou know thy own weakness! Verily, verily, I say unto thee, take notice of it as the most certain truth, The cock shall not crow till thou hast denied me thrice; before another sun shall rise, and the time of cockcrowing is over, thou shalt not only deny me as thy Master, but disown the very knowledge of my person. Note, We know not our weakness till the temptation comes, and every boast of self-confidence is a certain prelude to a fall.

CHAP. XIV.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

This chapter is a continuation of Christ's discourse with his disciples after supper. When he had convicted and discarded Judas, he set himself to comfort the rest, who were full of sorrow upon what he had said of leaving them, and a great many good words and comfortable words he here speaks to them. The general scope of this chapter is in the first verse; it is designed to keep trouble from their hearts: now in order to that, they must believe. And let them consider, 1. Heaven as their everlasting rest, ver. 2, 3. 2. Christ himself as their way, ver. 4—11. 3. The great power they shall be clothed with by the prevalency of their prayers, ver. 12—14. 4. The coming of another comforter, ver. 15—17. 5. The fellowship and communion that should be between him and them after his departure, ver. 18—24. 6. The instructions which the Holy Ghost should give them, ver. 25, 26. 7. The peace Christ bequeathed to them, ver. 27. 8. Christ's own cheerfulness in his departure, ver. 28—31. And this which he said to them is designed for the comfort of all his faithful followers.

1. LET [a] not your heart be troubled: [b] ye believe in God, believe also in me.
2. [c] In my Father's house are many mansions: [d] if it were not so, I would have told you. [e] I go to prepare a place for you. 3. And if I go and prepare a place for you, [f] I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.

a Is. 41. 10, 14. & 43. 1, 2. ver. 27, 28. ch. 16. 6, 22.
b Ps. 112. 7. Is. 26. 3, 4. Acts 4. 11, 12. & 8. 37.
c 2 Cor. 5. 1. Rev. 2. 7. & 3. 12, 21. 2 Pet. 1, 11.
d Ch. 3. 2. Rev. 1. 5. & 3. 14. Tit. 1. 2. e Heb. 11. 16. & 6. 20. & 7. 25. & 9. 24. ch. 17. 24. & 13. 33, 36.
f Ver. 18, 28. Mat. 28. 20. Acts 1. 11. Heb. 9. 28. 1 Thes. 4. 16, 17. Phil. 1. 23. Rom. 18. 17. ch. 12. 26. & 13. 36. & 17. 24. 2 Tim. 2. 12. Rev. 3. 21.

Verses 1—3. To comfort them against the approaching trials, which would be apt to shake the foundation of all their hopes,

1. He exhorts them to maintain unshaken confidence in him amidst all their difficulties. Let not your heart be troubled; the thought that one disciple should betray him: another deny him; that he should suffer, die, and leave them: these things deeply affected them; and he, who knows the souls of his people in adversity, endeavours to provide for their comfort. Ye believe in God, according to the revelation he hath made of himself in his word; believe also in me, as the true Messiah, as the almighty Saviour, able to support you in all your exigencies, and to comfort you under every affliction. Or it may be read, Believe in God; live in the constant exercise of faith in the power and grace of my Father; and believe also in me; have the same confidence in me, who am one with him in the same undivided Godhead.

2. He assures them his absence would be to their great advantage. In my Father's house, in heaven, the place where the eternal Father makes the brightest manifestations of his glory, there are many mansions, abiding dwelling-places, where there is perfect peace and joy, and love and happiness; if it were not so, I would have told you, and not encouraged you to follow me at the loss of all things, if I had not an eternal recompense to bestow upon you. I go to prepare a place for you, as your forerunner, to take possession of the purchased inheritance, to be ready there to receive and welcome you, having prepared you for the mansions prepared for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, as surely as I leave you now, I will come again, and that quickly, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also; admitted to my presence, partaking of my glory, and made for ever blessed and happy in the enjoyment of my love and favour. Note, (1.) The believing prospect of the glory which shall be revealed, should comfort us under all our present trials and afflictions. (2.) In heaven there are mansions for the many sons whom Jesus shall bring home to his Father's house: none shall thrust out his mate: for there is room enough for all. (3.) None who trust on Jesus, whatever they may quit or lose for his sake, shall ever have cause to lament their choice: in heaven they will be abundantly repaid. (4.) They who look for a better country, that is a heavenly, shall by blessed experience shortly prove the faithfulness of him who hath promised to bring them thither, who also will do it. (5.) As surely as Christ is gone into heaven, so surely will he come to bring his people home to himself: either calling them away by death, or finally appearing at the great judgment day, when all his elect shall be gathered together unto him, and be taken to reign with him in glory everlasting; and well may we comfort one another with these words.

4. [g] And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know. 5. ¶ [h] Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way? 6. Jesus saith unto him, I am [i] the way, and [k] the truth, and [l] the life: [m] no man cometh unto the Father but by me. 7. [n] If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him. 8. ¶ Philip saith unto him, Lord, [o] shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us. 9. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me [p] hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father? 10. Believest thou not [q] that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak [r] not of myself: but the Father, that dwelleth in me, [s] he doeth the works. 11. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; or else [t] believe me for the very works' sake.

g Ver. 2. Luke 24. 26. Acts 14. 22. 2 Tim. 3. 12.
h Ch. 20. 25, 27, 29.
i Is. 35. 8. Acts 4. 12. Eph. 2. 18. Heb. 10. 19—22.
k Ch. 1. 14, 17. & 8. 32. Acts 10. 43. Eph. 1. 13. 2 Cor. 1. 20. Col. 2. 9, 17. Rev. 1. 5.
l Ch. 1. 4. & 3. 14—18, 36. & 6. 33—58, 63. & 8. 52. & 10. 10, 28. & 11. 25. & 14. 19.
m Acts 4. 12. Eph. 2. 18. ch. 10. 7, 9. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Rev. 5. 9. n Ch. 8. 19. ver. 9, 10, 20. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Col. 1. 15. Heb. 1. 3.
o By some visible representation. Mat. 11. 27. ch. 1. 18. Exod. 33. 20.
p Ch. 10. 30. & 12. 45. & 17. 21—23. ver. 20. Heb. 1. 3. Col. 1. 15. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Phil. 2. 6.
q Ver. 9, 11. ch. 10. 30, 38. & 17. 21—23. ver. 20. 1 John 5. 7.
r Ch. 3. 2, 32, 34. & 5. 36. & 7. 16. & 10. 38. & 12. 49. & 17. 8. & 6. 8, 14. Luke 24. 19.
s Ch. 5. 17. Acts 10. 38. Heb. 2. 4. 24. Mat. 11. 5.
t Ch. 5. 36. & 10. 25, 32, 38. & 17. 21, 22. & 15.

Verses 4—11. Having set before them the happiness provided for them, Christ farther encourages them, saying, Whither I go, ye know: I have repeatedly told you; and the way ye know, which I have taught you by my word and my example.

1. Thomas replied to this, We know not whither thou goest, and how can we know the way? Though in general they had some knowledge of the way to heaven, whither Christ was going; yet mistaking his discourse, and having his head filled with the conceits of Christ's temporal kingdom, Thomas, like the rest, supposes he was going somewhere to erect his throne upon earth, but where, was a secret to him, and he wished to know, as Peter had done, that, though with less self-confidence, he might follow his Master.

2. Jesus answers, I am the way; through his blood alone there is access unto God, and by his grace only can we be enabled to walk in the path which leads to eternal glory: the truth; whom all the ritual services prefigured, in whom they were fulfilled, whose promises are faithful, and who hath never failed those that trust him: and the life; who hath life in himself, and is the author of spiritual and eternal life to his people; no man cometh to the Father but by me; in our present fallen state we can neither draw near to a throne of grace with acceptance, but by Jesus Christ as our advocate and surety; nor can we ever hope to appear before the throne of glory, but as complete in him, and making mention of his righteousness only. If ye had known me, in my true character as God, as well as man, ye should have known my Father also; forasmuch as we are in nature and essence one: and from henceforth; as by this intimation ye may perceive my meaning, ye know him and have seen him in me. Note, (1.) The knowledge of the Godhead of the Redeemer is essential to salvation. (2.) Christ can discover in his disciples more knowledge of his blessed self than they think themselves possessed of, and are therefore complaining of their ignorance.

3. Philip not yet entering fully into his Master's meaning, saith unto him, Lord, show us the Father, some visible and corporeal representation of him, and it sufficeth us; this will fully satisfy us, and silence all our further inquiries.

4. Jesus gently rebukes the dulness of his comprehension, and saith unto him, Have I been so long with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? my divine original as well as mission? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father; the divine perfections which I have displayed, prove my essential Godhead, as partaker of the same nature, attributes, and glory with him: and how sayest thou then, Show us the Father? believest thou that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? though in person distinct, yet in essence one, inseparably united in the same eternal Godhead. The words that I speak unto you, deep and mysterious as some of the doctrines are which I declare, I speak not of myself, by any authority purely my own, or as apart from the Father: but the Father that dwelleth in me he doeth the works, which confirm my divine mission, and set God's seal to the truth which I deliver. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me, upon the credit of the testimony which I bear; or else, if you think that insufficient, believe me for the very works' sake, which are such convincing proofs of the truths which I preach, and done in such a godlike manner, by my word, in my own name, and by my own power, as shows my Godhead and glory. Note, (1.) They who have been long in Christ's school, should make their profiting appear. They are justly culpable who, blessed with the richest means, do not grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. (2.) In Christ Jesus we behold a brighter display of God's glory and presence than ever before appeared, seeing in him dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily.

u Mark 16. 17, 18. Luke 10.17. Acts 2. 4. & 5. 16. & 8. 7. & 10. 46. & 16. 18. & 19. 6. 22. 1 Cor. 12. 10. 28. Mat. 21. 21.
x Acts 5. 15. & 19. 12. & 2. 41. & 4. 4. & 5. 14. & 6. 7. Rom. 15. 19.
y Mat. 7. 7. & 21. 22. Is. 45. 11. Mark 11. 24. ch. 15. 7. & 16. 23, 24. 1 John 3. 22. & 5. 14. Jam. 1. 5. & 5. 16. Eph. 3. 20, 21. 1 Pet. 4. 11. Col. 3. 17. Luke 2. 14.

12. ¶ Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, [u] the works that I do shall he do also; and [x] greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father. 13. [y] And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. 14. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

Verses 12—14. The loss of their Master's presence and company dejected his poor disciples. To comfort them, he promises,

1. To endue them with the most astonishing miraculous powers. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, as you do, the works that I do shall he do also; the same miracles ye have seen me perform: yea, and greater works than these shall ye do; more numerous and more wonderful, (See Acts v. 15. xix. 12.) And particularly this may refer to the gift of tongues, and the vastly superior success which should attend the preaching of the apostles, and the much more numerous converts they should make, than their Master had done; and this because I go to the Father, when, having received all power in heaven and earth, he would, in the most abundant manner, pour out the Spirit upon them from on high, to enable them for the great work whereunto he had ordained them.

2. To grant them all their petitions. Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, pleading my promise, and depending on my advocacy; that will I do, by my own divine power, giving you an answer to every prayer according to the various necessities of your souls; that the Father may be glorified in the Son; and his glory should be the end of all our petitions; and in gratifying them Christ designs to advance his Father's honour, and manifest his power, grace, and faithfulness. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it, granting you every needful supply of grace and strength for your support and success in the work of the gospel.

15. ¶ [z] If ye love me, keep my commandments. 16. [a] And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; 17. [b] Even the Spirit of truth; whom [c] the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he [d] dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

z Ver. 21, 23. ch. 15. 10, 14. 1 John 2. 3, 5. & 3. 24. & 5. 2, 3.
a Ver. 26. ch. 15. 26. & 16. 7, 13. Rom. 8. 34, 26, 27. Mat. 28. 20. b Ch. 15. 26. & 13. 13. 1 John 2. 27. & 4. 6.
c 1 Cor. 2. 14. Rom. 8. 7.
d Ch. 4. 14. Rom. 8. 9, 14—16, 26. 1 Cor. 3. 16. Gal. 4. 6. & 5. 18. 25. 2 Tim. 1. 14. Ezek. 36. 27

Verses 15—17. Our Lord proceeds to encourage and comfort them in the view of the service before them, and in the prospect of his departure from them.

1. They must give a proof of their love of him by their observance of his commandments. If ye love me, keep my commandments. He speaks not as doubting the truth of their regard, but as quickening them to give increasing proofs of the sincerity of their love, by a conscientious respect to all his precepts.

2. He promises to send them another Comforter, who should abundantly supply the loss of his bodily presence. I will pray the Father, and effectually be your advocate, and he shall give you another Comforter, and counsellor, to support, direct, and quicken you, whose loss they should no more fear, for Christ will take care that he may abide with you for ever, carrying you through all your trials, and death itself, to an eternal inheritance in glory; even the Spirit of truth, the Spirit of the true God, whose inspiration dictates the sacred oracles, and who leads the minds of benighted sinners into the knowledge of all truth; whom the world cannot receive, the men of the world, who harden their hearts in pride and impenitence; because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; are strangers to his operations; are led by sight, not by faith; and therefore count his teaching to be foolishness and enthusiasm. But ye know him, as having already illuminated your hearts, and sanctified, in a measure, your souls; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you, as his living temples, guiding, governing, strengthening, comforting, and blessing you continually. Note, (1.) In the one Godhead there are three persons, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, each possessed of the same divine perfections. (2.) All Christ's true disciples to the end of time may expect divine teaching and consolation amidst all their trials; and, whilst they are looking to him, shall be strengthened, quickened, and comforted in his blessed work and ways. (3.) Every faithful soul is the temple of the Holy Ghost, and by experience feels the indwelling power of his effectual grace.

18. [e] I will not leave you [*] comfortless: I will come to you. 19. [f] Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: [g] because I live, ye shall live also. 20. At that day ye shall know [h] that I am in my Father, and [i] ye in me, and I in you. 21. [k] He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he [l] that loveth me shall be loved of my Father; and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. 22. Judas [m] saith unto him, (not Iscariot,) Lord, [n] how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world? 23. Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and [o] we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. 24. [p] He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: [q] and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.

e Mat. 18. 20. & 28. 20. Heb. 13. 5. Is. 41. 10, 14. & 43. 1, 2. & 46. 4. ver. 3, 28.
* Or orphans.
f Ch. 7. 34. & 8. 21. & 13. 33. & 16. 16.
g Ch. 11. 25. 1 Cor. 15. 13, 20.
h Ver. 9, 10. ch. 17. 3, 21—23.
i Rom. 8. 1. 1 Cor. 1. 30. & 6. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 17, 21. Gal. 2. 20. Eph. 2. 10. & 5. 30. ch. 17. 21, 23.
k See ver. 15, 23, 24. & 15. 14. 1 John 2. 5. & 5. 3. l Ps. 149. 4. & 147. 11. & 35. 27. Is. 62. 3—5. Zeph. 3. 17. 2 Cor. 3. 18.
m Luke 6. 16. Acts 1. 13. Jude 1.
n Luke 1. 34. ch. 3. 4, 9. & 6. 52, 60. & 7. 16. 1 Cor. 4. 7. ch. 16. 18.
o See ver. 21. Rev. 3. 20. Heb. 13. 5. Ps. 91. 1. & 121. 3—8. 1 John 4. 16. Rev. 3. 12, 21. & 7. 15, 16. & 21. 3, 11. 1 John 2. 24. p See ver. 15, 21, 23.
q Ch. 5. 19, 26, 38. & 3. 32, 34. & 7. 28. & 8. 26, 28, 38, 42. & 12. 44, 50.

Verses 18—24. Christ pursues the same reviving subject. He was indeed going from them for a while, but his absence would not be long.

1. I will not leave you comfortless, as orphans: I will come to you; either at his resurrection, or by the mission of his Spirit, or by his final appearing to judgment. Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; they who rejected him, would no more be favoured with a sight of him after his resurrection: but ye see me; I will appear to you; ye shall see me now by faith, and shortly shall eternally enjoy the full vision of me in glory. Because I live ye shall live also; I, as the fountain-head of spiritual life, will communicate the living influences to you my members; and, vitally united to me, you shall live in holy conformity to me here, and in the eternal enjoyment of me hereafter. If we are disciples indeed, our life is bound up with that of the Son of God himself, nor can death destroy our union with him: he that liveth and believeth in him shall never die eternally. At that day, of Christ's resurrection as a triumphant conqueror over all his foes; or when, by the effusion of the Holy Ghost, their minds should be more deeply illuminated; and more especially when they should come to meet him in the kingdom of his glory; ye shall know that I am in my Father, one in essential union; and you in me, and I in you, as living members of my body mystical, joined to me in one spirit. And, in consequence of this, he that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, is enabled truly to understand, and in simplicity to obey them, he it is that loveth me; he gives hereby an undoubted proof of his unfeigned affection to me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, as the object of his favour, delight, and complacence: and I will love him, with unchangeable regard; and will manifest myself to him, making the richest discoveries of grace and glory to his soul. Note, (1.) Every faithful soul is a partaker of a divine nature, and lives in a state of inseparable union with the Son of God. (2.) Christ gives increasing discoveries of his truth and love to the souls of his people, till they are brought to see him face to face. (3.) The proof of our love to Jesus must appear in our fidelity and obedience. If we say we abide in him, and walk in darkness, we lie. (4.) Though our love to him is not the cause of his love to us, but the effect: yet, as we are enabled to make it appear more clearly, we shall find brighter manifestations made to our souls of our interest in him; shall experience sweeter foretastes of the eternal bliss which is promised; and shall receive increasing supplies of the Spirit, to perfect in us what is yet lacking, and prepare us for our eternal abode with him.

2. One of Christ's disciples, either not apprehending fully his meaning, desired him to explain it; or overwhelmed with admiration, could not but wonder at the endearing condescensions of Jesus to them in particular; Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, but Jude the brother of James, another of the twelve apostles, How is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world? Note, They who are the objects of God's distinguishing favour, cannot but admire the grace of which they are partakers, and with wonder cry, Why me, Lord?

3. Christ graciously confirms and explains what he had spoken. Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and make the most delightful discoveries to him of his grace and favour; and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him; take up our dwelling in the temple of his heart, manifesting our gracious presence to him, and maintaining, through the Spirit, in the word and ordinances, the most blessed and abiding communion with him. On the other hand, He that loveth me not, keepeth not my sayings, disobeys my commands, and neglects my institutions; and, thereby proving his aversion to me, shuts the door of his heart against me, and wilfully rejects my gospel, with all its inestimable blessings. And the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's who sent me; therefore they who disrelish and reject it, must be necessarily excluded from his favour as well as mine.

25. [r] These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you. 26. [s] But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, [t] he shall teach you all things, and [u] bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you. 27. ¶ [x] Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let [y] not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. 28. Ye have heard how I said unto you, [z] I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, [a] ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is [b] greater than I. 29. [c] And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe. 30. Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for [d] the prince of this world cometh, and [e] hath nothing in me. 31. [f] But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do. Arise, let us go hence.

r Ch. 16. 1, 16, 25.
s Ver. 16, 17. ch. 15. 26. & 16. 7. Luke 24. 49. Acts 1. 5. Rom. 8. 26. Joel 2. 28.
t Ch. 16. 13, 14. 1 John 2. 20, 27. Jer. 31. 34.
u Ch. 2. 22. & 12. 16.
x Rom. 5. 1, 10. 2 Cor. 5. 20, 21. Eph. 2. 14, 16, 17. Col. 1. 20. & 3. 15. Phil. 4. 7. ch. 16. 33. Hos. 2. 18, 19. Is. 54. 7—10. 1 Pet. 3. 14. y See ver. 1. Rev. 1. 17, 18. Is. 35. 3, 4. & 51. 12. & 41. 10. z See ver. 3. Acts 1. 11.
a Ps. 47. 5, 6. ch. 16. 7.
b Ver. 12, 18. ch. 10. 29. 1 Cor. 11. 3. Is. 49. 1—6. & 42. 1—6. Jer. 31. 22. Gal. 4. 4. with ch. 5. 18. & 10. 30. Phil. 2. 6. 1 John 5. 7. Is. 9. 6.
c Ch. 13. 19. & 16. 4, 30, 31. & 10. 38. & 11. 15, 42.
d Eph. 2. 2. & 6. 12. Luke 4. 6. 2 Cor. 4. 3. ch. 12. 31. & 16. 11. Luke 22. 52.
e Heb. 7. 26. Luke 1. 35. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 1. 19. & 2. 22. 1 John 3. 5, 8.
f Heb. 5. 7, 8. Phil. 2. 8. ch. 10. 18. & 18. 11. Ps. 40. 8. Mat. 26. 39, 42.

Verses 25—31. For the further encouragement of his disciples, he proceeds,

1. To assure them of the teaching and consolations of the Holy Ghost. These things have I spoken, being yet present with you: the time being short, I have endeavoured to lay them clearly before you: but the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, the third person in the sacred Trinity, whom the Father will send in my name, at my intercession, to supply my absence, and to advance my kingdom and glory; he shall teach you all things, opening your understandings to clearer discoveries of the truth, enlarging your capacities, and strengthening your memories; for he shall bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you; he would not only revive the memory of all the works and discourses of Christ which they had forgotten, but give them a distinct knowledge of what, at the time Christ spoke, they did not understand.

2. He engages to give them peace in the midst of all their troubles. Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you, as my last bequest; peace with God, as reconciled to you; peace in your own consciences, from the confidence of his love; peace with each other, united in bonds of firmest union; my peace, which none but I your Master could procure or bestow, the purchase of my blood, the fruit of my intercession; I give it freely, fully to you, and all who follow you as my disciples. Not as the world giveth, give I unto you; not as a piece of compliment, but as a real blessing; not as worldly gifts, uncertain and precarious, but as a gift infinitely more valuable than all that earth can bestow, and infinitely more abiding. It is what the world can neither give, and, blessed be God, can never take away from us. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid, under the apprehension of any sufferings or trials when I am absent from you: my peace, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds.

3. He assures them his departure would be for his own glory and their good, and therefore they ought rather to rejoice than be sorry for it. Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you, to take you to the mansions prepared for you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father, to receive the mediatorial throne; for my Father is greater than I; not in his divine nature, but as, in the economy of man's salvation, the Son of God humbled himself to take the human nature, and submitted to the form of a servant: though equal to the Father, as touching his Godhead, yet inferior to the Father, as touching his manhood; therefore, in his exaltation, as the man Christ Jesus, it became them to be joyful. And now I have told you before it come to pass, that when it is come to pass, in my death, resurrection, ascension, and the effusion of the Holy Ghost, ye may believe, that I am the true Messiah, and will assuredly fulfil all the promises which I have made to you.

4. He tells them, that the great enemy of souls would now be finally vanquished. Hereafter I will not talk much with you; the time of my departure is at hand: for the prince of this world, he who hath usurped the dominion over the hearts of fallen men, and once pretended to offer me the kingdoms of the world, (Luke iv. 5—7.) he cometh, with all his fury and rage, to make his last, his desperate attack; and hath nothing in me; all his attempts will be baffled, and his malice recoil upon his own head with greater aggravation of his guilt; and to his utter confusion and destruction, he will find no guilt in me to accuse my conscience, no legal power over me in consequence of sin, see Heb. ii. 14. no corruption to work upon, or afford an opening for his temptations: and as Christ once conquered for his people in his own person, so will he conquer in them, and bruise Satan shortly under their feet.

5. He informs them, that his departure from them was according to the Father's commandment, and a matter of his most willing obedience. But, that the world may know that I love the Father, though Satan hath no power over me, I am ready to lay down my life, according to the Father's will: and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do; readily offering myself to suffer according to his eternal counsels. Arise, let us go hence, and meet the approaching danger. Note, When duty calls, and God so ordains, instead of flying from sufferings, we must cheerfully offer ourselves up, willing to glorify God, if he so pleases, even in the fires.

CHAP. XV.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter, 1. Christ speaks of himself under the figure of a vine, ver. 1—7. 2. Commands them to abound in fruits of love, ver. 8—17. 3. Comforts them against the world's hatred, ver. 18—27.

1. I [a] AM the true vine, and my Father is [b] the husbandman. 2. [c] Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and [d] every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit. 3. [e] Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you. 4. [f] Abide in me, and I in you. [g] As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. 5. I am the vine, ye are the branches: [h] he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for [g] * without me ye can do nothing. 6. [i] If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned. 7. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, [k] ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you. 8. [l] Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; [m] so shall ye be my disciples.

a Is. 4. 2. & 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. Zech. 3. 8. & 6. 12. with ch. 1. 9. & 6. 32, 35.
b Is. 5. 1. Mat. 20. 1. & 21. 33. 1. Cor. 3. 9. Is. 60. 21.
c Mat. 15. 13. Luke 13. 7. & 3. 9. Mat. 13. 41, 42. ver. 6. Heb. 6. 8. d Is. 27. 9. Eph. 5. 9, 26. Gal. 5. 22, 23. 2 Pet. 1. 5—9.
e Ch. 13. 10. & 17. 17. 1 Pet. 1. 22. Eph. 5. 26.
f Gal. 2. 20. Col. 2. 6, 7. & 1. 23. 1 John 2. 6. Is. 45. 24, 25.
g Ch. 6. 68. & 1. 14, 16. ver. 5. Acts 4. 12. Phil. 4. 13.
h Hos. 14. 8. Phil. 1. 11. ch. 1. 14, 16. Gal. 5. 22—24. 2 Pet. 1. 2—8. & 3. 18. Col. 2. 9—12, 19. 2 Cor. 3. 5.
* Or severed from me.
i Ps. 1. 4. & 21. 9, 10. Mat. 3. 10. & 7. 19. 2 Tim. 3. 13. Jude 12. Mat. 25. 26, 41. & 13. 41. Heb. 6. 4—8. & 10. 26—31. 2 Pet. 2. 20—22. Rev. 22. 15. & 21. 8.
k Ch. 14. 13, 14. & 16. 23, 24. ver. 16. 1 John 3. 22. & 5. 14. Jam. 5. 16. Is. 58. 9. & 65. 24. Job 22. 27. 1 Ps. 92. 13—15. Mat. 5. 16. Eph. 1. 12. Phil. 1. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 12. & 4. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 20. m Ch. 8. 31. & 13. 35. Mat. 5. 44, 45. Luke 6. 35.

Verses 1—8. We have here a continuation of Christ's farewell discourse to his disconsolate disciples.

1. He represents himself to them under the figure of a vine. I am the true vine; as a vine, mean and weak in his outward appearance, yet spreading on every side; sending his salvation to the ends of the earth, and bringing forth the most reviving fruits, pleasing to God, and cheering to man: the true vine, the life-giving source of spiritual influences conveyed from him to all the branches of his body mystical; and those who are ingrafted upon him, will never find him to fail or deceive them: and my Father is the husbandman, who planted it in the earth, and with watchfulness and care every moment preserves and waters it; supporting Christ in the exercise of his mediatorial office, with complaisance delighting in him, and guarding him and every member of his church, who are grafted upon him, from every evil.

2. His professing people are the branches, on whom the great husbandman employs his care. Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, he taketh away. Some professing members of Christ are only nominally disciples, not vitally united to Jesus by faith and love, and bearing no true fruits of grace and holiness: these the Lord taketh away. In time of persecution they fall off; or they turn aside into such errors in principle, or immoralities in conduct, as discover their hypocrisy: or, if they are spared to the last, by death they are cut off, and then the hypocrite's hope perisheth. And every branch in me that beareth fruit, truly ingrafted into Christ, partaking of the quickening influences of his Spirit, and bringeth forth the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ to the praise and glory of God; he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit: by his word, his Spirit, his afflictive providences, he continues to cut off the luxuriant and noxious shoots of pride, lust, and worldliness, which would still spring from the remainders of indwelling corruption, even in the hearts of the faithful; and to encourage, cultivate, and increase the gracious dispositions he hath implanted, that they may shoot more vigorously, and bring forth more abundantly in all good conversation and godliness.

3. As he had now purged out Judas from among them, he exhorts them to approve their fidelity. Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you; your hearts being purified by faith, in which way the word becomes effectual to all Christ's disciples in every age, purging out the dross of in-dwelling evil, and sanctifying the soul. Abide in me, as the root and stock from whence all spiritual supplies of grace are drawn; placing all your dependence on my blood and righteousness, my Spirit and power; and I will then abide in you, as the living principle of all goodness. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, and maintain a constant communication with the root, no more can ye, except ye abide in me. The best of men have no stock of grace within themselves, but must maintain habitual communion with Jesus, if they would continue to bring forth fruit unto God. I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, in the constant exercise of faith, and I in him, by the powerful operation of my Spirit, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me, separate from me, and for a moment destitute of my quickening influence, ye can do nothing truly good and acceptable to God, but must wither, droop, and die, as a branch deprived of communication with the living root. Without Christ we can do nothing towards our justification, sanctification, or glorification; he must be to us all and in all.

4. He warns them of the fatal consequences of departure from him. If any man abide not in me; basely desert my cause, and make shipwreck of faith and a good conscience; or, whilst he hath a name to live, be really found dead in trespasses and sins: he is cast forth as a branch; excommunicated from the company of the faithful here below, if his iniquities are brought to light: or, at farthest, cut off at death from the society of the blessed, and is withered; his gifts wither; his zeal grows cold; his devotion dies; his reputation decays; his hopes perish; and men gather them and cast them into the fire, and they are burned; and thus shall the angels of God at the last gather out of Christ's kingdom all that offend and do iniquity, when hypocrites will have their portion with the unbelievers and impenitent, and be cast together into the everlasting burnings. Let us read and tremble.

5. He assures them the prayers of all his faithful people should be heard and answered. If ye abide in me, steadily cleaving to me under all discouragements; and my words abide in you, and habitually influence your conduct; ye shall ask what you will, and it shall be done unto you; whatever is for his glory and our good shall be granted. And herein is my Father glorified, by your abiding in me, and asking and receiving out of my fulness; that ye bear much fruit of grace, which will redound to his praise; so shall ye be my disciples; evidently proved to be such by your good conversation and approved fidelity, and shall be acknowledged by me in the day of my appearing and glory.

9. [n] As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: [o] continue ye in my love. 10. [p] If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. 11. [q] These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full. 12. ¶ [r] This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. 13. [s] Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. 14. [t] Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. 15. Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; [u] for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you. 16. [x] Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and [y] ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that [z] whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you. 17. [a] These things I command you that ye love one another.

n Mat. 3. 17. & 12. 18. Col. 1. 13. Gal. 2. 20. Rev. 1. 5.

o 1 John 4. 16. Gal. 2. 20. Jude 21.

p Ver. 14. ch. 14. 15, 21, 23. 1 John 2. 5. Is. 42. 1. ch. 10. 17.

q See ch. 14. 29. & 16. 24. & 17. 24, 13. 1 John 1. 4.

r Ch. 13. 34, 35. Eph. 5. 2. 1 Thes. 4. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 22. & 4. 8. 1 John 3. 14, 16. & 4. 21.

s Rom. 5. 6—8. John 3. 16. Eph. 5. 2. Gal. 2. 20. ch. 10. 10, 11, 15. 1 John 4. 10.

t Ver. 10. ch. 14. 15, 23. 2 Chr. 20. 7. Jam. 2. 23. Is. 41. 8. Mat. 12. 50.

u Gen. 18. 17. Ps. 25. 14. ch. 17. 8, 26. Eph. 1. 9. & 3. 5. Col. 1. 26. 2 Tim. 3. 15—17. Mat. 13. 11.

x 1 John 4. 10. ch. 6. 70. & 13. 18, 19.

y Mat. 28. 19, 20. Mark 16. 15. ch. 4. 36 & 20. 21—23. Acts 28. 28. & 13. 46, 47. Eph. 3. 5—8. Gal. 1. 16. Col. 1. 6, 23, 26. Acts ii—xix.

z Ch. 14. 13, 14. Is. 45. 11. Mat. 7. 7, 11. 2 Cor. 3. 5. Mat. 21. 22. see ver. 7.

a See ver. 12.

Verses 9—17. We have here,

1. The love of Christ towards his people. As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you; and this love of his appeared most eminent and singular;

(1.) In his laying down his life for them. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends: but greater even than this hath been the love of Jesus; when we were enemies Christ died for us.

(2.) In his kindness towards them, admitting them into his favour and friendship. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you, and herein show yourselves faithful to me. Henceforth I call you not servants; though to be employed by such a Master, and that he condescends to accept of our services is abundant honour; for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth, nor is admitted to any such intimacy and familiarity as you have been indulged with: but I have called you by the honourable name of friends, and have treated you with the most cordial affection and confidence; for all things that I have heard of my Father, I have made known unto you; all things that as Mediator he came to preach and teach, respecting the salvation of sinners, and the counsels of grace; he had kept back nothing from them, and his Spirit would shortly give them a clearer knowledge of what he had revealed to them.

(3.) In his ordaining them to the high dignity of apostleship as well as to eternal life and glory. Ye have not chosen me, and by your choice laid any obligations on me to return the kindness; but I have chosen you, of my sovereign will and pleasure, and to manifest the riches of my grace and love; and ordained you, both to your office as apostles, and to salvation, as elect vessels; that ye should go and bring forth fruit, in the purity of your conversation, and the abundant success of your ministry; and that your fruit should remain, when your fidelity shall receive an eternal recompense, and the blessed effects of your labours, preaching, and writings, remain to the latest ages.

(4.) In his granting them all their petitions. That whatsoever

ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you: and the assurance of being heard is the great inducement and encouragement to us to pray. How can we but be happy to draw near to God, when we are thus constantly assured of receiving an answer of peace.

2. He exhorts them, from the consideration of his love to them, to make the due and grateful return to him, by loving and serving him, and one another. Continue ye in my love: invariable and unchangeable. If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love: if ye approve your fidelity, ye shall have the unutterable satisfaction of my approbation, and have increasing supplies of grace ministered to you, yet farther to establish, strengthen, and settle you. Even as I have kept my Father's commandments, with unabating ardour and constancy: and abide in his love, am now, and shall for ever be, the object of his highest delight and complacence, as you shall be of mine. And next to your love of me, this is my commandment that ye love one another, as I have loved you. And again, ver. 17. this being among the best proofs of real love to Jesus, and the great commandment which he especially enjoins, as the distinguishing badge of true discipleship. Note, (1.) The love of Christ known and believed, can alone engage our hearts to a return of love. (2.) The purpose of universal obedience to Christ's commands, is the sure evidence of love without dissimulation. (3.) No duty is more frequently and earnestly urged upon us, than Christian charity, because nothing is more ornamental to our profession; nor do we in any thing more resemble him whose name and nature is love.

18. ¶ [b] If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you. 19. [c] If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but [d] because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you. 20. Remember the word that I said unto you, [e] The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; [f] if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also. 21. [g] But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me. 22. [h] If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no † cloak for their sin. 23. [i] He that hateth me hateth my Father also. 24. [k] If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin: [l] but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father. 25. But this cometh to pass, [m] that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated me without a cause.

b Mat. 10. 22, 25. 1 John 3. 1, 13. Jam. 4. 4. Ps. xxii, lxix. Is. liii.
c Eph. 5. 7, 11. 1 John 4. 5. & 2. 16.
d Ch. 17. 14, 16. Rom. 12. 2. 1 Pet. 4. 4. Jam. 4. 4. 1 John 2. 16, 17.
e Mat. 10. 24, 25. Luke 6. 20. & 2. 18. & 5. 16, 18. & 6. 66. & 7. 32. & 8. 40, 59. & 9. 22. & 10. 31, 39. & 11. 46—57. Acts ii—xxvi. 1 Thes. 2. 14, 15.
f Is. 53. 1—3. Ezek. 3. 7.
g Is. 65. 5. Mat. 5. 11. & 10. 22. & 24. 9. ch. 16. 3. & 8. 19. 1 Cor. 2. 8. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
h Mat. 7. 28. ch. 3. 2. & 7. 46. & 9. 39, 41. ver. 24. Acts 17. 30. Jam. 4. 17. Ezek. 2. 5. Luke 12. 47, 48. Heb. 6. 4—8. & 10. 26—31. Rom. 1. 20—32.
† Or excuse.
i Ch. 5. 38. & 8. 19, 47. & 12. 49. & 14. 9—11. 1 John 2. 23. 2 John 9.
k Mat. 11. 5. Luke 24. 19. Mark i—x. Acts 2. 22. & 10. 38. Heb. 2. 4.
l Ch. v—xii. Mat. iv, viii—xxii. Luke iv—xx. ch. 3. 2. & 9. 32.
m Mat. 5. 18. ch. 19. 24, 28, 36. Ps. 35. 19. & 69. 4.

Verses 18—25. They who will be faithful to the Saviour, must expect the enmity of a sinful world; where wicked men, many and mighty, will unite in hatred, opposition, and persecution against them.

1. The followers of Jesus may expect to be hated, persecuted, despised. Since the original enmity put between the seed of the serpent, and the seed of the woman, never was there one truly godly man, but more or less experienced the like treatment.

2. So dealt they with our great Lord and Master, whose example should reconcile us to suffer with him. If the world hate you, marvel not; ye know that it hated me before it hated you: never was character so spotless as his, never one suffered so much from the enmity of the world.

3. The reason for the world's hatred of us is evident. If ye were of the world, conformed to it in your tempers, manners, and practice, the world would love his own, would caress and esteem you; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you; because by my distinguishing grace I have taken you for my own, and ordained you to eternal life and glory; your heavenly minds and conversation cannot but witness against, and reprove their vain and wicked ways, and therefore their anger rises. Note, The men of the world have not only a hatred of real Christians in general, but an especial enmity against gospel ministers, whose preaching and rebukes exasperate those who reject the counsel of God against their own souls.

4. He reminds them, that this was no more than he had all along taught them to expect. Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord, nor may expect more respectful treatment. If they have persecuted me, with all manner of rancour, reviling, and injuries, they will also persecute you, my ambassadors, who bear the same message, and go forth into the same world that lieth in wickedness: if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also; the gospel you preach will be despised and rejected, and your words be misrepresented, cavilled at, and ridiculed, as mine in general have been. But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because you have an interest in my love, vindicate my honour, and preach my gospel, whatever other pretences they may feign as the ground of their opposition; because they know not him that sent me, their minds are blinded by pride and prejudice, ignorant of the true God and his Messiah. Note, (1.) All who will live godly in Christ Jesus, may expect persecution of one kind or other. (2.) The faithful ministers of the gospel may not be surprised, if their preaching is treated with contempt or ridicule; their Lord was so insulted. (3.) Persecutors often pretend other causes to cover their enmity against God's people: but whatever be their pretext, the true reason is his image in them which they cannot bear, and his gospel which they abhor.

5. Christ suggests the inexcusable guilt of those who rejected him and his gospel. If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin, comparatively speaking: but now they have no cloak for their sin, their infidelity is wilful, their impenitence obstinate. He that hateth me, hateth my Father also; the hatred shown to his person, ministers, and gospel, ultimately centres in God himself. If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, such stupendous miracles as incontestably proved my divine mission, they had not had sin; they might have had some cloak for their unbelief, but now they have both seen and hated both me and my Father, rejecting the testimony he thus hath borne to me, and fixed in a rooted aversion to me and him. But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written, Psalm xlix. 4. in their law, They hated me without a cause. Note, (1.) They are left most inexcusable, and their guilt most aggravated, who persist in unbelief, and go to hell with Bibles in their hands. (2.) They who hate the gospel, and Christ the author of it, whatever they may pretend, truly hate God. Enemies to the Christian religion, are enemies to all religion; and Deist is really but another softer name for Atheist. (3.) Enmity against Christ and his gospel is most absurd and unreasonable; it is quarrelling with our own mercies, and being, in fact, the worst enemies to ourselves.

26. ¶ [n] But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he [o] shall testify of me: 27. And ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

n Luke 24. 49. ch. 14. 17, 26. & 16. 7. 13, 14. Acts 2. 33. Rom. 8. 9. Gal. 4. 6. 1 John 2. 20, 27. & 5. 5, 8.
o Acts 1. 8, 21, 22. & 2. 32. & 3. 15. & 5. 32. & 4. 20, 33. & 10. 39, 41. & 13. 31. 1 Pet. 5. 1. 2 Pet. 1. 16. 1 John 1. 1—3. Luke 1. 2, 3. Mark 1. 1.

Verses 26, 27. Though the enemies of Jesus and his people are many and mighty, he hath provided such supports for them, as shall enable them to triumph over all opposition.

1. His Spirit shall be their comfort and strength. But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me. On the day of Pentecost, the most abundant influences of the Holy Ghost were to be poured forth upon them, he being the third person in the sacred Trinity, proceeding from the Father and the Son, whose peculiar office in the economy of man's salvation is to testify of Christ, as the Spirit of truth speaking in the apostles, bearing witness to the divine glory and grace of the Redeemer, and making the preaching of the gospel effectual to the consciences of men. He is the advocate, convincing men of sin, righteousness, and judgment; the Comforter, filling the souls of Christ's faithful people with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

2. They shall themselves hereby be enabled to bear a noble testimony for Christ. Ye also shall bear witness, preaching my gospel in the face of all opposers, and confirming it by the miraculous powers with which you shall be invested; and your evidence cannot be justly excepted against, because you have been with me from the beginning, and speak the things of which you have yourselves the most undoubted assurance. Note, Ministers can then powerfully preach Christ, when they have themselves experimentally known him, have been with him in faith and love, and for a season have walked in a state of communion with him.

CHAP. XVI.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

We have here the conclusion of Christ's discourse. 1. He warns them of their approaching trials. 2. He promises, (1.) That he should send them the Comforter, ver. 7—15. (2.) That he would visit them again at his resurrection, ver. 16—22. (3.) That he would secure them an answer of peace to all their prayers, ver. 23—27. (4.) That he was now but returning to his Father, ver. 28—32. (5.) That whatever troubles they might meet with in this world, by virtue of his victory over it, they should be sure of peace in him, ver. 33.

1. THESE [a] things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended. 2. [b] They shall put you out of the synagogues; yea, the time cometh, [c] that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service. 3. [d] And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me. 4. [e] But these things have I told you, that, when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, [f] because I was with you. 5.

a Ch. 14. 25. & 15. 11. Mat. 5. 11, 12. & 11. 6. & 24. 6, 10. & 26. 31. ver. 4, 6.
b Ch. 9. 22, 34. & 12. 42. Luke 6. 22.
c Is. 65. 5. Acts 26. 9. & 23. 14. & 9. 1. Gal. 1. 13. Mat. 24. 9 ch. 15. 21. Phil. 3. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 13, 14. Acts iv—xxvi. 1 Cor. 4. 9—13. 2 Cor. 4. 8—12. & 11. 23.
d See ch. 15. 21. & 8. 19. 1 Cor. 2. 8. Acts 3. 17. Rom. 10. 2. Mat. 24. 9.
e Mat. 24. 25. & 10. 17. ch. 13. 19. & 14. 29. Is. 46. 10. f Mat. 9. 15. Mark 2. 19. Luke 5. 34.

¶ [g] But now I go my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou? 6. But because I have said these things unto you, [h] sorrow hath filled your heart. 7. Nevertheless, I tell you the truth; [i] It is expedient for you that I go away: [k] for, if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but, if I depart, I will send him unto you. 8. And when he is come, he will * reprove [l] the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment: 9. [m] Of sin, because they believe not on me: 10. [n] Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more: 11. [o] Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged. 12. [p] I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. 13. [q] Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: [r] and he will shew you things to come. 14. He shall [s] glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you. 15. [t] All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

g Ch. 7. 33. & 8. 14, 21. & 14. 3, 28. ver. 10. 16, 28. ch. 17. 4, 5. Heb. 1. 3. Ps. 110. 1.
h Ch. 14. 1, 27, 28. ver. 20, 22.
i Ch. 11. 50. Rom. 8. 28. 2 Cor. 1. 17. Eccl. 3. 1. k Ch. 7. 39. & 14. 16, 26. & 15. 26. Luke 24. 49. Acts 1. 4, 5, 8. & 2. 4, 33. Eph. 4. 8—13. Ps. 68. 18.
* Or convince.
l Mark 16. 15. Rom. 10. 18. 1 Pet. 1. 12. 1 Thes. 1. 5. Acts ii—xix.
m Rom. 3. 19, 20. & 7. 9. Acts 2. 37, 38. & 3. 13—19. & 19. 18—20. & 7. 54.
n Is. 53. 10—12. & 42. 21. & 45. 24, 25. Luke 24. 26. Dan. 9. 24. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Rom. 4. 25. & 10. 4. & 3. 24—26. 1 Tim. 3. 16.
o Is. 49. 24—26. Mark 12. 27. Ps. 68. 18. ch. 12. 31. & 14. 30. & 5. 22. Col. 2. 14, 15. Heb. 2. 14. Luke 10. 18. 1 John 3. 5, 8. Rev. 12. 7, 8. Eph. 2. 1, 2. Tit. 3. 3—7. Acts 10. 42. & 17. 31. p Ch. 15. 15. with ver. 6. 1 Cor. 3. 1, 2. & 10. 23. Heb. 5. 11. Mark 4. 31.
q Ver. 14. ch. 14. 17, 26. & 15. 26. 1 John 2. 27. Esth. 4. 11—13. r Joel 2. 28. Acts 11. 28. & 13. 11. & 21. 11. & 20. 29. 1 Tim. 4. 1. 2 Tim 2. 1—6. 2 Pet. 1. 14, &c. Rev. iv—xxii.
s Ver. 9, 11. Phil. 2. 8—11. Heb. 2. 9. ch. 2. 11. with Acts 20. 35. 1 John 2. 27.
t Mat. 11. 27. ch. 3. 35. & 13. 3. & 17. 2, 10. Col. 1. 19. & 2. 3, 9.

Verses 1—15. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. Christ lets his disciples know what they had to expect.

1. He tells them what they must expect, and warns them to prepare for it. These things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended: that ye might not be discouraged by sufferings, faint under the cross, and desert the path of duty. They shall put you out of the synagogues, excommunicate you from their society, and assemblies for divine worship; yea, the time cometh, when so infatuated and bloody will their persecutions be, that whosoever killeth you, will think that he doeth God service. Note, (1.) The best friends of the church of Christ have been often branded, by those who pretend to be church rulers, as her worst enemies. (2.) Blind bigotry raises the bitterest persecution; the blood of martyrs hath never flowed more liberally than by their hands, who murdered them, as excommunicated heretics, in the name of the Lord.

2. He suggests the real cause of this treatment. These things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me; though they may pretend the highest attainments of wisdom and piety, and persecute you as a set of poor, illiterate, deluded enthusiasts; yet they are sunk in spiritual ignorance, which, though no excuse for their wickedness, is an argument for you to bear patiently with them, and to pity and pray for them.

3. He lets them know that he gave them these warnings for the confirmation of their faith in him, and to encourage them to bear up when the day of temptation came upon them. These things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them, and have a fresh proof of my omniscience and faithfulness to you. And these things I said not unto you at the beginnign, because I was with you, to bear the chief burden myself, and to comfort and support you. Note, Christ graciously proportions our trials to our strength, and will never suffer us to be tempted above what he will enable us to bear.

4. He assures them, though he was going, and they were dejected, it would be abundantly for their good. But now I go my way to him that sent me, and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou? Though they had asked him with a temporal view, they had no apprehension that he was going to heaven, to prepare an abode for them in glory, and therefore did not pursue their inquiries. But because I have said these things unto you, of my departure and your approaching troubles, sorrow hath filled your heart, when you ought rather to rejoice. Nevertheless, I tell you the truth, greatly as you dread my going from you, it is expedient for you that I go away, and a kind father will give his children not what they foolishly wish, but what he knows will be best for them; for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you; such being the decree of the Most High: but if I depart, according to the eternal counsels, finishing my work, and entering into my glory, I will send him unto you, as the fruit of my death, and the effect of my intercession; and this would more than supply the loss of his bodily presence. Note, We are often melancholy, when we ought to rejoice; much readier to pore over our corruptions, and terrify ourselves with the fear of our enemies, than to exult in the promises, and look up with confidence to Christ Jesus; and this is as dishonourable to him, as uncomfortable to ourselves.

5. He describes the blessed work of the Spirit which he promises to send: When he is come, he shall convince the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment.

[1.] Of sin; awakening the consciences of many, both Jews and Gentiles, to a discovery of their native corruption, actual transgressions, exceeding sinfulness, and liableness to the wrath of an offended God: especially of the great sin of unbelief, this being the damning iniquity, and the cause of sinners' destruction, because they believe not in me for pardon, grace, life, and salvation; and under this view of themselves, he lays them in the dust of deepest debasement.

[2.] Of righteousness; of the perfect personal righteousness of Jesus, whom the Jews had so blasphemed; and of the completeness of that everlasting righteousness which, as the mediator, he wrought out for miserable sinners, and to which the Spirit directs the self-despairing soul to look, as the grand foundation of hope towards God; because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more; his exaltation to the right hand of God being the fullest token of his Father's approbation of him, and that he is well pleased for his righteousness' sake; and therefore he was no more to appear in his present state of humiliation, because he had, to his Father's entire satisfaction, finished the work he had given him to do.

[3.] Of judgment; that all power is given to Christ, in heaven and earth, to sanctify and renew the hearts of his people, and execute judgment on all their enemies and his, the finally impenitent and obstinate sinners, because the prince of this world, the devil, is judged; his power is broken, his kingdom destroyed; and whilst the triumphs of a Redeemer's grace are now continually spreading through the earth, in multitudes rescued from the hands of this enemy, he and all his adherents shall shortly be brought to receive their final sentence at the bar of this eternal judge; and wicked devils and wicked men together be cast into the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.

6. The Spirit shall wonderfully enlarge their understandings, and give them a clear insight into many glorious truths, that as yet they did not fully apprehend. I have many things to say unto you, respecting the abolition of the Mosaical economy, the calling of the Gentiles, the rejection of the Jews, &c. but ye cannot bear them now, through the deep-rooted prejudices which still held possession of their hearts; bigotted to their ritual institutions, and expecting a temporal kingdom. Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, then they should be enabled to receive those discoveries which they now could not bear; for he shall guide you into all truth; opening their understandings to understand the Scripture, as an unerring guide leading them into the most explicit views of the gospel truths, and enabling them to speak and act under his direction with infallible wisdom; for he shall not speak of himself, as a private person, or serving any interest merely his own, but, in exact correspondence with Christ and the Father, whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak, according to the eternal counsels of peace between them both, with which he is fully acquainted, searching the deep things of God, and he will show you things to come; as a spirit of prophecy, enabling them to look into futurity, and make known to the church the things which in succeeding ages should come to pass, even to the end of time.

7. In all this work of the Divine Spirit, his intention eminently is to glorify the Redeemer. He shall glorify me; all the gifts and grace he bestows, and the miracles he enabled the apostles to perform, were designed to exalt Jesus as the Redeemer of men; and bear witness to his divine mission, for he shall receive of mine, and shall show it unto you. Christ hath obtained all blessings for us; the office of the Spirit is to apply them to our hearts, and put us in possession of that pardon, righteousness, adoption, comfort, grace, and glory, which he hath purchased by his obedience unto death in behalf of his people. All things that the Father hath are mine; not only as we are one in nature, perfection, and unity of interest, but as all the blessings he designs for his chosen people, are lodged in my hands as mediator; therefore said I, He shall take of mine, and shall show it unto you. Spirit of truth and grace, apply these inestimable blessings to my soul!

16. ¶ [u] A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again [x] a little while, and ye shall see me, because [y] I go to the Father. 17. [z] Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me; and again a little while, and ye shall see me: and, Because I go to the Father? 18. They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? [a] we cannot tell what he saith. 19. Now Jesus [b] knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye enquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again a little while, and ye shall see me? 20. Verily, verily, I say unto you, that [c] ye shall weep and lament, [d] but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, [e] but your sorrow shall be turned into joy. 21. [f] A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, [g] for joy that a man is born into the world. 22. [h] And ye now therefore have sorrow: [i] but I will see you again, [u] Ver. 5, 17—19. ch. 7. 33. & 13. 3, 33. & 14. 19.

[x] Acts 2. 4. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Rev. 1. 7. Heb. 9. 28. & 10. 37.
[y] Ver. 5, 28, ch. 13. 1, 3. & 14. 2, 28. Mark 16. 19. Luke 24. 51.
[z] Luke 9. 45. & 18. 34. & 24. 25. ch. 12. 16. & 14. 5, 8, 22.
[a] Mat. 16. 9, 11. Heb. 5. 11. Prov. 30. 3. Ps. 73. 22. & 94. 8.
[b] Ch. 2. 24, 25. & 21. 17. Mat. 9. 4. Acts 1. 24. Heb. 4. 13. Rev. 2. 23. Ps. 139. 1—4. Jer. 17. 10. ver. 30.
[c] Mat. 27. 27—50. Mark 15. 15—37. Luke 23, 27. & 24. 17.
[d] Rev. 11. 10. & 18. 7. Mat. 21. 38. Mark 12. 7.
[e] Ps. 126. 5, 6. Acts 2. 46, 47. & 5. 41. & 13. 52. Jude 24. 1 Thes. 4. 17, 18. 2 Thes. 2. 16, 17.
[f] Is. 26. 17. Gen. 3. 16.
[g] Gen. 21. 6. 2 Cor. 4. 17. Heb. 12. 11.
[h] Ver. 6, 20.
[i] Luke 24. 41, 52. ch. 17. 13. & 20. 19, 20, 28. & 21. 1—14. Acts 5. 41. & 13. 52. & 20. 21. 1 Pet. 1. 8. Mat. 25. 23. Is. 61. 7.

and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

Verses 16—22. To comfort his sorrowful disciples, the gracious Saviour suggests farther grounds of encouragement to them.

1. He promises to visit them again shortly. A little while and ye shall not see me, he should be hid in the grave; and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, after my resurrection, because I go to the Father; to enter upon his glory, to appear in the presence of God as his people's advocate, to take possession of the purchased inheritance for them, and at last to bring them to be with him where he is.

2. Some of the disciples, blinded with their natural prejudices, and stupid with sorrow, were at a loss to comprehend his meaning: and repeating his words, inquired of one another, what they understood by them, and all confessed they knew not what he meant by a little while.

3. Christ, who knew the secrets of their hearts, and what was the subject of their whispers, prevented their inquiries by explaining the meaning of the little while he spoke of. Verily, verily, I say unto you, that ye shall lament and weep at his sufferings and death, with all the circumstances of ignominy wherewith it would be attended; but the world shall rejoice, the wicked world; the scribes and rulers would triumph, as if they had obtained a complete victory over him; and ye shall be sorrowful; sunk in deep dejection, their hopes swallowed up in despair; but your sorrow shall be turned into joy; when seeing him arisen from the dead they would triumph, fully assured of his being the Messiah: and with joy still more unspeakable and full of glory would they be filled, when, after beholding his ascension into heaven, the Holy Ghost should from on high be shed abroad in their hearts. Then all their pangs, like those of a woman in travail, when her son is born, would be swallowed up and forgotten in the comfort which should succeed, ver. 21. Ye now therefore have sorrow, because I am leaving you; but I will see you again, certainly and shortly, and your hearts shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you; it will never again be interrupted by any more distress and fears, but continue permanent as the source from whence it flows. Note, (1.) Though we may sometimes be in heaviness, through manifold temptations, it is our comfort that we know our sorrows will be momentary; but our joys, which shall succeed, eternal. (2.) The triumphing of the wicked is but for a moment, and must end in eternal disappointment and misery. (3.) Though children are certain cares, uncertain comforts, we naturally rejoice at their birth; but when we see what a world of sin they are come into, and what snares are before them, we need tremble for them and pray, lest it should be better for them they had never been born. (4.) In heaven all our sorrows will be forgotten, and every tear wiped away from our eyes. Then shall we lament no more the absence of Jesus, but without interruption behold the beatific vision. (5.) Christ hath spiritual joys to bestow on his people, of which a malicious persecuting world can never rob them.

23. And in that day ye shall [k] ask me nothing. [l] Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. 24. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: [m] ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full. 25. These things have I spoken unto you in † proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in [n] proverbs, but [o] I shall shew you plainly of the Father. 26. At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, [p] that I will pray the Father for you; 27. [q] For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God. 28. [r] I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, [s] I leave the world, and go to the Father. 29. ¶ His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou [t] plainly, and speakest [u] no proverb. 30. [x] Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: [y] by this we believe that thou camest forth from God. 31. Jesus answered them, [z] Do ye now believe? 32. [a] Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered every man to ‡ his own, and shall leave me alone: and [b] yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me. 33. [c] These things I have spoken unto you, that [d] in me ye might have peace. [e] In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; [f] I have overcome the world.

k As ch. 14. 5, 8, 22. ver. 17.
l Mat. 7. 7, 11. & vi. 22. Luke 11. 9. ch. 14. 13, 14. Is. 58. 9. & 65. 24. Job 22. 27. m Mat. 7. 7, 11. Jam. 1. 5. & 5. 16. Is. 45. 11. ch. 15. 11. 1 John 1. 1—4. & 5. 13—15.
† Or parables.
n Or parables. Ver. 12, 16—18.
o Acts 2. 34, 36. & 4. 20, 26, 27. p Mat. 6. 7, 8. ver. 27.
q Ch. 14. 21, 23. & 17. 6, 8, 23. with 1 John 4. 10, 19. ver. 28. r Ch. 1. 9. & 3. 19. & 6. 14. & 7. 29. & 8. 42. & 17. 18. & 9. 39. & 11. 27. & 12. 46. Rom. 8. 3. Gal. 4. 4. 1 Tim. 1. 15. s Ch. 7. 33. & 8. 14, 21. & 13. 1, 3. & 14. 28. & 17. 11, 13. ver. 5, 16.
t Acts 1. 3. Mat. 13. 11.
u Or parable. V r. 25. Mat. xiii. Luke xv, xvi, &c. x Ver. 19. ch. 21. 17. Heb. 4. 13. Col. 2. 3. Rev. 1. 14.
y Ver. 27. ch. 17. 8, 14. & 2. 11. & 1. 14. z Luke 8. 25. ch. 11. 26. & 13. 38. ver. 32. a Zech. 13. 7. Mat. 26. 31, 56. Mark 14. 27, 50. ch. 20. 10.
‡ Or his own home.
b Ch. 8. 16. & 14. 10, 29. Is. 42. 1, 6. & 50. 7, 9. & 49. 2, 8.
c Ch. 15. 11. & 14. 30. ver. 4.
d See ch. 14. 27.
Mic. 5. 5. Is. 9. 6, 7. Rom. 5. 1, 10. Eph. 2. 14. Col. 1. 20. e Acts 14. 22. 2 Tim. 3. 12. Heb. 12. 6. Col. 1. 24. Rev. 3. 19. f Is. 49. 24, 25. 1 Cor. 15. 57. 1 John 4. 4. & 5. 4. Gal. 6. 14.

Verses 23—33. An answer to all their inquiries and prayers is promised them in that day, when, under the Spirit's mighty influences, they should in all things be taught and directed.

1. In that day ye shall ask nothing, shall not need to make any farther inquiries about these things, concerning which you are now at a loss, and which I have spoken unto you in proverbs; under similitudes, in parables, and short sentences; and though sufficiently plain, you, through your present prejudices and sorrow, have not understood. The time cometh when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall show you plainly of the Father, make such clear discoveries to your minds by my Spirit, of the whole system of gospel truths; of the divine perfections and personality of the Father; of his gracious designs towards his people; of the nature and end of all my sufferings; and of the glory thence accruing to God, as will be perfectly satisfactory. Note, All the great and glorious truths of God's word are dark and unintelligible, till he is pleased by his Spirit to shine into our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of his glory, and make us acquainted with the great mysteries of godliness.

2. All their prayers shall be answered. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, as your exalted Saviour and great high priest, entered for you into heaven itself, and ever living to make intercession for you, he will give it you. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name, nothing so great as they were now invited to do; or rather had not in their addresses to the Father made use of his mediation, or pleaded his blood and righteousness as the ground of their hope: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full; all that you can wish or desire shall be granted, till the abundant joys of present grace and divine consolations shall reach their perfection in eternal glory. At that day, when the Spirit shall be poured out upon you, ye shall ask in my name, with entire dependence on my atonement, and all-prevailing advocacy; and I say not unto you, I will pray the Father for you; not that he would ever cease to intercede for them, but that the Father would be ready of himself to grant all their petitions: for the Father himself loveth you, is your friend and Father, and reconciled God, because ye have loved me; this blessed effect produced on their hearts might assure them of their Father's love, which was the cause of it: and have believed that I came out from God, as the true Messiah, executing the divine commission received from him. Note, (1.) What an encouragement have we to pray, when the promise is so full? All the blessings which, in humble dependence on our Jesus, we can ask, believing, we are sure to receive. (2.) Nothing so directly tends to increase our spiritual comforts, as the abiding prayer of faith. (3.) God delights in those whom Jesus has redeemed; and as he hath loved them with an everlasting love, he will never cease heaping upon them the constant gracious tokens of his regard, when they approach him as their reconciled God and Father in Jesus Christ. (4.) True faith always works by fervent love; they who know Jesus as their Saviour, cannot but feel their hearts drawn out towards him with enlarged affection, and shortly they shall be made perfect in love.

3. He sums up plainly for their comfort all he had been saying to them. I came forth from the Father, where from everlasting I am, and voluntarily submitted to my present state of humiliation; again, having finished the work which was given me to do, and obtained the eternal redemption of my people, I leave the world, and go to my Father, to that eternal glory which I had with him before the worlds were. This therefore should be matter of their joy, not sorrow.

4. The disciples now enlightened to understand his discourse, with delight express their satisfaction in what he had said, and their entire faith in him as the true Messiah. Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no proverb; the meaning is no longer dark or doubtful. Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee; we perceive that thou art acquainted with our inmost thoughts, and canst answer us, even before we have proposed our questions: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God. Note, Truths, though plain, affect us not, till Christ speaks to the soul: and then we wonder how we could have overlooked before what now we see so clearly.

5. Jesus, who saw that their faith was less established than they apprehended, warns them how soon it would be shaken. Do ye now believe? Behold, as a farther proof of my omniscience, the hour cometh, yea, now is, the moment is at hand that I shall be betrayed into the hands of sinners, and ye shall be scattered every man to his own, flying for safety to any friend's house that will conceal you, and shall leave me alone, in the power of my enemies; and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me; not only as one in nature, and in the inseparable union of the Godhead, but his gracious presence would be with him, as Mediator, supporting him under all his sufferings. Note, (1.) In trying times, many are apt to desert the profession they have made, unwilling to suffer for Christ and his cause. (2.) They who think that they do believe, must not be self-confident: he that thinketh he standeth, must take heed lest he fall. (3.) God never forsakes his afflicted people; when all the world, yea, their nearest and dearest friends desert them, a sense of his love, the light of his countenance, and his supporting presence, will make them an abundant recompense for the loss of all besides.

6. For their comfort, he assures them, the issue of all their trials and his would be peace. These things have I spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace; whatever happened unto them, what he had spoken would afford them a sufficient ground for their support and comfort. In him, by faith in his person, and all-sufficient sacrifice and righteousness, they would find such a peace as the world never knew: beholding their sins pardoned, and God reconciled to them; enjoying delightful communion with him; and, amidst all their trials, their souls kept serene and calm in the confidence of his power and grace to carry them through, and in the prospect of the glory which should be revealed in them. In the world ye shall have tribulation, you must expect and prepare for it; but be of good cheer, be confident of my power and grace, and courageously stand in the evil day; I have overcome the world; I have vanquished the god of this world with all his wicked instruments, and have triumphed over every difficulty which stood in the way of your salvation; and you may be comfortably assured, through my grace and love, you also shall be made more than conquerors. Note, (1.) Every real Christian must expect his cross, and prepare for tribulation: it is inseparable from his profession. (2.) No outward or inward troubles should deject or dishearten us; our Redeemer is mighty, yea, almighty, to save. (3.) Peace in our consciences is our privilege and portion if we do indeed belong to Christ; and usually as our tribulations for Christ abound, our consolations which are by him, abound also. (4.) The world, and the things of it, are great enemies to our souls, and the means which the devil employs to insnare and destroy us; but Christ hath overcome for us, and he will, by his grace overcome in us, till all our foes shall be made our footstool.

CHAP. XVII.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

This chapter is a prayer, the departing prayer of the Lord Jesus Christ. Observe, 1. The circumstances of the prayer, ver. 1. 2. The prayer itself, (1.) He prays for himself, ver. 4, 5. (2.) He prays for those that are his. And there see, [1.] The general pleas with which he introduceth his petitions for them, ver. 6—10. [2.] The particular petitions he puts up for them, 1. That they might be kept, ver. 11—16. 2. That they might be sanctified, ver. 17—19. 3. That they might be united, ver. 11. and ver. 20—23. 4. That they might be glorified, ver. 24—26.

1. THESE [a] words spake Jesus, and [b] lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, [c] the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: 2. [d] As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should [e] give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. 3. And this is life eternal, [f] that they might know thee [g] the only true God, and Jesus Christ, [h] whom thou hast sent. 4. [i] I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. 5. And now, O Father, [k] glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee [l] before the world was.

[a] Ch. xiv—xvi.
[b] Ps. 121. 1. & 123. 1. & 25. 1.
[c] Ch. 7. 30. & 8. 20. & 12. 23, 27, 28. & 13. 1, 31. & 16. 4, 32. with Mark 14. 35, 41. Luke 22. 53. Mat. 26. 45, 46, 51—53.
[d] Dan. 7. 13, 14. Mat. 11. 27. & 28. 18. ch. 3. 31, 35. & 5. 22, 27. Heb. 1. 2. & 2. 8, 9. Eph. 1. 20—23. Phil. 2. 9—11. 1 Cor. 15. 25. Ps. 110. 1.
[e] Ch. 10. 27, 28. & 1. 14, 16. 1 Cor. 3. 22. Acts 5. 31 Is. 53. 10—12. Col. 3. 3.
[f] Is. 53. 11. Jer. 9. 24. 1 John 5. 20. 1 Cor. 2. 2. Phil. 3. 7—11.
[g] Deut. 6. 4. ch. 10. 30. & 14. 9, 10. 1 Cor. 8. 6. 1 Tim. 2. 5, 6. 1 Thes. 1. 9.
[h] Is. 48. 16. & 61. 1. Mark 9. 37. Luke 4. 18, 43. & 9. 48. ch. 3. 16, 34. & 5. 36. & 6. 27, 29, 57. & 7. 29. & 8. 42. & 10. 36. & 11. 42. ver. 8, 18. Rom. 8. 3. Gal. 4. 4. 1 John 4. 10.
[i] Mat. 9. 8. & 15. 31. Mark 2. 12. Luke 5. 26. & 18. 43. ch. 4. 34. & 13. 32. & 19. 30. & 5. 36. & 9. 3. & 11. 4, 40. & 12. 28. & 14. 11. & 8. 29. & 15. 10. Is. 42. 21. Mat. 3. 15.
[k] Ver. 24. Phil. 2. 9—11. Ps. 110. 1. ch. 13. 32. Eph. 1. 20—23. 1 Pet. 3. 22. Rev. 3. 21. & 5. 9, 12. Prov. 6. 31.
[l] 1 Ch. 1. 1, 2. 1 Pet. 1. 20. Rev. 13. 8. Mat. 25. 34.

Verses 1—5. Our Lord having finished his farewell discourse, closes it with a prayer: for those whom we preach to, we should pray for. He here recommends his redeemed to the care and keeping of the Father of mercies, and the blessed effects of it we continue to reap to this hour, and so shall all his church to the end of time.

1. He addresses his prayer to the Father, whom, as mediator and head of his church, he regarded as his superior, and in whose love he herein expresses his confidence. He approaches him as a son with reverence and godly fear, lifting up his eyes to heaven, the place where he peculiarly manifests his transcendent glory. Note, (1.) The object of prayer is God only; and when we approach him, it must be as to our reconciled God and Father in Jesus Christ. (2.) Christ lifted up his eyes to heaven to sanctify this gesture to us, and to justify it against the ridicule of scoffers. (3.) None can possibly belong to Christ who do not show, in a course of habitual and constant prayer, their dependence upon the Father of mercies.

2. He prays for himself; that he may be glorified, and enabled, in the completion of the work he had undertaken, most eminently to exalt his Father's glory. Father, the hour is come, fixed in the eternal counsels for his death; and though it approached with horrors unspeakable, he welcomed its arrival, because he saw that the salvation of his people would be the happy fruit thereof; glorify thy Son; as man and Mediator, he looked for support under his sufferings, that some beams of glory might gild that gloomy scene; that, triumphant over death and hell, he might rise on the third day, ascend into heaven, and sit on the throne prepared for him; where angels, principalities, and powers, should be made subject unto him: and from thence he should send down his Spirit effectually, to establish his kingdom in the earth, and his judgments upon the Jewish people, destroying their city and nation; that thy Son also may glorify thee; by suffering in the stead of sinners, and thereby bringing the highest glory to all the divine perfections; as also by the discharge of his mediatorial office when exalted to the throne of glory, by the mission of his Spirit, and the ministry of his servants, his gospel should be spread abroad, and God's name made great among the heathen. Note, God's glory should always be the great end we propose, in all our prayers and services.

3. He pleads the covenant subsisting between them, and the power with which, in consequence thereof, he was invested as the argument to enforce his request. As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him; all the concerns of fallen man were put into the Redeemer's hand; and in that peculiar remnant, who were to be the travail of his soul, was God peculiarly to be glorified. Note, (1.) Man in his fallen state, is become flesh and not spirit, brutish in his appetites, passions, and pursuits. (2.) Christ hath all human affairs under his mediatorial government, and as such is not only a King of saints, but a King of kings, and Lord of lords. He orders all the temporal affairs of men as shall be most subservient to the salvation of his elect, and shall at last be the judge of quick and dead. (3.) Eternal life is the gift of Jesus Christ; he hath purchased for his people the title to it; and hath, in virtue of his obedience unto death, a right to bestow this inestimable privilege on the many sons whom he will bring unto glory. May I be of that blessed number!

4. He explains wherein this eternal life consists, and what is the way to it. This is life eternal, the earnest, foretaste, and assurance, of it, to know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent: not a speculative knowledge merely, but such as engages fiducial confidence in God, as the only worthy object of our trust and worship, in opposition to all idols; and such a full persuasion of the divine mission of Jesus, as leads us to him as the only Mediator between God and man, and satisfies the soul in the clear views of his fulness and all-sufficiency to save to the uttermost all who come to God by him.

5. He pleads what he had done to glorify God upon earth, as the reason and ground of his prayer and confidence, that the Father would glorify him with himself in heaven. I have glorified thee upon earth, in my doctrines, miracles, and life; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do, of perfect sinless obedience to death, even the death of the cross, for the redemption of sinners. He was now on the very point of concluding his undertaking, and being fully purposed to go through with it, he speaks of it as already accomplished. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with the glory which I had with thee before the world was. Having finished his mediatorial work, he became entitled to the promised reward, and confidently expects to be exalted to the mediatorial throne; and to return to heaven again, there to make a display of his own eternal and uncreated glory, which, during his humiliation, he suffered to be obscured by the veil of flesh. Note, (1.) The Redeemer's work is a finished work; he hath left nothing for us to do: pardon, comfort, grace, glory, are effectually purchased, and his free gift to the miserable and desperate. (2.) They who by grace, through faith, are interested in this eternal redemption, having the same mind which was in Christ Jesus, desire to live only to glorify God upon earth.

6. ¶ [m] I have manifested thy name unto [n] the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and [o] they have kept thy word. 7. [p] Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee. 8. For [q] I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me. 9. [r] I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine. 10. [s] And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.

[m] Ver. 7, 14, 26. ch. 1. 18. Heb. 2. 12. Is. 61. 1.
[n] Ver. 9—12, 14, 16, 24. ch. 10. 27, 29. & 15. 19. & 18. 9. & 6. 37. 2 Tim. 2. 19. Rom. 11. 2. Acts 13. 48.
[o] Ps. 119. 11. Prov. 23. 23. 2 Tim. 1. 13. Jude 3. Rev. 2. 13. & 3. 3, 8, 10.
[p] Ch. 15. 15. & 16. 27, 28. & 8. 28. & 12. 49. & 14. 10. see ch. 16. 27, 30.
[q] See ver. 6, 7, 13, 15.
[r] Ver. 11—24. Heb. 7. 25, 26. & 9. 24. Rom. 8. 30, 33, 34.
[s] Ch. 16. 15. & 10. 10, 11. Acts 13. 48. Rom. 8. 30.

Verses 6—10. Having offered up his prayer for himself, he proceeds to enlarge on the behalf of his apostles in particular, and the disciples in general, who had heard and believed his word. I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world; have particularly revealed to them thy glorious perfections, and the eternal designs of grace displayed in my gospel, forasmuch as they were given to me in a distinguishing way from the rest of mankind: thine they were, not only by creation as men, but by election, as chosen vessels; and thou gavest them me, as the fruit of my travail, to be a peculiar people to me, favoured with my love, and under my especial care; and they have kept my word, embracing faithfully the doctrines which I have delivered unto them, publicly professing, and zealously propagating the gospel of the kingdom. Now, of late their minds have been more clearly enlightened, and they have known that all things, whatsoever thou hast given me, are of thee; that what I have taught them hath the seal of heaven upon it, and that I have acted in all things in perfect conformity, as Mediator, to the commission I have received. For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; all the doctrines of gospel grace relative to men's everlasting peace; how pardon, peace, righteousness, and salvation may be attained by me, and they have received them, in the light and love of them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me, as the promised and true Messiah, invested with divine authority to seek and save lost souls, and to accomplish the redemption of his people. I pray for them, that they may be preserved and kept, and the begun work perfected in them; I pray not for the world, in general, but for them which thou hast given me; that remnant, according to the election of grace, for whose sake particularly I became incarnate; for they are thine by eternal designation, and now by their own voluntary choice and surrender. And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; our interests are inseparably the same, as we are one in nature, essence, and operation, and the redeemed are alike indebted to both for all the blessings of the covenant of grace; and I am glorified in them, in their complete redemption; and by their faith, love, worship, and obedience here below, as I shall be the object of their eternal praises in glory everlasting. From whence we learn, (1.) That the redemption which is by Christ Jesus, extends not universally to every particular individual of mankind, but is confined to those whom the Father hath given him out of the world. (2.) Those for whom Christ doth not pray are called the world, as all their joys, desires, pursuits, and aims, centre in worldly things. They live after the fashion of the world, and will be condemned with the world. (3.) Christ's undertaking was not uncertain respecting its success: he knew that those whom the Father had given him would come to him; and they can never perish whose interests are lodged in his hands. (4.) Keeping Christ's word, holding fast his doctrine, and adorning it by a good conversation, is the substantial evidence of our belonging to him. (5.) The study and delight of every redeemed soul is to exalt the name of Jesus, and to ascribe entirely to him the glory of that rich, full, and free salvation of which he hath made them partakers.

t See ch. 16. 28. Acts 1. 9.
u Gal. 1. 4. Jam. 4. 4. 1 John 2. 16. Rom. 12. 2. x Ps. 16. 1. & 121. 3—8. Is. 27. 3. & 49. 16. 1 Pet. 1. 5. Jude.
y Ver. 21—23. Eph. 4. 4, 5, 13. Rom. 12. 16. & 15. 5, 6. 1 Cor. 1. 10. 2 Cor. 13. 11. Phil. 2. 2. z Heb. 2. 13. ch. 10. 28. & 18. 9. & 6. 39, 70, 71. & 13. 18. Jude 1. a Ch. 6. 70. & 13. 18. 1 John 2. 19. 2 Thes. 2. 3. Ps. 109. 8. Acts 1. 20. b Ver. 6—8, 11, 12. ch. 15. 11. & 16. 4, 33. & xiv—xvi. 1 John 1. 4. Phil. 4. 4. Ps. 1. 2. c See ver. 8, 12.
d Ver. 16. ch. 15. 18—21. 1 John 3. 13. ch. 8. 23. Mat. 10. 24, 25. Gen. 3. 15. Prov. 29. 27. Heb. 11. 13. 1 Pet. 4. 4. 1 Cor. 15. 49.
e See ver. 11. Mat. 6. 13. 1 John 2. 16. & 5. 18, 19. 2 Thes. 3. 2. Gal. 1. 4. 2 Tim. 3. 1—5, 12, 13.
f See ver. 14.

11. [t] And now I am no more in the world, but these are in [u] the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, [x] keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, [y] that they may be one, as we are. 12. While I was with them in the world, [z] I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but [a] the son of perdition; that the scripture might be fulfilled. 13. [b] And now come I to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves. 14. [c] I have given them thy word; and [d] the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. 15. ¶ I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest [e] keep them from the evil. 16. [f] They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

Verses 11—16. Our Lord proceeds in his prayer for his dear disciples, whom he was going to leave, and therefore, as man and Mediator, commends them to his Father's care and keeping. And now I am no more in the world, ready to depart, and return to my radiant throne in glory; but these are in the world, left to conflict a while with temptations, corruptions, afflictions, persecutions; and I am going from them, so that they will be deprived of the comfort of my bodily presence, when I come to thee. Holy Father, essentially holy in thyself, and the author and source of all holiness to thy creatures; keep, through thine own name, those whom thou hast given me; by thy almighty power, and for thy own glory, preserve them from sinking under their trials, strengthen them against their spiritual foes, Satan, the world, and sin; keep them by thy grace, till thou shalt bring them to thy glory; that they may be one, as we are, united in affection and labours, and having the same interests and designs. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name from apostasy, according to the commission with which I was invested, and by the influences of thy grace: those that thou gavest me to be my apostles, I have kept in the faith and hope of the gospel, unmoved; and none of them is lost, and left to perish, but the son of perdition, that traitor Judas, who was from the beginning a child of the devil; that the Scripture might be fulfilled, Psal. xli. 9. cix. 8. And now come I to thee, having finished my work, and returning to my glorious rest: and these things I speak in the world, and offer these requests in my behalf, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves, happy in the present experience of my love: in the quickening, guiding, and comforting influences of my Spirit; and in the hope inspired by the great and precious promises that are in me; so that their joys on earth may increase, and be growing up to perfection in heaven. I have given them thy word, have put them in trust with thy gospel, and furnished them with gifts to publish it through the world; and, because they have embraced the truth, and boldly confessed it, the world hath hated them, unable to bear the reproofs of their preaching and practice; because they are not of the world; in their principles, tempers, and conduct, opposite to the carnal minds and conversation of natural and sensual men, who mind earthly things; as I am not of the world; and my example and doctrine have they faithfully observed. I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, deliver them at once from all the power of their enemies, and put an immediate period to all their trials and troubles; but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil, supporting them under all their sufferings, preserving them from falling into sin, and bruising the wicked one, Satan under their feet; thus causing them to triumph over all opposition. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world; therefore they will be sore thrust at, as I have been: and, as thou hast supported me, let them experience the like protection, and share thy care and love. Note, (1.) The prospect of going to be with God in glory, cannot but make it pleasing to quit a world of wretchedness: the hour of our dismission will be the beginning of our endless felicity. (2.) It is a pleasing, comforting, consideration, that our stability depends not upon ourselves, but is secured by the divine grace and faithfulness: they must needs be safe kept, whom God keeps. (3.) The world is the Christian's grand enemy; and the victory that overcometh it is our faith; and this is the gift of God. (4.) Christ's people have work to do for him in the world: and, however desirable it is to be with him, they must not be in haste to go before his time; but patiently take up their cross, fight the good fight, and hope unto the end. (5.) No man's profession, privileges, gifts, or apparent attainments, where the heart is not right with God, will stand him in any stead: when the hour of trial comes, he will be proved like Judas, a son of perdition. (6.) The Lord will have his disciples walk joyfully, not mournfully, before him; and he hath for this end left us the exceeding great and precious promises, and ever lives to make intercession for us. (7.) The faithful servants of Jesus, who keep his word, and refuse to be conformed to the ways and manners of this wicked world, may expect to be hated by those, against whom their words and works cannot but testify that their deeds are evil.

17. [g] ¶ Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth. 18. [h] As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world. 19. [i] And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be * sanctified through the truth.

g Ch. 15. 3. Acts 10. 9. Eph. 5. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 22. ver. 19. 2 Cor. 3. 18. ch. 8. 31, 32, 51. Ps. 119. 5, 6, 9, 11, 104, 151.
h Is. 61. 1—3. ch. 10. 36. & 20. 21—23. 2 Cor. 5. 20. Eph. 3. 8. & 6. 20.
i Heb. 13. 12. & 9. 14. & 10. 7, 9, 10. Eph. 5. 25, 26, 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. & 2. 24. & 3. 18. 1 Cor. 1. 2, 30. 1 Thes. 4, 7.
* Or truly sanctified.

Verses 17—19. Our Lord had before prayed for his disciples' preservation; here he prays for their sanctification.

Sanctify them through thy truth: consecrate them for their sacred office, and let them be under the powerful influences of thy word and Spirit, that in their own souls they may experience increasing purity, and be enabled for the propagation of the truth of the gospel through the world: thy word is truth; infallibly certain in itself, and the great means of purifying the heart. As thou hast sent me into the world, even so I send them, with the same gospel, and on the same errand, to advance thy glory, and promote the salvation of immortal souls. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, am now ready to offer up myself a sacrifice, and to enter on my mediatorial office in glory, as their great High Priest, to be their eternal advocate; that they also, in virtue of my intercession for them, and by the mission of the Holy Ghost into their hearts, might be sanctified through thy truth, enabled for the practice of all true godliness, and, possessed of the knowledge of the glorious gospel, may be strengthened and made successful in propagating the glad tidings to the ends of the earth. Note, (1.) All Christ's people are made partakers of true holiness: he saves none whom he does not sanctify. (2.) What was his prayer for us, must be ours daily for ourselves, that God would carry on the blessed work of his grace upon our hearts, and perfect that which he hath begun. (3.) The word of God is the great means of our sanctification, and by it, through the quickening influences of the Holy Ghost, are we enabled to grow up into him in all things who is our head, even Christ. (4.) The ministers of Jesus are his peculiar concern, and they who are truly his, prove it by the practical influence his word hath on their own hearts, and the zeal with which they preach the truth to others. (5.) They who go into the ministry under a divine mission and call, may confidently expect the divine assistance and blessing. (6.) All that Christ did and suffered was for our benefit and advantage; and as the merit is transferred to us, if we are by faith united to him, we may confidently expect the reward, in present grace and future glory.

20. ¶ Neither pray I for [k] these alone, but for [l] them also who shall believe on me through their word; 21. That they all [m] may be one; [n] as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee; that they also may be one in us: [o] that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. 22. [p] And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: 23. [q] I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made [r] perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and [s] hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

k Ver. 6—11. Acts 1. 13. & ii—xix. Eph. 4. 11. 1 Cor. 12. 28.
l Acts 2. 41. & 4. 4, &c. m Ver. 11, 22, 23. Acts 2. 46. & 4. 32. Rom. 12. 5. Eph. 4. 3—6. 1 Cor. 1. 10. n Ch. 1. 18. & 5. 19, 23. & 10. 30, 38. & 14. 9, 10, 22. ver. 11, 12. Phil. 2. 6. 1 John 5. 7.
o Ch. 13. 35. & 14. 10. Mat. 5. 16. Acts 4. 13. 1 Cor. 14. 24, 25. p Ch. 1. 16. & 16. 14. & 14. 10, 12, & 20. 21—23. Mark 6. 7. & 16. 17, 18. Rom. 6. 4, 6.
q Ch. 14. 23. 1 John 4. 12—16. Gal. 2. 20. Rom. 8. 11. Col. 2. 9, 10. ch. 14. 10, 20. & 6. 57. Is. 42. 1. r Ver. 21. Heb. 11. 40. & 12. 23. Col. 2. 2. Phil. 3. 15. Eph. 4. 12, 13, 16. s 1 John 3. 1. & 4. 19. Jer. 31. 3. Eph. 1. 6. with ver. 24. Col. 1. 13. Mat. 3. 17.

Verses 20—23. Christ's prayer terminates not merely in requests for his disciples of that day, but includes all his redeemed to the latest ages.

Neither pray I for these alone, my first ministers and apostles, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word, in all succeeding generations; that they all may be one in faith and love, by the preaching of the gospel collected together, and united in one body under the same living head; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee; that they also may be one in us, animated by the same spirit; one in judgment, disposition, designs, desires, and admitted into the nearest fellowship with the Father and his Son Jesus Christ; that the world may believe that thou has sent me, beholding the powerful effects of my grace upon them: and the glory which thou gavest me, I have given them; either the gospel with all its inestimable blessings; or the grace and glory which he, as the great covenant-head of his people, hath obtained in order to bestow upon them; that they may be one, even as we are one, in strictest and most inseparable union with us and with each other, through the same Spirit: I in them, as the head of vital influence to them; and thou in me, by thy Spirit given without measure unto me: that they may be made perfect in one, attaining to the highest perfection of which their nature is capable in eternal glory; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, convinced by the present power of thy grace, displayed in their concord, unity, and mutual love; or beyond doubt assured of my divine character, when they shall be glorified together with me. And it shall then appear that thou hast loved them, as thou hast loved me, when they are made kings and priests, and shall reign with us for ever and ever. Note, (1.) The ministry of the word is the great instrument Christ is pleased to make use of, in order to beget faith in the souls of his redeemed people; and to as many as he will call, and for whom he prays, it will be certainly effectual. (2.) All true Christians are one in Christ Jesus: he is their living Head: they are by faith and love united to him, and joined in one spirit to each other; and what is now begun in grace, shall be shortly completed in glory. (3.) They who are one with Christ, sprinkled with his blood, clothed with his righteousness, and joined to him in one spirit, are complete in him, and as such cannot but be the objects of the same love as God the Father showed to him the Mediator. (4.) They who despise, insult, and ridicule the followers of Jesus, will shortly be convinced, to their confusion, how highly they are, and shall be to eternity, the objects of his love.

24. Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me [t] be with me where I am; [u] that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. 25. O righteous Father, the world [x] hath not known thee: [y] but I have known thee, and [z] these have known that thou hast sent me. 26. [a] And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me [b] may be in them, and I [c] in them.

t Ch. 12. 26. & 14. 3. Phil. 1. 23. Rev. 3. 21. 1 Thes. 4. 17.
u 1 John 3. 2. 2 Cor. 3. 38. 1 Cor. 13. 12. x Ch. 8. 19, 55. & 15. 21. & 16. 3. Mat. 11. 25, 26.
y Ch. 1. 18. & 7. 29. & 8. 55. & 10. 15. & 5. 19, 20. Mat. 11. 27.
z Ch. 16. 27. ver. 8, 21. ch. 6. 69. Mat. 16. 16.
a Ch. 15. 15. ver. 6, 8, 14. Ps. 22. 22. Heb. 2. 12. b 1 John 4. 16. Rom. 5. 5. Eph. 1. 6. ch. 15. 9.
c Col. 1. 27. Eph. 3. 17. Gal. 2. 20. Col. 3. 3. see ver. 23.

Verses 24—26. Our Lord here concludes his prayer for his dear people, with the most comfortable assurance of their everlasting blessedness being secured to them.

Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, all my redeemed, be with me where I am. It is my demand, and I claim it as my right, that they be brought to my eternal kingdom, and may behold my glory which thou hast given me, transformed into the same image, adoring and rejoicing; for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world, and therefore wilt grant all my requests. O righteous Father, whose decrees are just, and whose promises are all faithful and true; the world hath not known thee, thy perfections, counsels, or designs; but I have known thee most intimately and perfectly: and these my present apostles and disciples have known that thou hast sent me, the promised Messiah. And I have declared unto them thy name, thy nature, attributes, and designs of grace according to the everlasting covenant; and will declare it, by farther discoveries to them of thy mind and will, after my resurrection, and by the mission of the Spirit; that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and they, knowing it, may, by experience of the same love, be made unutterably blessed and happy; and I in them, taking up my residence in their hearts, and thus preparing them for, and bringing them to, the fruition of the eternal felicity provided for them before the foundation of the world. Note, (1.) Christ's intercession is not uncertain in its effect; but what he asks must be granted, since he claims only what he is entitled to. Father, I will. (2.) All Christ's people must be with him where he is; and in his presence is the fulness of joy. (3.) The world lieth in ignorance and wickedness: happy are they who are enlightened by Jesus, and called out of the world. (4.) God loves his people with an everlasting love; and a sense of this shed abroad in the heart is heaven begun. (5.) Where Christ now dwelleth in the hearts of his people by faith and love, they have an earnest of the eternal glory which shall be revealed in them when they come to dwell with them in heaven.

CHAP. XVIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

This chapter relates, 1. How Christ was arrested in the garden, and surrendered himself a prisoner, ver. 1—12. 2. How he was abused in the high priest's court, and how Peter in the mean time denied him, ver. 13—27. 3. How he was prosecuted before Pilate, ver. 28—40.

1. WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, [a] he went forth with his disciples over [b] the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples. 2. And Judas also, which betrayed him, knew the place: for [c] Jesus oft-times resorted thither with his disciples. 3. [d] Judas then, having received a band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns, and torches, and weapons. 4. Jesus therefore, [e] knowing all things that should come upon him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye? 5. They answered him, [f] Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also, which betrayed him, [g] stood with them. 6. As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they [h] went backward, and fell to the ground. 7. Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth. 8. Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: [i] if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way. 9. That the saying might be fulfilled which he spake, [k] Of them which thou gavest me have I lost none. 10. ¶ [l] Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. The servant's name was Malchus. 11. Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword* into the sheath: [m] the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it? 12. ¶ [n] Then the band, and the captain, and officers of the Jews, took Jesus and [o] bound him, 13. And led him away to [p] Annas first; for he was father-in-law to Caiaphas, which was the high priest that same year. [q] 14. [r] Now Caiaphas was he which gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

[a] Mat. 26. 36. Mark 14. 32. Luke 22. 39.
[b] Rather, Kidron. 2 Sam. 15. 23. 2 Chr. 15. 16. 2 Kin. 23. 11.
[c] Luke 21. 37. & 22. 39.
[d] Mat. 26. 47. Mark 14. 43. Luke 22. 47. Acts 1. 16. Ps. 3. 1, 2. & 22. 12, 16.
[e] Mat. 16. 21. & 17. 22, 23. & 20. 18, 19. & 26. 2, 21—24, 31, 32.
[f] Luke 18. 37. & 1. 26. & 2. 4, 39, 51. Mat. 2. 23.
[g] Is. 3. 9. Jer. 8. 12.
[h] Ps. 129. 4. & 40. 14. Eccl. 8. 4. This showed that he could easily have killed them.
[i] Mat. 26. 56. & 20. 28. 1 Pet. 5. 7.
[k] Ch. 17. 12. & 10. 28. Jude 1.
[l] Mat. 26. 33, 35, 51. Mark 14. 47. Luke 22. 50. ver. 18, 26.
* Rather, Put up the sword.
[m] Ps. 75. 8. Mat. 20. 22, 23. & 26. 39, 42, 51. Mark 10. 38. & 14. 36, 47. Luke 12. 50. & 22. 42, 50.
[n] Mat. 26. 57. Mark 14. 53. Luke 22. 54. Acts 2. 23. Lam. 4. 20.
[o] Gen. 22. 9. Ps. 105. 18. & 118. 27. Judg. 16. 21.
[p] Luke 3. 2. ver. 24. Acts 4. 6.
[q] And Annas sent Christ bound unto Caiaphas the high priest. Ver. 24.
[r] Ch. 11. 49, 50.

Verses 1—14. His hour being come, the Son of man surrenders himself into the hands of his enemies, having first given them a demonstration both of his power and his grace.

1. Having finished his discourse, he retired over the brook Cedron, to the garden whither he was wont to resort with his disciples, a place the traitor Judas well knew, and which he judged the most convenient to betray him. A garden was the scene of the first man's rebellion and apostasy; and in a garden the atoning sufferings of the second Man, the Lord from heaven, began.

2. Judas, having laid the plot with the chief priests and Pharisees, now got a band of soldiers, together with the servants and officers of these inveterate enemies of Jesus, with whom also some of their masters went themselves, to make sure of their prey; and, as it was night, they took lanterns and torches, as well as weapons, that they might search him out; and, if any resistance was made, overpower his few disciples. Jews and Gentiles concur in bringing him to the accursed tree, who was ordained to reconcile both to God by the blood of his cross.

3. Jesus, far from declining to meet them, or seeking to escape the danger, goes forth to meet them. He knew what was coming upon him; he had undertaken to suffer; and therefore having asked their business, and being informed by them that they sought Jesus of Nazareth, not ashamed of that reproachful name, he saith, I am he, readily offering himself to them, Judas the traitor being at their head. Note, (1.) When duty calls, no danger must deter us from appearing boldly and openly for Christ. (2.) We must not be ashamed of any reproachful name which for the sake of Jesus we are called to bear. His reproach is our real honour. (3.) It is a dreadful change to see the man who was once numbered among the disciples, herding with the enemies and persecutors.

4. Wonderfully powerful was the word of Jesus. No sooner had he uttered it than, struck by an unseen hand, they went backward, and fell to the ground. He that laid them thus low, could in an instant have laid them lower in the belly of hell; but this was the day of his patience, and therefore, though he would give them an evidence of his power, he will yet give them space to repent.

5. Once more he asks them whom they sought, if they dared persist in their atrocious designs; and they with hardened obstinacy, answered, Jesus of Nazareth. He mildly replied, I have told you that I am he, ready to yield up himself, but desirous to secure his disciples from danger: if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way, do them no harm: and this he said with reference to a late declaration he had made, Of them whom thou gavest me I have lost none, and by his present protection of them gave them an earnest of the fulfilment of all the other promises which he had made to them. Note, (1.) Hearts hardened in sin will be restrained by no warnings, nor checked by any providences, but rush madly on to ruin. (2.) Christ knows how to suit our trials to our strength, and will not suffer his disciples to be tempted above what he knows they are able to bear. (3.) He who gave himself to bear our sins, hath by his bonds obtained our discharge. The justice of God hath no more demands; nor need we fear the penalty of a broken law. He hath purchased, by the offering of his own body, eternal redemption for us. (4.) None can be finally lost whom Christ hath undertaken to save.

6. Peter, fired at what he saw, immediately drew his sword, and in the heat of inconsiderate rashness, smote a domestic of the high priest, whose name was Malchus, and cut off his ear. But Jesus, displeased at this unseasonable zeal, bids him sheath the sword, and urges as a reason, the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it? His resolution was fixed, his sufferings necessary, and, whatever power he was possessed of to rescue himself from his enemies, he freely resigned himself into their hands, to do with him according to the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God. Note, (1.) They who are most hasty in their zeal, are not always most steady in their service. Of this, Peter's desertion and conduct afford a sufficient proof. (2.) Christ's cause is not to be maintained by the sword. The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual; and by our meekness we should seek to disarm the madness of our foes.

7. The soldiers, with the officers of the Jews, therefore now seized and bound the voluntary prisoner, and, as a criminal, shamefully dragged him through the streets to the palace of Annas, the father-in-law of Caiaphas the high priest that year; such sad and frequent changes were now made in that high office. This Caiaphas it was, who, in a former debate, had showed his inveterate enmity against Christ, and determined, right or wrong, that it was better to put him to death than provoke the Romans to destroy the nation, as he apprehended would be the consequence, if Jesus were suffered to set up himself as the Messiah. Note, (1.) The bonds of Christ are significant. He was bound with cords, that we might be loosed from the chains of our sins, and that henceforth his constraining love might effectually bind our hearts to him in cords of gratitude which never should be broken. (2.) If we are in bonds for Christ, it will reconcile us to suffer joyfully when we reflect that he was first bound for us. (3.) If one man, Christ Jesus, had not died for the sins of his people they must have perished everlastingly.

15. ¶ [s] And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple: that disciple was known unto the high priest, and went in with Jesus into the palace of the high priest. 16. [t] But Peter stood at the door without. Then went out that other disciple, which was known unto the high priest, and spake unto her that kept the door, and brought in Peter. 17. Then said the damsel that kept the door unto Peter, Art not thou also one of this man's disciples? He saith, I am not. 18. [u] And the servants and officers stood there, who had made a fire of coals, for it was cold; and they warmed themselves: and Peter stood with them, and warmed himself. 19. ¶ [x] The high priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine. 20. Jesus answered him, [y] I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always * resort; and in secret have I said nothing. 21. Why askest thou me? [z] ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold, they know what I said. 22. And when he had thus spoken, one of the officers which stood by [a] struck Jesus * with the palm of his hand, saying, Answerest thou the high priest so? 23. Jesus answered him, [b] If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me? 24. [c] Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest. 25. ¶ And Simon Peter stood and warmed himself. [d] They said therefore unto him, Art not thou also one of his disciples? He denied it, and said, I am not. 26. [e] One of the servants of the high priest, being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off, saith, Did not I see thee in the garden with him? 27. [f] Peter then denied again: and immediately the cock crew.

s Mat. 26. 58. Mark 14. 54. Luke 22. 54.

t Mat. 26. 69, 70. Mark 14. 54. Luke 22. 55—57.

u Mark 14. 54. Luke 22. 55, 56. Ps. 1. 1. Prov. 9. 6. & 13. 20.

x Luke 11. 53, 54. & 22. 20.

y Luke 2. 46. & 4. 15, 16. ch. 5. 14—47. & 7. 14, 26. & 8. 2. & 10. 23. Luke 21. 37. Ps. 22. 22. & 40. 9, 10.

* Better, constantly resort.

z Ch. 7. 46. Is. 45. 19. & 48. 16. ch. 3. 21.

a Jer. 20. 2. Acts 23. 3. Mic. 5. 1. Is. 50. 6.

* Or with a rod.

b Mat. 11. 20. 1 Pet. 2. 22, 23.

c Mat. 26. 57. ver. 13. Luke 3. 2.

d Mat. 26. 71, 72. Mark 14. 69, 70. Luke 22. 58.

e Luke 22. 59, 60. Mark 14. 70, 71. Mat. 26. 73, 74.

f Mat. 26. 74, 75. Mark 14. 71, 72. Luke 22. 60, 61. ch. 13. 38. Mark 14. 30. & 15. 1. Luke 23. 1.

Verses 15—27. Annas, highly approving the deed, and confirming them in their purpose, soon despatched the innocent prisoner to Caiaphas to be condemned. Perhaps his age prevented him from attending in the council; but he wished them to proceed, and would give his sanction to their prosecution. We have an account of what passed in the high priest's palace.

1. Peter denies his Master the first time.

(1.) He followed at a distance to the door of the palace, his courage having somewhat revived, and his curiosity being strong to see what would be the issue of the matter. Thus unnecessarily he ran into temptation, and no good can then be expected from him. We have no promise of protection when we wilfully thrust ourselves into danger.

(2.) A disciple, who was known to the high priest, seeing Peter at the gate, let him in. Some have supposed this was John, who in some other parts of this gospel thus modestly suppresses his own name: but it rather seems improbable that a poor fisherman of Galilee should have such an acquaintance as Caiaphas; and with much more probability the person spoken of was of those chief rulers who believed on Jesus, but dared not confess him for fear of the Jews. But what was intended as a kindness really proved a snare; so often are we hurt by the misguided affection of our real friends.

(3.) The first and feeblest attack quite disconcerted the self-confident disciple. A servant girl that kept the door, observing, probably, his dejected looks, and recollecting his countenance among the followers of Jesus, charged him as this man's disciple, which he instantly denied; and, as if to avoid every suspicion of belonging to Christ, he joined the servants and officers, who, it being cold, and at night, had kindled a fire in the hall, and warmed themselves. Note, (1.) We know not how weak we are till we are tried. (2.) They who mix with vain and worldly company to avoid the imputation of being over-righteous, will usually, if there be any sensibility remaining in their consciences, pierce themselves through with many sorrows.

2. Whilst Peter, instead of appearing in behalf of his Master, was basely denying him, the high priest began to interrogate Jesus concerning his disciples and his doctrine, hoping to find some charge of sedition or blasphemy whereon to ground an accusation against him.

3. Christ appeals to all who had heard him preach for an answer to his interrogatories. If he had done or taught any thing criminal, there could be no want of witness, when many then present had often heard him, and knew the doctrines which he taught. He ever spoke freely, boldly, and openly, preaching in the synagogues, the places of chief resort; and he advanced nothing in private different from what he avowed publicly, nor wished to conceal his sentiments from the world, but to make all men know the truth. Note, Truth neither needs nor seeks the covert; and God's ministers must boldly, openly, and uniformly declare their message to the world, whether men will hear, or whether they will forbear.

4. Just and mild as Christ's answer was to a question so malicious and captious, an insolent officer, who stood by, struck the innocent prisoner with his hand or his staff, and haughtily suggests as if his answer to the high priest was unbecoming. He knew, however infamous such behaviour was, his master would countenance it, and that his insolence would recommend him. When rulers are wicked, their servants will readily imitate their ill examples; and the insults of such abjects are peculiarly bitter. But to this, for our sakes, the Son of God submitted, and thus fulfilled the Scriptures, Isa. l. 6. Mic. v. 1.

5. Christ with astonishing patience, instead of striking him dead, meekly replied, If I have spoken evil, now or at any other time, bear witness of the evil before the court, but if well, and I have spoken nothing justly blameable, why smitest thou me? Note, (1.) When we are suffering, however unjustly, we must in our patience possess our souls, and neither entertain undue resentment nor fly into a rage. (2.) Mild remonstrances, not railing accusations, become the children of God.

6. A second time Peter is beset, and falls. As he stood at the fire, some who stood by challenged him again as a follower of Jesus; and now sunk under temptation, he repeats the shameful lie, I am not. Note, (1.) They who are fallen under one temptation, feel themselves less able to resist the next. (2.) Many who make confident profession when the cause of Christ flourishes, soon disown and renounce it when called to suffer shame for his sake.

7. One of the by-standers, a relation of him whose ear Peter had cut off, hearing him so stoutly deny all connexion with Jesus, on observing him attentively recollected his face, and urged the question stronger upon him, Did not I see thee in the garden with him? So close an attack more sadly disconcerted the unhappy disciple, and urged him the more solemnly to repeat his denial: and immediately the cock crew. Note, (1.) Every sin hardens the heart, and naturally paves the way for a greater. (2.) The slightest incident of providence, which others disregard, God can make to us a most alarming call.

28. ¶ [g] Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto the † hall of judgment: and it was [h] early; [i] and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; but that they might eat the [k] passover. 29. Pilate then went out unto them, and said, What accusation bring ye against this man? 30. They answered and said unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee. 31. Then said Pilate unto them, [l] Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said unto him, [m] It is not lawful for us to put any man to death: 32. [n] That the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled, which he spake, signifying what death he should die. 33. [o] Then Pilate entered into the judgment hall again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, Art thou the King of the Jews? 34. Jesus answered him, Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or did others tell it thee of me? 35. Pilate answered, [p] Am I a Jew? [q] Thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee unto me: what hast thou done? 36. [r] Jesus answered, [s] My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence. 37. Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then?‡ Jesus answered, [t] Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should [u] bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is [x] of the truth heareth my voice. 38. Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, [y] I find in him no fault at all. 39. [z] But ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one at the passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you the King of the Jews? 40. [a] Then cried they all again, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

g Mat. 27. 2.

†Or Pilate's house.

h Prov. 1. 16. & 4. 16. Mic. 2. 1. Ps. 140. 2.

i Acts 10. 28. & 11. 3. Mat. 23. 23, 24.

k Feast offering. Deut. 16. 2. 2 Chr. 30. 17. & 35. 8, 9, 13.

l Acts 25. 27. ch. 7. 51.

m With Gen. 49. 10 Ezek. 21. 26, 27. ch. 19. 15.

n Mat. 20. 19. & 26. 2. ch. 12. 32, 33. For the Jews did not crucify any.

o Mat. 27. 11. Mark 15. 2. Luke 23. 3.

p Ps. 147. 19, 20. Rom. 3. 1, 2. with Neh. 4. 2. Ezra 4. 12.

q Ver. 28. Mat. 27. 2. Mark 15. 1. Luke 23. 1.

r Rev. 1. 5. & 3. 14. 1 Tim. 6. 13.

s Is. 9. 6, 7. Dan. 7. 13, 14. & 2. 44. ch. 6. 15. & 8. 15. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Luke 12. 14. & 17. 20, 21.

‡ Rather, Thou art the king then?

t (i. e.) Yes. Mat. 26. 64. with Mark 14. 62.

u 1 Tim. 6. 13. Rev. 1. 5. & 3. 14. Is. 55. 4.

x 1 Pet. 1. 23. Gal. 4. 28. ch. 17. 17. & 8. 32, 47. & 7. 17. 1 John 4. 6. & 3. 19.

y Mat 27. 24. Luke 23. 4, 14, 15. ch. 19. 4, 6.

z Mat. 27. 15—17. Mark 15. 6. Luke 23. 17.

a Acts 3. 14. Luke 23. 18, 19. Mark 15. 7—11.

Verses 28—40. His envenomed enemies, determined on his ruin, dragged the innocent Jesus very early in the morning, after suffering during the night the greatest insults and indignities, to Pilate, the Roman governor, in order to get him legally condemned and crucified, desirous that he should suffer in the most ignominious way. And we are told,

1. The hypocritical scrupulosity of these pretended pietists. They would not enter the judgment-hall, lest they should be defiled by the touch and company of heathens, and thereby, being rendered ceremonially unclean according to their traditions, should be disabled from partaking of the passover feast, and the sacrifices which were offered the day after the passover. Thus strictly devout would they appear, with innocent blood upon their heads. Well was it said of them, Ye strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel.

2. Pilate, at whose bar Jesus was placed as a criminal, came forth to them in great complaisance, desiring to know their accusation against the prisoner. In answer to so reasonable a question, they haughtily reply, If he were not a malefactor, a person notoriously infamous, we would not have delivered him up unto thee; as if from persons of their eminent sanctity a general charge was a sufficient proof of the prisoner's crimes. Pilate, justly offended at so insolent a reply, and so unreasonable a procedure, bid them take him and judge him according to their law, desirous to rid himself of so disagreeable a cause. They replied, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death; either they had been deprived of the power of capital punishments, or they dared not exercise it through the frequency of the people's crimes: but there was a farther view which they undesignedly answered hereby, even the fulfilling of the prophecy of Jesus, who had signified by what death he should die, Matt. xx. 19. and crucifixion being not a Jewish, but a Roman punishment, it was necessary he should be delivered to the Romans, and executed by them.

Note, (1.) Many of the best of men, like Jesus, have been branded as the vilest of malefactors, without one real crime proved against them. (2.) God can overrule the wickedness of the most envenomed persecutors to his own glory, and make them, when they mean only to gratify their own malice, the means of fulfilling the prophecies of his word.

3. Pilate, having heard the treasonable accusations lodged against Jesus by his accusers, ordered the prisoner to be brought, and examined him as touching the things laid to his charge, the chief of which was setting up in opposition to Cesar; and therefore he demands if it were true that he assumed the character of King of the Jews? Jesus answered, Sayest thou this thing of thyself? under any real suspicion of the truth of the fact? or did others tell it thee of me? by whose falsehood and malice thou art influenced. Pilate, in a kind of derision at the expectation the Jewish people formed of their Messiah, answered, Am I a Jew? no: I concern myself about none of these matters; thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee unto me, as a traitor and seditious person, setting up for a king in opposition to Cesar. What hast thou done? It is to be supposed persons of so respectable a character would not without cause lodge such an accusation. Note, Many think there must be something wrong, when those who are esteemed the most learned and pious condemn and persecute: but we must not take our opinions from the judgment of men, but from the word of God; otherwise, like Pilate, we shall be in danger of condemning the innocent.

4. Christ informs Pilate of the nature of that kingdom which he came to erect. Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world, promising no earthly honours nor emoluments, nor interfering with any secular affair; but is purely spiritual, consisting in a dominion over the souls of men. If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews; but there never had been the least attempt to rescue him, nor any sedition or tumult excited by him, which must have been the case had he affected temporal authority: but now is my kingdom not from hence, it takes not its rise from earth, is not supported by the arm of flesh, nor governed by worldly maxims and human policy.

5. Pilate, beholding his mean, wretched, and low estate, could not help exclaiming, at the pretensions which Jesus seemed here to advance, Art thou a king then? Yes, saith Jesus, thou sayest that I am a king, and so it is; for to this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth of the gospel word in general, and to this truth in particular, that I am that King Messiah who should come into the world. Every one that is of the truth, effectually wrought upon by the Spirit of truth; heareth my voice, receives my word, acknowledges my mission, and bows to that sceptre of grace which I stretch forth to the miserable and the desperate. Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? either he spoke it contemptuously, deriding his pretensions, who set himself up as the voice of truth itself; or if he put the question curiously, seriously, or judicially, he seems not to have waited for an answer; or Jesus vouchsafed not to return one. Note, (1.) Is Christ born a King? then should we yield our hearts willing subjects to his blessed government. (2.) They only know that truth which makes wise unto salvation, who hear and spiritually understand the voice of Jesus speaking in his gospel.

6. Pilate, in his conscience now satisfied of the innocence of Jesus, led him forth, and declared before them all that he found no fault in him. Willing therefore to obtain his discharge, he proposed it to them, as it was an established custom at that feast to release some prisoner unto them, whether it should not be this miserable object, whom, in derision of his pretensions, he calls the King of the Jews. But they, instigated by their malicious priests, rejected the proposition, and demanded Barabbas, a noted murderer and robber, preferring him before the Lord of life and glory. Note, (1.) He who suffered for sins not his own, even by his judge was acknowledged to be innocent. (2.) They who under the dictates of worldly wisdom seek to please men, and maintain a good conscience withal, will find the impracticability of the attempt. (3.) The cry is ever against the cause of truth; but, though it be oppressed for a while, it shall finally prevail.

CHAP. XIX.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter we have, 1. The remainder of Christ's trial before Pilate, which was tumultuous and confused, ver. 1—15. 2. Sentence given, and execution done upon it, ver. 16—18. 3. The title over his head, ver. 19—22. 4. The parting of his garments, ver. 23, 24. 5. The care he took of his mother, ver. 25—27. 6. The giving him vinegar to drink, ver. 28, 29. 7. His dying words, ver. 30. 8. The piercing of his side, ver. 31—37. 9. The burial of his body, ver. 38—42. O that in meditating on these things we may experimentally know the power of Christ's death, and the fellowship of his sufferings!

1. THEN [a] Pilate therefore took Jesus and scourged him. 2. And the soldiers platted [b] a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe, 3. And said, Hail, King of the Jews! and they smote him with their hands. 4. ¶ Pilate therefore went forth again, and saith unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that [c] I find no fault in him. 5. Then came Jesus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe. And Pilate saith unto them, Behold the man! 6. [d] When the chief priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him. 7. The Jews answered him, [e] We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.* 8. ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid; 9. And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? [f] But Jesus gave him no answer. 10. Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? [g] knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee? 11. Jesus answered, [h] Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore [i] he that delivered me unto thee hath the [k] greater sin. 12. And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, [l] If thou let this man go, thou art not Cesar's friend. Whosoever mak-

[a] Is. 50. 6. Mat. 20. 19. & 27. 26. Mark 10. 34. & 15. 15. Luke 18. 33.

[b] Mat. 27. 29, 30. Mark 15. 16—19. Is. 50. 6. Ps. 22. 6.

[c] See ch. 18. 38. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 22. & 3. 18. 1 John 3. 5. Heb. 7. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 19.

[d] Ver. 15. Acts 3. 13, 14. & 2. 22, 23. & 13. 27, 28. 1 Thes. 2. 15

[e] Lev. 24. 16. Deut. 18. 20. with ch. 1. 50. & 5. 18. & 10. 30, 33. Mat. 26. 65.

* The sense is, "By our law he has been found guilty of blasphemy, and condemned; but, on account of the feast, we could not inflict the punishment, and therefore we had recourse to thee." — Bloomfield.

[f] Ch. 18. 38. ver. 4. Luke 22. 67. Is. 53. 7. Acts 8. 32.

[g] Ch. 18. 39.

[h] Acts 2. 23. & 4. 27, 28. Rom. 8. 32. Luke 22. 53.

[i] Mat. 26. 24. & 27. 1, 2.

[k] Luke 12. 47, 48. ch. 15. 22, 24.

[l] Luke 23. 2, 5. Acts 17. 7. with ch. 18. 36. & 6. 15. Luke 20. 25.

eth himself a king speaketh against Cesar. 13. When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement,* but in the Hebrew † Gabbatha. 14. And it was [m] the preparation of the passover, and about the [n] sixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your King! 15. [o] But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your king? The chief priests answered, [p] We have no king but Cesar. 16. [q] Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away. 17. ¶ And he, bearing his cross, went [r] forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha: 18. [s] Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

* A tesselated pavement, formed of small pieces of marble and coloured stones, was an ornamental luxury in use among the Romans.

† i. e. raised pavement.

m Lev. 23. 5—8. Num. 28. 16, 17. Mark 15. 42. Mat. 27. 62. ver. 31, 42. Luke 23. 54.

n Noon tide. Mark 15. 25, 33.

o Mat. 27. 22—25. Mark 15. 11—15. Luke 23. 21—26. Acts 3. 13, 14. & 13. 28. ver. 6.

p Ch. 18. 31. Gen. 49. 10. Ezek. 21. 26, 27.

q Mat. 27. 26, 31, 33. Mark 15. 15, 20, 22. Luke 23. 24—26.

r Lev. 24. 14. Num. 15. 35. 1 Kin. 21. 13. Acts 7. 58. Heb. 13. 11, 12.

s Gal. 3. 13. Is. 53. 12. Mat. 27. 35, 38, 44. Mark 15. 25—28, 32. Luke 23. 32, 33, 39.

Verses 1—18. Having failed in his first attempt to release the innocent prisoner, he bethought him of another, to move the people's compassion.

1. He delivered him up to the officers to be publicly scourged, hoping probably, that after this ignominy and punishment their fury might be appeased. The soldiers to whose custody Jesus had been committed, added the most cruel mockery to his sufferings; and, in derision of the dignity to which he pretended, platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, arrayed him in robes of mock majesty, and bowing the knee, saluted him king of the Jews, whilst with their hands they smote him, and offered him the vilest indignities. Note, (1.) By these stripes he fulfilled the prophetic word, and procured the healing of our guilty souls. (2.) Many make a jest of things sacred now, who will shortly prove them, to their cost, serious realities. (3.) He who endured such pain and shame for us, hath left us his example of patient suffering: how dare we at any time complain, when we see what he endured.

2. Thus arrayed, Pilate once more ordered him to be led forth, hoping this would satisfy his persecutors, and that they might be prevailed upon to let him go; when he adds withal his solemn testimony, that he found no fault in him, and that he therefore regarded him as an object rather to be pitied than feared; and, pointing to him as he stood, wearing the crown of thorns and purple robe, his face black with buffeting and smeared with blood, he said, Behold the man! and let such an object of misery plead with you for mercy. Note, (1.) That Man once treated with such insult and contempt, should be for ever in our eyes the object of our admiration, love, and praise; for, as he humbled himself thus low, the more we see of his abasement, the more the riches of his grace should rise in our esteem. (2.) If we are hooted at, and made a gazing-stock by wicked men, we are only called to a fellowship in Christ's sufferings, and should therein rejoice.

3. Far from being softened and melted by the misery of the innocent sufferer, the chief priests and their officers, more exasperated through the fear of losing their prey, instigated the people, and in a most tumultuous manner headed the mob, and led the cry, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate, shocked at their cruelty and injustice, or ironically reproaching them, who pretended to so much sanctity with so wicked a deed, replies, Take ye him and crucify him, if ye are so madly set upon it; I choose to have nothing to do with so base an action, for I find no fault in him. Fearing that Jesus should yet escape them, they produce a new accusation of a capital nature. Before they charged him as a traitor against the government; now, as a blasphemer against God; pretending, that according to their law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God, and pretended to the incommunicable honours of the Godhead.

4. Pilate, more terrified at that saying, lest he should bring the divine vengeance more fearfully on his head, determined to examine farther into the matter; and therefore taking Jesus into the judgment-hall, demanded whence he came, whether of human or divine extraction. But Jesus, knowing it was useless to reply, gave him no answer. Pilate, resenting his silence as a contempt of his authority, with haughtiness adds, Speakest thou not unto me? art thou mute, though a prisoner at my bar? knowest thou not, that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee? He boasts of his authority as absolute, as able to save or to destroy: so apt are proud worms in office to magnify themselves, and to affect a display of their power.

5. Christ nobly checks his arrogance, and exposes the vanity of his boasts. Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above; as a magistrate, it was from Heaven he received his authority, and should rule with justice; and, in this particular case, had he not been delivered by the determinate counsel of God, not all the Roman powers combined could have prevailed, in the minutest particular, against him. Therefore he that delivered me unto thee, Judas the traitor, or Caiaphas the high priest, hath the greater sin. Note, There is a difference in sins; some transgress with much more aggravated guilt than others, as they act against greater light, and offend with more deliberate malice.

6. Pilate, now more deeply stung in his conscience, sought earnestly to obtain the release of Jesus, but in vain. Had he acted as an upright magistrate, and according to the convictions of his conscience, he would have feared no popular resentment; but his corruptions overcame his convictions; and the fear of offending the people, and perhaps endangering himself, at last prevailed. The Jews perceiving how he was disposed, in order to compel him to consent, clamoured loud, and urged, that if he let this man go, he could not be Cesar's friend; since whoever made himself a king, spoke against Cesar, and was a rebel against his government; though the fact was notoriously false, Christ having never assumed the least temporal authority; he commanded, on the contrary, the tribute to be paid to Cesar; and when the people would have made him a king by force, he left them, and disappointed their designs. But this they craftily urge, as what must most powerfully influence Pilate who might now be liable to an accusation before the emperor for betraying his trust, if he should let one go whom they accused as a traitor. Thus they who in heart abhorred the Roman government, now would appear the most zealous subjects of Cesar. Wicked men, to effect their purposes, can transform themselves into every shape.

7. Pilate, terrified into compliance with their request by this suggestion, and well apprised of the cruel and suspicious temper of Tiberius, the Roman emperor, sat down on the judgment-seat, in a place called Gabbatha, or the pavement, in order to pronounce sentence upon the prisoner. And it was the preparation day of the passover sabbath, a solemn season, when very different subjects should have engaged their time and thoughts; and about the sixth hour. Once more to try if any thing would work upon them, Pilate bids them behold their king, and think a moment if such a miserable object could afford any real cause to fear his pretensions, even if he had affected royalty. But they, impatient for his execution, shouted, Away with him, crucify him; they will hear nothing in his favour, and are determined in their bloody purpose. Pilate remonstrates with them hereupon, Shall I crucify your king? either meaning to excite their compassions, or ridiculing their hopes of the Messiah. They who at other times ever testified their abhorrence of the Roman yoke, now eagerly embrace it, and with deep professions of loyalty, cry, We have no king but Cesar. Pilate then, seeing it in vain to contend, pronounced sentence, and delivered up the innocent prisoner to them to be crucified. Thus was he arraigned and condemned for us, for a pretended crime, that the condemnation due to us for our real rebellions against God might be removed.

8. The sentence is immediately put in execution by his bloodthirsty persecutors, with every circumstance of ignominy. They drag him to the place where malefactors were executed without the city, bearing his own cross, and there nail him to the accursed tree, between two infamous criminals, who were executed with him, to make him appear the vilest of the vile; thus fulfilling the Scriptures, which foretold he should be numbered with the transgressors, Isa. liii. 12. We cannot too frequently in our meditations come and see this great sight. Calvary offers the noblest subject to our view; God incarnate dying for our iniquities: with what anguish for our guilt, which brought the Saviour to the cross; with what love to him, who so freely consented to bear our sins in his own body on the tree, should we then look up to a crucified Jesus!

19. ¶ [t] And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, † JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS. 20. This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written [u] in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin. 21. Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews. 22. Pilate answered, What I have written I have written. 23. ¶ [x] Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his coat: now the coat was without seam, ‡woven from the top throughout. 24. They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled which saith, [y] They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did. 25. ¶ [z] Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of [a] Cleophas,§ and Mary Magdalene.‖ 26. When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the [b] disciple standing by whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son! 27. Then saith he to the disciple, [c] Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

t Mat. 27. 37. Mark 15. 26. Luke 23. 38.

† A public notification of his Messiahship, instead of a charge against him.

u 1 John 4. 14. Mark 16. 15. Rev. 5. 9. This presaged his being preached through all the world in the different languages of mankind.

x Mat. 27. 35. Mark 15. 24. Luke 23. 34. Ps. 22. 18.

‡ Or wrought.

y Ps. 22. 18.

z Mat. 27. 55, 56. Mark 15. 40, 41. Luke 2. 35. & 23. 49.

a Or Alpheus. Luke 24. 18. & 6. 15. Mark 3. 18. Mat. 10. 3.

§ The wife of Cleophas was the same as the mother of James the Less, and of Joses, Mark 15. 40.

‖ There are four women named Mary mentioned in the gospels among the followers of Jesus: 1, Mary, his mother; 2, Mary of Magdala; 3, Mary, the sister of Lazarus; 4, Mary, the wife of Cleophas.

b i. e. John. Ch. 13. 23. & 21. 7, 20, 24. with 2. 4.

c Ps. 68. 5. & 146. 9. 1 Tim. 5. 3. Gen. 47. 12.

28. ¶ After this Jesus, knowing [d] that all things were now accomplished, [e] that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst. 29. [f] Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a spunge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth. 30. When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, [g] It is finished: and [h] he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

d Luke 24. 27, 24. Gen. 3. 15. Ps. 2. 1—3. & 22. 1—21. & 69. 1—21. Is. 50. 6. & 52. 13. & liii.

e Ps. 69. 21.

f Ps. 69. 21. Mat. 27. 48. Mark 15. 36.

g Ch. 17. 4. Mat. 3. 15. Dan. 9. 24. Is. 42. 21. Rom. 10. 4. Heb. 9. 11, 12. & 10. 1—14. Eccl. 12. 7.

h Mat. 27. 50. Mark 15. 37. Luke 23. 46. ch. 10. 11, 15, 17, 18. 1 Thes. 5. 10.

Verses 19—30. The circumstances of Christ's death are here somewhat more fully related than by the other evangelists.

1. On a tablet at the top of his cross Pilate wrote a superscription in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, containing the accusation laid against him, Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews. Multitudes of the Jews then, who came from the city to the place of execution, read the superscription: and the chief priests, offended at the title given him, regarded it as a brand of infamy upon their nation, and therefore wished him to alter the writing into another form, and not to call him absolutely King of the Jews, but that he said, I am the King of the Jews; desiring to fix upon his memory this infamy of an impostor. But Pilate, indignant at the injustice they had driven him to commit, with displeasure rejects their request, saying, What I have written, I have written, and will not alter it. Note, (1.) The innocence of Jesus this very superscription proved. No crime was charged upon him, but his asserting his real character as the King Messiah. (2.) God holds the hands and lips of wicked men, and can, when he pleases, make them write and speak in such a way as shall bear testimony to his truth.

2. The soldiers who crucified him, as he hung on the tree, sat down to part his garments among them; and, unwilling to rend his seamless coat, determined rather to cast lots which of them should have it, fulfilling literally the Scripture which had said, They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots, (Psal. xxii. 18.) These things therefore the soldiers did, being under the secret influence of his power, whom they knew not.

3. In the midst of his agonies Jesus showed the tenderest concern for his afflicted mother, who stood by his cross with the disciple whom he loved; and kindly addressing her, he recommends her to the care of his beloved John, desiring her to regard him henceforward as a son, and directing him to pay her the duty and affection due to a mother; and from that hour that disciple took her to his own home, glad to obey the commands of his dying Master, and well pleased to have an opportunity of testifying his unfeigned love towards him. Note, (1.) Christ on the cross hath taught all children an eminent instance of filial duty towards their parents, whose wants to the utmost they are bound to provide for. (2.) When one friend fails, the Lord can raise us up another, if we trust him, we shall not be destitute. (3.) They who love the adored Jesus, will be happy to embrace every opportunity of testifying their regard for him.

4. Christ knowing that all things were now accomplished, and his work of redemption nearly complete, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, (Psal. xxii. 15. lxix. 21.) saith, I thirst; and a vessel of vinegar being near, which was probably mixed with water as drink for the Roman soldiers, they dipped a spunge in the liquor, and on a stalk of hyssop lifted it to his lips. Jesus felt the wrath of God, and thirsted, which had he not endured, we must for ever have lain down in everlasting burnings, without one drop of water to cool our tongues.

5. Jesus having received the vinegar saith, It is finished; the victory is obtained over death and hell; the work of redemption completed; the full atonement made; all the types and prophecies fulfilled; the law magnified, by a perfect obedience unto death; the justice of God satisfied; the salvation of sinners secured; and therefore now his sufferings end. He bowed his head and gave up the ghost; freely resigning his soul into his Father's hands, and surrendering that life which otherwise none could have taken from him, a ransom for many.

31. ¶ The Jews therefore, because it
[i] Deut. 21. 22, 23. was the preparation, [i] that the bodies
[k] The sabbath and first day of unleavened bread meeting together, Exod. 20. 8. & 12. 18. Num. 28. 17, 18. Is. 1. 13. should not remain upon the cross on the sabbath day, (for that sabbath day was [k] an high day,) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away. 32. Then came [] Passages from the classic writers, show that it was not unusual to break the legs of criminals just above the ancle. the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with him. 33. But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead
[l] 1 John 5. 6, 8. 1 Cor. 1. 30. Is. 45. 24. already, they brake not his legs: 34. But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came
[m] Ch. 21. 24. 1 John 1. 1—3. John 12. 14. Acts 10. 39—41. thereout [l] blood and water. 35. [m] And he that saw it bare record, and his record
[n] Ch 17. 21, 23. & 20. 31. Rom. 15. 4. is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, [n] that ye might believe. 36. For these things were done, [o] that the scripture should be fulfilled, A bone of him
[o] Exod. 12. 46. Num. 9. 12. Ps. 34. 20. shall not be broken. 37. And again
[p] Zech. 12. 10. Ps. 22. 16. Acts 2. 32. Rev. 1. 7. another scripture saith, [p] They shall look on him whom they pierced.

Verses 31—37. This last indignity shown to our Lord's body is only recorded by this evangelist.

1. The Jews, superstitiously observant of the sabbath, and hypocritically pretending reverence for that sacred institution, whilst their hands were red with the blood of him who was Lord of the sabbath, that the bodies might not hang on the trees till evening, when the sabbath began, which was a high day, and kept with great solemnity, they desired Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away; to kill them outright, if they were not dead before, and to bury them immediately. Note, Hypocrites often appear very scrupulous about the ceremonials of religion, whilst they are living in open violation of its most essential precepts.

2. Pilate granted their request; and the two malefactors not being yet dead, had the dreadful operation performed on them; but when the soldiers came to Jesus, perceiving him already dead, they broke not his legs: but one of the soldiers, to put the matter past dispute, thrust his spear into his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water; either the pericardium being pierced, and thus the water it contained rushed out with the blood, or this separate discharge was miraculous, and typical of the great blessings of justification and sanctification obtained by Christ's blood shed for us. And John, who was standing by, adds his attestation, as an eye-witness to this fact, as most indubitably true, that we might believe the certainty of Christ's death, and receive the inestimable blessings which this blood and water signified. Note, (1.) We are polluted with guilt, and defiled with corruption, but this is the fountain opened for sin and for uncleanness. Jesus came by blood to make the atonement; by water, to purge our consciences from dead works to serve the living God: whosoever therefore cometh to him, shall find the mighty efficacy of his blood to pardon the most guilty, and of his grace, to purify the most polluted soul. (2.) We have not followed cunningly devised fables in the gospel of our salvation, but believe on the evidence of facts supported by the most unshaken authority, and attested by the most competent witnesses.

3. In this transaction particular notice is taken of the fulfilment of two Scriptures: [1.] A bone of him shall not be broken, (Exod. xii. 46.) which, though spoken of the paschal lamb, yet especially regarded him, who in the fulness of time, as our passover, should be sacrificed for us, (1 Cor. v. 7.) Another Scripture had said, (Zech. xii. 10.) They shall look on him whom they pierced. Thus were the prophecies accomplished by those who thought of nothing less in what they did, than the confirmation of our faith in Jesus as the true Messiah.

38. ¶ [q] And after this Joseph of Ari[q] Mat. 27. 57—60. Mark 15. 42—46. Luke 23. 50—54. mathea, (being a disciple of Jesus, but [r] secretly for fear of the Jews,) besought
[r] Ch. 3. 2. & 12. 42. & 9. 22. Prov. 29. 25. Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus: and Pilate gave him leave. He
[s] Ch. 3. 1, 2 & 7. 50. came therefore, and took the body of Jesus. 39. And there came also Nico[t] 2 Chr. 16. 14. Luke 24. 56. demus, which at the first came to Jesus [s] by night, and brought [t] a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pound weight.† 40. Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in [u] linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury. 41. Now in the [u] Acts 5. 6. ch. 20. 6. place where he was crucified there was a [x] Ch. 18. 1. Gen. 3. 1—23. [x] garden; and in the garden [y] a new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.
[y] Is. 53. 9. Luke 23. 53. Mat. 27. 60. Mark 15. 46. 42. [z] There laid they Jesus therefore, because of the Jews' preparation day; for [z] Acts 13. 29. 1 Cor. 15. 4. Mat. 12. 40. Ps. 22. 15. the sepulchre was nigh at hand.

† The quantity of spices used by the Jews at funerals was very great. At the funeral of Herod, 500 servants followed bearing spices and aromatics.

Verses 38—42. Though now Jesus seemed deserted of all, and his corpse ready to be laid with malefactors in a common grave, God raises up one who is appointed to give it a more honourable interment.

1. Joseph of Arimathea, who through fear of the Jews had concealed his sentiments, and, though secretly a disciple of Jesus, dared not to profess it, now boldly appears, and begs of the governor the body of Jesus, which was granted. Note, (1.) The higher men are in the world, the greater temptation they are under to shun the reproach of the cross; and though persuaded of the truth of the gospel, not to make bold and open profession of it. (2.) When the more courageous disciples are foiled, God can say to the fearful heart, Be strong, and enable them to appear boldly in the cause of God and truth.

2. Nicodemus, who at the first appearing of Jesus came to him by night, now joined Joseph in this pious work, and provided a large quantity of myrrh and aloes in order to embalm the body of Jesus, as was often done to men of eminent reputation and dignity. No expense to serve him will be grudged by those who truly love the Lord Jesus Christ.

3. They took down the body and wrapped it in linen clothes, with the spices, as was the manner of the Jews to bury their great men: and as Joseph had a garden near the place where Jesus was crucified, in which he had prepared for himself a new tomb, hewn out of a rock, where never man had lain before, there laid they the body of Jesus, it being very convenient, as they were straitened for time, the preparation-day being far advanced, and the sabbath approaching. Thus was our great surety laid under the arrest of death, and consigned to the silent grave, that he might make the clods of the valley sweet to us, prepare our bed of dust perfumed with his own glorious body and comfort us in the reviving hope of following him through the grave, the gate of death, unto a joyful immortality.

CHAP. XX.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

The proofs of Christ's resurrection which we have in this chapter are, 1. Such as occurred immediately at the sepulchre, (1.) The sepulchre found empty, and the grave clothes in good order, ver. 1—10. (2.) Two angels appearing to Mary Magdalene at the sepulchre, ver. 11—13. (3.) Christ himself appearing to her, ver. 14—18. 2. Such as occurred afterwards, at the meetings of the apostles. (1.) At one the same day at evening that Christ rose, when Thomas was absent, ver. 19—25. (2.) At another that day sevennight, when Thomas was with them, ver. 26—31.

1. THE [a] first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away* from the sepulchre. 2. Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the [b] other disciple whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, [c] They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him. 3. [d] Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came to the sepulchre. 4. So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre. 5. And he, stooping down, and looking in, [e] saw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in. 6. [f] Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and seeth the [g] linen clothes lie, 7. And the napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself. 8. Then went in also that other disciple which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.† 9. [h] For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead. 10. [i] Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.‡

a Mat. 28. 1, 2. Mark 16. 1, 2—4. Luke 24. 1, 10.

* Rather, saw that the stone had been removed.

b Ch. 13. 23. & 19. 26. & 21. 7, 20, 24.

c Ver. 9, 13, 15. Luke 24. 10.

d Luke 24. 12. ver. 6, 10, 11.

e Luke 24. 12. ver. 6. 7. ch. 19. 40. & 11. 44.

f Ch. 18. 15—27. & 21. 7. Mat. 16. 15, 16. John 6. 67—69.

g He left his grave clothes as he never more would need them. Ch. 11. 44.

† Believed what? the report.—Campbell.

h Luke 9. 44. & 24. 25, 26. ch. 12. 16. Ps. 16. 10. Acts 2. 25, 31. & 13. 35. Mat. 16. 21.

i Mark 16. 13. Luke 24. 9.

‡ Or, to their companions.

Verses 1—10. The reconciling the accounts of the several evangelists, with regard to the circumstances attending the resurrection, hath exercised the ingenuity of many learned expositors. The fact itself is proved by a great cloud of witnesses.

1. Mary Magdalene very early, while it was yet dark, set out for the sepulchre, where she arrived about sun-rising, and, to her surprise, found the stone removed from the door. Hereupon looking in, and missing the body of Jesus, she, with the other women, ran to Peter and John, and with great concern informed them of the removal of the body of Jesus, they knew not whither. Note, (1.) They who truly love Christ will delight to meet him early. (2.) It is a bitter grief to a gracious soul to feel the absence of Jesus, and not to know where he may be found. (3.) We often make that matter of our mourning, which should afford us real cause for joy. (4.) The communication of our sorrows is often the nearest way to recover our lost comforts.

2. Peter and John immediately went forth, desirous to inform themselves how matters stood; and running together, John outran Peter, and came first to the sepulchre, where, stooping down and looking in, he saw the linen clothes lying, yet went not in. Peter, more courageous, no sooner reached the place than he went in, to gain the fullest satisfaction possible, and observed the grave-clothes, not carelessly thrown down, but each part separately folded up and laid by itself; a certain proof, that whoever removed the body did it deliberately, and not in haste. Hereupon John also now ventured in after Peter, and he saw and believed, either that the body was removed, or that Christ was really risen from the dead; for hitherto none of the disciples had entertained any right notions of the Messiah, nor, after all the Scripture prophecies and their Master's predictions, seem at all to have expected his resurrection from the dead.

3. Hereupon the disciples return to their companions, to communicate to them the state of the matter as it appeared to them and to wait the event.

11. ¶ But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre, 12. And seeth [k] two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. 13. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. 14. And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw [l] Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus. 15. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom [l] seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where [m] thou hast laid him, and I will take him [n] away. 16. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. [m] She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, [n] Master. 17. Jesus saith unto her, [o] Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father:‖ but go to [p] my brethren, and say unto them, [q] I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God. 18. [r] Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

k Luke 24. 4. Mat. 28. 3, 5. Mark 16. 5, 6. It is generally supposed that the angels mentioned by Matthew and by Mark were different. The two mentioned by Luke and John were seen afterwards, and it cannot be ascertained whether they were the same as those mentioned by the other evangelists or not. As to the appearances they assumed, we ought not to be surprised that we cannot comprehend the laws of angelic life. See Townsend.

l Ver. 15, 16. Mark 16. 9. Mat. 28. 9. Song 3. 3, 4. with ch. 21. 4. Mark 16. 12. Luke 24. 16, 31.

m Ch. 10. 4. Song 2. 8.

n Mat. 23. 8, 10. ch. 11. 28. & 13. 13.

o Luke 10. 4. 2 Cor. 5. 16. with Mat. 28. 9.

‖ I do not yet ascend, therefore do not lose time in satisfying thyself as to my bodily identity now, for I shall not yet ascend to my Father. Lose not a moment in conveying the joyful news to my disciples.—Valpy.

p Ps. 22. 22. Rom. 8. 29. Heb. 2. 11, 12. Mat. 28. 10.

q Ch. 13. 3. & 14. 3. & 16. 5, 7, 16, 28. & 17. 5, 11, 13. 1 Pet. 1. 3. Eph. 1. 3, 17. Ps. 89. 26.

r Mark 16. 10, 14.

Verses 11—18. Christ's first appearance was to Mary Magdalene. Much had been forgiven her, and she loved much. Her past conduct was all forgotten, and her unfeigned present attachment to Jesus made her now justly dear to him, and she is favoured with this distinguished token of his regard.

1. She stood without at the sepulchre weeping, being returned the second time to seek farther after her dear Lord: and they who wait constantly upon him, though he withdraw for a while, yet shall they find him at the last; and what they sow in tears they shall reap in joy.

2. As she wept she stooped down and looked into the sepulchre, and saw two angels in human form (the same, as some suppose, which appeared to her before,) Luke xxiv. 3—6.

They were clothed in white, the emblem of their spotless purity, and sat one at the head, and the other at the feet where the body of Jesus had lain, to pay him honour, and to be the messengers of his resurrection.

3. They kindly addressed her, Woman, why weepest thou? She, whose heart overflowed with sorrow, as her eyes with tears, replied, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him: and this she thought a sufficient reason for her grief; but our vexations, like hers, are often imaginary, and of our own making: had we but faith, the clouds would immediately disappear.

4. Christ manifests himself to her; for they who can rest in nothing short of Christ and his love, shall not be disappointed. As she turned herself, she saw Jesus standing, and, because either her eyes were holden, or they were so filled with tears, she knew not that it was Jesus: so much nearer is he to his mourning saints, than they oftentimes are aware. He kindly addressed her in the words of his angelic ministers, Woman, why weepest thou? and she, not attending to him closely, and supposing him probably the gardener, begged to be informed if he had borne the body away, or could give her any intelligence concerning it, that she might give it an honourable interment elsewhere, if it might not lie there. Jesus saith unto her, Mary! his altered tone of voice, and calling her by her name, assured her instantly who spoke; and turning to him, she cast herself at his feet with reverence and rapturous joy, crying, Rabboni! my Master! how welcome, unutterably welcome to her longing heart! Note, When Christ returns after a season of darkness and weeping, then, as the sun shining after rain, the beams of his love are more delightful than ever to the soul.

5. He sends her with the kindest message to his disciples. Touch me not; stay not to express your affectionate regard; the moment is precious: for I am not yet ascended to my Father; you will therefore have other opportunities of seeing and conversing with me. But go to my brethren without delay; in such affectionate terms doth he address those who had so lately shamefully fled and left him; and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God, and your God. Christ owns them in the endeared relation of brethren; assures them he was now entering into his glory, as the covenant-head of his redeemed people; returning to his Father, by eternal generation, and theirs by adoption and grace; to his God, whom, as the man Christ Jesus, the head of his redeemed people, he loved, obeyed, and worshipped; and their God, in a covenant of everlasting love, to bless them with all spiritual blessings in heavenly things in Christ. Blessed and happy are they who can say, The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ is my Father and my God.

6. Mary hastens to carry the glad news to the disconsolate disciples, and with a transport of joy declares she has seen him, and reports the kind message which he had delivered to her. They who have seen Christ by faith, and tasted of his consolations, cannot but delight to tell of him, and to spread the knowledge of his grace.

19. ¶ [s] Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, [t] Peace be unto you. 20. And when he had so said, [u] he shewed unto them his hands and his side. [x] Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord. 21. Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: [y] as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you. 22. And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, [z] Receive ye the Holy Ghost: 23. [a] Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.* 24. ¶ [b] But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. 25. The other disciples therefore said unto him, [c] We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, [d] Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

s Mark 16. 14. Luke 24. 36—48. 1 Cor. 15. 5.
t Ch. 14. 27. & 16. 33.
u Ver. 27. 1 John 1. 1. Luke 24. 37—40. x Ch. 16. 22. Luke 24. 41—43. 1 John 1. 1, 2.
y Ch. 10. 36. & 17. 18. Is. 61. 1—3. & 11. 2—4. with Mark 16. 15—18. Mat. 28. 18—20. Luke 24. 49. 2 Tim. 2. 2.
z Acts 2. 4. & 4. 8. a Mat. 18. 19. & 16. 19. Luke 24. 47. Acts 2. 38. 1 Cor. 5. 4, 5. 2 Cor. 2. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 20.
* Here our Lord is clearly declared to be 'the master of the house' of the whole Gospel economy, proceeding on his own sovereign authority.—J. P. Smith.
b Ch. 11. 16. & 14. 5. & 21. 2. Mat. 10. 3.
c Ch. 1. 41, 45. ver. 2. 13, 18. ch. 21. 7.
d Ps. 78. 8—41. Luke 24. 30. ver. 20. Job 9. 16. Luke 24. 25.

Verses 19—25. The reports of Mary and the women produced little conviction in the minds of the disciples; such fools, and slow of heart were they to believe; Jesus therefore appears to them himself, to put the matter out of doubt.

1. The apostles were all assembled, Thomas excepted, on the evening of the day in which Christ rose from the dead, which was the first day of the week. For fear of the Jews they had shut and barred the doors, when on a sudden, probably whilst they were considering over the strange reports which they had heard, and examining into their credibility, or praying for farther light and direction, Jesus appears in the midst of them, and with the kindest salutation addresses them, Peace be unto you. He upbraids them not with any thing that had passed; it was forgiven and forgotten; and now he is come to put them in possession of that peace which before his death he had so solemnly bequeathed to them. Note, (1.) Where the disciples of Jesus assemble in his name, there will he be in the midst of them. (2.) The peace which our Redeemer bestows, lifts us superior to all our fears.

2. To give them undoubted assurance of the identity of his person, and the certainty of his resurrection, he showed them his hands and his side, which still bore the glorious scars gotten in that conflict he had endured for their sakes, when all their foes were vanquished; and, fully satisfied that it was indeed their adored Master himself, joy and gladness were diffused through every heart, and sat on every countenance. Note, These love-prints in the Saviour's flesh should still be gazed upon by us with faith, delight, and wonder. Whilst they are pleading before the throne, who shall lay aught to our charge?

3. He solemnly invests them anew with their commission from him. Then said Jesus unto them again, Peace be unto you: he would remove every remaining fear, and recover them from their astonishment, that they might hear and receive the commission he delivered to them. As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you; giving you full authority to go and preach my gospel, engaging to qualify you for the work, and to give you to see the most abundant success of your labours. And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost; by this emblem signifying to them, that the Spirit which proceedeth from him, as the breath from the body, should rest upon them, as a quickening Spirit, like that which God breathed at first into the lifeless clay, (Gen. ii. 7.) and should enable them with the abundance of his gifts and graces to discharge that high office to which they were ordained. And as one branch of their divinely delegated authority, he saith, Whose soever sins ye remit, according to the gospel which they preached, and as possessed of that discernment of spirits, whereby they were enabled to distinguish the truly faithful, they are remitted unto them; the absolution which they pronounce on earth he engages to ratify in heaven: and whose soever sins ye retain, because of their impenitence and unbelief, they are retained; and if they die in their sins, the wrath of God, according to their denunciations, must for ever abide upon them. Note, (1.) Though men may give an outward mission, it is the office of the Holy Ghost to call and qualify every true minister of Christ, and, without his inspiration, they who run unsent, will be accounted as thieves and robbers. (2.) Though ministers have no power of their own to pardon sins, or bind them upon the soul, yet, where they speak according to Christ's word, he will confirm their sentence.

4. Thomas, called Didymus, one of the twelve apostles who were first ordained, though now reduced to eleven by the apostasy of Judas, happened not to be present when Jesus showed himself to the rest. By what he was detained, is not said: perhaps the fear which made them lock the doors, kept him away; and if so, for his cowardice and neglect he is justly punished with the loss of that blessed sight which his brethren enjoyed. But whether he was before in the fault or not, his incredulity was justly blameable, when his brethren, in a transport of joy, assured him they had seen the Lord. Resolute in unbelief, he declares nothing shall convince him, but the evidence of his own senses: Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe; a very criminal incredulity, yet was it so over-ruled by divine providence, as to add additional evidence to the certainty of Jesus' resurrection. So far were his own apostles from easily satisfying themselves about the fact, that nothing but the most infallible evidence could have convinced them: and indeed, when they looked forward to what they must expect to meet with on account of their testimony, they needed the fullest conviction of the truth in their own souls, to bear them out in their sufferings.

e Ver. 19. Mic. 5. 5. Is. 9. 7. Col. 1. 20. Ch. 14. 27. & 16. 33.
f Ps. 103. 13, 14. 1 John 1. 1, 2. Ver. 25.
g Ps. 118. 28. & 91. 2. & 73. 25, 26. & 18. 1—3. Phil. 3. 8. 1 Tim. 1. 17. Luke 1. 46, 47.
* The combination of the two sacred names forms the strongest representation of Divine Majesty. Nor may we forget that it was spoken under the direction and inspiration of the Holy Spirit. — J. P. Smith.
h 2 Cor. 5. 7. Heb. 11. 1, 27. 1 Pet. 1. 8.
i Ch. 21. 25.
k Rom. 15. 4. Luke 1. 4.
l Mat. 16. 16. John 6. 69. & 9. 35, 38. Acts 8. 37.
m Ch. 3. 15, 16, 18, 36. & 5. 24. 1 Pet. 1. 9. 1 John 5. 10—13.

26. ¶ And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, [e] Peace be unto you. 27. Then saith he to Thomas, [f] Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless, but believing. 28. And Thomas answered and said unto him, [g] My Lord and my God!* 29. Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: [h] blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed. 30. ¶ [i] And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book: 31. [k] But these are written, that ye might [l] believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that [m] believing ye might have life through his name.

Verses 26—31. Our Lord by his resurrection consecrated the first day of the week: then his disciples assembled, and he appeared to them. A week after he repeated his visit, to put a farther honour on the day, which was henceforward to be observed as the Christian sabbath.

1. Christ appears to them, where they were met together, and Thomas with them, having shut the doors for fear of the Jews. Seven days Thomas was left to his unbelieving doubts, and in a miserable state of suspense; whilst the other disciples rejoiced in their risen Redeemer. But now having punished him for his former neglect and absence, and being joined again in communion with his fellow-apostles, he is favoured with the sight of Jesus, who graciously condescends to give him all that satisfaction which he perversely required. He stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you, according to his former gracious salutation: then, particularly addressing himself to Thomas, to rebuke his infidelity, and satisfy his doubts, he bids him, since nothing else would convince him, put his finger upon the scars in his hands, and examine with his hand the wound in his side, and feel and see the certainty of that resurrection he would not credit, and be not faithless, or incredulous, but believing. Note, Unbelief is the injurious bar which robs us of our comfort, and God of his glory; most justly therefore does it deserve rebuke from Christ, and call for deep humiliation from us.

2. Thomas, quite overcome with the evidence, and confounded and ashamed at his own incredulity, cries out, My Lord and my God, in the fullest assurance of faith, and with the deepest reverence and adoration of his glorious Master. He acknowledges his divinity, and worships him as the object of highest honour, as very God. Note, (1.) True faith regards Jesus not only as God and Lord, but as my God, and my Lord, in whose favour and love we have an assured interest. (2.) We are then disciples indeed, when Jesus is exalted in our hearts, and in our lips and life we confess him our Lord and Master.

3. For a reproof to Thomas, and an encouragement to those who should come after, Jesus replies, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed; refusing every proof but the evidence of his own senses; and, though convinced at last, yet was he culpable in rejecting the testimony which his brethren had borne, in which way the rest of the world must be converted to the faith. And therefore Christ adds, Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed, as the Old Testament saints had done, and, as must be the case with those who afterwards should believe the gospel, on the testimony of the inspired witnesses; their faith is more noble, spiritual, and honourable to God, and will procure the most transcendent blessings upon their own souls.

4. The evangelist observes, that many other signs were given of the resurrection of Jesus, during the forty days he was seen of them, than those recorded in the sacred writings; but the evidence contained in the book of God is fully satisfactory to those who humbly desire information, and who search the scriptures to be made wise unto salvation through them; they will be convinced from these sacred records, that Jesus is the Christ, the promised Messiah, the Son of God, possessed of the same divine nature and perfections, and declared to be so by his resurrection from the dead, Rom. i. 4. and they who believe on him may be assured of life through his name; the life of grace with all its comforts here, and the life of glory with all its unutterable blessedness hereafter, both being effectually obtained by the death and resurrection of Jesus, who hath opened the kingdom of heaven to all believers.

CHAP. XXI.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

We have here another appearance of Christ. We are told, 1. How he discovered himself to them as they were fishing, filled their net, and then very familiarly came and dined with them upon what they had caught, ver. 1—14. 2. What discourse he had with Peter after dinner. (1.) Concerning himself, ver. 15—20. (2.) Concerning John, ver 21—23. (3.) The solemn conclusion of this gospel, ver. 24, 25.

1. AFTER [a] these things Jesus shewed himself again to the disciples at the sea

a Mat. 26. 32. & 28. 7. ch. 6. 1.

of Tiberias: and on this wise shewed he himself. 2. [b] There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples. 3. Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entered into a ship immediately; and that night [c] they caught nothing. 4. But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: [d] but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus. 5. Then Jesus saith unto them, * Children, [e] have ye any meat? They answered him, No. 6. And he said unto them, [f] Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore; and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes. 7. Therefore [g] that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is [h] the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he was naked,†) and [i] did cast himself into the sea. 8. And the other disciples came in a little ship; (for they were not far from land, but as it were ‡ two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes. 9. As soon then as they were come to land, they saw [k] a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.§ 10. Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish which ye have now caught. 11. Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, ‖ an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken. 12. ¶ Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord. 13. [l] Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise. 14. This is now the [m] third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples after that he was risen from the dead.

b Ch. 1. 41, 45. & 11. 16. Mat. 4. 21. & 10. 2, 3.

c Luke 5. 5. 1 Cor. 15. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 5.

d Luke 24. 16. ch. 20. 14.

* Or Sirs.

e Luke 24. 4.

f Luke 5. 6, 7. Ps. 37. 3. & 128. 2.

g Ch. 13. 23. & 20. 2. & 19. 26. ver. 20, 24.

h Acts 2. 36. & 10. 36. ch. 20. 2, 13, 20, 25, 28. & 11. 21, 27, 28.

† The word here used does not, in the original, signify having no clothes whatever on, but not having all the clothes usually worn, particularly not having his mantle.—Campbell.

i Song 8. 7. 2 Cor. 5. 14. Ps. 42. 1. & 84. 2. Mat. 14. 28, 29.

‡ 120 yards.

k 1 Kin. 19. 6.

§ There is no doubt the fire and food was provided miraculously by Christ, as he had just before caused the miraculous draught of fishes.—Bloomfield.

‖ This presaged their being instrumental in converting multitudes to Christ.

l Acts 1. 4. & 10. 41. Luke 24. 35, 42, 43.

m Ch. 20. 19, 26.

Verses 1—14. The disciples being appointed to meet their Lord in Galilee, returned thither, and, till the time came, employed themselves in their former occupations. Christ's servants must never be idlers.

1. Christ appears to them at the sea of Tiberias, where Simon Peter, Thomas, Nathanael, the sons of Zebedee, and two other disciples were fishing. They were unsuccessful all night and toiled in vain: in the morning Jesus stood on the shore, and, at the distance they were, the disciples knew him not. Note, (1.) God's ministers sometimes labour long, and see little fruit: but they must not be weary nor faint in their minds: patient perseverance shall at last be crowned with success. (2.) They who are diligent in their honest calling, are in Christ's way, and may expect his blessing.

2. Christ addresses them in his familiar manner. Children, have ye any meat? They answered, No. He said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship. Rather than return empty, they resolved to make the trial, and to their astonishment found the net so full, that they were not able to draw it up into the boat for the multitude of fishes. Note, (1.) Christ takes cognizance of his disciples' wants, he will see that they have meat to eat. (2.) Our success depends not on our own labours, but on Christ's blessing. (3.) They who go under a divine call, shall find at last, that their labour is not in vain in the Lord.

3. John hereupon suggests this must needs be the Lord. Peter instantly caught the hint, and, fired with zeal and love, girt up his coat, and plunged into the sea, impatient to be at his dear Master's feet: whilst the other disciples, who were but a little way from shore, about a hundred yards, hasted to land, dragging the net with them. Simon joined them, and assisted them in their labour, and to their astonishment counted one hundred and fifty-three large fishes, and yet the net remained unbroken, which still increased the miracle. Note, (1.) Different disciples excel in different gifts and graces: some are more quick to discern, others are more intrepid to execute: some move slowly, but steadily: others blaze with zeal, though not equally uniform: and each especially serviceable in their places. (2.) God's people will all be brought safe to the shores of everlasting rest through every tribulation: and when they are counted over, not one will be lacking of those which gospel grace effectually drew to Jesus.

4. Their Master, who had given them this miraculous draught of fishes, had provided also for their refreshment on shore. They found a fire and fish laid thereon, and bread, to which he bids them add some of those they had caught, and then kindly and familiarly, as formerly, invites them to come and refresh themselves; whilst they in sacred awe at his presence and miracles, kept at a respectable distance, nor durst ask him, Who art thou? which would have implied unbelief, when indeed they were fully satisfied that it was the Lord. Note, (1.) They who act under the command of Jesus, and go forth in his name, shall not want a provision. Verily they shall be fed. (2.) In the ordinances a rich repast is provided for the faithful, and the Master in them will break the bread of life to our souls. (3.) The gospel word is, Come; Christ's arms are open to his people; they will be welcome to all the rich provision of his grace.

5. Christ, as the master of the feast, distributes the bread and fish to them, and did eat and drink with them, to show himself truly alive, and to confirm them in the certainty of his resurrection, Acts x. 41. And still he is the same gracious Lord; they who hunger and thirst after righteousness, shall be filled, and all the cravings of their souls relieved by the abundance of his grace.

6. The Evangelist remarks, that this was the third public appearance of Jesus to any considerable number of his disciples together, whose faith would hereby be more confirmed. Or this was the third day that he appeared to them: the first day of his resurrection he appeared five several times, once the week after, and now again for the third time; and every repeated visit brought new tokens of his love.

15. ¶ So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, [n] Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me [o] more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; [p] thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto n Mat. 16. 17 ch. 1. 42.

o With Mat. 26. 33. ver. 7.

p Ps. 139. 1—4. & 17. 3. 2 Sam. 7. 20. 2 Kin. 20. 3.

him, [q] Feed my lambs. 16. He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep. 17. He saith unto him [r] the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was [s] grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, [t] thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, [u] Feed my sheep. 18. Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt [x] stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not. 19. This spake he, signifying [y] by what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, [z] Follow me.

q Is. 40. 11. Heb. 13. 20. ch. 10. 11, 14. 1 Tim. 4. 16. 1 Pet. 2. 25. & 5. 2—4. Acts 20. 28. Eph. 4. 11—13. r Tim. 4. 2. By lambs is here meant less-advanced disciples.
r With ch. 13. 38. & 18. 17, 25, 27. Peter having thrice denied his Master, Christ puts his love to him thrice to the trial, and thrice repeats his commission to be a faithful and diligent apostle.
s Mat. 26. 75. Mark 14. 72. Luke 22. 61, 62.
t Ch. 2. 24, 25. & 16. 30. & 18. 4. Mat. 9. 4. Heb. 4. 13. Rev. 2. 23. Jer. 17. 10. u Ver. 15, 16. Is. 40. 11. Heb. 13. 20. ch. 10. 11, 14. 1 Pet. 2. 25. & 5. 2—4. Acts 20. 28. Mat. 28. 20. Mark 16. 15. x Acts 12. 3, 4. 2 Pet. 1. 14. ch. 13. 37. Acts 21. 13.
y 1 Pet. 4. 11. 2 Pet. 1. 14. Phil. 1. 20. z Mat. 10. 38. & 16. 24.

Verses 15—19. When dinner was ended, Christ addressed himself to Peter. He knew Peter's conscious heart upbraided him bitterly for his past conduct, and now, to silence his fears, whilst he tacitly reproves his unfaithfulness, confirms him in his office, as fully restored to his favour and love.

We have,

1. The question thrice put to him, Lovest thou me? and the first time Christ adds, more than these? more than he loved his dearest relatives who were present; or more than the ship, and nets, and fish, and all earthly comforts and gain; or rather, more than these love me; because he had once so boldly and forwardly intimated his superior attachment to him, that though all men should be offended, yet will not I; and then it implied a tacit rebuke for his vain-glorious boast. But now that he was restored to favour again, this new obligation conferred upon him required an especial return of love. Note, (1.) Nothing begets genuine repentance, but a sense of Christ's love engaging ours. (2.) When we do amiss, we must not be displeased to have our sincerity questioned. (3.) True love to Christ will make us count every thing trivial in comparison with him. (4.) It is commendable ambition to desire to love Christ more than others, whilst we feel how peculiar our obligations to him are.

2. Three times Peter makes the same reply: Thou knowest that I love thee: he will not pretend any more to a superiority over his brethren, though conscious of the sincerity of his love. The third time, grieved at the repeated question, which seemed to intimate a suspicion of his sincerity, and reminded him of his threefold denial, he adds, Thou knowest all things, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee; and for this he can appeal to him, as the searcher of hearts. Note, (1.) They who are sincere in their attachment to Christ, can appeal for their simplicity to the searcher of their hearts. (2.) Every remembrance of past unfaithfulness should grieve us, though it be forgiven of our Lord, and forgotten.

3. Thrice Jesus bids him prove the sincerity of his love by his diligence and labour in the ministry. Feed my lambs; feed my sheep. Since his iniquity is pardoned, his commission is renewed, and with more abundant diligence he is called upon to discharge his awful trust. He must feed the lambs, the young disciples, and those who are most weak and feeble, considering their weakness, and having compassion on their infirmities as remembering his own. He must feed the sheep, the strong of the flock, willing to expose himself to any dangers for their sake, and, faithfully ministering to them the rich food of the gospel word, for their nourishment and growth in grace.

4. Christ foretells the suffering which awaited him in the discharge of his ministry. He must seal the truth he preached by enduring martyrdom. Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, full of vigour, and walkedst whither thou wouldest; but when thou shalt be old, after a long life of labour, thou shalt stretch forth thine hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not, even to prison; and this he spoke, signifying by what death he should die; and the concurring testimony of antiquity reports, that he was crucified at Rome. Note, (1.) Nature starts at death, as reluctant to go: but grace can enable us to meet it in its most tremendous forms. (2.) Every saint of God desires to die, as he lived, to God's glory; patiently resigned to his will; commending with his dying breath the good ways of the Lord; and rejoicing in hope of the glory ready to be revealed in him.

5. He gives Peter a significant sign of what he required of him. Rising from table, he saith unto him, Follow me; copy my example: follow my instruction; and if he was called to the cross, he must remember, it would be no more than his Master, for his sake, had endured before. Whatsoever we suffer, we should never forget how much more our Master endured, and that this is the way to come to be with him in his glory. We must bear the cross before we wear the crown.

20. Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple [a] whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee? 21. Peter, seeing him, saith to Jesus, Lord, and [b] what shall this man do? 22. Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry [c] till I come, [d] what is that to thee? Follow thou me. 23. Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall not die; but, if I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? 24. ¶ This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things: * and [e] we know that his testimony is true. 25. [f] And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written.* Amen.

a Ch. 13. 23. & 19. 26. & 20. 2. ver. 7, 24.
b Mat. 24. 3. ch. 14. 22. Acts 1. 6. Deut. 29. 29. Job 33. 13. Dan. 4. 35. c Mat. 16. 28 & 26. 64. & 25. 31. 2 Thes. 1. 7, 8.
d Dan. 12. 9, 13. Deut. 29. 29. Luke 10. 41, 42. ver. 19. Mat. 16. 24. e Ch. 19. 35. 1 John 1. 1—3. 3 John 12. f Ch. 20. 30, 31. Acts 10. 38. Mat. 11. 5.
* I agree perfectly, says Campbell, with those interpreters who think that the hyperbole contained in this verse is much more tolerable than the torture to which some critics have put the words, in order to make them speak a different sense.

Verses 20—25. Peter, rising up to follow his Master, on looking back, beheld John the blessed disciple just behind him. Hereupon,

1. He begs Jesus to say, what should be John's lot and labour. Either he was curious to know, or tenderly concerned, lest the same sufferings awaited his dear fellow-labourer. True Christian charity will make us feel for our brethren as for ourselves.

2. Christ checks his curiosity, whilst he answers his question. If I will that he tarry till I come, in some peculiarly glorious display of my power, such as the destruction of the Jewish nation would be, what is that to thee? follow thou me. Note, (1.) It is the will of Jesus, that we should follow steadily the path of duty, without curiously desiring to pry into futurity, content to leave all our concerns in his hands. (2.) Our Lord directs all things according to the counsels of his own will, and that should at all times satisfy us, and make us humbly say, The will of the Lord be done.

3. From a mistake of Christ's meaning, a report spread among the brethren, as if that disciple should not die; whereas Christ said no such thing, but, If I will that he tarry till I come, meaning that he should live to see the destruction of the Jewish state and polity, and afterwards die not a violent but a natural death. From whence we may observe, the uncertainty of all human traditions, and the great danger of submitting implicitly to human expositions of Scripture, however supported by numbers, authority, or antiquity. We have the book of God before us; we have the Spirit of God promised to teach us; let us therefore, after all that others say, read, hear, and judge for ourselves.

4. The Evangelist now drawing to a conclusion, solemnly attests the truth of all he had recorded, being an eye and ear witness of what he writes; and as he was himself absolutely certain of what he said, so were all his brethren; and the truths contained in this gospel are attended with such evidence as must convince every impartial inquirer. They who reject the Scripture testimony, wilfully shut their eyes against the light, and, whatever they may pretend, have no cloak for their obstinate infidelity.

5. He closes with a declaration, that innumerable other miracles were performed by Jesus, besides those here recorded, which, if they were all related with the circumstances severally attending them, not all the scribes in the world could have written them, nor the most retentive memory contain them. Nor would the unbelieving world, who reject the present evidence, have received the truth, though innumerable volumes of Christ's miracles had been written for their conviction. Hereto the Evangelist sets his Amen! What he wrote was infallibly certain; let us add our Amen to his, perfectly satisfied in his testimony, by faith embracing the glorious truths he records, and fervently praying for the accomplishment of all the inestimable blessings which are promised. Amen! Amen!

A PRACTICAL COMMENT

UPON THE

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

Introduction.

THE Author of this volume is usually supposed to be Luke the beloved physician, who wrote the third of the four gospels, which bears his name: and who was very probably one of the seventy disciples, whose commission, Luke x. 1. &c. was little inferior to that of the twelve apostles. This Luke was very much a companion of Paul's in his services and sufferings. Only Luke is with me, 2 Tim. iv. 11. We may know by his style in the latter part of this book when and where he was with him, for then he writes we did so and so, as chap. xvi. 10. xx. 6. and from thenceforward to the end of the book. He was with Paul in his dangerous voyage to Rome, when he was carried thither a prisoner; was with him when from his prison there he wrote his epistles to the Colossians and Philemon, in both which he is named. And it should seem that St Luke wrote this history when he was with St Paul at Rome during his imprisonment there, and was assistant to him; for the history concludes with St Paul's preaching there in his own hired house. It is called The Acts of the Apostles; of the holy Apostles, so the Greek copies generally read it, and so they are called, Rev. xviii. 20. Rejoice over her, ye holy Apostles. One copy inscribes it, The Acts of the Apostles, by Luke the Evangelist. 1. It is the history of the apostles; yet here is in it the history of Stephen, Barnabas, and some other apostolical men, who, though not of the twelve, yet were endued with the same Spirit, and employed in the same work. And of those that were apostles, it is the history of Peter and Paul only that is here recorded; and Paul was not of the twelve: but this sufficeth as a specimen of what the rest did in other places, pursuant to their commission, for there were none of them idle. And as we are to think what is related in the gospels concerning Christ sufficient, because infinite wisdom thought so, the same we are to think here concerning what is related of the apostles and their labours; for what more is told us from tradition of the labours and sufferings of the apostles, and the churches they planted, is altogether doubtful and uncertain, and what I think we cannot build upon with any satisfaction at all; this is gold, silver, and precious stones, built upon the foundation; that is wood, hay, and stubble. 2. It is called their acts, or doings, giving an account of their preaching, sufferings, miracles, success, the planting of the Christian churches by their means, and the vast progress of the gospel through their indefatigable labours. The history ends with the first imprisonment of Paul at Rome, about thirty years after our Lord's ascension.

CHAP. I.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

The inspired historian begins his narrative of the Acts of the Apostles, 1. With a review of the gospel history from the resurrection to the ascension of our Lord, ver. 1—11. 2. With a general idea of the embryo of the Christian church, and its state from Christ's ascension to the pouring out of the Spirit, ver. 12—14. 3. With a particular account of the filling up of the vacancy that was made in the sacred college by the death of Judas, by the electing of Matthias in his room, ver. 15—26.

1. THE [a] former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, [b] of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, 2. Until the day in which he was [c] taken up, after that he [d] through the Holy Ghost [e] had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen: 3. [f] To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them [g] forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the [h] kingdom of God: 4. And, * being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for [i] the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. 5. [k] For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence.

a Gospel of Luke. Luke 1. 3.
b Luke i—xxiv. Rom. 15. 8. ch. 10. 38.
c Mark 16. 19. Luke 24. 51. ver. 9. Heb. 1. 3. 1 Tim. 3. 16.
d John 3. 34. Mat. 3. 16. Is. 11. 2—4. & 61. 1—3.
e Mat. 28. 19, 20. Mark 16. 15—18. Luke 24. 45—49. John 20. 21—23. & 21. 15—17. ch. 10. 41, 42.
f Mat. xxviii. Mark xvi. Luke xxiv. John xx, xxi. ch. 10, 40—42. 1 Cor. 15. 5—8.
g Deut. 9. 9, 18. 1 Kin. 19. 8. Mat. 4. 2.
h Mat. 3. 2. & 4. 17. & 13. 24, 31, 33, 41—49.
* Or eating together with them.
i Luke 24. 49. John 14. 16, 26. & 15. 26. & 16. 7. & 20. 22. Acts 2. 4, 33. & 4. 8.
k Mat. 3. 11. ch. 2. 4. & 11. 15, 16. & 19. 4.

Verses 1—5. St Luke, the supposed penman of this book, addresses it, as he had done his gospel, to Theophilus his noble catechumen.

1. He reminds him of the former treatise which he had written for his edification and instruction, containing an account of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, laying the foundation of that Christian church on which they were to build, until the day in which he was taken up, continuing to instruct them in the nature of his kingdom, after that he, through the Holy Ghost, which the Father gave without measure unto him, had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen, commissioning them to preach his gospel, and, according to the plenitude of his power, enabling them for the arduous work. Note, They who teach must do: a minister's practice must be correspondent with his precepts.

2. He mentions some of those many infallible signs which Jesus gave of his resurrection. He showed himself to his disciples alive, convinced them fully of the identity of his person, was seen of them several times, in different places, during the forty days that he continued on earth; ate, drank, and conversed freely with them, instructing them in the things pertaining to the kingdom of God, informing them of the nature of his kingdom, the powers they should be endued with, the success of their ministry, and the glory which was prepared for them.

3. Christ ordered them, at one of their solemn meetings, not to depart from Jerusalem, whither they had probably come from Galilee, after they had seen him on the mountain where he appointed them to meet him; but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me, fully and confidently expecting that Spirit whom the ancient prophecies had foretold should be abundantly poured out in the days of the Messiah, and of whom he had so often spoken to them before his departure, as the Comforter that he would send unto them from the Father, to enable them for the glorious work which was before them. For John truly baptized with water, and that was all he pretended to do; but ye, according to his declarations, shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost, not many days hence, receiving such abundant measures of light, grace, wisdom, courage, and utterance, as effectually to carry them through every temptation, and make them successful in spreading the gospel, in defiance of all opposition. Note, We must patiently wait, and then we shall assuredly see the salvation of God.

6. When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time [l] restore again the kingdom to Israel? 7. And he said unto them, [m] It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father [n] hath put in his own power. 8. [n] But ye shall receive † power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be [o] witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. 9. [p] And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. 10. ¶ And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in [q] white apparel; 11. Which also said, Ye [r] men of Galilee, [s] why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, [t] shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

l Dan. 7. 29. Amos 9. 11. Mat. 18. 1. & 24. 21. Luke 17. 20. & 22. 30. m Deut. 29. 29. Mat. 24. 36. & 13. 32. Luke 17. 20. See John 2. 21. 1 Thes. 5. 1.
n Ch. 2. 1—4, 33, Luke 24. 49. & 3. 16. Joel 2. 28.
† Or the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you.
o Luke 24. 47, 48. Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19. ver. 22. ch. 2. 32. & 3. 15. & 4. 33. & 10. 39, 41. John 15. 27. Rom. 10. 18. & 15. 19. ch. ii—xiii. p Mark 16. 19. Luke 24. 50, 51. John 6. 62. Mat. 17. 5.
q Mat. 17. 2. & 28. 3. Luke 24. 4. John 20. 12.
r Ch. 2. 7. & 13. 31.
s Mat. 20. 6. Luke 24. 5.
t Dan. 7. 13. Ps. 47. 5. with Mat. 25. 31. 1 Thes. 4. 16. 2 Thes. 1. 7, 8, 10. 1 Thes. 1. 10. Rev. 1. 7.

Verses 6—11. The apostles had not yet quite dropped their apprehensions of the Messiah's temporal kingdom, and the resurrection of Jesus probably flattered them with new hopes.

1. They put the question therefore to him, whether, at this time, he would restore again the kingdom to Israel, raising the Jewish people to the highest pitch of grandeur, and bringing all the kingdoms of the earth in subjection to them; so hard is it to eradicate early prejudices. And even good men are apt to look for a church triumphant, instead of a church militant upon earth: but, when the Spirit is poured out more abundantly, we shall learn to expect nothing here but reproach and the cross, and wait for another world to sit down in the kingdom.

2. Christ checks their vain curiosity. And, as the Spirit, which should be given them, would shortly rectify these mistakes, he tells them it was not for them to know the times and seasons when those great expected revolutions should be brought about, which the Father hath put in his own power, and which are secrets concealed in the divine mind. Note, (1.) Secret things belong unto God. Curiosity to be wise above what is written, is foolish as well as fruitless. (2.) The uncertainty in which it hath pleased God to leave us concerning future events is graciously ordered, to the intent we might be always prepared for that which God hath prepared for us.

3. He assures them that, poor, illiterate, and despicable instruments as they appeared, they should be endued with the most astonishing spiritual powers, through the mighty influence of the Holy Ghost, which should come upon them, when filled with zeal, courage, and wisdom, which none of their adversaries could gainsay or resist, they should be witnesses unto him; asserting his character as the divine Messiah, bearing testimony to his resurrection, publishing the glad tidings of salvation through his name, and confirming the truth of their words by the attestation of the most amazing miracles; beginning at Jerusalem, then going to the Samaritans, among whom before they had been withheld from preaching, and afterwards spreading the glorious gospel to the ends of the earth, not only among the dispersed Jews, but among the Gentiles also. Note, Gospel ministers must preach Jesus Christ, bearing witness to his grace and glory, and publishing to all, the free and full redemption which is obtained for lost sinners through his blood and righteousness.

4. When he had spoken these things, while they beheld, earnestly regarding him, and duly attentive to the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth, he was taken up, and with eager looks they followed him, till a cloud received him out of their sight; and, amidst congratulating angels, he ascended to the throne of his glory. May I follow thee, Lord, with the eyes of faith now, and when it shall please thee, ascend to behold thee face to face!

5. An angelic vision appears to them, as they stood gazing towards heaven after their dear Lord, as he went up, willing to catch the least possible glimpse of him, and keeping still their eyes fixed on the place where he became invisible to them. Two celestial spirits in human forms, arrayed in white apparel, the emblem of their purity and grandeur, stood by them, and kindly addressed them, saying, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? as if ye expected your Lord and Master to return quickly unto you; this same Jesus, which was delivered for your offences, and died on a tree, is now taken up from you into heaven, exalted to the Mediatorial throne, as having finished the redemption of his people, and is gone to prepare a place for them; shall so come in like manner, at the last day of his appearing and glory, in the clouds of heaven, attended by his angelic host, as ye have seen him go into heaven. O that we may be ready to meet him in that great day! O that the expectation of it might be deep upon our minds continually!

12. ¶ Then returned they unto Jerusalem from [u] the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem [x] a sabbath-day's journey. 13. And when they were come in, they went up into an [y] upper room, where abode both [z] Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James. 14. [a] These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

u Mat. 24. 3. & 26. 30. Zech. 14. 4. Luke 21. 37. & 24. 52.

x 2000 cubits; about a mile or more. Luke 24. 50. John 11. 18.

y Ch. 20. 8. & 9. 37, 39. Luke 22. 12. & 24. 53. John 20. 19, 26.

z Mat. 10. 2—4. Mark 6. 16—19. Luke 6. 14—16. Jude 1.

a Luke 5. 35. & 24. 53. & 23. 49. John 20. 25. Mat. 13. 55. & 27. 55, 56. ch. 2. 1, 42, 46.

Verses 12—14. We have here,

1. The place from whence our Lord ascended, the mount Olivet, about a mile from Jerusalem. There his sufferings began in the garden, and thence he entered into his glory as a triumphant conqueror, (Zech. xiv. 4.) in full view of that devoted city, for which judgment was now prepared.

2. The return of the disciples. They came back to the city, according to their Master's orders, and when they were come in, either into a private house, or, as some suppose, into the temple itself, see Luke xxiv. 53. they went into an upper room, for greater secrecy. If this was in the temple, they might be accommodated by some priest or Levite, who was a hidden disciple, with a room there; or, if it was in the city, though they constantly attended the temple service, they met in private there, and spent their time, with one accord, in prayer and supplications for the coming of that Comforter who was promised. The eleven apostles are particularly mentioned, all of whom kept close together, with the women, who had approved their fidelity, love and zeal, in a very distinguished manner, and Mary the mother of Jesus, concerning whom we hear no more mention ever after; and his brethren, those of Christ's kinsmen, who now believed on him, see Mat. xiii. 55. with many others. Note, (1.) It is good for the disciples of Jesus to unite together: the world is closely leagued against them. They need therefore maintain the closest fellowship with each other. (2.) Prayer is the blessed and constant employment of God's people; and especially in all seasons of particular trial, when their faith and patience are called into exercise, they have need to redouble their supplications. (2.) Nothing can be denied to the united prayers of the faithful, who with one accord surround a throne of grace in the name of Jesus.

15. ¶ And in those days [b] Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (the number of the [c] names together were about an hundred and twenty,*) 16. Men and brethren, [d] this scripture must needs have been fulfilled, which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus. 17. For he was [e] numbered with us, and had obtained part of this [f] ministry. 18. [g] Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity; and, [h] falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out. 19. And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem: insomuch as that field is called, in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say, The field of blood. 20. For it is written in the book of Psalms, [i] Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and his [k] bishoprick let another take. 21. Wherefore of these men which have companied with us [l] all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, 22. Beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a [m] witness with us of his resurrection. 23. And they appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. 24. And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, [n] which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen, 25. That he may take part of [o] this ministry and apostleship, from which [p] Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place. 26. [q] And b John 18. 27. & 21. 15—17.

c Persons. Rev. 3. 4. & 11. 13.

* Probably it is meant that 120 were then assembled. The whole number of disciples is supposed to have been at this time nearly 600.

d Ps. 41. 9. & 55. 12—14. John 13. 18. & 18. 2—12. with ch. 2. 23. & 4. 27, 28. & 13. 27.

e John 6. 70, 71. Mat. 10. 4. Luke 6. 16. ver. 25.

f Ch. 12. 25. & 20. 24. & 21. 19.

g Mat. 27. 5—10. & 26. 15. 2 Pet. 2. 15.

h Mat. 27. 5. Ps. 55. 15, 23. These particulars are supplementary to those in Matthew.

i Ps. 69. 25. & 109. 8.

k Or Office, or charge of overseeing. Ch. 20. 28. 1 Pet. 5. 2.

l Mat. iii—xxviii. Mark i—xvi. Luke ii—xxiv. John i—xxi. ver. 9.

m Ver. 8. ch. 2. 32. & 10. 39, 41. & 13. 31. Heb. 2. 3.

n Deut. 31. 21. 1 Sam. 16. 7. Ps. 7. 9. & 44. 21. & 94. 9—11. Prov. 15. 11. Jer. 11. 20. & 17. 10. & 20. 12. ch. 15. 8. Heb. 4. 13. Rev. 2. 23. John 2. 24, 25.

o Ver. 17, 20. Ps. 109. 8.

p Ver. 16—21. Mat. 26. 14—16. 24. & 27. 3—5.

q Prov. 16. 33. 1 Chr. 24. 5. Lev. 16. 8.

they gave forth their lots: and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

Verses 15—26. At one of these solemn meetings, where about a hundred and twenty of the disciples were assembled, Peter, the zealous servant of his Lord, stood up in the midst of them; not affecting to sit, as their master or superior, but proposing a matter to them as his equals. We have,

1. His speech. He addresses them as his friends, companions and brethren in Christ; and having an important proposal to make to them, he reminds them of the fulfilment of the Scripture, in the wickedness and miserable end of Judas the traitor, whose treachery the Holy Ghost having foreseen and foretold, it could not but come to pass, and none ought to be offended thereat. As an aggravation of his guilt, Peter observes,

(1.) The high dignity to which he was advanced. He was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry; and this but the more aggravated his sin and ruin. Note, Many are numbered with us who are not of us; but a name to live, whilst persons are really dead in trespasses and sins, will avail nothing.

(2.) His sin was treachery. He was guide to them that took Jesus; a ringleader in iniquity, as apostates usually prove.

(3.) His end was notorious. His money, the wages of unrighteousness, served only to buy a field to bury strangers; and driven by the devil and a despairing conscience, he went and hanged himself, when the rope, or the place on which he hung, giving way, he fell, and his belly bursting asunder, his bowels gushed out; a fearful exit! of which great notice was deservedly taken; the fact being publicly known in Jerusalem, and noised abroad, insomuch that the people called the field purchased by this money, Aceldama, or The field of blood, with respect to the innocent blood of which it was the price; perpetuating thereby the infamy, not only of the traitor, who sold his master, but of the rulers who tempted him to this atrocious deed.

(4.) He cites the book of Psalms, in which the prophecy relating to Judas was found. Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein, Psal. lxix. 25. and his bishoprick let another take, Psal. cix. 8.

(5.) He proposes to them, according to this prophetic word, that the sacred college should be filled up by the addition of one to their number, out of those who had approved themselves from the beginning faithful, and had been among the first who followed Jesus, and privy to all the transactions concerning him, from the time he was baptized of John in Jordan, till his ascension to glory, that he might with them be a witness of his resurrection, of that grand article of faith, as well as of all the other glorious things relative to Christ's divine mission and character. Note, (1.) None should be admitted into the ministry, but such as for a season have proved their fidelity to Christ, in a course of holy walking with him. (2.) They who have known Christ, and the power of his resurrection in their souls, cannot but make him the subject of all their discourses.

2. The church approving the proposal, nominated two, Joseph and Matthias; and not knowing which to prefer, they applied to God, the searcher of hearts, by prayer, for direction, that he would be pleased to show them which of these he had chosen to take part of that ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place, the dire abode prepared for fallen angels and rebellious sinners. Note, (1.) In our emergencies we should never fail to look up to God for direction. (2.) Apostates from Christ necessarily plunge themselves into perdition and destruction.

3. Having commended the matter to God's determination, they solemnly cast lots; when the Lord, at whose disposal the lot is, Prov. xvi. 33. appointed Matthias, who was thenceforward numbered with the eleven apostles.

CHAP. II.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

Here is, 1. The descent of the Spirit upon the apostles, and those that were with them on the day of Pentecost, ver. 1—4. 2. The various speculations which this occasioned among the people that were now met in Jerusalem from all parts, ver. 5—13. 3. The sermon which Peter preached to them hereupon, ver. 14—36. 4. The good effects of this sermon in the conversion of many to the faith of Christ, and their addition to the church, ver. 37—41 5. The eminent piety and charity of those primitive Christians, and the manifest tokens of God's presence with them, and power in them, ver. 42—47.

1. AND [a] when the day of Pentecost was fully come, [b] they were all with one accord in one place. 2. [c] And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. 3. And there appeared unto them [d] cloven tongues, like as of [e] fire, and it sat upon each of them. 4. [f] And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

[a] Deut. 16. 19. Lev. 23. 15, 26. Num. 28. 26.
[b] Ch. 1. 13, 15. ver. 46. Zeph. 3. 9. Luke 24. 53. Neh. 4. 9. & 6. 3.
[c] Ch. 4. 31. & 1. 8. Luke 24. 49. John 3. 8. Ezek. 37. 9.
[d] Ver. 4, 6, 8. ch. 10. 46. & 15. 8. Not cloven, but distributed.
[e] Mat. 3. 11. Jer. 23. 29.
[f] Joel 2. 28. Is. 44. 3—5. ch. 1. 5. & 11. 15. John 14. 16, 26. & 15. 26. & 16. 7. & 20. 22. Mark 16. 17.
Ps. 8. 2. 2 Pet. 1. 21. ch. 10. 45, 46. & 19. 6. 1 Cor. xii, xiv.

Verses 1—4. The great promise here receives its accomplishment in the mission of the Holy Ghost upon the disciples. We have,

1. The time: When the day of Pentecost, the fiftieth from the passover, was fully come, in the morning, they were all with one accord in one place; it being the first day of the week, which they observed in memory of their Lord's resurrection, and consecrated also now by the pouring out of the Spirit upon them. No longer strifes or discord divided them; united in fervent charity, they waited the fulfilment of their Master's promise. Note, (1.) They who wait upon God in the assembly of his saints, shall find him by his Spirit still present in the midst of them. (2.) God will delight to dwell with those whose hearts by fervent charity are united in his service.

2. The manner in which the Holy Ghost descended. Suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, an emblem of the freedom of the Spirit's operations, and of his irresistible energy on the minds of men; and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, signifying the illuminating, warming, and purifying influences of the Spirit upon their souls, and the amazing gift of tongues bestowed upon them with that freedom of utterance, whereby they were enabled to preach the gospel among all nations; and it, or he, sat upon each of them; the Holy Ghost, in all the fulness of his miraculous operations, now taking up his constant residence in them, to qualify them for the arduous service to which they were ordained. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost; not only the apostles, but all the disciples; and probably the women, as well as the men, ver. 17, 18. experiencing such divine joys and consolations as they had never experienced before: and began to speak with other tongues, in all the variety of languages as the Spirit gave them utterance, suggesting both the matter and words, and enabling them with the greatest copiousness and most forcible energy, to declare the wonderful works of God, ver. 11. in the gospel of his dear Son.

5. [g] And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven. 6. Now * when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were [h] confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language. 7. And they were all [i] amazed, and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak [k] Galileans? 8. And [l] how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born? 9. Parthians, and [m] Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in [n] Mesopotamia, and in Judea, and [o] Cappadocia, in Pontus, and [p] Asia, 10. [q] Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in [r] Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of [s] Rome, [t] Jews and proselytes, 11. [u] Cretes and [x] Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the [y] wonderful works of God. 12. [z] And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this? 13. [a] Others, mocking, said, These men are full of new wine.

[g] Exod. 23. 16, 17. & 34. 23. Lev. 23. 15—21. 1 Pet.

* Gr. when this voice was made.
h Or troubled in mind. Ver. 7, 12. Mat. 2. 3.
i Ver. 12. ch. 3. 10. & 4. 13. & 1. 10, 11.
k Mat. 4. 18—22. Mark 2. 13, 14. John 1. 43—46. & 7. 52. Luke 13. 1, 2. ch. 1. 11.
l Ver. 7. Luke 1. 34.
m Is. 21. 2. Dan. 5. 28.
n Ch. 7. 2. Judg. 3. 8.
o 1 Pet. 1. 1.
p Ch. 16. 6. Rev. 1. 11.
q Ch. 16. 6. & 18. 13.
r Exod. 1. 1. Ezek. 38. 5. Mark 15. 21. ch. 6. 9.
s Ch. 18. 2. & 22. 11.
t Exod. 12. 47—49. Is. 56. 6, 8.
u Ch. 27. 7. Tit. 1. 5, 12.
x Gal. 4. 25. & 1. 17.
y Ch. 10. 38—48. & 1. 1—3, 22. & 3. 13. ver. 22—24.
z Ver. 6, 7. Luke 5. 9, 26.
a Or, sweet wine. 1 Sam. 1. 14. Mat. 11. 19. 1 Cor. 2. 14.

Verses 5—13. Such an extraordinary occurrence was soon spread abroad, and brought a vast concourse together. We have,

1. The persons. Devout men, who dwelt at Jerusalem, out of every nation under heaven; both Jews and proselytes, who were now assembled at the feast of Pentecost, or, as some suppose, had taken up their residence there, in expectation of the speedy appearing of the Messiah.

2. The amazement which filled them at hearing these men, that were poor illiterate Galileans, speak with such fluency and propriety, all the various languages and dialects of their respective countries, Parthians, Medes, &c. They could not, therefore, but with wonder and surprise, observe to each other, how astonishing was this miracle, and question what could be the meaning of it, and whether it ushered in the long expected kingdom of the Messiah? for they heard them speak in their several native tongues the great things of God, respecting the redemption which was in Jesus Christ, and the glorious privileges obtained, by his death, resurrection, and ascension, for all believers.

3. Some, mocking, said, These men are full of new wine: a cavil most wicked, absurd, and blasphemous. Probably these were inhabitants of Jerusalem, the Scribes and Pharisees, who, not understanding the languages which the inspired disciples spoke, thought it nonsense, and would fain have branded them as drunkards, that they might prejudice the people against them, by this most malicious falsehood. Note, There are still too many to whom the great things of God appear unintelligible: and because they are themselves destitute of spiritual understanding, they brand the preachers of them as enthusiasts, speaking evil of the things they know not.

14. ¶ But [b] Peter, standing up with the eleven, [c] lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words: 15. For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the † third hour of the day. 16. But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel;‡ 17. [d] And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams: 18. And on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy: 19. [e] And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke: 20. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come: 21. [f] And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved. 22. Ye men of Israel, hear these words; [g] Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know: 23. [h] Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: 24. [i] Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it. 25. For David speaketh concerning him, [k] I foresaw the Lord always before my face; for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved: 26. [l] Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover, also, my flesh shall rest in hope: 27. Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer [m] thine Holy One to see corruption. 28. [n] Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance. 29. Men and brethren, ‖ let me freely speak unto you [o] of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. 30. Therefore being a prophet, [p] and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne: 31. [q] He, seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not

† Nine o'clock, forenoon.
‡ The traditions of the Jews applied this prophecy of Joel to the great outpouring of the Holy Spirit which should take place in the days of the Messiah. And Peter calls upon them to admit the present application of an event they had been accustomed to expect.
‖ Or I may.

b John 18. 27. ch. 1. 15. ver. 38. & 3. 12. & 4. 8.
c Is. 58. 1. Hos. 8. 1.
d Is. 44. 3—5. Joel 2. 28—32. Ps. 72. 6. Ezek. 11. 19. & 36. 27. Zech. 12. 10. John 7. 38. ch. 10. 45. & 21. 9, 10. & 11. 28. & 16. 9. 1 Tim. 4. 1. 2 Tim. 3. 1—6. 2 Pet. 3. 3. 2 Cor. 12. 1.
e Joel 2. 30, 31. Mat. 24. 29. Luke 21. 25. Mal. 4. 1, 5, 6. Zeph. 1. 14—17.
f Joel 2. 32. Rom. 10. 13. ch. 9. 14, 15. & 13. 46—48. Mat. 24. 14. & 26. 13. & 28. 19.
g Mat. 11. 4, 5. Luke 7. 16. & 2. 19—21. John 3. 2. & 5. 19, 26, 30. Heb. 2. 4. John 10. 25, 38. & 14. 10, 11. & 15. 22—24. ch. 10. 38.
h Mat. 26. 24, 53. Luke 22. 22, 53. John 7. 30. & 8. 20. & 18. 11. & 19. 11. ch. 4. 27, 28. & 3. 13—15, 18. & 5. 30. Rom. 4. 25. & 8. 32. 1 Pet. 1. 20. Mat. 20. 19. & 26. 45, 47.
i Ver. 32. ch. 3. 15. & 4. 10. & 10. 40. & 13. 30, 34. & 17. 31. Rom. 4. 24, 25. & 8. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 14. & 15. 15. Heb. 13. 20. 2 Cor. 4. 14. Eph. 1. 20. 1 Pet. 1. 21. 1 Thes. 1. 10. k Ps. 16. 8—11. & 109. 31. & 121. 5
l Ps. 16. 9, 10. Rom. 8. 31.
m Dan. 9. 24. Luke 1. 35.
n Ps. 16. 11. & 17. 15. & 21. 4—6.
o Ch. 13. 36. 1 Kin. 2. 10. p 2 Sam. 7. 12. 1 Chr. 22. 10. Ps. 132. 11. Is. 9. 7. Luke 1. 32, 33. John 18. 36, 37. Rom. 1. 3, 4. & 9. 5. 1 Tim. 1. 17. Rev. 17. 14. & 19. 16.
q Ps. 16. 10. ch. 3. 31. ver. 27.

left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption. 32. [r] This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof [s] we are all witnesses. 33. Therefore [t] being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear. 34. For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, [u] The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35. Until I make thy foes thy footstool. 36. Therefore let all the house of Israel [x] know assuredly, that [y] God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

r See ver. 24, 27. ch. 3. 15, 26. Mat. xxviii. Mark xvi. Luke xxiv. John xx, xxi.

s See ch. 1. 8, 22. & 3. 15. & 5. 32. & 10. 39. 41.

t Mark 16. 19. Luke 24. 49. John 14. 16, 26. & 15. 26. & 16. 7—13. ch. 1. 4, 8. & 10. 45. & 5. 31. Phil. 2. 9.

u Ps. 110. 1. & 8. 1. Mat. 22. 44. Heb. 1. 3, 13. 1 Cor. 15. 25. Rev. 3. 21. Eph. 1. 20.

x John 17. 3. & 6. 69.

y Mat. 28. 18. Eph. 1. 20—23. Phil. 2. 9—11. ch. 5. 31. & 10. 36.

Verses 14—36. In answer to the malicious cavil of these enemies to the truth, Peter, the zealous speaker, and now inspired by peculiar influences from on high, arose and boldly addressed to these mockers this awakening discourse.

1. He stood up with the eleven, to show the falsehood of the charge, and vindicate themselves from so malicious an accusation: and, aloud directing his discourse to the Jews who were present, begs attention to the words of truth and soberness, which he was about to utter. Note, We must not return a sharp answer to a reviling accusation, but with meekness answer those who oppose themselves against us.

2. He denies the calumny, and shows it to be as absurd as malicious. These men are not drunken as ye suppose, and would insinuate, seeing it is but the third hour of the day, but nine o'clock in the morning: and till then, on the sabbaths and festivals, the Jews usually did neither eat nor drink, nor was it at all probable, that so many as they were, they should have been guilty of such a debauch, or dare appear intoxicated in the house of God.

3. He explains to them an affair which they counted so strange, which some admired and others ridiculed. This was the accomplishment of the prophecy of Joel, chap. ii. 28—32. which he cites at large; for, though himself inspired, the Spirit was not given to supersede the Scriptures, but to enable us to understand them. God had promised in the last days, the days of the Messiah, which ushered in the last dispensation of grace, I will pour out my Spirit, in a more extraordinary measure than ever before, upon all flesh; on some of all ranks and conditions, or upon the Gentiles as well as Jews: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, foretelling future events, ch. xx. 9, 10. and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams; God, in these ways, revealing to them his mind and will; and on my servants, and my handmaidens, on persons of all conditions, women as well as men, without distinction of rank or sex, I will pour out in those days my Spirit, as from an inexhaustible fountain, and they shall prophesy: and I will show wonders in heaven above, dreadful prodigies in the air, which were the prelude to the approaching ruin of the Jewish nation, for their obstinate infidelity and rejection of the Messiah; and signs in the earth beneath, dire presages of impending woes: blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke, the blood of the people shed by the invading foe, whose devastations should spread through the country, and the smoke of their cities consumed in flames, which should obscure the sky. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, suffering unusual eclipses, or looking red through the dusky clouds of smoke: or this may signify the approaching total dissolution of their government, before the great and terrible day of the Lord come, when he shall execute such condign vengeance on his murderers, as no nation, since the burning of Sodom, ever suffered, and when he shall be glorified in his judgments. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever, discerning the signs of these times, shall call on the name of the Lord, the Almighty Jehovah-Jesus, spoken of in this prophecy, placing their dependence on him alone for salvation, and in fervent prayer making their application to him for help, they shall be saved by his power and grace from all the evils they fear, in time or eternity, and be made partakers of his eternal glory. Lord, pour out a spirit of prayer and supplication upon me, that I may be of this blessed number!

4. He improves this occasion, in order to preach to them Jesus, whose gift and purchase this Spirit was, which now was shed abroad so abundantly upon them, entreating their attention to the important truths he was about to deliver.

[1.] He reminds them of his well-known life and character, Jesus of Nazareth, a name they gave him by way of reproach, but a man approved of God among you; evidently signalized with his peculiar favour, by miracles, and wonders, and signs, which he was enabled to work in proof of his divine mission, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know; bearing his attestation to the character he assumed, and they themselves had been eye-witnesses of these wonderful works.

[2.] They had, notwithstanding, rejected his credentials, and hung him on a tree. Him, this glorious Messiah, delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ordained as a sacrifice to divine justice, ye have taken and seized as a criminal, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain; engaging the Gentile governor to bring him to this ignominious death; and his innocent blood is now upon your heads.

[3.] God had raised him, notwithstanding all their enmity, rage, and malice; having loosed the pains of death, judicially discharging him from the grave, and from all the sorrows of death, which, as the substitute of his people, he consented to endure, because it was not possible he should be holden of them. The dignity of his person, the perfection of his sacrifice, and the prophecies concerning him, rendered it impossible that he should remain longer the prisoner of death; whom, by dying, he had destroyed, and as a triumphant conqueror, rose to lead his captivity captive.

[4.] He shows that this was foretold by the royal Psalmist, who, personating Jesus, the true Messiah, thus speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face; he walked under the constant sense of his Father's presence, and with an eye to his glory; for he is on my right hand, to support and carry me through my arduous undertaking, that I should not be moved with any of the sufferings of life, or the terrors of death. Therefore did my heart rejoice, in his power, faithfulness, and love, and my tongue was glad: praising him for the experience of his almighty grace, and the assured salvation of his people, which he had promised him as the travail of his soul: my flesh also shall rest in hope, entirely satisfied of a glorious issue, and entering the grave in the fullest assurance of a speedy resurrection; because, or that thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, to abide, like other departed spirits in the invisible world, nor his body in the dust, neither wilt thou suffer thy Holy One to see corruption, and putrefy in the tomb, being the Holy One of God, and having, by a perfect obedience to death, even the death of the cross, completed the redemption of his people, he had a right to a speedy discharge from that lowest step of his humiliation. Thou hast made known to me the ways of life, which lie through the gates of death; and Christ, the first-fruits of those that slept, is gone before; having raised himself to an endless life, and leading his people after him to a glorious immortality; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance, in that state of bliss and blessedness to which, as Mediator he should be exalted; and what is here primarily spoken concerning the great head of the church, is true of every member of his body mystical. (1.) They live for God, designing his glory as their end, and resting upon his promises, his power, and grace, as their abiding support, comfort, and joy. (2.) They die in hope, committing their souls into the hands of a faithful Creator, and rejoicing in the prospect of eternal life and glory which the gospel sets before them, and of which faith assures them.

[5.] He comments on the text he had quoted. Great and respectable as the patriarch David was, the head of the royal race of Judah, yet he saw corruption; and they, as reasonable men, and his countrymen, if they dispassionately considered these words, must needs be convinced that the Psalmist spoke not this of himself, he dying, and being buried as other men, and his tomb being extant to that day; but being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, Ps. cxxxii. 11. that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit upon his throne, as Israel's king in the most exalted sense, reigning in the hearts of his redeemed people: he seeing this before by the spirit of prophecy, spoke of the resurrection of Christ, whom he personates when he saith, that his soul was not left in hell, neither did his flesh see corruption. This Jesus, who lately lay in the grave, the Son of David after the flesh, the person of whom he, as a prophet, speaks, God hath raised up, whereof we are all witnesses; having been his constant followers before his death, and having often seen, conversed, and ate and drank with him since his resurrection, till the day that we beheld him ascend up to heaven.

[6.] The gifts of the Spirit were the fruit of his exaltation. Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted to the Mediatorial throne, and possessed of the most transcendent dignity and glory, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, the purchase of his obedience to death in the behalf of his people, he hath shed forth this which you now see and hear; the flames of fire, and gift of tongues, which appeared to them so strange. And his ascension also David had foretold, Psal. cx. 1. For David is not ascended into the heavens as the person, in whose name he speaks, evidently was; but the Lord Jesus is gone thither, as he saith himself, The Lord Jehovah, said unto my Lord, the Messiah, Sit thou at my right hand: in the highest dignity, and possessed of universal dominion and authority, until I make thy foes thy footstool; until sin, Satan, death, and every enemy of the Redeemer and his people, shall be finally and for ever destroyed.

[7.] He warmly applies the matter to their consciences. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, as a truth most infallible and certain, that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ; and there could not be a greater aggravation of their wickedness than this, that whom the Lord had glorified, they had crucified; nor a more tremendous consideration than that he was now exalted to a throne of glory to execute vengeance on all his murderers who obstinately persisted in their impenitence.

z Zech. 12. 10. Luke 3. 10. Jer. 6. 16. ch. 9. 6. & 16. 30. John 16. 8—11. Rom. 7. 9.
a Mat. 3. 6, 8. Mark 1. 4, 15. ch. 3. 19. & 22. 16. 1 John 1. 7. Tit. 3. 5. Is. 1. 18. & 55. 7. Luke 24. 47.
b Ver. 16—18. ch. 8. 15—17. & 10. 44, 45. & 19. 6.
c Gal. 3. 16. Rom. 9. 8. Gen. 17. 7. Joel 2. 28. Jer. 31. 34. Zech. 13. 1. ch. 3. 25, 26. & 9. 15. & 10. 34, 44. & 11. 1, 18. & 13. 31, 46—48. xiv—xix. & 22. 21. & 28. 28. Eph. 3. 3—8. & 2. 13. d Ch. 20. 21. 2 Cor. 6. 17. Mat. 15. 14. Luke 21. 36.

37. ¶ Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? 38. Then Peter said unto them, [a] Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and [b] ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. 39. For [c] the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. 40. And with many other words did he [d] testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation. 41. ¶ [e] Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

e Ps. 110. 3. Mat. 13. 23. ch. 1. 15. & 4. 4. & 5. 14. Ps. 72. 16, 17. Mat. 16. 18.

Verses 37—41. The power of the Spirit upon the apostles themselves appeared gloriously evident in the boldness wherewith he inspired them, as well as in the miraculous gifts with which he endued them: here we have also a proof of his energetic influence on the consciences of the hearers, accompanying his own word in the mouths of his servants.

1. Many of the hearers, struck with conscious guilt at what they heard, were pricked in their heart with sharp and deep convictions of their sin and danger, and in great distress of conscience, said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, whom just before they had mocked at, Men and brethren, what shall we do, to avert the dire vengeance we have provoked, and to obtain pardon for a deed so atrocious? Note, (1.) When the Spirit of God opens the sinner's conscience to discern his hell-deserving guilt, his hard heart then is broken with the most fearful apprehensions of his danger. (2.) Ministers are the physicians to whom convinced sinners should apply, and they have balm to cure the mortal wound which sin hath made in their souls. (3.) They who truly feel their lost estate cannot but desire above all things, to know if yet there may be hope.

2. Peter, in the name of his brethren, said unto them, your case, however dangerous, is not desperate; Repent, under a sense of redeeming love, be deeply humbled for your guilt and ingratitude; and with deep self-abhorrence, and a thorough change of temper and conduct, turn unto the Lord, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ; professing your faith in him as the true Messiah, and sincerely yielding up yourselves to him as his willing subjects; for the remission of sins, purchased by him and freely bestowed on the chief of sinners; and herewith also ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, of his comforting and sanctifying influences; as also, it is probable, of his miraculous powers. For the promise, ver. 38. of pardon and the Holy Ghost, or the great promise made to Abraham and his seed, is to you, and to your children, his descendants: and to all that are afar off, dispersed Jews or Gentiles, yet more distant from the covenant of promise, even as many as the Lord our God shall call to the knowledge of his Son, and to faith in him, who shall be blessed with faithful Abraham. Note (1.) No sinner need despair; the gospel holds forth, through the blood of Jesus, a free pardon to the most guilty of the sons of Adam, and he that believes shall be saved. (2.) Where the Lord gives remission of sins, he sends the Holy Ghost effectually to produce that repentance which he enjoins. (3.) None can come to God but those whom he calls; not merely by the outward voice of his word, but by the internal power of his Spirit.

3. The apostle enlarged on this subject. And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation: come out from among them, and be ye separate; renounce the false tenets and corrupt practices of the Scribes and Pharisees, that ye may escape the plagues ready to descend upon this sinful people, abandoned to their infidelity and destruction. Note, They who would be saved among Christ's people, must be separated from the ways of this wicked world, and from the familiar society of careless sinners, shunning their assemblies as a man dreads the house infected by the plague.

4. Great was the effect produced by this discourse, through the Spirit's mighty energy. No less than three thousand souls immediately embraced, and gladly received, the word of gospel grace; and believing in a crucified Redeemer now risen from the dead, made open profession of their faith, and were baptized in his name. Note, (1.) The salvation which is by Jesus Christ, is glad news to the sinner who is pricked to the heart with a sense of his guilt and danger. (2.) They who are truly turned to the Lord will boldly make profession of his name, and join themselves to the society of the faithful, whatever danger of reproach they may be exposed to thereby.

42. [f] And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. 43. [g] And fear came upon every soul: and [h] many wonders and signs were done by the apostles. 44. [i] And all that believed were together, and had all things common, 45. [k] And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need. 46. [l] And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread || from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, 47. [m] Praising God, and having favour with all the people. [n] And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved.

f Ch. 1. 14. & 4. 32. & 5. 12. & 6. 4. & 20. 7. ver. 46. Rom. 12. 12. Eph. 6. 18. Col. 4. 2. Heb. 10. 25. Jude 19.
g Esth. 8. 17. ch. 5. 5, 11. Luke 7. 16. Mark 7. 37.
h John 14. 12. ch. 3. 6. & 4. 30. & 5. 12, 15. & 8. 7, 13. & 9. 34, 40. & 13. 11. & 14. 10. & 16. 18. & 19. 11, 12. & 28. 8. Mark 16. 17.
i Phil. 2. 2, 4. ch. 4. 32. & 5. 4. Phil. 5. 6, 7. ver. 45.
k Ch. 4. 34, 37. & 5. 1, 2. Is. 58. 7. Mat. 19. 21. & 6. 19, 20. Luke 12 33. & 16. 9. 1 Tim. 6. 19.
l Luke 24. 53. ch. 1. 14. & 3. 1. & 6. 4. & 5. 42. & 20. 7.
|| Or at home.
m Luke 2. 52. ch. 14. 33. Rom. 14. 8. n Ch. 5. 14. & 11. 24. & 13. 48. Rom. 8. 30. Is. 43. 6. & 49. 12. & 56. 8.

Verses 42—47. We have here the practice of the primitive church.

1. They were united in holy ordinances. They continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine, professing their faith in Christ and his gospel, and attending on the apostles' ministry and fellowship, maintaining the closest communion with them; and in breaking of bread, celebrating the Lord's supper, and in prayers, social and public, continuing daily with one accord in the temple at the stated hours of service, and praising God for all the inestimable blessings bestowed, through Jesus Christ, upon them. Note, They who have tasted of the blessings of communion with God, will delight to maintain it in the diligent use of all holy ordinances.

2. A solemn awe restrained their enemies from molesting them. Fear came upon every soul; and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles, so that it evidently appeared that God was with them. Note, God can put his bridle in the jaws of persecutors, and say, Touch not my prophets, and do my anointed no harm.

3. A spirit of most noble and disinterested charity appeared among them. All that believed were together; they were of one heart and mind, and assembled in several companies, as many as conveniently could meet in one place, and had all things common, each casting his all into the common stock; and as the necessity of the times was urgent, and they knew the sure and near approach of Jerusalem's overthrow, they sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man of their society had need; and as they assembled daily with one accord in the temple, so did they break bread from house to house, provided out of the common stock, eating their meat together with gladness and singleness of heart; fervent in love to each other, thankful to God, and conscious of their own undissembled simplicity and sincerity before him. Note, Who should rejoice, if the children do not?

4. They were highly esteemed, and their numbers daily increased. They had favour with the people; their undissembled piety commanded respect; and the miraculous powers with which they were invested excited reverence. And the Lord so eminently blessed their ministrations, that there were added unto the church daily such as should be saved. Note, (1.) Those whom the Lord will save, he will take care so effectually to call as that they shall come to him. (2.) It is the Lord's work to add converts to his church: in dependence on his power and promise we labour with comfort and confidence.

CHAP. III.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter we have a miracle and a sermon. 1. The miracle was the healing of a man that was lame from his birth, with a word speaking, ver. 1—8. and the impression which this made upon the people, ver. 9—11. 2. The scope of the sermon which was preached hereupon was to bring people to Christ, to repent of their sin in crucifying him, ver. 12—19. and to believe in him now he was glorified, ver. 20—26.

1. NOW [a] Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being [b] the ninth hour. 2. And a certain man, [c] lame from his mother's womb, was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful,* to [d] ask alms of them that entered into the temple; 3. Who, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked an alms. 4. And [e] Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us. 5. And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them. 6. Then Peter said, [f] Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk. 7. And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and [g] immediately his feet and ancle bones received strength. 8. And [h] he, leaping up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God. 9. [i] And all the people saw him walking and praising God: 10. And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and [k] they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him. 11. And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in [l] the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

a Luke 24. 53. ch. 5. 21, 25.
b Three o'clock afternoon. Ps. 55. 17.
c Ch. 4. 22. & 14. 8.
* On account of its extraordinary splendour and magnificence.
d John 9. 8. ver. 10.
e Ch. 14. 9.
f Mat. 10. 9. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. Mat. 7. 22. Mark 16. 17. ch. 4. 7, 10.
g Mat. 8. 3, 13, 15. & 9. 22. & 12. 13. & 15. 28.
h Is. 35. 6. Mark 2. 11, 12. John 5. 8, 9.
i Ch. 4. 16, 21, 22.
k Ch. 2. 7, 12. & 8. 13. Mat. 9. 33. & 12. 23.
l Ch. 5. 12. John 10. 23.

Verses 1—11. Among the many miracles performed by the apostles, one notable one is here recorded.

1. The apostles by whom it was done were Peter and John, they were going up to the temple together at the stated hour of prayer, probably the same day in which Peter had preached in the morning, being the ninth hour, or three o'clock in the afternoon. Note, They who love the temple service, will be glad to be there twice a day.

2. The poor object on whom this miracle was performed was a beggar, a cripple from his mother's womb, who lay at the Beautiful gate of the temple, which was made of Corinthian brass, more precious than gold, and asked alms of them that entered into the temple; seeing Peter and John, therefore, about to enter, he asked of them an alms. Note, (1.) Those that are poor and incapable of working, are the true objects of charity. (2.) They who are drawn to the temple by the love of God, will have their hearts enlarged in tenderest compassion towards the wants of the necessitous.

3. Peter and John looking earnestly at him, bid him attend unto them, as about to show him a singular favour; and the poor man, expecting an alms, looked attentively at them. When Peter, the forward speaker, addressed him, saying, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have, and what silver and gold never could procure, give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk; by his authority I speak, and his power shall enable thee for what I command. Then taking him by the right hand he lifted him up, and immediately the astonishing cure was wrought, his feet and ancle-bones received strength. Note, (1.) The riches of grace are infinitely more valuable than the treasures of both the Indies. (2.) According to our abilities we must be ready to communicate of the gifts of God with which he hath intrusted us, whether temporal or spiritual. (3.) In this impotent man every sinner may read his own case and cure. 1. By nature, from our birth, thus spiritually paralytic are we, and utterly unable to walk one step in God's ways. 2. The temple is the place where the poor impotent sinner shall be found, for there the Lord usually dispenses the alms of his grace. (4.) The ministers of Christ say not in vain, arise and walk, to those who have no power of themselves to help themselves; for he, in whose name they speak, doth, by his Spirit accompanying their word, enable the helpless soul for that which they enjoin. 3. Christ first lays hold of us by the hand of his grace, and then we lay hold of him by the hand of faith, and feel an unusual power communicated to our paralytic souls.

4. The lame man, transported with joy at the strange alteration he instantly felt, leaped up with astonishing agility, and stood firm on his feet, and walked about before all present, in token of his perfect cure, and entered with his benefactors into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God. Note, (1.) If our souls have received a spiritual cure, then will our hearts and lips be filled with praise and thanksgiving to the God of all grace, and we shall be happy in employing the strength he hath given us, in walking in his holy ways. (2.) They who have found a blessing from the ministry of Christ's servants, will not fail to accompany them into the temple, that they may reap farther benefit from their company and discourse.

5. The people who beheld him were struck with wonder and surprise, at seeing him thus walking and praising God, knowing that it was the same cripple who had lain at the gate of the temple; and whilst, as in an ecstasy, he hung about Peter and John, expressing his unutterable gratitude for this mercy received by their means, the people gathered round them in the part of the temple called Solomon's porch, greatly wondering at this amazing miracle, and at those who wrought it. Note, They who have been made the instruments of good to our souls, cannot but be dear to us, and embraced with peculiar affection.

12. ¶ And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, [m] as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk? 13. [n] The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath [o] glorified his Son Jesus; whom [p] ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go. 14. [q] But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you; 15. And killed the * Prince of life, [r] whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses. 16. And his [s] name, through [t] faith in his name, hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all. 17. And now, brethren, I wot that [u] through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers. 18. [x] But those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled. 19. [y] Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when [z] the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; 20. And he shall [a] send Jesus Christ, which [b] before was preached unto you: 21. [c] Whom the heaven must receive until the times of [d] restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. 22. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, [e] A Prophet shall the Lord your God [f] raise up unto you of your brethren, [g] like unto me; him shall ye [h] hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. 23. And it shall come to pass, [i] that every soul, which will not hear that Prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people. 24. [k] Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel, and those that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days. 25. [l] Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, [m] And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed. 26. [n] Unto you first God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to [o] bless you, in [p] turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

m Ps. 115. 1. John 15. 5. 2 Cor. 3. 5.

u Ch. 5. 30 Exod. 3. 6, 15, 16. & 4. 5. Luke 20 37, 38.

o John 7. 39. & 12. 16. & 13. 31, 32. & 17. 1, 5. ch. 2. 33. & 5. 31. Eph. 1. 20. to Phil. 2. 3—11. Ps. 110. 1—7.

p Mat. 27. 2, 18, 20. Mark 15. 1, 9. John 18. 40. & 19 15. Luke 23. 1, 14. & 18. 30. & 19. 12, 15. ch. 2. 23. & 4. 26—28 & 5. 30.

q Mat. 27. 20. Mark 15. 11 Luke 23. 18, 25. John 18. 40. ch. 13. 28. & 7. 52. & 22. 14. with Rev. 3. 7. Heb. 7. 26. John 1. 4. & 3. 15, 16, 36. & 5. 21, 26. & 6. 40. & 10. 10, 28. & 11. 25. & 14. 6, 19. & 17. 2. Col. 3. 3, 4. 2 Tim. 1. 10. 1 John 5. 11, 20.

* Or author.

r Ch. 1. 3. & 2. 24, 27, 31, 32. & 10. 39, 40. & 13. 30—37. & 17. 31. Rom. 1. 4. & 4. 25. & 6. 4. & 8. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 21.

s Power and authority. Ver. 6. ch. 4. 7, 10.

t Ver. 6. ch. 14. 9. Luke 7. 50. 1 Pet. 1. 21. Mat. 15. 28.

u Luke 23. 34. John 7. 26. 48. & 16. 3. ch. 13. 27. 1 Tim. 1. 13. 1 Cor. 2. 8. 2 Cor. 3. 14.

x Luke 24. 44. ch. 26 22. John 1. 45. Ps. xxii, lxix. Is. l, liii, &c.

y Mat. 3. 2. & 14. 17. Is. 43 25. & 44. 22. & 55. 7. ch. 2. 38. Neh. 1. 4. Ps. 51. 1, 2, 9. & 103. 14.

z 2 Tim. 1. 18. Ps. 17. 15. Luke 16. 25. Rev. 17. 14, 15. Rom. 11. 25. 2 Thes. 1. 7, 10.

a Ch. 1. 11. & 17. 31.

b Ver. 22, 24. ch. 10. 43. Col. 2. 17.

c Ch. 1. 11. Heb. 1. 3. & 4. 14. & 8. 1. & 10. 12, 13.

d Rom. 8. 21. 2 Pet. 3. 13. with 1. 21. Luke 1. 70.

e Deut. 18. 15—18. ch. 7. 37.

f Jer. 23. 5, 6. Gal. 4. 4. Rom. 8. 3. Heb. 2. 11, 12.

g John 1. 17, 18. Heb. 3. 2—5.

h Mat. 17. 5. Heb 12. 25.

i Deut. 18. 19. Heb. 2. 2, 3. & 10. 29. & 12. 25. Exod. 23. 21. 1 Sam. 2. 25.

k Luke 24. 25, 27, 44. John 1. 45. ch. 10. 43. & 13. 27. & 26. 22, 23 & 28. 25. Rom. 3. 21. 1 Pet. 1. 10—12.

l Ps. 50. 7. & 81. 8—10. ch. 2. 39. & 13. 26.

m Gen. 12. 3. & 18. 18. & 22. 18. & 26. 4. & 28. 14. Gal. 3. 8, 16. ch. 2. 39. Rom. 15. 8—12, 16, 19.

n Mat. 10. 5, 6. & 15. 24. Luke 24. 47. ch. 13. 23, 26, 38, 46. 2 Pet. 3. 9.

o Ps. 72. 17. Eph 1. 3. Gal. 3. 9, 13, 14, 22.

p Dan. 9. 24. Mal. 3. 1—3. Mat. 1. 21. 1 John 3. 5, 8. ver. 19.

Verses 12—26. Peter, beholding the concourse of people assembled on this occasion, improves so happy an opportunity to preach the gospel to those who seemed so affected with the miracle before them. A word in season, how good is it!

1. He humbly disclaims all the honour of the miracle, which was due to his Master alone. Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? when so much greater cures have been before performed among you by the Lord Jesus; or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power and holiness we had made this man walk? Note, (1.) The most successful ministers must be the most humble; the more they are admired of others, the lower they must lie down at the feet of Jesus, ascribing to him alone the praise. (2.) We are too apt to idolize the men and ministers who have been made signal instruments of good to us; but we should look farther, even to him alone who giveth the increase.

2. He preaches to them that Jesus whom they crucified, by whose power alone this miracle was wrought. The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, that covenant-keeping God, the God of our fathers hath glorified his Son Jesus, owning him in this high character; not only by all the miracles which he had wrought, but by his resurrection from the dead, and ascension to heaven; whom ye delivered up as a malefactor into the hands of the Roman governor, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, as your King Messiah, requiring his crucifixion; when he, convinced of his innocency, was determined to let him go. But ye, instigated by the priests and rulers, with savage barbarity, denied the Holy One, and the Just, whom none could ever convince of sin, or impeach his spotless purity; and as the most provoking aggravation of your guilt, desired a murderer to be granted unto you, in preference to him, and killed the Prince of Life, the Author and Fountain of natural, spiritual, and eternal life; whom God hath raised from the dead; defeating all the malice of his enemies, rolling away the reproach of the cross, and exalting him to a state of the most transcendent glory; whereof ye are witnesses; have seen and conversed with him after his resurrection, and are endued with these miraculous powers by him, to make our testimony more regarded. And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know; acting under his authority, and trusting on his power, hath this incontestable miracle been performed: yea, the faith which is by him, exercised upon him as the object, and wrought in us by him as the author, hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all; for this thing was not done in a corner, but publicly in the temple, and the perfection of the cure was evident to every beholder.

3. Yet dreadful as their guilt was, he means not to drive them to despair. And now, brethren, exceeding sinful as your conduct hath been, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers; I persuade myself that many, I would hope, the most, who were engaged in that black deed, were blindly hurried on by their passions and prejudices, and knew not what they did, else would they not have crucified the Lord of glory, 1 Cor. ii. 8. But those things which God before had showed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled; and though this be no extenuation of your wickedness, yet since the very end of his dying was in order to obtain remission of sins for the most miserable and desperate, there is still hope, even for those whose hands are red with his blood. Note, (1.) Charity bids us hope the best, even of the vilest; and not to impute to them worse motives to their actions than really influence them. (2.) The wickedness of men God can overrule, and bring good out of their evil.

4. He exhorts an immediate penitent return to him whom they had crucified. Repent ye, therefore, of this atrocious deed; and since there is yet hope towards God, be converted: turn to this Jesus as the true Messiah; laying aside your pride and prejudices, yield up your hearts to his guidance and government, and fly to the atoning blood of his cross, which was shed for this very purpose, that your sins, however great, numberless, and aggravated, may be blotted out, and your guilt cancelled, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; those joyful seasons of consolation which now you will experience, when turning unto him you shall be filled with joy and peace in believing, and shall also find favour with him, and be acknowledged by him, when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired of all that believe: in his presence then shall you possess bliss unutterable, and under his shadow enjoy an eternal rest from all the burdens of sin, and sorrow, and temptation. For he shall send Jesus, this Jesus whom he hath made both Lord and Christ, and appointed the Judge of quick and dead, even him which before was preached unto you, in all the sacred oracles, and by his own blessed ministry; whom the heaven must receive, whither we have seen him ascend, and where he now sits enthroned in glory, until the times of restitution of all things, when the mystery of godliness shall be finished, all his elect people be gathered into him, and his kingdom shall finally come at the great day of his appearing to judge the world. Note, (1.) The great inducement to evangelical repentance, is the promise of pardon and forgiveness. (2.) They who truly turn to Jesus, shall find refreshing and rest to their souls, and reconciliation with a pardoning God. (3.) Though Christ be now exalted to his throne, we expect his coming a second time: O that we may be prepared to meet him! then it shall be a time of refreshing; when seeing him face to face, we shall be changed into the same image, be like and with him for ever.

5. He supports what he had said by an appeal and reference to the Scriptures, in which they believed. For these were the things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began, concerning the kingdom of his Messiah. For instance Moses, that great lawgiver, in whom you glory, he bore a noble testimony to Jesus, and truly said unto the fathers in the wilderness, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, sprung from the stock of Abraham, like unto me; who shall with far greater dignity be a Mediator between God and you; shall deliver you from worse than Egyptian bondage; and from the most intimate knowledge of God, shall reveal to you his mind and will: him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you; embracing his doctrines, obedient to his precepts, and observant of his institutions with implicit faith, unbounded love, and unreserved submission; yielding up your souls to his guidance and government. And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet, and believe and obey him, shall be destroyed from among the people, cut off by some notorious stroke of divine vengeance. Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel, in whom the Spirit of prophecy revived, and those that follow after, in a long succession, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days; speaking of the Messiah, his sufferings, glory, and kingdom, from its beginning on earth, till its consummation in heaven.

6. He draws a most encouraging motive from their relation to the prophets, to receive their word, and believe in the Messiah, of whom they testified. Ye are the children of the prophets, their disciples, and descendents from the patriarchs, and heirs of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, In thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed, which seed was Christ, whose salvation shall extend to all nations; therefore being the immediate offspring of the great father of the faithful, Unto you first, God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sending him in the human nature, and raising him from the dead, hath sent him to bless you, by his own ministry and labours, and now by investing us with power and authority to preach his gospel, in which the most powerful motives are urged, in order to your conversion, and which his Spirit makes effectual to the turning every one of you, that believe in him, from his iniquities, and bringing you to pardon, salvation, and life eternal. Note, (1.) Jesus is come to be the blessing of the world. Without him, the curse and wrath of God must have for ever abode upon us. (2.) Iniquity is the cause of all our misery; when Christ comes to the sinner, he not only pardons his guilt, but converts his soul, and thus effectually recovers him to the life of grace, in order to bring him to the life of glory.

CHAP. IV.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter the persecution against the apostles begins. 1. Peter and John are taken up upon a warrant from the priests, and committed to jail, ver. 1—4. 2. They are examined by a committee of the great Sanhedrim, ver. 5—7. 3. They bravely avow what they have done, and preach Christ to their persecutors, ver. 8—12. 4. Their persecutors, being unable to answer them, enjoin them silence, threaten them if they go on to preach the gospel, and so dismiss them, ver. 13—22. 5. They apply themselves to God by prayer, for the further operations of that grace which they had already experienced, ver. 23—30. 6. God owns them, both outwardly and inwardly, by manifest tokens of his presence with them, ver. 31—33. 7. The believers had their hearts knit together in holy love, and enlarged their charity to the poor, and the church flourished more than ever, to the glory of Christ, ver. 33, 34, 37.

1. AND as they spake unto the people, [a] the priests, and the * captain of the temple, and the [b] Sadducees, came upon them, 2. [c] Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached [d] through Jesus the resurrection from the dead. 3. And they laid hands on them, and [e] put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now even-tide. 4. Howbeit, [f] many of them which heard the word believed: and the number of the men was about five thousand.

a Ch. 5. 17. Hos. 6. 9. Luke 22 52. John 18. 3.
* Or ruler.
b Mat. 22. 23. ch. 23. 8.
c Ch. 5. 17, 24. & 7. 54. & 13. 45. Gen. 3. 15. Neh. 2. 10. Job 5. 2. Eccl. 4. 4. d 1 Cor. 15. 20. ch. 3. 13—21, 26. & 23. 8. Mat. 22. 23. e Mat. 10. 17—22. & 24. 9. Luke 21. 12—16. John 16. 2, 3. ch. 5. 18. & 13. 23, 24.
f See ch. 2. 37, 41, 47. Gen. 49. 10. Is. 45. 24. & 49. 24, 25. John 12. 24. & 14. 12. Rom. 10. 17.

Verses 1—4. The success of the gospel could not but provoke Satan's enmity; and the inveterate enemies of the name of Christ cannot be expected long to be at rest.

1. The apostles continued to teach the people, and, as their grand subject, preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead. They both testified the certainty of his resurrection, and affirmed, that he was raised up for this purpose, to be the author of spiritual and eternal life to his people, who should be raised up by him at the last day to a glorious immortality.

2. Multitudes of their hearers believed: and, notwithstanding the enmity to which they saw their preachers exposed, five thousand converts more were added to the church; so mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed. Note, Where the gospel meets with the greatest opposition, it is usually attended with the most remarkable success.

3. The priests, the captain of the temple, who presided over the watches, and the Sadducees, grieved and vexed to the heart, that the doctrine of Jesus, which they had taken such pains to suppress, should now spread with greater rapidity than ever; and that he whom they had ignominiously crucified, should be exalted as the resurrection and life, as the author of all blessedness in time and eternity; rushed upon the apostles suddenly, seized them as criminals, and committed them to safe custody for the night, it being even-tide, that they might be brought before the Sanhedrim the next day. Note, They who preach Christ must prepare to suffer for him.

5. ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that [g] their rulers, and elders, and scribes, 6. And Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, † and as many as were of the kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem. 7. And when they had [h] set them in the midst, they asked, [i] By what power, or by what name, have ye done this? 8. Then Peter, [k] filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel, 9. If we this day be examined of the [l] good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole; ‡ 10. Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by [m] the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, [n] whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole. 11. [o] This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. 12. [p] Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. ‖ 13. ¶ Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were [q] unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; [r] and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus. 14. [s] And beholding the man which was healed standing with them, they could say nothing against it.

g Mat. 26. 3, 57. & 27. 1. Luke 3. 2. John 11. 47, 49. & 18. 13, 14. Ps. 2. 1, 2. & 3. 1.
† John was probably the celebrated rabbin Jochanan: Alexander is supposed to have been a noble and wealthy Jew.
h Mat. 10. 17. & 24. 9. ch. 5. 27. Mark 13. 9.
i Exod. 2. 14. Mat. 21. 23. John 1. 18. ch. 7. 27.
k Ver. 31. Mat. 10. 19. Luke 12. 11, 12. Jer. 8. 9, 18, 19.
l Ch. 3. 7.
‡ By whom, or through whom he is made whole.
m Or power, or authority. Ver. 7. ch. 3. 6, 16.
n Ch. 2. 23, 24. & 3. 13—15. & 13. 27—30. Mat. 26. 18, 19. & xxvi—xxviii. Mark xiv—xvi. Luke xxii, xxiv. John xviii—xx. o Ps. 118. 22. Mat. 21. 42. Is. 28. 16. & 49. 7. & 53. 3. Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 7, 8. p John 14. 6. & 3. 18, 36. Mat. 1. 21. ch. 10. 43. Rom. 3. 24. 1 Tim. 2. 5, 6.
‖ The sequel shows that Peter did not here speak exclusively of the disordered in body, and their healing.
q Ch. 2. 7, 12. Mat. 4. 18—22.
r Mat. 10. 1—4. ch. 1. 2, 3, 8, 13, 21. & 10. 39.
s Ver. 10, 16. ch. 3. 8—12.

Verses 5—14. No sooner was the morning returned, than we have,

1. The court assembled to try the innocent prisoners: but little justice can be expected, when their judges are known to be their avowed and inveterate enemies. The rulers, elders, and scribes, the high priest Annas, who now enjoyed that dignity, with Caiaphas, who had sat in the chair the year preceding, with John and Alexander, persons of distinguished note, and others of the high priest's kindred, were all leagued against two poor fishermen, to try if their power could not intimidate, or their learning confute, or their authority silence them.

2. The prisoners are arraigned. They set them in the midst, to answer before their judges the interrogatories which they chose to put to them, and haughtily demand, by what power, human, divine, or diabolical; or by what name, by virtue of whose authority, or by the invocation of what name, have ye done this?

3. Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, endued with singular boldness, and directed by his immediate influence, according to Christ's promise, Mark xiii. 11. said unto them, respectfully addressing them as magistrates, and men of rank, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel, if we be examined as criminals, this day, of the good deed done to the impotent man; and you demand information, by what means such an act of mercy and power was performed, and he is made whole; we with pleasure appear to give you the fullest satisfaction. Therefore, be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, whom it highly concerns, that by the name, the precious, powerful, all-prevailing name of Jesus of Nazareth, whom ye have treated with the highest contempt, and most ignominiously crucified, but whom God raised from the dead, disappointing the impotent malice of his murderers; even by him, by this once despised, but now glorified Jesus, and by no power of our own, by no magic charm, but by faith in him alone doth this man stand here before you whole. This Jesus is the stone spoken of, Psal. cxviii. 22. which was set at nought of you, who by station and office should be builders of God's spiritual temple, but which is now exalted of God, and become the head of the corner, by which the church of God is supported, and firmly knit together. Neither is there salvation in any other; there is no spiritual or eternal salvation out of him, by the deeds of the law, or by any human power or righteousness whatsoever; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved; God having appointed him to be the only Redeemer from sin, death, and hell, and all who believe not in him, must therefore perish everlastingly. Note, (1.) Salvation is every sinner's great concern. (2.) In and of ourselves we have nothing but misery, sin, and wrath, and have no power of ourselves to help ourselves. (3.) Christ alone can save a sinful soul by the merit of his blood and righteousness. (4.) God freely offers him in the gospel to the miserable, and invites all men to believe on him to the saving of their souls. (5.) They must inevitably and eternally perish who neglect so great a salvation.

4. Such an answer quite confounded the court. When they saw the boldness of Peter and John, their undaunted courage, their readiness of speech, and powerful elocution; and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, had been brought up at none of the public seminaries, at the feet of none of their rabbins, nor had ever the least advantages of education; they marvelled at the intrepidity, wisdom, and eloquence that appeared in them; and they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus, in whose company they recollected they had seen them formerly: and beholding the man which was healed standing with them, who probably came ready to bear testimony for them, and to do honour to his benefactors, to whatever danger it might expose him, they could say nothing against it; the miracle was too notorious to be contradicted. Note, (1.) In Christ's cause, even before the greatest, we may well boldly stand forth; he will bear us through. (2.) They who have been with Jesus will carry the marks of it visibly about them: like Moses on the mount, their faces will shine, and their holy and heavenly conversations proclaim their Master's glory.

t Ver. 1 5 6.

u John 11. 47, 48. & 12. 18, 19. ch. 3. 9. ver. 14.

x Ch. 5. 28, 40. 1 Thes. 2 16. Ps. 2. 1—3. John. 15. 18—21. Mat. 10. 22.

y Exod. 1. 17. ch. 5. 29. Gal. 1. 10.

z Mat 10. 27. Mark 16. 15. ch. 1. 8, 22. & 2. 32. & 3. 15. & 10. 39, 41. & 22. 15. & 5. 32. & 13. 31. 1 John 1. 1—3. 2 Pet. 1. 16.

a You charge us not to preach the gospel God has charged us to preach it; whom must we obey, God or you? Can you think it right to break a divine command in obedience to a human injunction?

a Ver. 17, 18. ch. 5. 28, 40.

b Ps. 31. 15. Luke 21. 18.

c Ch. 5. 26. Mat. 14. 5. & 21. 26. Luke 20. 6, 19. & 22 2.

15. But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the council, [t] they conferred among themselves, 16. Saying, [u] What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem; and we cannot deny it. 17. But that it spread no further among the people, let us [x] straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name. 18. And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus. 19. But Peter and John answered and said unto them, [y] Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. 20. [z] For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.* 21. So, when they had further [a] threatened them, they [b] let them go, finding nothing how they might punish them, [c] because of the people: for all men glorified God for [d] that which was done. 22. For the man was above [e] forty years old on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

d Ch. 3. 6—11. & 5. 13. ver. 16.

e Ch. 3. 2. John 5. 5. Luke 13. 16. Mat. 9. 20.

Verses 15—22. How to punish those against whom they had no charge to lay they knew not, yet fain would they brand them, if possible, with some mark of infamy.

1. In order to consult upon the case the more freely, they commanded the apostles to be led out of the council-chamber, whilst they conferred among themselves, saying, What shall we do to these men? our difficulties are greater than ever; for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it; so that to attempt it would but expose our own characters; but, that it spread no farther among the people, neither the fame of the miracle, nor the doctrine of Christ, in confirmation of which it was wrought, let us straitly threaten them, on pain of our highest displeasure, and at the peril of suffering the punishment due to that contumacy, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name. Thus they hope, by silencing the ministers, to suppress the doctrines of the gospel. And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all, nor teach in the name of Jesus; breathing forth their impotent malice. Note, (1.) The enemies of the gospel often join in close cabal how to suppress the growing progress of the truth; but he who sitteth on the heavens laughs them to scorn. (2.) Many a faithful minister of Jesus, for the truths which he hath maintained, hath met the frowns and threatenings of proud priests and prelates, who would fain intimidate and silence them, that they should speak no more in the name of Jesus: but they despise their menaces; they are prepared to suffer, but will not be silent.

2. The prisoners give in their answers; they needed no premeditation to reply, and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. Can it be possible we should be silent, when acting under his express injunctions? or how can we thus acquit ourselves to our consciences, or mankind, for whose sake we preach this salvation of Jesus? Your commands therefore being incompatible with the superior obedience we owe to God, cannot possibly be observed: for we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard; a necessity is laid upon us, and wo unto us if we preach not the gospel. Note, (1.) Where the injunctions of men are contrary to the word of God, we must not hesitate a moment which we shall obey. (2.) They who have experimentally known the salvation which is in Jesus, and tasted its sweetness, cannot but delight to spread the savour of his name, and to make all men, as far as their influence reaches, know the grace which is in him.

3. Unable to fix the least accusation against the apostles, they were compelled reluctantly to let them go, repeating their former threatenings, to try if that would intimidate them, and finding nothing how they might punish them, as they earnestly wished to do, because of the people, who would have risen up against them for such a flagrant act of injustice; for all men glorified God for that which was done; the multitude in general were convinced that this was the finger of God, and could not but adore him, who had enabled these men to perform this act of power and mercy; for the man was above forty years of age, on whom this miracle of healing was showed, and had been so long known by the people, that the cure was rendered thereby the more singular and astonishing. Note, (1.) God can put his restraints upon persecutors, and prevent them, by various considerations, from doing all the mischief to which they are inclined. (2.) They who in old age are cured by the gospel word are more eminent monuments of divine mercy.

23. ¶ And being let go, they went [f] to f Ps. 119. 63. & 15. 4. & 16. 3. Prov 13. 20. ch. 1. 13. & 2. 46. & 12. 12.

their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them. 24. And when they heard [s] that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, thou art God, [h] which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is: 25. Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, [i] Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things? 26. The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ. 27. For, of a truth, against thy [k] holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, [l] both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together, 28. [m] For to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done.* 29. And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, that with [n] all boldness they may speak thy word, 30. [o] By stretching forth thine hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jesus. 31. ¶ And when they had prayed, the place [p] was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.

s Ps. 106. 1, 2. & 118. 1, 2, &c.

h Gen. 1, 6. Exod. 20. 11. Jer. 32. 17.

i Ps. 2. 1—3. with ver 27—29. Mat. 26. 18.

k Heb. 7. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 19. Isa. 61. 1. John 10. 36. ch. 3. 14. & 7. 52. Ps. 2. 6.

l Luke xxii. xxiii. Mat. xxvi. xxvii. Mark xiv. xv. John xviii. xix. ch. 2. 23.

m Mat. 26. 24, 54. Luke 22. 22. & 24. 25—27, 44. ch. 2. 23. & 3. 18. & 13. 27—29.

* Sin is not the less evil for God's ordering good out of it.

n Ch. 9. 27. & 13. 46. & 14. 3. & 19. 8. & 26. 26. & 28. 31. Eph. 6. 19, 20. Ezek. 2. 6. Is. 58. 1. 2 Thes. 3. 1.

o Ch. 2. 22. & 3. 6—12, 16. & 5. 12, 15. & 6. 34, 40. & 19. 12.

p Ch. 16. 26. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Joel 2. 28. ch. 2. 4.

Verses 23—31. No sooner were the two apostles dismissed than,

1. They returned to their own company, not ashamed or afraid to join them, notwithstanding all the threatenings of the priests; and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them, and most probably their reply. Note, We must never desert the society of our brethren. The world hath its end, if it can confine our religion to our closets, and prevent our open profession of it, by joining those who appear on the Lord's side.

2. When they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God, in prayer and praise, with one accord, under the influence of the Holy Ghost, speaking as if animated by one soul, and said. Lord, thou art God, infinite in power, which hast made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is; the great Creator and Governor, in whose hands are the hearts of all men, and all events directed by thy providence and under thy control; who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? endeavoured to suppress the glorious gospel of Jesus. The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ. And now this prophecy is eminently fulfilled; for of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed as the true Messiah promised so long before, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the people of Israel, were gathered together, conspiring to destroy the adorable Redeemer; but in the execution of their barbarous and malicious designs thou didst over-rule their wickedness for to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done, executing thy eternal decrees, and bringing to thyself the greatest glory, to the Redeemer the greatest honour, and to lost souls a free and full salvation. And now, Lord, behold their threatenings, restrain and disappoint their rage and malice; and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word, openly and zealously preaching thy gospel, in nothing dismayed by their adversaries; and own them in their testimony, by stretching forth thine hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jesus; by the authority derived from this thy incarnate Son, and to the glory of his great name. Note, (1.) In all our dangers we should make application to him who is able to help us. (2.) All the wickedness and wrath of man shall turn to God's praise, and the remainder of that wrath he will restrain. (3.) The sin of persecutors is not the less malignant, because God over-rules it to subserve purposes of his own glory. (4.) God takes cognizance of all the malice of his people's foes, and hears their threatenings: therefore we need not fear them. (5.) They who are to preach the gospel to a gainsaying world, need to be often secretly looking up to God for boldness, that through fear or shame, they may not be unfaithful to men's souls. (6.) Tokens of God's presence and blessing with us, are the comfortable encouragement to us to persevere even through much tribulation.

3. Their prayer receives an immediate answer from God. When they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together, as a sensible token of the divine presence in the midst of them; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, feeling a growing ardour in their souls, experiencing fresh measures of strength, courage, and consolation communicated to them; and they spoke the word of God with boldness. Note, When God is for us, we need neither fear nor care who are against us.

32. [q] And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart, and of one soul: neither said any of them, that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.† 33. [r] And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and [s] great grace was upon them all. 34. [t] Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold, 35. And laid them down at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need. 36. And [u] Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, The son of consolation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37. Having land, [x] sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

q Ch. 2. 44—46. Ezek. 11. 19. 1 Cor. 1. 10. Eph. 4. 3—6. ver. 34—37. 1 Pet. 3. 8. 2 Cor. 13. 11.

† They abounded in charity, so that, in effect, they had all things in common.

r Rom. 15. 19. Mat. 7. 29. 1 Thes. 1. 5. 1 Cor 2. 4. ch. 1. 8. & 2. 22. & 5. 29.

s John 1. 16. Luke 2. 52. ch. 2. 4, 47. 1 Cor. 15. 10.

t Ver. 32, 37. ch. 2. 45. & 5. 1—3. Mark 10. 21. Jam. 1. 27. 1 John 3. 17. Luke 12. 33. & 16. 9. 1 Tim. 6. 19.

u Not Mat. 13. 55. Mark 15. 40.

x Mat. 19. 29. Luke 12. 33. & 16. 9. 1 Tim. 6. 19. Prov. 11. 24, 25. & 3. 9. Eccl. 11. 1, 2.

Verses 32—37. How beautiful is the scene here represented to us! how unlike the schisms and divisions which have since unhappily rent the church of Christ!

1. The multitude of them that believed, vast as the accessions lately made had been, were of one heart, knit together in love, united in sentiment, and seemed as it were actuated by one soul.

2. With great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, proving the fact by incontestable evidence, and enforcing the truths connected therewith, confirming their testimony with signs, and wonders, and preaching, with the most intrepid boldness and zeal, the glorious gospel committed to them; and great grace was upon them all, the most evident tokens of the divine favour rested upon them; and the effects of it were an entire contempt of the world, and most fervent charity towards all men.

3. They had all things common, and none said that ought of the things which he possessed was his own, but freely gave up all for the general service: hence there was not any among them that lacked, the poorest being equally supported out of the common stock, whilst the richer members of the church, as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and, of their own accord, freely brought the prices of the things that were sold, and laid them down at the apostles' feet, as trustees for the good of the community; and distribution was made unto every man, by these faithful stewards, according as he had need. And Joses, who was by the apostles surnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, a son of consolation,) probably from the admirable faculty he possessed of speaking peace to wounded consciences: a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, having land, either in Judea, or in his own country, sold it, and brought the purchase money, which seems to have been very considerable, and laid it at the apostles' feet: a noble instance of enlarged and disinterested charity, deserving a particular memorial. Note, (1.) What we have in the world is not our own, but God's; and, whenever he is pleased to call for it, should be employed in his service. (2.) If we are not called now to the same exercise of charity as in these days of the church's infancy, yet the rich must remember they are still but God's almoners, and should approve themselves faithful stewards of the gifts intrusted to them. (3.) Objects of real need have a title to our relief according to our ability, especially those that are of the household of faith. (4.) One bright example provokes the zeal of others, and none that show themselves faithful to Jesus and his cause shall be forgotten by him.

CHAP. V.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter we have, 1. The sin and punishment of Ananias and Sapphira, ver. 1—11. 2. The flourishing state of the church in the power that went along with the preaching of the gospel, ver. 12—16. 3. The imprisonment of the apostles, and their miraculous discharge out of prison, with fresh orders to go on to preach the gospel, which they did, to the great vexation of their persecutors, ver. 17—26. 4. Their arraignment before the great Sanhedrim, and their justification of themselves in what they did, ver. 27—33. 5. Gamaliel's counsel concerning them, that they should not persecute them, but let them alone, and see what would come of it; and their concurrence for the present with this advice, in the dismission of the apostles with no more but a scourging, ver. 34—40. 6. The apostles' cheerful progress in their work, notwithstanding the prohibition laid upon them, and the indignity done them, ver. 41, 42.

1. BUT [a] a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession, 2. [b] And kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet. 3. But Peter said, Ananias, why [c] hath Satan filled thine heart [d] to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to [e] keep back part of the price of the land? 4. Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God. 5. And Ananias, hearing these words, [f] fell down, and gave up the ghost: and [g] great fear came on all them that heard these things. 6. And the young men arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him. 7. And [h] it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in. 8. And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much. 9. Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have [h] agreed together to [i] tempt the Spirit of the Lord? [k] behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out. * 10. [k] Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband. 11. And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things. † a 2 Tim. 2. 20. John 6. 70. Phil. 3. 19.

b Ch. 4. 37. Josh. 7. 1. Mal. 3. 8, 9. Rom. 2. 22. 1 Tim. 6. 10. 2 Kin. 5. 20.

c John 13. 2, 27. & 8. 44. Luke 22. 3.

d Or to deceive. Ps. 94. 7. Is. 29. 15. Hos. 11. 12.

e Num. 30. 2. Deut. 23. 21. Eccl. 5. 4. Ps. 50. 14. Prov. 20. 25. ver. 2, 4, 9. Rom. 2. 21, 22.

f 2 Cor. 10. 6. Num. 14. 36, 38. ver. 10.

g Ch. 2. 43. ver. 11. Ps. 119. 120.

h Gen. 3. 6.

i Exod. 17. 2. Num. 14. 22. Ps. 78. 18, 56. & 95. 8, 9. 1 Cor. 10. 9. ver. 3, 4.

* Will carry thee out. It is not threat, but prediction.

k Ver. 5.

† The severity was not only righteous, considering the complication of vain glory and covetousness, of fraud and impiety, which the action contained, but also was wise and gracious, as it vindicated the honour of the Blessed Spirit.—Doddridge.

Verses 1—11. The purest societies on this side heaven have some hypocrites, as we see here:

1. Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, willing to appear among the foremost of the disinterested disciples of Jesus, sold a possession, and publicly brought a part of the money, which they would insinuate was the whole, and laid it at the apostles' feet, whilst their covetous hearts secretly reserved a part, and still halted between God and Mammon; though they desired to make a fair show in the flesh, and thought to impose upon the apostles. Note, Hypocrites may go far in appearances, and even, through pangs of zeal, forego, for a while, some temporal advantage, or endure loss; but their heart is not right with God, and therefore there is still a reserve made, which serves to make them more eminently miserable, parting with many of the comforts of this world, and yet having no sure portion in a better.

2. Peter, who knew by divine revelation the falsehood of this pretended disciple, said unto him, Why hath Satan filled thine heart with such covetousness and falsehood, to lie to the Holy Ghost? either to think thus to impose upon the apostles, who were endued with the discernment of spirits by the Holy Ghost; or by pretending to act under his impulse and influence, when in fact he was under the spirit of the devil: and to keep back part of the price, though intimating that the land was parted with for pious purposes, and devoted to the service of the church. While it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not thine own? both the sale and surrender of the price being a voluntary act, and none were compelled to do either, but were left to their own pious zeal. Why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? and harboured the suggestion of Satan to contrive so base a deed; thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God, to that eternal Spirit which resided in the apostles, who searcheth the hearts of all men; and from whom nothing is hid, nothing is secret. Note, (1.) Nothing betrays persons more frequently into the sin of lying, than the affectation of appearing high in others' esteem. (2.) They who conceive falsehood in their hearts are filled with Satan: a lying spirit is his strongest resemblance. (3.) The Holy Ghost is God omniscient. Let those whom pride, worldly-mindedness, or a maintenance, drives into the ministry, take heed how they presume to declare they are inwardly moved by him, lest, like Ananias and Sapphira, their lie be detected, if not here, yet hereafter, to their everlasting confusion.

3. Behold a fearful example of divine vengeance! No sooner had Peter spoken than Ananias fell down and gave up the ghost, struck by an invisible hand, as the just punishment of his wickedness, and to make one example to deter others from such impious hypocrisy. And great fear came on all them that heard these things: it impressed an awe upon the minds of those who had joined themselves to the church, and served to keep off from the society of the apostles those who would have been spots in their assembly.

4. The young men present removed the corpse, wrapped it in grave-clothes, and buried it.

5. Sapphira, the wife of Ananias, who was privy to his falsehood, ignorant of what had passed, about three hours after joined the assembly; and, being required of Peter to answer if they had sold the land for so much, without hesitation she affirmed the lie, foolishly presuming none could disprove it. Her doom therefore is pronounced; being the partner of her husband's sin, she shares his punishment. Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? how astonishing is your stupidity, as well as monstrous your wickedness, to attempt imposing upon the omniscient God? behold the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out. Instantly, death-struck, she fell at his feet, and they carried her out and buried her with her husband; whilst all the church were filled with reverence and godly fear at that jealous God, who thus appeared the avenger of falsehood and hypocrisy; and all others, that heard these judgments, were afraid of provoking or tempting the apostles, whose very word seemed clothed with death. Note, (1.) It is truly grievous when near relations serve to encourage each other in iniquity. (2.) God, though patient under numberless provocations, is pleased to make some sinners monuments of his vengeance, that men may hear and fear and do no more wickedly.

12. ¶ [l] And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and [m] they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch. 13. [n] And of the rest durst no man join himself to them: but the people magnified them. 14. [o] And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women.) 15. Insomuch that they brought forth the sick * into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least [p] the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them. 16. There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were [q] healed every one.

l Mark 16. 17, 18. John 14. 12. ch. 2. 22, 43. & 3. 6, 7. & 4. 30. & 9. 33, 40. & 13. 11. & 14. 3, 8. & 16. 16. & 19. 6, 11, 12. & 20. 9. & 28. 8. Rom. 15. 19. 2 Cor. 12. 12. Heb. 2. 4.

m Ch. 2. 46. & 3. 11. & 4. 32. John 10. 23.

n John 9. 22. & 12. 42. & 19 38. or 1 Kin. 17. 18. Luke 5. 8. 2 Sam. 6. 9. 1 Sam. 6. 19, 20. Is. 33. 14. ch. 2. 41, 47. & 4. 21, 33.

o Ch. 2. 41, 47. & 4. 4. & 6. 7. Is. 45. 24. Gal. 3. 28. ch. 10. 34.

* Or in every street.

p Ch. 19. 12. John 14. 12. Mat. 9. 21. & 14. 36.

q Mark 16. 17, 18. & 6. 56. & 7. 37. Mat. 12. 15. & 14. 14.

Verses 12—16. We are here told,

1. Of the many and great miracles performed by the apostles, in proof of their divine mission; and so much were the people in general convinced of the mighty powers they possessed, that they brought forth the sick in beds and couches and laid them in the streets, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them, persuaded that this would be effectual to work a cure: and from the country vast multitudes of patients, sick and vexed with unclean spirits, were brought to them, and they were healed every one: none being rejected who made application to them.

2. Of the vast veneration in which the apostles were held. They were all with one accord in Solomon's porch, appearing and teaching publicly in the temple, with the greatest unanimity among themselves: and of the rest durst no man join himself unto them; either none of the disciples presumed to set themselves on a level with the apostles, or rather, none durst make a hypocritical profession of Christianity, who were not conscious of the simplicity of their hearts, being terrified at the doom of Ananias and Sapphira; but the people magnified them, held them in the highest veneration, and spoke of them with the highest esteem, beholding the wonders which they wrought, and the presence and power of God evident in the midst of them.

3. Of the vast accession of converts made to the church. Believers were the more added to the Lord, and made open profession of their faith in Christ, multitudes both of men and women, so mightily grew the word of God and increased.

17. ¶ [r] Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees,) and were filled with [s] indignation, 18. [t] And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison. 19. [u] But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said, 20. Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people [x] all the words of this life. 21. And when they heard that, [y] they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. [z] But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought. 22. But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told, 23. Saying, [a] The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within. 24. Now when the high [b] priest, and [c] the captain of the temple, and the chief priests, heard these things, they [d] doubted of them whereunto this would grow. 25. [e] Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

r Ch. 4. 1.

s Or envy. Job 5. 2. Prov. 27. 4. Eccl. 4. 4.

t Ch. 4. 3. & 16. 23, 24. Mat. 10. 17—22. & 24. 9. John 16. 2, 3.

u Ps. 34. 7. ch. 2. 7—10. & 16. 25, 26. Heb. 1. 14.

x Mark 16. 15. John 12. 50. & 6. 68. & 17. 3. 1 John 1. 1—3.

y Ch. 21. 13. John 8. 2.

z Ch. 4. 1, 5. John 7. 48. Mat. 26. 3. & 27. 1, 5. ver. 17, 24.

a Ver. 19.

b Gr. priests. 2 Kin. 25. 18.

c Ch. 4. 1. Luke 22. 4, 52. John 18. 3.

d Ch. 4. 16, 21. John 11. 47, 48. & 12. 18, 19.

e Ver. 20, 21.

Verses 17—25. It cannot be supposed that the inveterate enemies of the gospel would long be quiet, or Satan rest when his kingdom was falling to ruins before the gospel word.

1. The apostles are seized and imprisoned. The hand of the high priest was first in this transgression, supported by the Sadducean sect, who could not endure the testimony borne to the resurrection of Jesus, which radically struck at all their tenets: exasperated to fury, they could contain no longer, and with lawless violence laid hands on them; and, to put the greater disgrace upon them, dragged them to the common prison among the vilest malefactors. Note, (1.) The success of the gospel is a vexation to wicked men, and, when they have power in their hands, the disciples of Jesus shall feel their oppression. (2.) It is Satan's artifice, by endeavouring to make the ministers of Christ despicable, to prejudice the people against them.

2. The Lord miraculously delivers his servants, by the hand of an angel, from their confinement. The commitment was illegal; therefore the great Judge of all sends his messenger to discharge them honourably; and by his power opening the prison doors, he said, Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life; not the least intimidated by all the malice of their inveterate foes, but in their very ears, in the temple, the most public place, must they declare the life-giving truths of the gospel word, and the offensive doctrines of a risen Redeemer. Note, (1.) God can make the most lonesome prison a paradise of delights, when he manifests his presence there. (2.) They who are put in trust with the gospel, must not, in the most public manner, shun to declare the whole counsel of God, however offensive it may prove, and whatever may be the consequences to themselves.

3. Without delay they obey the heavenly command, and early, as soon as the temple doors were open, they went thither, and boldly taught as before, fearless of any consequences. Note, When duty calls, no danger must deter us.

4. An extraordinary council was assembled by the high priest and his abettors, consisting not only of the Sanhedrim, but of all the senate of the children of Israel. And now, ready to proceed to trial, the prisoners are commanded to be brought forth; when, big with expectations of their appearing in chains before them, they are astonished with the report of their officers, that the prison was safe as they left it, and the guards upon duty, but none of the prisoners, whom they had committed thither, were to be found. Such an account threw them into the greatest perplexity; they knew not what course to take, and began to be under terrible apprehensions whereunto this would grow; when, to their great confusion, tidings are brought them, that the men whom they sought, and had the evening before committed to prison, were preaching openly in the temple, in defiance of all their menaces. Note, (1.) They who fight against God must needs involve themselves in many troubles. (2.) The Lord can deliver his people out of all their trials, in spite of the malice of their most envenomed persecutors.

26. Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them [f] without violence: for [g] they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned. 27. And when they had brought them, [h] they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them, 28. Saying, [i] Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and [k] intend to bring this man's blood upon us. 29. ¶ Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, [l] We ought to obey God rather than men. 30. [m] The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. 31. [n] Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. 32. And [o] we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also [p] the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him. 33. ¶ When they heard that, they [q] were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them. 34. Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named [r] Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space; 35. And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, [s] take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men. 36. For [t] before these days rose up Theudas, * boasting himself to be somebody; to whom [u] a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as † obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought. 37. [x] After this man rose up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: [y] he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed. 38. And now I say unto you, [z] Refrain from these men, and let them alone: [a] for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: 39. But [b] if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it: lest haply ye be found even to fight against God. 40. And to him they agreed: [c] and when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go. 41. ¶ And they departed from the presence of the council, [d] rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name. 42. [e] And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ.

f Without binding them. Mat. 27. 2.
g Ch. 4. 21. Mat. 14. 5. & 21. 26. Luke 20. 6, 19. & 22. 2. Ps. 76. 10. ver. 13.
h Ch. 4. 7. Mat. 10. 17. Mark 13. 9.
i Ch. 4. 18, 21.
k Ch. 2. 23, 36. & 3. 13—15. & 4. 10.
l Ch. 4. 19. Gal. 1. 10. Exod. 1. 17. 1 Thes. 2. 5, 6. Deut. 12. 32. & 5. 32.
m Ch. 2. 24—32, 36. & 3. 13—15. & 13. 27—37. & 10. 38—40. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 1. 21.
n Ps. 110. 1. & 89. 27, 28. Heb. 2. 8—10. Phil. 2. 9—11. Eph. 1. 20—23. ch. 2. 23, 36. & 3. 15, 26. & 11. 18. & 13. 38, 39. Luke 24. 47.
o Ch. 1. 8. & 2. 32. & 16. 39, 41. John 15. 27.
p John 15. 26. & 16. 7, 13, 14. & 14. 16, 17, 26. Heb. 2. 4. 1 Pet. 1. 12. ch. 2. 4.
q Ch. 7. 54. & 13. 45. Prov. 27. 4, 5. Job 5. 2.
r Ch. 22. 3. & 4. 15. & 23. 9.
s 1 Kin. 20. 22. 2 Kin. 6. 9. Mat. 10. 17.
t Mat. 24. 11, 24. ch. 8. 9.
* Josephus mentions a Theudas who stirred up an insurrection seven years after this speech of Gamaliel; but there probably was another of the same name, as there were five leaders of insurrections named Simon within forty years, and three named Judas, within ten years.
About A. M. 4000.
u 2 Pet. 2. 2. 2 Thes. 2. 11.
† Or believed.
x Luke 2. 1. & 13. 1.
y Ver. 36. Ps. 9. 16. & 7. 16. Job 20. 5.
z Ver. 35. Ps. 76. 10. ch. 23. 9.
a Prov. 21. 30. Is. 8. 10. Mat. 15. 13. & 21. 25.
b Mat. 16. 18. Luke 21. 15. 2 Chr. 35. 21. Rev. 17. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 25. Phil. 1. 28. ch. 2. 41. & 4. 4, 33. & 6. 10. & 7. 51. & 23. 9. c Mat. 10. 17. & 21. 35. & 23. 24. Luke 20. 10. Mark 12. 5. & 13. 9. ch. 4. 18.
d Ch. 16. 25. Mat. 5. 10—12. Rom. 5. 3. Jam. 1. 2. 1 Pet. 4. 13. & 1. 6. 2 Cor. 6. 10. & 12. 10. Phil. 1. 29. Heb. 10. 34. e Gal. 6. 9, 10. ch. 2. 42. 46. ver. 12. Luke 21. 37. & 22. 53.

Verses 26—42. We have here,

1. The peaceable submission of the apostles to the officers, who came to seize them a second time in the temple. They dared not use violence, for fear lest the people, who held in just veneration the character of the apostles, should have risen upon them. The captain of the temple therefore, with his attendants, spoke them fair; and they, not unwilling nor afraid to appear before the council, consented to go with them.

2. The insolent reprimand given them by the high priest, for daring to disobey the charge given them. Did not we straitly command you, that ye should not teach in this name? and ye have treated our orders with contempt, and behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, most detestable and pernicious as it is: and intend to bring this man's blood upon us, both to expose us to the people, and lay the guilt of it at our doors, as if we had murdered an innocent man, and one whom you cry up so highly. But had not the apostles told them before, they must obey God rather than man? and had they not themselves invoked the blood of Jesus upon them, when Pilate would have let them go? Why then should they be angry?

3. The apostles boldly replied, We ought to obey God rather than men; and far from softening any of the truths they declared, or the accusations they brought against them as the murderers of the Son of God, to their faces they dare declare it, and charge this atrocious deed on their consciences. The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, testifying his highest approbation of him, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree, with the most impious cruelty and injustice; him hath God exalted with his right hand to a throne of glory in the heavens, to be a Prince and a Saviour to his redeemed people, to give repentance to his Israel, and remission of sins, freely and fully pardoning the transgressions of all who by true faith turn unto him, and working that conversion and faith in their hearts by the power of his grace. And we are his witnesses of these things, appointed by him, and speaking with the greatest assurance the truths we most certainly know; and so is the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to those that obey him, who in all his miraculous gifts, as well as by the mighty energy of his gospel on our own hearts and the hearts of others, attests the truths which we declare. Note, (1.) Christ, as a Saviour, offers the free and full remission of their sins, be they never so many, great, or aggravated, to those who fly to him as their refuge. (2.) The promises of pardon are the great motives and causes of evangelical repentance. (3.) All who embrace Jesus as their Saviour, submit to him as their Prince; they who would reign with him, must be ruled by him. (4.) Besides all the great and good external evidences of Christianity, every obedient believer hath the internal witness of the Spirit in his heart, which is to him instead of a thousand arguments; and without this divine conviction of the truth, though we may silence and confound gainsayers, we never can convert them.

4. When they heard this, far from submitting to the Saviour, and seeking the remission of sins which he is exalted to give, they were cut to the heart; malice, indignation, and rage, burned in their bosom; and instantly they took counsel to slay them, resolving to rid themselves at once of their troublers, and murder them together. Note, The bosom of the wicked, when triumphant in iniquity, is a present hell; whilst even in their sufferings for righteousness' sake, the faithful feel their heaven begun.

5. To check the fury of these zealots, Gamaliel, a man of more moderate counsels, arose. He was a Pharisee, a doctor of the law by profession; and his high reputation among the people gave him weight and influence in the assembly: and he is said to have been now the president of the Sanhedrim. He commanded to put the apostles forth a little space, that he might speak more freely. Whereupon, addressing his brethren, (1.) He advises them not to act too rashly. Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men, lest by some hasty resolution ye bring guilt upon your souls, and provoke God's displeasure. (2.) He instances the ruin of some late impostors, who soon came to nothing; which would now be the case with these men, if the matter was a mere human contrivance. Theudas and Judas, two late pretenders, had arisen and collected a number of followers; but both were quickly destroyed, their followers dispersed, and their attempts abortive; and they might reasonably expect the same would be the issue of the present disturbance, if the thing was a mere artifice of deceivers, without embroiling themselves, and taking the matter out of God's hand. Therefore, (3.) His advice is for the present to refrain from these men, and let them alone, and wait a while to see what course matters may take; for if this counsel or this work be of men, a mere invention of the crafty, or the folly of deluded enthusiasts, it will come to nought, the deceit will soon be detected, and their attempts end in their own confusion, without our interfering; but if it be of God, though you oppose it with never so much violence, ye cannot overthrow it, and resistance would be as vain as impious. Therefore wait quietly the event, lest haply ye be found even to fight against God; the madness of which is evident, and the consequence cannot but be your own confusion and ruin. Note, (1.) Persecution for conscience' sake is as absurd as it is wicked. (2.) They who oppose Christ's ministers and gospel, fight against God, and the issue of that conflict must needs be fatal to his enemies.

6. Gamaliel's counsel so far prevailed as to rescue the apostles from immediate death; but their enemies could not so entirely abstain from them as to discharge them unhurt; their rage must be vented on their backs, though restrained from their blood; they called in the apostles, and having ignominiously and severely scourged them as malefactors, dismissed them with the most express injunctions of never more speaking in the name of Jesus, at the peril of all the pains and penalties which would attend their disobedience.

7. With admirable constancy the apostles bore their sufferings, and boldly persisted in their glorious work. They departed from the presence of the council, without a word of reproach or reviling, patiently submitting to these indignities, and, so far from being ashamed or intimidated, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name. This reproach was their highest honour, these stripes their glory; and so far from desisting and being silent, as they were commanded, daily in the temple, in defiance of their persecutors, and in every house, where they resorted, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ. He was the great theme of all their discourse, and the complete redemption which was in him they explained and enforced, inviting all to come and share their mercy, and believe to the saving of their souls. Note, (1.) When for the sake of Jesus and his truth we are called to suffer, we should take pleasure in reproaches, and rejoice at the insults we meet with: they shall issue to our more abundant glory. (2.) A crucified Jesus must be the constant subject of our ministrations; and publicly when called into the pulpit, and privately, when visiting from house to house, him should we ceaseless teach and preach.

CHAP. VI.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter we have, 1. The discontent about the distribution of the public charity, ver. 1. 2. The ordination of seven deacons to ease the apostles of the burden, ver. 2—6. 3. The increase of the church, ver. 7. 4. A particular account of Stephen, one of the seven: (1.) His great activity for Christ, ver. 8. (2.) The opposition he met with, ver 9, 10. (3.) The convening of him before the great Sanhedrim, and the crimes laid to his charge, ver. 11—14. (4.) God's owning him upon his trial, ver. 15.

1. AND in those days, [a] when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there [b] arose a murmuring of the [c] Grecians against the [c] Hebrews, [d] because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration. 2. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, [e] It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables. 3. Wherefore, brethren, [f] look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. 4. [g] But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word. 5. ¶ And the saying pleased

[a] Exod. 1. 12. Mat, 13. 31, 32. Ps. 72. 16. ch. 2. 41, 45, 47. & 4. 4, 34. & 5. 14, 28. ver. 7.
[b] 1 Cor. 1. 10. Heb. 13. 1.
[c] Jews who live among the Greeks, and spoke the Greek tongue. Ch. 9. 29. & 11. 20.
[d] Jam. 1. 27. 1 Tim. 5. 3—5, 16. ch. 4. 35.
[e] Exod. 18. 17. 1 Cor. 9. 16. 2 Tim. 2. 4. ch. 4. 35.
[f] Deut. 1. 13. ch. 16. 2. & 14. 23. & 1. 21. 1 Tim. 3. 7. ver. 8.
[g] 1 Tim. 4. 13—16. 2 Tim. 4. 2. 1 Cor. 9. 16. & 4. 2. ch. 2. 42. & 20. 31.

the whole multitude. And they chose h Ch. vii. & 22. 20. & 11. 24.
h Stephen, a man full of faith and of the
i Ch. 8. 5, 26. & 21. 8.
Holy Ghost, and i Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, k Ch. 1. 24. & 13. 3. & 8. 17. & 14. 23. 1 Tim. 4. 14. & 5. 22. 2 Tim. 1. 6. Mat. 19. 13. and Nicolas a proselyte of Antioch:
6. Whom they set before the apostles:
and k when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them. 7. ¶ [l] And the l 2 Thes. 3. 1. ch. 12. 24. & 19. 20. Col. 1. 6. ver. 1. word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem
m Rom. 1. 5. & 16. 26. 2 Thes. 1. 8. John 12. 42. greatly; and a great company of the priests were m obedient to the faith.

Verses 1—7. The admirable peace and harmony of the church here suffers some slight interruption, and yet good arises out of the evil. We have,

I. The cause, whether real or imaginary, of the discontent, which appeared among some of the members of the church. In those days, when the number of disciples was multiplied; for the sufferings of the apostles, so far from checking the progress of the gospel, proved its furtherance; there arose a murmuring of the Grecians, or Hellenist Jews, who were chiefly foreigners, and were so called from the Greek language, which they spoke, and used in their synagogues, against the Hebrews, who were inhabitants of Judea, and made use of the Hebrew language in reading the Old Testament; and they complained, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration, as if there was a partiality shown to the poor who were Hebrews, and theirs either passed over, or scantily supplied. The complaint might possibly be real; in the multiplicity of affairs which lay on the apostles' hands, they might be unable to look minutely into the wants of the several widows, or other poor, who had made application to them for relief; or perhaps, as the public stock was chiefly raised by the Hebrews, they might count that the widows and other poor of that denomination were entitled to the preference; but probably mere suspicion dictated the complaint, and as they lay under some kind of disadvantages as foreigners, they were jealous lest they should be slighted; for those who are too apt to be querulous, eye with jealousy what is bestowed on others, and to clamour, as if any kindness done to them was an injustice to themselves. Note, (1.) Money matters are too often the causes of much dissatisfaction even among those who profess to be dead to the world. (2.) In the best ordered church some imperfections will be found; and the most careful pastors may hear of some real or pretended cause of complaint.

2. The apostles propose an excellent expedient to remove all cause of murmuring; and this not only for the satisfaction of others, but for their own relief: their necessary employment, in preaching the word of God, being too much interrupted by minding these secular concerns. They assembled the multitude of the disciples, it being a matter of common concern, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables; these avocations of providing for the poor diverting them too much from the great business of preaching the gospel. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you, men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business, men of established reputation and integrity, endued with a distinguished measure of the gifts and graces of the Spirit, to enable them for the faithful discharge of their office, and whose wisdom and prudence are eminent, that they may manage the church's stock to greatest advantage. These were to be chosen by the people themselves, who could not afterwards reasonably find fault with the persons of their own appointment; and the apostles would ordain them to their office, that they might be invested with due authority, and that those who were concerned might know to whom they must apply in these matters: but we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word, as our more immediate and proper employment. Note, (1.) They who are appointed to any holy office, even the lowest in the church, may here behold the requisites thereto. They must be persons of blameless character, men of parts and abilities for the discharge of their trust with wisdom, and, above all, experimentally acquainted with the grace of God in their souls, and partakers of the Holy Ghost. To ordain persons immoral, ignorant, destitute of experimental religion, and to count them fit for the ministry who are fit for nothing else, how shocking! how contrary to the apostolical practice and what a scandal must such be to the office they bear! (2.) Divested as much as possible of worldly cares, Christ's immediate ambassadors should be occupied wholly in his work and the service of immortal souls, preaching his gospel in season and out of season, and watering with their prayers the labours of the pulpit, that God may give the increase.

3. The proposal met with general approbation; and, after serious deliberation, they, with joint concurrence and perfect unanimity, made choice of seven persons, whose names are recited, and seems to be of the Hellenist Jews, which would most effectually serve to silence all future murmurings among them. Stephen stands first in the catalogue, with a most honourable testimony borne to him; he was full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, a man eminent for gifts and graces. Philip, who follows him, we find afterwards successfully employed in preaching the gospel, chap. viii. Of the rest we have no particular account, unless Nicolas, as some have suggested, was the founder of that sect, which St John mentions with abhorrence, Rev. ii. 6—15. These seven being presented to the apostles, they prayed with them and for them, that they might be qualified for their work, and approve themselves faithful, and then, by the imposition of hands, solemnly separated them for this service, to which they were chosen.

4. The church continued to increase greatly, the intestine murmurs being silenced, the apostles being more disencumbered, and all zealously attending to their several charges. Thus the gospel word spread its blessed influence around; the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem, where, during our Lord's ministry, few seem to have believed in him; and what is still more astonishing, and to be reckoned among the chief wonders of grace, a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith, who had been the most inveterate enemies of Christ and his gospel, but now embraced the profession of Christianity, and proved by their holy conversation the unfeigned faith which was in them. Note, True faith in Jesus as a Saviour ever produces sincere obedience to him as our Master.

8. ¶ [n] And Stephen, full of faith and n 1 Cor. xii. Eph. 4. 11. ver. 3, 5, 10, 15. ch. 3. 55.
power, did great wonders and miracles among the people. 9. [o] Then there o Ch. 13. 45. & 17. 18. Eccl. 4. 4. Prov. 18. 6, 7. arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines,* *
* The word Libertines is generally considered to denote Roman slaves who had been made free, or their descendants.
and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen. 10. [p] And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit p Mat. 10. 19, 20. Luke 21. 15. ch. 7. 51. Exod. 4. 12. Is. 54. 17. ver. 5, 8, 15. Jer. 1. 9, 18. by which he spake. 11. [q] Then they suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God. 12.
q Mat. 26. 59. 1 Kin. 21. 10, 13.
[r] And they stirred up the people, and the r Ch. 13. 50. & 14. 2. & 17. 5, 13. Mark 15. 11 elders, and the scribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to s 1 Kin. 21. 10, 13. Ps. 27. 12. & 35. 11. ch. 21. 21.
the council, 13. [s] And set up false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not t Ps. 56 5. Luke 19. 43, 44. Dan. 9. 26. ch. 7. 37, 48. Mal. 1. 11. Mat. 24. 2. & 26. 61. to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law: 14. [t] For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the *customs which Moses delivered us. 15. And all that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an [u] angel.

* Or rites.

u Exod. 34. 30. Mat. 28. 3.

Verses 8—15. Stephen, the first of the seven deacons, not only discharged the office to which he was appointed, but also appeared a zealous preacher of the gospel.

1. He was full of faith and power; endued with an eminent measure of courage and zeal for Christ, and, in confirmation of the truths he preached, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

2. He appeared a bold disputant against those who opposed the cause of truth. There arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines, such Jews as were honoured with the freedom of the city of Rome, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen. These Hellenist Jews and proselytes being generally the greatest zealots for Judaism, and perhaps being eminently skilled in Grecian literature, thought they could soon confute and confound this zealous advocate for Christianity, and challenged him to a public disputation. Probably Saul of Tarsus, a city of Cilicia, was among the foremost of them. Stephen declined not the opportunity of vindicating the glorious truths of the gospel; and this he did with such clearness of argument, force of reasoning, energy of diction, and piercing application, that they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spoke; confounded, silenced, and unable to make any reply which carried the shadow of argument.

3. Enraged at being thus baffled, and instigated by malice and revenge, they suborned witnesses which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God; endeavouring by perjury and murder to silence him for ever, whose arguments they felt themselves so utterly unable to answer. And, working upon their prejudices and passions, they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes, and in a popular tumult they came upon him, and caught him, as a criminal, and brought him to the council, as a blasphemer; and set up false witnesses, which they had hired, and instructed what to swear against Stephen, who said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, the temple, and against the law. For we have heard him say, what fully amounts to the charge we produce against him, that this Jesus, the contemptible Nazarene who was crucified, shall destroy this place, this sacred house, and shall change the customs which Moses delivered us; abolishing all the ceremonial institutions of our celebrated lawgiver, and introducing others of his own appointment in their stead.

Such was the charge: which, if real, was far from amounting to blasphemy; and these things actually came to pass; though probably even in this they falsified, as the apostles themselves seem not to have been yet apprized, that the ceremonial law should be utterly abolished; but, whatever he might have said, we may suppose they put upon it the most malicious construction it would bear. Note, It is no new thing for the faithful to be branded as blasphemers; and it is only wonderful, that, when the enemies of the gospel make no conscience of an oath, they do not by more frequent perjuries attempt to blacken or destroy those whom they so much abhor.

4. God owned his suffering servant by a signal mark of his favour, visible even to his persecutors. All that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, to observe if he betrayed any tokens of fear or guilt, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel; such deliberate courage, such undisturbed serenity, such majesty and mildness sat on his countenance; perhaps a divine splendour beamed from it, like that of Moses when he came from the mount, and seemed to make him appear more than human.

CHAP. VII.—ANNO DOMINI, 33.

In this chapter, we have the martyrdom of Stephen, the first of the noble army of martyrs. Here is his defence of himself before the council. 1. He shows by going over the history of the Old Testament, that God never intended to confine his favours to that place, or that ceremonial law; and that they had no reason to expect he should; for the people of the Jews had always been a provoking people, and had forfeited the privileges of their peculiarity: Nay, that that holy place and that law were but figures of good things to come, and it was no disparagement at all to them, to say that they must give place to better things, ver. 1—50. And then, 2. He applies this to them that prosecuted him, and sat in judgment upon him, sharply reproving them for their wickedness, by which they had brought upon themselves the ruin of their place and nation, and then could not bear to hear of it, ver. 51—53. 3. The putting of him to death by stoning of him, and his patient, cheerful, pious submission to it, ver. 54—60.

1. THEN said the high priest, [a] Are these things so? 2. And he said, [b] Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; [c] The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, [d] when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,† 3. And said unto him, [e] Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee. 4. [f] Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land, wherein ye now dwell. 5. [g] And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: [h] yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child. 6. And God spake on this wise, [i] That his seed should sojourn in a strange land; and that they should bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years. 7. And [k] the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God: and after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place. 8. [l] And he gave him the covenant of circumcision: and so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat the twelve ‡ patriarchs. 9. ¶ [m] And the patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him, 10. And delivered him a Ch. 6. 13, 14. Mat. 26. 62.

b Ch. 13. 26. & 22. 1.
c Ps. 29. 3. & 19. 1—5. & 24. 7—10. d Gen. 11. 28, 31. Josh. 24. 2. Neh. 9. 7.
† It is thought by many that Abraham had two distinct calls: one in Chaldea, and another in Haran.
Before Christ, cir. 1921.
e Gen. 12. 1. & 13. 14. Neh. 8. 7. Rev. 18. 4. Heb. 11. 8.
f Gen. 11. 31. & 12. 4, 5. Josh. 24. 5. Neh. 9. 7. Heb. 11. 8, 9. Is. 41.
g Ps. 105. 12. Deut. 2. 5.
h Gen. 12. 7. & 13. 15, 17. & 15. 7, 18. & 17. 8. & 26. 3. & 28. 13—15. Ps. 105. 8—11. Neh. 9. 7, 8. Exod. 6. 4, 8. Deut. 34. 4.
i Gen. 15. 13. & 50. 24. 1 Pet. 2. 11. Exod. i—v. & 12. 40. Gal. 3. 17.
Before Christ 1911.
k Gen. 15. 13. Exod. vii—xiv. Ps. lxxviii, cv. cxxxv, cxxxvi. ch. 13. 17.
Before Christ 1897.
l Gen. 17. 9, 14. & 21. 2—4. & 25. 26. & 29. 31—35. & 30. 5—24. & 35. 23. & xlvi. Exod. I. 1—4. 1 Chr. I. 34. & 2. 12. Mat. 1. 2.
‡ Fathers of tribes.
m Gen. xxxvii, xxxix—xli. Ps. 105. 17—22. & 34. 19.

Before Christ. 1715.

out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.

n Gen. 41. 53—57. Ps. 105. 16.

o Gen. xlii—xlv.

11. [n] Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Charran, and great affliction; and our fathers found no sustenance.

Before Christ. 1706.

12. [o] But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.

p Ps. 105. 15. Gen. 45. 9—28.

13. And at the second time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

q Including his brethren's wives. Gen. 46. 26. Deut. 10. 22.

14. [p] Then sent Joseph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, [q] threescore and fifteen souls.*

* Here Stephen appears to quote the Greek version. Stephen's expression is, the kindred of Jacob.

r Gen. 46. 5. & 49. 33.

15. [r] So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he and our fathers, s Gen. 23. 6, 20. & 47. 30. & 49. 29. Exod. 13. 19. Joseph and his brethren were buried there.

16. [s] And were carried over into Sychem, and laid in the sepulchre that [t] Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor, the father of Sychem.

t In Jacob, his grandson. Gen. 33. 19. Josh. 24. 32. Mat. 2. 18. 2 Chr. 1. 8.

Verses 1—16. This noble confessor is now before his judges assembled in full council, with the high priest at their head; all his known, avowed, and inveterate enemies: yet in answer to the high priest's demand, Are these things so? he boldly undertakes his defence. The scriptures are the armoury from whence he draws the weapons of his warfare, and we find him a complete master of his subject. Being a Hellenist Jew, he quotes the Septuagint, as the version commonly in use in their synagogues, though containing some variation from the original Hebrew. He begins,

1. With a respectful and affectionate address, entreating their unprejudiced attention; Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken.

2. He lays before them a concise view of the patriarchal history, in order that they might remember, that God had a church and people in the world before the law was given, and still would have one when all the ceremonial institutions were abolished.

1. He opens with the call of Abraham, to whom the God of glory appeared, in some visible display of his presence, when he was at Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, in an idolatrous land, and said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall show thee: accordingly he immediately left his country, and removed to Charran, and, after his father's death, receiving a second call, he came into the land of Canaan, and abode there where they now dwelt.

From hence it appeared, that Abraham was in God's favour before he was circumcised, and that God's Shechinah had visited Ur of the Chaldees before it appeared in Canaan; and therefore they might see, that neither the dispensation of the law, nor the land of Israel, were needful for the acceptable worship of God. Note, (1.) Though we may not see clearly whither God is leading us, yet, when we have his call, we may confidently go forward. (2.) They who are travelling to the heavenly Canaan, cheerfully turn their backs on earth, with all its allurements.

2. Though God had promised Abraham the land of Canaan, for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child, yet he gave him not a foot of land for a present inheritance: nor for four hundred years after, reckoning from the birth of Isaac, did any of his posterity enjoy the promised inheritance, but lived unsettled, and afflicted under the tyranny of strangers, till, at the expiration of the time appointed, God engaged to judge their Egyptian oppressors, and to bring them at last to serve him in this place. And this Stephen suggests in order to lower their pride in their original; and from the length of time which elapsed between the promise and the fulfilment of it, as well as from the hardships their fathers endured in the intermediate space, to show them, that the principle object to which the Lord intended to lead them, was the heavenly Canaan, of which this was but the figure; and therefore it could be no blasphemy to say that Jesus would destroy this country, when he promised to bring them to the heavenly Canaan, and the Jerusalem which is above. Note, (1.) Though God's promises may be long in their fulfilment, they are sure. (2.) The children of God's love may be, and usually are, called to endure the severest afflictions here. (3.) He will finally avenge them on their oppressors.

3. Having called Abraham to be his servant, God gave him the covenant of circumcision, as a seal of the righteousness of that faith which he had, being yet uncircumcised; and this rite he transmitted to his posterity, circumcising his son Isaac on the eighth day, according to the divine command. And Isaac begat Jacob and the twelve patriarchs, in whom the family of Abraham began to enlarge; yet even then did the same spirit of envy break forth against Joseph, as they who boasted themselves descendants from these patriarchs afterwards showed to Jesus, of whom Joseph was an eminent type, both in his sufferings and exaltation. The patriarchs, moved with envy, sold him into Egypt: but God was with him, and delivered him out of all his afflictions; and endued him with such wisdom as recommended him to Pharaoh's favour, who constituted him governor over Egypt, and all his house. And thus had God exalted his Son Jesus, whom they had brought to the lowest state of ignominy and abasement, to a throne of glory. A dearth, which Joseph had foretold, shortly after drove the brethren of Joseph from Canaan to Egypt, where, through his care, provision had been laid up against the years of famine. There, at the second interview, to the astonishment of his brethren, Joseph made himself known to them; and Pharaoh being acquainted with his kindred, at his desire Joseph invites his father and all his family into Egypt, consisting of seventy-five persons. There Jacob, with the patriarchs, died; and, in the faith of the fulfilment of God's promise to Abraham, the patriarchs' bones were carried out of Egypt, and laid in the sepulchre which Jacob, the grandson of Abraham, bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor the father of Sychem. Thus they might observe, that the land on which they set so high a value was afflicted with famine; that the patriarchs of whom they boasted, all died in a strange country, yet were accepted of God, and died in faith, expecting that heavenly country to which Jesus was appointed to bring all the Israel of God.

17. ¶ [u] But when the time of the promise drew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, u Gen. 15. 13. Exod. 1. 7, 12, 20. Ps. 105. 24.

18. [x] Till another king arose, which knew not Joseph.

x Exod. 1. 8—22. Ps. 105. 25. & 129. 1—3. Gen. 15. 13.

19. The same dealt subtilely with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, so that they cast out their young children, to the end they might not live.

Before Christ. 1574.

y Exod. 2. 2—10. 1 Sam. 16. 12. Heb. 11. 23.

20. [y] In which time Moses was born, and was † exceeding fair, and nourished up in his father's house three months:

† Or fair to God.

21. [z] And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for z Exod. 2. 7. Gen. 22. 14. Deut. 32. 36. Ps. 34. 19.

her own son. 22. [a] And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds. 23. And [b] when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel. 24. And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian: 25. For he supposed his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but [c] they understood not. 26. [d] And the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, [e] ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another? 27. But he that did his neighbour wrong thrust him away, saying, [f] Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us? 28. Wilt thou kill me, as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday? 29. [g] Then fled Moses at this saying, and was a stranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two sons.*

a 1 Kin. 4. 30. Luke 24. 19.

b Exod. 2. 11—22. Heb. 11. 24—26.

Before Christ. 1531.

c Ps. 106. 7. & 94. 8. 1 Cor. 2. 8, 14. Deut. 29. 4.

d Exod. 2. 13.

e Gen. 13. 8. 1 Cor. 6. 7. Heb. 13. 1.

f Ch. 4. 7. Mat. 21. 23. John 1. 19, 22, 25. & 2. 18.

g Exod. 2. 14—22. & 18. 1—6. Num. 12. 1.

* The attempts which Moses made to deliver Israel, Stephen insists much upon, and it serves as a key to the history, Exod. 2. 11, 15. as does also the faith and self-denial referred to by the apostle, Heb. 11. 24, 26.

Verses 17—29. Stephen proceeds with the history of the Jewish people.

1. When the time of the promise drew near, they multiplied exceedingly. Then a new king arose, which knew not Joseph, nor remembered what a saviour he had been to the land; but, jealous of the increase of the Israelites, with hellish craft he sought to extirpate them, by a bloody edict to kill all the male children which should be born; whilst, by the most servile and incessant toils and labour, he sought to harass to death their fathers. And thus were they acting against the disciples of Jesus and his infant church; but their subtilty and malice would be equally abortive; the followers of Jesus but increased and multiplied the more.

2. In this state of distress Moses was born, designed of God for their great deliverer; for when God's people are at the last extremity, he is ready gloriously to appear on their behalf. The child was exceeding fair; something peculiarly beautiful appeared on his infant countenance. After being concealed three months, he was at last exposed; and so providence ordered it, that Pharaoh's daughter, coming down to the spot to bathe, found the babe, and was so struck with his beauty and tears, that she took and brought him up as her own son, giving him the most accomplished education; so that he was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds: remarkably judicious in his counsel, and eminent for his courage.

Stephen showed hereby, that far from dishonouring Moses, he regarded him with the greatest admiration, and spoke of him with the highest encomiums. He was also an eminent figure of Christ, exposed to like danger in his infancy, and raised up of God to be a greater Saviour to his people.

3. Being arrived at the prime of life, and at the height of grandeur and affluence, moved by a divine impulse, he resolved to leave the court of Pharaoh, and visit his afflicted brethren. And seeing one of them most unjustly abused and beaten, he interposed in his behalf, and slew the Egyptian, as a specimen of that authority with which he was invested, as their appointed deliverer; supposing by this action they would understand what God intended to do for them by his means; but they understood not. The next day he showed himself again unto them as they strove, and, as a peace-maker, would fain have reconciled the two Hebrews who quarrelled with each other, suggesting their near relation, and how unbecoming it was in them to abuse and fight with one another. But he who was the aggressor, impatient of the rebuke, (as those usually are who are in the wrong,) insultingly rejects his interposition, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us? as if he assumed an authority to which he had no title, and upbraids him with what he had done the day before; Wilt thou kill me as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday? Perceiving hereby the danger in which he was, and the ingratitude and baseness of his brethren, Moses fled, lest the fact being published, he should be arrested as a murderer; and taking up his abode in the land of Madian, he spent another forty years there, where he begat two sons.

Now Stephen insinuates it was no new thing with them to reject and ill use their divinely-appointed deliverers. As their fathers perversely shut their eyes against the pretensions of Moses, so had they refused Jesus the prince of glory, who came to deliver them from a worse than Egyptian bondage, even from the tyranny of sin and Satan, and from the power of death and hell.

30. [h] And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sina an [i] angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a bush. 31. When Moses saw it, [k] he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to behold it, [l] the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32. Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. [m] Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold. 33. Then said the Lord to him, [n] Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground. 34. [o] I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. [p] And now come, I will send thee into Egypt. 35. This Moses, whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? [q] the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer [r] by the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the bush. 36. He brought them out, after that he had [s] shewed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, and in the wilderness forty years. 37. ¶ This is that Moses which said unto the children of Israel, [t] A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, ‡ like unto me; him shall ye hear. 38. [u] This is he that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the mount h Exod. 3. 1—10. with 19. 1—3. 1 Kin. 19. 8.

i Exod. 3. 2, 6. Mal. 3. 1. Is. 63. 1, 9. Gen. 48. 16. Deut. 33. 16. Gen. 16. 13. Ps. 66. 12. Is. 43. 2. Deut. 4. 20. Dan. 3. 27. John 1. 14. Zech. 13. 7. Tit. 2. 14.

k Ps. 72. 18. & 111. 2. Jer. 31. 22. Luke 4. 26.

l Gen. 17. 7, 8. Exod. 3. 6. Mat. 22. 32. Heb. 11. 16.

m Exod. 3. 6. Gen. 17. 3. 1 Kin. 19. 13. Is. 6. 2—5. Luke 5. 8. Heb. 12. 21. Dan. 10. 7, 8. Mat. 17. 7. Rev. 1. 17.

n Josh. 5. 15. Exod. 3. 5. Ps. 89. 7. & 86. 9.

o Exod. 3. 7. & 2. 25. Gen. 29. 32. 1 Sam. 9. 16. Ps. 106. 44. Mat. 9. 36.

p Ver. 27. Exod. 3. 10. Ps. 105. 26. & 77. 20. Mic. 6. 4.

q Ps. 75. 7. & 113. 7, 8.

r Num. 20. 16. see ver. 30—32. Heb. 12. 25, 26. 1 Cor. 10. 9.

s Exod. vii—xx. Num. xi, xiv, xvi, xvii, xx. Deut. iv, viii, ix, xi. Ps. lxxviii, cv, cvi, cxxxvi. Neh. ix. Is. 63. 7, 14.

t Deut. 18. 15—19. ch. 3. 22. Mat. 17. 5.

‡ Or as myself.

u Josh. 5. 14. Exod. 19. 3, 20. Gal. 3. 17, 19. Heb. 2. 2. ver. 53.

Sina, and with our fathers; who received the [x] lively oracles to give unto us: 39. [y] To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts [z] turned back again into Egypt, 40. [a] Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him. 41. And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands. 42. [b] Then God turned, and gave them up to worship [c] the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, [d] O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts and sacrifices by the space of forty years in the wilderness? 43. Yea, [e] ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them: and I [f] will carry you away beyond Babylon.

x Deut. 32. 47. & 30. 19, 20. 7—10. John 6. 63. & 20. 31. Rom. 3. 2. & 9. 4. Ps. 78. 5—7.

y 2 Chr. 36. 15, 16. Mat. 21. 34, 35. Neh. 9. 16, 26.

z Exod. 14. 11, 12. & 16. 3. & 17. 3. Num. 11. 5. & 14. 1—4.

a Exod. 32. 1—8. & 19. 24. Deut. 9. 12, 16. 2 Kin. 17. 16. Neh. 9. 18. Ps. 106. 19, 20.

b Ps. 81. 11, 12. Is. 66. 4. Hos. 4. 17. Rom. 1. 24, 26, 28. 2 Thes. 2. 11, 12. 2 Chr. 15. 2. Ezek. 20. 26, 39.

c Deut 4. 19. & 17. 3. 2 Kin. 17. 16. & 21. 3, 6. Jer. 19. 13. Ezek. 8. 16.

d Amos 5. 25—27. Ps. 95. 10.

e 2 Kin. 17. 10, 16, 17. & 16. 3 & 21. 2—6. Jer. 7. 31. & 32. 35. Lev. 20. 2—6. Deut. xiii. & 17. 2—6.

f Amos 5. 27. 2 Kin. 17. 6. & 18. 11.

Verses 30—43. Stephen proceeds in his account of Moses; and, far from speaking aught that could be construed into blasphemy against him, none could ever make more honourable mention of this great lawgiver.

1. At the expiration of forty years, the great Angel of the covenant, who in the fulness of time was to come into the world as God incarnate, in the person of the Man Christ Jesus, appeared to him in a bush, which seemed all on fire, yet remained unconsumed. Struck with astonishment at this strange sight, when Moses approached to take a nearer view, the voice of God was heard from the midst of the bush, saying, I am the God of thy fathers; the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob; remembering his covenant, and now about to fulfil his promises to their seed after so long a time. The doctrine of a resurrection then, at which the Sadducees were so offended, hath Moses for its voucher; and God hath not limited his presence to the temple, but had here displayed his glory in a wilderness, and that very covenant of promise made unto the fathers, which God spoke of to Moses, Stephen preached, showing its most evident and glorious accomplishment in the spiritual salvation of Jesus; so far was he from contradicting, and much more from blaspheming Moses, as they alleged.

2. Struck with sacred reverence, his eyes fixed on the earth, Moses durst not behold. Then God bids him put his shoes from off his feet, as standing now on holy ground, and gives him his commission. I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning and am come down to deliver them. Though God suffer his people to be in distress, he hears their cry, and in his good time will help them. This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler, and a deliverer, by the hands of the angel which appeared to him in the bush; and thus had God exalted Jesus, whom they had in like manner rejected to be a Prince and a Saviour.

3. Moses faithfully executed his commission, and brought them out from the house of bondage, after he had showed signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, and in the wilderness forty years. So highly does he speak of Israel's deliverer; nor was it any derogation from him, that a greater than he should arise, accomplishing a more glorious redemption for them, since of such a one doth Moses himself prophesy.

4. This is that Moses, the very person for whose honour they were so jealous was he which said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren like unto me; a new lawgiver, who should introduce another dispensation; or as me; as he hath raised up me, so shall there arise another, invested with divine authority and power; him shall ye hear, submitting to his word, and obedient to his voice in all things. Far therefore from dishonouring Moses, Stephen shows the accomplishment of his prophecy, and that they ought to testify their real veneration for his memory, by obeying his injunctions, and submitting to that new and spiritual dispensation which Jesus the great prophet came to introduce.

5. Notwithstanding all the services which Moses did them, and all the honour God hath conferred upon him, their fathers had treated him with the highest contempt and ingratitude. This is he that was in the church in the wilderness, as their captain and leader, with the angel, that uncreated Angel of the covenant; the great Jehovah Jesus, which spoke to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers, face to face, as a man talketh to his friend; who received the lively oracles to give unto us; oracles, as being of infallible certainty; and lively, sharp, and piercing the conscience, or leading those who truly understood them to eternal life. Yet greatly as Moses was honoured of God herein, our fathers would not obey him, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt; murmuring and mutinying against him: and at the very time when, as their mediator, he was in the mount with God, sinking into the grossest idolatry, saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him. So disrespectfully did they speak of their great deliverer. And accordingly they made a calf in those days, in imitation of the Egyptian god Apis, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the work of their own hands. Instead therefore of charging Stephen with blasphemy, they would do well to remember what their own ancestors had done.

6. For these abominations God was justly provoked. Then he turned, withdrew from them his grace and favour, and gave them up to worship the host of heaven, leaving them in righteous judgment to their own inventions. In consequence of which they neglected God, and all the newly instituted ordinances, and relapsed, after they came into Canaan, into the grossest idolatry; for which he quotes a prophet's word, whose authority they would not dispute, Amos v. 25—27. Have ye offered unto me slain beasts, and sacrifices, by the space of forty years in the wilderness? No: they neglected his worship, and what they offered was to devils, and not to God, Deut. xxxii. 17. so that they themselves disused for forty years those very customs which Moses had delivered to them. And, worse still, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, the image of this idol enclosed in a shrine; and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them, in express contradiction to the commands of God: and for this he threatens them with condign punishment; I will carry you away beyond Babylon, see 2 Kings xvii. 5—8.

Now, if God dealt thus severely with them for despising Moses' law, of how much sorer punishment than even their ancestors received, would they be counted worthy, for rejecting the dispensation of grace which Jesus, so far greater than Moses, came from God to reveal to them?

44. ¶ Our fathers had [g] the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as he had appointed, speaking unto Moses, [h] that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen. 45. [i] Which also our g Ex. xxv—xxxi, xxxv—xl. Num. iii, iv, vii. & 9. 15—22. & 10. 17, 21. & 16. 19. Josh. 18. 1.

h Exod. 25. 22, 40. & 26. 30. Heb. 8. 5.

i Josh. 3. 11—14. & 16. 1. Judg. 18. 31. 1 Sam. 4. 4. & 7. 2. 2 Sam. vi. 1 Chr. xiv—xvi. 2 Kin. 8. 1—44.

fathers that came after brought in with * Jesus into the possession of the Gentiles, [k] whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David; 46. Who [l] found favour before God, [m] and desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. 47. [n] But Solomon built him an house. 47. Howbeit, [o] the most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as saith the prophet, 49. [p] Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool: what house will ye build me? saith the Lord: or what is the place of my rest? 50. [q] Hath not my hand made all these things?

* i. e. Joshua.
k Exod. 34. 24. Deut. 4. 38. & 7. 1, 22. Ps. 78. 55. ch. 13. 19.
l Ps. 78. 70, 71. & 89. 19, 20. 1 Sam. 16. 12. 13. Acts 13. 22. m Ps. 132. 1—5. 2 Sam. 7. 1—5. 1 Chr. 17. 1—4. & 22. 7, 8.
n 1 Kin. v—viii. 2 Chr. ii—vii. 2 Sam. 7. 13. Chr. 17. 32.
o Ch. 17. 24. 1 Kin. 8. 27, 47. Jer. 7. 4. p Is. 66. 1, 2. Mat. 5. 34. & 23. 22. Ps. 115. 2, 16. Jer. 23. 24. 1 Kin. 8. 27.
q Gen. i. Exod. 20. 11. & 31. 17. Ps. 33. 6. & civ. Jer. 32. 17.

Verses 44—50. The accusation lodged against Stephen was for speaking against the temple, as if that was blasphemous; whereas he shows, that their fathers worshipped God acceptably for ages before any temple was built.

1. It was not till they came into the wilderness, that the tabernacle of witness was reared, according to the model which God showed to Moses on the mount. God accepted his faithful worshippers before there was any tabernacle; and they might again serve him as acceptably, if the holy place, the temple, was destroyed; and the very care shown in the making of this tent according to the divine model, intimated that it was a shadow of good things to come, being typical of the incarnation of the Son of God, and of his spiritual and gracious presence in his church.

2. This tabernacle Joshua brought into the possession of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before him; and if it was set up in that polluted land of Canaan, why might not God now erect his spiritual tabernacle among the nations of the heathen?

3. Till David's time God was pleased to dwell in this mean and moveable tent, above four hundred years: and when David was desirous to build a temple for the Lord, he forbade him, reserving that honour for Solomon, who built him an house. It appeared therefore evident, that God was not solicitous to have a temple for his abode, as if that was necessary for their acceptable worship; and also, that if Solomon might change the tabernacle for a temple, God might no doubt, if he pleased, destroy that, and make his abode in his spiritual temple, the church of the redeemed.

4. Though God ordered the erection of the tabernacle, and the building of the temple, it could not be conceived, that his immensity could be circumscribed by these narrow bounds, when, as the prophet, Isa. lxvi. 1, 2. had observed, Heaven is his throne, and earth is his footstool. No house made with hands can then be comparable to that glorious temple the universe, which himself hath reared: nor can he need a place to repose himself, when all things and creatures whatever are the work of his hands. Therefore it was no disparagement to the temple to affirm, that Jesus should destroy this temple, and set up another, into which all nations should flow together, and their worship be acceptable to him.

51. ¶ [r] Ye stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always [s] resist the Holy Ghost: [t] as your fathers did, so do ye. 52. [u] Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the [x] Just One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers: 53. [y] Who have received the law by the disposition of angels, and [z] have not kept it.

r Exod. 33. 3. & 32. 9. & 34. 9. Deut. 9. 6. & 10. 16. Neh. 9. 16. Jer. 6. 10. & 7. 26. & 9. 25, 26. Ezek. 44. 9. Is. 48. 4. Zech. 7. 11, 12. Lev. 26. 41.
s Luke 7. 30. ch. 6. 10.
t Ver. 9, 25, 37, 40, 41. Ps. 78. 8. & 21. 34—39. & 22. 6. 1 Thes. 2. 15. ch. 2. 3. & 3. 13—15. & 4. 10, 27. & 5. 30.
u 2 Chr. 36. 16. Neh. 9. 26. Mat. 5. 12. & 23. 31, 34, 37.
x Ch. 3. 14. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Heb. 7. 26. 1 John 2. 1.
y Exod. xix, xx. Gal. 3. 19. Heb. 2. 2. Deut. 33. 2. Ps. 68. 17.
z 2 Kin. 17. 8—23. Is. i, v, lix, &c. Ezek. xvi, xx, xxii, xxiii.

Verses 51—53. Probably Stephen was proceeding to show, that the temple and its service must come to an end, but perceiving the rage that fired the bosoms of his enemies sparkling in their eyes, and expecting soon to be interrupted, he closes with a word of piercing application.

1. He charged them with their obstinacy and stubbornness, like unto their fathers. Ye stiff-necked, and uncircumcised in heart and ears; in profession God's servants, but hardened in pride and prejudice against the clearest intimations of his will; ye do always resist the Holy Ghost; rejecting the evidence of his miracles, wilfully blind to the clearest prophecies, and fighting against the convictions of your own consciences. As your fathers did, so do ye; refusing to hearken unto us the inspired servants of Jesus, as they turned a deaf ear to the warnings of the prophets; and just is it in God to devote those to ruin, who will not hearken to his admonitions, but obstinately harden their hearts.

2. They were persecutors and murderers, like their fathers. Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? more or less reviling or opposing them: and they have slain them which showed before of the coming of the Just One, the Divine Messiah, Jesus, the Holy One of God, sent to bring in an everlasting righteousness, by his perfect obedience in the sinner's stead, of whom ye, treading closely in your ancestors' steps, and exceeding them in wickedness, have been now the betrayers and murderers.

3. They had rejected God's word, as their fathers before them, who have received the law, delivered in the most august manner, by the disposition of angels, whose ministry God employed on mount Sinai, when in shining ranks they graced that solemnity, as attendants on the King of Glory; and have not kept it; have, like them, broken its most essential precepts, and added to all their guilt the rejection of the gospel also, notwithstanding all the glorious evidence wherewith it hath been attended; and how then can ye hope to escape the vengeance of an offended God?

54. ¶ When they heard these things, they were [a] cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth. 55. But he, being [b] full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw [c] the glory of God, and Jesus [d] standing on the right hand of God, 56. And said, Behold, I see [e] the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God. 57. [f] Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord, 58. [g] And cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul. 59. And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, [h] Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. 60. And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, [i] lay not this sin to their a Ch. 5. 33. & 13. 45. & 22. 22, 23. Prov. 2. 4, 5.

b Ch. 4. 8, 31. & 6. 5, 8, 10. c Is. vi. Ezek. i, x. Rev. iv, v. Mat. 3. 16. ch. 10. 11. Dan. 7. 13. Mark 16. 19.
d Heb. 9. 24. & 7. 25. & 1. 3. & 4. 14. & 8. 1. Ps. 109. 31. & 110. 1, 5.
e Ezek. 1. 1. Mat. 3. 16. ch. 10. 11.
f See ver. 54. Prov. 27. 4, 5. ch. 13. 45. & 14. 5. & 22. 22, 23. Mat. 27. 22—25. g Lev. 24. 14, 16. Deut. 13. 9. & 17. 5, 7. 1 Kin. 21. 10, 13. Luke 4. 29. ch. 6. 11. & 22. 20. Heb. 13. 12, 13.
h Ps. 31, 5. Luke 23. 46.
i Mat. 5. 44. Luke 6. 28. & 23. 34. Is. 53. 6, 12.

charge. And when he had said this, he fell [k] asleep.

k Mat. 9. 24. John 11. 11. 1 Cor. 15. 6. 18, 20. 1 Thes. 4. 13, 14. Rev. 14. 13.

Verses 54—60. We have here the glorious and triumphant death of the first Christian martyr.

1. When they heard these things, they were cut to the heart, so filled were they with envy, indignation, and malice, as if sawn asunder; and they gnashed upon him with their teeth, as if they would have devoured him alive. Note, Wicked men carry their hell about with them, in those diabolical tempers and raging passions, which make them their own tormentors.

2. Stephen, unterrified with their malice, and being full of the Holy Ghost, receiving an abundant increase of grace and consolation suited to his present condition, looking up stedfastly into heaven; appealing to God, confidently expecting divine support, and eagerly longing after that crown of glory that now shone bright in his view, and enabled him to look down with contempt upon the malice of his enemies; and, by a miraculous manifestation, saw the glory of God, some visible emblem of the eternal Majesty, such as the Shechinah, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God, in his human nature as mediator, exalted to the highest honour and dignity, appearing as the advocate of his suffering saint, to strengthen him boldly to resist unto blood, to crown him with martyrdom, and shortly to avenge him of his bloody persecutors. Transported with his beatific vision, he said, with wonder and delight, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing at the right hand of God. Note, (1.) In times of suffering, our eyes should be lifted up to heaven, for from thence cometh our help. (2.) As our tribulations for Christ abound, he is pleased, by the most gracious manifestation of himself, to cause our consolations to abound also. (3.) A sight of Jesus, at the right hand of God, will carry us triumphantly through death, armed with all its terrors, and enable us to defy the stroke.

3. Concluding now that they had full cause for his condemnation, They cried with a loud voice, to drown his speech, to express their detestation of what they heard, and sharpen each others' fury; and stopped their ears, as if shocked at his blasphemy, and ran upon him with one accord; the whole multitude of the people rising in tumultuous rage: and cast him out of the city, as a wretch not fit to live, and who defiled that holy place where he stood, and stoned him, as a blasphemer, Lev. xxiv. 16. and the witnesses, whose hands were first upon him, Deut. xvii. 6, 7. laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul, a fiery zealot, who with pleasure saw the bloody execution of this holy martyr. Note, (1.) The cause of Christ is often run down with clamour, and rage supplies the place of reason. (2.) Many of the dearest saints upon earth have been counted as the offscouring of all things, and thought unworthy of the air they breathed.

4. They stoned Stephen, calling upon God; though cast out from earth, as unworthy to live, he had a sure interest in heaven, saying, Lord Jesus receive my spirit; and, now ready to expire, he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, expressive of the vehemence of his desire, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge, copying closely his divine Master's example; and when he had said this, he fell asleep, as these words dropped from his lips, the mortal blow reached him, and in the arms of everlasting love he sweetly rested from suffering and sorrow for ever. Note, (1.) In a dying hour, we cannot be better employed than in commending our souls into the arms of Jesus. (2.) If our immortal part be safe, it little matters what becomes of the fleshly tabernacle. (3.) Jesus is very God, the object of his people's adoration; and as by faith in him we can only live comfortably, so by an eye to him, as the resurrection and the life, we can die happily. (4.) Our bitterest persecutors must share our prayers; and the more wicked they are, the more they need them. (5.) When we come to die, it will be essential to our own comfort, that we are truly in charity with all men. (6.) Death to a believer is but a sleep, reposing a while in that bed of dust where our Lord hath lain, his voice shall wake us up in the resurrection morn, and we shall arise to share with him the triumphs of that eternal day, when our sun shall no more go down, nor our moon withdraw itself, but the Lord shall be our everlasting light, and our God our glory.

CHAP. VIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 34.

We have here, 1. The persecution of the church, ver. 1—3. 2. Its enlargement by Philip's preaching at Samaria, ver. 4—13. 3. Peter and John confirm the disciples there, and rebuke Simon Magus, ver. 14—25. 4. Philip, by divine direction, preaches to converts, and baptizes the Ethiopian eunuch, ver. 26—38. 5. He returns, ver. 39, 40.

1. AND [a] Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was [b] a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem:* and [c] they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles. 2. And [d] devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him. 3. [e] As for Saul, he make havock of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women, committed them to prison.

a Ch. 7. 58. & 22. 20. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
b Ch. 7. 58. & 26. 10. & 9. 14.
* Tacitus, who lived at this period, notices this fact.
c i. e. the preachers. Ver. 4, 14. ch. 11. 19.
d Ch. 2. 5, 42, 26. Gen. 50. 10. & 23. 8. John 11. 31. 2 Sam. 3. 31. e Ch. 7. 58. & 9. 1, 2, 11, 18, 21. & 22. 3, 4, 19, 20. & 26. 9, 12. Gal. 1. 13, 23. 1 Cor. 15. 9. Phil. 3. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 13.

Verses 1—3. We are here told,

1. The pleasure and satisfaction Saul took in seeing the first martyr bleed. He not only consented to the deed, but, as the word signifies, feasted his eyes with the shocking spectacle, in hopes such sharp methods would soon put a stop to the progress of that gospel which he abhorred.

2. The chief priests and rulers determined to pursue their blow, and whilst the fury of the people lasted, severely persecuted the church at Jerusalem, so that the preachers, who were the great objects of enmity, were forced to withdraw, and disperse themselves through Judea and Samaria, except the apostles, who still continued at Jerusalem, and were preserved safe from the rage of their blood-thirsty enemies.

3. Stephen's friends, devout men, eminent for their piety, dared, notwithstanding the danger to which they were exposed, to gather up his broken remains, and carried him to his burial; and though they could not but rejoice in his triumphant death, they bewailed their own and the church's loss, deprived of so able an advocate for the cause of Christ. Note, (1.) The departure of the eminent servants of Jesus demands a tear; though it be their gain, it is our loss, and we should weep for ourselves. (2.) The corpse is honourable in which a heavenly spirit hath dwelt, and should be decently laid in the dust, in sure and certain confidence of a glorious resurrection, when it shall awake in brighter array.

4. Saul, the envenomed foe to the Christian name, a fiery zealot, the fittest tool the priests could have chosen for their service, made havoc of the church, persecuting them even unto death, as he owns, (Acts xxii. 4.) entering into every house, and, sparing neither age nor sex, haling men and women, committed them to prison. To such low and dirty work doth enmity against the gospel lead a man of note, a gentleman, a scholar; as if every mark of contempt and cruelty to a Christian was meritorious and commendable.

4. Therefore they that were scattered abroad [f] went every where preaching the word. 5. Then [g] Philip went down to [h] the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them. 6. And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did. 7. [i] For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed. 8. [k] And there was great joy in that city. 9. ¶ But [l] there was a certain man called Simon,† which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one: 10. [m] To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God. 11. And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had [n] bewitched them with sorceries. 12. [o] But when they believed Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. 13. Then Simon himself [p] believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the [q] miracles and signs which were done.

[f] Mat. 10. 23. ch. 11. 19. & xiii. xiv, xvi—xix. Mat. 5. 15, 16. 1 Cor. 14. 31. Mark 16. 15.

[g] Ch. 6. 5. & 21. 8. with ver. 1, 14, 15.

[h] John iv. Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. & 42. 1—, with Mat. 10. 5, 6.

[i] Mat. 10. 1. Luke 10. 17. Mark 16. 17. John 14. 12. Heb. 2. 4. 1 Pet. 1. 12.

[k] Is. 24. 14—16. & 42. 10—12. & xxxv, xl, liv, lx. ch. 13. 48. Rom. 15. 9—12. Ps. 19. 8. cxvii.

[l] Ver. 11. ch. 5. 36. & 13. 6, 8. Exod. 7. 11. 2 Thes. 2. 9, 10. Rev. 13. 13, 14.

† Josephus mentions Simon, a native of Cyprus, a pretender to magic.

[m] Rev. 13. 3, 13, 14. Ps. 81. 11, 12. Rom. 1. 28.

[n] Deut. 18. 10—12. Is. 8. 19. & 2. 6. & 47. 9, 12. & 44. 25.

[o] Mat. 28. 19. Mark 16. 15, 16. ver. 36, 37. ch. 1. 3. & 16. 15. 1 John 5. 4.

[p] Ver. 21. Ps. 106. 12, 13. & 78. 35—38. Jam. 2. 19.

[q] Ch. 2. 22. ver. 7. Mark 16. 17. John 14. 12. & 2. 23. & 10. 38.

Verses 4—13. The attempt to extinguish and suppress the rising flame of Christianity, served but the more to spread the sacred fire. They that were scattered abroad, went every where preaching the word; not hiding themselves in corners, or seeking concealment by their silence; but publishing throughout the country the glad tidings of salvation by Jesus Christ. Philip, the second of the deacons, and now the first since Stephen had finished his glorious course, was among the chief of these dispersed evangelists.

1. He went down to the city of Samaria, to the metropolis of the country, which was either Samaria, or, as some think, Sychar, or Shechem, where Jesus had been formerly, (John iv. 5.) and preached Christ unto them. As a herald he publicly proclaimed his name, as exalted to the throne of glory, and invited all to come and share the blessings of his happy government: and this must be our constant theme, Christ crucified, glorified.

2. Great was the success that attended his labours. The people with one accord, in general, gave heed unto those things which Philip spoke; showing the most serious attention to his discourses, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did, in proof of his divine mission, and of the gospel of Jesus which he declared unto them. Miracles of the most stupendous nature, such as dispossessing unclean spirits, who with the utmost rage exclaimed at the power they could not withstand; curing the paralytic, and restoring the use of their limbs to the lame, when all human help was desperate. And there was great joy in that city: the people transported beheld these amazing works of divine power and grace, and rejoiced in the glad news of pardon and salvation preached to them through the Redeemer. Note, (1.) So far as the gospel effectually reaches the heart, Satan's power is broken, and his kingdom of uncleanness within is destroyed. (2.) The grace of God cures the moral impotence of our fallen nature, and enables the lame man to leap like a hart, and the paralytic soul to arise and run the way of God's commandments. (3.) The great things which make for our everlasting peace, deserve our most serious attention: and the more we attend unto them, the more shall we consult our own happiness. (4.) True religion will make none melancholy; but wherever the gospel is known and believed, there the soul will taste the sweetest and most substantial joy.

3. What made the success of the gospel in this place still more extraordinary, was the delusion under which the people had lain, through the feats of a certain sorcerer named Simon, who had bewitched the people of Samaria, astonishing them with his magic arts and diabolical illusions; giving out that himself was some great one, the great God himself, or, as others suppose, the expected Messiah; and such was the influence which his pretended miracles had on the minds of the people, that they all gave heed unto him, from the least to the greatest, high and low, young and old, saying, This man is the great power of God; as if he was endued with almighty power, equal to the great God himself; so strangely had he for a considerable time bewitched them with his sorceries.

4. Before the gospel word the kingdom of Satan fell. When they believed Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, the blessings and privileges, the doctrines and ordinances of it, and the name of Jesus Christ, as the great Saviour of lost sinners, the head of his church, the author of all mercies here, and glorious hopes hereafter; they gladly embraced his salvation, abandoned the impostor Simon, and by baptism made open profession of their faith in Jesus, both men and women. Note, (1.) They who are most bewitched by Satan's sorceries, and the power of sin, are not beyond the recovering influence of the Redeemer's grace. (2.) When we truly believe in Jesus, we shall openly and boldly profess him before men.

5. Even Simon the magician himself was so astonished at the real miracles and signs which Philip wrought, that he believed also; so far at least, as to make outward profession of Christ as the true Messiah, and to desire, and be admitted to baptism in his name. Note, (1.) They who have been most atrociously wicked, when they make profession of repentance and conversion to God, are to be received cordially into the church, notwithstanding all that is past. (2.) Though many hypocrites may and do join themselves with God's people, yet we must leave men's hearts to the searcher of hearts, and judge of others with all candour and charity, till they give evident proofs of their unfaithfulness.

14. ¶ Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they [r] sent unto them Peter and John: 15. Who, when they were come down, [s] prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost: 16. [t] For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. 17. [u] Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost. 18. ¶ And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he [x] offered them money, 19. Saying, [y] Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, [r] 1 Thes. 3. 2. ch. 13. 2—4. & 11. 22.

[s] Mat. 7. 7, 11. John 14. 13, 14. & 16. 23, 24. Luke 11. 13. ch. 2. 38.

[t] Mat. 28. 19. ch. 2. 38. & 19. 2, 5. & 10. 48.

[u] Mat. 19. 15. ch. 19. 6. & 6. 6. 2 Tim. 1. 6. Heb. 6. 2.

[x] 1 Sam. 9. 7. 2 Kin. 5. 5, 15, 16. & 8. 9.

[y] Ver. 9—11.

he may receive the Holy Ghost. 20. But Peter said unto him, [z] Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money. 21. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for [a] thy heart is not right in the sight of God.* 22. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if [b] perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee. 23. For I perceive that thou art in the [c] gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity. 24. Then answered Simon, and said, [d] Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me. 25. And they, when they had [e] testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans.

z Ch. 15. 10. & 20. 33. Mat. 10. 8. 1 Thes. 2. 5, 6. 2 Kin. 5. 16, 26, 27.

a Ps. 78. 37, 38. Jer. 17. 9. Rom. 8. 7, 8. Mat. 6. 22, 23. 2 Tim. 3. 5.

* Thou art immersed in wickedness of the vilest sort, and fast bound in the chains of sin and of Satan.

b Dan. 4. 27. Amos 5. 15 Joel 2. 14. 2 Tim. 2. 25. Is. 55. 7. Jer. 4. 14.

c Deut. 29. 18. & 32. 32 Heb. 12. 15. Rom. 8. 7, 8. Prov. 5. 25. Tit. 3. 3. Is. 28. 22. 2 Tim. 3. 5.

d Exod. 8. 8. & 10. 17. Num. 21. 7. 1 Kin. 13. 6.

e John 15. 27. ch. 1. 8. & 20 21. & 28. 23, 31. & 18. 5. & 26. 22, 23. 1 Pet. 5. 12.

Verses 14—25. The glad tidings soon reached Jerusalem of the happy progress of the gospel at Samaria; and the apostles for the furtherance of the blessed work, despatched two of their body, Peter and John, immediately, to confirm the disciples, and communicate unto them those extraordinary gifts which the apostles alone could confer. We have,

1. The success of their journey. They prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost, in his miraculous gifts, and be set on a level with the Jewish converts; for as yet he had fallen upon none of them, though they had experienced his illuminating, sanctifying, and comforting influence upon their souls, in consequence of which they had been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus; yet they had not, by any visible appearance of the Holy Ghost, received the gifts of tongues, or prophecy, or the power to work miracles. But when the apostles had prayed, and were assured of an answer to their requests, then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost, in some visible manner, at least many of them, on whom the apostles laid their hands; and probably ordained them to the ministry of the word, for which they were thus more eminently qualified. Note, Though we may not expect miraculous powers, yet the same Holy Ghost, in all his gracious influences, is still given in answer to the prayer of faith.

2. Simon's hypocrisy on this occasion appeared. When he saw that through the laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he was vastly ambitious of possessing the same apostolic power, and thought he could well reimburse himself any expense, could he but obtain it; therefore, supposing their views mercenary as his own, he offered them money, saying, Give me this power also, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost; thus discovering both his ambition and avarice, and showing the rottenness of his heart, notwithstanding his pretended conversion.

3. Peter, with abhorrence, rejects the proposal, and denounces his doom. Thy money perish with thee; thou and it must perish together, if in this temper of mind thou abidest; as for us, we detest thy mercenary offer, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money; an imagination as absurdly foolish as impiously wicked. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter; art neither a partaker of the gifts nor graces of the Spirit, and as yet an alien from the kingdom of grace, and destitute of the hope of glory; for thy heart is not right in the sight of God? but under the specious profession of Christianity, lurks the foulest hypocrisy. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, so great and aggravated, if yet repentance may be given; and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee, and there be a possibility of pardon. For I perceive by this proposal, that thou art in the gall of bitterness; in a state of unregeneracy, under the dominion of the most abhorred corruptions, and in the bond of iniquity; enslaved by Satan and sin; and, as a criminal carrying to execution, exposed to the severest vengeance of an offended God. Note, (1.) The fatal bait of money, how many souls hath it plunged into perdition and destruction! (2.) Where the heart is not right with God, though a form of godliness may conceal the hypocrisy from men, there is one that seeth and judgeth. (3.) Sin is the odious thing which renders the soul abominable to God; and when it breaks forth in an apostate, justly exposes his character to the detestation of all good men. (4.) They who are now held in bonds of iniquity, may assuredly expect to be bound over to everlasting shame and punishment. (5.) The vilest of sinners must not be abandoned, but still invited to repentance and prayer; whilst there is life, there is hope.

4. Simon, terrified at this dire commination and reproof, entreats their prayers for him; not so much that his heart might be renewed, as that the threatened vengeance might be averted: and that is a sure sign of an unhumbled spirit, when it is more affected with the dread of suffering, than with the evil of sin.

5. The apostles when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, confirming and establishing the faith of the disciples at Samaria, returned to Jerusalem, to give an account to their brethren of their proceedings and success; and, in their way, they preached the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans, improving every stage of their journey, and taking every opportunity of publishing the great salvation of their master Jesus. Let us imitate such worthy examples, preaching the word in season, and, as some may think, out of season.

26. ¶ And [f] the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south, unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto [g] Gaza, which is desert. 27. And he arose and went: and, behold, [h] a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and [i] had come to Jerusalem for to worship, 28. Was returning, and, sitting in his chariot, [k] read Esaias the prophet. 29. [l] Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near and join thyself to this chariot. 30. And Philip [m] ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, † and said, [n] Understandest thou what thou readest? 31. And he said, [o] How can I, except some man should guide me? and he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him. 32. The place of the scripture which he read was this, [p] He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearers, so opened he not his mouth: 33. In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generaf Heb. 1. 14. Ps. 91. 11.

g On the southwest of Canaan. Josh. 15. 47. & 13. 3. Judg. 16. 1. Zech. 9. 5.

h Ps. 68. 31. & 87. 4. Is. 18. 7. & 43. 6. Zeph. 3. 10.

i Ps. 68. 29. 1 Kin. 8. 41. John 12. 20. Is. 56. 6—8.

k Deut. 6. 6, 7. Col. 3. 16. John 5. 39. ch. 17. 11.

l Ch. 16. 6, 7. Prov. 3. 5, 6.

m Eccl. 9. 10. Rom. 12. 11. John 4. 34. Ps. 119. 32.

† It appears that it was the Greek version of the Septuagint that he was reading.

n Mat. 15. 10, 17. & 16. 9, 11. & 13. 23. John 5. 39.

o Ps. 73, 22. Prov. 30. 2, 3. Rom. 10. 14. Mal. 2. 7. Prov. 2. 2, 3, 5.

p Ps. 53. 7, 8. 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. & 2. 21—24. & 3. 18. Phil. 2. 7, 8. Heb. 2. 9, 10. & 5. 8. Mat. xxvi, xxvii. Mark xiv, xv. Luke xxii, xxiii. John xviii, xix.

tion? for his life is taken from the earth.
34. And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, [q] of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man? 35. Then Philip opened his mouth, and [r] began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus. 36. And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; [s] what doth hinder me to be baptized? 37. And Philip said, [t] If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, [u] I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. 38. And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they [x] went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. 39. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord [y] caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way [z] rejoicing. 40. But Philip was found at [a] Azotus:* and passing through he preached [b] in all the cities, till he came to Cesarea.†

q Deut. 17. 9. Mat. 2. 4. Mark 4. 10. Mal. 2. 7.

r Luke 24. 27, 44. ch. 28. 23. & 26. 22, 23. & 10. 43. 2 Cor. 1. 20. Col. 2. 17. 1 Pet. 1. 12, 13. 1 Cor. 2. 2.

s Ch. 10. 47.

t Mat. 28. 19. Mark 16. 15, 16. Rom. 10. 10. ch. 2. 38, 39. ver. 12.

u 1 Pet. 3. 15. Rom. 10. 10. Mat. 16. 16. John 6. 69. & 11. 27. & 9. 35—38. ch. 9. 20. 1 John 4. 15. & 5. 5.

x Mat. 3. 16.

y 1 Kin. 18. 12. 2 Kin. 2. 16. Ezek. 3. 12, 14. & 8. 3. & 11. 24.

z Rom. 5. 2, 11. Is. 61. 10. & 45. 25.

a Ashdod. Josh. 13. 3. Zech. 9. 6.

* The Ashdod of the Old Testament, Josh. 15. 47.

b Mat. 9. 37. Rom. 15. 19. ch. 10. 1. & 21. 8. & 23. 23, 33. & 25. 4.

† In Palestine, formerly called Strato's Tower.

Verses 26—40. We have here the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch, by whom it was generally supposed Christianity was first planted in that country, and the Scripture fulfilled, Psal. lxviii. 30.

1. Philip who continued still at Samaria, is directed by an angel to depart thence, and go towards the south, unto the way that goeth from Jerusalem to Gaza, which is desert. And, immediately obedient to the heavenly call, he arose and went. Note, Though we see not at first the reasons on which God's providential disposition of us is founded, yet when we bow to his command, we shall see cause to acknowledge his wisdom and goodness.

2. He there met a man of singular distinction, an Ethiopian, an inhabitant of Africa, a eunuch; either really such, they being formerly often preferred to the first offices of state; or this may signify his station at the court, as the word is used of Potiphar, Gen. xxxix. 1. being a man of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, a post of distinguished eminence, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship; either being a Jew, or a proselyte to their religion. Note, God hath taken some of all nations, and all ranks, to be to the praise of the glory of his grace.

3. Philip receives an intimation from the Holy Spirit, to go near, and join himself to this chariot, where he found him reading aloud the prophet Esaias, perhaps the portions which he had heard expounded at Jerusalem; where, though he must have heard of Christ and his apostles, yet he seems to have paid no regard to them, and was returning attached as much as ever to the Jewish religion. Note, (1.) The Lord by strange providences, often brings about great events: even when we travel on the road, we know not what good may be done, though among strangers, if we had but the heart to speak a word for Christ. (2.) The Scriptures should be much in our hands; they are the best companion on our journeys, and will supply matter for the choicest meditation. (3.) It is no evil for men of station and affluence to ride in their chariots, if that, as well as every other gift, be sanctified by the word of God and by prayer.

4. Philip hearing him read the prophet Esaias, puts a question to him of great moment, and which we should often put to ourselves, when perusing the sacred oracles, Understandest thou what thou readest? His reply was singularly humble; far from taking the question ill, though from a stranger on foot, and meanly dressed, he answers with the most modest acknowledgment of his own poor attainments, How can I, except some man should guide me? and, willing to be instructed, and glad to embrace every opportunity of increasing his knowledge of these blessed prophecies, he desired Philip, who appeared to be intelligent in these matters, to come up into the chariot, and sit with him, well judging that the honour he did the evangelist, would be abundantly repaid by the instructions he should receive. Note, (1.) To show a teachable spirit, is the surest way to become wise unto salvation. (2.) The Scriptures, especially the prophecies, are many of them hard to be understood; and we should therefore call in the assistance of good men, and good books, to assist our inquiries; and above all, look up to the Spirit of wisdom for an enlightened understanding.

5. This illustrious Ethiopian having seated him in the chariot, inquires of Philip the meaning of the passage he had been reading, Isa. liii. 7, 8. where, according to the Septuagint version, it was written, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth; in his humiliation his judgment was taken away, and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth; the Ethiopian therefore begs Philip to inform him, of whom the prophet in this passage speaks, of himself, or of some other man? Hereupon Philip opened his mouth, and, glad of so fair an opening, began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus, the great subject of the prophecy. He was the sheep led to the slaughter, willingly offering himself a sacrifice for the sins of his people; silent before his shearer as a lamb, neither upbraiding nor threatening, but meek and patient under all the indignities shown him; he humbled himself to the lowest state, to the life of a servant, and the death of a slave: his judgment was taken away; he was treated in the most unjust and cruel manner, hurried from one judgment-seat to another; and, though confessedly innocent, executed as the vilest of malefactors: and who shall declare his generation? the wickedness and impiety of the men of that age in which he suffered these things; for his life is taken from the earth, and by wicked hands he was crucified and slain, cut off as a criminal unworthy to live. Yet God raised him from the dead, exalted him to his right hand, in token of his fullest approbation: and having accepted his sacrifice for the sins of his people, hath given power to his ministers to preach remission of sins to all nations; and to admit those who professed faith in him to baptism, as the initiatory ordinance into his church.

6. Convinced of the truth by Philip's discourse, he embraced the gospel of Jesus, which the evangelist preached; and as they went on their way, Philip opening the truth at large, and the eunuch attentively listening, they came unto a certain water, when, desirous to make open profession of his faith by baptism, if Philip had no objection, he humbly proposes it, that he might be baptized. Philip said, if thou believest with all thine heart the great truths on which I have been discoursing, trusting on Jesus alone for pardon, righteousness, and salvation, and willing to yield thyself to his government and service, thou mayest. He answered, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, the divine, all-sufficient, and promised Saviour, the true Messiah, God incarnate. Satisfied with his confession of his faith, Philip consents to his proposal; and the eunuch ordering his chariot to stop, they went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. Note, (1.) Nothing affects the consciences of men like the preaching of a crucified Jesus. (2.) Faith is not a mere speculative assent to gospel truths, but the embracing with the heart a salvation suited to the case of a lost sinner. (3.) No man can truly say that Jesus is the Christ, but by the Spirit of God; and the real knowledge of this truth secures eternal life.

7. Philip and the eunuch are parted as miraculously as they were brought together. When they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more; and this miracle served to bear testimony to his doctrine, and he went on his way rejoicing in Christ Jesus, with whose salvation he was now become acquainted, and happy in the hope of carrying the glad tidings to his countrymen. But Philip was found at Azotus, or Ashdod, upwards of thirty miles from Gaza: and passing through, he preached as he travelled, in all the cities, till he came to Cesarea, where afterwards, it seems, he chiefly took up his abode, Acts xx. 8.

CHAP. IX.—ANNO DOMINI, 34.

In this chapter we have, 1. The famous story of St Paul's conversion. (1.) His awakening call as he went to Damascus, ver. 1—9. (2.) How he was baptized by Ananias, ver. 10—19. (3.) How he immediately preached the faith of Christ, ver. 20—22. (4.) How he was persecuted and narrowly escaped with his life, ver. 23—25. (5.) How he was admitted among the brethren at Jerusalem, how he preached and was persecuted there, ver. 26—30. (6.) The rest and quietness which the churches enjoyed for some time after this, ver. 31. 2. The cure wrought by Peter on Eneas, who had long been laid up of palsy, ver. 32—35. 3. The raising of Tabitha from death to life at the prayer of Peter, ver. 36—44.

1. AND [a] Saul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest, 2. And desired of him [b] letters to Damascus to the synagogues, that if he found any of [c] this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem. 3. [d] And as he journeyed, he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven: 4. And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? 5. And he said, [f] Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: [g] it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. 6. And he, trembling and astonished, said, [h] Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do. 7. And the men which journeyed with him stood speechless, [i] hearing a voice, but seeing no man. 8. And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: [k] but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus. 9. And he was three days [l] without sight, and neither did eat nor drink.

[a] Ch. 8. 3. ver. 13, 21. ch. 25. 4, 5, 19, 20. & 26. 9—12. Gal. 1. 13. Phil. 3. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 13. 1 Cor. 15. 9. Ps. 27. 12.

[b] Esth. 3. 12. ch. 26. 12. & 22. 5. ver. 14.

[c] Ch. 19. 9, 23. & 28. 22. The phrase means of this religion. Thus, the way of the Lord, means the whole of the worship due to and prescribed by him. The Jewish writers designate the whole doctrines and practice of Christianity by a similar expression, viz. the way, doctrine, or sect of the Christians.

[d] Ezek. 10. 6. ch. 22. 6—16. & 26. 13—20. ver. 17. 1 Cor. 15. 8. 2 Cor. 12. 2.

[e] Is. 63. 9. Mat. 25. 45. 1 Cor. 12. 12. Eph. 5. 30.

[f] 1 Sam. 3. 10. 1 Tim. 1. 13.

[g] Job 9. 4. & 40. 2. Is. 45. 9. 1 Cor. 10. 22. Luke 20. 8. ch. 5 39.

[h] Ch. 2. 37. & 16. 4, 30. Luke 3. 10. Rom. 7. 9. Ps. 94. 12.

[i] Dan. 10. 7 ch. 22. 9. & 26. 13, 14.

[k] 2 Kin. 6. 19. ch. 13. 11.

[l] 1 Cor. 3. 18, 19. ver. 8, 11, 12. Gal. 1. 12, 15, 16. 2 Cor. 12. 2.

Verses 1—9. Saul, the bloody persecutor of the church, again appears, but henceforward to support a very different character. His Hebrew name, Saul, signifies desired; his Roman name, Paul, little. He was by birth a Cilician, of the city of Tarsus; sprung from the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; skilled deeply in Grecian literature, as well as Jewish theology; brought up under the greatest masters of the time: a fiery zealot for the law; a man of rank, though a tent-maker, (it being a custom with the Jews to instruct all those who were bred scholars, in some handicraft trade,) and a Roman, born a freeman of that city. His conversion, which holds so distinguished a place in the records of Christianity, happened about a year after our Lord's ascension. We are here told, in conformity with the former account given of him,

1. With what rage he persecuted the disciples of Jesus. He yet breathed out threatenings and slaughter; not satiated with the blood of martyrs, which he had shed, his fury grasped at the utter extirpation of the Christian name; determined to intimidate them from their profession, to drive them to blaspheme, or murder the obstinately faithful. For this end, not content with the mischief he had done at Jerusalem, he pursued them to other cities; and desired, and obtained, letters from the high priest and the whole estate of the elders, Acts xxii. 5. empowering him to act in their name at Damascus; and if in the synagogue there be found any of this way, favourers of this new religion, Christianity, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem, to be tried and punished by their spiritual court, the Sanhedrim. Thus was Saul employed when the Lord stopped him in his mad career. Let us admire the wonders of grace, and never despair of the chief of sinners.

2. God marvellously arrests him in the midst of his mad career. He was now arrived near the place of his destination, and already, in imagination, triumphed in the havoc he should make: but how far are God's ways above our ways, and his thoughts above our thoughts! When sinners are driving to the height of wickedness, he is sometimes pleased to magnify his power and grace, in bending their iron necks to his yoke. As he journeyed, he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven, brighter than the meridian sun, the dazzling lustre of which quite overpowered him; and the presence of Jesus in his glory filled him with such amazement and confusion, that he fell on the earth, unable to stand on his feet: or, being more probably on horseback, he was struck down, as with a blast of lightning. Note, Those whom God designs for eminent usefulness, he sometimes exercises with the deepest terrors and distress, and lays them in the lowest pit of humiliation.

3. Christ having seized him as his prisoner, addresses him out of the glorious light which shone around him. He heard a voice saying, Saul, Saul; Christ speaks with vehemence, as to one who stood on the precipice of ruin, insensible of his danger; and with fervent compassion, as desirous to snatch him from instant ruin: why persecutest thou me? with daring impiety lifting thy rebel arm against the Almighty: with black ingratitude thus returning the love of him who died to redeem thee; with cruel enmity persecuting those who never injured thee; and in them, my people, striking at me their Lord and Master. Note, (1.) When Christ comes with his Spirit, convincing the soul of sin, he brings the matter home to the conscience, and the sinner hears him say, Thou art the man. (2.) The Lord resents the insults shown to his people, as injuries done to himself.

4. The affrighted criminal, now cited to answer at the bar of this justly offended Redeemer, with terror replies, Who art thou, Lord? desirous to be acquainted with him, whose heavenly voice he heard: And the Lord said, I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest; that name thou hast so often blasphemed, and against whom thou art now acting with such envenomed malice and enmity; it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks; as absurd and self-destructive must these attempts against my church and people prove, as with the naked foot to kick against a sharp iron goad. Trembling and astonished, Saul inquires, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? A flood of light now broke in upon his soul, his sins, in all their aggravations, rose up to his view: the dreadful consequences he had justly to apprehend from the wrath of an offended Saviour, stared him in the face, and made him willing now to do and suffer any thing, if he may escape the vengeance which he hath provoked: he earnestly begs information, if yet there may be hope of mercy, pardon, and salvation. And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do; he leaves him for a while to ruminate in darkness on the past, yet with some gracious hope of hearing farther from him; for he might well conclude, that had Christ intended to destroy him, he would not thus have spared and spoken to him. Note, (1.) They who rebel against the convictions of their conscience, the warnings of God's word, and the calls of God's ministers, will pierce themselves through with many sorrows. (2.) When God's Spirit sets a man's sins in array before him, and opens his eyes to see the flaming gulf on the brink of which he stands, no marvel if horror and a terrible dread seize upon him; and like Belshazzar, his knees smite against each other. (3.) Our terrors of conscience must not drive us from Christ, but to him: inquiring into his will; and what hope of salvation remains for us. Let not the greatest sinner add despair to all his crimes. (4.) Though the Lord may not give present ease, or relief, to the troubled conscience, yet we must wait his leisure, and be found at his feet, where never miserable soul yet perished.

5. Saul's fellow-travellers, the guards, sent to assist him in executing the high priest's and Sanhedrim's commission, stood speechless, when risen from the ground, to which they had been struck down; hearing a voice, some tremendous sound like thunder: or words, the meaning of which they did not understand: and though they heard Saul speak, seeing no man, to whom he addressed himself.

6. Saul himself arose from the earth at Christ's bidding; and now opening his eyelids, his sightless eyeballs no longer met the light of day; he is taken off from the view of outward objects, that he might turn his thoughts more intensely to what appears within. Thus blind, his companions led him by the hand, and brought him to Damascus, a spectacle of wretchedness; where he purposed, a few moments before, in pomp to make his entry; so soon can God change the sinner's mirth into mourning, and humble his pride in the dust. Three days and nights he continued dark in his body, and probably under deeper distress and darkness in his soul; and he neither did eat nor drink: his troubled mind destroyed all relish for food, and in fasting and prayer he spent these three melancholy days, the most fearful hours that he ever knew.

10. ¶ [m] And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias;* and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord. 11. And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and enquire in the house of Judas for one called [n] Saul of Tarsus: for, [o] behold, he prayeth, 12. [p] And hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight. 13. Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, [q] how much evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem: 14. And here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all that [r] call on thy name. 15. But the Lord said unto him, Go thy way; for [s] he is a chosen vessel† unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel: 16. [t] For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake. 17. [u] And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and, putting his hands on him, said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and [x] be filled with the Holy Ghost. 18. [y] And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales: and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized. 19. [z] And when he had received meat, he was strengthened. Then was Saul certain days with the disciples which were at Damascus. 20. [a] And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God. 21. But all that heard him were amazed, and said, [b] Is not this he that destroyed them which called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound unto the chief priests? 22. But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, [c] proving that this is very Christ.

m Ch. 22. 12. Num. 12. 6. 1 Sam. 3. 9, 10.

* An opinion has prevailed in the Greek church that this Ananias was one of the seventy-two disciples, and that he was martyred.

n Ch. 21. 9. & 22. 3. & 11. 25.

o Is. 55. 6. Luke 18. 13. Ps. 50. 15. & 91. 15. & 32. 6. Dan. 9. 20.

p Num. 12. 6. Dan. 9. 21.

q Ch. 8. 3. ver. 1, 2. ch. 22. 3—5. & 26. 9—12. 1 Cor. 15. 9. Gal. 1. 13. Phil. 3. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 13, 15.

r Ver. 21. ch. 22. 16. 2 Tim. 2. 22. Rom. 10. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 2.

s Ch. 13. 2. Rom. 1. 1, 5, 9. Gal. 1. 15. 1 Tim. 2. 7. 2 Tim. 1. 11. & 2. 20. ch. 22. 21. & 26. 17—20. Rom. 11. 13. & 15. 16, 19. Eph. 3. 8. ch. xii, xxvi. & 21. 11.

† The word, though literally signifying a vessel, is used also to signify any kind of instrument or means by which an act is done.

t Ch. 20. 22, 23. & 23. 11. & 21. 11. 2 Cor. 11. 23.

u Ch. 22. 12—16. ver. 3, 10. ch. 8. 17. Mat. 19. 15. 1 Cor. 15. 8.

x Ch. 8. 15. & 2. 4, 33. & 4. 31. & 6. 3, 5, 8, 10. & 1. 4, 5, 8.

y Ver. 8. Gal. 1. 15, 16. 2 Cor. 3. 14. & 4. 6.

z Mark 5. 43. 1 Kin. 19. 7. Ps. 104. 15.

a Gal. 1. 15, 16, 23. ch. 26. 19—23. & 8. 37. Phil. 3. 7—9. 1 Cor. 2. 2. & 15. 10.

b Mat. 13. 54, 55. 1 Sam. 10. 11. Gal. 1. 13, 23, 24. ch. 8. 1. ver. 1, 2, 13, 14.

c Luke 24. 25—27, 44. ch. 18. 28. Heb. 1—x.

Verses 10—22. The Lord now returns to visit the distressed, afflicted Saul, for he will not leave those to despair whom he casts down with convictions.

1. The Lord in a vision speaks to a disciple at Damascus named Ananias; who with ready attention and obedience attends his orders. He bids him Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and inquire at the house of Judas for one Saul of Tarsus, a person of distinguished name; for, behold, an astonishing change is passed upon him, humbled in the dust he prayeth, and hath, in answer to his prayer, seen in a vision a man named Ananias, coming in, and putting his hands on him, that he might receive his sight; he being therefore the person pointed out for this service, must go without delay. Note, (1.) God sees the distresses of the afflicted, he also will hear their cry, and will help them. (2.) The moment a soul is truly turned to God, this evidence of spiritual life will immediately appear, behold, he prayeth. Those who are prayerless, are evidently yet dead in trespasses and sins. (3.) When Christ calls us to his service, we should with delight and readiness answer, Here am I.

2. Ananias at first objects to go, but is quickly satisfied. The well known character of Saul made him apprehensive of danger, should he put himself within the reach of such a bigoted persecutor, who had not only done so much evil at Jerusalem, but had come to Damascus armed, with the chief priests' commission, to bind all that called on the name of Jesus, and carry them as criminals to Jerusalem. But Christ silences his objections; the Lord said unto him, Go thy way, there is no danger; for he is a chosen vessel unto me, appointed to distinguished honour and eminent usefulness; to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel, preaching that faith he once destroyed. For I will show him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake, and will enable him to endure the most severe persecutions; and at last, in testimony of the truth of his mission, to seal it with his blood. Note, (1.) All God's people are elect vessels, though some are chosen to more distinguished honour and usefulness than others. (2.) They who embark in Christ's cause, especially as ministers of his gospel, must prepare for the cross, and learn to endure hardness, as good soldiers.

3. Ananias hereupon immediately obeys; and entering the house where Saul lodged, and putting his hands on him, said, Brother Saul, now adopted into the family of God, a child of grace, an heir of glory with us, and henceforward associated into the ministry of the gospel, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared to thee in the way as thou camest, and struck thee with blindness, hath sent me that thou mightest receive thy bodily sight, the emblem of the happier illumination of thy soul with the light of truth; and that thou mightest be filled with the Holy Ghost, with his miraculous gifts, as well as the most abundant measure of his grace, in order to qualify thee for the great and glorious service to which thou art appointed. Note, (1.) When God is pleased to work a change on the vilest, we must with open arms receive them as our brethren. (2.) Where the Lord wounds, he will heal.

4. No sooner had Ananias spoken, than the cure was wrought. The scales fell from his eyes, he received sight forthwith, and he arose, and was baptized; openly making profession of that faith which he now most heartily embraced. No longer the blind Pharisee, but the enlightened Christian: delivered from the horrible darkness of terrifying guilt, and rejoicing in the Sun of Righteousness arisen upon him with healing in his wings.

5. Behold the fierce persecutor instantly commencing a faithful preacher. Having refreshed himself with proper food after so long a fast, he was strengthened in body, as well as soul; then he joined the faithful disciples of Jesus at Damascus; and, instead of the threatenings he lately breathed against them, he was united with them in the closest bonds of Christian communion; appeared openly among them, and immediately preached Christ in the synagogue, that he is the Son of God, the true Messiah, to the astonishment of all who heard him; for knowing his past conduct, and the intention of his journey thither, they could not but stand amazed at this wondrous change. But far from being ashamed of the apostasy with which some reproached him, or dubious about the merits of that cause which his former Jewish friends so decried, and still with bitterness opposed, Saul increased the more in strength, supernaturally taught and strengthened, and daily growing more bold and zealous in defence of that faith which he had embraced, pleaded the cause of Jesus against every gainsayer, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is very Christ, by such irrefragable arguments as left them nothing to reply. Note, (1.) Christ is the glorious subject, on which his faithful ministers delight to dwell. (2.) It justly excites astonishment, and serves for a fresh confirmation of the truth of the gospel, when bitter opposers, by the power of divine grace, appear advocates for the cause which they once decried.

23. ¶ And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews [d] took counsel to kill him: 24. [e] But their laying await was known of Saul. And they watched the gates day and night to kill him. 25. [*] Then the disciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a basket.* 26. ¶ And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, [f] he assayed to join himself to the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple. 27. But [g] Barnabas took him, and brought him to the [h] apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached [i] boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus. 28. And he was with them [k] coming in and going out at Jerusalem. 29. And he spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the [m] Grecians: but they went about to slay him. 30. Which when the brethren knew, [n] they brought him down to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus. 31. [o] Then had the churches rest throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were edified; and, walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, were multiplied.

d Mat. 10. 16—23. 1 Thes. 2. 15, 16. John 16. 3. & 11. 47—57.

e 2 Cor. 11. 32, 33. Josh. 2. 15, 16. 1 Sam. 19. 12.

* Favoured probably by a house built against or upon the wall, through a window on which they thus lowered him in a basket.

f Ch. 22. 17. Gal. 1. 18. Mat. 10. 17.

g Ch. 4. 36. & 11. 22, 25. & xiii. xiv. xv. Gal. 2. 9, 13.

h Gal. 1. 18, 19.

i Ch. 4. 13. Eph. 6. 19, 20. ver. 20, 22.

k Num. 27. 17, 21. Ps. 121. 8. ch. 1. 21.

l Ch. 6. 10. & 4. 13. & 18. 22. Eph. 6. 19, 20. ver. 20, 22.

m Jews who used the Greek tongue. Ch. 6. 1. & 11. 20. And perhaps John 12. 20.

n Mat. 10. 23. ch. 13. 50, 51. & 14. 6. & 17. 10.

o Ch. 2. 41—47. & 4. 4, 31—34. & 6. 7. & 12. 24. Rom. 14. 17. Prov. 16. 7. Ps. 119. 165.

Verses 23—31. The transactions here recorded happened three years after the foregoing; during which, the apostle went into Arabia, preaching to the Jews who were settled in that country, and then returned again to Damascus, Gal. i. 15, 18. where we find,

1. The narrow escape he had out of the jaws of his envenomed persecutors. Enraged at his apostasy from them, as they regarded it, and unable to bear the powerful energy of his discourses, inculcating the glorious truths of the gospel, they resolved to despatch him; and having gained the governor to their side, they watched the gates day and night in order to murder him: but vain is the malice of the wicked against those whom the Lord will protect; their scheme was discovered either by some friend, or by revelation: and the brethren, in order to elude the vigilance of those bloody minded persecutors, let the apostle down by the wall in a basket by night, and so he escaped. Note, If we are for the Lord's sake brought into the greatest straits and temptations, he is still able to make a way for us to escape.

2. He proceeded to Jerusalem; and there he met new difficulties. See Gal. i. 18.

(1.) From the brethren themselves. He immediately assayed to join himself to the disciples; his former noble friends he had now forsaken, and wished to be admitted among the poor and persecuted disciples of Jesus; but they were at first afraid of him, not having heard about him probably during the three years he was in Arabia, and believed not that he was a disciple; knowing his past enmity, they suspected his present conversion might be feigned. Caution is needful; we should be well acquainted with those whom we admit into our communion, lest they be wolves in sheep's clothing: believe not every spirit. But Barnabas, who had received full information concerning Paul's case, soon satisfied the minds of the disciples; and bringing Paul to the apostles James and Peter, who alone were then at Jerusalem, he told them all the circumstances of his extraordinary conversion, and his approved fidelity and zealous labours ever since, particularly at Damascus. Hereupon they gladly gave him the right hand of fellowship, and he appeared publicly among the disciples, going in and out with them, joining them in their worshipping assemblies, and spoke boldly in the name of Jesus. They who have so good a cause, may well courageously appear in defence of it; Christ's service will bear us out.

(2.) From the Jews. The Hellenists, who were most bigoted to Judaism, encountered him, and he disputed with them with such evidence, power, and demonstration, that, unable to stand before the force of his arguments, they determined to silence him by the sword. Therefore, after a short abode of fifteen days at Jerusalem, having received a revelation from God, directing him in his labours, Acts xxii. 17, 18. and the brethren being solicitous for his safety, he was brought by them as far as Cesarea, and from thence was sent to Tarsus, his native city, where he continued preaching the gospel, till Barnabas joined him, chap. xi. 25. Note, (1.) It is a sure sign of a bad cause, where recourse is had to violence instead of argument. (2.) Whatever plots the wicked contrive against the ministers of truth, the Lord will take care of them till they have finished their testimony.

3. Then had the churches rest throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria; Paul being removed, the flames of persecution, which were again kindled, abated: and a little respite was a great mercy to them, after they had been so harassed by their foes: nor did they fail to improve it; they were edified in knowledge and faith, enjoying more quietly the means of grace, and assembling more undisturbed: and walking in the fear of God, a filial, reverential fear, which made them circumspect and holy in all manner of conversation, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, enjoying much of his light, love, and consolations, were multiplied; increasing in numbers, and growing in grace. Note, They who walk most nearly and humbly with God, will enjoy most of the comforts of his Spirit.

* Of Saul, we hear no more till ch. 11. 30. which is supposed to have been about five years after this time.

32. ¶ And it came to pass, as Peter* passed throughout all quarters, he came down also to [p] the saints which dwelt at Lydda.† 33. And there he found a certain man named Eneas, which had kept his bed [q] eight years, and was sick of the palsy. 34. And Peter said unto him, Eneas, [r] Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise, and make thy bed. [s] And he arose immediately. 35. [t] And all that dwelt in Lydda and Saron saw him, and turned to the Lord.

p Gal. 2. 7—9.
† See note on ver. 38.
q Ch. 3. 2. & 4. 22. John 5. 5. & 9. 2, 21. Luke 13. 16. Mark 9. 17, 21. & 5. 25. r Ch. 3. 6, 12, 16. & 4. 10. John 5. 8. Mat. 9. 6. s See ch. 3. 7. Mark 1. 31, 42. ver. 40. ch. 14. 8—10. John 14. 12.
t Luke 7. 16. ch. 4. 4. & 5. 12—14.

Verses 32—35. The historian for a while leaves Paul to his labours, and returns to relate the ministry of Peter.

1. He travelled about to visit the churches which had been planted, to confirm the disciples, and ordain ministers among them; and among other places, he came down to the saints which dwelt at Lydda. Note, They who are called to be Christians, are by their very profession saints, separated from the world, and devoted to God.

2. Peter there performed a notable miracle, which is here recorded. A man whose name was Eneas, had lain bedridden eight years, through the palsy, and all possibility of a cure by human means was despaired of; but when the apostle saw him, he said, Eneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise, and make thy bed; instantly the cure was wrought, and the man arose restored to perfect health and strength. Note, (1.) By nature we are absolutely impotent to all good, and no man can afford us the least relief. (2.) Christ is the great physician: he can cure those whose state is the most deplorable and desperate. (3.) When he speaks to the soul, power accompanies his word, and we are enabled to rise from the bed of spiritual weakness and impotence, by the mighty power of his grace.

3. Great was the effect produced by this miracle. The people of Lydda and Saron in general, convinced of the divine power evident in the cure, turned to the Lord, and made profession of Christianity; and then was the Scripture eminently fulfilled which said, They should see the glory of the Lord, and become a fold of flocks, Isa. xxxv. 2. lxv. 10.

Cir. 37.

36. ¶ Now there was at [u] Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called ‡ Dorcas: this woman was [x] full of good works and alms-deeds which she did. 37. And it came to pass in those days, that she was sick, and died: whom when they had washed, they laid her in an [y] upper chamber. 38. And forasmuch as Lydda ‖ was nigh to [z] Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring him that he would not § delay to come to them. 39. Then Peter arose and went with them. When he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows stood by him [a] weeping, and shewing [b] the coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them. 40. [c] But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed; and, turning him to the body, said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes: and when she saw Peter, she sat up. 41. And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up: and when he had called the saints and widows, he presented her alive. 42. [d] And it was known throughout all Joppa: and many believed in the Lord. 43. And it came to pass, that he tarried many days in [e] Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

u Josh. 19. 46. 2 Chr. 2. 16. Ezra 3. 7. Jon. 1. 3. ch. 10. 5.
‡ Doe, or Roe.
x Ch. 10. 4. Prov. 31. 31. Jam. 1. 27. Tit. 3. 8. 1 Tim. 5. 10.
y Ch. 1. 13. & 20. 8. Mark 14. 15.
‖ Lydda was a town in the tribe of Ephraim, almost on the border of Judea, and about 10 leagues from Jerusalem. It was afterwards known by the name of Diospolis.
z Josh. 19. 46. 2 Chr. 2. 16. see ver. 36, 43.
§ Or be grieved.
a Ch. 8. 2. 1 Thes. 4. 13. Gen. 50. 10. & 23. 2. John 11. 31. 2 Sam. 3. 31.
b Ver. 36. Prov. 10. 7. & 31. 31.
c 1 Kin. 17. 19—23. 2 Kin. 4. 32—36. Mark 5. 40—43. Mat. 9. 25. ch. 7. 60.
d See ver. 35. John 2. 11. & 14. 12.
e A noted sea-port on the west of Canaan. Josh. 19. 46. 2 Chr. 2. 16. Ezra 3. 7. Jon. 1. 3. ch. 10. 5, 6, 32.

Verses 36—43. Another, and a still greater miracle is here wrought, in confirmation of the divine authority under which Peter acted. We have,

1. The sickness and death of an excellent woman, whose name was Tabitha; in Greek, Dorcas, or a Doe; she was an inhabitant of Joppa, and adorned the profession of Christianity which she made; being full of good works, the genuine proofs of the truth of the faith she possessed, and of alms-deeds, which she did; not only bestowing her substance liberally to the necessitous, but labouring with her hands, that she might be more extensive in her beneficence; for real Christians will show the fruits of grace; their works will speak their praise. In the midst of her useful life it pleased God to cut her off; she fell sick and died. From the ravages of mortality the best have no exemption; and according to their custom they had now washed the body, and laid it out for interment.

2. The disciples at Joppa, who heard of Peter's being so near as Lydda, and of the miracle he had there wrought, sent two of their number to him, informing him of the present afflictive providence, and entreating him to come to them and comfort them under their grief; and probably with some expectations, that he might yet restore to life their departed sister.

3. Peter without delay complied with their request; and when he came, found the body laid out in the upper chamber, and the widows lamenting their loss of such a bountiful friend; showing the coats and garments, which perhaps they then wore, the tokens of her charity, diligence, and pity to the poor, whilst she was with them. Note, (1.) The fatherless and widows are peculiar objects of compassion; to them the hand of charity should be liberally stretched forth. (2.) Though they who are truly charitable will ever be silent, and desire no commendation or return; yet those who reap the blessings of their bounty, ought not to be so; gratitude, at least, is the tribute which they owe.

4. Peter, who, following his Master's example, Mat. ix. 25. declined all appearance of vain-glory, put forth the company; and after kneeling down and praying, he turned to the body and said, Tabitha, arise, in the full confidence of the power which accompanied his word; and immediately opening her eyes, which had been closed in death, when she saw Peter, she sat up: and Peter, giving her his hand, assisted her to rise from the bier where she lay, and calling the widows, presented her alive, to their great astonishment and joy.

5. The fame of the miracle quickly spread through Joppa, and was in every body's mouth; and many, struck with the evidence of God's approbation of the doctrine which Peter preached, believed in the Lord, and made public profession of his gospel. Encouraged by such a prospect of success, the apostle made some considerable abode in that place, lodging in the house of one Simon a tanner; satisfied with any accommodation, and only intent upon preaching the gospel of his adored Lord and Master.

CHAP. X.—ANNO DOMINI, 41.

The Gentiles here begin to be admitted into the church. 1. Cornelius is directed by a vision to send for Peter, and did send for him accordingly, ver. 1—8. 2. Peter is directed by a vision to go to Cornelius, though he was a Gentile, ver. 9—23. 3. The happy interview between Peter and Cornelius at Cesarea, ver. 24—33. 4. The sermon Peter preached in the house of Cornelius to him and to his friends, ver. 34—43. 5. The baptizing of Cornelius and his friends with the Holy Ghost first, and then with water, ver. 44—48.

1. THERE [a] was a certain man in Cesarea called Cornelius, a [b] centurion of the band called the Italian band, 2. [c] A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway. 3. [d] He saw in a vision evidently, about the * ninth hour of the day, an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius. 4. And when he looked on him, [e] he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are [f] come up for a memorial before God. 5. [g] And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter: 6. [h] He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side: he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do. 7. And when the angel which spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his household servants, and a devout soldier† of them that waited on him continually; 8. And when he had declared all these things unto them, [i] he sent them to Joppa.

† We do not find that it was then, even among the Romans, considered a disgrace for a military officer to teach his men lessons of morality and piety, whatever it may be in some Christian countries now. — A. Clarke.

i Eccl. 9. 10. Ps. 119. 59, 60. ver. 33. ch. 11. 12.

a Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. & 42. 1, 6. 7. Mat. 2. 1, 11. & 8. 5—11. & 15. 22—28 John iv. & 12. 20. & 10. 16.

b Captain of a hundred soldiers. Mat. 8. 5. & 27. 54. ch. 23. 17, 23. & 27. 1.

c Ch. 2. 5. & 22. 12. Gen. 18. 19. Josh. 24. 15. 1 Thes. 5. 17. ver. 4, 22, 30, 35.

d Dan. 9. 21. ver. 30. Heb. 1. 14. Ps. 91. 11. & 34. 7.

* Three o'clock, afternoon.

e Mat. 28. 4, 5. Rev. 1. 17. ch. 7. 32.

f Ps. 141. 2. Heb. 13. 16. Rev. 8. 3. ver. 31. Phil. 4. 18.

g Ver. 32. Rom. 10. 14—17.

h Ch. 9. 43. & 11. 13, 14. ver 22, 32.

Verses 1—8. The gospel had for about seven years been preached to Jews only, and the apostles as yet seem not to be fully apprized of the extent of their commission. But now a door of faith is opened to the Gentiles, and Peter is first sent expressly to preach the gospel to them. We have an account,

1. Of Cornelius, the first-fruits of the Gentiles unto Christ. He was a centurion, captain over a hundred soldiers, belonging to the regiment or band called the Italian, in garrison at Cesarea; and though arms were his profession, and from a Gentile nothing good could well be expected, yet he was singularly devout, having abandoned the idolatry in which he was bred, and become a proselyte of righteousness, worshipping and fearing God with all his house, who were influenced by his pious example; a man of distinguished liberality, who gave much alms to the people, Jews or Gentiles, who appeared truly necessitous; and prayed to God alway, observing the Jewish stated hours of prayer. Note, (1.) It is no disparagement to a soldier to be found upon his knees: he who truly fears God, will be most ready to fight and die for his country. (2.) Where the master of a family fears God, we may be assured his house will be a house of prayer. (3.) Charity is the inseparable attendant on a gracious character; whilst a niggard's hand and heart prove the total absence of vital godliness.

2. An angel appears to Cornelius as he was at prayer, about three o'clock in the afternoon, at the time of the evening oblation. Affrighted with this celestial visitant, the centurion with deepest reverence desires to know the purport of his coming, fearing lest he brought some message of evil. But the angel soon quieted his fears, and said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God; are graciously accepted as the genuine fruits of thy faith and love, according to the measures of light thou hast received. And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter; he lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea-side; he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do. Cornelius seems already to have been a proselyte, and to have been living in the faith of the promised Messiah, according to the prophecies; but as yet he had not heard him preached as actually become incarnate, and this was most needful for him to know, according to the present dispensation of grace, in order to his salvation. And to put an honour on the gospel ministry, the angel gives him no farther information, but refers him to the divinely appointed ministers of the word.

3. No sooner was the angel departed, than immediately Cornelius called two of his household servants, and a devout soldier that waited on him continually, who being truly religious, like his master, was always kept near his person. To these he related his extraordinary vision, and ordered them early in the morning to proceed to Joppa, and telling Peter the occasion, to desire he would return with them to Cesarea. Note, They who are truly godly themselves, delight to have those near them as servants who are partakers of the same grace.

9. ¶ On the morrow, as they went on [k] their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, [k] Peter went up upon the house-top [l] to pray about the [l] sixth hour: 10.

k Ch. 11. 5—10. Mat. 6. 6. 1 Tim. 2. 8. Ps. 55. 17. Eph. 6. 19.

l Mid-day. Mat. 20. 5. & 27. 45. Ps. 55. 17.

And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but, while they made ready, he fell into [m] a trance, 11. And saw [n] heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been [o] a great sheet, knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth: 12. Wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. 13. And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.* 14. But Peter said, [p] Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean. 15. And the voice spake unto him again the second time, [q] What God hath cleansed,† that call not thou common. 16. This was done [r] thrice: [s] and the vessel was received up again into heaven. 17. ¶ Now, while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold, the men [t] which were sent from Cornelius had made enquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate, 18. And called, and asked whether Simon, which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there. 19. While Peter thought on [u] the vision, [x] the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee. 20. [y] Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing; for I have sent them.

m Num. 24. 4. Rev. 1. 10. 2 Cor. 12. 1, 2, 4.

n Ch. 7. 56. Ezek. 1. 1. Rev. 4. 2, 3, &c. & 19. 11. Mat. 3. 16.

o Mat. 8. 11. Is. 43. 6. & 49. 12. & 45. 22. & 11. 6—10. & 55. 1—7. & liv, lx. Rom. 15. 8—19. 1 Cor. 6. 9—11. Mat. 13—47. Rev. 22. 17. John 6. 37. Rom. 1. 16. & 3. 22, 29, 30.

* Or, sacrifice and eat. Dr Clarke considers this meaning may well be preserved here.

p Rom. 10. 2. with Lev. 11. 4—31. & 20. 25. Deut xiv. Ezek. 4. 14. & 44. 31.

q Mat. 15. 11. ver. 28, 34. ch. 11. 9. & 15. 9. Rom. 14. 14, 17, 20. 1 Tim. 4. 4 Tit. 1. 15. 1 Cor. 10. 25. Luke 11. 41.

† Or, what God hath declared clean.

r John 13. 38. & 21. 17.

s Mat. 8. 11. Eph. 3. 6—8. & 2. 4—22. Rev. 5. 9. & 7. 9.

t Ver. 9—16.

u Ver. 10—16.

x Ch. 11. 12. & 16. 6, 7. & 21. 4. John 16. 13.

y Ch. 15. 7. Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19. Eph. 3. 8.

Verses 9—20. The servants of Cornelius departing early in quest of Peter, the Lord prepares him to give them a welcome reception. He, like his countrymen, was still prejudiced against the Gentiles, and thought all familiar communion with them was unlawful: the Lord therefore in a marvellous way is pleased to overrule these prepossessions.

1. A vision appears to him when he went up to the top of the house to pray, where he might be most retired, just before the servants of Cornelius arrived. It was noon; and whilst he was thus devoutly engaged, he became very hungry and would have eaten: but while they made ready some refreshment for him, he fell into a trance; a supernatural ecstasy came upon him, and to show him the mystery of the calling of the Gentiles into the church, whom he had been used to regard as persons unclean, he saw heaven opened, in token of some farther revelation of God's will now about to be made to him; and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth; wherein, suitably to his present hungry situation, there were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air; and there came a voice to him, saying, Rise, Peter; kill and eat, without distinction of clean or unclean. Peter, though hungry, objected to the proposal, Not so, Lord: he could not think of transgressing the ceremonial law; for, saith he, I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean. The voice a second time addressed him, saying, What God hath cleansed that call not thou common. He who first commanded a distinction of meats, had a right to abrogate it again if he pleased; and as he had taken the Jews for his peculiar people, he might also bring the Gentiles to share the blessings of the same gracious covenant: and as this was now his purpose, Peter might safely eat whatever was set before him, and go and converse with, and preach to the Gentiles, without fear of pollution. This was done thrice, to show the certainty of the vision, and engage his attention to it, and the vessel was received up again into heaven.

2. The vision soon receives an explication. Peter was now seriously considering, but at a loss to know what this vision meant; and just then the men whom Cornelius had sent were at the door inquiring for him. The Spirit therefore gives him an intimation what messengers waited for him below, and, though they were Gentiles, bid him go with them, doubting nothing of the unlawfulness of being in their company, for they were divinely sent by his orders. Note, Whilst we are in simplicity desiring in our difficulties to know God's will, he will by some gracious intimations direct us aright.

21. Then Peter went down to the men which were sent unto him from Cornelius, and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come? 22. And they said, [z] Cornelius the centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel to send for thee into his house, and to hear words of thee. 23. Then called he them in, and lodged them. [a] And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him. 24. And the morrow after they entered into Cesarea: and Cornelius waited for them, [b] and had called together his kinsmen and near friends. 25. ¶ And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and [c] worshipped him. 26. [d] But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up: I myself also am a man. ‡ 27. And as he talked with him, ‖ he went in, and found [e] many that were come together. 28. And he said unto them, Ye know [f] how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or come unto one of another nation; but God hath shewed me [g] that I should not call any man common or unclean. 29. Therefore came I unto you without gainsaying, [h] as soon as I was sent for: I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me? 30. And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was [i] fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and, behold, a man stood before me in [k] bright clothing, 31. [l] And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight

z Ver. 2—5.

a Ch. 9. 42. & 11. 12.

b John 4. 28, 29. Josh. 24. 15. Mat. 9. 10. Mark 5. 19, 20.

c Rev. 19. 10. & 22. 3.

d Ch. 14. 14, 15. Rev. 14. 10. & 19. 10. & 22. 9. Mat. 4. 10. Acts 14. 13—15.

‡ "I am not an angel; I am come to you simply on the part of God, to deliver to you the doctrine of eternal life."—A. Clarke.

‖ Cornelius had met Peter at some short distance from his house, and they conversed together till they went in. — A. Clarke.

e Ver. 24.

f Ch. 11. 3. Gal. 2. 12, 15. John 4. 9, 27. & 18. 28.

g Ver. 15. ch. 11. 9. & 15. 8, 9. Eph. 3. 6.

h Ps. 119. 60. Gal. 1. 16. Eccl. 9. 10.

i Ezra 9. 4, 5. Dan 9. 20. ver. 3. ch. 3. 1.

k Mat. 28. 3. Mark 16. 5. Luke 24. 4. ch. 1. 10. ver. 3.

l Ver. 4—6.

of God. 32. Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter: he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea side; who, when he cometh, shall speak unto thee. 33. Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God,* [m] to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

* Some MSS. and versions read, before thee. The people were all waiting for the preacher, and every heart was filled with expectation. — A. Clarke.

m Ch. 22. 22. Is. 42. 23. & 49. 1. & 55. 3. Rom. 10. 14—17. Rev. 2. 7, 11. Ps. 85. 8. Heb. 3. 7, 8.

Verses 21—33. Peter, having received full satisfaction, went down without delay to the messengers.

1. Having told them he was the person whom they sought, he desired to be informed of the cause of their coming: and they said, Cornelius the centurion, a just man, eminent for his probity and integrity among men, and one that feareth God, though a Gentile, a worshipper of the God of Israel, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, who respect his amiable and exemplary character, was warned of God by a holy angel to send for thee into his house, and to hear words of thee concerning the things that make for his everlasting peace.

2. Peter courteously hereupon received and lodged the messengers that night, and on the morrow went away with them for Cesarea, accompanied by certain brethren from Joppa, who might desire to be present at this interview, or more probably went at Peter's request, that they might be witnesses for him, if at any time he should be blamed by his Jewish brethren for visiting a Gentile family. Note, (1.) It becomes ministers, and all Christians to be hospitable. (2.) When there is danger that our conduct may be censured, or our conversation misrepresented, it is prudent to have witnesses for what passes, to whom we can appeal.

3. The second day, in the afternoon, Peter and the messengers entered Cesarea, where Cornelius with eager expectation waited his arrival, having called his kinsmen and near friends to share with him the blessing of Peter's discourse. Note, The greatest kindness we can show our friends, is to invite them to partake with us our spiritual mercies, and to join in our religious exercises.

4. Cornelius received the apostle with deepest reverence and respect, and paid him honour which Peter thought excessive; he fell at his feet as he entered the house, and worshipped him, prostrate before him, as if he had been the mightiest potentate. But the apostle, too humble and modest to accept such profound admiration, took him up, and would not suffer him to stay in that posture, saying, Stand up, I myself am also a man, a poor sinful worm, though honoured with this office of apostleship. And thereupon familiarly conversing with him, he entered into the house, where a number of persons were assembled, desirous to hear Peter's words, and affording him a larger field of usefulness, than he might have expected. Note, It is a great encouragement to speak, where we meet a large and attentive audience.

5. Peter inquires the cause wherefore Cornelius sent for him, saying to him and the company, Ye know that it is unlawful, and looked upon as an abominable thing, for one that is a Jew, as I am, to keep company or come unto one of another nation in any way of familiar intercourse. But, though I long thought so, God hath of late showed me, that I should not call any man common or unclean, on account of his being of a different nation. Obedient therefore to the admonition of God, came I unto you, without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for; perfectly persuaded of his will in this matter. I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me? that I may be able suitably to improve the present opportunity, to God's glory and for your good.

6. Cornelius relates the late occurrences which occasioned the present meeting. Four days ago I was fasting unto this hour, and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, when the evening sacrifice was offering, the usual hour of prayer; and behold, in answer to my requests for divine direction and guidance, a man stood before me in bright clothing, an angel in a human form; and, addressing me, said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God: send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon, a tanner, by the sea-side, who, when he cometh, shall speak unto thee, and give the direction thou art seeking. Immediately therefore, without delay, I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come; we regard it as a singular kindness done to us, and doubt not but it will be highly pleasing to God. Now therefore are we all here present before God; met in his fear, hoping for his mercy, and expecting his special presence and blessing, seriously disposed to hear, and desirous to embrace and obey, all things that are commanded thee of God, whom we with all reverence receive as a messenger expressly sent from him to lead us in the way of salvation. Note, (1.) The gospel then comes with effect, when those who sit under it show solemn attention and seriousness, receiving it not as the word of man, but as the word of God. (2.) They who are sincere with God, desire to hear and know all his will; not merely what he promises, but what he commands, however displeasing it may be to flesh and blood.

34. ¶ Then Peter [n] opened his mouth, and said, [o] Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: 35. [p] But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. 36. [q] The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ; (he [r] is Lord of all;) 37. That word, I say, ye know, [s] which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached; 38. How [t] God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who [u] went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for [x] God was with him. 39. And [y] we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jerusalem; whom [z] they slew and hanged on a tree: 40. Him God raised up the third day, and shewed him openly; 41. [a] Not to all the people, but unto witnesses chosen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead. 42. [b] And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify that it is he [c] which was ordained of God to be the Judge of quick and dead. 43. [d] To him give all the prophets witness, n Mat. 5. 2. Eph. 6. 19, 20. Job 3. 1, 2.

o Deut. 10. 17. Job 34. 19. Gal. 2. 6. Eph. 6. 9. Rom. 2. 11. Col. 3. 25. 1 Pet. 1. 17. 2 Chr. 19. 7. Col. 3. 11. p Ch. 15. 8, 9. Rom. 2. 25, 29. & 3. 22, 23, 29. & 10. 12. 1 Cor. 12. 13. Gal. 3. 28. Eph. 1. 10. & 2. 11. & 3. 5, 6. Phil. 3. 3. Col. 1. 6, 23—27. & 3. 11. Gen. 4. 7. 1 John 2. 29.
q Mat. 10. 6. & 28. 19. ch. 11. 19. & 13. 46, 47. Eph. 1. 10. & 2. 14—17. Is. 57. 19. Luke 2. 10, 11, 14. Col. 1. 28, 29.
r Ps. 45. 11. & 22. 27—30. & 47. 5, 6. & lxxii. & 89. 19—29. & xcv—c. Is. 9. 6, 7. & 52. 13. & 53. 12. Dan. 7. 13, 14. Hos. 1. 7, 10. Mat. 28. 18. Rom. 10. 12. Phil. 2. 9—11. Eph. 1. 20—23. Col. 1. 15—18. 1 Pet. 3. 22. Rev. 17. 14. & 19. 16.
s Luke 4. 14. ch. 1. 22.
t Is. 11. 2—4. & 42. 1. & 61. 1—3. Mat. 3. 16, 17. Luke 4. 18. John 3. 2, 34. & 11. 42. & 10. 36, 38. Col. 1. 19. & 2. 9. ch. 2. 22. & 4. 27.
u Mat. 18. 11. & 20. 28. & iv—xxv. Mark 1—xiii. 1 John 3. 8. Is. 49. 24—26. & 61. 1—4. x John 23. 10, 38. & 8. 29. & 16. 32. Col. 2. 9. Mat. 3. 17.
y Ch. 1. 8, 22. & 2. 23, 32. & 3. 15. & 5. 30, 32. & 7. 52. & 13. 31. ver. 41.
z Mat. xxvi—xxviii. Luke xxii—xxiv. John xviii—xx. Acts 1. 2—9. 1 Cor. 15. 3—8. Rom. 4. 24, 25. & 6. 4—6. & 8. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 14. 2 Cor. 4. 11, 14. Gal. 1. 1, 4. Eph. 1. 20. Col. 2. 12. 1 Thes. 1. 10. Heb. 13. 20.
a Luke 24. 30, 41, 48. John 14. 17, 22. & 21. 13. ch. 1. 2—9, 22. & 13. 31.
b Mat. 28. 19. Mark 16. 15. Luke 24. 47. ch. 1. 8. John 20. 21, 22. c Ch. 17. 31. John 5. 22—29. Rom. 14. 9, 10. 2 Cor. 5. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 1, 8. 1 Pet. 4. 5. Mat. 25. 31—46. Rev. 1. 7. & 20. 11—15. & 22. 12.
d See John 1. 45. Luke 24. 27, 44, 47. ch. 4. 12. & 13. 38, 39. & 26. 22. & 15. 9. Is. 53. 4, 5, 11. Jer. 31. 33, 34. Dan. 9. 24. Mic. 7. 18—20. Zech. 13. 1. Mal. 4. 2. Mat. 26. 28.

that through his name [d] whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins.

[d] Ch. 15. 9. & 26. 18. Rom. 10. 11.

Verses 34—43. Peter, on comparing his own vision with that which Cornelius related, was now fully persuaded of God's gracious designs towards the Gentiles; and therefore, with great warmth of affection, delight, and earnestness, addressed this attentive auditory.

1. He expresses his full persuasion, notwithstanding all his former prejudices, that the Lord had now abolished all national distinctions, and designed his gospel should indiscriminately be preached to Jews and Gentiles. Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, on account of any external circumstances of birth, rank, or country; but in every nation, he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Not that we are to conceive that any unenlightened Gentile was capable of fearing God or working righteousness by any power in himself, or that these are the ground of acceptance before God: no; they are only the fruits of faith, and are descriptive not of the conditions of acceptance with God, but of the person who is in a state of favour with him. The meaning of the apostle seems to be, That Gentiles, as well as Jews, though uncircumcised, were capable of partaking of God's favour through the gospel, and their works were accepted through faith. Of this number Cornelius was one, who had known so much of the gospel doctrine as a proselyte, as to build his hopes thereon, and act agreeably thereunto: and God in mercy therefore was now leading him into fuller discoveries of the truth, as it is in Jesus.

2. He refers them to the reports that had been every where spread of the life, miracles, doctrines, death, and resurrection, of Jesus. The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ, the glad tidings of reconciliation with an offended God through him, (He is Lord of all, the self-existent Deity, God over all, and as Mediator incarnate, invested with all power in heaven and earth,) that word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout Judea, after the baptism which John preached, by Jesus himself and his disciples, the fame of which could not but have reached them; How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power, authorizing and enabling him to perform the most astonishing miracles in proof of his divine mission; who went about doing good to the bodies and souls of men, by his heavenly doctrine instructing them, and by his miracles of grace healing all that were oppressed of the devil, under whatever disease or torment, or corporal possession, they laboured: for God was with him, mightily supporting him, and testifying his approbation of him. And we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem, having been his constant followers and disciples; whom they slew and hanged on a tree, a death the most painful and ignominious, in hatred of his pretensions as the promised Messiah, because he corresponded not with their carnal notions of his character and office; him God raised up the third day, to their confusion, and in testimony of his perfect satisfaction in this divine Redeemer's undertaking, and showed him openly, after his resurrection; not to all the people, who had so obstinately rejected the clearest evidence of truth; but unto witnesses chosen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead, and, from the fullest conviction of our senses, were assured of his resurrection, and were appointed by him to bear our testimony thereto. And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify that it is he which was ordained of God to be the Judge of quick and dead, before whom all must appear, and give an account of the things done in the body. To him give all the prophets witness, from the beginning speaking of him as the great subject of their discourses, and pointing to him under various types and figures, that through his name, through his sacrifice and obedience unto death, whosoever believeth on him shall receive remission of sins, justified freely and fully from all his transgressions, whether he be Jew or Gentile, and thus prepared to stand before his judgment-seat with confidence of acceptance. Note, (1.) The remission of sins is the first and great gospel promise, and the door of admission to all the rest. (2.) If we believe that Jesus shall indeed shortly be our Judge, we cannot but be anxiously solicitous to secure an interest in his favour.

44. ¶ [e] While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word. 45. And they [f] of the circumcision which believed were † astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost. 46. For they heard them [g] speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter, 47. [h] Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we? 48. And he commanded them [i] to be baptized in the name of the Lord. [k] Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

[e] Ch. 2. 2, 4, 37. & 4. 31. & 8. 15, 16. ver. 45, 46.
[f] Ch. 9. 42. & 11. 3, 18.
† Because it was a maxim with them that the Shechinah, or Divine influence, could not be revealed to any person who dwelt beyond the precincts of the promised land.—A. Clarke.
[g] Ch. 8. 17. & 19. 6. & 2. 4. Ps. 100. 1.
[h] Ch. 8. 36. with 2. 4. & 15. 8.
[i] Ch. 2. 38. & 11. 16, 17. & 8. 16. 1 Cor. 1. 16, 17. Rom. 6. 3—6. Gal. 3. 27. Mat. 28. 19.
[k] Ch. 16. 15. John 4. 40.

Verses 44—48. While these words were yet dropping from the apostle's lips, God himself appears, bearing witness to the gospel which Peter preached.

1. The Holy Ghost, in his miraculous gifts, as well as gracious influences, fell on all them that heard the word, as on the disciples at the day of Pentecost; and they of the circumcision, which believed, were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost, though they were neither circumcised nor baptized; for they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God; like the other ministers of the gospel, they were equally qualified for that service, in which probably the Lord designed to employ the first-fruits of the Gentiles, and in the various languages which they spoke, adored God for the blessings of that redemption in Christ Jesus, of which they now were made partakers. Note, They who have received the Holy Ghost cannot but desire to magnify God, both in the exercise of his gifts and graces seeking the divine glory.

2. Peter, no longer dubious, hesitates not to admit them into the church by the instituted rite of baptism. It would be highly absurd for the most rigid Jewish Christian to object against admitting those to the sign and seal of the covenant, who had received the gifts and graces of the covenant. Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we? the point was too clear to admit of a scruple, and therefore he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Hence it appears evidently, that water baptism is an ordinance to be used by those who are most clearly baptized with the Holy Ghost.

3. They entreated Peter to tarry certain days with them, that they might enjoy the edification and comfort of his farther ministrations. Note, (1.) They who have received a blessing under the discourse of a gospel minister, covet to hear more. (2.) The most advanced in gifts and graces are never to think themselves above the ministry of the word.

CHAP. XI.—ANNO DOMINI, 41.

In this chapter we have, 1. Peter's necessary vindication of what he did in receiving Cornelius and his friends into the church, from the censure he lay under for it among the brethren, and their acquiescence in it, ver. 1—18. 2. The good success of the gospel at Antioch, and the parts adjacent, ver. 19—21. 3. The carrying on of the good work that was begun at Antioch, by the ministry of Barnabas first, and afterwards by Saul in conjunction with him, and the lasting name of Christian first given to the disciples there, ver. 22—26. 4. A prediction of an approaching famine, and the contribution that was made among the Gentile converts for the relief of the poor saints in Judea upon that occasion, ver. 27—30.

1. AND the apostles and * brethren that were in Judea † heard that [a] the Gentiles had also received the word of God. 2. And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, [b] they that were of the circumcision contended with him, 3. Saying, [c] Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them. 4. But [d] Peter rehearsed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them, saying, 5. [e] I was in the city of Joppa praying; and [f] in a trance I saw a vision, [g] A certain vessel descend, as it had been a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even to me: 6. Upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw [h] four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. 7. And I heard a voice saying unto me, [i] Arise, Peter; slay and eat. 8. But I said, [k] Not so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth. 9. But the voice answered me again from heaven, [l] What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common. 10. And this was done [m] three times: and [n] all were drawn up again into heaven. 11. And, behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Cesarea unto me. 12. And ° the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover, these six brethren accompanied me, and we entered into the man's house: 13. [p] And he shewed us how he had seen an angel in his house, which stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter: 14. Who shall tell thee [q] words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved. 15. And as I began to speak, [r] the Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning. 16. Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, [s] John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost. 17. Forasmuch then as [t] God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed ‡ on the Lord Jesus Christ, what was I, [u] that I could withstand God? 18. When they heard these things, [x] they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, [y] Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

* Jewish Christians.

† According to Calmet, Judea is here put in opposition to Cesarea, which, though situated in Palestine, passed for a Greek city, being principally inhabited by Pagans, Greeks, or Syrians.

a Ch. 10. 34—48. Gen. 49. 10. Ps. 22. 27. Is. 42. 1, 6. & 11. 10.

b Ch. 15. 1, 5. Josh. 22. 12, 22. with ch. 10. 25.

c Ch. 10. 23—28, 48. Gal. 2. 12. Luke 15. 2.

d Josh. 22. 12. 1 Pet. 3. 15. Prov. 15. 1. Luke 1. 3.

e Ch. 10. 9—48.

f Num. 24. 4. Rev. 1. 10. 2 Cor. 12. 1, 2. ch. 22. 17.

g Mat. 8. 11. Is. 43. 6. & 49. 12. & 45. 22. & 55. 1—7.

h Is. 11. 6—10. & 43. 20, 21. Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11.

i Is. 30. 21. Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19. Rom. 1. 16. & 3. 22, 29, 30.

k Rom. 10. 2 with Lev. xi. Deut. xiv. Lev. 20. 25. Ezek. 4. 14. & 44. 31.

l Mat. 15. 11. ch. 10. 15, 28. & 15. 8, 9.

m John 13. 38. & 21. 17.

n Mat. 8. 11. Eph. 3. 5—8. & 2. 4—22. ch. 15. 14. Rom. 15. 8—12, 16. Col. 1. 20.

o Ch. 10. 19. & 16. 6, 7. & 21. 4. John 16. 13.

p Ch. 10. 3—6, 30—32. & 9. 43. Ps. 91. 11. & 34. 7.

q Mark 16. 15, 16. Rom. 1. 16, 17. John 20. 31. 1 John 5. 9—13, 20. ch. 16. 31. Luke 19. 9, 10. Rom. 10. 17.

r Ch. 2. 4. & 10. 44—47.

s Ch. 1. 5. & 19. 4. Mat. 3. 11. Mark 1. 8. Luke 3. 16. John 1. 26. Is. 44. 3—5. Joel 2. 28. Prov. 1. 23.

t Ver. 15. ch. 10. 44—47. & 15. 8, 9.

‡ Or, unto us also, upon our believing. — Scoble-field.

u Rom. 8. 31. Job 40. 2. & 9. 3, 4, 12. Dan. 4. 35. ch. 10. 47.

x Josh. 11. 20. ch. 21. 20. Is. 54. 1—5.

y Ch. 5. 31. & 20. 24. 2 Cor. 7—11. Jer. 31. 18—20. Ps. 22. 27. Is. 55. 5, 7.

Verses 1—18. The conversion of the Gentiles and the admission of those into the Christian church who were uncircumcised, was a thing so new and extraordinary, that it soon reached Jerusalem. And we are told,

1. What offence it gave to some of the Christians there, who were as yet wedded to the Jewish ritual. They that were of the circumcision contended with Peter; so far were they from entertaining any thought of his supremacy or infallibility, which his pretended successors have since claimed, that they called him to account for what he had done, as if it was a matter of blame, saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them; supposing it a prostitution of their privileges, and a high disgrace to the apostolic character. Note, (1.) Even good men are sometimes strangely enslaved by prejudices and bigotry. (2.) Rash censures sometimes drop from gracious men, and we must mildly bear with them, and answer in the spirit of meekness. Even godlike charity will be sometimes called latitudinarian by narrow minds, that never tasted the warm sensations of generous, catholic love.

2. Peter relates the whole transaction from the beginning, and then refers the matter to their judgment. He might have despised their censures; but it is a debt we sometimes owe ourselves, to set what is misrepresented in its true colours, and remove, as far as we can, the prejudices of our brethren.

(1.) He informs them of the vision which he himself had seen in all its particulars: wherein God intimated to him, that all the Mosaical distinctions between meats and persons were now at an end.

(2.) He relates the vision which Cornelius was favoured with, and the express command given him to send for Peter from Joppa, as the person by whose words he and his house should be saved, through faith in that Saviour whom the apostle should preach unto him, and out of whom there is no salvation.

(3.) He declares the express command he had from the Spirit to go with the messengers Cornelius sent, and his prudent precaution to take several of the brethren with him, that his journey might be the less subject to any misrepresentation, when he had them as witnesses for his conduct.

(4.) He pleads what above all other arguments vindicated his procedure, the attestation which the Holy Ghost bore to his word almost as soon as he began to speak to them of the gospel salvation, giving them the same miraculous gifts as he bestowed on themselves at the beginning. And this brought to his mind the word of the Lord, just before his ascension, Acts i. 5. how that he said, John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost. Seeing therefore this promise thus eminently fulfilled, and that God made no distinction between Gentile and Jewish converts, who, though of the seed of Abraham, believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, and expected salvation by faith in him alone, what was I, that I could withstand God? or refuse to admit to baptism those whom he had so eminently called into the participation of the glorious privileges of the gospel.

3. An account so satisfactory silenced every cavil. No objections could possibly be made to Peter; but contrariwise, they glorified God for this unexpected event, saying, with wonder and delight, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life. Note, (1.) Repentance is God's gift: it is not in the power of our own will, nor to be produced by judgments or mercies, but comes purely from his Spirit working effectually upon the conscience, without which we must for ever continue under our native blindness and hardness of heart. (2.) Where repentance is evangelical, and the gift of God, there it is the sure symptom of present spiritual life, and the earnest of that which is eternal.

19. ¶ [z] Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen, travelled as far as [a] Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word [b] to none but unto the Jews only.* 20. And some of them were men of Cyprus and [c] Cyrene, which, when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the [d] Grecians, [c] preaching the Lord Jesus. 21. [f] And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord. 22. ¶ Then tidings of these things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jerusalem: and [g] they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch. 23. Who, when he came, and [h] had seen the grace of God, was glad, and [i] exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would [k] cleave unto the Lord. 24. For he was a [l] good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord. 25. Then departed Barnabas to [m] Tarsus, for to seek Saul: 26. And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year [m] they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called [o] Christians first in Antioch.

[z] Ch. 8. 1, 4. Mat. 10. 23.
[a] Is. xxiii. ch. 13. 4. ver. 26.
[b] Mat. 10. 5, 6. ch. 3. 26. & 13. 46. & 10. 28.
* Townsend considers that the gospel was preached to the proselytes of the gate and to devout Gentiles only, before it was preached to the idolatrous Gentiles.
[c] Ch. 2. 10. Luke 22. 26.
[d] Jews who spake Greek. Ch. 6. 1. & 9. 29. John 12. 20.
[e] Ch. 8. 35. & 9. 20. 1 Cor. 1. 23, 24. & 2. 2. Eph. 3. 8.
[f] Is. 53. 1. Rom. 1. 16. ch. 1. 41, 47. & 4. 3, 32. & 5. 14. & 6. 7. ver. 24.
[g] Ch. 8. 14, 15. & 13. 2, 3.
[h] Mat. 7. 16—21. & 12. 33. Gal. 5. 22, 23. 2 Pet. 1. 4—9.
[i] Ch. 13. 43. & 14. 22.
[k] Gal. 2. 20. Mat. 16. 24. 1 Cor. 15. 50. Col. 1. 22. & 2. 6, 7. Deut. 10. 20. & 30. 20. Josh. 22. 5. & 23. 8.
[l] Ch. 6. 3, 5, 8. & 24. 16. cir. 42.
[m] Ch. 9. 11, 30. & 22. 39. Jon. 1. 3.
[n] Ch. 2. 41—47. & 4. 32.
[o] Mat. 16. 16, 24. Rom. 8. 1, 2, 9. 1 Cor. 6. 17. & 12. 12. Phil. 2. 5. & 3. 3. Col. 3. 3. 1 John 2. 20, 27.

Verses 19—26. We have here an account of the planting the gospel at Antioch, the metropolis of Syria, and one of the most famous cities in the Roman empire.

1. The preachers of the gospel, who, on the persecution which arose after Stephen's death, were dispersed abroad, carried the glad tidings of the gospel as far as Phenice, a province of Syria, and Cyprus, a large island of the Mediterranean sea, and Antioch. But as they knew not yet the extent of their commission, as reaching to all nations and every creature, they confined themselves wholly to the Jews who were dispersed in these countries. And some of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, a city in Africa, which, when they were come to Antioch, spoke unto the Grecians; either unto the Hellenist Jews, or, as some suppose, on hearing of the conversion of Cornelius and his friends, and that the preaching the gospel to the Gentiles had been approved by the apostles, they enlarged their field of usefulness, preaching to the Grecian Gentiles, the Lord Jesus, whose character, offices, grace, and glory, were the constant subject of their ministrations. And the hand of the Lord was with them, not only enabling them to perform astonishing miracles, but blessing their labours with signal success; and a great number believed and turned unto the Lord, effectually brought to Jesus as their only Redeemer and Saviour, on whose righteousness and grace they placed their entire dependence. Note, (1.) The labours of God's ministers are only then effectual, when the hand of the Lord is with them; without him, Paul must plant and Apollos water in vain. (2.) True faith will ever show itself in real conversion of heart, from the ways of sin and the world, to the love and service of the blessed God.

2. The church at Jerusalem, whither the apostles still frequently resorted, no sooner heard these glad tidings than they sent forth Barnabas, a Hellenist, a native of Cyprus, and a man of singular abilities, that he should go as far as Antioch, passing through the places where the gospel had got footing, to strengthen and establish the new converts. Barnabas readily accepted the mission, and proceeded to Antioch: and when he had seen the grace of God, visibly manifested in the conversion and conversation of those whom the Lord by his gospel had called in that city, he was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord; encouraging them to maintain their profession amidst all opposition, and suggesting the most powerful arguments to establish their fidelity; for he was a good man, of a noble, generous, disinterested spirit, sweet and affable in his discourse, and full of the Holy Ghost, possessed of very eminent gifts and graces, and of faith in a most abundant measure; and much people was added unto the Lord by his ministry and labours. Note, (1.) They who are truly partakers of the grace of God in their own souls, behold with singular delight the powerful effects of the same grace upon the hearts of others (2.) They who turn to the Lord, must cleave to him in a persevering course of fidelity: but if any man draw back, aggravated perdition must be the consequence. (3.) When we are ourselves deeply and fully pursuaded of the truth, we shall be enabled to speak more forcibly and powerfully to others.

3. The field being large, and the prospect promising, Barnabas sought an able fellow-helper; and knowing that Paul was yet at Tarsus, about a hundred miles off, he went to seek him, and invite him to Antioch, where his labours were greatly wanted. Having found him at Tarsus, he invited him to return with him to Antioch; to which Paul readily consented; and for a year they assembled themselves with the church, leading the religious assemblies of the faithful, and taught much people, vast multitudes attending their ministrations. Note, (1.) They who have the glory of their Lord simply at heart, can take pleasure in the greater gifts and abilities of others, and are happy to procure their assistance, though they may be more admired and useful preachers than themselves. (2.) The work of the ministry is doubly pleasing, when we see the fruits of our labour in the growing edification of the faithful, and the conversion of sinners to God.

4. The disciples were called Christians first at Antioch, not probably by their enemies as a term of reproach, but, as the word (χρηματισαι) seems to imply, by some divine intimation, and solemn act of their own. Thus they would abolish the distinction of Jew and Gentile, and in their very name, as Christians, make profession of their full and entire dependence on Christ as their Lord and Saviour. Are we Christians then? let our lives prove the reality of the profession we make.

27. And in these days came [p] prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch. 28. And there stood up one of them named [q] Agabus, and signified by the Spirit that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: † which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cesar. 29. Then the dis-

[p] Mat. 23. 34. 1 Cor. 12. 28. & 14. 32. Eph. 4. 11. Rev. 22. 9. ch. 2. 17. & 13. 1. & 15. 32. & 21. 4.
[q] Ch. 21. 10.
† Or, all the land. This famine began in the latter end of the 4th year of Claudius.

[r] Ezra 2. 69. Neh. 5. 8. ch. 6. 1. & 12. 25. Rom. 15. 25. 1 Cor. 16. 1, 2. 2 Cor. 8. 3, 4, 9. & 11. 8. & 9. 1 1 Pet. 4. 11. Gal. 2. 10. Heb. 13. 6.
[s] 1 Pet. 5. 1. 2 John 1. ch. 12. 25.

ciples, every man [r] according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea: 30. Which also they did, and sent it to the [s] elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

Verses 27—30. Among the eminent gifts bestowed on the primitive Christians, some were endued with the Spirit of prophecy. We are here told,

1. Of a vision from certain prophets of Jerusalem, who, hearing the great success of the gospel at Antioch, came thither to help forward the glorious work, and to comfort and establish the hearts of the disciples.

2. One of them, named Agabus, had it revealed to him by the Spirit, that there should be a great dearth throughout all the world; and, standing up in the midst of the assembled church, signified to them this afflictive event, which accordingly came to pass about two years afterwards, in the reign of Claudius Cesar.

3. Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea, who, by the persecutions they had suffered, were greatly reduced; and those who had riches, had at the first parted with all for the service of the gospel; and probably it was suggested, that the famine would be most severely felt in those parts. No sooner was the matter resolved than the contribution was made, and they sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul, to be distributed according to the necessities of the faithful; than which nothing could serve more to conciliate their minds to the Gentile converts, and to remove their deep rooted prejudices. Note, (1.) Every Christian, according to his ability, is bound to contribute to the assistance of his brethren. (2.) God will take care of his poor, and by some means or other provide that in the time of dearth they shall be supplied. He that feedeth the ravens will not leave his children to famish.

CHAP. XII.—ANNO DOMINI, 44.

In this chapter we have the story, 1. Of the martyrdom of James the apostle, and the imprisonment of Peter, by Herod Agrippa, who now reigned as king in Judea, ver. 1—4. 2. The miraculous deliverance of Peter out of prison, ver. 5—19. 3. The cutting off of Herod in the height of his pride, by the stroke of an angel, the minister of God's justice, ver. 20—23. 4. Barnabas and Saul return to Antioch, ver. 24, 25.

cir. 44.
[a] Not the tetrarch, Luke 3. 1—19. & 13. 31. & 23. 7. ch. 13 1. but his nephew. He was made king by the emperor Caligula.
[*] Or began.
[b] Mat. 10. 17, 18. & 24. 9. John 15. 20, 21. & 16. 2.
[c] Mat. 20. 23. & 4. 21.
[d] John 12. 43. Gal. 1. 10.
[e] Mat. 4. 18. & 26. 75.
[f] Exod 12. 15—20. & 13. 7. Lev. 23. 6—14.
[g] John 21. 18. Mat. 24. 9. Luke 21. 12.

1. NOW about that time [a] Herod the king * stretched forth his hands [b] to vex certain of the church. 2. And he [c] killed James the brother of John with the sword. 3. And [d] because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take [e] Peter also. [f] Then were the days of unleavened bread. 4. And [g] when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him; intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.

Verses 1—4. Herod, the grandson of Herod the Great, and father of Agrippa, before whom Paul pleaded his cause, chap. xxvi. 1—28. had now, through the favour of Claudius the Roman emperor, received the government of Judea as well as Galilee. Being a bitter enemy of Christianity, he interrupted the rest which the church had for a while enjoyed, and lighted up afresh the fire of persecution.

1. He began to harass and distress the saints at Jerusalem; either countenancing those who insulted and abused them, or imprisoning and persecuting them on account of their profession. The faithful may expect short respite from tribulation in this world, and must be always prepared to suffer.

2. He killed James, the brother of John, with the sword. Thus did he drink of the cup with his Lord, as was foretold, Matt. xx. 23. and first of the apostles sealed his testimony with his blood. He was probably executed in prison, like the Baptist, by a private order from the king, and led the way to his brethren, who were hereby taught to prepare for the like fate, and be faithful unto death.

3. Because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter also; glad to ingratiate himself with the people, at the same time that he gratified his own enmity against the disciples of Jesus; and Peter, as an especially active, zealous preacher, was peculiarly obnoxious. Then were the days of unleavened bread, the feast of the passover approaching. When therefore he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers, sixteen in number, who guarded him by four at a time, and relieved each other, to keep him, that he might not escape, intending after Easter, or the Passover, to bring him forth to the people, to gratify them with the pleasing spectacle of his ignominious execution. Note, (1.) They who study to please men will be led into many a guilty deed. (2.) Success in wickedness often emboldens sinners to proceed to greater lengths

5. Peter therefore was kept in prison: but † prayer was made [h] without ceasing of the church unto God for him. 6. And when Herod would have [i] brought him forth, the [k] same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains;‡ and the keepers before the door kept the prison. 7. And, behold, [l] the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains § fell off from his hands. 8. And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me. 9. And he went out, and followed him; [m] and wist not ‖ that it was true which was done by the angel; but thought he saw a vision. 10. When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city, [n] which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street; and forthwith the angel departed from him. 11. And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety [o] that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod,

† Or instant and earnest prayer was made.
[h] Luke 18. 1 1 Thes. 5. 17. Eph. 6. 19, 20. 2 Thes. 3. 2. James 5. 16. Heb. 13. 3, 18.
[i] Ver. 2. ch. 7. 54, 57.
[k] Gen. 22. 14. Deut. 32. 36. 1 Sam. 23. 26. Rom. 5. 1. Ps. 3. 5, 6.
‡ Two soldiers guarded his person; his right hand being bound to the left hand of one, and his left hand bound to the right hand of the other. This was the Roman method of guarding their prisoners. — A. Clarke.
[l] Ch. 5. 19. 1 Kin. 19. 5, 7. Heb. 1. 14. Ps. 91. 11, 12. 34. 7.
§ The chains by which he was bound to the two soldiers.
[m] Ps. 126. 1. Gen. 45. 26. Luke 24. 11.
‖ Knew not.
[n] Ch. 16. 26. Ps. 146. 7.
[o] Dan 6. 22. 2 Tim. 4. 17. Ps. 34. 7. & 46. 1.

and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews. 12. And when he had considered the thing, [p] he came to the house of Mary the mother of [q] John, whose surname was Mark; where [r] many were gathered together praying. 13. And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damsel came * to hearken, named Rhoda. 14. And when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the gate for gladness but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the gate. 15. And they said unto her, [s] Thou art mad. But she constantly affirmed that it was even so. Then said they, It is [t] his angel.† 16. But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the door, and saw him, they were astonished. 17. But he, [u] beckoning unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them [x] how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go shew these things unto James, and to the brethren. And [y] he departed, and went into another place.‡ 18. Now as soon as it was day, there was no small stir among the soldiers, what was become of Peter. 19. And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and [z] commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judea to [a] Cesarea, and there abode.

p Ch. 4. 23. & 15. 37.

q Ver. 25. ch. 13. 5, 13. & 15. 37. Col. 4. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 11. Phile. 24.

r Ver. 5. Is. 65. 24. & 58. 9. Dan. 9. 20, 21. Jam. 5. 16. Mat. 18. 19.

s Or to ask who was there.

t Luke 24. 11. Gen. 19. 14.

† According to an idea general among the Jews, and held by some amongst the Gentiles, that a tutelary angel was appointed to every good person.

u Ch. 13. 16. & 19. 33. & 21. 40.

x Ver. 11. Ps. 102. 10, 21. & 146. 7.

y Mat. 16. 17. 23. John 7. 1. & 8. 59. & 10. 40. & 11. 54.

‡ Scripture does not afford us the least information as to the place where Peter now secreted himself.

z Prov. 1. 16. & 4. 16. & 12. 10. Ps. 23. 9, 10. & 76. 10.

a Ch. 9. 40. & 21. 8. & 23. 23. & 25. 4.

Verses 5—19. To human view Peter's case seemed desperate, and a few days would complete the triumph of his persecutors. But God had otherwise ordained, and then the craft of the wisest and the power of the mightiest are alike vain.

1. During Peter's imprisonment, prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him; they were fervent and frequent at a throne of grace; perhaps one company after another continued their incessant supplications, deeply concerned for fear of losing him after all their other breaches, and trusting that, though no human prospect of his deliverance appeared, the Lord would, in his own time and way, rescue his suffering servant from the hands of his blood-thirsty persecutors, Note, When the faithful ministers of Jesus are suffering for their testimony, the church is called to pray earnestly for them, that, if the Lord so pleases, they may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men, and spared for further usefulness.

2. The time appointed for Peter's execution now drew near; the next was the fatal day appointed to bring him forth to the people. Peter mean time was kept with greatest care, chained to two soldiers within the prison, whilst without the guards kept the door, to prevent any rescue or escape: and never could greater precaution be taken. Yet, though his danger was so imminent, his case so desperate, unterrified, composed, in peace he sweetly slept, whilst probably the eyes of his malicious foes were held waking, and their disturbed minds could take no rest on beds of ivory. A good cause, a good conscience, and the desire to glorify God, whether by life or death, raised him superior to every fear; and, though expecting no deliverance, he took his wonted repose. Note, (1.) God suffers us sometimes to be reduced to extremities, that his power and grace in rescuing us from our trials may appear with more distinguished lustre. (2.) When wicked men seem to have insured the success of their enterprises, God is often pleased to blast their designs, and to cover them with confusion.

3. God sends his angel to deliver the faithful prisoner; and he whom gates nor guards could not exclude, suddenly entering the prison in a blaze of light, with a gentle touch awakened Peter from his slumbers; then, bidding him arise, his chains marvellously fell off from his hands; and, being now at liberty, the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals: and so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me. Peter obeyed, and as yet apprehended not the reality of the facts, but supposed the scene was merely visionary. Passing now the first and second bodies of guards without molestation, who were cast into a profound sleep; or terrified with the angelic minister's appearance, they came unto the iron gate, which opened of its own accord; and, being now in the city, the angel accompanied Peter through one street, and then departed, his presence being no longer needful, and Peter could then provide for his own safety. Note, (1.) We have in Peter's deliverance a lively image of our redemption. We lie by nature fast bound in the chains of sin, and sleep securely, not apprehensive of danger, though ruin is before us. Then God sends his gospel as his angel, and by his Spirit smiting our hearts, awakens us from our security and insensibility. Quickened by grace, the chains of corruption fall off, and we are now enabled to rise and walk, clothed with the garments of righteousness, and our feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. Under divine light and guidance we are enabled to pass through numberless difficulties, and through hosts of enemies hold on our way, till the iron gate of death appears in view, and, opening wide, admits us into the new Jerusalem. (2.) No difficulties are insurmountable if God be for us. (3.) When we have the ordinary means before us, we are not to expect miracles.

4. Peter, being left alone, soon recovered from his surprise, and, reflecting on what was past, was fully assured the scene was not visionary but real; that the Lord had sent his angel, and delivered him out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews, who waited impatiently for his execution. Deliberating then whither in prudence he should direct his steps, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together praying; and importunate no doubt they were, when the danger was now so near: when lo! a most astonishing answer is given to their prayers: behold, Peter knocked at the door: a visitant little expected by them. A damsel, named Rhoda, ran immediately into the porch, to listen whether it were a friend or foe, before she opened the gate; when, hearing Peter's well known voice, so transported was she, that, instead of opening the door, she ran to her mistress, where they were all assembled for prayer, and told them, to their astonishment, that, Peter stood before the gate. Unable to credit so strange a story, they said, thou art mad; it is impossible. But she constantly affirmed the certainty of the fact, that it was even so. Then said they, It is his angel, a messenger come from him, or one of the celestial spirits, who imitates his voice, and brings some tidings concerning him. Mean time Peter repeated his knocks at the gate; and, going down, they opened the door, when with amazement they beheld him; and eager to know the circumstances of this extraordinary event, they together began to ask him concerning it; whereupon he beckoned with his hand, commanding silence, whilst he declared to them his miraculous deliverance. And, as no time was to be lost to secure himself, having charged them to inform James and the brethren of his escape, for their comfort and encouragement, he departed, and went into another place, where he

SYRIA
NORTH PART.
English Miles
5 10 20
TERSOOS
ADANA
CYLICIA CAMPESTRIS
Aleius Campus
Bay of Ayas
BAY OF ISKENDEROON
SISSUS SINUS ISSICUS SINUS
Karadash Boorno
Karadash River
Mountains of Amanus Pass of Amanus
Beylan Bay of Alexandretta Alexandretta
Scanderoon
Iskenderoon
Mountains of Rhosus
Rhosus
Mountains of Rhosus
Rhosus
Mountains of Rhosus
Rhosus

SYRIA
SOUTH PART.
English Miles
SUPPLEMENT.
English Miles
Note. The names of the Twelve Tribes are referred to by figures.
1. ASHER
2. NAPTHALI
3. ZEBULON
4. ISSACHAR
5. MANASSEH this side Jordan
6. EPHRAIM
7. BENJAMIN
8. DAN
9. SIMEON
10. JUDAH
11. REUBEN
12. GAD
13. MANASSEH Beyond Jordan
8. DAN
9. SIMEON
10. JUDAH
11. REUBEN
MEDITERRANEAN SEA
ARABIA PETRÆA
DESERT OF ZIN
DESERT OF ET TIH
GULF OF SUEZ
GULF OF AKABAH DEAD SEA
Longitude East from Greenwich

might be secured from the danger. Note, (1.) They who persevere in prayer, will at last meet an answer of peace. (2.) Sudden and great joy for the time often destroys reflection, and makes us forget what we say or do. (3.) Though, when called of God, neither death nor danger must deter us from the way of duty, yet, when the Lord opens a door for our escape, we may lawfully provide for our own safety.

5. The next morning the guards were in the utmost consternation at finding their prisoner gone, and justly dreaded the rage of the king, as if they had been chargeable with neglect or connivance. In vain strict search is made by Herod every where; and, unable to find Peter, he wreaks his vengeance on the keepers, who could not give the least satisfactory account of the matter, and therefore were ordered to be put to death for their supposed negligence or corruption. Then retiring from Judea to Cesarea, in order, it is said, to celebrate games in honour of Augustus Cesar, for some time he abode there. Note, God can, when he pleases, hide his people from the malice of their most envenomed foes.

|| Or bare a hostile mind, intending war.
* Gr. that was over the king's bedchamber.
b 1 Kin. 5. 9, 11. Ezek. 27. 17. c Ps. 12. 2. Jude 16.
d Dan. 4. 30, 31. 37. Job 40. 2, 11, 12. & 9. 13.
† The disease appears to have been that called *morbus pediculari*s, of which, it is remarkable, many other tyrants have died!
e Is. 2. 2, 3. & 55. 11. ch. 6. 7. & 19. 20. Col. 1. 6, 23. 2 Thes. 3. 1. Prov. 28. 28.
f Or charge. ch. 11. 29, 30.
g Ver. 12. & 13. 5, 13. & 15. 37, 38. 1 Pet. 5. 13.
‡ The son of Mary ver. 12. and sister's son to Barnabas, Col. 4. 10. He afterwards shrunk from the difficulties encountered by the apostles; but seems to have subsequently retrieved his character, Col. 4. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 11. Philem. 24.

20. ¶ And Herod || was highly displeased with them of Tyre and Sidon: but they came with one accord to him; and, having made Blastus * the king's chamberlain their friend, desired peace; because their country was [b] nourished by the king's country. 21. And upon a set day Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, sat upon his throne, and made an oration unto them. 22. And the people gave a shout, saying, [c] It is the voice of a god, and not of a man. 23. And [d] immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost.† 24. ¶ [e] But the word of God grew and multiplied. 25. ¶ And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their [f] ministry, and took with them [g] John, whose surname was Mark.‡

Verses 20—25. Proud persecutors justly meet an avenging God.

1. Herod's pride now reached the summit of wickedness. On some provocation given him by the maritime cities of Tyre and Sidon, Herod was highly offended; and, justly fearing the wrath of this haughty monarch, they instantly despatched ambassadors to him to make their submission, and deprecate his displeasure: for, as they chiefly drew their provision from his territories, if he prohibited his subjects from supplying them, it would have exposed them to a famine. Therefore having, by presents probably, gained Blastus, the king's chamberlain, for their friend, who had a considerable influence with his master, they desired peace; and a day was fixed to give them public audience. Herod, arrayed in royal robes, glittering, says Josephus, with silver, and reflecting the sunbeams so strongly as dazzled the eyes of the spectators, and, seated on his gorgeous throne, made an oration to the people, probably expatiating on the provocations of the Tyrians, and displaying his own clemency in pardoning them on their submission. The people, delighted with his splendid appearance, pleased with his discourse, and willing to flatter his pride, shouted their blasphemous admiration, as if they heard a present deity, saying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man; whilst he, well pleased, received the impious adulation.

2. Instantly God smote him, and hurled him from his towering height of pride into the abyss of despicable wretchedness. An angel, the executioner of wrath, struck the fatal blow, because he gave not God the glory, and dared accept such adoration. A foul, filthy, and tormenting disease seized his vitals; in agonies he lingered five days; worms bred in his putrid carcass; and, devoured alive, he miserably perished, a spectacle of horror to every beholder. So easily can God abase those who walk in pride, and make the meanest worm that crawls an instrument of his vengeance.

3. In spite of all persecution and opposition, the word of God grew and multiplied, spreading with rapidity and vast success. And Barnabas and Saul, having finished their business at Jerusalem, returned again to Antioch, taking with them John, whose surname was Mark, Barnabas' nephew. Note, When ministers are called abroad, and have finished their work, they must hasten home again, where their stated labour awaits them.

CHAP. XIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 45.

Here is, 1. The solemn ordination of Barnabas and Saul, by divine direction, to the great work of spreading the gospel among the Gentiles, ver. 1—3. 2. Their preaching the gospel in Cyprus, and the opposition they met with there from Elymas the sorcerer, ver. 4—13. 3. The heads of a sermon which Paul preached at Antioch in Pisidia, ver. 14—41. 4. The preaching of the gospel to the Gentiles at their request, and upon the Jews' refusal of it, ver. 42—49. 5. The trouble which the infidel Jews gave to the apostles, which obliged them to remove to another place, ver. 50—52.

1. NOW [a] there were in the church that was at Antioch certain [b] prophets and teachers; as [c] Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, * which had been brought up with [d] Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. 2. As they [e] ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, [f] Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. 3. And [g] when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away.

a Ch. 11. 20, 25, 26. & 12. 25. & 14. 26.
b Ch. 11. 28. & 21. 10, 11.
c Ch. 4. 36, 22—26, 30. & xiv, xv. Gal. 2. 9, 13. Rom. 16. 21.
* Or Herod's foster brother.
d Luke 3. 1, 19. & 13. 31. & 23. 7. not ch. xii.
e Deut. 10. 8. & 18. 5, 7. 1 Chr. 23. 13. Mat. 9. 15. ch. 6. 4. & 2. 42.
f Num. 8. 11. Mat. 9. 38. ch. 9. 15. & 22. 21. Rom. 1. 1. & 10. 15. Gal. 1. 15. & 2. 8, 9. Eph. 3. 8. 1 Tim. 2. 7. 2 Tim. i, ii. & 2. 2. Heb. 5. 4. 14. 23. 1 Tim. 5. 22.
g Ch. 6. 6. & 8. 15, 17. & 14. 23. 1 Tim. 5. 22.

Verses 1—3. Though the gospel had now begun to make its entrance into the Gentile world, none had been yet particularly ordained and appointed to that service, till Saul and Barnabas, by the immediate order of the Holy Ghost, were called thereunto.

1. The church at Antioch flourished greatly. There were certain prophets, who ranked next to the apostles in the church; and teachers, eminent for their gifts and graces; as Barnabas and Simeon, who, probably from his dark complexion, was called Niger; and Lucius of Cyrene, an African by birth; and Manaen, who had been brought up with Herod Antipas, the tetrarch of Galilee, his friend and companion; but now had quitted the honours of a court for the reproach of the gospel; and Saul, so famous in the records of Christianity. These ministered to the Lord, and fasted, diligently employed in the service of immortal souls; and, at seasons, in more solemn acts of prayer and fasting, waited upon God for his blessing and direction.

2. Whilst they were, on a certain day, thus engaged, the Holy Ghost, by his immediate suggestion, and by his own divine authority, said, Separate me Saul and Barnabas for the work whereunto I have called them, to preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ, and to be chiefly employed in that service. Learn hence, (1.) The personality of the Holy Ghost, and his co-equal glory with the Father and Son. (2.) The true call to the ministry must come from above.

3. Pursuant to this order, Paul and Barnabas were solemnly set apart, with fasting and prayer, and imposition of hands, for the peculiar service to which the Holy Ghost had appointed them: and wishing them all success in their arduous undertaking, the brethren sent them away. And henceforward we find them, the two great apostles of the Gentiles, spread the glorious gospel to distant lands, whither the glad tidings had never reached before.

4. So they, [h] being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Seleucia; and from thence they sailed to [i] Cyprus. 5. And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God [k] in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had also [l] John to their minister. 6. ¶ And when they had gone through the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain [m] sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus. 7. Which was with the deputy* of the country, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and desired to hear the word of God. 8. But Elymas the sorcerer, (for so is his name by interpretation,) [n] withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith. 9. Then Saul,† (who also is called [o] Paul,) filled with the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him, 10. And said, [p] O full of all subtilty and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease [q] to pervert the right ways of the Lord? 11. And now, behold, [r] the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness; and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand. 12. Then the [s] deputy, [t] when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord. 13. ¶ Now when Paul and his company loosed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and [u] John, departing from them, returned to Jerusalem.

h Mat. 9. 38. Rom. 10. 15. ch. 20. 28. & 16. 6, 7.
i Ch. 11. 19. & 4. 36. & 27. 4.
k Mat. 10. 27. ch. 5. 20. & 14. 1. & 17. 1, 2, 10. & 18. 4, 6, 7, 19. ver. 14, 46.
l Ch. 12. 12, 25. & 15. 37. ver. 13. Col. 4. 10. m Ch. 8. 9. Rev. 21. 8.
* This title has been supposed by some to belong only to governors of proconsular dignity; but the correctness of the sacred historian, even in this minute particular, has been amply vindicated by the discovery of an ancient coin and inscription, on both of which this title is applied to the governor of Cyprus.
n Exod. 7. 11. 2 Tim. 3. 8.
† It is generally supposed that Saul now changed his name because he was brought much among the Greeks and Romans, to whom his Hebrew name was unknown.
o A Roman name fit for an apostle of the Gentiles. Ver. 4, 7. p Mat. 3. 7. & 13. 38. & 23. 33. John 8. 44. 1 John 3. 8.
q Mat. 23. 13. Luke 11. 52.
r Ezek. 6. 14. Gen. 19. 11. 2 Kin. 6. 18. ch. 5. 5, 10. & 9. 5, 8.
s Roman governor, ver. 7. Mat. 27. 2. t Mat. 27. 54. Luke 7. 16. ch. 5. 5, 11, 14. & 12. 23, 24. & 19. 17.
u Ch. 12. 25. ver. 5. ch. 15. 38. Phil. 2. 21.

Verses 4—13. Being in this solemn manner sent forth, Paul and Barnabas immediately applied themselves to their work.

1. They directed their course to Cyprus, the native land of Barnabas, going to Seleucia, and thence sailed for Salamis, the chief town of the eastern part of the island. And first, as was their custom, they preached the word in the synagogues of the Jews, giving them the preference; and, if they rejected the gospel, leaving them thereby inexcusable: and they had John to their minister, to assist them in their work, provide necessaries for them, and execute any service which might be appointed him.

2. They travelled through the greatest part of the island, preaching the gospel, till they came to Paphos, the chief city, on the western coast, famous for the temple of Venus. There they met with one Bar-jesus, which signifies the son of Joshua, a Jew by birth, addicted to magic, who set up for a prophet, and had insinuated himself into the favour of Sergius Paulus, the Roman governor of the island, a prudent, considerate, thinking man, who, hearing of the fame of Barnabas and Saul, desired to learn from themselves that new doctrine which they taught as a revelation from God. But Elymas, the sorcerer, knowing, that if the deputy received the gospel, his influence with him would be at an end, set himself to oppose these ministers of Christ, and to turn away the deputy from the faith. Note, (1.) It is prudent to prove all things, and hold fast that which is good. (2.) Wherever the gospel comes, Satan will find some tool to employ, in order to cast stumblingblocks in the way of those who desire to hear.

3. Saul, who henceforward is always called by his Roman name, Paul, as more agreeable to the Gentiles, among whom, for the future, he chiefly conversed, filled with the Holy Ghost, fired with zeal for the gospel, and under a divine afflatus, set his eyes on him, with indignation and abhorrence of his wickedness, and said, O full of all subtilty, expert in every art of deceit, taught by the great deceiver, and, like him, set on all mischief, thou enemy of all righteousness, the implacable foe to truth and godliness, and that gospel which is designed to promote them, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord? to misrepresent them, and, by every artful and malicious suggestion, to prejudice men against the Lord Jesus, and those ways of his grace which alone can lead to eternal life and glory? And now behold, as an evident token of God's displeasure, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, in righteous judgment, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season; the emblem and punishment of the wilful blindness of thy heart. Note, (1.) Subtilty and delight in mischief united, form the strongest image of the devil. (2.) They who are enemies to the gospel, must be enemies to all righteousness, since this alone can effectually produce true holiness in the heart. (3.) The Lord's ways are all right, and lead direct to happiness and heaven: they who pervert or misrepresent them, as unreasonable, unpleasant, or unprofitable, shall bear their burden.

4. His doom is no sooner pronounced than executed. Immediately there fell on him a mist and darkness, and, his sight being entirely lost, he went about, groping his way, and seeking some to lead him by the hand. Struck with the evidence of the miracle, perceiving the sorcerer confounded by the arguments, and unable to stand before the power with which Paul appeared to be invested, the deputy believed in Jesus, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord, which came with such convincing power and energy to his heart, and contained such amazing discoveries of God and his great salvation, with which he had been before utterly unacquainted.

5. Having shortly after set sail from Paphos, Paul and his companions directed their course to Perga, a city of Pamphylia, situate in Lesser Asia. There John, their minister, quitted them, and returned to Jerusalem. A worldly or timid spirit prevailed against him: he wanted to see his mother; or he was weary of the fatigues of the Gentile mission; or some temporal affair drew off his attention from the ministry of the word: which was by Paul much resented, and laid a ground of future contention between him and Barnabas.

14. But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch [x] in Pisidia, x Not Antioch in Syria, as ver. 1. ch. 11. 19—26. & 14. 26.

and [y] went into the synagogue on the sabbath-day, and sat down. 15. And, after [z] the reading of the law and the prophets, the [a] rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying, [b] Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, say on. 16. Then Paul stood up, and, [c] beckoning with his hand, said, [d] Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, give audience. 17. [e] The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, [f] and with an high arm brought he them out of it. 18. [g] And about the time of forty years † suffered he their manners in the wilderness. 19. And [h] when he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Chanaan, he divided their land to them by lot. 20. And after that [i] he gave unto them judges, about the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet. 21. [k] And afterward they desired a king: and God gave unto them Saul the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years. 22. And when he had removed him, he [l] raised up unto them David to be their king: to whom also he gave testimony, and said, I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, which shall fulfil all my will. 23. [m] Of this man's seed hath God, according to his promise, raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus: 24. [n] When John had first preached before his coming the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. 25. And as John [o] fulfilled his course, he said, [p] Whom think ye that I am? I am not he. But, behold, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his feet I am not worthy to loose. 26. [q] Men and brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent. 27. For they that dwell at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because [r] they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which [s] are read every sabbath-day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him. 28. [t] And though they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate that he should be slain. 29. And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, [u] they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a sepulchre. 30. [x] But God raised him from the dead: 31. [y] And he was seen many days of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his [z] witnesses unto the people. 32. And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the [a] promise which was made unto the fathers, 33. God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is also written in the second psalm, [b] Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. 34. And as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, [c] I will give you the sure ‡ mercies of David. 35. Wherefore he saith also in another psalm, [d] Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. 36. For David, ‖ after he had served [e] his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption: 37. But he, whom God raised again, saw no corruption. 38. [f] Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins: 39. And by him [g] all that believe are justified from all things, from which [h] ye could not be justified by the law of Moses. 40. Beware, therefore, lest that come upon you which is spoken of in the [i] prophets; 41. Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you.

y Ch. 16. 13. & 17. 2. & 18. 4. ver. 5.
z Ver. 27. ch. 15. 21. Luke 4. 16.
a Mark 5. 22. Luke 13. 14.
b Ch. 1. 16. & 2. 29, 37. & 7. 2. & 15. 7, 13 & 22. 1. with Heb. 13. 22.
c Ch. 12. 17. & 19. 33. & 21. 40.
d Ver. 26, 43, 46.
e Gen. 17. 7—14. Exod. i—xiv. Deut. 4. 20. & 11. 2—4. Ps. lxxviii, cxiv, cvi, cxxxvi. Is. 63. 7—14. Jer. 32. 20, 21. Ezek. 16. 3—14. & xx. Neh. 9. 9—11.
f Exod. 6. 6. & 12. 31. & 13. 14, 16.
g Exod. 16. 2. Num. 14. 22, 34, 35. Ps. 78. 38. & 95. 10.
† Or bore and fed them as a nurse.
h Gen. 15. 19—21. Exod. 23. 23. Deut. 7. 1. Josh. xii—xxi. Ps. 78. 55.
i Judg. ii—xvi. 1 Sam. i—vii. Neh. 9. 27. 1 Kin. 6. 1. k 1 Sam. viii—xxxi. Hos. 13. 11. 1 Chr. x.
cir. 1095.
l 1 Sam. 15. 28. & 16. 13. Ps. 2. 6. & 78. 70—72. & 89. 19, 20. 1 Sam. 13. 14. m 2 Sam. 7. 12. Ps. 89. 35. & 132. 11. Is. 11. 1. & 9. 7. Jer. 23. 5. Luke 1. 32, 69. with ch. 2. 30. & 3. 22, 26. & 5. 30. & 7. 37. Mat. 1. 21. Tit. 2. 13. n Mal. 3. 1. & 4. 5, 6. Mat. 3. 1—6. Mark 1. 2, 5. John 3. 23.
o Ch. 20. 24. 2 Tim. 4. 7. p John 1. 20, 26, 27. Mat. 3. 11. Luke 3. 16. ch. 19. 4. Phil. 3. 8. 1 Cor. 2. 2. 2 Cor. 4. 5.
q See ver. 15, 16, 42. Ps. 147. 19, 20. Mat. 10. 6. & 22. 8, 9. Luke 14. 21. ch. 3. 26. ver. 42, 46, 47. ch. 28. 23.
r Ch. 3. 17. John 7. 26, 48. & 15. 21. & 16. 3. Luke 23. 34. & 24. 20. 1 Cor. 2. 8. 1 Tim. 1. 13. 2 Cor. 3. 14. Rom. 11. 25.
s Ch. 15. 21. & 26. 22. & 28. 23. & 2. 16—36. & 4. 26—28.
t Mat. 27. 22, 23. Mark 15. 11, 13. Luke 23. 21, 23. John 19. 4—6. ch. 3. 13—15. u Ch. 4. 30. 1 Cor. 15. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 24. Mat. 27. 59. Mark 15. 46. Luke 23. 53. John 19. 38. Is. 53. 9. x Mat. 28. 6. John 2. 19. & 10. 17. ch. 2. 24, 32. & 3. 13, 26. & 4. 10. & 5. 31. & 10. 40. & 17. 31. Heb. 13. 20.
y Mat. xxviii. Mark xvi. Luke xxiv. John xx, xxi. 1. 3.
z Luke 24. 48. ch. 1. 8, 22. & 10. 41.
a Ch. 2. 39. Gen. 3. 15. & 22. 18. & 26. 4. & 49. 10. Deut. 18. 15. 2 Sam. 7. 12. Ps. 132. 11. Is. 4. 2. & 7. 14. & 9. 6. & 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. Ezek. 34. 23. Dan. 9. 2, 24—26. Mic. 5. 2. Hag. 2. 7. Zech. 6. 12. & 9. 9. Mal. 3. 1. & 4. 2. Luke 24. 44. Gal. 3. 16.
b Ps. 2. 7. Heb. 1. 5. & 5. 5.
c Is. 55. 3. Ps. 89. 2—4, 19—29.
‡ Gr. ta osia, holy or just things, which word the Septuagint, in many places, use for that which in the Hebrew signifies mercies.
d Ps. 16. 10. ch. 2. 27, 31.
‖ Or after he had in his own age, served the will of God.
e Ps. 78. 70—72. ch. 2. 29. & 20. 24. 2 Tim. 4. 7. 1 Kin. 2. 10. 1 Chr. 29. 28.
f Ch. 2. 38. & 3. 26. & 4. 12. & 5. 31. & 10. 43. Luke 24. 47. Is. 53. 5, 11. & 59. 20. Jer. 31. 34. Dan. 9. 24. Zech. 12. 10. Rom. 3. 24—28. & 8. 3, 4. Gal. 2. 16. Heb. 7. 19. & 8. 12. & 9. 15. 1 John 2. 1, 2, 12.
g Ps. 32. 1, 2. Is. 1. 18. & 4. 4. & 44. 22. Rom. 8. 1—4. & 10. 4. & 3. 22. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Jer. 50. 20. Col. 1. 14. & 2. 10, 13.
h Heb. 9. 13, 14. & 10. 1, 11. Rom. 3. 19, 20. Gal. 2. 16. 13. 15. Is. 28. 14. & 29. 14. with Mat. 8. 11, 12. & 21. 41, 43. & 22. 7. & xxiv. Luke 19. 27, 42—44. & 21. 20—26. 1 Thes. 2. 16. 1 Pet. 4. 17.
i Hab. 1. 5. Prov. 1. 30. & Acts

Verses 14—41. How long they staid, and what success the apostles had at Perga, is not recorded; but more is preserved of their labours at Antioch, the capital of Pisidia, which was their next remove.

1. On the sabbath-day, according to their custom, they went into the synagogue, and sat down, waiting a proper opportunity to deliver the message which they brought.

2. After the reading the law and prophets as usual, the rulers of the synagogue, probably acquainted with their public characters, and willing to hear what they had to say, sent unto them, saying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation, or consolation, to the people, say on. Note, (1.) In public worship, the reading the Scriptures should always have a place. (2.) The preaching of the word, and expounding it with application to the hearts of the hearers, is one most essential end and use of our assembling on the Lord's day.

3. Paul declined not the invitation, but gracefully rising, and waving his hand that silence might be kept, he very affectionately and seriously addresses his brethren, entreating a patient and attentive audience.

(1.) He opens with reminding them of the peculiar favour which God had shown to their fathers. God had chosen the Jewish people in a covenant of peculiarity, and according to the promise made unto their fathers, had wonderfully multiplied and exalted them in Egypt, where they sojourned; and at last, when they were oppressed by Pharaoh, he brought them thence with a high hand, ver. 17. In the wilderness, amidst all their provocations, his patience bore with them, his bounteous hand fed them forty years, ver. 18. After destroying the accursed nations of Canaan, he gave them the country, by lot, for their inheritance, ver. 19. and, for about a space of four hundred and fifty years from their deliverance from Egypt, continued, in their emergencies, to raise them up divinely appointed officers, called judges, to save them from the hands of their enemies, until the times of Samuel the prophet, ver. 20. Afterwards, indulging them in their desire, he appointed Saul the son of Cis, a Benjamite, their king, whose reign, with Samuel's government, filled the space of forty years, ver. 21. And when he was rejected, then was David anointed to sit on Israel's throne, and raised from his low estate to that high dignity, a man to whom God bore the most honourable testimony, as one after mine own heart, approved and known to be faithful, which shall fulfil all my pleasure, and answer all my purposes and designs.

Herein the apostle seems to desire to conciliate the Jews to him, and engage their regard to his discourse; when it appears that, far from having any prejudice against the Jewish nation, as was suggested, or despising their peculiar honours, he dwells upon them with pleasure, in order to introduce the discourse of that Messiah, the Son of David, which was the great object he had in view.

(2.) As God had made to David a promise, that of his seed the Messiah should spring, the glorious hope of Israel, that promise he had now fulfilled in Jesus, the Saviour of his people from sin, misery, death, and hell, to introduce whose appearing John had preached the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel, inviting them to turn to that Messiah, whose forerunner he was, that by faith in him they might obtain remission of sins, (Mark i. 4. Luke iii. 3.) disclaiming that title himself, when the people were in doubt whether he were the Christ or not, but directing them to one presently to appear after him, so far transcending him in dignity, that he should count it an honour of which he was unworthy, to perform the meanest offices to him. This being then the main point in view, to bring them acquainted with him to whom John bore record, he pathetically urges them to consider the matter. Men and brethren, possessed of rational and immortal souls, children of the stock of Abraham, and of the promise made unto our fathers, and whosoever among you feareth God, whether Jews or proselytes, to you is the word of this salvation sent, and you are first called to partake of the inestimable blessings of the redemption which this Jesus hath obtained. Note, (1.) It is among the most invaluable mercies, to have the word of salvation sent to us. (2.) No condemnation will be so great and aggravated as theirs who reject the gospel word.

(3.) He plainly tells them of the great guilt and wickedness of the Jewish rulers, in rejecting, persecuting, and murdering the Lord's Christ. They knew him not, so fatally blinded were their minds by the prejudices which they had entertained, and the expectations they had formed of a temporal Messiah; nor yet the voices of the prophets, which are read every sabbath-day, in which the sufferings and death of the Messiah were at large foretold; but God so overruled their wickedness, that undesignedly they have fulfilled these Scriptures in condemning him; and though, even by the confession of his judge, his innocence was acknowledged, and they found no cause of death in him; yet, so malicious and enraged were they against him, they desired Pilate that he should be slain. And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, concerning his sufferings and death, even in the most minute particulars, they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a sepulchre; brought to the dust of death, the lowest step of his humiliation. Note, (1.) Ignorance of the Scriptures is often found, where the sound of them in the ears is heard every sabbath-day. (2.) It will not excuse the sins of persecutors, that they did it ignorantly in unbelief, when they rejected the means of better information.

(4.) He insists at large on his glorious resurrection, as the grand foundation on which all the sure hope of salvation through Jesus was built. His enemies thought they had effectually defeated all his pretensions when they laid him in the grave; but God raised him from the dead, to their confusion, and as a token of the fullest approbation of his character and undertaking; a fact attested by a great cloud of witnesses, who had been most intimately acquainted with him before his death, and, during forty days, had many conferences with him, and ate and drank with him after his resurrection; the truth of which some of them had already sealed with their blood, and others in the face of death and danger still continued to declare. And to this resurrection of Jesus we now present bear testimony; proclaiming it as the most joyful tidings, that the promise made unto the fathers, of that Messiah in whom all nations of the world should be blessed, he hath now fulfilled unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; whereby it appears that he was the glorious personage of whom David speaks; as it is written also in the second psalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee; from eternity the relation subsisted; and as God bore testimony to the dignity and divine character of his Son, at his baptism and transfiguration, so most eminently was Jesus declared to be the Son of God with power by the resurrection from the dead, Rom. i. 4. And that God raised him from the dead, no more to see corruption, is evident from Isa. lv. 3. where he saith, I will give you the sure mercies of David. Having there appointed his Son, according to the tenor of the everlasting covenant, the leader and commander of the people, and by an oath confirmed his promise, it became necessary, that he who by his suffering and death was to ratify the covenant, and obtain these mercies for his people, should rise again to make them sure, and ever live to maintain them in the possession of their invaluable privileges. In farther proof of which, he saith in another psalm, Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption, (Psal. xvi. 10.) which words can only be applicable to the Messiah; for as to David himself, it is evident, after he had served his generation by the will of God, discharging his high office with great fidelity for his people's good, he fell asleep in the arms of death, resting from all his labours, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption, his corpse, like others, returning unto dust: but he whom God raised, even Jesus the Messiah, of whom David spoke in this psalm, exactly fulfilled it, and rising on the third day, saw no corruption, nor ever shall, God having exalted him to his own right hand in glory everlasting, to bestow these covenant mercies on all his redeemed people, until time shall be no more. Note, (1.) Like David we must learn not to live for ourselves, but for God's glory, and the good of mankind. (2.) To a faithful soul death is but a sleep, when he rests from his labours, and is in joy and felicity. (3.) The more we examine the Scriptures, the more confirmed shall we be, that Jesus is the Christ, in whom we see all the prophecies so eminently and exactly fulfilled.

(5.) He applies what he said to their hearts, as a matter in which they were most nearly concerned. Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins; by his sufferings it is obtained, in his name it is declared, and by his authority bestowed; and by him through the merit of his obedience unto death, all that believe are justified from all things; discharged from the condemnation of the law, and the guilt of all their transgressions, be they ever so many, great, or aggravated; from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses, legal or ceremonial, none being able to fulfil the moral law in perfection, and the ceremonial prescribed no sacrifice for wilful transgression; and therefore all who looked for justification by the deeds of the law, were necessarily left under wrath and condemnation. Note, (1.) The great gospel promise and privilege is forgiveness of sins. In Christ Jesus there is a free and full pardon promised to the miserable and the desperate. (2.) It is impossible for a fallen sinner to be just before God by any obedience of his own, or by other means and method than that of his own appointment, even faith in the blood and righteousness of him who justifieth the ungodly. (3.) All who truly believe in Jesus are complete in him; all he did, all he suffered, is reckoned to our account, and God is therefore righteous and just in forgiving our sins, since he hath accepted one for all, the just for the unjust.

Lastly, He solemnly warns them of the danger of rejecting this salvation. Beware therefore lest, through your obstinate infidelity, that fearful and alarming threatening should come upon you which is spoken of in one of the prophets, (Hab. i. 5.) concerning the men of that generation in which he lived; Behold, ye despisers, and wonder at your own stupidity, and my vengeance ready to light upon you; and perish, be covered with shame, and hide yourselves in terrors at the approaching judgments; for I work a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you; such as the destruction of their temple and nation by the Romans, a judgment more terrible than ever before fell upon them by the hand of the Chaldeans. Or perhaps it may refer to the glorious work of redemption and mercy which should be extended to the Gentiles, whilst the Jews would be rejected for their wilful unbelief and impenitence; neither of which would they believe, though told them by persons of the most undoubted credit and authority.

42. ¶ And when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue, the [k] Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them [*] the next sabbath. 43. Now, when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas: who, speaking to them, persuaded them [l] to continue in the grace of God. 44. ¶ And the next sabbath-day [m] came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God. 45. But when the Jews saw the multitudes, [n] they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming. 46. Then Paul and Barnabas [o] waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should [p] first have been spoken to you: but seeing [q] ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, [r] we turn to the Gentiles: 47. For [s] so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth. 48. And when the Gentiles heard this, they [t] were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: [u] and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. 49. [x] And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region. 50. ¶ But the Jews [y] stirred up the devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts. 51. [z] But they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium. 52. And the [a] disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost.

k Proselytes. Ver. 16, 26, 43.

* Gr. in the week between, or sabbath between.

l 2 Cor. 6. 1. Tit. 2. 11, 12. Heb. 12. 15. 1 Pet. 5. 12. ch. 11. 23. & 14. 22. & 20. 22, 24. 1 Cor. 15. 58. Jude 20, 21. 2 Pet. 3. 14, 17, 18.

m Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10.

n Job 5. 2. Eccl. 4. 4. ver. 50. ch. 14. 2, 19. & 17. 5, 13. & 18. 6. & 6. 9. Mat. 23. 13. 1 Thes. 2. 16. 1 Pet. 4. 4.

o Ch. 4. 13. Eph. 6. 19, 20.

p Mat. 10. 6. ch. 3. 26. & 13. 26. Rom. 1. 16. Mat. 15. 24. & 22. 3, 4, 9. Rom. 9. 4, 5. John 4. 22.

q Exod. 32. 9. ch. 7. 51. John i, ii. Ps. 81. 11, 12.

r Exod. 32. 10. Deut. 32. 21. Rom. 10. 19. Is. 55. 5. Mat. 8. 11, 12. & 21. 28, 41, 43. ch. 1. 8. & 18. 6. & 28. 28.

s Mat. 28. 19. Mark 16. 15. Luke 24. 47. ch. 1. 8. with Is. 49. 6. & 42. 6, 7. ch. 9. 15. Eph. 3. 6, 8. Ps. 98. 2, 3. Luke 2. 32.

t Luke 2. 10, 11. Rom. 15. 8—12.

u Ch. 2. 47. Rom. 8. 28—30. & 9. 23. & 11. 7. 2 Tim. 2. 19. John 10. 16. Is. 56. 8. & 43. 6. & 49. 12. & 54. 1, 3.

x Is. 2. 3. ch. 6. 7. & 19. 4, 20. & 12. 24. Col. 1. 6, 23. 2 Thes. 3. 1.

y See ver. 43, 45. ch. 21. 10. 2 Tim. 3. 11. Mat. 10. 23.

z Mat. 10. 14. ch. 14. 6, 11. & 18. 6.

a Ver. 48. ch. 2. 46. & 5. 41. Eph. 3. 13. Phil. 2. 17, 18. 1 Pet. 4. 13. 14. & 5. 10.

Verses 42—52. Nothing could be more kindly spoken than the discourse of the apostle, and more respectful to the Jewish people. But we are told,

1. The ill reception many of the Jews gave to his sermon. They went out of the synagogue, in open contempt of the apostle, and of the doctrine of Christ which he preached; intimating thereby an avowed resolution never to hear him again, or regard ought that he could say. And justly are they abandoned to their infidelity, who obstinately reject the counsel of the Lord against their own souls, and will not even give the gospel a candid hearing.

2. The Gentiles hereupon, the proselytes of righteousness, who attended the Jewish worship, besought, that if the Jews refused to receive the gracious message, these words might be preached to them the next sabbath. They longed for that salvation which the others slighted.

3. Though the generality of the Jews turned their backs on the apostles and their preaching, many were affected by what they heard, both of the native Jews, and religious proselytes, and they followed Paul and Barnabas that they might in private have some farther conference with them on a matter so important; and glad to see them thus impressed, they conversed freely with them on the subject, to carry on the good work begun in their hearts, warmly exhorting and persuading them by every powerful argument, to continue in the grace of God, faithfully embracing, and boldly professing the gospel doctrines, depending on the Spirit's influence, and waiting in the use of all appointed means upon the Lord. Note, (1.) They who truly receive the word of Christ, will follow his ministers, and long for farther instruction in righteousness. (2.) Continuance in the grace of God must prove we are truly partakers of it.

4. The next sabbath the auditory was immense. Probably in the week days the apostles had improved every opportunity to spread the truths of God; and as the Gentiles were graciously received by them, they flocked together on the sabbath; and not only the religious proselytes, but many of those who were before idolatrous, invited by curiosity, or from better motives, assembled to hear the word of God.

5. When the Jews, who were enemies to the gospel, saw the multitudes, and among them many of the idolatrous Gentiles, whom they abhorred, they were filled with envy that to them the word of God should be spoken, and that these new preachers should grow so popular; and spoke against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming; with the utmost rage and passion they disputed against the doctrines of the gospel, abused and vilified the preacher, and blasphemed the holy name of Jesus, who was the great subject of the apostle's discourse. Note, It is no new thing to hear the glorious truths of Christ, and his salvation treated with virulence and blasphemy by men of corrupt minds.

6. Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold; far from being intimidated by such opposition, they appeared inspired with greater zeal, and showed more undaunted courage in delivering their message, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken unto you; in respect to the privileges of your birth, and the command of our Master, who sent us forth to publish his gospel, beginning at Jerusalem, and sending the first calls to the lost sheep of the house of Israel; but seeing ye put it from you, and wilfully reject and vilify this great salvation of the Messiah, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, which can only be obtained by that faith in him and his gospel which you despise, and are unworthy to hear any more, lo, we turn to the Gentiles, leaving you of this place to your obstinate impenitence and infidelity, and henceforth proclaiming the salvation which is in Jesus Christ to the heathen; and herein we act by divine warrant, and in exact correspondence with the Scriptures. For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth, Isa. xlix. 6. Note, (1.) The more obstinately sinners oppose the word of God, the more bold and zealous should his ministers be in maintaining the truths of his gospel. (2.) They who reject God's ministers, and their message, pronounce sentence on themselves, as unworthy of eternal life. (3.) Christ is the Sun of Righteousness arisen on this benighted world; in him we see the way to present and eternal salvation opened; and all, to the ends of the earth, are invited to look to him, and be saved.

7. When the Gentiles heard this, that the salvation which the apostles preached extended to them, according to God's express word and warrant, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord, praising him for sending the light of his truth among them; and as many as were ordained to eternal life, who not only, like the stony ground hearers, expressed a transitory joy in what they heard, but were in God's eternal and all-wise decrees appointed unto glory, to stand amidst the shining ranks of the church triumphant, they believed to the saving of their souls. And the word of the Lord, which was with such gracious effect preached in the capital, was published throughout all the region, both by the apostolic labours, and the Gentile converts, who longed to engage their brethren to share with them in this common salvation. Note, (1.) The gospel is glad news to the sinner that sees and feels the need of that pardon and grace therein promised. (2.) They who have tasted the preciousness of God's word, cannot but glorify him for his unspeakable gift. (3.) Eternal life is the gift of God; and in their hearts who are ordained to partake of it, doth he work the work of faith with power. (4.) If we have ourselves received the knowledge of Jesus, and his rich grace, we shall delight to spread abroad the savour of his name.

8. The unbelieving Jews, filled with malice and enmity against the apostles, stirred up the devout and honourable women, who were proselytes, and most zealous for Judaism, and the chief men of the city, probably by their means, representing the apostles as dangerous men; and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts. Note, (1.) Wherever the gospel is preached with success, there the ministers of it may expect the devil's rage. (2.) None persecute so bitterly as those who are devout, and make profession of religion. (3.) The best of men have been expelled with ignominy from places where their successful labours provoked the enmity of those who should have protected and honoured them; but such reproach is their highest honour; such suffering their truest preferment.

Lastly, Being thus violently driven out of the city, they shook off the dust of their feet against them, in detestation of their wickedness, and as a testimony against their persecutors in the judgment-day, according to their Master's order, Luke ix. 5. and they came to Iconium, the chief city of Lycaonia, a neighbouring province. And the disciples, whom they left behind, though deprived of these faithful teachers, and beholding these persecutions, far from being disheartened, were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost; blessed with the most abundant consolations in their souls, mightily enriched with the gifts and graces of the Spirit, and making a bold and noble profession of their faith, amidst all opposition. Note, (1.) Wo to the place against which the rejected ministers of Jesus shake off the dust of their feet; Sodom's vengeance shall be lighter than the doom of that city. (2.) As our tribulations for Christ abound, he can, and usually doth, cause our consolations to abound also.

CHAP. XIV.—ANNO DOMINI, 46.

We have in this chapter a further account of the progress of the gospel, by the ministry of Paul and Barnabas, among the Gentiles. Here is, 1. Their successful preaching time at Iconium, and their being driven thence by the violence of their persecutors, ver. 1—7. 2. Their healing of a lame man at Lystra, and the difficulty they found to restrain the people from worshipping them as gods, ver. 8—18. 3. The outrage of the people against Paul, at the instigation of the Jews; the effect of which was, that they stoned him, as they thought, to death; but he was wonderfully restored to life again, ver. 19, 20. 4. The visit which Paul and Barnabas made to the churches which they had planted, to confirm and put them into order, ver. 21—23. 5. Their return to Antioch, from whence they were sent forth; the good they did by the way, and the report they made to the church of Antioch of their expedition, ver. 24—28.

1. AND it came to pass in * Iconium, that they went both together [a] into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that [b] a great multitude both of the Jews and also of the Greeks believed. 2. [c] But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil-affected against the brethren. 3. Long time therefore abode they speaking boldly in the Lord, [d] which gave testimony unto the word of his grace, [e] and granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands. 4. [f] But the multitude of the city was divided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the apostles. 5. And [g] when there was an assault made both of the Gentiles, and also of the Jews with their rulers, to use them despitefully, and to stone them, 6. [h] They were ware of it, and fled unto Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about: 7. [i] And there they preached the gospel.

* A city eastward of Antioch in Pisidia; the capital of Lycaonia, at present called Cogni.

a Mat. 10. 27. ch. 13. 5, 14, 46. & 17. 1, 2, 10. & 18. 4, 6, 7, 19. & 3 26.

b Gen. 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. ch. 13. 48.

c Ver. 19. ch. 13. 45, 50. & 17. 5, 13. & 18. 6. Jer. 26. 11. Amos 7. 10. 1 Thes. 2. 16.

d Ch. 20. 24. ch. 2. 22. & 19. 11. Mark 16. 20. Heb. 2. 4. John 14. 12.

e Ch. 20. 32. Rom. 1. 16. & 15. 19.

f Luke 2. 34. John 7. 43.

g Ps. 2. 1, 2. & 83. 5. John 7. 48. 2 Tim. 3. 11. Mat. 5. 11. & 10. 18, 22.

h Mat. 10. 17, 23. ch. 8. 1.

i Ch. 8. 4. & 11. 19. Gal. 6. 9. Eph. 3. 8, 9. 2 Tim. 4. 2.

Verses 1—7. Though the apostles were so ignominiously treated by the Jews at Antioch, yet they did not desist from their accustomed manner of visiting their synagogues first at Iconium, and making them the offer of the gospel.

1. They went both together into the synagogue, as mutual fellow-helpers, and that out of the mouth of two witnesses every word might be established; and so spoke, that a great multitude both of the Jews and also of the Greeks believed; so powerful was their preaching, and so mightily did the Spirit of God bless their ministrations, to the conviction and conversion of their hearers.

2. This success, as usual, exasperated the infidel Jews, who spirited up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil-affected against the brethren, by representing them as dangerous men, who were carrying on some bad design. Persecutors would thus always cover malignity under specious pretences.

3. Though the apostles saw the prejudices and rancour entertained against them and their new converts, they were not disheartened, but abode long time speaking boldly in the Lord, in his glorious cause, and supported by his power and Spirit, which gave testimony unto the word of his grace, and granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands, as an attestation to the truth of the gospel which they preached. Note, (1.) The gospel is the word of Christ's grace, containing the richest discoveries of free, boundless, and undeserved mercy to the sinful sons of men. (2.) They who go forth in the strength of the Lord will not be dismayed at the frowns of their enemies.

4. Notwithstanding the malice of the Jews, a strong party was formed for the apostles, and the city was divided, and for a time the persecution was restrained. At last, the Jewish party prevailing, an assault was made both of the Gentiles and Jews, supported by the magistrates, in order to seize the apostles, and use them despitefully, treating them with every kind of ignominy, and then to stone them, as blasphemers and miscreants unworthy to live. Note, (1.) If the gospel make a division in a place or city that was before at peace, it is not to be imputed to any tendency which the gracious message hath to create such disturbance, but to the enmity of the natural heart against God, which cannot bear to see the power of gospel grace in the conversations of others: and far better is it to bear reproach and persecution, as the troublers of the false peace of sinners, than to suffer them to swim securely down the stream into the gulf of perdition. (2.) If the enemies of the truth are so unanimous in opposition, shall the friends of the gospel be less united in the glorious cause?

5. The apostles got intelligence of this conspiracy, and to escape from the hands of these blood-thirsty men, fled to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about: and there they preached the gospel, not desisting from their labours, though compelled to fly for their lives. Thus the enmity of their persecutors contributed but the more to spread that gospel which they opposed.

8. ¶ And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, * [k] being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked: 9. The same heard Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had [l] faith to be healed, 10. Said with a loud voice, [m] Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked. 11. And when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, † The [n] gods are come down to us in the likeness of men. 12. And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker. 13. Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, ‡ brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and [o] would have done sacrifice with the people. 14. Which when the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of they [p] rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out, 15. And saying,

* He had no muscular power in his feet; or perhaps he was what is termed club-footed.

k Ch. 3. 2. & 8. 23. John 5. 5. Luke 13. 16.

l Mat. 9. 22. Mark 9. 23, 24.

m Mark 3. 5. ch. 3. 6, 8. Is. 35. 6.

† Calmet thinks this was a corrupt Greek dialect: Jablonski thinks it was that of the Cappadocians which was mingled with Syriac.

n Ch. 8. 10. & 28. 6.

‡ Lystra was under the guardianship of Jupiter Custos.

o Dan. 2. 46. Rev. 19. 10. & 22. 8. ch. 10. 25. Hos. 4. 9.

p Mat. 26. 65. Gen. 37. 29, 34. Is. 36. 22. & 37. 1.

Sirs, [q] why do ye these things? We also are men [r] of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these [s] vanities unto the [t] living God, which made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein: 16. [u] Who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways. 17. [x] Nevertheless he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness. 18. And with these sayings [y] scarce restrained they the people, that they had not done sacrifice unto them.

q Ch. 10. 26. Rev. 19. 10. & 22. 9.

r Ch. 10. 26. Jam. 5. 17.

s 1 Cor. 8. 4. 1 Sam. 12. 21. 1 Kin. 16. 13. Is. 44. 9—20. Jer. 10. 14, 15. Amos 2. 4. Rom. 1. 21. Eph. 4. 7.

t Jer. 10. 10. John 5. 26. ch. 4. 24. Exod. 20. 11. Rom. 1. 20. Jer. 32. 17. Zech. 12. 1. ch. 17. 25. Gen. 1. 1. Ps. 146. 6. & 124. 8. Rev. 14. 7.

u Ps. 81. 12. ch. 17. 30. 1 Pet. 4. 3. Rom. 1. 24, 26, 28. Ps. 147. 20. Eph. 3. 5. & 2. 12.

x Rom. 1. 20. Ps. 19. 1, 2. & 36. 5, 6. & 145. 9. Mat. 5. 45. Lev. 26. 4. Deut. 11. 14. & 28. 12. Job 5. 10. Ps. 65. 10. & 68. 9, 10. & 147. 8. Jer. 14. 22.

y Jer. 13. 23, 27. Is. 48. 4.

Verses 8—18. During their stay at Lystra we are told,

1. Of a notable cure performed by Paul on a man lame from his birth. In the assembly where Paul was preaching, he sat attentive to his discourse, when the apostle stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving, by the spirit of discernment, that he had faith to be healed, and was persuaded of the power with which the apostles were endued to cure his lameness, incurable as it was by any human means; he said with a loud voice, that all present might hear and take notice of the miracle, Stand upright on thy feet; and instantly he leaped and walked, restored to perfect strength. Note, (1.) They who love the word of God, though they are lame, and cannot walk, will be carried to hear it. (2.) The pains which some take to attend God's worship, though lame and infirm, will rise up to condemn their sloth and negligence who, though so much better able to go, indulge themselves at home. (3.) When Jesus speaks to the impotent soul in his word, then, though helpless to all good before, our hearts exult with holy joy, and rise to run the way of his commandments.

2. Astonished at what they had seen, the idolatrous Gentiles who were present, concluded, according to the notions of their pagan theology, that the gods were come down to them in the likeness of men, and in an ecstasy of joy at this supposed honour done them, in their own language expressed aloud the sentiments of their hearts; and, agreeably to the absurd ideas which they had received of their gods, they called Barnabas, Jupiter, being probably the elder man, and his stature more majestic; and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker, Mercury being the god of eloquence, and reputed the messenger who went on the errands of Jove and the superior deities. Then the priest of Jupiter which was before their city, reputed their patron god, or whose temple stood in the suburbs, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, the place of concourse, where Paul and Barnabas were speaking to the people, or to the door of the house where they lodged, and would have done sacrifice with the people, crowning them with their garlands, and offering their sacrifices before them.

3. With horror and indignation, when the apostles perceived their design, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out, and saying, Sirs, why do ye these things? Far from suffering the people to continue in so dangerous a mistake, though it brought them such honour, they desired to renounce all such vain-glory, and with earnestness remonstrated against a design so impious and idolatrous. Far from assuming divinity, we also are men of like passions with you, subject to all the infirmities of humanity, and corrupt and sinful worms of the earth, as the rest of mankind, and preach unto you, as ministers and ambassadors of Christ, which is the highest honour we claim, that ye should turn from these vanities, these absurd, useless, unprofitable deities, which are mere nothings, creatures of the fancy, which never existed, and whose worship is the height of folly, as well as impiety; and that ye should be brought unto the worship and service of the living God, who alone is worthy to be feared and adored, as the fountain of life, and the great Creator of all; which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein, visible or invisible: who in time past, in his mysterious ways of providence, which are all righteous and just, suffered all nations to walk in their own ways, with much long-suffering bearing with their provocations. Nevertheless he left not himself without witness, but gave them sufficient evidences of his wisdom and goodness, of his eternal power and Godhead, Rom. i. 20. in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness, which gifts of his beneficence should have led our hearts up unto him, and left us without excuse in our ignorance of him, neglect, and unthankfulness: to persist therefore in these abominations of idolatry, now the gospel light was come unto them, would be peculiarly criminal. Note, (1.) All our temporal mercies should lead up our hearts to God, and looking above all second causes, the great Author of all should be constantly seen in all the bounties of his providence, in every drop of dew that waters the earth, and every blade that breaks the clod. (2.) The goodness of God to us should engage our hearts towards him, and if we have lived in ignorance before, we are called to improve what better light he now graciously communicates. (3.) Our gratitude is due to God not only for the food he bestows, but for the gladness of heart which he gives to make use of his blessings.

4. With these sayings scarce restrained they the people, that they had not done sacrifice unto them; all their expostulations and entreaties with difficulty prevailed upon them to desist, so foolishly obstinate were they in their mistaken persuasion.

19. ¶ And there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people, [z] and, having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing [a] he had been dead. 20. Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe. 21. ¶ [b] And when they had preached the gospel to that city, * and had † taught many, they returned again to [c] Lystra, and to Iconium, and to Antioch, 22. [d] Confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them [e] to continue in the faith, and that we must [f] through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God. 23. And when [g] they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed. 24. And after they had passed throughout [h] Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia. 25. And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia: ‡ 26. And thence sailed to [i] Antioch, from whence they had been [k] recommended to the grace of God for the work which they [l] fulfilled. 27. And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they [m] rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had [n] opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles. 28. And there they abode long time with the disciples.

z 2 Cor. 11. 25. ch. 7. 58. & 13. 45. 2 Tim. 3. 11. Heb. 13. 12.
a 2 Cor. 1. 8. & 4. 10. & 11. 23.
b Luke 2. 10, 11. Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19, 20.
* Viz. Derbe, a city in the same province.
† Gr. discipled many.
c Ver. 1, 6. ch. 13. 14, 15. 2 Tim. 3. 11.
d Ch. 15. 32, 41. & 18. 23.
e Ch. 11. 23. & 13. 43. Col. 1. 23. Jude 3, 20, 21. f Mat. 10. 38. & 16. 24. Luke 22. 28, 29. & 24. 26. Rom. 8. 17. 2 Tim. 2. 11, 12. & 3. 12.
g Tit. 1. 5. 1 Tim. 4. 14. ch. 8. 18. & 1. 26. & 6. 6. & 13. 3. & 20. 32. 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7. The words may imply that Paul and Barnabas led and directed in the elections.
h Ch. 13. 13, 14.
‡ A sea-port town in Pamphylia.
i In Syria. Ch. 11. 19, 26. & 13. 1. & 15. 38.
k See ver. 23. ch. 20. 32. & 13. 1—13.
l 1 Cor. 4. 2. 1 Tim. 2. 2. & 4. 2, 5. Col. 1. 25. & 4. 17. Eph. 4. 12.
m Ch. 4. 11. & 15. 4, 12. & 21. 19.
n 1 Cor. 16. 9. 2 Cor. 2. 12. Col. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 7, 8. 2 Thes. 3. 1.

Verses 19—28. How fickle is the mind of vain men! how soon are they, who have no foundation, carried about with every wind! They who are deified to-day, are thus often detested to-morrow. It becomes us, if we would have abiding honour, to seek that which cometh from God only.

1. The apostles are brought into the most imminent danger, and Paul stoned and left for dead. The Jews, their implacable enemies, followed them from Iconium and Antioch, on purpose to counteract their labours; and with diabolical malice to prevent, to their utmost, the progress of the gospel. And soon they found means to persuade the wavering multitude that these men were deceivers, turbulent and seditious; and exasperated them so highly, that seizing Paul, against whom they bore the bitterest grudge, as the chief preacher, they stoned him, in a popular tumult, and drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead. Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, lamenting over him, praying he might be restored to life, or with an intent to bury him, he rose up, quickened by miraculous power; and, notwithstanding the late wounds and bruises he had received, he came into the city, strengthened in his body, and not daunted in his mind by all that he had endured. Note, (1.) True disciples will not forsake their persecuted ministers, but own them in the face of every reproach and danger. (2.) God's faithful servants, though brought to the gates of the grave, shall not die till their work is done.

2. The next day Paul departed with Barnabas for Derbe; and when, as usual, they had preached the gospel, and taught, their ministry being blessed to the conversion of many, they returned back again to the cities of Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch, confirming the souls of the disciples, settling them on Christ the great foundation, that no troubles felt or feared, no caresses or temptations might move them away from the hope of the gospel; and exhorting them to continue in the faith of Jesus, in the belief of his office, glory, and gospel, and in the bold and open profession of his name; and saying, that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God, for which therefore they must prepare, nor count as if some strange thing happened unto them, since all that will live godly in Christ Jesus, must share this common lot. Note, (1.) They who have received the gospel-word have still need of farther confirmation, that they may be built up in their most holy faith: and ministers must labour to establish the professors, as well as to awaken the careless. (2.) Nothing but faith can enable us to overcome the snares, the allurements, and discouragements of this present evil world: they who would stand in the evil day, must continue to hold fast on Christ. (3.) The way to heaven lies through much tribulation; but let us look to the end, and keep the far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory in view, and then we shall count all the sufferings of the present time as light afflictions that are but for a moment.

3. They ordained elders, or presbyters, in every church, to lead their devotions, minister the sacraments, preach the word, and watch over the flock of God committed to their charge; men of gravity and piety, selected from the other disciples, and judged best qualified for the arduous work of the ministry; and having prayed with fasting for the supplies of grace and the divine benediction upon them, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed; both the elders and their congregations: begging that the Lord, who had begun the good work, would perfect the same; nourishing them up in the words of sound doctrine, and preserving them unto his everlasting kingdom. Note, (1.) The work of the ministry cannot be undertaken with too great solemnity; and they who feel the weight of it, will not fail importunately to seek, by prayer, for more than human power, to carry them through. (2.) We may comfortably and confidently commit to the divine keeping, those who have faithfully obeyed the calls of divine grace, for none shall pluck them out of the Saviour's hand. (3.) The best parting of friends is in prayer to the Lord; mutually commending ourselves to his care and love.

4. The apostles continued their journey to Antioch in Syria, passing through Pisidia, till they came to Pamphylia, where they preached the word at Perga, a city of that province, and Attalia, another town on the sea-coast, and from thence they sailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God for the work which they fulfilled; and now were returned from their successful expedition, bringing back a full answer to the prayers that had been put up at their departure. And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, ascribing nothing to themselves, but giving him the glory, to whom alone the praise of all was due: and how he had opened a door of faith unto the Gentiles, great multitudes of whom had been converted unto the faith of Jesus. And there, at Antioch, they abode long time with the disciples; comforting, establishing, strengthening them. Note, (1.) Whatever good is done by our preaching, we must remember that all the efficacy proceeds not from us, but from the grace of God. (2.) The way into the kingdom of grace and glory lies through the door of faith, which God alone can open.

CHAP. XV.—ANNO DOMINI, 46.

Unhappy divisions here first appear in the Christian church, but they are soon allayed. Here is, 1. A controversy raised at Antioch by the Judaizing teachers, about circumcising the Gentile converts, and causing them to observe the ceremonial law, ver. 1, 2. 2. A consultation held with the church at Jerusalem about this matter, and the sending of delegates thither for that purpose, ver. 2—5. 3. An account of what passed in the synod that was convened upon this occasion, ver. 6. What Peter said, ver. 7—11. What Paul and Barnabas discoursed of, ver. 12. And lastly, what James proposed for the settling of this matter, ver. 13—21. 4. The result of this debate, and the circular letter which was written to the Gentile converts, directing them how to govern themselves with respect to the Jews, ver. 23—29. 5. The delivering of this determination to the church at Antioch, and the satisfaction it gave them, ver. 30—35. 6. A second expedition designed by Paul and Barnabas to preach to the Gentiles, in which they quarrelled about their assistant, and parted upon it, one steering one course, and the other another, ver. 36—41.

1. AND[a] certain men which came down from Judea taught the [b] brethren, and said, [c] Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved. 2. [d] When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and disputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto [e] the apostles and elders about this question. 3. And being [f] brought on their way by the church, they passed through [g] Phenice and Samaria, [h] declaring the conversion of the Gentiles: and they caused great joy unto all the brethren. cir. 52.

4. And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them. 5. ¶ But there rose up [i] certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed, saying, that it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.*

a Ver. 5. ch. 20. 30. & 21. 20. 2 Pet. 2. 1. Rev. 2. 9.
b Ver. 19, 23.
c Gen. 17. 10—14. Lev. 12. 3. John 7. 22. Gal. 5. 2—4. ver. 5. Phil. 3. 2. Col. 2. 8, 12, 16. Tit. 1. 10.
d Ch. 11. 25, 26, 30. & 13. 1. & 14. 4. Gal. 2. 1, 9.
e Ch. 1. 13, 26. & 12. 1. John 16. 13. Prov. 15. 22. & 11. 14. & 24. 6.
f Ch. 21. 5. 2 Tim. 4. 11. Tit. 3. 13. Rom. 15. 24. 1 Cor. 16. 6, 11.
g Ch. 11. 19. & 8. 14.
h Ch. 14 27. & 13. 43, 52. & 21. 19, 20.
i Said they. Ver. 1. ch. 21. 20. & 6. 7. with 26. 5.
* There is a strange proneness in us to make our own opinion and practice a rule and a law to every body else; to judge of all about us by our own standard, and to conclude, that, because we do well, all do wrong who do not just as we do.

Verses 1—5. The peace of that happy society at Antioch, which was the envy of the devil, begins to be interrupted by some, who sowed the seeds of controversy, the bane of the Christian church.

1. Certain men came down from Judea, not sent by the apostles, but instigated by their own pride and prejudices, and taught the Gentile brethren, saying, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved; as if their faith in Christ, and adherence to the gospel was insufficient, unless they also submitted to this distinguishing ordinance, and the other rites of the ceremonial law. The Jewish Christians, it seems, themselves were zealous for the law, chap. xxi. 20. and were permitted to observe the Jewish ritual as a thing in its nature indifferent, and from which the destruction of the temple, and the dissolution of the Jewish polity, would soon emancipate them; but not satisfied with being themselves indulged in this practice, they wanted to enslave the consciences of the Gentile converts under the same yoke: and that on peril of their damnation if they rejected it. Note, Men are strangely disposed to make their own opinion and practice the standard for others, and to enforce their fancies and inventions as of essential consequence; liberally denouncing their anathemas, and consigning to the pit of destruction all who will not conform to their mode of thinking and worship, and submit their consciences to their yoke; but when we are making God's word our rule, and, according to our best light, following his will, we need little regard these rash denunciations.

2. Paul and Barnabas boldly withstood these Judaizing teachers, and disputed against them as the corrupters of genuine Christianity; and when a growing dissension seemed to threaten this flourishing church, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question, that the matter being discussed in a full assembly of all the chief ministers of the church, the pretensions of these corrupters might be confounded, and the liberty of the Gentiles confirmed.

3. The two great apostles of the Gentiles hereupon departed, being respectfully attended part of the way by some chief brethren of the church; and, as they passed through Phenice and Samaria, they caused great joy unto all the brethren, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles; for to a faithful soul nothing is matter of more pure unfeigned delight, than to hear that others are made partakers of the same grace which we have tasted.

4. The church of Jerusalem, and the apostles Cephas, James, and John, and the elders, or presbyters, received these distinguished messengers with high respect, and expressed their full approbation of their conduct, when they heard what they had done, and their success among the Gentiles: but certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed in Jesus as the Messiah, and made profession of faith in him, still retained many of their former tenets, and were bigoted to the ceremonial law; they rose up therefore, insisting, that it was needful for them not only to believe in Jesus, but also to be circumcised, and keep the law, in order to obtain acceptance with God; thus most highly derogating from the free grace of God, and the great doctrine of justification by faith alone.

6. [k] And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter. 7. ¶ And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, [l] Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe. 8. And God, [m] which knoweth the hearts, [n] bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us: 9. And [o] put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith. 10. Now therefore why tempt ye God, [p] to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? 11. But we believe [q] that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as [r] they. 12. ¶ Then all the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, [s] declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them. 13. ¶ And [t] after they had held their peace, [u] James answered, saying, [x] Men and brethren, hearken unto me: 14. Simeon hath declared how God at the first [y] did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. 15. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, 16. [z] After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: 17. [a] That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. 18. [b] Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world. 19. Wherefore my sentence is, [c] that we trouble not them which from among the Gentiles [d] are turned to God: 20. But that we write unto them, that they abstain from [e] pollutions of idols, and from [f] fornication, and from [g] things strangled, and from blood. 21. For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being [h] read in the synagogues every sabbath-day.

k Heb. 13. 7, 17. 1 Tim. 5. 17. Prov. 11. 14. & 15. 22.

l Ch. 10. 20, 34—48. & 11. 12—18.

m Ch. 1. 24. 1 Chr. 28. 9. & 29. 17. Ps. 7. 10. Jer. 11. 20. & 17. 10. & 20. 12. Heb. 4. 13. Rev. 2. 23.

n Ch. 10. 43—45. & 11. 15. & 2. 4. & 4. 31.

o Ch. 10. 15, 28. & 11. 17. & 12. 24. & 13. 48. & 14. 1, 27. 1 Cor. 1. 1, 2. 1 Pet. 1. 22. Rom. 3. 29, 30.

p Mat. 23. 4. Gal. 5. 1.

q Eph. 1. 7. & 2. 7, 8. Col. 1. 14. Rom. 5. 20, 21. & 6. 23. & 8. 1—4. & 10. 4. Rev. 5. 9. Gal. 2. 16. Tit. 2. 11. & 3. 4—7.

r Our fathers, Ver. 10.

s Ver. 4. ch. 11. 6. & xiii. xiv. & 14. 27. & 21. 19.

t 1 Cor. 14. 30, 40.

u Not Mat. 4. 21. ch. 12. 1. but Mark 3. 18. & 15. 40. Jam. 1. 1. ch. 12. 17.

x See ch. 13. 15, 26. & 22. 1. & 23. 1.

y Ver. 7. 12. Luke 1. 78. Tit. 2. 11, 14. Rom. 11. 36. Is. 43. 20, 21.

z Amos 9. 11, 12. Is. 54. 1—5. & 42. 1, 4, 6. & 43, 6. & xlix. lx. Ezek. xl—xlviii. Is. 2. 2, 3. Mic. 4. 1.

a Gen. 9. 27. & 49. 10. Is. 11. 10. & 19. 23. & 42. 1, 6, 7. & 45. 22, 24. & 49. 6. Zech. 2. 11. & 8. 20—23. Mal. 1. 11. Joel 2. 32. Rom. 11. 29.

b Heb. 4. 13. Is. 41. 22, 23. & 44. 7. & 46. 10. Eph. 1. 11. ch. 17. 26.

c Ver. 10, 24. Gal. 5. 1—4. Rom. 15. 2. ver. 28.

d 1 Thes. 1. 9. Eph. 2. 1, 4—10. Tit. 3. 5. Is. 55. 7.

e Exod. 20. 3. & 34. 15. 1 Cor. 8. 1—10. & 10. 14, 20, 21. ch. 21. 25. Rom. 14. 14. ver. 29. 1 John 5. 21. Col. 3. 5.

f 1 Cor. 5. 1. & 10. 8. Eph. 4. 17. 1 Thes. 4. 3, 5, 7. Heb. 12. 15. & 13. 4.

g Gen. 9. 4. Lev. 3. 17. & 17. 14. & 7. 26.

h Neh. 8. 1. ch. 13. 15, 27. Luke 4. 16.

Verses 6—21. The first general council that had yet sat to decide on the unhappy disputes which were beginning to arise in the church, is here with great seriousness assembled, to hear, consider, and determine. After much disputing on the subject, we have,

1. Peter's speech on the occasion. He had heard what had been said on both sides of the argument, and therefore, as one of the most respectable personages in that assembly, rises to deliver his opinion.

He reminds them how God had sent him several years before to preach the gospel to Cornelius and the Gentiles who were with him, and had thereby led them by faith to Jesus Christ for life and salvation. The same gifts had been bestowed on them as on the Jewish converts, and God had himself herein testified his acceptance and approbation of them; making no difference between them, purifying their hearts by faith, as justified and sanctified by the blood, (the righteousness and grace of Jesus,) without the least need of circumcision and the ceremonial observances. Since, therefore, God had so evidently decided the matter, it was the highest presumption, and no better than tempting God, arraigning his wisdom and authority, to pretend a right to counteract what he had done, and repeal what he had determined; and it was a great injury to the Gentile brethren, to put that yoke of ceremonial institutions upon their neck, that had been so burdensome to themselves and their fathers, and which was now absolutely useless, since the salvation by Jesus Christ was alike free to Jew and Gentile, and both were to be saved by grace through faith, without the least respect to circumcision, or any legal institutions: We therefore, says Peter, expect to be saved even as they, and they as freely as we. Note, (1.) The salvation of the gospel is a common salvation, free from all terms and conditions whatsoever, bestowed by grace, and accepted by faith alone. (2.) They who have the real faith of the gospel, will certainly evidence its purifying efficacy upon their hearts. (3.) All who hold the head Christ, and walk in holiness as Christ also walked, however in some sentiments they may differ from us, are cordially to be embraced by us as brethren.

2. Paul and Barnabas, instead of ten thousand arguments, related simply the miracles and wonders which God had wrought among the Gentiles by them, whilst all the multitude kept a profound silence, listening attentively to so wonderful and pleasing a narrative; wherein it evidently appeared, both by the miracles which God enabled them to work, and by the success he gave them in the conversion of the Gentiles, that he approved their labours, and bore testimony to the acceptance of these Gentile converts. What need could there be, that they should be burdened with the works of the law, who had received the Holy Ghost by the hearing of faith? (See Gal. iii. 2.)

3. On their closing their discourse, James, the last speaker in this council, sums up the debate, and delivers his opinion.

[1.] After a respectful address to them, as men of reason and consideration, and brethren in the Lord, he reminds them of what Peter had said, by whose preaching first God did visit the Gentiles with the knowledge of his gospel, and the gifts of his grace, to take out of them a people for his name, to be to the praise of his glory.

[2.] He observes, that God herein exactly fulfilled his own word in the mouth of his prophets, which had so long ago foretold this great event, as it is written, (Amos ix. 11.) After this I will return, and recover the scattered remnant of Israel, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down: in and by the Divine Messiah, who, when the house of David was reduced to the lowest state of want, and contempt, should arise to set up that spiritual and everlasting kingdom, of which David's house and kingdom were the figures: and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up, great and glorious, that the residue of men, even the nations who had before been left of God to walk in their own ways, might seek after the Lord, submitting to the Messiah's sceptre, and becoming obedient to the gospel word; and all the Gentiles, whether proselytes or idolaters, converted to the faith of Christ, upon whom my name is called, as elect vessels, separated for his glory, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things, whose word is faithful, whose power alone could effect this wondrous conversion in the heathen world, and who in so doing testified his acceptance of the Gentile converts.

[3.] He resolves the matter into God's eternal purpose. Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world; what he decreed from eternity he had foretold, and now fulfilled; and they might be fully assured, all his counsels were holy, and good, and therefore to be acquiesced in by them without a moment's hesitation.

[4.] He delivers his opinion concerning what he judges proper to be done on the present occasion. My sentence is, that we trouble not them which from among the Gentiles are turned to God, by the imposition of the unnecessary yoke of legal observances on their consciences; but that, to avoid all offence to the believing brethren among the Jews, and to remove whatever would prevent their communion with the Gentile converts, we write unto them, that they abstain from the pollution of idols; from eating or drinking any thing offered to idols: and from fornication, and all impure embraces; and from things strangled, and from blood; for as fornication, though so common and allowed among the Gentiles, must be abstained from as a moral evil; other things, though indifferent in themselves, were then needful to be observed, in order to promote mutual love and communion between the Jewish and Gentile brethren. For as the writings of Moses, in which these things are forbidden, had been of old read every sabbath-day, and the Jewish converts still retained a high veneration for the law; they owed them this indulgence to their long received usage in these indifferent matters. Note, Great allowances are to be made for the prejudices of education: and therefore in indifferent matters we should show to each other a spirit of mutual charity and forbearance, desiring to please every man his neighbour for his good to edification.

22. ¶ Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the [i] whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas surnamed [k] Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren: 23. And they wrote letters by them after this manner; The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia: 24. Forasmuch as we have heard, that [l] certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law; to whom we gave no such commandment: 25. It seemed good unto us, being assembled [m] with one accord, to send chosen men unto you, with our beloved [n] Barnabas and Paul; 26. Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. 27. We have sent therefore Judas and [p] Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth. 28. For it seemed good [q] to the Holy Ghost, and to us, * to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; 29. [r] That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled,† and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. 30. So, when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle: 31. Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the ‡ consolation. 32. And Judas and Silas, being [s] prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and [t] confirmed them. 33. And, after they had tarried there a space, they were [u] let go in peace from the brethren unto the apostles. 34. Notwithstanding, it pleased Silas to abide there still. 35. Paul also and Barnabas [x] continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

i Ch. 8. 1. ver. 3. Mat. 18. 17. ver. 23.

k Perhaps not Joses Barsabas, ch. 1. 23. but his brother.

l Ch. 8. 1. ver. 1, 10 Gal. 2. 4. & 5. 12. Tit. 1. 11. 1 John 2. 19. 2 Cor. 11. 3. Jer. 23. 16.

m Ch. 2. 46. & 4. 32 Rom. 15. 6. 1 Cor. 1. 10.

n Ver. 2, 35. Gal. 2. 9.

o Ch. 13. 50. & 14. 19. Judg. 5. 18.

p Ch. 16. 25. & 17. 4, 15. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 1.

q 1 Cor. 7. 25, 40. John 16. 13.

* This assembly is commonly called 'the first general council;' it appears indeed to have also been the last where properly it could be said, "It seemed good to the Holy Ghost and to us."

r Ch. 16. 4. & 21. 25. ver. 20. 1 Cor. viii, x. Exod. 34. 15. Lev. 3. 17. & 17. 14. & 19. 26. Deut. 12. 16, 23. & 15. 23. 1 Sam. 14. 32. Rom. 1. 24, 26. 1 Cor. 5. 1, 9, 11. & 7. 2. Heb. 13. 4.

† The ancients were accustomed to kill many animals by strangling. They also mixed the blood of animals with many of their dishes.

‡ Or exhortation.

s Ch. 13. 1. 1 Cor. 12. 28. ch. 14. 22.

t Ver. 41. ch. 14. 22. & 18. 23. Eph. 4. 12, 13.

u Gen. 26. 29. Exod. 4. 18. 1 Cor. 16. 11. Heb. 11. 31.

x Ch. 5. 42. & 13. 1. & 11. 19, 26.

Verses 22—35. The matter being now brought to a conclusion, and the assembly concurring in their approbation of the opinion which James had delivered, we have,

1. The choice of two persons from the brethren at Jerusalem, eminent for their gifts and graces, Barsabas and Silas, to accompany Paul and Barnabas, to Antioch, with letters containing the decree of the council, both as a testimony of respect towards their Gentile fellow-christians, and as helpers to establish the work begun among them.

2. The letters themselves contained,

[1.] A most respectful address. The apostles, and elders, and brethren, send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia: they assume no authoritative style, nor sounding titles, but stretch out the hand of fellowship giving them the result of their consultations.

[2.] They recite the cause on which their council was held, marking with just reprobation the disturbers of the church's peace. We have heard, that certain which went out from us, have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law; to whom we gave no such commandment; they pretended that they acted under the apostolic commission and authority, but this is here utterly disclaimed. Note, (1.) Nothing so fatally subverts the soul, as the insisting upon any thing as necessary to our acceptance and justification before God, besides faith only. (2.) Many pretend a mission from God and his church, whose pretensions, when examined, are found utterly false and delusive.

[3.] They make honourable mention of the bearers of their epistle, whom they with one accord agreed to send. It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, for whom they expressed their highest regard, and testified the most entire approbation of their conduct; men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ; a noble evidence of their approved fidelity. We have sent therefore, Judas and Silas, who, lest any cavil should be raised about the meaning or intention of the contents of our letters, shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

[4.] They plainly determine concerning the disputed point. It seemed good to the Holy Ghost, according to his word in the prophets and the intimations of his will in the conversions already wrought among the Gentiles by his power; and to us, assembled in his name, and under his influence, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things: That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication. The avoiding fornication is necessary for Christians at all times; the other things were merely temporary prohibitions, enjoined for a particular purpose, in order to prevent offence, and to remove all cause of disunion between them and their Jewish brethren; but these were not things of moral and perpetual obligation, but were to cease when, the Jewish polity being destroyed, all the ceremonial institutions would be at an end.

[5.] They bid them a kind farewell, wishing them all prosperity in body and soul, and recommending them to submit to their decisions; not with proud anathemas if they disobeyed, but with the more apostolic language of kind entreaty and affectionate persuasion: If ye keep yourselves from these things, ye shall do well: it will be to the glory of God, the peace of the church, and the furtherance of the gospel.

3. The bearers no sooner arrived, than they assembled the multitude, and delivered the epistle, who read with pleasure the determination of the controversy so much to the satisfaction of the Gentile brethren; and Judas and Silas being prophets also themselves, endued with eminent gifts of wisdom, and knowledge, exhorted the brethren with many words, to persevere in the faith and obedience of the gospel, and confirmed them in the doctrines of truth which they had embraced. Where the gospel is truly and powerfully preached, the occasional assistance of new ministers is still advantageous, and serves to help forward the work of God.

4. After some considerable stay, the messengers from the apostles were let go in peace, with the thanks of the church for all their kind and useful labours, and had the satisfaction to see peace perfectly re-established, which could not but be glad news to Jerusalem. Silas however chose still to continue at Antioch, where Paul and Barnabas, and many others, with great success, taught and preached the word of the Lord. Note, Where God opens a great door of usefulness, there a double obligation lies upon his ministers to improve the opportunity, and to labour more abundantly in the blessed work.

cir. 53.

36. ¶ And some days after Paul said unto Barnabas, [y] Let us go again and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do. 37. And Barnabas determined to take with them [z] John, whose surname was Mark. 38. But Paul thought not good to take him with them, [a] who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work. 39. And [b] the contention was so sharp between them, that they departed asunder one from the other:* and so Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto [c] Cyprus; 40. And Paul chose Silas, and departed, [d] being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God. 41. And he went [e] through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.

y Ch. 13. 4, 13. & 14. 1, 21, 23. Rom. 1. 11. 2 Cor. 11. 28.

z Ch. 12. 12, 25. & 13. 5. Col. 4. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 11. Phil. 24. 1 Pet. 5. 13.

a Ch. 13. 13. & 14. 26.

b Ch. 14. 15. Jam. 5. 17. Ps. 8. 4. & 39. 5. Rom. 7. 14, 23.

* Yet Paul speaks with esteem and affection both of Barnabas and Mark, in his epistles written after this event.

c Ch. 4. 36. & 11. 19. & 13. 4. & 27. 4.

d Ch. 14. 26. & 13. 3. & 20. 32. 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7.

e Ch. 16. 4. Gal. 1. 21.

Verses 36—41. The best of men are but men at the best, and liable to the same passions as others. The sacred historians generously record their own faults, that we should not think of them more highly than we ought to think.

1. The zealous Paul proposes to his faithful associate Barnabas a second expedition among the Gentiles, and particularly with a view to visit their brethren in all the places where they had preached the word, to see how they stood, to communicate a second blessing to them, and to exhort, encourage, rebuke, and quicken them, according to their several needs. Note, Those lie especially near a minister's heart, to whom, under God, he hath been a spiritual father: and if providence removes him for a while from them, he cannot but be anxiously concerned for their welfare, and long for their establishment.

2. A disagreement unhappily arose between Paul and Barnabas on this occasion. Barnabas readily consented to the proposal, but determined to take his nephew John Mark, partial probably to him on account of his relation. Paul warmly opposed it, and would by no means consent, thinking him unworthy of that honour who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work, intimidated by the danger, or weary of the fatigue, or diverted by some worldly motive from the service of the gospel. They who have proved themselves unfaithful should be tried, ere they are again trusted.

3. The issue of the contention was so sharp that they parted. Both were obstinate, both heated with the dispute, and, whichever was in the right in the subject of the contention, both were, it should seem, wrong in the hasty unyielding spirit, with which it was managed. Note, (1.) Though we may see good men upon a time unhappily betrayed into a temporary fit of passion, we must beware not to make their evil a plea in our own excuse. (2.) Truly wise and good men may differ in some opinions, sentiments, and views, and contend too warmly for their own. Let us not be offended thereat: it is the infirmity of this mortal state, where darkness and imperfection will still be found. It is reserved for the felicity of the heavenly state, to be entirely of one heart and one mind.

4. Though they disputed about a circumstance of little importance, perhaps, (and such hath often bred the sharpest contentions,) yet both heartily persisted in their former gracious purpose: and even their separation was overruled for the furtherance of the gospel. Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus; and Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God; which seems to intimate, that they thought Paul in the right in refusing Mark, and favoured him with a particular mark of their approbation. And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches, and establishing them in the faith and practice of the gospel.

Whatever just cause of displeasure Paul might now have against Mark, we find with pleasure, that afterwards he showed him the most cordial regard, and professed the highest opinion of him, (2 Tim. iv. 11. Col. iv. 10.) We should learn therefore to judge with much temper and candour, even of those who may have taken a wrong step, lest their future conduct should make us grieve for the severity with which we treated them: and though they have justly deserved sharp rebuke, when they again approve their fidelity, and testify their repentance, we should forget all that is past, give them the right hand of fellowship, and trust and honour them as before.

CHAP. XVI.—ANNO DOMINI, 53.

This history henceforward chiefly records the travels, labours, and sufferings of Paul. Here is, 1. The beginning of his acquaintance with Timothy, and taking him to be his assistant, ver. 1—3. 2. The visit he made to the churches for their establishment, ver. 4, 5. 3. His call to Macedonia, and his coming to Philippi, with his entertainment there, ver. 6—13. 4. The conversion of Lydia, ver. 14, 15. 5. The casting of an evil spirit out of a damsel, ver. 16—18. 6. The accusing and abusing Paul and Silas for it, their imprisonment, and the indignities done them, ver. 19—24. 7. The miraculous conversion of the jailer to the faith of Christ, ver. 25—34. 8. The honourable discharge of Paul and Silas by the magistrates, ver. 35—40.

1. THEN came he to [a] Derbe and Lystra: and, behold, a certain disciple was there, [b] named Timotheus, the son of a certain woman, which was a Jewess, and believed; but his father was a Greek: 2. Which was [c] well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium. 3. Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and took and [d] circumcised him, * because of the Jews which were in those quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek. 4. And as they went through the cities, [e] they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem. 5. [f] And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily.

a Ch. 14. 6.
b Rom. 16. 21. Phil. 2. 19. 1 Thes. 3. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 5. & 3. 10, 14. ch. 17. 14. & 19. 22. & 20. 4. c Ch. 6. 3. 2 Tim. 3. 15.
d 2 Cor. 9. 20, 21. with Gal. 2. 3.
* Doddridge observes that, to judge rightly of Paul's conduct in this affair, we must recollect that he always openly avowed that the Gentiles were free from the yoke of Mosaic ceremonies, and that the Jews were not in conscience obliged to observe them at all, except in cases where the omission would give offence.
e Ch. 15. 2, 6, 20, 24, 29.
f Gal. 5. 1. Col. 1. 23. & 2. 2. Jude 20, 21. ch. 4. 4. & 5. 14. & 6. 7. & 15. 41. & 9. 31. & 11. 21. & 12. 24. & 13. 48, 49. & 19. 20.

Verses 1—5. We have here an account of Paul's travels, and his acquaintance with Timothy, who under his tuition afterwards grew so eminent.

1. Paul's first visit was to Derbe and Lystra, where the Lord had provided for him an assistant and companion in his travels, a certain disciple, a young man named Timothy, whose mother was a Jewess, his father a Gentile. His exemplary conduct and excellent parts had gained him a great character among the brethren at Lystra and Iconium; Paul therefore was desirous to engage him to go with him, and the zealous youth readily consenting, he took and circumcised him; not as necessary to salvation, or as an obligation on him to observe the ceremonial law, that having been settled by the apostolic decree; but as a matter in itself indifferent, and because he knew the prejudices the Jews who believed not would entertain against him, because they knew his father was a Greek, and that unless he were circumcised, they never would admit him to preach in any of their synagogues, or converse with him, which might greatly obstruct the usefulness of his ministry. In condescension therefore to the prejudices of his countrymen he took this step, and to the Jews became as a Jew, that he might gain the Jews; a proof of his warm affection towards his kinsmen after the flesh, though persecuted by them as their inveterate enemy.

2. As they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained by the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem. Though he had for a particular reason circumcised Timothy, he meant not to lay any stumbling-block in the way of the Gentile converts thereby, but asserted their entire liberty from all the legal institutions, according to the copies of the apostolic decree which he delivered to them. And so were the churches established in the faith; in the great doctrines of justification by faith alone, and of acceptance with God through Jesus Christ, without any respect to circumcision or the Mosaical ordinances: and increased in number daily, the Lord, by the ministrations of Paul and his young assistant, adding to the church such as should be saved. And that is the supreme joy of the faithful ministers of Christ, and a fresh bond to quicken their zeal and diligence, when Christ is pleased to make them see this travail of their soul.

6. Now, when they had gone throughout Phrygia and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden [g] of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in [h] Asia, 7. After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not. 8. And they, passing by Mysia, came down to [i] Troas. 9. ¶ And a [k] vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, [l] Come over into Macedonia, and help us. 10. And after he had seen the vision, [m] immediately we† endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them. 11. Therefore, loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis; 12. And from thence to [n] Philippi, which is the chief city of that part of Macedonia,‡ and a ° colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days. 13. And on the [p] sabbath we went out of the city by a river-side, [q] where prayer was wont to be made; and we sat down, and [r] spake unto the women which resorted thither. 14. ¶ And a certain woman, named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of [s] Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: [t] whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul. 15. And when [u] she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have [x] judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she [y] constrained us.

g Ver. 7. Mat. 9. 38. ch. 20. 23. & 13. 2. Is. 30. 21.
h Rev. 1. 4, 11. 2 Tim. 1. 15. 1 Pet. 1. 1. ch. 19. 10.
i Ver. 11. ch. 20. 5. 2 Cor. 2. 12. 2 Tim. 4. 13.
k Ch. 2. 17. & 10. 3, 10—17, 30. Is. 30. 21. Num. 12. 6.
l Ch. 8. 26. & 10. 33.
m Ch. 10. 29. & 26. 19. Eccl. 9. 10. Ps. 119. 60. Rom. 12. 11. 2 Cor. 2. 13.
† Luke appears to have now joined Paul and Timothy.
cir. 54.
n Ch. 20. 6. 1 Thes. 2. 2. Phil. 1. 1.
‡ More correctly: Philippi, a city of the first part of Macedonia. This is confirmed by ancient medals and inscriptions.
o Chiefly inhabited by Romans. Ver. 21.
p Ch. 13. 42. & 18. 4.
q Ch. 21. 5. & 20. 36. ver. 16.
r Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19. Col. 1. 23.
s Rev. 1. 11. & 2. 18.
t Ch. 10. 2. Eph. 1. 17. Luke 24. 45. John 6. 44, 45.
u Ver. 33. ch. 10. 48. 1 Cor. 1. 16. ch. 8. 12. x Eph. 1. 1. Col. 1. 2. Gal. 6. 10.
y Gen. 19. 3. & 33. 11. Judg. 19. 21. Luke 24. 29. Mat. 10. 11. Heb. 13. 2.

Verses 6—15. We have here,

1. Paul's travels continued through Phrygia and Galatia. He had purposed to go on through the proconsular Asia; but by a secret impulse of the Holy Ghost, he was forbid, other work being provided for him. His next remove was to Mysia, a people despicable to a proverb; but the grace of Jesus knows no respect of persons. From thence they had designed to go into Bithynia, another province of Lesser Asia, but the Spirit suffered them not, under whose guidance they directed all their motions. Therefore passing by Mysia, without making any stay, they came to Troas, near the place where the ancient city of Troy had stood; and here it is supposed, Luke, the writer of this history, joined Paul and his company, as henceforward he usually says, we, as one of those who travelled with the apostle.

2. At Troas, the Lord in a vision directed Paul which way to bend his course. An angel, in the garb of a Macedonian, stood by him, and entreated him to come over into Macedonia and help them, by his prayers and preaching. Hereupon, assuredly concluding this was a divine call to preach the gospel unto them, he and his fellow-travellers immediately prepared for their voyage, and came to Samothracia, a little island lying in the Archipelago, or Ægean sea; and the next day they arrived at Neapolis, a port on the confines of Macedonia; and continuing their course, they reached Philippi, the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a Roman colony, governed by the Roman laws and magistrates. Note, (1.) When we see an evident call of God to a place, we may go to our work with confidence, assuredly gathering that God hath there a people to praise him. (2.) They who are sent on God's work, must run at his bidding and make no delay. (3.) Chief cities usually afford the greatest field of usefulness, and the gospel sent thither becomes a more general blessing.

3. The first days of their arrival seemed to promise but little success: they abode there certain days, perhaps unnoticed, and unable to find a door of utterance. There seems to have been no synagogue of the Jews in this place, but some devout women, whether Jews or proselytes, resorted to an oratory without the city, near the river-side, where they used to meet for prayer on the sabbath-day; thither the apostle and his fellow-travellers went, and joined their devotions, taking an opportunity to preach to them the gospel, and lead them to the knowledge of the great salvation which is in Jesus Christ.

4. A blessing attended their labours. A certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, either of silk or cloth, or the purple die, a native of Thyatira, a city of Asia, but who was now settled at Philippi, and worshipped God, as a proselyte of the gate, heard us, with great seriousness whose heart the Lord opened by the powerful efficacy of his grace, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul, and received the truth in the light and love of it. And as she made immediate profession of her faith, she was baptized and her household; whereupon she besought Paul and his friends, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, seeing ye have received me into your number, show me the confidence you place in me, and come into my house, and abide there: so desirous was she of testifying her gratitude to those from whom she had received so great spiritual blessings, and solicitous to enjoy as much as possible of their conversation, that she might grow more established in the truth; and she constrained us; unwilling to be burdensome, they were at first backward to accept her invitation; but at last, overcome with her importunity, they consented. Note, (1.) One soul turned to God is a great acquisition, and well worthy to be recorded. (2.) Providence sometimes brings us far from our native home, with views we little thought of, and so orders the place of our abode as to be greatly subservient to the salvation of our souls. (3.) Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God; they who sit under a preached gospel are in the Lord's way. (4.) The heart, by nature, is close shut against the light of truth by ignorance, blindness, prejudice, and error: it is God's almighty power and grace alone which can open a way for the entrance of his gospel, and make it effectual to the conversion of the soul. (5.) They who have received a blessing from God's ministers, and owe to them, under God, their souls, think they can never sufficiently show their gratitude to them for their labours of love. (6.) We cannot but desire the approbation of those who are eminently good, and wish so to act, as that they may judge us faithful to the Lord.

[z] 1 Sam. 28. 7. ch. 19. 24, 25. Deut. 18. 10. Is. 8. 19.

16. ¶ And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain damsel [z] possessed with a spirit † of divination met us, which brought her masters much gain by soothsaying: 17. The same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, [a] These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of salvation.

† Or of Python.

[a] Ps. 12. 2. & 55. 21. ch. 8. 18, 19. Mark 1. 24. & 5. 7. Luke 4. 41. She cried thus, to make people think Paul and Silas devilish diviners as well as herself.

[b] Mark 1. 25, 34. & 16. 17. Col. 2. 15. ch. 3. 6. & 9. 34.

18. And this did she many days. But Paul, [b] being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And he came out the same hour.‡ 19. ¶ And when her masters saw that [c] the hope of their gains was gone, [d] they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the ‖ market-place unto the rulers, 20. [e] And brought them to the magistrates, saying, These men being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city, 21. And teach customs, which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, being Romans. 22. [f] And the multitude rose up together against them: and the magistrates rent off their clothes, and commanded to beat them. 23. [g] And when they had laid many stripes upon them, they cast them into prison, charging the jailer to keep them safely. 24. Who, having received such a charge, thrust them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the [h] stocks.

‡ The age in which we live is undoubtedly, for the most part, by God's mercy, delivered from the terrible spectacle of human beings evidently possessed by evil spirits; but evil still exists among us, although in a less avowed and terrible form; and it still but too frequently and too effectually draws the heart of man from the service of his Maker.—Townsend.

[c] 1 Tim. 6. 10. ch. 19. 25, 26. Phil. 3. 19. & 2. 21.

[d] 2 Cor. 6. 5. Mat. 10. 17. & 24. 9.

‖ Or court.

[e] Ch. 17. 6. & 18. 12, 13 1 Kin. 18. 17. Esth. 3. 8. with Rom. 12. 2. Jam. 4. 4. John 15. 18, 20.

[f] 2 Cor. 11. 25. 1 Thes. 2. 2. Phil. 2. 13. ver. 23. Mark 13. 9. Mat. 10. 17, 18.

[g] Luke 21. 12. & 10. 30. Rev. 2. 10. 2 Cor. 11. 23. Eph. 3. 1, 13.

[h] Ps. 105. 18. Jer. 20. 2.

Verses 16—24. A singular occurrence soon made the preachers of the gospel the more taken notice of.

1. There was a damsel possessed with a spirit of divination; for, in these times of ignorance and idolatry, the devil used many such deluding instruments, who pretended to foretell future events, and to return oracular answers to those who foolishly put their trust in such jugglers: and as they paid for consulting them, this maid being reputed of extraordinary skill, brought her masters much gain by her soothsaying. And when Paul and his companions went out of the city to their oratory, this damsel for several days followed them, crying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which show unto us the way of salvation; and this was either a testimony extorted by the divine power, to leave the men of Philippi more inexcusable for rejecting what themselves deemed to be oracular, or, as others suggest, the devil designed to prejudice the cause of Christ, as if these preachers were promoting the same interests, and influenced by the same spirit, as this soothsayer. Note, (1.) It is the honour of ministers, that they are servants of the most high God. (2.) There is no way of salvation but that which the gospel points out to us; without it, we must for ever lie down in ignorance, guilt, and misery.

2. Grieved at her continual clamours, and justly apprehensive lest there should seem to be a confederacy between them and her, or sorry that Satan, by her means, should deceive and delude the people of Philippi, Paul turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her, and instantly Satan's power was broken, and he came out the same hour.

3. Her masters, highly exasperated to find all their gains gone, and her soothsaying at an end, caught Paul and Silas, the two most active persons, and, dragging them violently along to the forum, where the magistrates sat to administer justice, preferred a heavy complaint against them, covering their private revenge with the pretence of zeal for the public welfare, saying, These men being Jews, the refuse of the earth, and the pests of society, do exceedingly trouble our city, fomenting riots and disturbances, and interrupting the peace of the people; and teach customs which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, being Romans; their doctrines and practices being utterly opposite to, and subversive of, the worship of our gods, the manners of our country, and the laws of the empire. Note, (1.) The love of money is the root of all evil. (2.) Revenge and malice often wear the cloak of religious zeal, to conceal their malignity. (3.) They who are the preachers of the gospel of peace have often thus been branded as the disturbers of society, and as the firebrands of discord.

4. The giddy multitude, inflamed by a charge so invidious, rose up in a popular tumult, ready to tear them to pieces; and the magistrates, without form of trial, swimming with the stream, rent off their clothes, and commanded the lictors, their officers, to scourge them with rods severely, as the most infamous malefactors, 1 Thess. ii. 2. and not content with this cruel treatment, after the many and deep stripes they had laid on them, they committed them to the town prison, strictly charging the jailer to keep them safely, that they might not escape, whilst they consulted what farther to do with them. And he, an instrument, savage as his masters could desire, failed not to execute the charge with abundant severity, thrusting them into the inner prison, the place allotted to the vilest criminals; and to prevent all possibility of escape, as well as to add to the miseries of these innocent sufferers, he made their feet fast in the stocks. Note, Christ's servants must prepare for sufferings, and not stagger at any reproach which for his sake they may be called to bear.

i Ps. 119. 62. ch. 5. 41. Mat. 5. 10, 11. Col. 1. 24. 2 Tim. 1. 8.

k Ch. 4. 31. & 5. 19. & 12. 7. Mat. 28. 2.

l 1 Sam. 31. 4, 5. 2 Sam. 17. 23. Mat. 27. 5.

m Exod. 20. 13. 1 John 3. 15.

n Ch. 2. 37. & 9. 6. Luke 3. 10.

o Bloomfield shows that the inquiry of the jailer can only mean, "How can I attain eternal salvation?"

o John 3. 16, 36. & 6. 40, 47. 1 John 5. 10. Mark 16. 16. Gen. 17. 7. Is. 45. 22.

p Mark 16. 15. Eph. 3. 8. 1 John 1. 1—3. Col. 1. 28.

q Ch. 8. 37, 39. Luke 19. 9. ver. 15. ch. 10. 48. 1 Cor. 1. 16.

r Luke 5. 29. & 19. 6.

s Ch. 8. 39. Is. 61. 10. Rom. 5. 2, 10. Phil. 3. 3.

25. ¶ [i] And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sang praises unto God: and the prisoners heard them. 26. [k] And suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed. 27. And the keeper of the prison awaking out of his sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, [l] he drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had been fled. 28. But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, [m] Do thyself no harm; for we are all here. 29. Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul [n] and Silas, 30. And brought them out, and said, [o] Sirs, what must I do to be saved?* 31. And they said, [o] Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. 32. [p] And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. 33. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and [q] was baptized, he and all his, straightway. 34. And when he had brought them into his house, he [r] set meat before them, and [s] rejoiced, believing in God with all his house.

Verses 25—34. The misery, pain, and wretched condition in which these two innocent prisoners might be supposed to lie, would lead us to expect many a doleful groan: but, wonderful to tell! we find them happier in their filthy prison than their persecutors on beds of down.

1. At midnight Paul and Silas prayed, committing themselves cheerfully to God, and looking up to him for strength to bear whatever more might be laid upon them; remembering, no doubt, their persecutors, and begging God to forgive them, not forgetting their inhuman jailer; and they not only prayed, but sang praises unto God, rejoicing in their bonds, that they were counted worthy to suffer for their Master's name, and were filled with such divine consolations as made them forget all the horrors of a prison, and brought down to that dreary mansion a taste of heavenly felicity; and the prisoners heard them; so loud, so hearty, were their praises, not ashamed of their Master's name and service. Note, (1.) Prayer is an ease to the heart in every affliction, and joint sufferers should unite their supplications. (2.) Our trials should never untune our hearts from praise; in the midst of all, we have much, very much, for which we should be thankful. (3.) Psalm-singing is a blessed gospel ordinance, and we should never be ashamed of being heard in our families, though foolish and wicked men may ridicule the service.

2. God miraculously gives a token of his presence with them, and of his acceptance of their prayers and praises. Suddenly there was a great earthquake, a testimony of God's displeasure against their persecutors, and of his appearance on behalf of his suffering ministers, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken, and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed; an intimation to the prisoners that the gospel which these faithful preachers declared, was designed to deliver their souls from the more grievous bondage of guilt and corruption.

3. The jailer himself becomes a convert.

(1.) Awaked by the terrible shock, and starting from his bed, he saw, with astonishment, the prison doors wide open, and supposing all the prisoners fled, for whose escape his own life must pay, in the first transports of despair he drew his sword, to put an end to his life, in order to avoid a more dreaded public execution.

(2.) Paul who, probably by a divine revelation, knew the fatal resolution the jailer was about to take, with a loud voice stays his uplifted arm, saying, Do thyself no harm; for we are all here. Paul and Silas thought not of escaping, and the rest were held by an invisible power, fast as the chains which bound them. Note, The gospel word is, Do thyself no harm; all God's warnings, rebukes, and calls, are purely to rescue us from the ruin into which we were running, and to save us from sin, the cause of all our miseries.

(3.) The jailer, whose conscience the convictions of sin had now shaken more terribly than the earthquake the prison's foundations, called for a light, and sprang in eagerly; and came trembling, under the most fearful sense of his dreadful guilt, and fell down before Paul and Silas, with deepest respect and veneration, and brought them out of the horrid dungeon where they were, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved? He now felt all the wickedness of his past conduct, particularly his cruel behaviour to these messengers of God, and confounded at his provocations, eagerly begs their forgiveness and direction, how he may obtain pardon at the hands of God. Note, (1.) God's Spirit works in different ways on different persons; some, like Lydia, are gently led to Christ; others pass first through the most dreadful terrors, sometimes brought to the gates of despair, and even tempted to self-murder; and yet even this works together for their good, in order to make Christ more precious to their souls. (2.) They who have despised and ill-used God's ministers before, when seized by convictions of sin, will entertain very different apprehensions of them, and address them with very different language. (3.) To a soul convinced of sin, all other considerations are swallowed up in that one great concern, What must I do to be saved?

(4.) Paul and Silas have an immediate answer ready for his question. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house; the salvation which they preached being free for him, though an idolatrous Gentile and bitter persecutor; and his family also would be admitted to share his blessing. And they spoke unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in the house, who were assembled on this joyful occasion. Note, (1.) The gospel proposes a free salvation in Jesus Christ to the chief of sinners. (2.) Nothing but faith in a Redeemer can bring true peace to a guilty conscience, or obtain the salvation which a sinner needs. (3.) Masters of families, who know the Lord themselves, cannot but be desirous that all under their roof may share their blessings, and be brought with them to the knowledge of the truth.

(5.) Filled now with gratitude and love, the jailer, deeply affected with the blessed truths which he heard, took them, and washed their stripes, to supple and ease the wounds which their severe scourging had made in their backs, and was baptized, he and all his, straightway, desirous to come under the bonds of the covenant with his family, and to make public profession of Christianity. Which done, he brought Paul and Silas into his house, and set meat before them, to refresh them after the fatigues and fasting which they had endured; and rejoiced, believing in God, with all his house, who rejoiced with him in the salvation which they had now embraced, or over all his house, going from one room to another in a transport of joy. Note, (1.) Believing in Christ is called believing in God, for he is very God: and on his being so, our everlasting hopes depend. (2.) Joy is the happy fruit of faith; they who see a reconciled God blotting out all their transgressions, cannot but rejoice in his salvation.

35. ¶ And [t] when it was day, the magistrates sent the sergeants, saying, Let those men go. 36. And the keeper of the prison told this saying to Paul, The magistrates have sent to let you go: now therefore depart, and [u] go in peace. 37. But Paul said unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, [x] being Romans,* and have cast us into prison; and now do they thrust us out privily? nay, verily; [y] but let them come themselves and fetch us out. 38. And the sergeants told these words unto the magistrates: and they [z] feared, when they heard that they were Romans. 39. [a] And they came and besought them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city. 40. And they went out of the prison, [b] and entered into the house of Lydia: and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

t Ps. 30. 5. 2 Cor. 1. 8, 9. Deut. 32. 30. Gen. 22. 14.

u Ex. 4. 18. Judg. 18. 6. 1 Sam. 1. 17. & 20. 42. & 25. 35. & 29. 7. 2 Kin. 5. 19. Mark 5. 34. ch. 15. 33.

x Ch. 22. 25—28.

* See note on Ch. 22. 25.

y Mat. 10. 16, 17. Eph. 5. 15. Mic. 7. 9, 10. Ps. 37. 6.

z Ch. 22. 29. John 11. 48. & 19. 8. Mat. 14. 5. & 21. 46. & 26. 5.

a Is. 45. 14. Dan. 3. 26, 27. & 6. 23. Mat. 8. 34.

b Ver. 14. ch. 4. 23. & 12. 12, 17. 2 Cor. 1. 3—7. & 4. 8. 1 Thes. 3. 2, 3.

Verses 35—40. We have here,

1. The message of the magistrates to these prisoners. In the morning, when their passion was cooled, they probably reflected upon the illegality of their proceedings; and if they felt the earthquake, this might still more alarm their fears. Therefore they sent their sergeants to the jailer, with orders to dismiss the prisoners, willing to hush up the matter, without farther animadversion.

2. The jailer, glad to convey this message to his guests now rather than his prisoners, informed them they were at liberty to depart, and advises them to haste away, lest perhaps the present mind of these magistrates should change, and he wishes that all blessings and happiness may attend them.

3. Paul appears in no haste to go. His own innocence required vindication; and for the sake of the disciples, he meant to assert his civil rights and privileges, and therefore bid the sergeants carry back this message to their masters, They have beaten us openly, cruelly and ignominiously, though uncondemned, without even a form of trial; being Romans, whose privileges, as citizens, are not thus insolently to be trampled upon; and have cast us into prison, as if we were the vilest slaves and criminals, and now do they thrust us out privily? as if we wanted a clandestine escape, and had broken from prison? nay verily, we will accept of our liberty on no such terms; but let them come themselves, and fetch us out, acknowledging our innocence publicly, removing the reproach they have cast upon our characters, and taking shame to themselves for their illegal and tyrannical procedure, that they may act more gently for the future. Our civil rights are thus often a barrier against the fury of persecutors: the fear of the law often restrains those who are withheld from injuring us by no fear of the Lord.

4. The magistrates, justly apprehensive of the consequence, if Paul should cite them before the tribunal of their superiors for their illegal proceedings, came very submissively, and besought them not to take advantage of the law against them, but to forgive the injuries they had received; and brought them out of the prison, publicly acknowledging hereby their innocence, and desired them to depart out of their city, that there might be no farther disturbance. Thus hath the violence of persecutors often involved them in proceedings which they were unable to vindicate, and which have at last brought shame and confusion upon their own heads.

5. Being thus honourably discharged, they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia, their former hostess; and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, with an account of God's wondrous appearance for them, and the success of the gospel, even in their prison; encouraging them therefore to stand fast in the confidence of support under all their trials, and hereupon they departed, to spread the gospel through the other provinces of Greece, leaving behind them a very flourishing church, which, from these small beginnings, rose to singular eminence.

CHAP. XVII.—ANNO DOMINI, 54.

Here is a farther account of the travels of Paul, and his services and sufferings for Christ. We have him, 1. Preaching and persecuted at Thessalonica, another city of Macedonia, ver. 1—9. 2. Preaching at Berea, where he met with an encouraging auditory, but was driven thence also by persecution, ver. 10—15. 3. Disputing at Athens, the famous university of Greece, ver. 16—21. and the account he gave of natural religion, for the conviction of those that were addicted to polytheism and idolatry, and to lead them to the Christian religion, ver. 22—31. together with the success of this sermon, ver. 32, 33, 34.

1. NOW, when they passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to [a] Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews: 2. And Paul, [b] as his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days reasoned with them out of the scriptures, 3. [c] Opening and alleging that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead; [d] and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ. 4. [e] And some of a Now Salonichi. Ch. 20. 4. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 1. Phil. 4. 16. 2 Tim. 4. 10.

b Ch. 3. 26. & 13. 14, 46. Luke 4. 16. ver. 10, 17. ch. 14. 1. & 18. 4, 19. & 19. 8.

c Luke 24. 26, 27, 41, 46. 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4. Ps. xxii, lx, lxix, lxxii. Is. iv, xl, xliii, xlix, l, lii, liii. ch. 18. 28.

d Said he, ch. 15. 5.

e Ch. 14. 1. & 28. 24. & 4. 23 Ps. 119. 63.

them believed, and consorted with Paul and Silas; and of the [f] devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.* 5. ¶ [g] But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, and set all the city on an uproar, and assaulted the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people. 6. And when they found them not, they drew Jason and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, [h] These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also; 7. Whom Jason hath received: and [i] these all do contrary to the decrees of Cesar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus. 8. And [k] they troubled the people, and the rulers of the city, when they heard these things. 9. And when they had taken security of Jason, and of the other, they let them go.

[f] Proselytes. Ch. 13. 43. & 16. 14. ver. 17.

* These were proselytes of the gate, who though they did not submit to the law of Moses, yet had renounced idolatry and immorality, and worshipped the true God only.

[g] Ver. 13. ch. 13. 45, 50. & 14. 2, 19. & 18. 12. & 19. 25. Judg. 9. 4.

[h] 1 Kin. 18. 17. ch. 16. 20. & 24. 5. Luke 23. 2.

[i] Ch. 24. 5. John 19. 12. Luke 23. 2. Ezra 4. 12, 15. Esth. 3. 8. Dan. 3. 12. & 6. 13.

[k] Mat. 2. 3. John 11. 48. ch. 5. 17, 24.

Verses 1—9. As the style of this chapter and the following changes from we to they, it hath been conjectured, that Luke staid at Philippi till Paul returned thither, chap. xx. 5, 6. His farther travels are here recorded.

1. He with his companions, Silas, and Timothy, passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia; whether he preached in either of these places is not said; his route was directed probably under a divine impulse to Thessalonica, the metropolis of Macedonia. Not discouraged by his ill usage at Philippi, he was bold in his God, to speak the gospel unto them also, 1 Thess. ii. 2. and, as his manner was, having found there a synagogue of Jews, he went in unto them, to make them the first tender of the gospel word. Three sabbath-days successively he reasoned with them out of the Scriptures; and as they admitted the sacred authority of Moses and the prophets, he appealed to their writings in proof of the doctrines which he advanced, opening their scope and intention; and particularly by the texts which related to the Messiah, alleging from them, that Christ, far from being the temporal king and earthly conqueror, which they expected, must needs have suffered, in order to obtain spiritual and eternal redemption for his people, and must have risen again from the dead, in proof of his having completed the work which he had undertaken; evidently proving from the scriptures, that these things must be accomplished in the Messiah; and that this Jesus whom I preach unto you is Christ, in whom all the prophecies concerning the Messiah were fulfilled, and in no other; and that therefore this must be he that should come, nor must they look for another.

2. His preaching was powerful and convincing, and the Spirit of truth sent it home to the consciences of many of his hearers. Some of them, who were Jews, believed, and made immediate profession of the truth which they had embraced; they consorted with Paul and Silas, as casting in their lot with them, and ready to share their weal and wo; and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few. Thus the foundations were laid of a most flourishing church; multitudes of Gentiles, as well as proselytes, being converted by the great apostle's labours, 1 Thes. i. 9.

3. Nowhere could they find rest from the malice of their inveterate enemies. The Jews which believed not, moved with envy at the success of Paul's preaching, and the respect paid to him by the Gentiles, as well as by many of their own synagogue, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, a profligate mob, the scum of the earth; and by these they set all the city on an uproar, raising a riot against the preachers of the gospel, and assaulted the house of Jason, where Paul and his companions lodged, and sought to bring them out to the people, that they might expose them to the exasperated populace. And when they found them not, they having prudently withdrawn for their security, they drew Jason and certain brethren, who were at his house, unto the rulers of the city, crying, These that have turned the world upside down, are come hither also, spreading their pestilential errors, to the destruction of all peace and good neighbourhood, and sowing the seeds of discord and sedition, to the ruin of the state, whom Jason hath received into his house, countenanced, and abetted. And these all do contrary to the decrees of Cesar, and evidently show their disaffection and disloyalty to his government, saying, that there is another king, one Jesus, who is the universal Lord of all, to whom every knee must bow, in opposition to Cesar our only lord and emperor. And they troubled the people and rulers of the city when they heard these things, lest some rebellion was really meditating, or lest the jealous emperor Claudius should entertain suspicions of their negligence, however innocent they knew the apostles to be, and however satisfied they were of the injustice of the accusation. Note, (1.) They who are the enemies and disturbers of the people of God, are usually the vilest of mankind, abandoned profligates, lost to all sense of justice and virtue. (2.) If men offend, the magistrates are to judge; but to make the rabble judges and executioners, is to place madness on the seat of justice. (3.) It hath been a common accusation, that the gospel turns the world upside down, and creates all disturbances; but they who bring the charge, will not see that they themselves are the troublers, and that their own passions and perverseness occasion the very evils of which they complain. (4.) The kingdom of Jesus is far from interfering with the civil government: nay, it is one essential part of it, to be submissive to the powers that be; so malicious is the accusation of those who would insinuate its dangerous tendency to the peace of kingdoms.

4. The magistrates, on inquiry, finding no ground for the accusation, discharged Jason and his friends, on security taken for their appearance, if required. And thus ended this threatening affair, through the moderation of the rulers, without any farther ill consequence.

10. ¶ [l] And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea:† who, coming thither, went into the synagogue of the Jews. 11. These were [m] more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that [n] they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether these things were so. 12. [o] Therefore many of them believed; also of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men, not a few. 13. ¶ But when the Jews of Thessalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, [p] they came thither also, and stirred up the people. 14. [q] And then immediately the brethren sent away Paul to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there still. 15. And [l] Ch. 9. 25. & 23. cir. 55. 23, 24. Josh. 2. 15, 16. ver. 14. Mat. 10. 23.

† A city of Macedonia, not far from the Thermaic gulf, to the west of Thessalonica.

[m] Dan. 5. 12, 14. Ps. 16. 3. Prov. 12. 26. & 17. 27.

[n] Ch. 11. 1. & 2. 41. 1 Thes. 1. 5. & 2. 13. & 5. 21. 1 John 4. 1. Is. 8. 20. & 34. 16. Luke 16. 29. John 5. 39. & 7. 17.

[o] Ch. 2. 41. & 4. 4. & 5. 14. & 6. 7. & 9. 42. & 12. 24. & 13. 48, 50. & 14. 1. & 18. 19. & 19. 17.

[p] Ch. 14. 2. & 13. 50. 1 Thes. 2. 15, 16.

[q] See ver. 10. Mat. 10. 23. ch. 14. 6. & 18. 1.

they that conducted Paul brought him unto * Athens: and, receiving a commandment [r] unto Silas and Timotheus for to come to him with all speed, they departed.

* The chief city of Greece, famed for learning.

r Ch. 18. 5. ver. 4, 10. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 1.

Verses 10—15. Though, to avoid the present storm, Paul and his companions were obliged to fly from Thessalonica, the Lord had work for them to do elsewhere.

1. The brethren sent them away by night unto Berea, to conceal them from the fury of their persecutors: and no sooner were they arrived, than they took the first opportunity of going into the synagogue of the Jews to preach the gospel to them, evilly entreated, as they had so lately been by them at Philippi and Thessalonica. True charity is never weary of well-doing, nor tired out with repeated provocations.

2. These Jews of Berea were more noble than those in Thessalonica, freer from prejudices, more candid inquirers after truth, of more enlarged sentiments, and ready to give a fair hearing to those who differed from them in opinion; and therefore they received the word with all readiness of mind, embracing it most cheerfully, as soon as they were convinced of the truth; and not taking the matter upon trust, but they searched the Scriptures daily, whether these things were so; comparing diligently Paul's preaching with the Scriptures to which he appealed, and examining carefully the passages which he explained, that they might comprehend their genuine meaning. Note, (1.) The doctrines of the gospel fear no scrutiny; we wish for nothing more, than that our readers would seriously examine whether these things are so. (2.) Searching the Scriptures should be our daily business and delight; and their minds will be filled with noble and exalted sentiments and principles, who follow in simplicity these sacred oracles.

3. Great was the effect of Paul's preaching on minds so disposed to examine candidly into what they heard. Many of the Jews believed; also of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men not a few.

4. The restless malice of the Jews will not suffer the apostle to rest in peace in any place. Hearing of the success of the word of God at Berea, they came thither also and stirred up the people, using every calumny to incense the mob against them.

5. The brethren at Berea, knowing that against Paul the malice of the Jews was principally levelled, sent him away, as it were unto the sea, to prevent farther search. But Silas and Timotheus abode still at Berea, to confirm the disciples, and carry on the work of God.

6. Paul, with those that accompanied him, took the road to Athens, the most renowned university of Greece; and when the brethren returned, he sent orders to Silas and Timothy to follow him speedily.

16. ¶ Now, while Paul waited for them at Athens, [s] his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city † wholly given to idolatry: 17. [t] Therefore disputed he in the synagogue with the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with ‡ them that met with him. 18. Then certain philosophers of the || Epicureans, and of the * Stoics, encountered him. And some said, What will this † babbler say? other some, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods: because he [u] preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection. 19. And they took him, and brought him unto Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, ‡ whereof thou speakest, is? 20. For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean. 21. (For all the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing.) s 2 Pet. 2. 8. Exod. 32. 19. Ps. 119. 158.

† Or full of idols.

t See ver. 2—4, 10. Mark 16. 15. 1 Tim. 2. 7.

‡ Heathens.

|| Who taught, that God neither made nor governs the world, and that pleasure is the chief good.

* Who taught, that men ought never to be distressed at any thing.

† Or base fellow.

u 1 Cor. 2. 2. & 15. 1—4. ver. 3. ch. 22. 15. & 26. 23.

‡ Some suppose that the Athenians understood that Paul, when he spoke of the Anastasis, or resurrection of Christ, meant a goddess so named; but this is doubtful. The mention of gods, in the plural, ver. 18. may be a general expression.

Verses 16—21. While Paul waited at Athens for the arrival of his fellow-labourers, we are told,

1. With what grief and indignation he beheld the idolatry of the inhabitants, and what zeal burned in his bosom on seeing these abominations. Unable, therefore, to contain any longer, he entered the synagogue; beginning, as usual, with the Jews and devout proselytes, disputing mildly with them, and answering all their objections against that Messiah which he preached unto them; and not resting there, he daily talked with those he met in the places of public concourse, remonstrating against their absurd idolatry, and seeking to turn them from these stocks and stones which they worshipped, to the service of the living God. Note, When we have Christ's cause at heart, we shall be ready to speak a word for him in all companies, and have his interests constantly uppermost.

2. The philosophers, with which this seat of Grecian literature abounded, could not silently pass by unnoticed this zealous disputant; and therefore some of the Stoics and Epicureans, their two most famed sects, though in opinions utterly opposite, united their forces against him. Some of them with infinite contempt said, What will this babbler say? prating at this strange rate: others, with indignation at his attempt to introduce what they thought new deities, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods, or foreign demons, because he preached unto them Jesus and the resurrection (ἀναστασιν) which they took to be a goddess, according to their dark and blinded apprehensions.

3. In order to hear at large what he had to say for himself, they invited him to Areopagus, a hill dedicated to Mars, where the supreme court of the judges sat, who determined all matters, civil or religious; and a number of philosophers being assembled, they said, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is? For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears; we would know therefore what these things mean. Among all the volumes that crowded their libraries, the writings of Moses and the prophets probably were unknown to them: and since their professed research was after truth, they desired if, like the mysteries of their gods, no secrecy was enjoined, that they might hear a plain and full discussion of the doctrine which he maintained and inculcated. And in this matter, curiosity seems to have prompted them more than any real desire of being informed. It being the character of the Athenians in general, that they, and the strangers who resorted thither, spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell or to hear some new thing. Note, It is a miserable abuse of precious time, thus to spend it in gaping after news and novelty; which, instead of real wisdom, can only produce superficial talkativeness.

22. ¶ Then Paul stood in the midst of [y] Mars-hill, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are [z] too superstitious. 23. For as I passed by, and beheld your [a] devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO [b] THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore y Or the court of the Areopagites, which, among other matters, took cognizance of religion, ver. 19.

z Jer. 50. 38. Is. 57. 5.

a 2 Thes. 2. 4.

b The God of the Jews. Eph. 2. 12. Ps. 147. 20. 1 Tim. 1. 17.

ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you. 24. [c] God, that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, [d] dwelleth not in temples made with hands;
25. [e] Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he [f] giveth to all life and breath, and all things; 26. [g] And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and [h] hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; 27. [i] That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not [k] far from every one of us: 28. For [l] in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own [m] poets have said, For we are also his offspring.* 29. Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, [n] we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art or man's device. 30. [o] And the times of this ignorance God winked at;
but now [p] commandeth all men every where to repent: 31. Because [q] he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; where- of he hath [r] given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

c Gen. 1. 1. Exod. 20. 11. ch. 4. 24. & 14. 15. Ps. 33. 6. & 24. 1. & civ, cxlviii.
d Ch. 7. 48. 1 Kin. 8. 27. John 4. 23. Is. 66. 1.
e Ps. 50. 8. & 16. 2. Job 22. 2. & 35. 6.
f Gen. 2. 7. Num. 16. 22. & 27. 16. Job 12. 10. & 27. 3. & 33. 4. Prov. 24. 12. Is. 42. 5. & 57. 16. Dan. 4. 35. Zech. 12. 1. Rom. 11. 36.
g Gen. 3. 20. Rom. 5. 12. 1 Cor. 15. 22, 47.
h Deut. 32. 8. & 30. 20. Job 14. 5. ch. 15. 18.
i Rom. 1. 20. & 2. 4. ch. 14. 17. Ps. 19. 1—6.
k Jer. 23. 23, 24. 1 Kin. 8. 27. Ps. 139. 1—13.
l Col. 1. 17. Rom. 11. 36. Heb. 1. 3.
m Tit. 1. 12.
* It would appear from this, and other passages, that Paul was versant in the writings of the Heathens as well as of the Jews.
n Is. 40. 18. Rom. 1. 20, 23, 25. Ps. 106. 20. o Ch. 14. 16 Ps. 81. 12. p Rom. 13. 11. Eph. 3. 5, 6. Tit. 2. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 14. & 4. 3. Luke 24. 47.
q Ch. 10. 42. Rom. 2. 16. John 5. 22. Mat. 24. 36. & 25. 31—46. Rom. 14. 9, 10. 2 Cor. 5. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 1.
r Or offered faith. 1 Cor. xv. Rom. 8. 9. ch. 2. 24.

Verses 22—31. Never was discourse more admirably suited to the auditory, than this. Having now to do not with Jews, who admitted revelation, but with idolatrous philosophers, who, amidst their innumerable deities, were without God in the world, the apostle sets himself to lead them to the knowledge of Him, whom they ignorantly worshipped.

1. In the midst of a numerous audience of senators, philosophers, and others, who desired to hear what he had to say, he begins with a general remark, which he had made during his abode among them: Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious, (δεισιδαιμονεστερους,) more addicted to the worship of gods than other people: which he mentions, not perhaps with a view immediately to upbraid them with it, as their crime, but to engage their attention to his discourse, as persons of more than ordinary professed devotion.

2. He informs them, that he had particularly observed on one of their altars, this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD; which, though a confession of their ignorance, intimated a desire to know and worship him; and some have thought that this altar was dedicated to the God of Israel, whose name, Jehovah, the Jews never pronounced.

3. He tells them that this God, whom they ignorantly worshipped, him declared he unto them. Not as a setter forth of strange gods, to add to their numerous other deities, nor of new gods; but to bring them to the knowledge of him who was the only living and true God, and to direct them how he was acceptably to be served; whom they with blind devotion adored, though unknown. So prudently and persuasively does he introduce and urge the glorious truths he had to deliver, even from the idolatry which he condemned.

4. He describes the God he preached as the great Creator, Governor, and Lord of all, the Author of life and being to every creature, and who filleth heaven and earth with his presence. He made the world, and all things therein, which sprung not from a fortuitous concourse of atoms, nor subsisted from eternity, as the different sects of philosophers taught, but was the work of the Almighty, and spoken into being at his word: who, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, the author and owner of all, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, nor can his immensity be circumscribed by these narrow bounds: neither is worshipped, or served with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, images, shrines, temples, or offerings, to increase his felicity; who is in himself infinitely blessed and glorious, and incapable of receiving any addition to his self-sufficient happiness; seeing all that the creature possesses come from him; for he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; their being, with all the supports and comforts of it, they receive from him, but can add nothing to him; and hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, who are originally descended from the same pair, which should stain the pride of pedigree: and teach us to love as brethren, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitations, having fixed in his eternal purpose the various events, and the periods of time in which each should happen; appointing to nations and individuals their place and abode on this habitable globe. And in all the dispensations of his providence, the end he purposes is, that they should seek the Lord, engaged by all the kindness and bounties of his providential hand, if haply, amidst the darkness, blindness, and ignorance of their fallen minds, they might feel after him, and find him, groping as the blind, through the creatures, and rising from the consideration of the visible objects, around them, to the knowledge of his eternal power and Godhead: though he be not far from every one of us, filling heaven and earth with his presence, and exerting in every place his perpetual agency, for in him we live, and move, and have our being: brought into being by his power, supported by his providence, and preserved by his care; as certain also of your own poets have said, particularly Aratus, For we are also his offspring. Note, (1.) He who gave us our being, has a full right to dispose of us according to the good pleasure of his will: to murmur at our lot, is to rebel against his providence. (2.) Our times are in God's hand; the number of our days is with him; he hath appointed us our bounds, which we cannot pass. (3.) Though God hath revealed enough of his glory to leave the world without excuse, yet such is the blindness of fallen man, that the wisest of men knew not God, nor ever would have known him, but for the foolishness of preaching, even that preaching which the wisdom of this world still brands as folly. (4.) We can never enough be thankful for that blessed book of God, that teaches more substantial wisdom in one page, yea, in one line, than is contained in all the volumes of poets and philosophers.

5. As the consequence of the doctrine which he advanced, he infers the absurdity of idolatry, and exhorts them to turn unto the living God. Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, created by him, and in his image, we ought not to put so gross an affront upon him, as to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device, however rich the materials, or exquisite the workmanship. And the times of this ignorance God winked at with wondrous patience and long-suffering, bearing with these abominations, and leaving the Gentiles as neglected, without the light of revelation; but now, in the riches of his grace, overlooking all that is past, he is pleased to make a revelation of himself and his designs to the world in general, and commandeth all men every where to repent; engaging them thereunto by the most engaging promises of pardon and acceptance through a Redeemer, and warning them by all the awful judgments which will descend on the heads of those who persist in their impenitence and idolatry, because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead. The day is fixed in the eternal counsels; the judgment will be impartial and strict, from the fullest knowledge of the characters of men; the Person is appointed to whom all judgment is committed; his resurrection from the dead gives the fullest assurance to all who will inquire into the evidence of the fact, with its connections, of God's approbation of him, and his appointment to this high office; and as there can be no exception to his sentence, there lies no appeal from his bar. An awful scene, which we cannot too often place before us, and under which our daily conduct should be influenced, that we may be found of him in peace at that day.

32. ¶ And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some [s] mocked; and others said, We will hear thee again of this matter. 33. [t] So Paul departed from among them. 34. [u] Howbeit, certain men clave unto him, and believed: among which was Dionysius [v] the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

s Ch. 2. 13. Gen. 19. 14. 2 Chr. 36. 16.

t Hos. 4. 17. Rev. 22. 11.

u Rom. 11. 5. ch. 13. 48. Mat. 20. 16. Luke 12. 32.

v Ver. 19. John 7. 48—52. & 19. 38—42. Phil. 4. 22.

Verses 32—34. We have here an account of the effects of Paul's preaching to this philosophic audience.

1. Some ridiculed his strange notions; and on the mention of the resurrection of the dead, so contrary to the maxims of philosophy, they mocked at the absurdity of such an assertion; whilst others, deferring to determine upon the matter for the present, promised to give it a second hearing at their leisure. Note, (1.) We are not to think the worse of the sacred truths of God because profane philosophers or wits ridicule and make a jest of them. (2.) They who put off the concerns of their souls, which demand present attention, to some future day, usually find something else constantly to engage them, till it is too late.

2. The apostle's words were not, however, wholly ineffectual. Though the generality persisted in their scientific ignorance and philosophic pride, yet, when Paul departed, and the assembly broke up, certain men clave unto him; immediately commencing a connection with him, and believed that gospel which he preached unto them; among the which was Dionysius the Areopagite, a member of the supreme court of judicature before whom Paul appeared; and a woman of note and distinction, named Damaris; and others with them, who, by the power of divine grace, were effectually turned from idols to serve the living and true God.

CHAP. XVIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 56.

In this chapter we have, 1. Paul's coming to Corinth, his private converse with Aquila and Priscilla, and his public reasonings with the Jews, from whom, when they rejected him, he turned to the Gentiles, ver. 1—6. 2. The great success of his ministry there, and the encouragement Christ gave him, in a vision, to continue his labours there, ver. 7—11. 3. The molestations which, after some time, he met with there from the Jews, but Gallio, the Roman governor, refused to intermeddle in the cause, ver. 12—17. 4. The progress Paul made through many countries, after he had continued long at Corinth, for the edifying and watering of the churches which he had founded and planted; in which circuit he made a short visit to Jerusalem, ver. 18—23. 5. An account of Apollos's improvement in knowledge, and of his usefulness in the church, ver. 24—28.

1. AFTER these things Paul departed from Athens, and came to [a] Corinth; 2. And found a certain Jew, named [b] Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla; (because that Claudius had commanded all Jews* to depart from Rome;) and came [c] unto them. 3. And because he was of the same craft, he abode with them, and [c] wrought: for by their occupation they were tent-makers. 4. [d] And he reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath, and persuaded the Jews and the Greeks. 5. And [e] when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul was pressed in the spirit, and [f] testified to the Jews that Jesus was Christ. 6. And [g] when they opposed themselves, and blasphemed, [h] he shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: [i] from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

a The richest city of Greece, and capital of Achaia. 1 Cor. 1. 2. 2 Cor. 1. 1. 2 Tim. 4. 20.

b Ver. 18, 26. Rom. 16. 3. 2 Tim. 4. 19. 1 Cor. 16. 19.

* On account of their seditious temper.

c Ch. 20. 34. 1 Cor. 4. 12. 2 Cor. 11. 9. & 12. 13. 1 Thes. 2. 9. 2 Thes. 3. 8.

d Chr. 3. 25. & 13. 5, 14, 46. & 14. 1. & 17. 1—3, 11. & 19. 8. Luke 4. 16.

e Ch. 17. 14, 15. Job 32. 18. ch. 17. 16. & 20. 22. Rom. 1. 9.

f John 15. 27. ch. 1. 8. & 2. 36. & 13. 38, 39. & 17. 3. 1 Pet. 5. 12.

g Ch. 13. 45. 1 Pet. 4. 4. 1 Thes. 2. 14—16.

h Ch. 13. 51. Mat. 10. 14. & 27. 25. Neh. 5. 13. Lev. 10. 12. 2 Sam. 1. 16. Ezek. 3. 18, 19. & 33. 4, 9. ch. 20. 26.

i Ch. 13. 46, 47. & 28. 28. Mat. 21. 43. & 8. 11. Deut. 32. 21, 46.

Verses 1—6. At Athens Paul seems to have made no long stay. Probably the pride of philosophy promised little success to the gospel which he preached. He therefore next visited Corinth, a city famous through all Greece for trade and opulence.

1. The apostle, unwilling to be burdensome for a maintenance, highly as he was entitled to the most liberal provision, worked for bread at his trade of tent-making; all the Jewish students being brought up to some handicraft business. Aquila, a converted Jew, with his wife Priscilla, who were of this occupation, being banished from Rome, with all the other Jews, by the jealous emperor Claudius, had settled at Corinth. To them, whom he found excellent people, and deeply versed in the things of God, he applied for work, and disdained not to labour for a subsistence. A noble instance of that disinterested zeal which burned in his bosom, and made him willing to undergo any hardship, to prevent the least prejudice which might arise, however unreasonably, against the gospel that he preached! Note, Those who are seeking a service would do well to settle with those from whom they are likely to reap good to their souls.

2. Whilst he laboured six days for a maintenance, every sabbath, with indefatigable diligence and zeal, he visited the synagogue, where he reasoned with the Jews and Grecian proselytes, proving from the scriptures the doctrines which he preached with unanswerable arguments, and silencing all their objections; and persuaded them to embrace the salvation which was in Christ Jesus: and, with respect to many, not without success. And being still more animated by the coming of Silas and Timothy, who brought him the glad tidings of the establishment and increase of the churches which he had planted, he urged with greater warmth and earnestness the grand truth, that Jesus is the Christ, the promised Messiah, and that there was no salvation out of him, grieved to behold the obstinate infidelity of the Jews, and mightily constrained with love towards them, and desire after their conversion. Note, A true zeal for Jesus, and love for immortal souls, will give warmth, energy, and spirit to our discourses.

3. When he found all his labours for them rejected with scorn, and returned with reviling; that they opposed with determined obstinacy what they could not answer, and blasphemed that Divine Redeemer whom he preached unto them; with just indignation he shook his raiment, and, abandoning them to their wilful impenitence, said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: having given you solemn warning, and laboured to rescue you from that guilt and ruin which ye are terribly and surely bringing upon your souls: from henceforth, since all my words are ineffectual, and rejected by you, I will go unto the Gentiles, not doubting but they will give the gospel-word a more welcome reception. Note, (1.) They who wilfully oppose the gospel, exasperated instead of convinced, go on often to add blasphemy to impenitence. (2.) It is a comfort to a faithful minister at least to be conscious that he is free from the blood of all men. (3.) Wo unto those against whom the very ministers of grace shall rise up in judgment to accuse and condemn them.

7. And he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's house, named Justus, * one that worshipped God, whose house joined hard to the synagogue. 8. [k] And Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his house: and many of the Corinthians [l] hearing believed, and were baptized. 9. ¶ [m] Then spake the Lord to Paul † in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace: 10. [n] For I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee: for [o] I have much people in this city. 11. And he ‡ continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

* A proselyte.

k 1 Cor. 1. 14. ch. 16. 14, 15.

l Rom. 10. 17. Is. 55. 3. Mat. 28. 19. Mark 16. 15.

m Ch. 16. 9. & 23. 11. Jer. 1. 9, 17—19. Ezek. 2. 6. Is. 58. 1. & 62. 1.

† Some circumstances seem to have discouraged Paul.

n Mat. 28. 20. Eph. 6. 19, 20. Jer. 1. 9, 18. Rom. 8. 31. Is. 41. 10, 14.

o 2 Tim. 2. 19. John 10. 16. ch. 6. 7.

‡ Gr. sat.

Verses 7—11. Having solemnly warned the Jews of the danger and ruin which would be the consequence of their impenitence, he departed.

1. From the synagogue he went to the house adjoining, which belonged to one named Justus, a proselyte, whither those who desired to hear him might resort. And though the generality of the Jews rejected his preaching, yet he saw rich fruits of his labours; Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, being converted to the faith, with all his house: and a great number of the Corinthians, hearing the gospel, believed and were baptized. Note, (1.) Though some reject the gospel, it is a great comfort to a minister's soul to see others not only hear it with attention, but embrace it with affection. (2.) Not many nobles and rulers are called; yet here and there one, to leave the rest at least inexcusable.

2. Amidst all Paul's discouragements the Lord is with him to support and comfort him, and by a vision in the night animates him boldly to persevere, saying, Be not afraid of the opposition and malice of the Jews; but speak and hold not thy peace; with all diligence, fidelity, and zeal, declaring the gospel, deterred by no menaces or opposition of the most malignant persecutors; for I am with thee, to support, to protect, and prosper thee, in all thy labours; and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee, restrained by a secret over-ruling hand from injuring your person, or silencing your ministry: for I have much people in this city, whom I have ordained unto eternal life, and who shall be called and converted by thy ministry. Note, (1.) If God be with us and for us, we need not be intimidated by the many or the mighty who may rise up against us. (2.) They who are labouring for Christ, though they be not visited with night visions, shall find internal divine supports ministered to them amidst all their tribulations. (3.) Where God hath a people, he will send to them his gospel, and all that the Father hath given his Son shall come unto him.

3. Encouraged by this declaration, the apostle continued at Corinth a year and six months, with unwearied diligence and fervent zeal preaching the gospel, and seeing numbers daily added to the church of such as should be saved, God opening to him a great door and effectual, though there were many adversaries, 1 Cor. xvi. 9.

12. ¶ And when Gallio ‖ was the deputy of Achaia, the Jews [p] made insurrection with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment-seat, 13. Saying, [q] This fellow persuadeth men to worship God contrary to the law. 14. And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, [r] If it were a matter of wrong or wicked lewdness, O ye Jews, reason would that I should bear with you: 15. But if it be a question of words and names, and of your law, [s] look ye to it; for I will be no judge of such matters. 16. [t] And he drave them from the judgment-seat. 17. Then all the Greeks took [u] Sosthenes, the chief ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgment-seat. And Gallio [x] cared for none of those things.

cir. 56. ending

‖ Gallio was the elder brother of the celebrated philosopher L. A. Seneca, who describes him as a mild and amiable man.

p Ch. 8. 1. & 6. 12. & 13. 50. & 14. 2, 19. & 16. 20. & 17. 5, 13. & 19. 9.

q Ch. 17. 7. & 6. 13. & 24. 5, 6. & 25. 8.

r Ch. 25. 11. & 23. 29. & 25. 18, 19.

s Mat. 27. 4. John 18. 31. Luke 12. 14.

t Rev. 12. 16. Rom. 13. 3, 4.

u Perhaps not he 1 Cor. 1. 1.

x Amos 6. 6. Phil. 2. 21.

Verses 12—17. Though God had promised to save the apostle from hurt, he doth not engage to exempt him from the malicious efforts of his enemies.

1. The Jews, as they had elsewhere done, raised an insurrection, and in a popular tumult dragged Paul before Gallio the proconsul, who was the brother of the famous Seneca, and is said to have been of the most sweet and gentle disposition, and universally beloved. Their accusation against the apostle was, that this fellow, so contemptuously do they speak of him, persuaded men to worship God contrary to the law; and because they were allowed the exercise of their religion, by the edicts of the Roman emperor, they pretend it was highly criminal for any Jew to worship God any other way than they did.

2. Paul was just going to make his defence, and show the falsehood as well as malignity of the accusation: but Gallio, understanding it was merely a religious matter, refused to interfere, and dismissed the cause, saying, If it were a matter of wrong or wicked lewdness, where any injury had been done, or theft or immorality committed, O ye Jews, reason would that I should bear with you, and do you justice, indecently clamorous as you are: but if it be a question of words and names, and of your law, whether Jesus, whom Paul preaches, be your Messiah, and what obligation there lies on him, or those whom he teaches, to worship God after the law of Moses, look ye to it, and end such disputes among yourselves, for I will be no judge of such matters, it is no concern to me how any man worships God, whilst he approves himself a good subject, and disturbs not the peace of the state. And he drave them from the judgment-seat, expressing his displeasure at their troublesome and impertinent clamours. Note, Magistrates are bound to right the injured; but where the accusation is evidently frivolous or malicious, such causes should be discountenanced and dismissed.

3. Exasperated at their disappointment, the unbelieving Greeks took hold of Sosthenes, the chief ruler of the synagogue, Paul's friend, 1 Cor i. 1. and fellow-labourer, and to vent their resentment, they beat him before the judgment-seat, in the face of the governor. And Gallio cared for none of these things, rather choosing to wink at the affront and injustice, than embroil himself with an enraged populace.

Some suppose that Sosthenes was not yet a convert, but headed the accusation against the apostle; and that, as the Jews were in general hated, the profane Greeks, seeing the governor favourable to Paul, were encouraged to put this insult upon them in the person of their chief ruler. Whichever was the case, the behaviour of Gallio was justly to be blamed; for, whether Sosthenes was a good or a bad man at that time, such illegal proceedings deserved animadversion; but he seems to have been too indifferent about the matter, and merely to have consulted his own ease.

cir. 57.
18. ¶ And Paul after this tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and sailed thence into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn his head in Cenchrea: * [y] for he had a vow.† 19. And he came to [z] Ephesus, and left them there: but he himself entered into the synagogue, and reasoned with the Jews. 20. When they desired him to tarry longer time with them, he consented not; 21. But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this [a] feast that cometh in Jerusalem: but I will return again unto you, [b] if God will. And he sailed from Ephesus. 22. And when he had landed at [c] Cesarea, and gone up and saluted the church, he went down to [d] Antioch. 23. And, after he had spent some time there, he departed, and went over all the country of [e] Galatia and Phrygia in order, [f] strengthening all the disciples.

* Now Kenkri. It was the port of Corinth, and situated on the east side of the isthmus.
y Ch. 21. 24. Num. 6. 18. 1 Cor. 9. 20.
† It is generally considered, although our commentator differs from the opinion, that it was Aquila, not Paul, who is here referred to as having shorn his head.
z The chief city of Lesser Asia. Ch. xix. 1 Cor. 16. 8. Eph. 1. 1. 1 Tim. 1. 3. Rev. 1. 11.
a Passover. Exod. 12. 6. Deut. 16. 1. & 16. 21. & 20. 16.
b 1 Cor. 4. 19. Rom. 1. 10. Jam. 4. 15. Phil. 2. 19, 23, 24. Heb. 6. 3.
c Ch. 8. 40. & 10. 1. & 12. 19. & 21. 8. & 23. 33.
d Ch. 11. 19, 26. & 13. 1.
e Gal. 1. 2. & 4. 14. 1 Cor. 16. 1. ch. 16. 6.
f Ch. 14. 22. & 15. 32, 41. Is. 35. 3. 1 Thes. 5. 14. & 3. 2, 13.

Verses 18—23. After a long abode at Corinth, and seeing abundant success of his labours, we have here,

1. The apostle's departure. Having taken a solemn farewell of the brethren, he set sail for Syria, Priscilla and Aquila accompanying him, having shorn his head in Cenchrea; for he had a vow: willing, as far as was lawful, to comply with the Jews, that he might gain them the more readily to hear him. And now the time of his vow of Nazaritism, under which he had bound himself, being expired, his head was shaved according to the law, Numb. vi. 1—21. Note, In all indifferent matters we should become all things to all men, in order, if it please God, that we may by any means gain some to the knowledge of Christ.

2. His arrival at Ephesus, the chief city of the proconsular Asia. There, as his custom was, he entered into the synagogue of the Jews, and reasoned with them concerning the great truths of Christianity. But his stay was very short, as he hastened to Jerusalem; and therefore, leaving Aquila and Priscilla there, though they, and probably the other Jews, desired him to make some longer abode with them, they could not prevail with him, he having urgent business which called him to Jerusalem, where he intended to keep the approaching feast, probably the passover. But with God's permission he engaged to return to them again, and make some longer stay among them, to dispense that gospel which they seemed desirous to hear. Note, As all our motions are under the Divine Providence, and our times are in his hands, a gracious soul determines nothing absolutely, but adds to all his purposes, if it please the Lord.

3. Sailing from Ephesus, he arrived at Cesarea, where landing, he went up to Jerusalem, and saluted the church, inquiring of their welfare, gladdening them with the tidings he brought, and maintaining communion with his brethren the apostles, who might still make that the chief place of their resort. And such friendly visits of Christ's ministers are a great comfort and mutual encouragement to each other.

4. From Jerusalem he departed for Antioch, the most famed Gentile church, from whence he had been at first sent forth, and whither now the second time he returned with still more joyful accounts of the progress of the gospel. After some time spent there, he proceeded on a third visitation, going over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, strengthening all the disciples, confirming them in the faith, encouraging them to persevere, and suggesting the strongest motives and arguments to engage them to take up the cross, and patiently in well-doing to approve their fidelity to their blessed Lord and Master.

24. ¶ [g] And a certain Jew, named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and [h] mighty in the scriptures, came to Ephesus. 25. [i] This man was instructed in the way of the Lord; and, being fervent in the spirit, he spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, [k] knowing only the baptism of John. 26. And he began to speak [l] boldly in the synagogue: whom when [m] Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and [n] expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. 27. And when he was disposed to pass into Achaia, the brethren [o] wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him: who when he was come, [p] helped them much which had [q] believed through grace; 28. For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, [r] shewing by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

g 1 Cor. 1. 12. & 3. 5. & 16. 12. Tit. 3. 13.
h Ch. 7. 22. Col. 3. 16. Ps. 119. 11.
i Mat. 22. 16. Rom. 12. 11. Ps. 69. 9. Col. 1. 28, 29. 1 Tim. 5. 17. 2 Tim. 4. 2. k Ch. 19. 3. & 8. 16. Mark 1. 2—11. Mat. iii. Luke iii. John i. 19—36.
l Ch. 14. 3, 29, 31. & 13. 46. Eph. 6. 19, 20. Is. 58. 1. m Ver. 2, 3. Rom. 16. 3.
n 1 Cor. 12. 21. Col. 3. 16.
o Ch. 9. 27. 1 Cor. 16. 3. 2 Cor. 3. 1. Rom. 16. 1, 2. p 1 Cor. 3. 6, 10. & 5. 10. 2 Cor. 1. 24. Eph. 3. 7.
q Rom. 12. 3. Eph. 2. 8.
r Luke 24. 27, 44. ch. 17. 3. & 26. 22, 23. 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4. Heb. i—x.

Verses 24—28. Whilst the apostle was on his travels, under a promise of returning to Ephesus, the Lord was raising up in that place an eminently useful minister in the person of Apollos.

1. The account given of him is, that he was a Jew by birth, a native of Alexandria in Egypt, a man of singular abilities, possessed of a fund of solid learning, and endued with a most persuasive faculty of elocution, deeply read in the Scriptures, and every way highly qualified for the work of the ministry. This man was instructed in the way of the Lord, and, as far as John's ministry went, embraced the principles of the doctrine of Christ; and, so far as his knowledge reached, being fervent in spirit, and impressed with a warm zeal for God's glory, and the good of men's souls, he spoke and taught diligently the things of the Lord, with much study and pains, according to his best light; knowing only the baptism of John, who spoke of the approaching Messiah, and exhorted all men to prepare for his reception. And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue, with great freedom of speech and intrepidity of mind, fearless of the faces of men. A noble pattern for our imitation! And happy is it for that people to whom the Lord is pleased to send such a helper, whose heart, enriched with grace, zealously longs for their salvation, and whose gifts of wisdom and elocution enable him in the most engaging and powerful manner to urge the truths he preaches upon the conscience.

2. Aquila and Priscilla with pleasure heard him, and observing his simplicity and zeal, they invited him to their lodging; and, being far more experienced and enlightened Christians, they expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly, which it seems he never had an opportunity of being informed of before, having probably lived at Alexandria till now; and he immediately embraced the gospel, as soon as he heard it. Herein we may observe, (1.) The gracious conduct of Aquila and Priscilla. Though far more experienced in the truths of God, they attended the ministry of Apollos, encouraged him in his work, and helped him greatly by their private conversation with him. Older Christians should thus be ready to assist young ministers with their advice, and countenance them in their labours. (2.) The great teachableness of Apollos. Though a man so ingenious, learned, and eloquent; he disdained not to sit as a scholar at the feet of a poor tent-maker and his wife, and to learn of them the good ways of God. Thus should young ministers covet the acquaintance of more aged and wiser Christians: and much, very much, may be learned from conversing with poor old men and women, despicable as they may appear in the eyes of scientific pride. (3.) Whatever our attainments are, we should never think ourselves too wise to learn. They who know most will covet to know more, and have their ears open to those who can expound to them the way of God more perfectly.

3. When, after some stay at Ephesus, Apollos was disposed to pass into Achaia, to preach the gospel there, particularly at Corinth, Aquila and Priscilla recommended him by letter to the brethren as an able and faithful servant of the Lord Jesus, and, when he came thither, he helped them much which had believed through grace, establishing their faith, comforting their hearts, and building them up on that foundation which Paul had laid; for he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, in their synagogues and before all the people, showing by the Scriptures, with the most convincing arguments, and closest application, that Jesus was Christ, the true, expected Messiah, by faith in whom alone, salvation could be obtained. Note, (1.) Faith is the gift of God; it is by his grace alone that we are enabled to receive the salvation which is in his Son. (2.) Though we have true faith, yet we need help and quickening, that we may be more confirmed and established in the truth. (3.) They who are put in trust with the gospel should be able to defend the great truths which they preach, and from the Scriptures, with all zeal and meekness, to convince gainsayers and confirm the faithful.

CHAP. XIX.—ANNO DOMINI, 57.

We have here Paul's return to Ephesus, according to his promise, and his imparting the Holy Ghost to some who had known only John's baptism; preaching the gospel to the Jews three months, and being persecuted by them, he turns to the Gentiles, preaching the gospel to them in the school of one Tyrannus during two years, and confirming his preaching by miracles, ver. 1—12. 2. What was the fruit of his labour, ver. 13—20. 3. What projects he had of further usefulness, ver. 21, 22. and what trouble at length he met with at Ephesus from the silversmiths, which forced him thence to pursue the measures he had laid; how a mob was raised by Demetrius to cry up Diana, ver. 23—34. and how it was suppressed and dispersed by the town-clerk, ver. 35—41.

1. AND it came to pass, that, while [a] Apollos was at Corinth, Paul, having passed through * the upper coasts, [b] came to Ephesus: and, finding certain disciples, 2. He said unto them, Have [c] ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, [d] We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost.† 3. And he said unto them, Unto what [e] then were ye baptized? And they said, Unto John's baptism. 4. Then said Paul, [f] John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus. 5. When they heard this, they were baptized [g] in the name of the Lord Jesus. 6. [h] And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues, and prophesied. 7. And all the men were about twelve.

[a] Ch. 18. 2—28. 1 Cor. 3. 5—7.

* Phrygia, Galatia, Pontus, Bithynia, Lydia, Lycaonia, &c.

[b] Ch. 18. 19, 21.

[c] Ch. 10. 44. & 8. 17. ver. 6.

[d] 1 Sam. 3. 7. ch. 8. 16.

† Rather, whether the Holy Ghost be given. The same words are so translated John 7. 39.

[e] Ch. 18. 25. Mat. iii. Mark i. Luke iii. John i, iii.

[f] Mat. 3. 11. & 11. 3. Mark 1. 4, 8. Luke 3. 16. John 1. 26. ch. 1. 5. & 11. 16. & 13. 24. 25.

[g] Mat. 28. 19. Rom. 6. 3, 4. Gal. 3. 27. ch. 8. 16.

[h] Ch. 6. 6. & 8. 17. & 2. 4. & 10. 44, 46. & 13. 1. 2 Tim. 1. 6.

Verses 1—7. Whilst Apollos was at Corinth, labouring in the vineyard which Paul had planted, he was travelling through Phrygia and Galatia towards Ephesus, where he arrived.

1. He found there certain disciples, who had been baptized either by John or some of his followers, with a reference to the Messiah as ready to appear, and who, till now, seem to have been out of the way of receiving farther information concerning him. Paul therefore inquired of them, as they made profession of their faith, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed in his miraculous gifts? They own they had not, nor even heard that any such were bestowed by him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. They knew there would be an abundant effusion of his mighty influences according to the promise in the days of the Messiah; but as yet, they had received no intelligence that any such extraordinary gifts had been bestowed. The apostle with some surprise then asked them, Unto what then were ye baptized? on what account, in whose name, or to the profession of what doctrine? They said, Unto John's baptism, in the faith of the Messiah, who was quickly to be revealed. Note, (1.) Though we may not look for the miraculous powers, we may, we must, be partakers of the mighty influences of the Spirit in our hearts. If we make profession of our faith, we should therefore seriously inquire into its reality, and whether the Holy Ghost witnesses to his own work in our souls. (2.) They who are baptized, and have received the outward and visible sign, should often examine themselves, whether they possess the inward and spiritual grace; else the washing of water will be a merely unprofitable ceremony.

2. Paul hereupon sets himself to explain the true intent of John's baptism. John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, engaging and encouraging men to turn to God, from the views of the riches of his grace, shortly about to be displayed in the kingdom of the Messiah, saying unto the people, that they should believe in him which should come after him, that is, on Jesus Christ, as the only Saviour from guilt and misery. And when the people, who attended John's ministry, heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, as devoted to the Messiah's service, who was then just appearing, and professing their faith in him. This Messiah was now come; had accomplished the work of redemption; was exalted to the right hand of God; and had already poured out his Spirit in a miraculous manner upon his disciples.

3. When the apostle had thus informed them of the grand intention of John's baptism, and they gladly embraced his word, he laid his hands upon them, and the Holy Ghost came on them, enduing them with miraculous gifts, and they spoke with tongues, and prophesied, as the disciples did at the first effusion of the Spirit. They were twelve in number, and probably designed for the ministry of the word at Ephesus, for which they were hereby eminently qualified.

8. ¶ And he went [i] into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God. 9. [k] But when divers were hardened, and believed not, but spake evil of that [l] way before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, disputing daily in the school of one Tyrannus. 10. [m] And this continued by the space of two years; so that all they which dwelt in [n] Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks. 11. [o] And God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul: 12. So that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.*

i Ch. 3. 26. & 13. 5, 14, 46. & 14. 1. & 17. 1—3, 11. & 18. 4, 28. & 26. 22, 23. & 28. 23. 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4. & 2. 2. ch. 13. 14, &c. Eph. 3. 8.
k Ch. 13. 45, 46. & 16. 17. 2 Tim. 1. 15. 2 Pet. 2. 2. ch. 18. 4, 25, 28. & 17. 17. & 28. 23. Is. 8. 14.
l Ch. 9. 2. & 24. 14. ver. 23. ch. 28. 22.
m Ch. 20. 18—21, 31. Ps. 19. 3. Rom. 10. 18. & 15. 19. n Ch. 16. 6. 2 Tim. 1. 15. 1 Pet. 1. 1. Rev. 1. 4, 11.
o Mark 16. 17, 20. John 14. 12. Heb. 2. 4. ch. 5. 12, 15. & 14. 3, 10. & 16. 18. 2 Kin. 4. 29.
* These articles could not convey virtue from the apostle, but were mere tokens of the almighty power of God.

Verses 8—12. Paul having thus opened his ministry, and produced such authentic evidences of his mission, we find him,

1. According to his custom in the synagogue, where, during three months, he continued speaking boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, preaching his gospel, and disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God, reasoning with them on the subject, rectifying their mistaken notions, answering their objections, earnestly and affectionately urging them to accept the proffered grace of the Redeemer, and commence subjects of that happy kingdom which the adored Messiah was come to erect here below, that they might be admitted hereafter to partake of his glory in a better world.

2. When, after so long a season, the generality seemed but more rivetted in their pride and prejudices, and hardened in their sins, not only obstinately rejecting the gospel themselves, but seeking to prejudice others against it, speaking evil of that way before the multitude, he then departed from them, abandoning them to their determined infidelity, and separated the disciples from such incorrigible blasphemers, erecting them into a Christian society, and laying the foundation of the Ephesian church, afterwards so renowned; disputing daily in the school of one Tyrannus, whither all, both Gentiles and Jews, might resort to him, and hear the gospel which he preached defended by the most convincing arguments. Two years he continued there his daily labours, so that all they that dwelt in Asia, who resorted on various accounts to this famed city, first or last, heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks, either from Paul himself, or from those who spread the report of his preaching on their return into the country; as perhaps some of his assistants made excursions into parts adjacent, and helped to spread abroad the glad tidings.

3. In confirmation of the doctrine which Paul preached, and to give greater weight to his discourses, God wrought special miracles by his hands, such as were not only out of the common course of nature, but which none of the other apostles had wrought; so that even handkerchiefs or aprons, either such as he wore at his trade, or which were sent to him, were brought from his body unto the sick; and with such miraculous efficacy were they as it were impregnated by his touch, that the diseases were instantly cured, and the devil dispossessed. An emblem of the greater cures which the gospel he preached was designed to work, even to deliver the souls of sinners from their more fatal spiritual maladies, and to rescue them from the bondage of sin and Satan.

13. ¶ Then certain of the vagabond Jews, [p] exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We [q] adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth. 14. And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, and chief of the priests, which [r] did so. 15. And the evil spirit answered and said, [r] Jesus I know, and Paul I know; † but who are ye? 16. [s] And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded. 17. And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus: [t] and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. 18. And many that believed came, and [u] confessed, and shewed their deeds. 19. Many of them also [x] which used curious arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it ‡ fifty thousand pieces of silver. 20. [y] So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

cir. 59.
p Mat. 12. 27. Mark 9. 38. Luke 9. 49. ch. 8. 18, 19.
q Mat. 26. 63. Mark 5. 7. 1 Kin. 22. 16. Josh. 6. 26. 1 Sam. 14. 24.
r Mat. 8. 29. ch. 16. 17.
† Jesus I acknowledge, and Paul I know.—SCHOLEFIELD.
s Ps. 7. 15, 16. & 9. 15, 16. & 140. 8—11.
t Ch. 5. 5, 11. & 13. 12. Ps. 64. 9. & 58. 10. Luke 7. 16. Phil. 2. 9—11. Heb. 2. 8, 9.
u Mat. 3. 6. Josh. 7. 19. Jer. 3. 13. & 31. 18. Ezek. 16. 63. & 36. 31. x 2 Chr. 33. 6. Mat. 3. 8. Is. 30. 22.
‡ Of what value the coin here mentioned was cannot be determined. It is generally supposed to have been the drachm, which in value was rather less than 8*d.* English.
y Ch. 6. 7. & 12, 24. Is. 55. 11. 1 Thes. 1. 5. 2 Thes. 3. 1. ch. 16. 5.

Verses 13—20. We have here,

1. The profane attempt of certain vagabond Jews, exorcists, who pretended by charms to cure diseases and tell fortunes. Observing the admiration in which the apostle was held through the astonishing miracles he performed, they undertook to do the same, and to cast out devils as well as he, supposing that the name of Jesus, invoked and pronounced by way of charm, would enable them to perform the same cures. And there were seven sons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the priests, who was probably at the head of one of the twenty-four courses, which did this, leading this strolling life, and pretending to perform these feats of conjuration. Accordingly, having a patient brought to them, possessed of a devil, they began their exorcisms over him, saying, We adjure you by Jesus, whom Paul preacheth, solemnly commanding you, by that name which Paul proclaims, to depart immediately.

2. Far different was the effect of their adjuration from their expectations, instead of obeying their commands, the evil spirit, using the man's organs of speech, insultingly replied, in contempt of their word, Jesus I know, and Paul I know; too well he knew the divine power of the one, and the authority with which the other was invested; but who are ye? a vagabond crew, without power or authority; and the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them with fury and rage, and overcame them, and, in spite of all their efforts, prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded, their clothes torn from their back, and heartily beaten, bruised, and bloody, the just derision of the spectators. And, as this was transacted publicly, it was known to all the Jews and Greeks dwelling at Ephesus; and fear fell on them all, dreading the power of these infernal spirits, nor daring any more to mock God by such incantations, lest he should let loose these furies upon them; and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified, it evidently appearing that he alone could dispossess these fiends of darkness, and therefore he was regarded with highest honour, and his name mentioned with reverence.

3. Seeing these exorcists thus shamefully defeated, many who had beforetime used the like magic arts and charms, but now by the grace of God were brought to faith in the Lord Jesus, came and confessed their deeds, with shame and confusion of face before God and man; and brought their books together, out of which they had learned their spells and methods of divination, fortune-telling, casting of nativities, interpreting dreams, discovering lost goods, laying spirits, and the like diabolical arts, and burned them before all men, in detestation of such wickedness, and to prevent their falling into the hands of others: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver; for scarce and curious were these manuscripts: so mightily grew the word of God and prevailed. Note, (1.) They who are brought to the faith of the gospel, will be instantly led to sacrifice their dearest and most beloved iniquities, with holy indignation at the remembrance of them. (2.) They who know the evil of sin, will be careful to remove every temptation thereunto out of their own and others' way. (3.) True converts desire to take shame before all men, and to give to the Lord Jesus the glory due unto his name in the most substantial proofs of their real conversion to him.

21. ¶ After these things were ended, Paul purposed [z] in the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to [a] go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I [b] must also see Rome. 22. So [c] he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timotheus and Erastus; but he himself stayed in Asia for a season. 23. [d] And the same time there arose no small stir about that way. 24. For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made ‡ silver shrines for Diana, brought no small [e] gain unto the craftsmen; 25. Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know [f] that by this craft we have our wealth. 26. Moreover, ye see and hear, that not alone [g] at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that [h] they be no gods which are made with hands: 27. So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at nought; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and [i] the world worshippeth. 28. And when they heard these sayings, [k] they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, [l] Great is Diana of the Ephesians. 29. [m] And the whole city was filled with confusion: and, having caught [n] Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the [o] theatre. 30. And when Paul would have entered in [p] unto the people, the disciples suffered him not. 31. And certain of [q] the chief of Asia, § which were his friends, sent unto him, desiring him that he would not adventure himself into the theatre. 32. [r] Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused; and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together. 33. And they drew [s] Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting ‖ him forward. And Alexander [t] beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people. 34. But when * they knew that he was a [u] Jew, all with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, [x] Great is Diana of the Ephesians. 35. And when the † town clerk had appeased the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is ‡ a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image which [y] fell down from Jupiter? 36. Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly. 37. For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess. 38. Wherefore, if Demetrius, and the craftsmen which are with him, have a matter against any man, ‖ the law is open, and there are deputies: let them implead one another. 39. But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a § lawful assembly. 40. For we are in danger to be called in question for this day's uproar, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this concourse. 41. [z] And when he had thus spoken, he [a] dismissed the assembly.

z Rom. 1. 13. & 15. 25. ch. 16. 6, 7, 10. & 20. 22. Ps. 143. 10.
a Ch. 18. 21. & 21. 15. & 20. 22.
b Ch. 23. 11. & 28. 16. Rom. 15. 25. Gal. 2. 1. c Ch. 16. 9, 10, 13. & 18. 5. Rom. 16. 23. 2 Tim. 4. 20.
d 2 Cor. 1. 8. Ch. 9. 2. & 13. 50. & 14. 4, 5. & 17. 5. ver. 9.
‡ Models of her temple, for strangers to buy. This celebrated temple was 425 feet long, and 220 broad; and had 80 columns, each 60 feet in height.
e Ch. 16. 16. 1 Tim. 6. 5, 10. Isa. 56. 11, 12. f Ch. 16. 16, 19. Rev. 18. 16, 19. 1 Tim. 6. 9, 10. Phil. 2. 21. ver. 24.
g Ch. 18. 19—26. & 10. 20. & 12. 2. Gal. 4. 8. 1 Thes. 1. 9.
h Ps. 115. 4—8. Isa. 34. 9—20. Jer. 10. 3—5, 9, 14, 15. Ch. 14. 15. & 17. 23. 1 Cor. 8. 4—6. & 10. 20. & 12. 2. Gal. 4. 8. 1 Thes. 1. 9.
i Rev. 13. 3. & 17. 2. Mat. 7 13. 1 John 5. 19. ch. 14. 16.
k Job 5. 2. Prov. 27. 4, 5. Ch. 7. 54. & 5. 17. & 13. 45, 50. & 14. 2. Ps. 2. 2.
l Jer. 50. 38. Rev. 13. 4.
m Ch. 16. 19, 20. & 17. 8. & 21. 27.
n Ch. 20. 4. & 27. 2. 1 Cor. 1. 14. Rom. 16. 23. Col. 4. 10. Phile. 24. 1 Cor. 1. 14.
o Places where the people met for public sports, where men were devoured by beasts, &c. 1 Cor. 15 32.
p To give account of the Christian faith, Ch. 14. 15—18. & 17. 22—31. 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4.
q See Ch. 16. 6. ver. 10. Rev. 1. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 1.
§ Or, Asiarchs. These were officers of a religious class, who presided over the public games instituted in honour of the gods.
r Ver. 30. Ch. 21. 34.
s 1 Tim. 1. 20. 2 Tim. 4. 14.
‖ As their advocate to the people.
t Ch. 12. 17. & 13. 16. & 21. 40. & 24. 10.
* The heathen mob.
u An enemy to idols. Rom. 2. 22.
x Ver. 28. Jer. 50. 38. Isa. 57. 5. Rev. 13. 4.
† Or, clerk of the public sports, who registered the victories, &c.
‡ Gr. devoted, or consecrated to.
y The priests said, as ch. 15. 5. & 17. 3.
‖ Or, the court days are kept.
§ Or, ordinary.
z Prov. 15. 1, 2. & 25. 15. Eccl. 9. 17. Judg. 8, 1, 2.
a Ps. 65. 7. & 34. 19. Gen. 22. 14. Deut. 32. 36.

Verses 21—41. Just as Paul thought of departing from Ephesus, an unexpected storm arose.

1. After a stay of about three years at Ephesus, from his first coming thither, he resolved to visit the churches he had planted in Macedonia and Achaia, purposing from thence to go to Jerusalem; and, under the influence of the Holy Ghost, determined afterwards to see Rome also, the seat of empire, and there preach the glorious gospel of Christ. He sent therefore Timotheus and Erastus before him, to give them notice of his intentions, and prepare their collection for the poor saints at Jerusalem; whilst he himself stayed a while in Asia, carrying on the blessed work which was there begun.

2. During his stay, there arose no small stir about that way, the way of Christ which Paul preached; the occasion and consequences of which are here related.

(1.) The ringleader, who stirred up the tumult, was one Demetrius, a silversmith, whose most gainful branch of business lay in making silver models of the temple of Diana, with her image in miniature within, which the superstitious worshippers used to carry home with them, for the gratifying the curiosity of their neighbours, or for the purposes of devotion. This man, calling his fellow-craftsmen together, harangued them on the danger in which their trade stood, from whence all their wealth arose; and this through the preaching of Paul, who, instead of paying the least regard to their shrines, or the great Diana and her temple, persuaded and turned away the people, almost throughout all Asia, from the worship of their goddess, saying, That they be no gods which are made with hands, despising the images and deities to whom their ancestors had ever paid such veneration: and, in consequence thereof, not only their craft was in danger, and that was a point which he knew lay near their hearts; but he pretends a higher motive for his present application to them, even his zeal for the great goddess Diana, the object of their own and of universal adoration, who was now likely to grow into contempt, and her magnificent temple to be abandoned, if this new religion should be suffered to gain ground; and therefore it was high time for them to bestir themselves, and oppose the growing evil. Note, (1.) Pomp and numbers are still on the side of idol-worship in the papal church, falsely called Christian. (2.) They who make gain of their religion, and follow it as their craft, evidently show to whom they pay their adorations, not to God, but Mammon.

(2.) This harangue had its desired effect. The craftsmen, inflamed to fury with the apprehension that both their gain and their goddess were in danger, with wild uproar filled the streets, shouting, Great is Diana of the Ephesians. The mob readily joined them, and the whole city immediately became a scene of tumult and confusion.

3. Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions, falling in their way, they seized them, and hurried them to the theatre, where the public games were celebrated, and criminals thrown to wild beasts, and compelled to fight them; see 1 Cor. xv. 32. intending probably thus to despatch these fellow-labourers of the apostle. Paul, nobly prodigal of life in defence of the gospel and of his suffering friends, would fain have entered in to the people, and attempted to reason with them on their wickedness: but the disciples, justly apprehensive of the imminent danger to which he would be exposed, earnestly dissuaded him, and insisted upon his not going: which was also further enforced by a message from certain of the chief of Asia, who presided over the public games, and had the direction of the theatre, which were his friends, and consulted his safety, and thereby desired that he would not adventure himself into the theatre, where all their influence and authority might be unable to restrain an enraged populace from some fatal acts of violence. Note, The lives of great and good men are precious; though they are prodigal of them, and willing to spend and be spent in the service of Christ, their friends should be more careful of them than they are of themselves.

4. The mob, now prodigiously increased, roared out, some one thing, some another; for the assembly was confused, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together: and some of them drew Alexander out of the multitude, to call him to an account, the Jews putting him forward; either helping to expose him to the rage of the people, being equally enemies to the Christian name; or, if he was one of their body, encouraging him to declaim against Paul, and excuse them, who were alike hated on account of their known aversion to idolatry. And Alexander beckoned with his hand, desiring silence, and would have made his defence unto the people; either for himself and the Christians, if he was of their number; or rather, being a Jew, he intended to throw the odium upon the apostle, and exculpate his countrymen. But no sooner was it known that he was a Jew, the professed enemy of idol-worship, than they stopped their ears, and would not hear a word; but all with one accord, about the space of two hours, continued crying and shouting, Great is Diana of the Ephesians! as if their noise and riot proved the truth of her deity. Thus often is the cause of God and truth run down by those who madly refuse to hear the voice of reason.

5. The town-clerk, or rather, the chief magistrate, who presided over the public games, with difficulty at last silenced the uproar, and remonstrated against the tumult, saying, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, devoted to her service, and by their charter engaged to take care of her temple and worship; and of the image which fell down from Jupiter, which therefore is not of the gods made with men's hands, against whom Paul declaims. Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, being universally received among us as certain, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly against the persons whom ye have seized. For ye have brought hither these men as criminals, which are neither proved to be robbers of temples, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess, treating her with no opprobrious language, nor guilty of any sacrilege. Wherefore, if Demetrius and the craftsmen which are with him, who have fomented riot, have a matter against any man, the law is open, and there are deputies, where justice will readily be done them; let them implead one another, and submit to the decision of the proper judges. But if ye inquire any thing concerning other matters, of more general concern, relative to the state of religion, it shall be determined in a lawful assembly convoked for that purpose. For, so far from deciding at present upon the merits of the cause, we are in danger of being called in question for this day's uproar, if complaint be carried to the emperor against us; there being no just cause, whereby we may give an account of this concourse, if we should be summoned before our superiors.

And when he had thus spoken, to soothe and quiet the inflamed multitude, he dismissed the assembly, enjoining them peaceably to retire to their own homes. Note, (1.) God hath a variety of ways to rescue his people out of their troubles, and can raise them up friends from quarters where they least expected them. (2.) It is a constant and universal rule to do nothing rashly; for whatever is done in a passion, we shall infallibly wish undone. (3.) The terror of the law is usually a greater restraint than the fear of God. Happy were it for us if we remembered, whenever inordinate passion begins to swell in our bosom, that we are liable to be called in question for the uproar, and should therefore check the rising storm.

CHAP. XX.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter we have, 1. Paul's travels through Macedonia, Greece, and Asia, and his coming at length to Troas, ver. 1—6. 2. A particular account of his spending one Lord's day at Troas, and his raising Eutychus to life there, ver 7—12. 3. His progress, or circuit, for the visiting of the churches he had planted, in his way towards Jerusalem, where he designed to be by the next feast of Pentecost, ver. 13—16. 4. The farewell sermon he preached to the presbyters of Ephesus, now he was leaving that country, ver. 17—35. 5. The very sorrowful parting between him and them, ver. 36 37 38.

1. AND [a] after the uproar was ceased,

[a] Ch. 19. 23—41.

[b] Ch. 21. 6. ver. 37. Rom. 16. 16. 1 Cor. 16. 20. 2 Cor. 13. 12. 1 Thes. 5. 26.
[c] 2 Cor. 7. 5. 1 Tim. 1. 3. 1 Cor. 16. 5.
[d] Ch. 14. 22. & 15. 41. & 16. 5. Col. 1. 28.
[e] To rob him of the money he carried up to Jerusalem, or to kill him. 2 Cor. 8. 19. & 7. 5. Rom. 15. 26. ch. 9. 23. & 26. 21.
[f] Ch. 17. 10. & 19. 29. & 27. 2. Col. 4. 10. Philem. 24.
[g] Not ch. 19. 29. but 1 Cor. 1. 14. Rom. 16. 23. 3 John 1.
[h] Ch. 16. 1. 1 Tim. 1. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 2. Heb. 13. 23.
[i] Eph. 6. 21. Col. 4. 7. 2 Tim. 4. 12. Tit. 3. 12.
[k] 2 Tim. 4. 20. ch. 21. 29.
[l] Ch. 16. 8. 2 Cor. 2. 12. 2 Tim. 4. 13.
[m] Ch. 16. 12. Phil. 1. 1.
[n] Exod. 12. 18, 19. & 13. 6, 7. & 34. 18.

[b] Paul called unto him the disciples, and embraced them, and [c] departed for to go into Macedonia. 2. And when he had gone over those parts, and [d] had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece, 3. And there abode three months. And when the Jews [e] laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia. 4. And there accompanied him into Asia, [f] Sopater of Berea; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and [g] Gaius of Derbe, and [h] Timotheus; and of Asia, [i] Tychicus [k] and Trophimus. 5. These, going before, tarried for us at [l] Troas. 6. And we sailed away from [m] Philippi after the [n] days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days: where we abode seven days.

Verses 1—6. Soon after the uproar, which Demetrius had raised, was ceased, Paul determined to proceed on his journey, as he had before purposed.

1. After an affectionate parting with the brethren, Paul departed for Macedonia to visit the churches he had planted; and, having gone over those parts, and given them much exhortation to persevere, amidst all opposition, in the profession of the faith which they had embraced, he came into Greece, into Achaia, where he abode three months, employed in the same profitable manner, confirming and strengthening the faithful: and from thence was purposing to sail for Syria, in order to go directly to Jerusalem; but, by intelligence or inspiration, having learnt that the Jews intended to waylay, murder, and rob him of the collection which the churches had made for their poor brethren in Judea, he changed his route, and returned through Macedonia.

2. The companions of his travels into Asia were Sopater of Berea, Rom. xvi. 21. of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus; and now Luke the historian, who had probably been left in those parts before, to carry on the work so prosperously begun, seems to have joined the apostle's train. The rest going before, tarried for Paul and Luke, and those who accompanied them at Troas; whither they followed immediately after the passover, sailed from Philippi; and in five days joined their companions at Troas, where they staid seven days.

[o] John 20. 1, 19, 26. 1 Cor. 16. 2. Rev. 1. 10.
[p] Ch. 2. 42, 46. 1 Cor. 10. 16. & 11 23—28.
[q] 2 Tim. 4. 2. ver. 31. 1 Cor. 15. 10.
[r] Luke 22. 12. ch. 1. 13. & 9. 39.
[s] Mat. 26. 40, 41. Jon. 1. 5.
[*] The words of the Evangelist decidedly indicate that Eutychus was killed by the fall.
[t] 1 Kin. 17. 21. 2 Kin. 4. 32.

7. ¶ And upon the [o] first day of the week, when the disciples came together [p] to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and [q] continued his speech until midnight. 8. And there were many lights in the [r] upper chamber, where they were gathered together. 9. And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into [s] a deep sleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.* 10. And Paul went down, [t] and fell on him, and embracing him, said, [u] Trouble not yourselves; for his life is in him. 11. When he therefore was come upagain, and [v] had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, [w] even till break of day, so he departed. 12. And [x] they brought the young man alive, and [y] were not a little comforted.

[u] Mat 9. 24. John 11. 11, 44. ch. 8 40, 41.
[v] Ver. 7.
[w] Ver. 7, 9.
[x] Ver. 10.
[y] Isa. 40. 1. 2 Cor. 1. 4. Eph. 6. 22. 1 Thes. 3. 2.

Verses 7—12. Seven days the apostle abode at Troas, desirous to spend one Lord's day with the disciples before he went on his journey. And a blessed day, no doubt, it was to the church in that place.

1. According to their established custom, upon the first day of the week, which had succeeded to the Jewish sabbath, and in memory of the Lord's resurrection, and the descent of the Holy Ghost, was consecrated henceforward to God's more immediate service in all acts of religious worship, and for the public administration of the ordinances, the disciples came together to break bread, commemorating, as they constantly did every week, the sacrifice and sufferings of their Lord. Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow: and having much to say, and being probably not likely ever again to have another opportunity of speaking to them, his warm heart led him on, so that he continued his speech until midnight, unwearied in exhortation, and addressing himself to those who counted the longest of his discourses short. And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together; they were content to put up with this mean inconvenient place of meeting; and, as no deeds of darkness were found among them, they took care the place should be well illumined, to confute the malicious insinuations of their enemies. Note, According to the practice of the apostles and the primitive church, the first day of the week is appointed for the assemblies of the faithful disciples of Jesus to join in all acts of religious worship, hear his word, partake of his ordinances, and maintain communion with each other. They who neglect the assembling of themselves together, as the manner of some is, evidently show that they have renounced Christianity, and have no part nor lot among the faithful in Christ Jesus.

2. A melancholy accident happened to a youth in the company, whose name was Eutychus. He sat in a window that was open; and the apostle lengthening his sermon so much more than usual, sleep overtook the young man, and falling backward through the window, which was three stories high, he was killed on the spot. A warning to those who sleep under sermons, where they have none of those things to plead which might be urged in his excuse.

3. Paul raises him again to life. It served for a momentary interruption to the assembly, but in the issue contributed to the furtherance of their faith and joy. The apostle immediately went down and fell on him, and embracing him, as Elijah stretched himself on the dead corpse of the widow of Sarepta's son, 1 Kings xvii. 21. said, Trouble not yourselves, for his life is in him, restored by divine power. Then he returned to the room where they had assembled, and after the administration of the Lord's supper, spent the remainder of the night, till break of day, in sweet communion and conversation; when, in the most affectionate manner, he took his leave. But, before they parted, they brought the young man alive, into the assembly; and were not a little comforted, as some reproach might have been cast upon them, had he thus died: but now it tended to the credit of the gospel. Note, (1.) They who know the sweetness and profit of Christian conference, are glad to improve every moment of the company of those faithful ministers whose discourse so greatly tends to quicken and comfort them. (2.) Providences that appear at first view very afflictive, God can, and often doth over-rule to the increase of our joy.

13. ¶ And we went before to ship, and sailed unto * Assos, there intending to take in Paul: for so had he appointed, minding himself to go afoot. 14. And when he met with us at Assos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene. 15. And we sailed thence, and came the next day over against Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus. 16. For Paul had determined to [x] sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted, if it were possible for him, to be at Jerusalem the [y] day of Pentecost.†

* Assos, Trogyllium, and Miletus, were maritime cities of Lesser Asia, on the east shore of the Mediterranean sea. Mitylene was a city of the isle of Lesbos. Lesbos, Chios, now Scio, and Samos, were noted islands near the shore.

x Ch. 18. 21. & 21. 4, 12. & 19. 21.

y Ch. 2. 2. Lev. 23. 15—21. Num. 28. 26—31. Exod. 23. 16, 17. & 34. 22, 23. with ch. 24. 17.

† It was a time of concourse, which would give him an opportunity of propagating the gospel among the Jews and proselytes.

Verses 13—16. Paul now without delay hastened to Jerusalem. His companions went by ship before to Assos, where they were to take in Paul, who for some important reasons, which we are not told, resolved to go thither afoot. There embarking, they all sailed for Mitylene, the chief city of the isle of Lesbos, from whence without stopping, they proceeded the next day as far as the isle of Chios, and the next, arriving at Samos, they made a short stay at Trogyllium, a harbour in the promontory of Mycele in Asia, and the next arrived at Miletus, sailing by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted, if it were possible for him, to be at Jerusalem the day of Pentecost; and he apprehended the importunity of his Ephesian friends might have delayed him. Note, When the glory of God, and the business of our station, calls for our attendance, pleasant and delightful as it is to enjoy the company of our dear friends, we must forego that satisfaction.

17. ¶ And from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the [z] elders of the church. 18. And when they were come to him, he said unto them, [a] Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons, 19. [b] Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews: 20. And [c] how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you; but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house, 21. [d] Testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. 22. And now, behold, [e] I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there: 23. [f] Save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions ‡ abide me. 24. [g] But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that [h] I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which [i] I have received of the Lord Jesus, [k] to testify the [l] gospel of the grace of God. 25. And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the [m] kingdom of God, shall see my face no more. 26. [n] Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men: 27. [o] For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God. 28. [p] Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which [q] he hath purchased with his own blood. 29. For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous [r] wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. 30. [s] Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. 31. [t] Therefore watch, and remember, that [u] by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears. 32. And now, brethren, [x] I commend you to God, and to [y] the word of his grace, [z] which is able to build you up, and to [a] give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified. 33. [b] I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel. 34. Yea, ye yourselves know, [c] that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me. 35. [d] I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, [e] It is more blessed to give than to receive.

z Or Presbyters. Ver. 28. 1 Tim. 4. 14. & 5. 17. 1 Pet. 5. 1, 3. 3 John 1. Jam. 5. 14.

a 1 Thes. 2. 1—10. & 1. 5, 9. 2 Tim. 4. 2. ch. 19. 1—20. & 18. 19.

b 1 Cor. 2. 3. & 15. 9. 2 Cor. 3. 5. Phil. 3. 18. 1 Cor. 4. 9—13. 2 Cor. 4. 7—11. & 6. 4—10. & 11. 23—29. & 7. 5. Jam. 1. 2.

c Ver. 27, 31. ch. 18. 28. & 2. 46. & 5. 42. Col. 1. 28.

d Ver. 24. Mark 1. 15. Luke 24. 47. ch. 26. 18. John 14. 6. & 17. 3. & 20. 31. & 3. 1, 16, 18.

e Ch. 18. 21. & 19. 21.

f Ch. 9. 16. & 21. 4, 11. & 14. 22. John 16. 33. 2 Tim. 3. 12. 1 Thes. 3. 3.

‡ Or wait for me.

g Ch. 21. 13. Rom. 8. 35. 1 Cor. 15. 31. 2 Cor. 1. 8. & 4. 8, 16. & 6. 4, 9. & 7. 4. & 12. 10. Gal. 6. 14. Eph. 3. 13. & 6. 20. Phil. 1. 12. & 4. 12. Col. 1. 24. 1 Thes. 2. 2. & 3. 3. 2 Tim. 2. 9. & 3. 11. & 4. 7, 16. Heb. 10. 34. & 12. 1.

h John 17. 4. 1 Cor. 9. 24. 2 Tim. 4. 7. Col. 4. 17.

i Gal. 1. 1. Tit. 1. 3. ch. 9. 15. & 22. 21. & 26. 17, 18. & 13. 1—4.

k Ver. 21. John 15. 27. ch. 1. 8. Heb. 2. 3, 4.

l Ch. 14. 3. Tit. 2. 11, 12. Luke 2. 10, 11. Rom. 5. 20, 21.

m Ver. 24. Mark 1. 1, 14, 15. ch. 28. 23. Mat. 13. 19, 52.

n Ch. 18. 6. 1 Thes. 2. 10—12. Ezek. 3. 18—21. & 33. 4—9.

o Ver. 20. Luke 7. 30. 1 Cor. 11. 23. Is. 8. 20. Ezek. 3. 17. Mat. 28. 20. John 15. 15. ch. 26. 22, 23.

p 1 Cor. 9. 27. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Heb. 13. 17. John 21. 15—17. ch. 13. 2. & 14. 23. Phil. 1. 1. 1 Pet. 5. 2, 3.

q 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. Rev. 5. 9. Heb. 9. 12, 14. Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. Is. 53. 10—12.

r Ver. 30. Mat. 7. 15. 2 Pet. 1. 1.

s Mat. 26. 21. 1 John 2. 19. Rev. 2. 6. ch. 1. 17. 1 Tim. 1. 20.

t 1 Pet. 5. 8. Mark 14. 38. Rev. 16. 15. & 2. 5. Heb. 13. 17.

u Ch. 19. 10. & 26. 7. 1 Thes. 2. 9, 10. 1 Thes. 3. 8. 2 Tim. 1. 3. Col. 1. 28.

x Ch. 14. 23, 26. & 15. 40. Jer. 49. 11.

y Ver. 24. Luke 2. 10, 11.

z John 15. 3. & 17. 17. ch. 9. 31. Col. 2. 2. Jude 20, 21. Heb. 13. 9. & 6. 12, 14.

a Jer. 3. 19. ch. 26. 18. Eph. 1. 18.

b Num. 16. 2, 15. 1 Sam. 12. 3, 5. 1 Cor. 9. 12 2 Cor. 7. 2. & 11. 9. & 12. 13, 14.

c 1 Cor. 4. 12. 1 Thes. 2. 9. & 4. 11. 2 Thes. 3. 8. ch. 18. 3.

d Ver. 20, 27. 1 Thes. 5. 14. Is. 35. 3. Rom. 12. 15. Eph. 4. 28. Heb. 13. 1, 3. & 12. 12, 13. Eph. 4. 28. 10. 8. Is. 32. 8.

e Prov. 19. 17. Heb. 13. 16. Mat.

Verses 17—35. Though Paul would not call at Ephesus, he greatly desired to see the elders of the church, and therefore sent for them to Miletus, who gladly attended him, where he addressed to them this most affecting and solemn discourse, that can scarce now be read by any gracious heart without a tear.

1. He opens with a noble appeal to them concerning his life and doctrine during the time he had sojourned among them.

(1.) As to his life. Ye know from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons, how exemplary, holy, and unblameable his conversation had been; how uniform his conduct; how steady amidst all his trials; serving the Lord with all humility of mind. His Master's service was his one business; and, amidst all the honour which the Lord had put upon him, he sought no glory nor applause; but, with the lowliest thoughts of himself, and deepest condescension towards others, was ready to stoop to any service, even to the meanest, whereby the Saviour might be glorified, and the bodies or souls of men be benefited: and with many tears, in his prayers for them, and affectionate discourses to them, deeply concerned for those who obstinately rejected the counsel of God against their own souls, tenderly sympathizing with the afflictions of the faithful, and lamenting over backsliders and apostates: and with many temptations which befell me by the laying in wait of the Jews, ever contriving his destruction: in all which his approved fidelity had been abundantly manifested, and his example remained for their imitation.

(2.) As to his doctrine. Ye know how I kept back from you nothing that was profitable unto you, not shunning with all simplicity and sincerity to declare the whole counsel of God; unawed by fears, undismayed by difficulties, uninfluenced by any worldly motives: and have showed and taught you publicly in the congregation, and privately from house to house, continually labouring to diffuse a sweet savour of Christ, and to communicate edification, encouragement, and consolation, wherever he went; testifying both to the Jews and also to the Greeks, with the most earnest affection and concern, repentance toward God, the necessity and nature of it, as implying a deep and humbling sense of sin, its evil, malignity, and danger: a genuine self-abhorrence in the view of its guilt and ingratitude, with an unfeigned and unreserved renunciation of it, and real conversion of heart to the love and service of a pardoning God; and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ, directing sinners to him as the great object of all their hopes, describing the fulness, freedom, and all-sufficiency of his salvation, and urging them to trust in his blood, righteousness, and grace, for pardon, peace, adoption, and glory. Note, (1.) What was Paul's doctrine must be ours, if ever we would approve ourselves to God, and profit men's souls; under the influence of the Spirit desiring to lead them to a deep conviction of their ruin, and an humbling sense of their sin, and then to point out the glorious remedy provided in a crucified Jesus. (2.) They who have the care of immortal souls lying upon them can never be enough diligent. Their private conversation must breathe the same spirit as their discourses in the pulpit, and every company where they are found should be the wiser and better for them. (3.) No fear or shame should ever lead us to suppress a tittle of those glorious gospel truths which are so offensive to human pride; at least it should be our labour to deliver our own souls, whether men will hear or whether they will forbear.

2. He lets them know what a scene of sufferings was before him. He left them not to avoid the cross, but was about to encounter greater persecutions than ever. And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, by the mighty constrainings of the Holy Ghost led thither, and fully determined in my own soul to follow his guidance and direction; not knowing the things that shall befall me there; the particular sufferings to which he should be exposed God had not revealed to him; save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me; either in general he had this notice given him, or in every city he passed through the divinely inspired prophets foretold the sufferings which awaited him: but none of these things move me, to terrify him from his duty, or shake his constant mind; neither count I my life dear unto myself; valuable as it was, he paid no regard to it, when the cause of Christ called him to brave death and danger, content to suffer whatever the Lord pleased to permit, so that I might finish my course with joy, accomplishing his blessed Master's work, and reaching the prize of his high calling: and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God, freely and openly publishing the unsearchable riches of Christ, and proving by the fullest evidence the truth he declared; displaying in the most reviving manner the sovereign, unmerited, boundless love, and effectual grace of God, manifested in the gospel of his dear Son towards sinners. Note, (1.) If our hearts are truly fixed on God, and our conversation in heaven, we shall look down upon the malice of men and devils as unable to hurt us, and fearless put our lives in our hands, when Christ calls for them. (2.) Life is our race, and death the goal, our one concern is to finish our course with joy, and that, by persevering fidelity approving ourselves to God, we may receive the crown of life and glory which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to all his faithful servants. (3.) Our ministry is received of the Lord, and to him must we shortly render up the solemn account. (4.) The grand subject of all our discourses, if we would fulfil that ministry we have received of the Lord, must be the gospel of the grace of God, in opposition to all the pride of duties and human self-sufficiency, labouring to make lost sinners know the necessity of a free justification through the blood and righteousness of a Redeemer, and, from a view of their utter impotence and corruption, to lead them to those supplies of grace and strength which can only be derived from him.

3. He informs them that he is now taking his last leave of them, and appeals to God for his freedom from the blood of all men. And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, the doctrines, privileges, and duties thereof, shall see my face no more, nor ever again enjoy my personal ministry among you. Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men; for I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God. He appeals therefore to them in the presence of God for his fidelity: the whole truths of the gospel, so far as God had revealed it to him, he had declared; and now, if any soul among them perished, their blood was on their own heads; he was free. Note, (1.) It is a singular satisfaction when we can make such an appeal to God, and those to whom we have ministered, for our simplicity and faithfulness in the discharge of our sacred trust. (2.) The whole counsel of God without reserve, must be declared: the truths of God need no concealment: and they show their ignorance of the spirit of the gospel, who, with timidity, mention its glorious privileges, pretending fear lest the sovereign, free, and boundless grace of God should be perverted to licentiousness. We must declare it: let men abuse it at their peril.

4. He gives them a solemn parting charge. Take heed to yourselves, that your own conversation may be exemplary, and your souls influenced by that gospel you preach to others; and to the flock committed to your charge, for whom you must give an awful account shortly before the great Shepherd and Bishop of souls; over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, appointing you to your office, and furnishing you with gifts for the discharge of it; to feed the church of God with knowledge and understanding, and with wisdom and meekness to preside over them; which he hath purchased with his own blood; the inestimable value of their souls therefore is evident, when he who is very God became incarnate, and submitted to the death of the cross, to make atonement for their sins, and to purchase them for his own. Did Jesus bleed to redeem his people, and can we be his servants, and not desire to spend and be spent in the service of their faith? Surely a negligent minister, beyond all others, tramples under foot the blood of the Son of God.

5. He warns them of the dangers which they would be called to contend against, and exhorts them to be watchful. For I know this, by revelation, that after my departure shall grievous wolves enter in among you; both persecutors will ravage, and false teachers more terribly seek to corrupt the faith, and ruin the souls of the people, not sparing the flock, using every vile art to seduce, insnare, and destroy them. Also of your own selves shall men arise, of those who now perhaps make a fair profession, and in whom you place confidence; speaking perverse things, departing from the simplicity of the gospel, broaching pernicious heresies, and introducing dangerous innovations, to draw away disciples after them, and erect themselves into heads of sects and parties; see 2 Tim. i. 15. ii. 18. Therefore watch; the greatest vigilance would be necessary, and being forewarned they were forearmed, and should with indefatigable diligence endeavour to confirm the disciples' faith, and caution them against those deluders, that they may not by them be moved away from the hope of the gospel: and remember the example which I have set you, which you are called to imitate, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears, so fervently and affectionately had he been concerned for them, carefully observing the first efforts of deceivers, jealous over the least appearances of a declension from the purity of the faith, and the simplicity of the gospel, lamenting with deepest sorrow when they staggered or fainted in their mind, and declined from their holy profession; and, ceaseless in his admonitions, he endeavoured to recover the fallen, and to warn others to be more watchful, taught by their sad examples. O that we, who are put in trust with the gospel, may be enabled to show such zeal, fidelity, and affectionate concern towards the souls of our people!

6. He solemnly commends them to the divine care and keeping. And now brethren, having admonished you of the dangers you must encounter, and knowing that more than mortal wisdom and strength is needful for you, that you may approve your fidelity to Christ, I commend you to God, to his power to protect, his wisdom to guide, his Spirit to comfort you; and to the word of his grace, to his written and revealed word, for your conduct and direction, or to the essential Word Christ Jesus, out of whose fulness they should receive grace, and by him be preserved and kept steadfast amidst all the wiles of deceivers and the opposition of persecutors; which is able to build you up, in faith, hope, and holiness, to establish you unto the end, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified, preparing you for that kingdom which he hath prepared for you, and bringing you at last to an inheritance among his saints in light and glory everlasting. Note, (1.) Our keeping is not in our own hands: left to ourselves we must soon fall; but by grace we are saved. (2.) None may hope for a part among God's saints in heaven, who are not partakers of their grace upon earth, and sanctified by the Holy Ghost. (3.) The gospel is the great means of producing, through the power of divine grace, true sanctification. (4.) The kingdom of glory is the inheritance of God's people, being chosen in Christ Jesus before the foundation of the world, called by his word, and justified by faith; their title is indefeasible, and the possession secured; they can never perish, but shall have everlasting life.

7. He particularly reminds them of the deadness which he had shown to this world, and his labours, that he might not be beholden to any man for a provision, whilst he freely preached the gospel. I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel, content with what he could obtain from his own industry, and burdensome to none of them for a maintenance. Yea, ye yourselves know, that these hands have ministered to my necessities; entitled as he was to a liberal provision, he chose for the sake of the gospel to wave his right, and to work hard at his trade, by which he was enabled to earn a subsistence not only for himself, but also to help them that were with me, who were less able to provide for themselves: and this he did with a view particularly to the false teachers, that he might remove every shadow of objection which they would have been glad to urge against him. Thus, by an example, I have showed you all things, how that so labouring, as I have done, ye ought to support the weak, assisting the necessitous and relieving their wants, and removing every handle of prejudice which the deceivers might seek to instil into the minds of the weak brethren, as if they laboured for mercenary ends. And, to encourage them hereunto, he begs them to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive; it is more godlike, a mark of a more noble Christian spirit, to relieve the wants of others, and lay out ourselves for their good without a recompense, than to be burdensome to them for a maintenance.

36. ¶ And when he had thus spoken, [f] he kneeled down, and prayed with them all. 37. [g] And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him; 38. Sorrowing most of all for the words which he spake, [h] that they should see his face no more. And [i] they accompanied him unto the ship.

[f] Ch. 7. 60. & 21. 5. & 16. 13. Phil. 4. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 7.
[g] Gen. 33. 4. & 45. 14. & 46. 29. 1 Sam. 20. 41. Luke 15. 20.
[h] Ver. 25.
[i] Ch. 15. 3. & 17. 10. & 21. 5, 16. 1 Cor. 16. 11.

Verses 36—38. Having finished this most affecting discourse,

1. He kneeled down and prayed with them all, commending them solemnly to the Lord Jesus, and begging, no doubt, that they might be enabled faithfully to discharge the solemn trust committed to them, and observe the good counsel he had delivered. Note, (1.) Ministers must water the word sown with their prayers, that God may give the increase. (2.) Friends will do well to part in prayers, that if it please God they may meet here again in peace; and, if not, that they may together shortly unite their never-ending praises before the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2. They parted with floods of tears and the most affectionate embraces. They all wept sore, deeply affected with his discourse, his prayer, and his departure from them; and fell on Paul's neck and kissed him, taking their last farewell of their dear pastor, with hearts full of love, and swelling with grief; sorrowing most of all for the words which he spoke, that they should see his face no more. To part was bitter; to part for a long while, would have been yet more irksome; but to part without the hope of ever meeting again among the living, this added peculiar anguish to the separation, and antedated the funeral sorrows; it was a kind of living burial. And they accompanied him unto the ship, willing to enjoy his company to the last moment, and to testify their deep respect and fervent love towards him. Note, Though our friends may be separated from us, so that we can see their face no more, it is our consolation, if we are united in one Jesus, that we shall assuredly meet in a better world, never to part again.

CHAP. XXI.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter we have, 1. A journal of Paul's voyage from Ephesus to Cesarea, ver. 1—7. 2. The struggles he had with his friends at Cesarea, who mightily opposed his going up to Jerusalem, but could not prevail, ver. 8—14. 3. Paul's journey from Cesarea to Jerusalem, and the kind entertainment which the Christians there gave him, ver. 15—17. 4. In condescension to the prejudices of the Jews, and by the advice of the brethren, he purifies himself in the temple according to the law, ver. 18—26. 5. The turning of this very thing against him by the Jews, and the apprehending of him in the temple as a criminal thereupon, ver. 27—30. 6. The fair escape he had of being pulled to pieces by the rabble, and the taking of him into fair and legal custody by the chief captain, who permitted him to speak for himself to the people, ver. 31—40.

1. AND it came to pass, that, after we were gotten from them, and had launched, we came with a straight course unto * Coos, and the day following unto * Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara: [a] 2. And, [a] finding a ship sailing over unto [b] Phenicia, we went aboard, and set forth. 3. Now, when we had discovered * Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed into [b] Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden. 4. And, [c] finding disciples, [d] we tarried there seven days: who said to Paul through the Spirit, [e] that he should not go up to Jerusalem. 5. And when we had accomplished those days, we departed, and went our way; and they [f] all brought us on our way, [g] with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and [h] we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed. 6. And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship; and they [i] returned home again. 7. And when we had finished our course from Tyre, we came to † Ptolemais, and [j] saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

* Coos, Rhodes, and Cyprus are islands in the east part of the Mediterranean sea.
[a] Ch. 27. 6. Jon. 1. 3.
[b] On the north-west of Canaan Ch. 11. 19. & 15. 3. Josh. 19 28, 29.

b Mat. 5. 24. & 15. 21. Mark 7. 24, 26. ch. 20. 3. c Ch. 20. 6. Ps. 119. 63. & 45. 12. & 87. 4. Is. 23. 18.
d Ch. 20. 6, 7. Rev. 1. 10. John 20. 19, 26.
e Ch. 20. 23. ver. 11, 12.
f Ch. 15. 2. & 17. 10. ver. 16. ch. 20. 38.
g Gen. 18. 19. Josh. 24. 15. Prov. 22. 6. Eph. 6. 4.
h Ch. 16. 13. & 20. 36. & 7. 60.
i John 16. 32. & 16. 27.
† A city on the west of Canaan.
j Ver. 19. ch. 18. 22. & 25. 13. 1 Sam. 10. 4. & 13. 10.

Verses 1—7. With deepest reluctance he had, as it were by violence, torn himself from the embraces of his dear Ephesian brethren; and now, since God hath so ordained, he pursues his voyage.

1. He proceeds to Tyre. They came in a straight course to Coos; the next day to Rhodes, famed for its Colossus; and thence to Patara, whither the ship in which they sailed was bound, or was from thence to take a different course from that which they pursued; therefore providentially finding another ship ready to sail for Phenicia, they embarked, and leaving Cyprus on the left, arrived on the coast of Syria, and landed at Tyre, where the ship was to unlade her burden.

2. Seven days Paul and his companions halted at this famed mart, spending one Lord's day with the disciples which they found there, and improving his short stay for their edification and comfort. Note, When we travel, we should inquire after the disciples; their profession will make them singular, and they may be easily found.

3. There he received from some of the inspired prophets of the church, a warning of the dangers which were before him, and that if he meant to escape them, he must not go to Jerusalem; but his resolution was fixed, and his call evident, and therefore he departed at the expiration of the seven days.

4. They took a solemn farewell of him, when he thus determined to proceed, and brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city, willing to show the apostle and his companions the greatest honour and respect, and desirous that they and theirs might at the last moment improve the blessing of his presence and company: and we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed for the blessing of God on this voyage, and upon those who were left behind. Then affectionately taking their leave of each other, the apostle and his friends proceeded on their course, and the Tyrian brethren returned.

5. From Tyre they sailed to Ptolemais, where Paul went on shore, desirous to salute the brethren, though he could stay but one day with them, yet one day of his company must have been a singular blessing and comfort to them. The visits of such men, though short, are highly to be prized.

8. And the next day, we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto [k] Cesarea; and we entered into the house of [l] Philip the evangelist, which was one of the seven, and abode with him. 9. And the same man had four daughters, k A city on the west of Canaan. Ch. 8. 40. & 9. 30. & 10. 1. & 18. 22. & 23. 23.

l Ch. 6. 5. & 8. 5, 12, 26—40. Eph. 4. 11.

virgins, [m] which did prophesy. 10. ¶ And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named [n] Agabus. 11. And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, [o] Thus saith the Holy Ghost, so shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and [p] shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles. 12. And when we heard these things, both we, and they of that place, [q] besought him not to go up to Jerusalem. 13. Then Paul answered, [r] What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus. 14. And when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, [s] The will of the Lord be done.

m Ch. 2. 17. Joel 2. 28.
n Ch. 11. 28.
o Ver. 33. ch. 20. 23. & 24. 27. & 25. 14. & 26. 29. Eph. 3. 1. & 6. 20. Phil. 1. 7, 13. 2 Tim. 2. 9. Heb. 10. 34. Col. 1. 24. with Mat. 16. 21. p Ch. 28. 17. Mat. 20. 18, 19. & 27. 1, 2.
q Ver. 4. Mat. 16. 22.
r Ch. 10. 24. Rom. 8. 35. 1 Cor. 4. 9. & 15. 31. 2 Cor. 4. 10. & 11. 25. Gal. 6. 17. Phil. 1. 20. & 2. 17. Col. 1. 24. 2 Tim. 4. 6. s 1 Sam. 3. 18. 2 Sam. 15. 25. & 16. 10, 11. Ps. 39. 9. Mat. 6. 10. & 26. 39, 42. Luke 11. 2. & 22. 42.

Verses 8—14. From Ptolemais they journeyed to Cesarea, where they designed to make some considerable stay.

1. At Cesarea, Philip, the evangelist, hospitably received them. He was one of the seven deacons, and after his successful labours among the Samaritans, and with the Ethiopian eunuch, was now settled in this great city. He had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy, endued with the miraculous gift of foretelling future events. (Joel ii. 28.)

2. There Paul receives a full prediction of the sufferings which were before him. As we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named Agabus, who had foretold the famine, (chap. xi. 28.) and now, probably on purpose, came with this prophetic intelligence. Taking up Paul's girdle, he bound his own hands, and then his feet therewith, to affect the spectators the more by this significant action, which he explained, as what should shortly happen to the owner of that girdle, whom the Jews should thus bind and deliver as a criminal to the Romans.

3. Paul's companions, as well as the brethren at Cesarea, hearing these melancholy tidings, united in dissuading him from going to Jerusalem; and with tears entreated him to consult the safety of that life, which, however ready he might be to part with, would be to them a loss irreparable.

4. Paul nobly replied to their entreaties, What mean ye to weep, and to break mine heart? Their tears affected him more than all his own expected sufferings; they were a temptation to shake his courage; and it troubled him, both that they should show such timorousness, and dissuade him from what was his duty; and that he should be obliged to deny them any request; since he could not comply with them without grieving the Spirit, under whose influence he now acted, and therefore he dares defy the fury of all his persecutors; for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus; prepared, if God so pleased, to shed his blood in confirmation of the truth which he preached, and to glorify his Master, as a martyr in his cause. Note, (1.) The foolish fondness of our friends is often a more dangerous trial than the avowed opposition of our enemies. (2.) Faithful souls are unmoved with the fear of sufferings. Death is welcome if Jesus be but glorified thereby.

5. Perceiving his unshaken resolution, his friends desisted, submitting to the will of God, and acquiescing in his determination, which they perceived proceeded not from any inflexibility of temper, but from the conviction that he acted agreeably to the call of God's Spirit. Note, Submission to God's will is not only our duty, but should be our delight, when we know that all he does is righteous, and that it will ultimately tend to our good, as well as his own glory.

15. And after those days we took up our carriages,* and went up to Jerusalem. 16. [s] There went with us also certain of the disciples of [t] Cesarea, and brought with them one Mnason of [u] Cyprus, an [x] old disciple, with whom we should lodge. 17. ¶ And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us [y] gladly. 18. And the day following Paul went in with us unto [z] James; and all the elders were present. 19. And when he had saluted them, [a] he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministry. 20. And when they had heard it, they [b] glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, [c] how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all [d] zealous of the law: 21. And they are informed of thee, [e] that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the customs. 22. What is it therefore? [f] the multitude must needs come together; for they will hear that thou art come. 23. Do therefore this that we say to thee: [g] we have four men which have a vow on them; 24. Them take, and purify thyself with them, and be at charges with them, that they may shave their heads: † and all may know that those things, whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that [h] thou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the law. 25. As touching the Gentiles which believe, [i] we have written and concluded that they observe no such things, save only that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from fornication. 26. Then Paul took the men, [k] and the next day, purifying himself with them, entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.

* Rather, we put up our baggage. The word denotes any thing that is carried, baggage, or baggage.

[s] See ver. 5. ch. 10. 48.

[t] See ver. 8.

[u] See ver. 3. ch. 11. 19. & 4. 36. & 13. 4. & 15. 39.

[x] Prov. 16. 31. & 22. 6. Ps. 92. 14. Job 5. 26.

[y] 1 Pet. 4. 9. Ps. 16. 3. Heb. 13. 1, 2. Ps. 119. 63.

[z] Ch. 15. 13 Gal. 1. 19. & 2. 9. Jam. 1. 1. ch. 15. 2, 6. & 20. 17.

[a] Ch. 14. 27. & 15. 12. & xvi—xx.

[b] Ch. 11. 18. Luke 7. 16. Ps. xcvi, xcviii, c, cv, cxiv.

[c] Ch. 2. 41, 47. & 4. 4. & 5. 14. & 6. 7. Mat. 13. 31. Ps. 72. 16, 17. John 12. 24.

[d] Ch. 15. 1. Rom. 10. 2. Gal. 1. 14. ch. 22. 3.

[e] Ch. 6. 14. Gal. 5. 1—14.

[f] Ch. 15. 12—22.

[g] Ch. 18. 18. & 24. 18. Num. 6. 2, 18, 19.

† It was not unusual among the Jews to defray the expenses of Nazarites in sacrificing on their being released from their vow. The charges of these four would be the price of eight lambs and four rams, with oil and flour.

[h] 1 Cor. 9. 20.

[i] Ch. 15. 20, 28, 29. 1 Cor. viii, x. Exod. 34. 15. Lev. 17. 14. & 3. 17. & 19. 26. Deut. 12. 16, 23. & 15. 23. 1 Sam. 14. 32. Gen. 9. 4. 1 Cor. 5. 1, 9, 11. & 7. 2. Heb. 13. 4. 1 Thes. 4. 3, 5, 7.

[k] Num. 6. 13—20. ch. 24. 18.

Verses 15—26.

1. The journey of Paul and his companions to Jerusalem. His resolution was taken, and they, if they cannot dissuade him from his purpose, are ready cheerfully to share the danger: they therefore packed up their baggage, which they perhaps carried on their backs, and marched forward accompanied by other brethren of Cesarea, and brought with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an old disciple, venerable for his age, and his long standing in the profession of Christianity, with whom we should lodge, he having a house at Jerusalem, and during the festival lodgings were difficult to be obtained.

2. The brethren at Jerusalem gave him at his arrival a most hearty welcome. And the day following, Paul went in with us unto James, the only apostle who seems to have been at that time resident at Jerusalem; and all the elders were present; when, after friendly salutations passed, Paul gave them a particular and distinct account of all the churches which had been planted by his ministry, and the great success which God had given to his labours; which gave them the most singular satisfaction, and excited their warmest praises, they glorified the Lord, who had done such great things by him. Note, God must have the glory of all our success; for whatever our labours are, it is he who giveth the increase.

3. James, in the name of the rest, hereupon offers his brother Paul his advice, desiring him, in condescension to the prejudices of the Jewish brethren, to show his compliance with the ceremonial law. For though it was by no means to be imposed on the Gentile converts, nor was any justification before God in whole or in part to be expected from it; yet being still attached to those rites, to which from their infancy they had been taught to pay such reverence, as being of divine appointment, the Jewish converts in general were zealous for their observance: and as it was not sinful to comply with them herein, they judged it would be prudent in him to conform to them for the maintenance of mutual love and peace. The number of the disciples from the Jews was now increased to many thousands, or rather myriads, ten thousands: and many had imbibed prejudices against Paul, through the false reports of the Judaizing teachers, as if, not content with teaching the Gentiles that they were free from the ceremonial law, he had also dissuaded the Jews from conforming thereto, leading them to apostatize from the institutions of Moses, and to discontinue the usage of circumcision. What therefore was to be done in the present case? the multitude must soon know of his coming, and there was danger of their assembling together to complain of him, as prejudiced against him. To promote therefore Paul's usefulness, which might be impeded hereby; and to reconcile them to him, who had deserved so highly of the church of God, they propose to him an expedient which would silence the cavillers, and remove the prejudices of his Jewish brethren, who, when they saw him conform to the law, would be convinced of the falsehood of the reports which had been propagated concerning him. They advise him therefore to join himself with four other converted Jews, who were under a vow of Nazaritism, and to go through the usual rites with them, providing the sacrifices offered on this occasion, (Num. vi. 1—8.) which would most effectually silence gainsayers: not that this should be any infringement of the Gentile liberty, that being already determined by a solemn decree.

4. Paul, willing to the weak to become as weak, readily yielded to their proposal; and taking with him the men who were under a vow of Nazaritism, entered peaceably into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, to the priests, which they would observe with the usual rites, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them, as the law directed, Num. vi. 13—20.

Some have censured Paul's compliance, as countenancing the Jews in prejudices which ought to have been opposed; but it should seem that the thing was justifiable, and agreeable to the avowed maxim on which he always proceeded, (1 Cor. ix. 20.) for which end he had also circumcised Timothy; willing to please all men for their good to edification; charitably condescending to the infirmities of the weak; desirous, as far as he could with a good conscience, to comply with them in all indifferent matters, if by any means he might save some.

27. ¶ And when the seven days were almost ended, [l] the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, [m] stirred up all the people, and laid hands on him, 28. Crying out, Men of Israel, [n] help: this is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and, further, brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place. 29. (For they had seen before with him in the city [o] Trophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.) 30. [p] And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were [q] shut. 31. And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in an uproar. 32. Who immediately took soldiers and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers, they left beating of Paul. 33. Then the chief captain came near, and took him and commanded him to be [r] bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had done. 34. [s] And some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the castle.* 35. And when he came upon the stairs, so it was, that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the people. 36. For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, [t] Away with him. 37. ¶ And as Paul was to be led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speak Greek? 38. Art not thou that Egyptian,† which before these days madest an uproar, and leddest out into the wilderness four thousand men that were murderers? 39. But Paul said, [x] I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus,‡ a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and, I beseech thee, [y] suffer me to speak unto the people. 40. And when he had given him licence, Paul stood on the stairs, and [z] beckoned with the hand unto the people. And when there was made a great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew* tongue, saying, Verses 27—40. Henceforward we shall find the faithful Paul in bonds, and see him no more at liberty to the end of this history.

1. A tumult is raised against Paul. When he had nearly accomplished the seven days' attendance on the temple, and was about to offer his sacrifice, the Jews of Asia, who had come up to celebrate the passover, observed him in the temple; and, fired with rage, as if his presence there was a profanation of the holy place, they incensed the people against him; and, raising a mob, as if he was the vilest criminal alive, they cried out for every Israelite to help in seizing and punishing most exemplary such a miscreant, whom they accused of apostasy from their religion, and as the arch-seducer, teaching every where, with a view to prejudice men against the Jewish church and nation, against the sacred law of Moses, and that hallowed temple in which they so highly gloried. And not content therewith, they charge him with the most atrocious profanation of that holy place, by introducing uncircumcised Gentiles into the court of the Israelites; a calumny malicious and false in the highest degree, and grounded on the mere seeing Trophimus, an Ephesian, in Paul's company in the city. Note, (1.) The cause of Christ hath been often run down by noise and clamour; and the ministers of truth have been first branded with an ill name, and then suggestions have been cast out against them, as if they were guilty of ill things. (2.) Innocence is no protection against calumny: some strained inuendo, or misrepresentation, easily turns the most innocent word or action into something highly criminal.

2. The city was soon in an uproar: exasperated by these suggestions, the people ran together, and seized the apostle, dragged him out of the temple, and forthwith the door was shut, to prevent Paul's flying to the horns of the altar, or the Gentiles from rushing in, or that this holy place might not be defiled with his blood; for the intention of the people was evidently to murder him; and they began now violently to beat him, and must quickly have despatched him.

3. Paul is through the divine providence rescued from instant death. The chief captain of the Roman forces, which kept garrison in the castle of Antonia, hearing of the uproar, ran down with a detachment to quell the tumult; and seeing him appear with an armed force, the people immediately desisted from beating Paul. The captain hereupon having seized and bound him, that it might appear he intended not to rescue him, but to proceed against him in a legal way, demanded who he was, and what he had done. Note, (1.) Popular tumults are highly dangerous, and to be suppressed at their first rising. (2) God can raise up instruments to rescue his suffering servants from a quarter they least expected, and often makes even the earth to help the woman, Rev. xii. 16.

4. The noise was so great, and the clamours so various, that it was impossible for the chief captain to get a satisfactory answer, whilst some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude. Therefore he commanded the prisoner to be carried into the castle, where he might examine into the affair; and as the soldiers guarded Paul thither, the crowd pressed so hard upon them, crying, Away with him, hang him, crucify him, that they were forced to take him in their arms, to prevent his being pulled to pieces, or smothered in the throng.

5. The apostle respectfully begs leave to speak a word with the chief captain, who expresses his surprise to hear him talk

[l] Ch. 24. 18. & 26. 21.
[m] Ch. 13. 50. & 14. 2, 5, 19. & 17. 5, 6, 13. & 18. 12. & 19. 23.
[n] Ch. 6. 14. & 19. 25, 26. & 24. 5, 6. & 16. 20, 21. & 26. 2, 20, 21.
[o] See ch. 20. 4. 2 Tim. 4. 20.
[p] Ch. 16. 20. & 19. 29. & 7. 54. & 26. 21.
[q] To keep Paul from refuge, and the Gentiles from entering. Ver. 28, 29. ch. 24. 6.
[r] Ver. 11. ch. 20. 23.
[s] Ch. 19. 32.
* Built by John Hyrcanus, the high priest, at the N.W. angle of the outer court of the temple. It is described by Josephus in his History of the Jewish Wars, B. v. chap. 5. sect. 8.
[t] Luke 23. 18. John 19. 15. ch. 22. 22. & 7. 54.
[u] Not Theudas, or Judas, ch. 5. 36, 37. but another about A.D. 55.
† There is mention made of this insurgent Egyptian in Josephus, though there is some slight difference betwixt the accounts of the sacred and the uninspired historians. Preference of course is due to the former, but the two accounts do not necessarily involve any absolute discrepancy: for the captain here speaks of the number of followers whom the Egyptian led forth into the wilderness; while Josephus speaks of them as returning to attack Jerusalem.
[x] Ch. 9. 11, 30. & 11. 25. & 22. 3.
‡ Tarsus, now called Tarasso, was an ancient and celebrated city of Cilicia, situated on the Cydnus. From its adherence to the Roman cause, it was much cherished by that people. See note on ch. 22. 25.
[y] 1 Pet. 3. 15. & 4. 15, 16.
[z] Ch. 12. 17. & 13. 16. & 19. 33.
* Or, Syriac derived from it. Ch. 6. 1. & 26. 14. Luke 23. 38. John 5. 2. & 19. 13, 17, 20. Rev. 9. 11. & 16. 16

the Greek language, and intimates his suspicion of him, that he had been that Egyptian impostor, who, a few years before, had raised a sedition at the head of four thousand murderers, who soon increased to a considerable army; but they were defeated, and the ringleader, with a few of his accomplices only, escaped. Paul soon undeceived him, informing him that he was by birth and religion, a Jew, a citizen of Tarsus in Cilicia, a city of distinguished renown, and wished he might be permitted to speak unto the people, to clear himself from the malicious accusations of his persecutors. Note, Many are run down through misrepresentation, and oppressed by those who, if they knew the truth, would never have joined in the cry against them.

6. Lysias, the chief captain, readily granted his request; when Paul standing on the stairs, beckoned with his hand, intimating his desire to speak to them; and a great silence being made thereupon, he addressed to them, in the Hebrew tongue, in that dialect which was in common use, the noble defence recorded in the following chapter.

CHAP. XXII.—ANNO DOMINI, 61.

We have here, 1. Paul's address to the people, and their attention to it, ver. 1, 2. 2. The account he gives of himself: (1.) What a bigotted Jew he had been in the beginning of his time, ver. 3—5. (2.) How he was miraculously converted, and brought over to the faith of Christ, ver. 6—11. (3.) How he was confirmed and baptized by the ministry of Ananias, ver. 12—16. (4.) How he was afterwards called, by an immediate warrant from heaven, to be the apostle of the Gentiles, ver. 17—21. 3. The interruption given him upon this by the rabble, ver. 22, 23. 4. Paul's second rescue out of their hands, and the further course which the chief captain took to find out the true reason of this mighty clamour against Paul, ver. 24, 25. 5. Paul's pleading his privilege as a Roman citizen, by which he was exempted from scourging, ver. 26—29. 6. The chief captain's removing the cause into the high priest's court, and Paul's appearing there, ver. 30.

1. MEN, [a] brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you. 2. (And when they heard that he [b] spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence: and he saith,) 3. [c] I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city [d] at the feet of Gamaliel,* and taught [e] according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day. 4. [f] And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women. 5. [g] As also the high priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the [h] brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished. 6. [i] And it came to pass, that, as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me. 7. And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? 8. And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest. 9. [k] And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they [l] heard not the voice of him that spake to me. 10. [m] And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus, and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do. 11. And [n] when I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into [o] Damascus. 12. [p] And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, [q] having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13. Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And the same hour I looked up upon him. 14. And he said, [r] The God of our fathers [s] hath chosen thee, that thou shouldest know his will, and [t] see that [u] Just One, and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth. 15. For thou shalt be [x] his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard. 16. And now why tarriest thou? [y] arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord. 17. And it came to pass, that, [z] when I was come again to Jerusalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a [a] trance; 18. And saw him saying unto me, [b] Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me. 19. And I said, Lord, they know [c] that I imprisoned, and beat in every synagogue, them that believed on thee: 20. [d] And when the blood of thy martyr † Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him. 21. And he said unto me, Depart: for [e] I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

[a] Ch. 7. 2. & 13. 15, 26, 38. & 15. 7, 13. & 23. 1, 6. & 28. 17.
[b] Ch. 21. 40.
[c] Ch. 21. 39. & 9. 11, 30. & 11. 25. & 26. 3—23.
[d] Deut. 33. 3. 2 Kin. 4. 38. Luke 10. 39. & 8. 35. ch. 5. 34.
* Pupils generally sat below, or at the feet of, their teachers who were placed on elevated seats; but the expression may easily be understood to mean nothing more than that Paul had been a pupil or disciple of Gamaliel.
[e] Gal. 1. 14. Phil. 3. 6. 2 Cor. 11. 22. ch. 24. 16. & 26. 4—9. & 23. 6. & 21. 20. Rom. 10. 2, 3.
[f] Ch. 8. 3. & 9. 1, 13, 14. & 26. 9—11. 1 Cor. 15. 9. Gal. 1. 13. Phil. 3. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
[g] Ch. 9. 2, 14. & 26. 12. Luke 22. 6.
[h] Unbelieving Jews. Rom. 9. 3.
[i] Ch. 9. 3—5, 17. & 26. 12—15. 1 Cor. 9. 1. & 15. 8. 2 Cor. xii.
[k] Ch. 9. 7. Dan. 10. 7.
[l] Did not understand the words. Ch. 26. 14. Gen. 11. 7. & 42. 23. Deut. 28. 49. Is. 36. 11. Mat. 13. 11
[m] Ch. 9. 6. & 26. 16.
[n] Ch. 9. 8, 9.
[o] The chief city of Syria. Gen. 15. 2. 1 Kin. 11. 24.
[p] Ch. 9. 10—19. & x. Song 2. 8. Rom. 10. 14—17.
[q] Ch. 10. 22. 1 Tim. 3. 7.
[r] Gen. 17. 7. Exod. 3. 6. & 20. 2. Ps. 50. 7. & 81. 8—10.
[s] Rom. 1. 1. Gal. 1. 1, 12, 15. 1 Tim. 1. 1. 2 Tim. 1. 1. Tit. 1. 1. ch. 9. 15.
[t] Ch. 9. 17. & 18. 9. & 23. 11. & 26. 16. 1 Cor. 9. 1. & 15. 8.
[u] Ch. 3. 14. & 7. 52. 1 John 2. 1. Heb. 7. 26. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 22.
[x] John 15. 27. ch. 1. 8. & 4. 20. & 10. 39, 41. & 26. 16. & 20. 21. Luke 24. 47, 48.
[y] Mat. 3. 11. Mark 1. 4. Luke 3. 16. ch. 9. 18. & 2. 38. & 3. 19. Tit. 3. 5. 1 Cor. 6. 11. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
[z] Ch. 9. 26, 28. Gal. 1. 18.
[a] Ch. 10. 10. Num. 24. 4. Rev. 1. 10. 2 Cor. 12. 1.
[b] Mat. 10. 14, 23. Eccl. 9. 10.
[c] Ver. 4, 5. 1 Cor. 15. 9. Gal. 1. 13. Phil. 3. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 13. ch. 26. 9—12. & 8. 3. & 9. 1.
[d] Ch. 7. 58. & 8. 1.
† The word martyr, in its original sense, signified only witness, and in this sense is always used in the New Testament.
[e] Ch. 9. 15. & 13. 2, 4. & 26. 17. Gal. 1. 15. & 2. 8. Rom. 1. 5. & 11. 13. Eph. 3. 8. 1 Tim. 1. 12. & 2. 7. 2 Tim. 1. 11.

Verses 1—21. No sooner had he obtained permission to speak, and all in silence listened, than with noble composure of mind, and in the most respectful manner, he addressed himself unto the people, saying, Men, brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you. He makes no mention of their violence, but merely aims to apologize for himself, and undeceive them, respecting the false charges laid against him; and it is the greatest injustice to condemn any man, till he hath been heard impartially in his own defence.

As he spoke aloud to them in the Hebrew dialect, which they understood, they kept the more silence, and he proceeded as follows:

1. He gives them an account of his parentage and education. He was one of their own body, a native Jew, a Hebrew of Hebrews; not a poor obscure fellow, nor illiterate, as some might have scandalized him; but a freeman of Tarsus in Cilicia, and educated under the most famous of their Rabbins, at the feet of the learned Gamaliel; and as he was thus early initiated in the most critical and accurate knowledge of the Mosaical law, with all the traditional comments of the elders thereupon; so was he most zealous for these institutions, and for the observance of these traditions, from a conscientious regard to God's glory, as they themselves now appeared to be.

2. He informs them of the bitter enmity which he had himself formerly expressed against that religion of Jesus which he now preached. He had been a bloody persecutor of the disciples of Jesus: furious to extirpate the Christian name from the earth; seizing, without respect of rank, age, or sex, the professors of Christianity; and dragging them to prisons, endeavoured by every ignominy and cruelty to compel them to blaspheme and recant. And for this he appeals to the high priest and Sanhedrim, by whom he had been employed, and under the sanction of whose commission he had been sent to Damascus, to seize and carry prisoners to Jerusalem, all who should be there found professing the Christian religion, that they might be proceeded against, and punished as apostates. None could have been farther from Christianity than himself; the bitterest of those who now persecuted him, came short of the enmity which he had shown against it.

3. He relates the history of his conversion. It proceeded from no affectation of novelty, no discontent at being disappointed of preferment, from no worldly motives, nor the sophistry of others; but was the immediate miraculous work of God. For as he was ready to enter Damascus, with all his prejudices, and breathing out threatenings and slaughter, suddenly at noon, a light from heaven, brighter than the meridian sun, shone around him; and, falling in terror to the earth, he heard the voice of Jesus, saying, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And when, trembling and astonished, he answered, Who art thou, Lord? it was replied, I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest. Convinced now of his own dreadful guilt, and earnest to escape the fearful consequences thereof, he begs to be informed what he must do; when the Lord bid him go to Damascus, and there he should receive information of every thing that was appointed for him to do. And being now raised from the earth, and blinded with the heavenly light, his companions led him by the hand to Damascus, for the truth of which facts they could witness, this being no fancy or delusion; for, though they heard not distinctly the words that were spoken, they saw the light, were terrified, and fell to the earth together with him, and heard the sound of a voice, though not the articulate discourse.

4. He declares the further instructions and cure which he received from Ananias, whose character he describes, to recommend him to their regard. He was a devout man according to the law, and, though a Christian, still zealously observed the ritual service, having a good report of all the Jews that dwelt there, for his exemplary life and conversation, and attachment to the temple worship. He came and said, Brother Saul, receive thy sight; which was no sooner spoken than done: the same hour I looked up upon him. Then Ananias delivered his message, and said, The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, in his eternal counsel, that thou shouldest know his will as revealed in the gospel, and see that Just One, who so wrongfully suffered; and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth, and in some future time receive a fuller commission and farther instructions from him. For thou shalt be his witness unto all men, to the Jews and Gentiles, of what thou hast seen and heard. And now why tarriest thou? without delay arise, and be baptized, receiving this instituted sign of admission into his church, and to all the privileges of it; and wash away thy sins, now pardoned through his atoning blood, calling on the name of the Lord, the only Saviour, that all the blessings of his everlasting covenant may be conferred upon thee, according to his promises. Note, (1.) The great gospel privilege is remission of sins. (2.) All who are brought truly to the Lord, from that hour cease not to call upon him, living in constant dependence on his grace.

5. He informs them of the divine warrant by which he was commissioned to go and preach to the Gentiles. It was given him at Jerusalem, while he was in the temple praying, where he fell into a trance, and saw his divine Redeemer, who said unto him, Get thee quickly out of Jerusalem; for they will not receive thy testimony, being obstinately prejudiced against it. And I said, unwilling to leave my dear countrymen, for whose souls I so earnestly longed, and to whom I fancied my ministry might be more particularly convincing, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on thee. And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him. And this he urges as a reason why the people would now more readily regard his testimony, when he preached that faith he once destroyed, since it must needs be supernatural power which could produce so wonderful a conversion. But the Lord who knew the hearts of all men, and that his ministry would be rejected by the Jews, repeated his commands, Depart: and appointed him other work; for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

From all which they might see clearly how far he was from being that enemy to the Jewish nation and worship which he was represented to be; how earnestly he would have continued labouring amongst them; how reluctantly he quitted Jerusalem; and by what most express divine authority he acted in his labours among the Gentiles.

22. ¶ And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and said, [f] Away with such a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he should live. 23. And as they cried out, and cast off their clothes,* and threw dust into the air, 24. [g] The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the castle, and bade [h] that he should be †examined by scourging; that he might know wherefore they cried so against him. 25. ¶ And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, [i] Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman,‡ and uncondemned? 26. When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, saying, [k] Take heed what thou doest; for this man is a Roman. 27. Then the chief captain came, and said unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? He said, Yea. 28. And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free-born. 29. Then straightway they departed from him which should [f] Ch. 21. 36. & 7. 54, 57, 58. & 25. 24. Luke 23. 18. John 19. 15.

* Threw up, or tossed about their garments.

[g] Gen. 22. 14. Deut. 32. 36. Ps. 46. 1. Rom. 8. 28.

[h] Ch. 16. 22, 23, 37. John 19. 1. & 18. 23. Heb. 11. 35. ver. 25, 29.

† Scourged to make him confess his crime.

[i] Ch. 16. 37. ver. 27, 28.

‡ The Roman law prohibited the magistrate from punishing any Roman citizen capitally, or by scourging; and even from bindinghim. Yet it is a point of some uncertainty how Paul obtained this citizenship. It does not appear that his citizenship of Tarsus conferred it on him, for the captain ordered Paul to be scourged though he knew him to be a Tarsæan. Perhaps some one of Paul's ancestors had this freedom given him for his services, and Paul may have inherited it from him.

[k] Ch. 16. 38, 33. ver. 29.

[l] Or tortured him. Ver. 24. Heb. 11. 35.

[*] See note on ver. 25.

[m] Ch. 21. 11, 33. & 24. 28. & 26. 29. Mat. 27. 2.

[n] Luke 21. 12. Mat. 10. 17, 18. & 24. 9.

have [l] examined him: and the chief captain also was afraid, after he knew that he was a Roman,* and because he had bound him. 30. ¶ On the morrow, [m] because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from his bands, and [n] commanded the chief priests and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

Verses 22—30. Hitherto with patience the Jews gave audience to the apostle's discourse; but the very mention of the Gentiles fired their indignation, and they would hear no more.

1. They cried out with the most raging fury, Away with such a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he should live. The very thought, that the idolatrous Gentiles should be preferred to them, exasperated them beyond bounds, and they imagined no punishment was equal to the desert of such a miscreant, who could dare plead a divine commission to preach to the abhorred heathen. Therefore they cried out against him with the utmost detestation, and cast off their clothes, resolved to stone him on the spot as an apostate and blasphemer; and threw dust into the air, as if they wanted to bury him alive. Thus have the greatest and best of men the world was ever blessed with, been treated as the offscouring of all things, and unworthy of the air they breathed.

2. The chief captain Lysias, seeing such madness and fury expressed by the people, commanded Paul to be brought into the castle, partly to shelter him from the popular rage, partly from the apprehension, that he must needs have been guilty of some enormous wickedness, which could occasion such general abhorrence; and therefore most unjustly commanded, without further inquiry, that he should be examined by scourging, to extort a confession from himself of the supposed crime, which made the people so violent against him.

3. When the soldiers, who were about to execute the chief captain's commands, were binding him with thongs to the pillar, in order to be scourged, Paul mildly addressed himself to the centurion who stood by, and said, Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned? The centurion, startled at this intimation, and knowing the dangerous consequence of such a procedure, stayed the soldiers, and went immediately to acquaint the chief captain, suggesting to him the necessity of proceeding with caution, since the person whom they had in custody was one of much greater distinction than they apprehended, and a Roman citizen.

4. The chief captain Lysias, knowing the jealousy of the Roman citizens, and the severity of the law against those who should dare to bind or scourge any of them, especially without a fair and public trial, came directly, and desired to be informed in this point, saying, Art thou a Roman citizen? Paul said, Yea. The chief captain, surprised at this, answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom: and you seem a poor Jew, unable to purchase so high a dignity: and Paul, who held his privilege from a more honourable source, said, But I was free born.

5. Instantly orders were given for his being loosed; they who were about to scourge him departed, and the chief captain himself was under terrible apprehensions, lest, if Paul should complain of this outrage, it might be attended with very ill consequences to him, that he had rashly proceeded so far as to bind him, being a Roman. Our civil privileges are an invaluable blessing, and the fear of man often restrains those who know no fear of God.

6. The next day the governor, desirous of coming at the certainty of the thing laid to Paul's charge, commanded the chief priests and all the council to appear; and having loosed him from his bands, that he might not seem to prejudge his cause, and treat him as a criminal without proof, he brought Paul down, and set him before them, that they might bring their accusations, and he be at liberty to answer in his own defence.

CHAP. XXIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 61.

We have here, 1. Paul's protestation of his own integrity, and of a civil respect to the high priest, however he had upon a sudden spoken warmly to him, and justly, ver. 1—5. 2. Paul's prudent contrivance to get himself clear of them, by setting the Pharisees and Sadducees at variance one with another, ver. 6—9. 3. The governor's seasonable interposal to rescue him out of their hands likewise, ver. 10. 4. Christ's more comfortable appearing to him, to animate him against those difficulties that lay before him, and to tell him what he must expect, ver. 11. 5. A bloody conspiracy of some desperate Jews to kill Paul, ver. 12—15. 6. The discovery of this conspiracy to Paul, and by him to the chief captain, ver. 16—22. 7. The chief captain's care of Paul's safety, who sent him away immediately under a strong guard from Jerusalem to Cesarea, which was now the residence of Felix the Roman governor, and there he safely arrived, ver. 23—35.

1. AND Paul, earnestly beholding the council, said, [a] Men and brethren, [b] I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day. 2. And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him [c] to smite him on the mouth. 3. Then said Paul unto him, God shall smite thee, thou [d] whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the law, and [e] commandest me to be smitten contrary to the law? 4. And they that stood by said, Revilest thou God's high priest? 5. Then said Paul, I wist not,‡ brethren, that he was the high priest: for it is written, [f] Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people.

[a] See ch. 22. [b] Ch. 24. 16. 1 Cor. 4. 4. 2 Cor. 1. 12. & 4. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 3. Heb. 13. 18.

[c] 1 Kin. 22. 24. Jer. 20. 2. John 18. 22. Mic. 5. 1.

[d] Mat. 23. 27. Rev. 3. 2. Tit. 1. 16. 2 Tim. 3. 5. Jer 7. 4. Mic. 3. 11.

[e] Lev. 19. 35. Deut. 17. 4, 9. & 25. 1—3.

‡ Some commentators consider that the word here rendered I wist not, i. e. I knew not, properly means I did not reflect, or consider.

[f] Exod. 22. 28. Eccl. 10. 20. 2 Pet. 2. 10. Jude 8.

Verses 1—5. Paul with undaunted courage appears before this august assembly, nor fears their faces, though well persuaded of their inveterate enmity against him.

1. He makes a solemn profession of his own integrity. Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day; even in his unregenerate state he had, according to his best light and knowledge, acted with conscientious zeal for God's glory; and his outward conversation had been ever unimpeached. And as in his conversion to Christianity he had embraced the gospel upon the strongest evidence, so had he ever since with all fidelity approved himself to God; and they who have this testimony of a good conscience, need never be ashamed.

2. Ananias the high priest, highly offended at such a protestation of his innocence, commanded one of the officers who stood by Paul to strike him on the mouth, and not suffer him to proceed with such confidence and familiarity of address.

2. Justly indignant at such an insult, and not actuated by private revenge, but by prophetic impulse, he denounces the doom of this proud high priest: God shall smite thee, thou whited wall, with some stroke of his vengeance for thy pride and hypocrisy: for sittest thou to judge me after the law, and commandest me to be smitten contrary to the law? How unjust and iniquitous is such a procedure? Note, Proud persecutors are but whited walls, and shall soon feel how unable they are to stand before the storm of divine judgments.

4. Some who were present were highly offended at the apostle's freedom, as an unbecoming insult on the high priest's character and office, saying, Revilest thou God's high priest?

5. Paul immediately apologized for what he had said, unwilling to prejudice his Jewish brethren against him, however great the provocation which had been given him: I wist not, brethren, that he was the high priest; either he did not advert to his dignity at that time, or he did not consider him as the high priest, another being lawfully entitled to that office, and Ananias but an intruder: for he meant not to speak disrespectfully of that high office, since it is written, Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people; and he always desired to have his conduct governed by God's revealed word, and to honour the magistrate, however wicked the man might be.

6. ¶ But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other g Ch. 24. 15, 21. & 26. 5, 6, 8. & 28. 20. Phil. 3. 5. Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, [g] I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question. 7. And when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees: and the multitude h Mat. 22. 23. Mark 12. 18. Luke 20. 27.
i Ch. 25. 25. & 26. 31. Luke 23. 4, 14, 15, 22. with Prov. 16. 7. 1 Sam. 24. 17. was divided. 8. [h] For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither angel, nor spirit; but the Pharisees confess both. 9. And there arose a great cry: and the scribes that were of the k Ch. 9. 4. & 16. 9. & 22. 7, 17, 18. & 5. 30. & 11. 17. Pharisees' part arose, and strove, saying, [i] We find no evil in this man: [k] but if a spirit or an angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God. 10. ¶ And
* The castle of Antonia: see note on ch. 21. 34. It was garrisoned by Roman soldiers. when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, l Ps. 109. 31. & 46. 1. ch. 2. 25. & 18. 9. & 19. 21. & 23. 11—31. Deut. 32. 36. Is. 41. 10, 14. & 43. 2. and to bring him into the castle.* 11. [l] And the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me at Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

Verses 6—11. Since the apostle had to do with men on whom he might now easily perceive he could not hope to prevail by pleading the cause which they were determined to persecute, he here,

1. Prudently disconcerted all their measures by a plea which they little apprehended. He observed the council was divided into two sects, of Pharisees and Sadducees; and if he can wisely gain one party of them to his side, he may more easily extricate himself from his difficulties. Accordingly he cried aloud, Men and brethren, I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee; have always been brought up in the faith of their distinguishing tenets; and among the chief articles thereof we reckon the resurrection of the dead, for which hope I am called in question, the grand foundation of all that doctrine of the gospel which I preach being built on the resurrection of the Redeemer.

2. This immediately, as he expected, raised a division in the house; the Pharisees espousing this great truth, the Sadducees opposing it: for the Sadducees denied the resurrection of the body, the immortality of the soul, and any future state of rewards and punishments; whilst the Pharisees, though wedded to their traditions, stiffly maintained these great doctrines of truth. Hence arose the schism between them, and their fury against Paul was now turned into a sharp contention between themselves: so that a great cry arose, and in mere opposition to the Sadducees, the Pharisees took the apostle's part, and contended for him as orthodox in his principles, and innocent in his behaviour. But if an angel or spirit hath spoken to him, as it is possible may be the case, let us not fight against God; since all opposition to such a heavenly message would be in fact rebellion against God himself, according to the advice which Gamaliel had formerly given, (chap. v. 38, 39.)

3. A violent tumult hereupon arose, the Sadducees were enraged at the opposition they met with, and in the quarrel between his friends and foes, Paul was in danger of being torn limb from limb; so that the chief captain was again compelled to interpose; and with his soldiers to carry him off, and secure him in the castle, lest he should be pulled in pieces by them. Thus the Lord again providentially rescued him from the jaws of death.

4. The night following the Lord stood by him, in a vision, to comfort and encourage him with unshaken fortitude to stand fast, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul; be confident of the supports of my power and love, and let no dangers dismay thee: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome. So he had designed formerly, (chap. xix. 21.) and now the Lord will make even the malice of his persecutors the means of carrying him thither. Note, If the Lord speak comfort to our souls, and stand by us, then our prison shall be a palace, and our sufferings our joy.

12. ¶ And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, [m] and bound themselves [n] under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul. 13. And they were more than forty which had made this conspiracy. 14. And they came to the chief priests and elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse, that we will eat nothing until we have slain Paul. 15. [o] Now therefore ye, with the council, signify to the chief captain † that he bring him down unto you to-morrow, as though ye would enquire something more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him. 16. [p] And when Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered into the † castle, and told Paul. 17. [q] Then Paul called one of the centurions unto him, and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain; for he hath a certain thing to tell him. 18. So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man

m Ver. 20, 30. Is. 8. 9, 10. Mat. 26. 74.

n Or with an oath of execration. Such execrable vows were not unusual among the Jews; but they could easily be loosed; any of their Rabbis could grant absolution from them. Mat. 26. 74. 1 Sam. 3. 17. & 20. 13. & 25. 22. 2 Sam. 3. 9. 1 Kin. 2. 23. & 19. 2.

o Prov. 1. 11, 16. & 4. 16. ch. 25. 3.

† Ps. 21. 11. & 37. 32. Is. 59. 7. Rom. 3. 14—16.

p Job 5. 13. Prov 21. 30.

q Mat. 10. 16, 17. Eph. 5. 15.

unto thee, who hath something to say unto thee. 19. Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aside privately, and asked him, What is that thou hast to tell me? 20. And he said, [r] The Jews have agreed to desire thee that thou wouldest bring down Paul to-morrow into the council, as though they would enquire somewhat of him more perfectly. 21. But do not thou yield unto them: for [s] there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themselves with an [t] oath, that they will neither eat nor drink till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promise from thee. 22. So the chief captain then let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man that thou hast shewed these things to me. 23. ¶ And he called unto him two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to Cesarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and * spearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night; 24. And provide them beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor.† 25. And he wrote a letter after this manner: 26. Claudius Lysias unto the most excellent governor [u] Felix sendeth greeting. 27. [x] This man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman. 28. And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, [y] I brought him forth into their council: 29. Whom I perceived to be accused of [z] questions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds. 30. [a] And when it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent straightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accusers also to say before thee what they had against him. Farewell. 31. Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to ‡ Antipatris. 32. On the morrow they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned to the castle: 33. Who, when they came to [b] Cesarea, and delivered the epistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him. 34. And when the governor had read the letter, he asked of [c] what province he was. And when he understood that he was of [c] Cilicia; 35. I will hear thee, said he, [d] when thine accusers are also come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's [e] judgment hall.

r Ver. 12—15. ch. 25. 3.

s Ch. 25. 3. & 20. 3. Ps. 10. 9, 10. & 37. 32. Mic. 7. 2. Prov. 1. 16. & 4. 16. Is. 59. 7, 15.

t Or curse. Ver. 12, 14. Rom. 9. 3. with Mat. 26. 74.

* Or archers, or javelin-casters.

† This was Claudius Felix, the successor of Cumanus in the government of Judea. Tacitus calls him Antonius Felix, and insinuates that his vice-government was despotic and sycophantish. He was thrice married, and each time to a king's daughter. He was recalled to Rome A. D. 60, when he was accused of many mal-practices by the Jews, but was protected by the influence of his brother Pallas.

u Ch. 24. 3, 25, 27.

x Ch. 21. 32, 33. & 23. 10.

y Ch. 22. 30.

z Ch. 18. 15. & 24. 6, 10—21. & 26. 2—6, 31. & 25. 8.

a Ver. 16—24. ch. 24. 7, 8. & 25. 16.

‡ A city near the north-west of Canaan, the ancient Caphar-Saba, so called by Herod the Great in honour of his father Antipater. It was situated near the mountains, 17 miles from Joppa, on the road from Jerusalem to Cæsarea.

b A city on the north-west of Canaan. See ch. 8. 40.

c A country in Lesser Asia. Ch. 15. 41. & 22. 39.

d Ch. 24. 19. & 25. 16.

e A palace built by Herod. John 19. 28. Mat. 27. 27.

Verses 12—35. We have here a desperate plot laid against the innocent apostle, but by the divine providence discovered and defeated.

1. The plot was deeply laid and ready to be executed. Since they could gain their ends no other way, the next day some of his most envenomed foes determined to assassinate him. The number of the conspirators amounted to more than forty, who by a dreadful oath bound their souls, to be faithful to each other, and neither to eat nor drink till they had killed Paul. And this their horrid design they communicated to the chief priests and elders for their approbation, who they knew would stick at nothing to destroy a man whom they so abhorred. They proposed therefore, that they should desire the chief captain to bring Paul once more to the council-board to be examined, and they undertook to despatch him by the way as he came: nor did the chief priests, it seems, or elders, hesitate at the proposal.

2. God brought this bloody conspiracy to light. A nephew of Paul's, his sister's son, got some intelligence of their design, and instantly ran to the castle, to acquaint the apostle of his danger, who begged the favour of one of the centurions to introduce the young man to the chief captain, having some very interesting intelligence to communicate. The centurion very obligingly went, and informed Lysias of Paul's request, and he without delay gave the young man a private audience. Taking him kindly by the hand, he led him aside, and bid him speak freely what he had to say; whereupon he informed him of the whole conspiracy, which was ready to be put in execution; and that they were now coming to ask his consent to their request, with regard to the bringing down of Paul before them, under pretence of a more exact inquiry into the charges laid against him; the young man therefore humbly begs, that he will not yield to them in this matter. The chief captain with a solemn injunction of secrecy, hereupon dismissed him, engaging to take effectual care of Paul. Note, (1.) The Lord often wonderfully brings to light the hidden things of darkness, and lays open by strange methods the deep designs of bloody conspirators. (2.) It is a high commendation to men of rank who are in office, to be easy of access, and not proudly to disregard their poor suitors. (3.) Secrecy is often most essential to the success of our affairs.

3. Lysias immediately took the most effectual method to prevent this horrid assassination; and fearing lest, if he kept Paul in the castle, their madness might hurry them to some dreadful outrage, or to attempt by one method or other to compass his death, he called two centurions, and bid them get two hundred soldiers, and as many spearmen, with seventy horsemen, ready to march to Cesarea by nine o'clock that evening; and to provide beasts, one or more for Paul's use, or perhaps for some of his companions who might choose to attend him, and deliver him up safe to Felix the governor: treating the prisoner with all possible respect, and desirous thus to rescue him from the hands of the conspirators.

4. With the prisoner he sent the following letter. Claudius Lysias, unto the most excellent Felix sendeth greeting, wishing him all prosperity. This man, whom I have sent, was taken of the Jews, in a tumultuous manner, and would have been killed by them, had I not interposed. Then, hearing of the riot which was made, I came with an army to quell the disturbance, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman citizen. And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, willing to give the matter an impartial hearing, I brought him forth into their council, to know what they had to say against him, whom I perceived to be accused of questions of their law, but to have nothing really criminal laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds. And when it was told me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man to assassinate him, to prevent so base a deed, I sent straightway to thee, referring the whole matter to your excellency's cognizance; and gave commandment to his accusers also, to say before thee what they had against him, as a more competent judge, and fitter to decide on this matter. Farewell.

5. The soldiers under the command of the centurions at night departed, and before morning had brought Paul safe to Antipatris; when, being out of danger, the soldiers and spearmen returned, and left the seventy horse to conduct him to Cesarea, who on their arrival delivered the letter to the governor, and presented the prisoner before him. When Felix had perused the contents, he asked Paul of what province he was; and having understood that he belonged to Cilicia, I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers are also come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall, assigning him an apartment in the palace; and, though under confinement, permitting his friends to visit him without restraint.

CHAP. XXIV.—ANNO DOMINI, 61.

We left Paul a prisoner at Cesarea; in this chapter we have his arraignment and trial before Felix the governor. Here is, 1. The appearing of the prosecutors against him, and the setting of the prisoner to the bar, ver. 1, 2, 2. The opening of the indictment against him by Tertullus, ver. 2—8. 3. The corroborating of the charge by the testimony of the witnesses, or rather the prosecutors themselves, ver. 9. 4. The prisoner's defence, in which, with all due deference to the governor, ver. 10. he denies the charge, and challengeth them to prove it, ver. 11—13. owns the truth, and makes an unexceptionable profession of his faith, which he declares was it that they hated him for, ver. 14—16. and gives a more particular account of what had passed from their first seizing of him, challenging them to instance any ill that they had found in him, ver. 17—21. 5. The adjourning of the cause and the continuing of the prisoner in custody, ver. 22, 23. 6. The private conversation that was between the prisoner and the judge, by which the prisoner hoped to do good to the judge, and the judge thought to get money by the prisoner, but both in vain, ver. 24—26. 7. The lengthening out of Paul's imprisonment for two years, till another governor came, ver. 27.

[a] Ch. 23. 2, 30, 35. & 25. 17.
[b] Ps. 12. 2. & 55. 21. Jude 16.
[c] Felix, bad as he was known to have been (See note on ch. 23. ver. 24.) had certainly rendered some services to the country. Josephus informs us that he entirely subdued a very formidable banditti which infested the country; he suppressed the sedition raised by the Egyptian impostor; and he quelled several other disturbances which occurred during his governorship.
[c] Ch. 16. 20. & 17. 6, 7. & 21. 28. I Kin. 18. 17.
† Or, a plague.

1. AND [a] after five days Ananias the high priest descended with the elders, and with a certain orator named Tertullus, who informed the governor against Paul. 2. And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, [b] Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence,* 3. We accept it always, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulness. 4. Notwithstanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee that thou wouldest hear us of thy clemency a few words. 5. [c] For we have found this man a † pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes: 6. [d] Who also hath gone about to profane the temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law. 7. [e] But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands, 8. [f] Commanding his accusers to come unto thee: by examining of ‡ whom thyself mayest take knowledge of all these things whereof we accuse him. 9. [g] And the Jews also assented, saying that these things were so.

[d] Ch. 21. 26, 27, 31. & 22. 10. ver. 11—13. ch. 25. 8.
[e] Ch. 21. 31—33. & 22. 30. & 23. 10.
[f] Ch. 23. 30. & 25. 16.
‡ Paul.
[g] Ch. 6. 11—13. Ps. 4. 2. & 64. 3. Jer. 9. 3—5. Ezek. 22. 27—29. Mat. 26. 59, 60. John 8. 44.

Verses 1—9. Lysias no doubt informed the chief priests and elders what he had done, and referred them to Felix, if they chose further to prosecute Paul. Whereupon,

1. Without loss of time, after five days, reckoning from the time they first apprehended him, they came down to Cesarea, with Ananias the high priest at their head; and appearing in a body before Felix, to give the greater weight to their cause, they desired to be heard against Paul, and had engaged an artful and plausible counsellor, one Tertullus, to plead for them. Note, Inveterate malice against the gospel will sometimes make the most reverend characters stoop to the meanest actions.

2. Paul being brought forth, Tertullus, with many oratorial flourishes, and a most flattering address to the judge, opens his speech against the prisoner at the bar.

[1.] He compliments the governor on his administration. Though universally known to be one of the most oppressive, covetous, and cruel, that had ever ruled over Judea: yet, to court his favour, and win him to their party, he, as one that pleaded not for truth but for hire, daubs thick his adulations. Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence, penetration, and prudent care; we accept it always, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulness; professing the deepest sense of our obligations for such singular favours, and emboldened thereby to hope more confidently for the justice we demand against the prisoner. But that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldest hear us of thy clemency a few words; the case being so clear, that it can take up very little of your excellency's time to be convinced of the prisoner's guilt.

It was well known how the Jewish nation in general, and the elders in particular, hated Felix and his government; but now, when they have a point to carry, they liberally offer at his feet their flattering applause.

[2.] He comes to the point, and boldly alleges many grievous crimes, with which he charges the innocent prisoner. We found this man a pestilent fellow, propagating his pernicious tenets like a plague: the very pest of society, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, exciting tumults wherever he goes against the Roman government; and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes; a promoter of that detestable heresy, for which, and his notoriously seditious principles, the first author of it, one Jesus of Nazareth, was crucified some years ago. Who also hath gone about to profane the temple, with daring impiety introducing those who were by the law forbid admission there.

All these charges are a tissue of falsehoods. All the pestilence Paul carried with him was the gospel of salvation, doing good to men's bodies and souls wherever he came. Far from sedition, he taught the most conscientious obedience to the ruling powers. The tumults complained of, were made not by him, but by his accusers themselves, He set himself up for no head of a sect, nor attempted to draw any man to his standard, but to his divine Master; and, so far from profaning the temple, none could behave with greater piety, seriousness, and conformity to the law, than he had done. Note, (1.) The purest innocence is no protection from the vilest aspersions. They who make no conscience of lies, with solemn assurances, and repeated falsehoods, will strive hard but they will blacken the fairest character. (2.) The charge against the gospel and its ministers hath often been, that they raise disturbances and riots; when in fact the very persons who lay this accusation against them, are the very persons who raise the tumults; like Nero, who set Rome on fire, and then persecuted the Christians for that atrocious deed; but there is one who seeth and judgeth.

[3.] He insinuates the equity with which they were proceeding against the prisoner, by a fair trial according to the law; when Lysias, the chief captain, interrupting the course of justice, by violence seized the prisoner, and carried him off, obliging them to all this trouble and expense, by bringing the cause hither: but he hopes now at least justice will be done, and that the governor, fully satisfied of Paul's guilt, will pronounce sentence against him.

Nothing could be more false and invidious than this assertion; but Lysias was not here to disprove it, and he hoped the weight of evidence which he brought with him would prevail.

3. The high priests and elders added their solemn attestation to the truth of Tertullus' language: nor is it a marvel, that they who wanted to murder Paul by assassination, should now attempt to carry their point by the blackest perjury.

h Ch. 12. 17. & 13. 16. & 19. 33. & 21. 40.

10. ¶ Then Paul, after that the governor had [h] beckoned unto him to speak,

* Felix was made procurator over Judea, A. D. 53.

answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years * a judge unto

i Ch. 21. 26.

k Ch. 25. 7, 8. & 28. 17.

this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself: 11. [i] Because that thou l Mat. 10. 32. Ps. 119. 46. ch. 3. 13. & 5. 30. & 7. 32. & 22. 14. & 20. 22. & 28. 22: & 9. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 3.

mayest understand that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship. 12. [k] And they neither m Ch. 10. 43. & 26. 22, 23. Luke 24. 27, 44. John 5. 39. 2 Cor. 1. 20.

found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people,

† All my expectation is from Him, and therefore all my desire is towards Him, and all my dependence upon Him; my hope is toward God, and not toward the world; toward another world, and not toward this.

neither in the synagogues, nor in the city: 13. Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me. 14. But this I confess unto thee, [l] that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, [m] believing all things which are written in the law n Ch. 23. 38. Dan. 12. 2. John 5. 28, 29. ch. 26. 6, 8. & 28. 20. Rev. 20. 12. Job 19. 25, 26. 1 Thes. 4. 14—16. Mat. 22. 31, 32.

and in the prophets: 15. And have hope toward God, † which they themselves also allow, [n] that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust. 16. [o] And herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men.

o 1 Tim. 4. 7, 8. 1 Thes. 2. 10. ch. 23. 1. 1 Cor. 4. 4. 2 Cor. 1. 12. & 4. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 3. Heb. 13. 18.

p Ch. 11. 29. Rom. 15. 25, 26. Gal. 2. 10. 1 Cor. 16. 1, 2 Cor. viii, ix. ch. 21. 26.

17. Now after many years I came to bring [p] alms to my nation, and offerings.

q Ch. 21. 26, 27. & 25. 23. & 26. 21. Luke 12. 1.

18. [q] Whereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult: 19.

r Ch. 23. 30. & 25. 16.

[r] Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought against me. 20. Or else let these same here say, if they have found any evil-doing in me, while I stood before the council, 21. Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, [s] Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day.

s Ch. 4. 2. & 23. 6. & 26. 6, 9, & 28. 20.

Verses 10—21. How different is the spirit which breathes in the defence of Paul, from that which actuated the plausible orator, Tertullus. He is not exasperated with the falsehoods which were advanced, or in a heat to reply, but waited the governor's permission to speak; which when Felix had signified, he rose with conscious integrity, to pour confusion on the charges of his adversaries.

1. With deep respect for his judge, which was consistent with that severe regard to truth which became him, he opens his discourse; Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself: Felix well knew the spirit and temper of the Jews by his long acquaintance with them, and could not wonder at the malice of these furious zealots: had half the things been true which they alleged, the governor had, no doubt, heard of Paul before.

2. He flatly denies the charges of sedition, of which he was accused. It was but twelve days since he came to Jerusalem, not to profane the temple, but, with high respect of that sacred place, to worship there, where they neither found him disputing with any man, either about religion or government, nor fomenting the least disturbance in the synagogues or the city, but demeaning himself with all peaceableness; and he defies his accusers to prove one of the charges which they so peremptorily alleged. Note, It is in every villain's power to propagate falsehood, and to bring the heaviest charges against the noblest characters; but every sedate hearer and upright judge will not rest in his assertions, but require proof of the facts.

3. He owns and glories in the acknowledgment, that after the way which they stigmatized as heresy, so worshipped he the God of his fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets; the divine authority of the precepts, and the accomplishment of the promises; and his hope towards God, and preaching, were in exact correspondence with the fundamental doctrine of the orthodox faith which they themselves held, that there should be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and of the unjust: who must answer before the eternal Judge, that divine Messiah, Jesus of Nazareth, whom the Jews had crucified. And herein do I exercise myself, persuaded of this solemn day's approach, and expecting to stand before the great Judge of all, endeavouring to keep a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men. Note, (1.) The scriptures are the only rule of faith and practice; to them we must cleave. (2.) As there will be a resurrection of the just and of the unjust, it is a matter of awful consideration to inquire, which character is ours. (3.) Hope towards God is an anchor which will keep the soul steadfast in every storm. (4.) A good conscience is our best friend. Perfection is not attainable in this world; but that in simplicity and godly sincerity we desire to have our conversation, this is our rejoicing.

4. As to his profaning the temple, this was of a piece with the other falsehoods advanced; the very contrary was evident. He had, after a considerable absence from Jerusalem, returned with charitable contributions for the poor saints who dwelt there; and having a religious vow, had brought his own offerings to the temple, where certain Jews of Asia saw him, purifying himself according to the law, neither with multitude nor tumult; only four persons who had vows, like himself, were with him, demeaning themselves with all possible quietness and regularity: and as to the supposed offence of having brought Greeks into the temple, which was suggested as the occasion of the riot which was raised, he challenges them to produce those men of Asia who raised this report, and ought to be here, if they had any thing to object. Or, since they were absent, he appeals to his accusers themselves if on examination before the council any one misdemeanour was so much as proved against him, except they reckoned his declaration concerning the resurrection of the dead to be such, wherein he had been supported and countenanced by the most respectable part of that assembly.

A defence so clear, so ingenuous, so convincing, carried its own evidence along with it, and demonstrated his innocence of every crime they had alleged against him.

22. ¶ And when Felix heard these things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them, and said, When Lysias the chief captain shall come down, I [t] will know the uttermost of your matter. 23. [u] And he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister or come unto him. 24. ¶ And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife ‖ Drusilla, which was a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the [x] faith in Christ. 25. And as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix [y] trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee. 26. ¶ [z] He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him. 27. But after two years Porcius Festus came into Felix' room: and Felix, [a] willing to shew the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.*

t Deut. 19. 18. ch. 23. 20.

u Prov. 16. 7. ver. 26. ch. 27. 3. & 28. 16, 31.

‖ Who was married to another man.

x Tit. 2. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 7. 1.

y Ch. 2. 37. Heb. 4. 11. Rom. 3. 19, 20. ch. 17. 32.

z Job 15. 34. Ps. 26. 10. 1 Tim. 6. 10.

cir. 63.

a Ch. 12. 3. & 25. 9, 14. Gal. 1. 10. Prov. 29. 25.

* In the conduct of both Felix and Festus, it is observable how much the evil practices of such governors were restrained by the equity of the Roman laws, and by the manner in which judicial proceedings were conducted by that people.

Verses 22—27. Felix patiently heard the parties, but deferred passing judgment upon the cause.

1. He put off the determination till the arrival of Lysias, on whom they seemed to reflect, when he could more thoroughly examine into the circumstances: and probably, though unwilling to disoblige the chief men of the nation, he was little apprehensive of any danger of sedition from the professors of Christianity, having more perfect knowledge of that way. As Cornelius, a centurion, long ago had been converted to the Christian faith at Cesarea, and many others, Felix was no doubt well acquainted with their principles, and an eye-witness of their peaceable conduct; and therefore did not readily believe these atrocious accusations against Paul.

2. He committed the apostle to the custody of a centurion, who should let him enjoy all liberty to walk about as a prisoner at large, permitting any of his friends to visit, converse with him, and supply him with whatever he wanted. Thus the malignant priests were disappointed; and Paul, though justice was delayed, had reason to be thankful for his escape from their malice.

3. The curiosity of Felix, and of his wife Drusilla who, though a Jewess, had married him a heathen, and had forsaken her former husband Azizus, king of Emessa, prompted them to hear from this celebrated preacher an account of the Christian religion, and of the faith in Christ which he inculcated. Note, Many are willing to know the speculative principles of religion, whose hearts have no relish to the practice of it.

4. Paul readily appeared to give an account of his doctrine before them, not as mere speculative opinions, but as practical principles; and knowing the characters of the persons before whom he spoke, he failed not to reason powerfully on the nature and necessity of righteousness and temperance, the guilt and danger of the opposite vices, of injustice, oppression, excess, and impurity; and on the awful account which all must shortly give before the Judge of quick and dead, when, without respect of persons, the everlasting state of men must be determined. So faithfully should Christ's ministers bring home to men's conscience the word of truth, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

5. Felix, with conscious guilt, trembled as he sat; and, affrighted, heard these alarming words. But more in haste to get rid of his convictions than his sins, he dismissed the apostle with an intimation, that when his affairs were less urgent he would hear him again on the subject. Note, (1.) The word of God will sometimes make the stoutest hearted sinner tremble. (2.) Many are terrified with the apprehensions of their sins, and dread to think of death and judgment, who, notwithstanding, live and die the slaves of corruption. (3.) In the concerns of our souls, nothing is more fatal than delay. If God's word hath spread an alarm in the conscience, Satan seldom asks more than to defer the matter to a more convenient season, till we are older and have less worldly engagements: and if he can thus far prevail, the cause is gained; and we, like Felix, are undone.

6. Though many future conferences passed between them, Felix never brought religion on the carpet. His covetous heart thought to make a good advantage of his prisoner; and knowing how high Paul was in the esteem of his friends, he hoped they would have proposed a considerable ransom, to obtain his discharge: but though they would have done so, probably Paul resolved never to be indebted for his liberty to any such indirect method: and therefore, after two years, Felix being recalled from his government, to answer for his maleadministration, and justly apprehensive that the rulers of Judea would swell the number of his accusers, he endeavoured to gain their favour, by leaving Paul bound in the hands of Porcius Festus, his successor.

CHAP. XXV.—ANNO DOMINI, 62.

We have here, 1. Paul accused before Festus, ver. 1—7. 2. His appeal unto Cesar, ver. 8—12. 3. Festus relating the case to king Agrippa, he desires to hear him, and Paul is accordingly brought forth, ver. 13—27.

1. NOW, when Festus was come into the province,* after three days he ascended from Cesarea to Jerusalem. 2. [a] Then the high priest and the chief of the Jews informed him against Paul, and besought him, 3. And desired favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, [b] laying wait in the way to kill him. 4. But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cesarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither. 5. [c] Let them therefore, said he, which

cir. 63.

* That is, Judea.

a Ch. 24. 1. Ps. 2. 1, 2. Mat. 10. 17.

b Ch. 23. 15. Ps. 140. 5. & 37. 12.

c Ch. 23. 30. & 24. 8.

among you are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any wickedness in him. 6. And when he had tarried among them [d] more than ten days, he went down unto Cesarea; and the next day, sitting on the judgment seat, commanded Paul to be brought. 7. And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem stood round about, [e] and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, which they could not prove. 8. ¶ While he answered for himself, [f] Neither against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor yet against Cesar, have I offended any thing at all. 9. But Festus, [g] willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me? 10. Then said Paul,* I stand at Cesar's judgment seat, where I [h] ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest. 11. [i] For, if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, [k] no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cesar.† 12. Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered, Hast thou appealed unto Cesar? [l] unto Cesar shalt thou go.

d Some copies read no more than eight or ten days. Ver. 17.

e Esth. 3. 8. Ps. 27. 12. & 35. 1. Luke 23. 2, 5, 10. Mat. 26. 60. ch. 21. 28. & 24. 5, 6.

f Ch. 24. 12, 16. & 23. 1. & 26. 4—6, 22. & 28. 17. ver. 10.

g Ch. 12. 3. & 24. 27. Gal. 1. 10. Prov. 9. 25.

* Every procurator represented the emperor in the province over which he presided.

h As a citizen of Rome. Ch. 16. 37, 38. & 22. 25—28.

i Josh. 22. 22. 1 Sam. 12. 3, 5. ch. 18. 14. & 21. 24. & 23. 29.

k Ch. 16. 37, 38. & 22. 25—28. 1 Thes. 2. 15. 1 Sam. 27. 1.

† This was the right of every Roman citizen, and was highly respected.

l Ver. 21. ch. 26. 32. & 19. 21. & 23. 11.

Verses 1—12. No sooner was Festus entered upon his government, than Paul's implacable enemies beset him.

1. After three days' stay at Cesarea, Festus proceeded to Jerusalem; where he no sooner arrived, than the high priest and elders, coming in a body to pay their compliments to the governor, failed not to seize the opportunity to prepossess his mind; informing him against Paul, and setting the affair in the most invidious light, they besought him to give judgment against the prisoner; and for that purpose begged the favour of him, that he might be sent for to Jerusalem, resuming the old scheme to assassinate him by the way. How restless are the struggles of malice! and what wickedness is not the wretched heart of man capable of, when enslaved by envy and revenge?

2. Festus excused himself from granting their request, choosing rather to decide the matter at Cesarea; either he thought their desire unreasonable, or perhaps suspected some design; and therefore informing them that he should shortly depart thither, he assured them, if they would prepare their evidence, and those who were best able to manage the prosecution would go down with him, and could prove him guilty of any crime or misdemeanour, he would grant them impartial justice.

3. After ten days' stay at Jerusalem, Festus went down to Cesarea with those who were to carry on the prosecution against Paul; and without delay, the very next day the prisoner is brought to the bar; and his enemies surrounding the judge, as if to intimidate him into compliance, or by their number to give weight to the cause, laid many grievous accusations against the apostle, as if he was the vilest of the vile; but when the evidences which should support these allegations were required, it evidently appeared that they could not prove one of their charges. While in his defence Paul confidently denied every accusation, having neither offended against the law, the temple, or the civil government; and defied them to produce a single instance wherein he had acted unbecoming his profession, as a Jew, or his allegiance to Cesar. Note, Nothing is easier than to advance high charges against Christ's people, but saying and proving are usually found to be different things.

4. Festus could not but perceive the malice of the accusation, and the innocence of the prisoner; but willing on his first coming to Cesarea, to ingratiate himself with the Jews, by granting them the favour which they desired, of having Paul tried at Jerusalem, he asked him whether he would go up thither, and have the cause decided by him in presence of the Sanhedrim? Too well Paul knew the designs of his persecutors, to consent to a proposal so dangerous; therefore he wisely pleads his privilege as a Roman, and appeals unto Cesar. I stand, saith he, at Cesar's judgment-seat, where I ought to be judged, and am ready to appear: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest. For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, according to the laws of the empire, I refuse not to die, content to suffer the desert of my offences: but if there be none of these things whereof they accuse me, and the charge be evidently false and malicious, no man may deliver me unto them, and put me in their power. I claim my right as a freeman of Rome, to be only judged there, and appeal unto Cesar. Note, (1.) The wisdom of the serpent is as needful as the harmlessness of the dove, when we have to do with unreasonable and wicked men. (2.) It is a debt we owe ourselves to claim the protection of the law, against those who maliciously attempt to wound our fame, or injure our person.

5. Festus acquiesces in his appeal, He conferred with the council, who assisted him in the management of affairs; and as they admitted the right of the prisoner to claim this privilege, he answered, Hast thou appealed unto Cesar? unto Cesar shalt thou go; not unwilling, perhaps, thus to rid his hands so fairly of a cause which might have involved him in much trouble.

13. ¶ And, after certain days, [m] king Agrippa and Bernice‡ came unto Cesarea to salute Festus. 14. And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, [n] There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix: 15. About whom, when I was at Jerusalem, [o] the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, desiring to have judgment against him. 16. To whom I answered, [p] It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die before that he who is accused have the accusers face to face, and have licence to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him. 17. [q] Therefore, when they were come hither, without any delay on the morrow I sat on the judgment seat, and commanded the man to be brought forth. 18. Against whom, when the accusers stood up, they brought none accusation of such things as I supposed: 19. [r] But had certain questions against him of their

m Ch. xxv. ver. 23.

‡ Bernice, or Berenice, was the daughter of Herod Agrippa, and sister of King Agrippa. She was first married to her uncle Herod, king of Chalcis, upon whose death she resided with her brother Agrippa, with whom she is said to have lived in incest.

n Ch. 24. 27.

o Ver. 1—3. Esth. 3. 9.

p John 7. 51. Deut 17. 4. & 19. 17, 18.

q Ver. 4, 5.

r Ver. 7. ch. 26. 22, 23. 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4. ch. 18. 15. & 23. 29. Rev. 1. 18.

own superstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive. 20. And, because [s] I doubted of such manner of questions, I asked him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these matters. 21. But when Paul had [t] appealed to be reserved unto the *hearing of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I might send him to Cesar. 22. Then Agrippa said to Festus, [u] I would also hear the man myself. To-morrow, said he, thou shalt hear him. 23. ¶ And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with [x] great pomp, and was entered into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principal men of the city, at Festus' commandment Paul was brought forth. 24. And Festus said, King Agrippa, † and all men which are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought not to live any longer. 25. But when I found that he had committed [y] nothing worthy of death, and that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him. 26. Of whom I have no certain thing to write ‡ unto my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, [z] and specially before thee, O king Agrippa, that, after examination had, I might have somewhat to write. 27. For it seemeth to me unreasonable to send a prisoner, and not withal to signify the crimes laid against him.

[s] Or I was doubtful how to inquire hereof. Ver. 9.

[t] Ver. 10. ch. 26. 32. 2 Tim. 4. 16.

* Or judgment.

[u] Is. 52. 15. ch. 9. 15.

[x] Esth. 1. 4. Dan. 4. 30. ch. 12. 21. 1 Cor. 7. 31. Jam. 1. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 24. Rev. 1. 2.

† King Agrippa was the son of Herod Agrippa, who, upon the death of his uncle Herod, king of Chalcis, succeeded to his dominions by the favour of the emperor Claudius, who also gave him the power of appointing the Jewish High Priest.

[y] Ch. 23. 9. & 26. 31. John 18. 38. Luke 23. 4, 14, 15.

‡ Nero the Roman emperor.

[z] Ch. 26. 2, 3.

Verses 13—27. As Christ had told his disciples that they should be brought before governors and kings, so doth he order it in his providence, that their persecutors are made the instruments of leading those great men to hear the gospel, who perhaps otherwise never would have heard it. We have here,

1. The visit of Agrippa to Festus, to congratulate him on his coming to his government. He was the son of that Herod who slew the apostle James: Claudius, the Roman emperor, had given him the title of king, and the tetrarchy which belonged to his uncle Philip. Bernice, who accompanied him, was his sister; but was accused of too great familiarity with her brother: such were the great folks of those times; when viewing then the present corruptions of the age, say not the former days were better, the world was always the same.

2. As Agrippa and Bernice were both brought up in the Jewish religion, after they had been at Cesarea some time, in conversation one day Paul's case happened to be the subject, which Festus related to the king, either to entertain him with the story, or to have his advice how to act, as better acquainted with the Jewish rites and customs, than he, a stranger, could be supposed to be. He had found Paul in bonds, when Felix resigned the government to him, and had no sooner come to Jerusalem, to take possession of his province, than the chief priests and elders clamoured for judgment against him; but he excused himself from a hasty decision of the matter, alleging the constant custom of the Romans to adjudge no man to death, nor to consign him to destruction, through any favour or partiality; but first to have the person accused, and his accusers, face to face, that he might have liberty to exculpate himself from any crime laid to his charge. And to despatch the matter without delay, the next day after his arrival, the prisoner was brought to the bar; when, to his surprise, he found no one accusation of a criminal nature could be proved, such as came under his cognizance as a magistrate; but that the charge turned upon certain questions of a religious nature, respecting the tenets he held, contrary to their law, and about one Jesus, who was crucified, whom Paul affirmed to be alive again; counting himself an incompetent judge of such superstitious controversies, as he regarded them, he proposed to Paul to have the matter canvassed before the Sanhedrim at Jerusalem: but the prisoner objecting to them, had pleaded his privilege, and appealed unto Cesar; he was therefore still in custody, till an opportunity offered to send him to Rome. Note, (1.) Every man has a natural right to be heard before he is condemned. To determine a case where only one side of the question is told, is the sure way to err, and may be the means of irreparable injury to the purest innocence. (2.) They who know not Jesus, speak lightly of him; but to those who feel their guilt, and need of a Saviour, whether he is alive again or no, is a matter of infinite importance, on which their everlasting hopes depend.

3. Agrippa, curious to know what Paul had to say for himself, intimated a desire to hear him; Festus gladly consented to it, and appointed the next day. On the morrow Agrippa and Bernice in vast pomp, arrayed in gorgeous apparel, attended by their royal retinue, entered the judgment-hall, where all the chief captains and principal men of the city attended, drawn by curiosity, or to pay their respects to the noble personages who were present: when being seated, the prisoner at the commandment of Festus is brought forth, more adorned with his prison garments and glorious bonds, than they in all their vain splendour and empty magnificence.

4. Festus with respect hereupon addressed himself to king Agrippa, and the principal men who were present, and opened the occasion of their meeting, with an account of the prisoner before them, concerning whom he had been solicited with great importunity by all the Jews, both at Jerusalem and Cesarea, to pass the sentence of death upon him, as a miscreant unworthy to live. But when on a fair trial nothing criminal could be proved against him, and Paul had appealed to Augustus for the final decision of his cause, he was resolved to send him: and as it looked absurd and unreasonable to send a prisoner, without signifying what crimes he stood accused of, he had therefore brought Paul forth before that honourable assembly, especially before king Agrippa, who was most acquainted with the Jewish laws and customs, that after a full discussion of the case, he might have something determinate to write to his imperial master, concerning the prisoner who had appealed to his judgment.

CHAP. XXVI.—ANNO DOMINI, 63.

In this chapter we have, 1. The account Paul gives of himself in answer to the calumnies of the Jews. And in that, (1.) His humble address to king Agrippa, and the compliment he passed upon him, ver. 1—3. (2.) His account of his original and education, and his profession as a Pharisee, and his adherence still to that which was then the main article of his creed, in distinction from the Sadducees, the resurrection of the dead: however in rituals he had since departed from it, ver. 4—8. (3.) Of his zeal against the Christian religion, and the professors of it, in the beginning of his time, ver. 9—11 (4.) Of his miraculous conversion to the faith of Christ, ver. 12—16. (5.) Of the commission he received from heaven to preach the gospel to the Gentiles, ver. 17, 18. (6.) Of his proceedings pursuant to that commission, which had given this mighty offence to the Jews, ver. 19—21. (7.) Of the doctrine which he had made it his business to preach to the Gentiles; which was so far from destroying the law and the prophets, that it showed the fulfilling of both, ver. 22, 23. 2. The remarks that were made upon his apology. (1.) Festus thought he never heard a man talk so madly, and slighted him as crazed, ver. 24. And in answer to him he denies the charge, and appeals to king Agrippa, ver. 25, 26. (2.) King Agrippa, being more closely and particularly dealt with, thinks he never heard a man talk more rationally and convincingly, and owns himself almost his convert, ver. 28. And Paul heartily wishes him so, ver. 29. (3.) They all agree that he was an innocent man, and that he ought to be set at liberty, and it was a pity he was provoked to put a bar in his own door by appealing to Cesar, ver. 30, 31.

1. THEN Agrippa said unto Paul, [a] Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul [b] stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself: 2. I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews: 3. [c] Especially, because I know thee to be [d] expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently. 4. [e] My manner of life from my youth, which was at the first among mine own nation at Jerusalem, [f] know all the Jews; 5. Which knew me from the beginning, (if they would testify,) that, [g] after the most straitest sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee. 6. And now I stand and am judged [h] for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers: 7. Unto which promise our [i] twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, [k] hope to come: for which hope's sake, king Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews. 8. [l] Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead? 9. [m] I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. 10. Which thing I also did in Jerusalem: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death, I gave my voice against them. 11. And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme: and, being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities.*

a Prov. 18. 13. John 7. 51.
b Ch. 13. 16. & 12. 17. & 19. 33. & 21. 40.
c Ch. 25. 26.
d Gr. a knower. Deut. 17. 13—20. 1 Cor. 13. 7.
e Ch. 22. 3.
f Ch. 22. 5.
g Ch. 22. 3. & 23. 6. Gal. 1. 13, 14. Phil. 3. 5, 6.
h Ch. 23. 6. & 24. 15. & 28. 20. ver. 8. Gen. 3. 15. & 12. 3. & 22. 18. & 26. 4. & 49. 10. Deut. 18. 15. 2 Sam. 7. 12. Ps. 132. 11. Is. 4. 2. & 11. 1. & 7. 14. & 9. 6, 7. & 40. 10. Jer. 23. 5. & 30. 21. & 33. 15. Ezek. 21. 27. & 34. 23, 29. & 37. 24. Dan. 9. 24, 25. Mic. 5. 2. & 7. 20. Zech. 6. 12. & 9. 9. Mal. 3. 1. & 4. 2. with ch. 2. 39. & 3. 26. & 5 31. & 13. 23, 26, 32, 46. Gal. 3. 13—16. Tit. 2. 13.
i Jam. 1. 1. Ezra 6. 17. & 8. 35. with Luke 2. 37. 1 Tim. 5. 5. k Ch. 23. 6. & 24. 15. Phil. 3. 11. Luke 7. 19, 20. l Mat. 22. 29—32. Is. 26. 19. Dan. 12. 2. Job 19. 25, 26.
m John 16. 2, 3. 1 Cor. 13. 11. Rom. 10. 2. Phil. 3. 6. Gal. 1. 13, 14. 1 Tim. 1. 13. 1 Cor. 15. 9. ch. 7. 58. & 8. 3, 4. & 9. 1, 14. & 22. 4, 19. Rom. 10. 2.
* Could such a character as Paul have been deceived and won over by a few illiterate fishermen? Or could they have dared to attempt to turn the most enlightened of their opponents, and the most cruel of their persecutors, into an apostle?

Verses 1—11. As Agrippa was the principal personage in that assembly to whom Festus had particularly addressed himself, he signified to Paul, who waited the order of his superiors, that he was permitted to speak for himself. Glad of the opportunity to vindicate the glorious cause of God and truth, whilst he apologized for himself, with dignity stretching out his hand, the great apostle, with conscious uprightness and unaffected simplicity, began,

1. With the satisfaction he felt on the occasion now given him of answering before so able and candid a judge. I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee, concerning the charges laid against me by my countrymen, especially because I know thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews. Wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently, whilst I desire, without art or disguise, to relate the principles which have influenced my conduct from the first day until now.

2. He freely appeals to the Jews themselves, who knew his manner of life from his youth up, that he had been educated at Jerusalem, under the most celebrated of their doctors: had early embraced the principles of Pharisaism, and, according to their most rigid interpretations, had conformed to all the rites, Mosaical or traditionary, and observed, with much conscientious regard, the commandments of the law, blameless in all his conversation. So that it was neither ignorance, prejudice, loose principles, or immoral conduct, which could be urged as a reason for the change wrought upon him.

3. He declares freely the cause of his present bonds. It was for holding the hope of the promise made of God unto the fathers, of a resurrection to eternal life and glory through the divine Messiah, who had appeared in the person of Jesus of Nazareth, and by his rising from the dead had fully proved his own glorious character, and secured the resurrection of all his redeemed people. Unto which promise not only he, but all the truly religious of the twelve tribes, hoped to come, with fervency and constancy, day and night, in their prayers, labouring to arrive at the possession of the blessings promised through this Messiah. And for this hope's sake was he accused, for preaching this Messiah, the salvation which was in him, and a resurrection to everlasting blessedness through faith in his name. So that, instead of being an apostate from the fundamental articles of the Jewish faith, according to the malicious accusations of his persecutors, he maintained them with all his might and diligence. Nor did he urge any thing absurd or unreasonable, when he asserted the resurrection of Jesus, as the first-fruits of his people: for why should it be thought a thing incredible that God should raise the dead? Is any thing beyond God's power? and ought we not implicitly to credit his promise? Note, (1.) All our hopes towards God are founded on his promises. (2.) They who would come to the possession of the eternal blessedness, are called upon to serve God day and night in ceaseless and importunate prayer.

4. He owns the inveterate prejudices against Christianity under which he formerly lay. I verily thought with myself that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth, supposing it a duty I owed to God and my brethren, to suppress, by every means, the doctrine and pretensions of one who appeared so despicable: which thing I did also in Jerusalem, being most zealous against his disciples; and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and, when they were put to death, I gave my voice against them, justifying the most bloody measures, and testifying my fullest approbation of these horrid executions; and I punished them oft in every synagogue, with restless eagerness pursuing them, and compelled them, through the dread of scourgings, infamy, or death, to blaspheme that holy Name whereby they were called; and, being exceedingly mad against them, to find many of them obstinate in their faith, and to see the number of the disciples increase in spite of all the load of oppression, I persecuted them even unto strange cities, longing, if possible, to extirpate the very Christian name. If he was now therefore a preacher and a sufferer for that faith which once he so furiously persecuted, it could arise only from the deepest conviction; and his conversion was itself a proof of the truth of Christianity. Note, (1.) It is possible for those who seem most confident they are in the right, and are most violent in support of their opinions, to be most dangerously deceived. I doubt not that many to this hour persecute the truth, and think they do God service. (2.) Nothing will lie heavier on the awakened conscience than the remembrance of former injuries done to the souls of men, the effects of which perhaps are now irreparable.

12. [n] Whereupon, as I went to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests, 13. [o] At mid-day, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me, and them which journeyed with me. 14. And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in [p] the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. 15. And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest. 16. [q] But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, [r] to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee; 17. [s] Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee, 18. [t] To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and [u] from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive [x] forgiveness of sins, and [y] inheritance among them which are [z] sanctified by faith that is in me. 19. Whereupon, O king Agrippa, [a] I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision: 20. [b] But shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, [c] that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance. 21. For these causes [d] the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me. 22. Having therefore [e] obtained held of God, I continue unto this day, [f] witnessing both to small and great, saying [g] none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come: 23. [h] That Christ should suffer, and that he should be [i] the first that should rise from the dead, and should [k] shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

n Ch. 9. 2. & 22. 5. 1 Kin. 21. 3. Is. 10. 1. John 7. 48.
o Ch. 9. 3—9. & 22. 6—16.
p Ch. 21. 10. & 6. 1.
q Dan. 10. 11. Rev. 1. 17, 18.
r Mat. 13. 12. ch. 9. 15, 17. & 13. 2—4, 31. & 18. 9. & 22. 10. & 23. 11. 1 Tim. 1. 12. 2 Cor. 12. 2. s 2 Cor. 1. 10. & 4. 8—10. & 11. 23—28. ch. 9. 23—25. & 14. 19, 20. & 16. 39. & 17. 10, 14. & 18. 12—17. & 19. 30. & 21. 31—35. & 23. 10, 21—33. 2 Tim. 4. 17, 18. with ch. 9. 15. & 22. 21. Eph. 3. 8. 1 Tim. 2. 7. Rom. 11 13. & 15. 16.
t 1 Cor. 3. 5, 6. 2 Cor. 4. 5, 6. Is. 35. 5. & 42. 7. & 60. 1. & 61. 1. Luke 4. 18. & 1. 77—79. & 2. 30, 32. Eph. 1. 18. & 4. 17. & 5. 8, 11. 1 Pet. 2. 9, 25. Col. 1. 13. John 1. 9. & 3. 19. & 8. 12. & 9. 5. & 12. 35. 2 Cor. 6. 14. u Is. 49. 24, 25. 2 Tim. 2. 26. 1 John 3. 5, 8. & 5. 19. x Eph. 1. 11. Col. 1. 14. ch. 5. 31. & 10. 43. & 13. 38, 39.
y Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 12. ch. 22. 32. Heb. 9. 15. Jam. 2. 5. & 4. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 4, 13. & 3. 9. Rom. 8. 17, 30.
z John 15. 3. & 17. 17. ch. 15. 9. & 20. 21, 32. 1 Cor. 6. 11. Tit. 3. 5. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Jude 1. 1 Cor. 1. 30. a Gal. 1. 16. Jon. 1. 2. Is. 50. 5. 1 Cor. 15. 10.
b Ch. 9. 19—30. & xiii—xxi. Rom. 11. 18—30. c Ch. 13. 46, 47. & 14. 15. & 17. 30. & 20. 21. & 17. 2, 3. & 18. 11. & 19. 8. Mat. 3. 8. Tit. 2. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 7. 1, 11.
d Ch. 21. 30. & 23. 12. & 9. 23. & 25. 3.
e 1 Cor. 15. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 5, 6. Phil. 4. 13. 2 Tim. 4. 17.
f Ch. 20. 20—27. xxii, lxix. Is. liii.
g Luke 24. 27, 44. John 1. 45. ch. 24. 14. & 28. 23. 1 Cor. 15. 4. Dan. 9. 24—26. Zech. 13. 7. Gen. 3. 15.
h Ps.
i 1 Cor. 15. 20, 23. Col. 1. 18. Rev. 1. 5. John 10. 18. & 11. 25. ch. 13. 34. Rom. 6. 9. & 8. 11.
k Is. 42. 6. & 60. 1. Luke 2. 32. John 1. 9.

Verses 12—23. The apostle, having related his former life and conversation, proceeds to account for the amazing change which had been wrought in him.

1. He declares the manner of his conversion. As he approached Damascus to execute the high priest's commission, at midday, a light, brighter than the sun, darted from heaven upon him and his companions; and, when in consternation they were fallen together to the earth, a voice of majesty addressed him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks: these mad attempts to wound me in my members must be attended with ruin to thy own soul. Terrified with this interrogation, when he replied, Who art thou, Lord? the voice answered, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest. That despised Nazarene, whom he branded as an impostor, now demonstrated to him his divine power and glory with such evidence as in a moment bore down all his prejudices, and struck him to the heart with horror, shame, and remorse.

2. He who had laid him in the dust, with infinite condescension raised him up, and invested him with that commission under which he now acted. He said, Rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee, not to destroy thee, as thou hast deserved, but for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee, giving thee farther discoveries of my mind and will, and directions for thy conduct; and, amidst all the dangers to which hereafter for my name's sake thou mayest be exposed, delivering thee from the Jewish people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom I now send thee, with an apostolic commission to publish the glad tidings of salvation, to open their eyes, through a divine illumination attending thy preaching; to turn them from the darkness of superstition, idolatry, ignorance, and error, to the saving light and knowledge of the grace which is in Jesus Christ; and from the power of Satan, who now reigns in their hearts, unto God; effectually converting their souls from the dominion of sin to the love and service of the holy, ever blessed God; that they may receive forgiveness of sins, through me the great Redeemer of lost souls, and inheritance among them that are sanctified by faith that is in me, prepared for and entitled to the eternal mansions of blessedness, through that divine faith which worketh by love, and purifies the souls of all my redeemed people. Note, (1.) The whole world lieth in darkness and wickedness, until the light of the gospel word and the power of gospel grace be shed abroad in the heart. (2.) The great end of the Christian ministry is in order to the conversion of men's souls to God. They are not sent of him, who are never made use of by him to this blessed end, and neither know nor expect such fruit of their labours. (3.) Forgiveness of sins is the great foundation on which alone repentance towards God can be effectually preached. We must believe that he is a pardoning God, before we can have any hope of returning to his favour. (4.) There can be no true sanctification but what flows from faith which worketh by love. (5.) Our title to glory is not of debt, but of grace. Jesus hath purchased it for us, and freely bestows it upon his people, who are the children which his Father hath given him. (6.) Though our title to the eternal inheritance is the finished work of Jesus, it becomes us to experience a meetness for it by the power of his Spirit in our hearts. We must be sanctified before we can be glorified.

3. Borne down by such irresistible evidence, he could not hesitate a moment. Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision; but, instantly becoming a convert to the truth, I showed first to them of Damascus, and then at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coast of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, according to the orders given me, that they should repent and turn to God, deeply convinced of their guilt and danger, filled with self-abhorrence, and in simplicity desiring to renounce their sins, whilst they drew near to a throne of grace through a crucified Jesus; and do works meet for repentance, to evidence the genuine conversion of their hearts to God. Note, Unless our fruits prove the truth of the grace which is in us, we deceive ourselves if we think that we are real converts.

4. His indefatigable labours and zeal in preaching these benevolent and infinitely momentous doctrines were the only causes of provocation given to his unbelieving brethren, who, obstinate against his testimony, and exasperated at his preaching, seized him in the temple, and in a tumultuous manner, if he had not been rescued, would have pulled him in pieces on the spot. Let the impartial judge if he had deserved such treatment.

5. Not intimidated by his past dangers, and having, according to the divine promise, ver. 17. obtained help from God, he steadfastly persevered, supported and encouraged by the Spirit's inward assistances, and the gracious interpositions of the Lord's providence in his behalf; witnessing both to small and great, without respect of persons, or fear of man, that great salvation which is brought to light by the gospel, and most clearly revealed through the death and resurrection of Jesus; saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say, that Christ should suffer, and not be a temporal conqueror, but devoted to death for the sins of his people, Is. liii. 8. and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, to die no more, and as the first-fruits of them that slept, who, by virtue of their relation to him should be quickened by his power at the last day; and should show light unto the people and to the Gentiles, diffusing the knowledge of his great salvation not only among his ancient favourites the Jews, but extending his grace to the ends of the earth, and sending out the light of his gospel, as the light of his sun, to his people of all nations, tongues, and languages, who are freely called to partake of all the blessings and privileges of his kingdom.

24. ¶ And as he thus spake for himself, [l] Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad. 25. But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus; but speak forth the words of truth and soberness. 26. For [m] the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner. 27. King Agrippa, believest thou [n] the prophets? I know that thou believest. 28. Then Agrippa said unto Paul, [o] Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.* 29. And Paul said, [p] I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these [q] bonds. 30. ¶ And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them: 31. And when they were gone aside, they talked between themselves, saying, This man [r] doeth nothing worthy of death or of bonds. 32. Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not [s] appealed unto Cesar.†

l John 10. 20. Mark 3. 21. 1 Cor. 2. 14. & 4. 10. & 1. 18, 23. & 4. 10. 2 Kin. 9. 11.

m John 18. 20. Luke 24. 19. Mat. xxvi—xxviii. Mark xiii—xvi.

n Ver. 22, 23.

o Mark 12. 34. & 6. 20.

* His understanding and judgment were for the time convinced, but his heart was not changed.

p Rom. 9. 1—4. & 10. 1. Col. 1. 28. 1 Cor. 7. 7.

q Ch. 12. 6. & 25. 14. ver. 32.

r 1 Sam. 24. 17. Luke 23. 4, 14. ch. 23. 9. & 24. 12. 14. & 25. 25. 1 Pet. 4. 15, 16. & 3. 10.

s Ch. 25. 10, 11, 25.

† His appealing to Cæsar was lawful, and what became a Roman citizen.

Verses 24—32. Whilst Paul, warmed by the glorious subject on which he had entered, was proceeding to display the great truths of his Redeemer's person, offices, and character, he is here,

1. Interrupted by Festus. Unable to hear with patience what he, a heathen, counted so absurd as the resurrection of a dead man, and so strange as this miraculous conversion, he said aloud, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad. He looked upon him with an air of disdain, as rather to be pitied as a lunatic, then condemned as a criminal. Perhaps the warmth which Paul expressed, as he advanced in his speech, made him think his imagination was over-heated with the intenseness of his application. Note, It is no unusual thing for those who never knew the light of truth, and the zeal of warm affection for a Redeemer, to stamp those who appear fervent in his cause as enthusiasts or madmen.

2. Paul's reply was a sufficient proof of the falseness of this invidious imputation. I am not mad, most noble Festus; but speak forth the words of truth and soberness, matters of infinite importance, and supported by the most substantial evidence. He does not resent the suggestion of the governor, but by the meekness of his reply proves the unruffled serenity of his own mind; and, referring himself to Agrippa, he adds, For the king knoweth of these things, before whom I speak freely, being conversant in the writings of Moses and the prophets, where the sufferings and resurrection of the Messiah are foretold; and hath heard how they had been fulfilled in Jesus of Nazareth: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; he must have been long ago told of the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, and of my singular conversion: for this thing was not done in a corner, but publicly known, and attested by unexceptionable witnesses, many of whom have, and many more are ready to seal their testimony with their blood.

3. Turning then from Festus to Agrippa, in the most affecting and pathetic manner he applied himself to the conscience of his royal auditor. King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest. He cannot entertain a suspicion to the contrary; and with confidence expresses his assurance of his faith in the inspired writings: paying him the greatest compliment, whilst he presses on him the most important truths.

4. Agrippa is nearly staggered with this close application; and, struck with the polite yet serious address of the apostle, replies, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian: so much reason and evidence appeared in Paul's discourse, that, were it not for a regard to his dignity and temporal interests, he could become a convert to Christianity. Note, Many, unable to stand before the evidence of truth, are almost persuaded; but the world holds them in fetters, and they dare not pursue their own convictions.

5. With inimitable address, where the piety of the Christian was blended with the politeness of the Roman, Paul replied, I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds. He wished him and them all the happiness which himself enjoyed in Christ, and exemption from all the ignominy and sufferings to which, for the sake of Jesus, he was exposed.

6. The king hereupon arose, unable, perhaps, any longer to stand against the powerful evidence of truth, and afraid of some more moving strokes on his conscience: the governor and Bernice followed him, with the rest of the principal persons. And as they retired together, and talked of Paul's case and his defence, they perfectly agreed that this man, however great the clamour was against him, had done nothing worthy of death or of bonds; so clear was the innocence of the apostle. Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cesar.

CHAP. XXVII.—ANNO DOMINI, 63.

This whole chapter is taken up with an account of Paul's voyage towards Rome, when he was sent thither a prisoner by Festus the governor, upon his appeal to Cesar. 1. The beginning of the voyage was calm and prosperous, ver. 1—8. 2. Paul gave them notice of a storm coming, but could not prevail with them to lie by, ver. 9—11. 3. As they pursued their voyage, they met with a great deal of tempestuous weather, which reduced them to such extremity that they counted upon nothing but being cast away, ver. 12—20. 4. Paul assured them, that though they would not be advised by him to prevent their coming into this danger, yet, by the good providence of God, they should be brought safely through it, and none of them should be lost, ver. 21—26. 5. They are shipwrecked on the isle of Malta, and by Paul's counsel all get safe to land, ver. 27—44.

1 AND when it was [a] determined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto one named Julius, a [b] centurion of Augustus' band.* 2 And, entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning [c] to sail by the coasts of Asia; one Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, being with us. 3 And the next day we touched at [e] Sidon. And Julius [f] courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself. 4 And when we had launched from thence, we sailed under † Cyprus, because the winds were contrary. 5 And when we had sailed over the sea of [g] Cilicia and [g] Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of [g] Lycia. 6 And there the centurion found a ship of [h] Alexandria sailing into Italy; and he put us therein. 7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come over against ‡ Cnidus, the wind not suffering us, we sailed under [i] Crete, over against Salmone; 8 And, hardly passing it, came unto a place which is called The Fair Havens; nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea. 9 Now, when much time was spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, because [k] the fast was now already past, Paul admonished them, 10 And said unto them, Sirs, [l] I perceive that this voyage will be with ‖ hurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ship, but also of our lives. 11 Nevertheless, the centurion believed the master and the owner of the ship, more than those things which were spoken by Paul. 12 ¶ And, because the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to [m] Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the south-west and north-west.

a Ch. 20. 16. & 25. 12, 25. with Gen. 50. 29. ch. 19. 21. & 23. 11. Rom. 15. 28, 29.

b Captain of a hundred soldiers. Mat. 8. 5. & 27. 54. ch. 10. 1. & 22. 25. & 23. 17, 23.

* It appears, from Josephus, that at this period a small body of soldiers were stationed at Cæsarea.

c Ch. 16. 11. & 18. 21. & 20. 3, 15. & 21. 1, 3.

d Ch. 19. 29. & 20. 4. Col. 4. 10. Philem. 24.

e Gen. 10. 15. Josh. 19. 28. Is. 23. 2.

f Ch. 24. 23. & 28. 2, 16.

† A large island northward of Syria.

g Countries in the south-west of Lesser Asia. Ch. 1. 10. & 13. 13. & 14. 24. & 15. 41. & 22. 3.

h A city in the north-west of Egypt. ch. 6. 9. & 28. 11.

‡ A city on the south-west of Lesser Asia.

i Or Candy, a large island in the Mediterranean. Tit. 1. 5, 12.

k The great day of atonement in the month of September. Lev. xvi. & 23. 27, 29. Num. 29. 7.

l Amos 3. 7. Ps. 25. 14.

‖ Or injury.

m Not Phenicia, the country on the north-west of Canaan. Ch. 11. 19. & 21. 2.

Verses 1—12. How long Paul continued at Cesarea is not said; probably on the first opportunity, he was shipped for Rome. We have here,

1. His embarkation. Paul and some other prisoners were put on board a ship of Adramyttium, under the care of one Julius, a centurion of the legion which bore the name of Augustus. Luke the evangelist, and Aristarchus a Macedonian, accompanied the apostle, whose presence and society could not but be a singular blessing to him in this tedious voyage.

2. His progress. The next day after they sailed, they touched at Sidon; where Julius reposed such confidence in his prisoner, that, on his parole, he permitted him to visit his friends, that he might have the comfort of refreshing himself with their company and conversation, and be supplied with proper provisions for the voyage. Loosing from thence they beat up under the island of Cyprus, the wind being against them, and, coasting the Cilician and Pamphylian shore, they arrived at Myra, a city of Lycia. There the centurion finding a ship of Alexandria sailing to Italy with a loading of wheat, he contracted for a passage, and carried the prisoners and the companions of the apostle aboard; and putting to sea, through contrary winds, they made but little way, in many days scarce reaching Cnidus, a promontory in Caria, and, instead of leaving Crete on the left, they were forced to beat up on the other side, over against the eastern cape called Salmone, and, with great difficulty weathering the point, cast anchor in a bay called The Fair Havens, near the city of Lasea. Note, (1.) In our voyage through this tempestuous world we may expect to meet many an unfavourable gale. (2.) Though the wind of afflictions and temptations blow hard against us, and we can scarcely bear up against it, if we steadily hold on our course, we shall at last reach the fair havens where we would be.

3. His advice. As the autumn was far advanced, and the fast on the great day of atonement was now passed, the season of the year began to grow tempestuous, and sailing to be dangerous. Paul therefore admonished them not to proceed farther till the spring, foretelling by a prophetic impulse, that if they did they would repent their rashness, and not only sustain great damage in the loss of their ship, but also greatly endanger their lives. But, the master and owner of the ship being of a different opinion, the centurion, who chose rather to be guided by their judgment in this matter, disregarded Paul's admonition; and The Fair Havens being an inconvenient port to winter in, the majority of the ship's company advised to sail for Phenice, a haven in Crete, at no great distance, that was made by two points of land that ran south-east and north-west, and was more sheltered from the winds, and more commodious for a winter station.

13 And when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence, they sailed close by Crete. 14 [n] But not long after there § arose against it a tempestuous wind, called * Euroclydon. 15 And when the ship was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive.

n Esth. 7. 10. Ps. 37. 35. Eccl. 11. 9. ch. 12. 23.

§ Or beat.

* A north-east wind, common in the Mediterranean and now usually known by the name of a Levanter.

16. And, running under a certain island which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat: 17. Which when they had taken up, they used helps, undergirding the ship;* and, fearing lest they should fall into the quicksands, strake sail, and so were driven. 18. And we being exceedingly tossed with a tempest, the next day they lightened the ship: 19. And the third day [o] we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship. 20. [p] And when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.

* Seamen even now have recourse sometimes to this method of securing a ship by fastening cables around it. Several passages in ancient authors show that it was common in their times.

o Jon. 1. 5. Job 2. 4. Prov. 23. 5.

p Ps. 107. 25—27. Jon. 1. 4, 13. Mat. 8. 24, 25.

Verses 13—20. In consequence of the advice of the majority, we have here,

1. The ship pursuing her voyage with a prosperous gale. The south wind blowing gently, encouraged them to put to sea; and now, concluding they could not fail to reach their desired port, they coasted along the island of Crete; but the gale of prosperity is often but a short-lived delusion. For,

2. The wind suddenly shifted to an opposite quarter, and a hurricane, called Euroclydon, arose, and blew so vehemently, that the ship was ready to be swallowed up in the waves; so that, unable to bear up against the storm, or keep their course, they let her drive at random; and, running under an island Clauda, with great difficulty they hoisted the boat on board; then undergirding the ship with ropes, to prevent her going to pieces, and fearing lest they should be driven on the quicksands of the African shore, they reefed their sails, and drove before the wind under the bare poles. Thus they continued to be tossed about violently, whilst lowering clouds obscured the skies, and neither sun nor stars for many days appeared; so that they knew not where they were. Note, (1.) We should never be too elated; the transition from the height of prosperity to the depth of adversity is often very sudden. (2.) Many of God's dearest children have known such melancholy seasons, when Christ, their polar star, hath been obscured, and spiritual darkness hath compassed them round on every side.

3. All attempts which human prudence dictated they now made use of. The next day after the storm began, in order to lighten the ship, they cast out the merchandise into the sea; and when still the danger increased, passengers as well as seamen were called upon deck; and the third day they threw overboard the utensils and necessary tackling of the ship; when their lives were each moment in jeopardy, they cared not for any loss besides; but when, after all their efforts, for many days the storm raged with unabating severity, despair sat in general upon the countenance of the seamen, and they expected nothing but to be swallowed up of the merciless waves. Note, (1.) If men are so prodigal of their goods to save their bodies, when in danger, how much readier should we be to part with them, rather than seek to preserve them at the peril of our souls? (2.) Long continued trials are apt to lead us to despair. It requires strong faith to walk in darkness and see no light, and yet to stay ourselves upon God.

21. ¶ But, after [q] long abstinence, Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened unto me, [r] and not have loosed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loss. 22. And now [s] I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there shall be [t] no loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship. 23. For there stood by me this night the angel of God, [u] whose I am, and whom I serve, 24. Saying, [x] Fear not, Paul; [y] thou must be brought before Cesar: and, lo, [z] God hath given thee all them that sail with thee. 25. Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: [a] for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me. 26. Howbeit we must be cast upon [b] a certain island. 27. But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down † in Adria, about midnight the shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country; 28. And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms; and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms. 29. Then, fearing lest we should have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day. 30. And as the shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the boat into the sea, under colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship, 31. Paul said to the centurion, and to the soldiers, [c] Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved. 32. Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off. 33. And, while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take meat, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued fasting, having taken [d] nothing. 34. Wherefore I pray you to take some meat; for this is [e] for your health: [f] for there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you. 35. And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and [g] gave thanks to God in presence of them all: and when he had broken it, he began to eat. 36. Then were they all [h] of good cheer, and they also took some meat. 37. And we were in all in the ship two hundred threescore and sixteen souls. 38. And when they had eaten enough, [i] they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea. 39. And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they discovered a certain creek with a shore, into the which they were minded, if it were pos-q Ps. 107. 5. Deut. 8. 3.

r Ver. 9, 10.

s Job 22. 29, 30. Is. 43. 1, 2& 41. 10.

t With ver. 31.

u Rom. 1. 9. 2 Tim. 1. 3.

x Is. 41. 10, 14. & 43. 1, 2.

y Ch. 19. 21. & 23. 11. & 25. 11.

z Is. 6. 13. Job 22. 30. Gen. 39. 5, 18, 26, 28—32. ver. 44.

a Rom. 4. 20. 2 Chr. 20. 20. Num. 23. 19. Tit. 1. 2. Heb. 6. 17, 18. Luke 1. 45. John 1. 50. 2 Tim. 1. 12.

b Ch. 28. 1.

† A sea southwest of Italy now called the Gulf of Venice.

c Means must be used in fulfilling God's infallible promises. Ps. 37. 34. Is. 33. 21. Mat. 4. 7. Judg. 20. 28, 29. ver. 22, 24.

d Very little, and no set meal. ver. 21.

e Eph. 5. 29. 1 Tim. 5. 23.

f Luke 21. 18. & 12. 7. Mat. 10. 30. 1 Kin. 1. 52.

g 1 Sam. 9. 13. Mat. 15. 36. John 6. 11. 1 Tim. 4. 4.

h Ps. 30. 11. & 107. 30.

i Ver. 19. Jon. 1. 5. Prov. 23. 5. Job 2. 4. Mat. 6. 25.

sible, to thrust in the ship. 40. And when they had * taken up the anchors, they committed themselves unto the sea, and loosed the rudder bands, and hoised up the mainsail to the wind, and made toward the shore. 41. And, falling into a place where two seas met, [k] they ran the ship aground; and the forepart stuck fast, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves. 42. [l] And the soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim out, and escape. 43. But the centurion, [m] willing to save Paul, kept them from their purpose; and commanded that they which could swim should cast themselves first into the sea, and get to land; 44. And the rest, some on boards, and some on broken pieces of the ship.† And so it came to pass, that [n] they escaped all safe to land.

* Or cut the anchors, they left them in the sea, &c.

k 2 Cor. 11. 25, 26.

l Prov. 12. 10. & 1. 16. Rom. 3. 15—18.

m Prov. 16. 7. ch. 23. 10. Jer. 38. 10.

† It was usual for great ships to have two large broad oars fixed at the head and stern. The bands were fastenings by which these were raised out of the water, and secured in a storm.

n Ver. 22, 24. Ps. 107. 30.

Verses 21—44. Man's extremity is God's opportunity: when we are at our wit's end, he can still open a door for us to escape.

1. Paul cheers their hearts with the assurance, that, though they gave themselves over for lost, and abandoned themselves to despair, not a man of the company should perish.

(1.) He gently reminds them of his advice which they had disregarded. They should have followed his prophetic warning, and then they would have prevented the danger, loss, and injury which they had now sustained. Note, Most of the miseries in which we involve ourselves are owing to our own obstinacy and disregard of the admonition of our wiser friends.

(2.) He confidently assures them of the safety of their persons, though their ship must be wrecked, and therefore exhorts them to be of good cheer. Notwithstanding their contempt of his advice, he desired to revive their desponding hearts, and to quicken them to bestir themselves in the confidence of being preserved through the divine mercy. Note, Though others involve themselves in trouble by neglecting our counsel, we must nevertheless be ready to lend them our assistance to comfort them under their trials, or to extricate them from their difficulties.

(3.) He produces divine authority for what he said, that they might rest satisfied with the truth of his assertion, however improbable it might appear. There stood by me this night, in a vision, the angel of God, a celestial messenger sent from that glorious Lord, whose I am; his peculiar property by redemption, as well as creation, and by his special appointment constituted an apostle; and whom I serve, making it the business and happiness of my life to promote his glory in the gospel of his dear Son, and yielding up my body, soul, and spirit, with unreserved devotedness, to his blessed work and service. And this heavenly minister addressed me, saying, Fear not, Paul; thou art safe in the midst of danger; for thou must be brought before Cesar; and lo! God hath given thee all them that sail with thee, who for thy sake shall be preserved. Such a public blessing is one good man; and they who are hated and persecuted of the world as not worthy to live, are indeed the very persons for whose sake it is preserved.

(4.) He comforts them, and encourages them to trust in God. Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me, and doubt not but the event will confirm his gracious promise.

(5.) He tells them they must, however, expect to be shipwrecked on a certain island; which, among other things, when it came to pass, would evidence the divine inspiration by which the apostle spoke.

2. After many days of terror and dismay, on the fourteenth night, as they were tossed to and fro by the tempest in the Adriatic Sea, the seamen about midnight apprehended they were near land; and sounding, at first found twenty fathom of water, and a little farther, fifteen; lest therefore they should be driven ashore in the dark, or strike upon some rock, they cast anchor, and longed impatiently for day-light, that they might see in what situation they were. Note, In the dark and stormy night of temptation, desertion, or affliction, the anchor of hope, which enters into that within the veil, must hold the soul sure and steadfast until the Sun of Righteousness arise, and lift up the light of his countenance upon us.

3. The sailors, disregarding Paul's assurances of safety, thought to secure themselves, whatever became of the rest; and therefore hoisting out the boat, under pretence of casting anchor out of the foreship, they intended to make for the shore, and leave the ship and the passengers to shift for themselves. Paul, probably by divine intimation, perceived their design, and immediately acquainted the centurion and soldiers, assuring them, that though God had promised to preserve them, it was to be affected in the use of the necessary means; and that if the seamen, who should work the ship, were suffered to escape, they must not expect to be saved. In the way of duty we may only hope for the fulfilment of the promises. The soldiers, therefore, apprized of the danger, immediately cut the ropes, and let the boat drive.

4. While they waited for the morning light, Paul, the comforter and encourager of his dejected shipmates, besought them to take meat, and refresh themselves after their toils, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, in suspense between life and death, and continued fasting, without any inclination to food, having taken nothing, at least no regular nor hearty meal: wherefore I pray you to take some meat, for this is for your health, and will conduce to your safety; for there shall not a hair fall from the head of any of you. And when he had thus heartened them with his cheerful counsel and countenance, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in the presence of them all, for their past preservation, the promise of assured safety, and the provision that was now before them; and when he had broken it, he began to eat, setting them an example. Revived by this repeated assurance, and exhortation, and seeing him so satisfied, they all took refreshment, their number consisting of two hundred and threescore persons; and being strengthened by a hearty meal, they cleared the ship, casting the wheat, of which part of her cargo consisted, into the sea, that she might draw the less water, as they intended to run her ashore.

5. When welcome daylight appeared, they descried the land not very distant, though what country it was they knew not: but observing a creek which ran up within the shore, they resolved if possible, to steer the ship thither; and weighing the anchors, or slipping the cables, they hoisted the mainsail, and loosed the rudder, which had been fastened, and made for the shore: but striking on a shoal where two currents met, the prow stuck fast, and the waves dashing on the stern, she soon went to pieces.

6. In this extremity the inhuman soldiers proposed the bloody expedient of murdering all the prisoners, lest any of them should escape, and they become answerable for them; a shocking proposal! But the centurion, who now saw more reason than ever to value Paul, for his sake would not permit so cruel a project to be executed: and therefore commanded every one to consult in the best manner possible for their own safety; whereupon some by swimming, and others on parts of the wreck, got safe to shore, and not one person of the whole company was drowned, according to Paul's prediction. Note, (1.) Many a faithful soul reaches the shores of eternal rest in a storm; and however great his fears, or imminent his danger, he will find his safety secured. (2.) After long beating on life's tempestuous ocean, though we leave earth and all its things behind us, we shall not regret their loss, when we feel ourselves entered into the land of rest which remaineth for the people of God.

CHAP. XXVIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 63.

We have here, 1. Paul's miraculous escape, after his shipwreck, from a viper which fastened on his hand, ver. 1—6. 2. The great good he did in the island of Malta, and the respect showed him there, ver. 7—10. 3. The completion of his voyage, and his journey to Rome, ver. 11—16. 4. The conference he held with the Jews on his arrival, some of whom believed, and others were hardened, ver. 17—29. 5. The liberty he had, though a prisoner, to preach in his own hired house during two years, ver. 30, 31.

a Ch. 27. 25.

1. AND when they were escaped, then they knew that the [a] island was called * Melita. 2. And the [b] barbarous people [c] shewed us no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present rain, and because of the cold. 3. ¶ And when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand. 4. And when the barbarians saw the venomous beast hang on his hand, they said among themselves, [d] No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet vengeance suffereth not to live. 5. [e] And he shook off the beast into the fire, and felt no harm. 6. Howbeit, they looked when he should have swollen, or fallen down dead suddenly: but, after they had looked a great while, and saw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and said that [f] he was a god. 7. ¶ In the same quarters were possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius; who received us, and lodged us three days courteously. 8. And it came to pass, that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever, and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, [g] and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him. 9. So, when this was done, others also, which had diseases in the island, came and were healed: 10. [h] Who also honoured us with many honours; and when we departed, they laded us with such things as were necessary.

* Or Malta, an island, about 350 miles south of Rome. Some writers indeed have supposed that this island was not Malta, but an island of that name on the coast of Illyria. This however appears to be a mistake from not considering that the name of Adria formerly extended to the part of the Mediterranean sea between Greece, Italy, and Africa. It should have been remembered also that the Euroclydon blows from the east.

b Rom. 1. 14. 1 Cor. 14. 11. Col. 3. 11.

c Col. 3. 12, 13. Heb. 13. 1, 2. ch. 27. 3.

d Luke 13. 2, 4. John 9. 2, 3.

e Mark 16. 18. Ps. 91. 13. Luke 10. 19.

f Ch. 8. 10. & 14. 11. & 10. 25. Rev. 19. 10. & 22. 8, 9.

g 1 Kin. 17. 20—22. Jam. 5. 14—16. Mark 16. 18. & 6. 5. Luke 4. 40. & 13. 13. Mat. 9. 18.

h Ver. 2. Mat. 5. 46, 47. Jam. 2. 15, 16. 1 Tim. 5. 17, 18. Mat. 10. 10.

Verses 1—10. The isle of Melita, or Malta, since so famed for the noble stand its knights made against all the power of the Ottoman empire, was the place where they found themselves on shore.

1. They received great courtesy from the people of the island who are called barbarous, not as being savages in their manners, the very contrary of which appeared, but as unpolished islanders, and unacquainted with Grecian literature. They were so far from being engaged in plundering the wreck, that their attention was taken up about the poor people who had escaped, wet and cold as they were: they therefore kindled a fire to dry them, and took them under shelter from the rain, which fell heavily, and from the cold. Note, (1.) Shipwrecked mariners are entitled to the greatest humanity. It is a pitch of savage brutality beyond what heathens showed, to plunder the little remains of their misfortune: yet shocking to tell, even in a Christian land, are wretches found so destitute of every feeling of humanity, as to be more intent on the wreck, than solicitous about the lives of the people: yea, to strip and rob them even when cast on shore, instead of helping and assisting them. Surely they will receive judgment without mercy, who have thus showed no mercy. (2.) Fuel is as needful a charity for the poor as food or raiment. When we hear the wintry winds blow, and feel the cold even in our warm rooms, we should remember those who shiver over the scarce smoking embers, and through whose miserable cottages the wind and rain find a free passage.

2. Paul, ever active and ready to serve his fellow-creatures in the lowest offices of kindness, had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, when a viper, which had been unobserved in the faggot, perceiving the heat, leaped out and fastened on his hand: which when those unlettered islanders beheld, they concluded this must be some notorious murderer, who, though he had escaped shipwreck, the divine vengeance thus signally overtook, and would not suffer to live; and they expected every moment to see him swell and drop down dead. Note, (1.) Though this is not usually the place of retribution, yet God is sometimes pleased to make even here some signal monuments of his vengeance. (2.) We must not interpret every sudden stroke of God, or remarkable affliction, as a divine judgment: the best of men have been often most severely exercised.

3. The apostle, with perfect composure of mind, and trust on Christ's promise, (Mark xvi. 18.) shook off the venomous animal into the fire; and remaining to their astonishment unhurt, they, after a while, changed their opinion of him, and fancied he must be more than human, even one of their immortal gods, who could thus defy the viper's venom. So changeable are the sentiments of the populace; he that is run down as a murderer today, is sometimes cried up as a god to-morrow.

4. The possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius, lay near the place where the ship had been cast away, and he most hospitably entertained them three days, till they could be otherwise provided for; and in return for his civility, God so ordered it in his providence, that he should not lose his reward. Publius' father now lay dangerously ill of a fever and the bloody flux; Paul therefore went in, and praying over him, laid his hands on him, and in the name of his divine Master healed him, instantaneously. The fame of which miracle soon spread, and others who were diseased made their applications to the apostle, and freely received the cure of all their several maladies. Note, (1.) They who have large possessions, should exercise proportionable hospitality, and be generous stewards of these temporal gifts of God. (2.) Kindness shown to God's ministers, their Master somehow or other will take care to repay.

5. This grateful people, during their stay, failed not to pay them the highest veneration and respect. Most probably the apostle not only healed their bodily diseases, but with his companions preached to them the gospel of Jesus, for the healing of their souls; and therefore the Maltese at their departure liberally furnished them with all necessaries for the voyage. Having shared their spiritual things, they gladly in return communicated of their worldly things.

11. ¶ And after three months we departed in a ship of [i] Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose sign was [k] Castor and Pollux. 12. And landing at * Syracuse, we tarried there three days. 13. And from thence we fetched a compass, and came to † Rhegium: and after one day the south wind blew, and we came the next day to ‡ Puteoli; 14. Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them [l] seven days: and so we went toward Rome. 15. And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as || Appii-forum and the § Three Taverns: [m] whom, when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage. 16. And when we came to [n] Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard: [o] but Paul was suffered to dwell by himself, with a soldier that kept him.

i Ch. 27. 6. & 6. 2.
k Sailors' gods. 2 Sam. 5. 21. 1 Cor. 8. 4.
* The chief city of Sicily, an island south-west of Italy.
† A city on the south-point of Italy.
‡ A city on the south-west of Italy, where the corn-ships from Egypt were accustomed to unload.
l Ch. 20. 6. & 21. 4. Till he preached on a Lord's day
|| A city 51 miles south of Rome.
§ A place 33 miles south from Rome. The three tabernæ may have been inns, or shops for the sale of provisions to travellers.
m Heb. 13. 3. 1 Cor. 12. 21.
n The chief city of Italy, and of the Roman empire. Ch. 19. 21. & 23. 11.
o Ch. 24. 23. & 27. 3. ver. 30, 31. ch. 23. 11.

Verses 11—16. After three months' stay on the island, when the spring returned, they once more pursued their voyage, and met with no more difficulties.

1. They embarked in another ship of Alexandria, which had wintered at Malta, and bore the images of Castor and Pollux, under whose protection the wretched idolaters expected safety.

2. After a prosperous voyage they landed at Syracuse, in the isle of Sicily, where they stayed three days. From thence they fetched a compass round, and arrived at Rhegium, the first port they made in Italy. The next day, taking advantage of the south wind, they proceeded to Puteoli, near Naples, from whence they were to travel by land to Rome. At Puteoli Paul and his companions, to their great comfort, found some Christian brethren, who requested him to stay a week with them, that they might spend one Lord's day together, which the centurion kindly permitted him to do; and from thence they set forward for the great metropolis of the world, the place of their destination.

3. The Christians who were at Rome, no sooner heard of his coming from Puteoli, than they set forward to meet him on the road, to show respect to one who had so eminently distinguished himself in the cause, and was particularly endeared to them by the affectionate epistle which they had received from him. Some of them went as far as the town called Appii-forum, above fifty miles; and others as far as The Three Taverns, (Triæ Tabernæ,) a place upwards of thirty miles from Rome, to receive him, not ashamed of his bonds. Their presence much refreshed his heart; when he saw them he thanked God for the grace which appeared in these faithful brethren, and took courage; his drooping spirits revived, and now he can boldly face the bloody Nero, before whom he must appear. Nothing so encourages the hearts of ministers amidst the greatest opposition of enemies, as the company and countenance of some faithful friends, who dare own and stand by them in defiance of reproach or danger.

4. On their arrival at Rome, the centurion delivered up his charge of prisoners to the captain of the guard. The rest probably were committed to close custody; but Paul, either through the letter of Festus, or the request of Julius, was left a prisoner at large, being permitted to dwell in lodgings, with a soldier chained to him as his guard.

17. ¶ And it came to pass, that after three days, Paul called the chief of the Jews together: and when they were come together, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though [p] I have committed nothing against the people or customs of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans. 18. [q] Who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me. 19. But when the Jews spake against it, [r] I was constrained to appeal unto Cesar; not that I had ought to accuse my nation of. 20. For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you, and to speak with you; because that for the [s] hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.* 21. And they said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came shewed or spake any harm of thee. 22. But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for, [t] as concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against.

p Ch. 23. 1, 33. & 24. 12—16. & 25. 8.
q Ch. 22. 24. & 23. 29. & 24. 10, 13, 22. & 25. 8, 25. & 2. 31.
r Ch. 25. 10—12, 25. & 26. 31.
s Faith in Christ, and the resurrection. Jer. 14. 8. ch. 23. 6. & 24. 15. & 26. 6—8, 29. 2 Tim. 1. 16. Eph. 6. 20. Phil. 1. 23. Eph. 3. 1, 13. & 4. 1.
* That is, the chain with which he was bound to the soldier that kept him. See Eph. 6. 20 t Luke 2. 34. Heb. 12. 3. ch. 24. 5, 14.

Verses 17—22. Though by the edict of Claudius all the Jews had been banished from Rome, at the accession of Nero they returned, and many were now settled there, opulent and men of distinction. To them, after three days' rest from his journey, Paul addressed himself; and since he could not wait on them, begged the favour of their company at his lodgings; and when they were assembled there, being desirous to stand right in their opinion,

1. He relates his case to them, as to men of humanity, his brethren after the flesh, and worshippers of the true God, from whom he might expect friendship and affection. Though he appeared in bonds, it was not for any crime he had committed, nor for any violation of the sacred rites and institutions delivered by Moses to their fathers, that he had been sent a prisoner to Rome. The Roman governors, both Felix and Festus, before whom he had been examined, were sensible of his innocence, and would have discharged him; but some violent persons of his own countrymen, filled with prejudices against him, objected to his release, and urged the governor Festus to bring him back to Jerusalem; so that he was obliged to appeal unto Cesar, merely for his own preservation; not that he meant any accusation of his countrymen before the emperor, but only to defend himself, and obtain his liberty. He therefore called them together to assure them, that the chain he wore was purely for preaching the hope of every true Israelite, even the coming of the divine Messiah, who had, according to the prophecies, appeared, and accomplished the salvation of his people; and for declaring the resurrection to eternal life, as the privilege of all who believed in him. Note, Christ is the only hope of the Israel of God. A sinner who knows his real state, sees nothing out of Jesus but black despair and wrath to the uttermost; but in him there appears grace abounding to the miserable and the desperate, and reigning through righteousness unto eternal life.

2. In reply the Jews said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came showed or spoke any harm of thee; so that they own they had no crime to charge him with. Probably his accusers dared not appear before the emperor, conscious of the danger to which they might expose themselves. But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest, and would impartially examine into the new opinions you broach; and are willing to know how you can prove, that Jesus of Nazareth is that hope of Israel, of whom the prophets have spoken: for this seems to us highly improbable; and as concerning this sect, which he hath founded, we know that every where it is spoken against, as maintaining heretical opinions, and disturbing the peace of mankind. Note, (1.) Christianity is no sect, built on narrow opinions, aiming at secular advantages, or tending to sow division in the world: No: just the very contrary: it embraces all mankind who acknowledge Jesus as the Saviour, directs us to seek our happiness and true interests in another world, and breathes nothing but peace and love. (2.) We may not wonder if the true gospel of the grace of God be still every where spoken against: it must be so, whilst the generality rest in the form, and deny the power of godliness.

u Ch. 23. 11. & 20. 21, 25. & 9. 15, 22. & 17. 2, 3. & 18. 5, 28. & 19. 8. & 26. 22, 23. 1 Cor. 2. 2. & 15. 3, 4. Luke 24. 27, 44. John 1. 45. ch. 10. 43. & 13. 27.

x Ch. 13. 48, 50. & 14. 4. & 17. 4, 34.

y Ver. 29.

z Amos 3. 7. Is. 44. 26. Num. 23. 19. Mat. 15. 7. & 24. 35. & 5. 18. Mark 7. 6.

a Is. 6. 9, 10. & 44. 13. Mat. 13. 14, 15. Mark 4. 12. Luke 8. 10. John 12. 40. Rom. 11. 8. Jer. 5. 21. Ezek. 12. 2. Is. 42. 19, 20. & 66. 4. Ps. 81. 12. 2 Thes. 2. 11, 12. 2 Pet. 3. 5.

b Ch. 2. 14. & 4. 10. & 13. 38.

c Heb. 2. 3. Tit. 2. 11, 12. Is. 49. 6. ch. 18. 6. & 13. 14, 46, 47. Luke 24. 47. Is. 11. 10. Rom. 15. 9—12.

d Mat. 10. 34. Luke 12. 49, 51. ch. 14. 4. & 21. 7.

23. ¶ And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom [u] he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. 24. [x] And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not. 25. And when they [y] agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, [z] Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet unto our fathers, 26. Saying, [a] Go unto this people, and say, Hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive: 27. For the heart of this people is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed: lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them. 28. Be [b] it known therefore unto you, that [c] the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it. 29. And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, and [d] had great reasoning among themselves.

Verses 23—29. Though naturally prejudiced as Jews, against the doctrines of Jesus, they consented to appoint a day, and met at the apostle's lodgings in great numbers, to hear what he had to say on the subject. Hereupon,

I. Paul expounded to them the nature, doctrines, and privileges of that kingdom of God which he preached: explained to them all the prophecies and types of the Old Testament, showing how they centred in Jesus of Nazareth, and received their full accomplishment in his life, death, and resurrection; testifying, from his own and others' experience, the power of this divine Saviour's grace upon the heart; and persuading them with the warmest affection and zeal, to submit to this Redeemer, and embrace that divine Messiah, to whom both the law and the prophets bore witness, that they might partake of that spiritual salvation which he had obtained for his people. As the matter was of such vast importance, he reasoned with them from morning until evening, answering probably all their objections, and proving at large by the most convincing arguments, that Jesus is the Christ.

2. His discourse, as usual, produced different effects on his hearers. Some believed the truths he preached, and others remained hardened in their prejudices, and believed not; which occasioned a disagreement in their sentiments, the infidel party being incensed against the gospel word. Thus is the same gospel to some a savour of life unto life; to others of death unto death.

3. Before they parted, the apostle addressed to them one awakening word, Well spoke the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet, even that glorious Jehovah who inspired the sacred penmen, saying, Go unto this people, and say, Hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive; amidst the clearest preaching of the gospel word, and the fullest discoveries of gospel grace, they were abandoned of God for their obstinacy, to judicial blindness and obduracy. For the heart of this people is waxed gross; stupid, senseless, and obstinate, through pride, prejudice, and passion: and their ears are dull of hearing; inattentive to the preaching of the truth; and their eyes have they closed; wilfully blind against the evidence of miracles performed, of prophecies fulfilled, and the divine attestation given to the character of Jesus as the Messiah; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them. Be it known therefore unto you, that, since ye thus with determined obstinacy reject the counsel of God against your own souls, and exactly fulfil this prophecy, in your present rejection of Christ and his gospel; the salvation of God, which you neglect and despise, is sent unto the Gentiles, and they will hear it, and partake of the invaluable blessings and privileges of the Messiah's kingdom. Note, They who refuse to hearken to God's word, and wilfully harden their hearts against his warnings, are justly given up to a reprobate mind, and left to the ruin which they have chosen.

4. The assembly hereupon broke up, and warm debates ensued on the subjects concerning which he had spoken; some vindicating what they had heard, as righteous, just, and good; others exasperated against the preacher and his doctrine, and unable to think of the Gentiles being admitted into the Messiah's kingdom, without the utmost indignation.

e Ch. 23. 11. ver 23. ch. 5. 42. Eph. 6. 19, 20. Phil. 1. 13. & 4. 22.

30. ¶ And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, 31. [c] Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching * those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

* It was from his prison here that the apostle indited his epistles to the Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Hebrews.

Verses 30, 31. The apostle had been already near three years a prisoner, and still longer is ordained to wear the honourable bonds of Christ. It was, at Rome, however, a consolation to him, that he was so much his own master, as to be able to dwell in his own hired house, and to have all company whom he chose admitted; these years therefore that he abode at Rome, we are told, were profitably spent.

1. He received all that came to him: his doors were ever open, and whosoever would, might hear him: and, no doubt, multitudes, drawn by the desire of instruction, the comfort of his company, or curiosity to know what so remarkable a person had to say, attended him. Note, (1.) Every minister's house should be readily accessible to all who seek instruction for their souls. (2.) Our houses, by godly conversation and discourse, by prayer and praise, should be consecrated to God's service; and where two or three are met in his name, he will be in the midst of them.

2. The subject of his preaching to those who came to hear, was concerning the kingdom of God, and the things which related to the Lord Jesus Christ, the Alpha and Omega of all his discourses. His person, offices, character; his incarnation, sufferings, and glory; with all the great and inestimable blessings and privileges derived from thence, were the delightful theme on which he insisted. Happy were it, if all who call themselves Christ's ministers followed so bright an example. How dry and unaffecting is that discourse, where Jesus is not exalted as all and in all!

3. He preached with all confidence; with the greatest liberty and freedom in his own spirit; most fully assured of the doctrines which he taught; using all plainness of speech, and with the most undaunted courage; no man forbidding him; neither the Roman emperor restrained him, nor could the Jews hinder him: so that though a prisoner, God made him eminently useful in his bonds; and there were saints converted by his ministry even in Cesar's household, Phil. iv. 22. Here also he wrote these epistles to the Ephesians, Colossians, Philemon, and the Philippians; wherein, though dead, he yet speaketh, and we in them enjoy the most blessed fruits of his prison labours.

The historian leaves him in this confinement. After two years he regained his liberty. Concerning his future labours we have nothing certain: the received tradition is, that after visiting Spain, Crete, Judea, and the churches of Asia, he came to Rome the second time, where he suffered martyrdom, and went to receive the crown of glory which fadeth not away.

A PRACTICAL COMMENT UPON THE

EPISTLE OF ST PAUL

TO THE

ROMANS.

Introduction.

WE are now entering upon the most peculiarly profitable parts of the Book of God. All scripture is given by inspiration of God; but among the bright volumes it contains, Paul's Epistles shine with distinguished lustre; in which the grand truths of Christianity appear in all their glory illustrated, defended, the objections against them answered, and the doctrines of grace explicitly taught, and urged with the warmth of a heart which felt its need of them.

Though others of the epistles in order of time precede this to the Romans, it stands first in the collection, as being the largest, and containing the most comprehensive view of the peculiar doctrines and duties of our holy religion. It was written, as is generally supposed, about the year 57, from Corinth, just before the apostle departed for Troas in his way to Jerusalem. See Acts xx. 2, 3, &c.

The chief design of this epistle is to show the only way of a sinner's acceptance with God, whether he be Jew or Gentile, even through faith in the blood and righteousness of Jesus; to exalt the glory of God's grace in this method of salvation; and to vindicate it from the objections of the Judaizing Christians, who, by placing some dependence on the works of the law, moral and ceremonial, debased the purity of the gospel. In the first fifteen verses the apostle introduces and asserts the doctrine of a free salvation by Jesus Christ; the necessity of which he proves in the remaining part of that chapter and the following, where it appears, that the Gentiles could not be justified by the law of nature, nor the Jews by the law of Moses; that both being guilty before God, must be justified freely by faith in Jesus Christ, or perish; and that Abraham, the father of the faithful, thus found acceptance with God. (Chap. iv. 1, 2, 3, 4.) He pursues the argument in the 5th chapter as far as the fall of man, the cause of all the sin and misery which are in the world, and forms a striking contrast between the first covenant-head of mankind, who fell, and the second man the Lord from heaven, who came to rescue his people from the miseries in which they were involved. And here the glory of the Redeemer's grace shines the more illustrious, when considered in the view of the desperateness and universality of the guilt and ruin in which we are involved. From the views of the grace which is in Jesus Christ, he proceeds to infer the necessity of dying unto sin, and living unto God: declares, amidst all the struggles of indwelling corruption, the happy deliverance from the dominion of sin which believers enjoy; describes their transcendently great and glorious privileges in Christ, including deliverance from condemnation, the Spirit of adoption, victory over all tribulation, even death itself, the redemption of the body in the resurrection-day, and the perfection of bliss and blessedness in the eternal enjoyment of the love of God. (Chap. vi, vii, viii.) He thence traces up these inestimable mercies to their source, as flowing from the eternal, sovereign, and absolutely free purpose and grace of God; wherein he shows, that the rejection of the Jews and the calling of the Gentiles, were according to the everlasting counsels of his own will, revealed in the prophetic word, and every way consistent with his wisdom, righteousness, and grace. He answers the objections of those who cavilled at the divine sovereignty displayed in this awful, pleasing, dispensation, (chap. ix, x, xi.) On these doctrines he grounds his exhortations to the practice of a variety of personal relative duties, whereby the faithful in Christ Jesus are bound to adorn the doctrines of God their Saviour in all things, (chap. xii, xiii, xiv, xv. to ver. 14.) and the whole closes with affectionate salutations, the promise of a speedy visit, if the Lord permitted, his benediction, and doxology.

Many expositors have grievously debased the great and glorious doctrines herein contained, respecting the free grace and justification of the gospel, and would fain insinuate, that the works concerning which the apostle speaks, are not the moral, but ceremonial works of the law; that the election spoken of is national, respecting Jews and Gentiles, and not to be interpreted of individuals: and the privileges to which some are chosen in preference to others, are merely external, and have no reference to their eternal state: the contrary of which many faithful and able advocates have fully evinced; among the least of whom I shall count it an honour to be numbered, and wish to plead with them the cause of Sovereign grace. Not that any one can be reasoned into the reception of these humbling truths: man's fallen spirit, his pride, and prejudices, must revolt against them; till enlightened from above, brought under a divine conviction of sin, and led to a discovery of the desperate wickedness, the absolute impotence, and the inconceivable deceitfulness of his naturally corrupted heart, he bows in the dust, is content to be saved as desperate, and to acknowledge himself indebted for his whole salvation to God's free choice and everlasting love. All the truths of God here described must till then appear absurd, unreasonable, derogatory, according to the notions he hath formed, to all the divine perfections, perhaps impious, nay even blasphemous. But when the Spirit of God discovers to us our real state of enormous guilt, the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and writes despair on every effort and attempt to help ourselves: then, like a mathematical proposition which before appeared inexplicable, because the principles on which alone it could be solved were unknown, we trace, admiring and adoring, the various steps of gospel grace from everlasting to everlasting: divine evidence accompanies the process, and in the full blaze of truth we discover in this most astonishing scene of salvation the offspring of eternal love, planned by infinite wisdom, and executed by almighty power; we discover glory given to God in the highest; the honour of the incarnate Saviour exalted to the uttermost; the sinner reduced to the lowest state of humiliation, yet most effectually engaged to love and serve the God of all grace. Thus as many as it pleaseth the Lord our God to call out of darkness into his marvellous light, they see and believe the love which God hath towards them; whilst all the labour of critics, philosophers, and merely letter-learned divines, leaves them just where it found them, groping for the wall as blind.

CHAP. I.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter we may observe, 1. The preface or introduction to the whole epistle, to ver. 16. 2. A description of the deplorable condition of the Gentile world, which begins the proof of the doctrine of justification by faith, here laid down at ver. 17.

1. [a] PAUL, [b] a servant of Jesus Christ, [c] called to be an apostle, separated unto the [d] gospel of God, 2. [e] (Which he had promised afore by his prophets in the holy scriptures,) 3. Concerning his Son Jesus Christ our Lord, which was made [f] of the seed of David according to the flesh; 4. And * declared to be the Son of God [g] with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead: 5. By whom [i] we have received grace and apostleship, [k] † for obedience to the faith among all nations, for his name: 6. Among whom are ye also the [l] called of Jesus Christ: 7. To all that be in Rome, [m] beloved of God, called to be saints: [n] Grace to you, and peace, from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

† Or to the obedience of faith.

a Acts ix, xxii, xxvi. Gal. 1. 13—23. Phil. 3. 5, 6. Acts 13. 9. b Phil. 1. 1. Jam. 1. 1. 2 Pet. 1. 1. Jude 1. ver. 9. Eph. 4. 1. c Heb. 5. 4. Acts 9. 15. & 13. 2, 3. & 22. 14, 21. & 26. 16—18. 1 Cor. 1. 1. & 9. 1, 2. 2 Cor. 1. 1. & 11. 5. & 12. 11, 12. Gal. 1. 1, 15. Eph. 1. 1. & 3. 8. Col. 1. 1. 1 Tim. 1. 1, 12. & 2. 7. 2 Tim. 1. 1. Tit. 1. 1. ch. 11. 13.
d Luke 2. 10, 11. ver. 9. Acts 20. 24.
e Gal. 3. 8. Gen. 3. 15. & 12. 3. & 22. 18. & 26. 4. & 49. 10. Deut. 18. 15—18. 2 Sam. 7. 12. Ps. 132. 11. Is. 4. 2. & 7. 14. & 9. 6, 7. & 40. 9. Jer. 33. 5, 6, 15, 16. & 31. 22. Ezek. 34. 23, 29. & 37. 24. Dan. 9. 24. Mic. 7. 20. see Luke 24. 27, 44. Acts 10. 43.
f Mat. 1. 1. & 9. 27. & 12. 23. Luke 1. 32, 69. & 2. 5, 6. Acts 2. 30. & 13. 23. 2 Tim. 2. 8.
* Gr. determined.
g Ps. 2. 7. John 10. 30. Acts 2. 22. & 13. 32. Heb. 1. 5. & 5. 5. Mat. 3. 17. & 17. 5. & 5. 26. Acts 17. 31.
h 2 Cor. 13. 4. 1 Tim. 3. 16. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Heb. 9. 14. John 10. 18.
i Ch. 12. 3. & 15. 15, 16. 2 Cor. 3. 6. Gal. 2. 9. Eph. 3. 2, 7, 8. 1 Cor. 15. 10. 1 Tim. 1. 12. John 1. 16. k Ch. 16. 26. Acts 9. 15. & 26. 17, 18. & 13. 46. & 22. 21. & 28. 28. ch. 11. 13. & 15. 16, 19. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Gal. 1. 16. 1 Tim. 2. 7. 2 Tim. 1. 11. Col. 1. 6, 23. Mat. 28. 19. Mark 15. 15, 16. ch. 3. 29, 30. 2 Thes. 1. 12.
l 1 Cor. 1. 2, 9. Heb. 3. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 9. 2 Tim. 1. 9. ch. 8. 28, 30. 2 Pet. 1. 3, 10. 1 Thes. 4. 7. ch. 9. 24. Phil. 3. 14.
m 1 John 3. 1. & 4. 9, 10, 19. 1 Cor. 1. 2. Eph. 1. 1. Rev. 17. 14.
n 1 Cor. 1. 3. 2 Cor. 1. 2. Gal. 1. 3. Eph. 1. 2. Phil. 1. 2. Col. 1. 2. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 2. 1 Tim. 1. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 2. Tit. 1. 4.

Verses 1—7. The epistle opens,

1. With an account of the author. Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, once an envenomed persecutor, but now called to be an apostle, and glorying in this honourable name: separated unto the gospel of God; to that delightful and happy work of preaching the glad tidings of salvation through a dying Redeemer; signally distinguished by the Spirit's call, qualified by the effectual working of his mighty power, and solemnly dedicated and devoted to this service.

2. The apostle no sooner mentions the gospel of God, than his heart fires at the views of its glory and excellence. The wondrous scheme had been planned in the divine mind from eternity; had been the burden of the prophetic word from the beginning, where various hints of it had been given, and promises made of a more clear revelation of the divine mind and will, which might be expected in the fulness of time. The grand subject of this gospel is Jesus Christ, the Messiah, the anointed Saviour, and our Lord; the object of our faith, and worship, and the king to whom we owe all duty and allegiance; who, in his human nature, was made of the seed of David, according to the flesh, as had been foretold, (Ps. cxxxii. 11.) and as to his divine nature he was declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead. As the eternal Son of God, he possessed the same divine nature and perfections with the Father, they being one in the Spirit of holiness, in the essence of the undivided Godhead; a demonstration of which appeared, when by the exertion of his own power through the operation of the Holy Spirit, he raised his body from the grave; so that he appears to be God and man in one Christ.

3. From this risen Saviour he professes to have received, together with his brethren, grace and apostleship; both the high honour of that office, and ability to discharge it to the glory of God; for obedience to the faith among all nations for his name; this being the great end of their ministry, to bring all men, both Jews and Gentiles, to the faith of the gospel, and that holy obedience which flows from it, by which the name of Jesus should be to eternity exalted. Note, As obedience to God's law is the great fruit of faith, so is faith itself a most eminent part of obedience, when considered as an act of submission to the righteousness of God.

4. He with pleasure mentions the happy lot they had among those who are become obedient to the faith; among whom are ye also called of Christ Jesus; by his word and Spirit effectually brought to the participation of all the privileges of the gospel; beloved of God from eternity, and in his good time called to be saints; separated from a world that lieth in wickedness, for his peculiar people. Note, Every one truly called of Jesus is the happy object of the divine regard, and obliged to answer in their spirit and conversation the honourable title they bear, as the saints of God.

5. To these the apostle addresses his epistle. To all that be in Rome, professors of the faith, and in the judgment of charity partakers of the grace of God in truth, may grace, pardoning, comforting, quickening, sanctifying, be multiplied to you; and peace, the blessed effect thereof, from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8. First, [o] I thank my God [p] through Jesus Christ for you all, [q] that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world. 9. For [r] God is my witness, whom [s] I serve ‡ with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, [t] that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers; 10. Making request, [u] if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God to come unto you. 11. For I long to see you, [x] that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established; 12. That is, [y] that I may be comforted together ‖ with you, by [z] the mutual faith both of you and me. 13. Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that [a] oftentimes I purposed to come unto you, (but was let hitherto,) that I might [b] have some fruit * among you also, [c] even as among other Gentiles. 14. [d] I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the barbarians; both to the wise, and to the unwise. 15. So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also.

o 1 Cor. 1. 4. Eph. 1. 16. Phil. 1. 3, 5. Col. 1. 3. 1 Thes. 1. 2. 2 Thes. 1. 3. 2 Tim. 1. 3. Phil. 4. 5.
p Heb. 13. 15. Eph. 5. 20. 1 Pet. 2. 5.
q Ch. 16. 19. 1 Thes. 1. 8. 2 John 4. Phile. 5. with Luke 2. 1. ch. 17. 6.
r Ch. 9. 1. Job 16. 19. 2 Cor. 1. 23. & 11. 31. Gal. 1. 20. Phil. 1. 8. 1 Thes. 2. 5, 10. s Acts 27. 23. John 4. 23. Phil. 3. 3. 1 Cor. 15. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 2.
‡ Or in my spirit.
t 2 Tim. 1. 3. Col. 1. 3. 1 Sam. 12. 23. 1 Thes. 5. 17. Phil. 4. 6. 2 Thes. 1. 11.
u Ch. 15. 23, 32. 1 Thes. 3. 10. & 2. 17. Jam. 4. 15. x Ver. 12, 15. 1 Thes. 3. 2. 1 Pet. 5. 10. & 2. 1, 2. 2 Pet. 1. 12. & 3. 17, 18. Eph. 4. 12, 13. ch. 15. 1, 23, 29. & 16. 17, 18.
y 3 John 3. ch. 15. 32. Phil. 2. 18.
‖ Or in you.
z Tit. 1. 4. 2 Pet. 1. 1.
a Ch. 15. 22, 23. 1 Thes. 2. 18. or Acts 16. 6, 7. & 19. 21.
b John 15. 8. Col. 1. 6, 10. Phil. 4. 17. & 1. 11.
* Or in you.
c Ch. 15. 18, 19. 1 Cor. 4. 15. Acts xiii—xix.
d 1 Cor. 9. 16—22. 2 Cor. 11. 28, 29. Acts 9. 15. & 13. 2. & 22. 21. & 26. 17, 18. 1 Cor. 1. 24. Col. 3. 11.

Verses 8—15. After the warmest wishes for all spiritual blessings upon them, and his authoritative benediction, in the fullest confidence that the grace and peace he prayed for would be bestowed upon them,

1. He thanks God on their behalf, whom he calls my God, happy in an assured interest in his favour and love through Jesus Christ, by whom alone every mercy descended on him or them. And the matter of his thanksgiving was, their faith spoken of throughout the world; they had approved themselves eminently faithful, and were the glory and joy of the churches, who triumphed in their eminent attainments. Note, (1.) When faith can say, my God, then the heart will be filled with thanksgiving and praise. (2.) A Christian's heart glows with gratitude, when he beholds the power of divine grace shining in the conversation of his brethren. (3.) Though we may not affect a name in the world, yet it is highly desirable to be spoken of by good men, and that our faith and conduct should receive their approbation.

2. He appeals to God for his incessant prayers on their behalf. God is my witness, whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, most willingly, affectionately, and faithfully preaching the glad tidings of salvation through the divine Redeemer; that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers, begging the best of blessings may descend upon you: and particularly making request, if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God to come unto you, and enjoy the comfort of personal conversation with you. Note, (1.) Those whom we truly love, we shall remember without ceasing at the throne of grace. (2.) God's service must engage our souls: nothing is acceptable to him, but what is done heartily with an eye to his glory. (3.) In all our journeys the Lord should be regarded; though we devise our way, he must direct our steps.

3. The ends he proposed to himself in this visit, were [1.] Their benefit. For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established; confirmed, if it please God, by his labours and ministry in the faith; guarded against seducers, and their ministers furnished with greater gifts for the edifying of the church. [2.] Their mutual consolation. That is, that I may be comforted together with you, by the mutual faith both of you and me; when by communicating their mutual experience they might discover the effectual workings of the same divine faith, and rejoice together in the glorious hope set before them. Note, (1.) The highest advanced in faith and grace have need of farther establishment. We have not yet attained, nor are already perfect. (2.) Mutual communications of the dealings of God with our souls, greatly tend both to our comfort and establishment in the faith.

4. He informs them that he had long meditated a visit to them, though hitherto he had been providentially hindered by the difficulties he had to encounter, and the engagements which lay upon him; being earnestly desirous to have some fruit among them, even as among other Gentiles; that he might see his ministry attended with the same blessed effects, as in so many other places. And in these his labours he looked upon himself as a debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians; his call of God to the office of apostleship, and the qualifications he was endued with, obliged him to be faithful to his trust: and as the deepest adepts in Grecian literature were, respecting the way of salvation, as far removed from the truth as the most unpolished barbarians, he endeavoured to suit his discourses to both, that the wise men of this world might become wise unto salvation through the gospel word, and the weaker and more unlearned be fed with the sincere milk of heavenly truth. Note, (1.) All our abilities and gifts of nature, providence, or grace, are lent us of the Lord, and to be accounted for to him, as being his debtors for them. (2.) We must suit our discourses to our auditory; and though the matter be the same, the manner should be varied, to give every man his portion in due season.

5. He professes the alacrity and cheerfulness wherewith he looks towards Rome, amidst all the dangers he might expect to encounter there, ready to preach the gospel in the most public manner, and fearless of any consequences from the opposition of the many or the mighty. The ministers of grace should thus be bold as lions in the cause of truth, nor fear the faces of men.

16. For [e] I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is [g] the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: to [h] the Jew first, and also to the Greek. 17. For therein is the [i] righteousness of God revealed [k] from faith to faith: as it is written, [l] The just shall live by faith. 18. For [m] the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who [n] hold the truth in unrighteousness;

e Ps. 40. 9, 10. 2 Tim. 1. 8. 1 Cor. 1. 23, 24. & 2. 2. & 9. 16. Mark 8. 38. Acts 5. 41.
f 2 Cor. 2. 2. Col. 1. 27. Luke 2. 10, 11. Heb. 2. 3.
g 1 Cor. 1. 18, 24. & 15. 2. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Tit. 2. 11, 12. Acts 13. 26. Mark 16. 15, 16. Eph. 1. 13. ch. 10. 4, 10, 17. Ps. 110. 2.
h Ch. 2. 9, 10. Acts 3. 26. & 13. 46. & 28. 28. ch. 9. 24.
i Ch. 3. 21—26. & 5. 15—21. & 10. 3, 4. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Phil. 3. 9. 2 Pet. 1. 1. 2 Cor. 3. 9. 11. 1 Hab. 2. 4. Gal. 3. 11. Heb. 10. 38. Gal. 2. 20. & 3. 11. ch. 5. 1, 2. Acts 10. 43. 2 Cor. 1. 24. & 5. 7. Heb. 11. 6, 7.
k Ps. 84. 7. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Rev. 22.
m Gen. 6. 5—7. & 19. 13, 24. Exod. 15. 7. Is. 3. 10, 11. Ezek. 18. 4. ch. 2. 8, 9. n John 12. 42. Luke 12. 47. Job 24. 13. John 3. 19. ver. 28.

Verses 16—18. The apostle having experienced the power of the gospel on his own soul, so far was he from being ashamed of the reproach of the cross, which to the Jews was a stumbling-block, and to the Greeks foolishness, that he gloried in the honour of being sent to publish to small and great the glad tidings of salvation through a crucified Jesus; and he gives his reasons for so doing.

1. Because the gospel which he preached was the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek; this being the great mean God is pleased to make use of, which, through the Spirit's effectual working, comes with demonstration to the sinner's heart; and it was sent to the Jews first, and then more generally to the Gentile world, that as many of both as were ordained unto eternal life, might believe the divine report, and by faith embrace and lay hold of the hope of eternal life revealed in the gospel: for therein is the righteousness of God revealed, that transcendently glorious righteousness, which God the Son incarnate hath wrought out for us, and God the Father, according to the tenor of the everlasting covenant of grace, hath appointed as the condition of our salvation, hath declared his acceptance of, by the resurrection of Jesus, and imputes to our account; and which is set forth in the gospel, as the great object of our faith, the meritorious cause of our justification, and our title to eternal glory: from faith to faith, being wholly of faith, exclusive of all works and duties of our own, (see chap. vi. 12. 2 Cor. iii. 18.) or from the doctrine of faith in the word, to the grace of faith in the heart; or rather from one degree of faith to another, as we gain clearer discoveries of the fulness, suitableness, and transcendent glory of that finished salvation which is revealed to us in the gospel. As it is written, in the Old Testament, which exactly corresponds in doctrine with the New, The just, or justified man, shall live by faith; hereby he is brought into, and continues in, a state of spiritual life; so that death, the wages of sin, can have no more dominion over him; and, being regarded in God's sight as righteous and just, he possesses a title sure and indefeasible to that eternal life which is brought to light in the gospel, as the reward of the Redeemer's obedience unto death, even the death of the cross.

2. Because, without this method of gospel grace, every human creature must lie down under eternal wrath and despair: for the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness, and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; God's word denounces vengeance on every transgressor; his judgments past have often fearfully spoken his displeasure against sin; and the whole world is found guilty before him, since all have sinned in opposition to their better knowledge, whether Jews, who enjoyed the light of revelation, or Gentiles, whom God left not without witness, giving them sufficient traditionary notices of his being, perfections, and attributes, which the visible objects around them served to explain, so as to leave them without excuse in their idolatry and disobedience. Note, (1.) Every sinner at God's bar will stand self-condemned; he will be made to own he knew better, and did worse. (2.) Fearful is the wrath revealed against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men: if it once seize on the sinner, it will burn, and never can be quenched. (3.) How highly should we value, and how eagerly embrace, that glorious gospel, which alone can afford us shelter from those terrible blasts of the divine vengeance!

19. [o] Because that which may be known of God is manifest † in them; for God hath shewed it unto them. 20. [p] For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; ‡ so that they are [q] without excuse: 21. Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, [r] neither were thankful; [s] but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. 22. [t] Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, 23. [u] And changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like unto corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things. 24. [x] Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves: 25. Who [y] changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is [z] blessed for ever. Amen. 26. For this cause [a] God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature: 27. And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another; men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompence

o Acts 14. 17. & 17. 24—30. ch. 2. 15. ver. 20.
† Or to them.
p Ps. 19. 1—6. & 148. 3—6. Acts 14. 17. & 17. 24, 27.
‡ Or that they may be.
q Luke 12. 47. ver. 18, 21. ch. 2. 14, 15. Job 24. 13. John 3. 19.
r With Acts 14. 17. Ps. 106. 13. 2 Tim. 3. 2. s Deut. 28. 28, 29. & 29. 4. 2 Kin. 17. 15. Jer. 2. 5. 1 Cor. 3. 20. & 1. 20, 21. Eph. 4. 17, 18. 1 Thes. 4. 7.
t Jer. 10. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 19—22. Prov. 25. 14. & 26. 12, 16. ch. 11. 25.
u Deut. 4. 15—18. 2 Kin. 17. 10, 29. Ps. 106. 20. Is. 40. 17, 18. Jer. 2. 11. 1 Cor. 12. 2. 1 Thes. 1. 9. 1 Pet. 3. 4. x Deut. 19. 4. Ps. 68. 12, 13. Acts 7. 42. & 14. 16. & 17. 29, 30. 1 Cor. 6. 15, 18. Eph. 4. 14, 19. 1 Thes. 4. 5. 2 Thes. 2. 11. 1 Pet. 4. 3.
y Ver. 18—21. with 23. Is. 44. 20. Hab. 2. 18. Jer. 10. 8, 14, 15. & 13. 25. Jon. 2. 8. Ps. 115. 4—8. 1 Thes. 1. 9.
z Ch. 9. 5. 2 Cor. 11. 21. 1 Tim. 1. 11, 17. & 6. 15. a Ver. 24. Lev. 18. 22, 23. Eph. 5. 12. Jude 7. Gen. 19. 5. Judg. 19. 22. 1 Cor. 6. 9.

of their error which was meet. 28. And, [b] even as they did not like * to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to † a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient: 29. [c] Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers, 30. Backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, 31. Without understanding, covenant breakers, ‡ without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful: 32. [d] Who, knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but || have pleasure in them that do them.

[b] Ver. 18, 21. John 12. 42. Luke 12. 47. Job 24. 13. John 3. 19.

* Or to acknowledge.

† Or a mind void of judgment.

[c] Jer. 17. 9. ch. 8. 7, 8. Mat. 15. 19. & 12. 35. Mark 7. 20—23. Eph. 2. 1—3, 12. & 4. 18, 19. Tit. 3. 3. 1 Pet. 4. 3. 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Gal. 5. 19—21. Eph. 5. 3. 2 Tim. 3. 2—4. Is. v, lix. Jer. ix. Ezek. viii, xvi, xxi, xxii. Mic. ii, iii, vii, &c.

‡ Or unsociable.

[d] Ver. 18. ch. 2. 1—5, 21—23. & 6. 21. Hos. 7. 3.

|| Or consent with them.

Verses 19—32. The deplorable state of guilt in which the Gentile world lay, is here pathetically described, and the judgment of God against them therefore evidently appears to be most righteous.

1. They had, though not the light of revelation, yet such notices of God's being and attributes, as left them inexcusable. Because that which may be known of God, is manifest in them, or among them; not, I apprehend, by any light of nature, which comes with every man into the world as some suppose; for the fallen soul is darkness itself; but God hath showed it unto them, by the traditionary notices delivered down from the beginning, and by the works of creation and providence, which confirm and evidence the truth of the being and glory of the eternal Jehovah, whose invisible things, his divine perfections, his eternal power and Godhead, his self-existence, incorporeal nature, infinite wisdom and goodness, are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made: the intellectual faculties contemplating the visible objects, and man himself (κτισις κοσμου) the most remarkable creature upon earth, might from the creation of the world receive the fullest confirmation of what God had showed unto men concerning himself.

2. They notwithstanding fell into the grossest and most inexcusable idolatry. When they knew God, had some notions of his being and attributes, and might have obtained clearer discoveries, had they attended to the means of instruction which he afforded them; they glorified him not as God, neither in their hearts, their worship, nor their conduct, regarding and treating him suitably to his nature and perfections; neither were thankful, insensible to the blessings of his providence, and imputing to second causes all the mercies which they received from the first. Hence they became vain in their own imaginations, indulging their fancies, and proudly reasoning about matters which were too high for them, the philosophers set up their various systems, and in their contests and disputations for their own opinions erred alike from the truth; and their foolish heart was darkened, their boasted wisdom became folly, the corruption of their nature blinded their understanding, and, in the midst of the highest pretensions to science, they sunk into the most fatal depths of ignorance and error: professing themselves to be wise, puffed up with the conceit of their vast attainments, they became fools, perfect idiots in the most obvious matters respecting the divine Being and worship; and, instead of a Spirit immortal, invisible, eternal, they changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like unto corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things: so shockingly debasing his dignity, so horridly infatuated in their wild imaginations; changing the truth of God into a lie, ascribing to idols the honour due to Jehovah; making such false representations of him, as if he was corporeal: and worshipping and serving the creature more than the Creator, (παρα) above, besides, or contrary to him. Though they acknowledged a supreme Numen, their worship was chiefly directed to their inferior deities: and all the services which they paid to their idols were the greatest dishonour to God, and reflected most highly upon his being and perfections, who is blessed for ever. Amen. He, infinitely and necessarily blessed and glorious in himself, is the only author of blessedness to all his creatures, and the alone worthy object of their worship and adoration, to whom it may be for ever rendered and ascribed!

3. In just judgment upon them for such abominable idolatry, and direct opposition to the notices he had given them concerning himself, He gave them up, abandoned them to their own hearts' lusts, which, when his restraining grace was withdrawn, hurried them headlong into the foulest and most unnatural acts of uncleanness, the very mention of which should make us shudder with horror; and to be ignorant of the very ideas of such horrid deeds is most desirable. To commit such uncleanness with greediness, was at once the filling up the measure of their iniquities, and the heavy and deserved punishment inflicted for their idolatry, the recompense of their error which was meet. And as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, but quenched the gift he had bestowed, and acted in opposition to the knowledge he had vouchsafed to them, God gave them up to a reprobate mind, rejected them with abhorrence, and left them to the blindness, hardness, and malignity of their fallen hearts, to do those things which are not convenient, detestable to God, dishonourable to themselves, and the consequences of which must be eternally ruinous; being filled with all unrighteousness. And the dreadful catalogue of sins here given, ver. 29—31. was not merely applicable to the more ignorant and unrefined part of the Gentile world, but was notoriously true of their wisest philosophers, and their most famed moralists, who knowing the judgment of God, and having sufficient light in their consciences to discover that they which commit such things are worthy of death, as transgressors against the Majesty on high: yet so enslaved were they by their vile affections, that they not only do the same themselves, but have pleasure in them that do them, encourage, countenance, and take delight in others who commit the same abominations. From all which it is most evident, that men of such a character as these can never, by any works of righteousness which they can pretend to, be justified before God; but must be saved by abounding grace, or perish. Note, (1.) Nothing is a sorer punishment than for the sinner to be given up to his own heart's lusts. (2.) When God withdraws his restraints, there are no abominations into which we shall not rush headlong, as the horse rusheth into the battle. (3.) When we see the dire iniquities here recorded, and behold them in the practice and temper of others, we should reflect, for our own humiliation, that our hearts are the same, our nature alike corrupt, and that, if we are restrained from the like wickedness, we owe it not to ourselves. (4.) Sin against light and knowledge is most exceeding sinful; but the summit of iniquity is to take a diabolical pleasure in the wickedness of others, and to love sin for its own sake.

CHAP. II.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The Gentiles have been found guilty. The Jews are here shown to be in the same condemnation. 1. He proves in general that Jews and Gentiles stand upon the same level before the justice of God to ver. 17. 2. He shows more particularly what sins the Jews were guilty of, notwithstanding their profession and vain pretensions, ver. 17. to the end.

1. THEREFORE [a] thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things. 2. But we are sure that [b] the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things. 3. [c] And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God? 4. [d] Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance? 5. But, [e] after thy hardness and impenitent heart, [f] treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; 6. [g] Who will render to every man according to his deeds: 7. [h] To them who, by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, and honour, and immortality, eternal life: 8. [i] But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, 9. Tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, [k] of the Jew first, and also of the * Gentile; 10. [l] But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good; to the Jew first, and also to the * Gentile: 11. For [m] there is no respect of persons with God. 12. [n] For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law; 13. (For [o] not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified. 14. For when the Gentiles, [p] which have not the law, [q] do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves: 15. Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, † their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts ‡ the meanwhile accusing or else [r] excusing one another;) 16. In the day when [s] God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to [t] my gospel.

[a] Ch. 1. 18, 20, 32. 2 Sam. 12. 5, 7. Mat. 7. 1—5. & 23. 3. Luke 6. 37. & 14. 3. John 7. 49. 1 Cor. 4. 5. Jam. 3. 1. & 4. 11.

[b] Ch. 3. 4, 5. & 9. 14. Ps. 96. 13. & 11. 6, 7. Ezek. 18. 25, 29. Luke 12. 47. 2 Thes. 1. 6—9. ver. 11, 12. Gen. 18. 25.

[c] Mat. 7. 2. Jam. 2. 13. & 4. 11. Prov. 11. 21. & 16. 5. Luke 19. 22.

[d] Eccl. 8. 11. Deut. 32. 15. Is. 1. 2. Hos. 13. 6. Ezek. 12. 22. Mat. 24. 48, 49. 2 Pet. 3. 3—9, 15. Is. 30. 18. & 63. 7—10. Ezek. 16. 63. & 36. 31. Mat. 5. 44.

[e] Exod. 33. 3. & 34. 9. Is. 48. 4. Zech. 7. 11, 12. 1 Tim. 4. 2. ch. 1. 28. Ezek. 3. 7. Acts 7. 51.

[f] Jam. 5. 3. Deut. 32. 34, 35. Amos 3. 16. ch. 9. 22.

[g] Ps. 62. 12. Job 34. 11. Jer. 17. 10. & 32. 19. Prov. 24. 12. Mat. 16. 27. & 25. 34—46. ch. 14. 12. 1 Cor. 3. 8. 2 Cor. 5. 10. Rev. 21. 12. & 2. 23. & 20. 12.

[h] Mat. 24. 13. Gal. 6. 8, 9. Rev. 2. 7, 10, 11, 17, 26. & 3. 5, 12, 21. Jude 20, 21. Mat. 5. 3—10. & 13. 43. & 25. 34—40, 46. 1 Pet. 1. 7, 13. 2 Cor. 5. 1. & 4. 17. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8.

[i] Job 24. 13. Hos. 4. 4. 2 Tim. 3, 8. 1 Cor. 11. 16. ch. 3. 18. Gal. 3. 1. & 5. 7. 2 Thes. 1. 8, 9. & 2. 12. Lev. 26. 14—39. Deut. 28. 15—68. Is. 3. 11. Ezek. 18. 4. Ps. 9. 17.

[k] Amos 3. 2. Luke 12. 47, 48. 1 Pet. 4. 17. ch. 1. 16. Acts 3. 26. & 13. 46. ver. 10.

* Gr. Greek.

[l] Ver. 7. Is. 1. 19. & 3. 10. Prov. i—iv. Ps. 34. 7—14. & xxxvii, cxüi, & cxxxviii. 1 Pet. 3. 10—13.

[m] Lev. 19. 15. Deut. 10. 17. & 1. 17. & 16. 19. 2 Chr. 19. 7. Job 34. 10, 19. Prov. 24. 23. Acts 10. 34. Gal. 2. 6. Eph. 6. 9. Col. 3. 25. 1 Pet. 1. 17. Is. 3. 10, 11. Ps. 11. 6. 7.

[n] Luke 12. 47. John 5. 45. ver. 14. ch. 3. 2.

[o] Mat. 7. 21, 24. Jam. 1. 22, 25. 1 John. 3. 7. John 13. 17. Gal. 3. 10, 12. ver. 25.

[p] Ps. 147. 19, 20. ch. 3. 1, 2. Acts 17. 30. Eph. 2. 12.

[q] 2 Cor. 5. 1. 1 Cor. 11. 14. Phil. 4. 8. ch. 1. 19, 20.

† Or the conscience witnessing with them. ‡ Or between themselves. [r] Gen. 20. 5. [s] Ps. 50. 6, 21. & 96. 13. & 98. 9. & 7. 8. & 90. 8. Eccl. 3. 17. & 12. 14. 1 Cor. 4. 5. Mat. 6. 4, 6. & 25. 31. John 5. 22, 28. & 12. 48. Acts 10. 42. & 17. 31. 2 Tim. 4. 1, 8. 1 Pet. 4. 5. 2 Cor. 5. 10. ch. 14. 12. Rev. 20. 11, 12. [t] 2 Tim. 2. 8. 1 Tim. 1. 11. Tit. 1. 3. Gal. 1. 11. ch. 15. 16, 19. 1 Cor. 9. 17. 1 Thes. 2. 2, 4.

Gentiles which the Jews would not with satisfaction admit. But, whilst they judged them, they in fact condemned themselves, being chargeable with the same abominations, and that with more aggravated guilt because of their superior advantages. To them therefore the apostle addresses himself, and proves them most inexcusable in their censures, and liable to the same wrath of a justly offended God.

1. They were guilty of the same sins which the Gentiles committed; yet flattered themselves that they should escape the judgment of God. But it was folly in them to promise themselves impunity, when the God of truth and judgment had fully declared his determined purpose to punish such workers of iniquity; and all who knew the unchangeableness of his word, were sure that vengeance must overtake the transgressors, whether they were Jews or Gentiles. Note, (1.) It is vile hypocrisy to condemn that in others which we allow and practise ourselves. (2.) God's judgment will be according to truth, and none shall be able to object to the righteousness of his sentence, any more than they can escape from the execution of it.

2. They abused God's patience, and made the most ungrateful returns for his goodness. Peculiar mercies they had enjoyed, the most wonderful forbearance they had experienced, and all his multiplied favours had the most direct tendency to melt down their obdurate hearts into ingenuous shame and contrition, and to engage them to return to God; but they considered not their deep obligations, were insensible to all the wonders of his grace, and after their hardness and impenitent heart, treasured up unto themselves wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; so eager in pursuit of their iniquities, as if they were heaping up the most valuable treasures. Note, (1.) There is a day of wrath, of terrible wrath, approaching, when inexorable judgment will seize the impenitent soul. (2.) In all God's decisions his righteousness will appear, and even the damned be forced to own their sentence just. (3.) They are past remedy whom the goodness of God leads not to repentance. (4.) A hard and impenitent heart is the direst plague on this side of hell. (5.) The time of God's patience is expiring, and abused patience will bring down the heaviest vengeance.

3. God, in his procedure at the day of judgment, will act with the greatest impartiality, rendering to every man according to his works. (1.) To them who by patient continuance in well-doing, who in the persevering exercise of faith in a Redeemer, are in the use of the appointed means working out their salvation; and seek for the glory, honour, and immortality which is brought to light in the gospel; to them God will give eternal life: glory, honour, and peace, are the assured portion secured to every man that, under the influence of faith and love, worketh good, actuated by gospel principles, and proposing as his end the divine glory. And herein there is no difference between Jew or Gentile, nor is God a respecter of one more than the other; the faithful of both denominations shall share the same blessedness; as they are interested in the same divine righteousness, they shall be entitled to the same reward. (2.) On the other hand, unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, contradicting and opposing the method of divine grace revealed in the gospel; but obey unrighteousness, walking in unbelief, iniquity, and impenitence: indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, even all the terrors of vengeance which a righteous Judge will inflict, must be poured out upon every man that doeth evil; of the Jew first, to whom all his outward privileges will be no protection; and also of the Gentile, who shall no more escape than the Jew, if her neglects the great salvation of the gospel: and each will bear their punishment according to the advantages which they have enjoyed, and the means and mercies which they have abused.

4. In judging the world, God will regard the different measures of light against which men have sinned, and will punish them according to the several aggravations of their guilt.

Verses 1—16. Nothing could be urged against the profane

The Gentiles who have sinned without law, must perish without law. They have not indeed the same clear revelation as was made to the Jews at Sinai; but they have a law written on their hearts, some more obscure traces of God's will have been delivered down to them, and their consciences, though defiled, have some general notions of good and evil, right and wrong, truth and falsehood; by which means these heathens, though not having the law, are a law unto themselves; and, when they correspond in their practice with these dictates of natural conscience, their thoughts and judgment acquit and approve them; or, if they deviate therefrom, they are accused, reproached, and condemned in their own hearts. The Gentiles, therefore, though not so criminal as the Jews who resist clearer manifestations of the divine will, yet cannot plead ignorance; they sin against their partial convictions, are without excuse, and God is just in executing his judgments against them.

The Jews, and as many as have sinned in the law, against the holy commandments which were delivered unto them, shall be judged by the law; and, as their sin is more aggravated, their condemnation will be more grievous. And though they valued themselves highly on their external privileges as the disciples of Moses, and thought themselves the favourites of heaven, because they were acquainted with God's law, and heard it constantly read and explained to them, they were most fatally deceived; since not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified; and, if they cannot produce a righteousness perfect and complete, so far from profiting them, the law on which they boast themselves, denounces all its curses on their guilty heads.

In the day therefore when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, to whom all judgment is committed, according to the gospel, which Paul calls my gospel; not as if he was the author of it, but as being put in trust with it; then shall impartial justice be executed on transgressors, and according to the measure of their guilt shall be their condemnation. Note, (1.) An awful day of judgment approaches; it highly imports every soul to inquire how they shall come and appear before God. (2.) Whatever is now concealed with most cautious care, shall soon be brought to light; we believe that he shall be our Judge from whom nothing is hid, nothing is secret.

17. Behold, [u] thou art called a Jew, and [x] restest in the law, and makest thy boast of God. 18. [y] And knowest his will, ‖ and approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law. 19. [z] And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness, 20. An instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, which hast [a] the form of knowledge and of the truth in the law. 21. [b] Thou therefore which teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal? 22. [c] Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacrilege? 23. [d] Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonourest thou God? 24. [e] For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written. 25. [f] For circumcision verily profiteth, if thou keep the law: but if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision. 26. Therefore [g] if the uncircumcision keep the righteousness of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision? 27. [i] And shall not uncircumcision which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, [h] judge thee, who by the [i] letter and circumcision dost transgress the law? 28. [k] For he is not a Jew which is one outwardly; [l] neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh: 29. [l] But he is a Jew which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, [m] in the spirit, and not in the letter; [n] whose praise is not of men, but of God.

u Ps. 76. 1, 2. & 114. 2. & 135. 4. & 148. 14. ch. 3. 1, 2. & 9. 4, 5. Phil. 3. 5.
x Jer. 7. 4. Zeph. 3. 11. Is. 48. 2. Mic. 3. 11. Mat. 3. 9. John 8. 33, 41. ch. 9. 4.
y Ps. 147. 19. with Phil. 1. 10. 2 Tim. 3. 15. Deut. 6. 7. Is. 38. 19.
‖ Or triest the things that differ.
z Is. 42. 19. Mat. 5. 14. & 15. 14. & 23. 16. 1 Cor. 8. 1. Gal. 6. 3.
a Ch. 6. 17. 2 Tim. 1. 13. & 3. 5. Tit. 1. 16.
b Ps. 15. 16—21. Mat. xxiii. Luke 11. 39—48. & 4. 23. 1 Cor. 9. 27.
c Jer. 3. 1. Mal. 1. 6, 8, 12. & 3. 8 Mat. 12. 33. & 16. 4. & 21. 12. Mark 7. 18. & 8. 38. & 11. 15. Mat. 5. 28.
d Ver. 17. ch. 9. 4. & 3. 2. Mat. 23. 3, 14, 23. & 16. 20. Luke 18. 11. ver. 24. ch. 7. 9.
e 2 Sam. 12. 14. Is. 52. 5. Ezek. 36. 20, 23. f Ch. 3. 1, 2. & 9. 4, 5. Lev. 26. 41. Jer. 4. 4. & 6. 10, 14. & 9. 25, 26. Acts 7. 51. 1 Cor. 7. 19. Gal. 5. 6. & 6. 15. g Mat. 8. 10, 11. & 15. 28. Acts 10. 34. ver. 28, 29.
h Mat. 12. 41, 42. Ezek. 16. 51, 52. ver. 14, 15.
i Ch. 7. 6, 2 Cor. 3. 6. Tit. 1. 16. 2 Tim. 3. 5. k John 8. 39. Rev. 2. 9. Mat. 3. 9. ch. 9. 6—8. & 14. 17. 1 Cor. 4. 20. & 8. 8. Gal. 5. 6. & 6. 15. 1 Tim. 4. 8.
l Phil. 3. 2, 3. ch. 14, 17. Ps. 45. 13. Luke 17. 21. 1 Cor. 4. 20. 2 Cor. 4. 15. Gal. 4. 19. Eph. 3. 16. Col. 1. 27. 1 Pet. 3. 4. Deut. 10. 16. & 30. 6. Jer. 4. 4. Col. 2. 11, 12.
m Ch. 7. 6. 2 Cor. 3. 6, 7. Phile. 3.
n 1 Cor. 4. 5. 2 Cor. 10. 18. 1 Thes. 2. 4. 1 Pet. 3. 4.

Verses 17—29. The great rock on which the Jews split was their vain dependence on the law of Moses, when, in fact, that very law on which they trusted, denounced indignation and wrath upon them as transgressors of it.

1. The apostle mentions various particulars in which they proudly gloried. Behold, thou art called a Jew; they valued themselves highly on their descent from Abraham; and restest in the law; secure of heaven because they had Moses for their teacher, though they obeyed not his injunctions; and makest thy boast in God, as if peculiarly interested in him, and, exclusive of all other nations, possessing his favour and regard; and knowest his will, and approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law, puffed up with the conceit of their superior knowledge of God's mind above any other people, accurate to discern truth from falsehood, professing their high estimation of the divine law, and from earliest youth (κατηχουμενος) catechised and instructed out of it; and art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness, an instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes; such high and lofty titles they assumed, when regarding their Gentile neighbours, on whom they looked down with sovereign contempt, and thought the wisest heathens were but as infants to them, and needed to come to their school to learn the elements of divine knowledge, when in fact, all they possessed was but a form of knowledge and of the truth in the law; for in reality they neither understood its nature, extent, or spirituality; nor practised its precepts. Note, (1.) External privileges rested upon, instead of improved, tend but more fatally to deceive and destroy us. (2.) Unsanctified knowledge is a dangerous possession, puffing up the soul in pride, and leading it to perdition. (3.) A form of sound words in our lips may impose upon men; but without the power of divine grace in the heart, all the rest is no better than sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

2. He charges them with various crimes, the more aggravated because of the privileges in which they boasted, and the knowledge which they professed. Whilst they taught others, they never preached to their own hearts; their lives gave the lie to their instructions. They declaimed against theft, yet practised it themselves, Matt. xxiii. 14. and lived in that adultery they so sharply condemned in others; they testified their abhorrence of idols, yet sacrilegiously robbed God of his honour, not only withholding their tithes and offerings from his altar, but more abundantly by making void his law through their traditions, and, whilst scrupulous in trifles, neglecting the weightier matters. Thus they stood most inexcusably guilty, and by such flagrant breaches of his law even while they boasted of it as their great privilege, and trusted on it as their security, they put the highest dishonour upon God, and brought the greatest reproach upon their profession, giving occasion to the very Gentiles to blaspheme and speak evil of that religion the professors of which were so infamously vile: and acting over the same part, as it is written their fathers had done before them, Ezek. xxxvi. 20—23. Note, (1.) Example influences more than precept. Indeed how can it be expected that the people should believe those, who show by their practice that they do not believe themselves? (2.) They who prove false to their profession, give the deepest stab to the cause of God and truth.

3. The apostle considers the Jewish plea of circumcision, and proves the vanity of it. It profited them, if they kept the law perfectly, to which they bound themselves thereby; but, in case of transgression, it stood them in no stead, nor were they at all more acceptable to God than an uncircumcised Gentile. And if, for argument's sake, it be supposed that a heathen should observe all the precepts of the law, would he not be an object of God's regard, as much as if he had been circumcised? and would not such a moral heathen, though uncircumcised, condemn thee a Jew, and circumcised, if he observed that law, which you, though professing to hold, and by circumcision obliging yourself to keep, notwithstanding transgress? Undoubtedly he would. Note, The comparative exemplariness of those who enjoy less means, and make less profession of religion, will justly condemn those, who with greater advantages, and more pretensions to piety, dishonour, by their unfaithfulness, the holy name whereby they are called.

4. He describes the true circumcision. It is not mere outward profession which seals a man a true Israelite, neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh available to any saving purpose: but he is the true son of Abraham, who in faith and spirit resembles this eminent friend of God; and the true circumcision, which God regards, is that of the heart purified by faith; in the spirit and not in the letter: where not only a profession is made, but a real inward change is wrought by the power of the Holy Ghost; whose praise is not of men, but of God; it is what men cannot discern; and as they who possess it desire not human but divine approbation, their great care and concern is that they may be accepted of God. Note, It is the heart which God regards. Let us remember then, that we have to do with him on whom the most plausible professions cannot impose.

CHAP. III.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

Having proved the guilt both of Gentiles and Jews, the apostle in this chapter, 1. Answers some objections that might be made against what he had said about the Jews, ver. 1—8. 2. He asserts the guilt and corruption of mankind in common, both Jews and Gentiles, ver. 9—18. 3. He argues from thence, that justification must needs be by faith, and not by the law, ver. 19. to the end.

1. WHAT [a] advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? 2. [b] Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God. 3. For what if some did not believe? [c] shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? 4. God forbid: yea, [d] let God be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, a Eccl. 1. 3. & 3. 19. & 6. 8. Dan. 5. 14. & 6. 3. with ch. 2. 26, 28, 29. Phil. 3. 5.

b Deut. 32. 9. & 4. 7, 8. Ps. 78. 5. & 147. 18—20. ch. 2. 18. & 9. 4, 5. Eph. 2. 12. c Num. 23. 19. 1 Sam. 15. 29. ch. 9. 6. & 11. 29. 2 Tim. 2. 13. Heb. 4. 2. d Ps. 116. 11. & 51. 4. & 62. 9. John 3. 33. Job 40. 8. Is. 46. 10. Ps. 86. 15. & 100. 5. Mic. 7. 20. Luke 10. 35. Deut. 32. 4.

That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged. 5. [e] But if our unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, [f] what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance? (I speak [g] as a man.) 6. [h] God forbid: for then [i] how shall God judge the world? 7. [k] For if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory, why yet am I also judged as a sinner? 8. And not rather, (as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say,) [l] Let us do evil, that good may come? whose damnation is just. 9. What then? [m] are we better than they? No, in no wise: for we have before [n] proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin; 10. As it is written, [o] There is none righteous, no, not one: 11. [p] There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. 12. [q] They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. 13. [r] Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; [s] the poison of asps is under their lips: 14. [t] Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness: 15. [u] Their feet are swift to shed blood: 16. Destruction and misery are in their ways: 17. And the way of peace have they not known: 18. [x] There is no fear of God before their eyes.

e Ch. 5. 8, 20. Tit. 3. 3—5.
f Ch. 4. 1. & 6. 1. & 7. 7. & 9. 14.
g Ch. 6. 19. 1 Cor. 9. 8. Gal. 3. 15.
h Ver. 4. ch. 6. 2, 15. & 9. 14. & 7. 7.
i Gen. 18. 25. Job 8. 3. & 34. 17. Ps. 11. 6, 7. & 7. 8, 9. & 9. 8. & 96. 13. & 9. 8, 9. & 50. 6.
k Ver. 5, 8. ch. 5. 8, 20.
l Ch. 5. 8, 20. & 6. 1, 15. & 7. 7. Jude 4. m Ver. 10—20, 23 Gal. 3. 22.
n Or charged. ch. i, xi.
o Ps. 14. 1—5. & 53. 1—5. & 36. 1—4. Eph. 2. 1—3. Tit. 3. 3. 2 Pet. 2. 13—15. p Ps. 14. 2, 4. Is. 27. 11. Hos. 4. 7. Eph. 4. 17, 18. 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4. ch. 10. 2, 3. Jer. 4. 22.
q Ps. 14. 3. Eccl. 7. 29. Jer. 2. 13. & 1. 2, 4. & 5. 7—23. & 9. 17, 18. & 24. 5. & 57. 3—5. & 59. 7—15. & 64. 6. 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Gal. 5. 19—21. Tit. 3. 3.
r Ps. 5. 9. & 12. 2, 3. & 55. 21. & 56. 1—4. Mat. 15. 19. Jer. 9. 2—6. s Ps. 140. 3. & 58. 2, 3. & 55. 3. & 57. 4. & 64. 3. & 58. 4. Is. 59. 3—8. Jer. 9. 2—6. Jam. 3. 6, 8.
t Ps. 10. 7. & 5. 9. & 36. 3. Job 20. 13. Jam. 3. 6—9.
u Prov. 1. 16. & 4. 16. Is. 59. 7, 8. Hos. 4. 1, 2. Ps. 120. 7. Is. 59. 7—15. Ezek. xxii. Tit. 3. 3. Eph. 2. 2, 3.
x Ps. 36. 1. Gen. 20. 11. Hos. 10. 3. Is. 1. 2, 4.

Verses 1—18. The apostle proceeds to answer the objections raised against the doctrine he had advanced, and to confirm the truth which he had asserted.

1. He answers the objections raised against his positions.

(1.) If the Jews are thus in the same condemnation as the Gentiles, what advantage have they, notwithstanding the peculiar favours shown them of God, and the divinely instituted rites, particularly circumcision, which he appointed them? The apostle answers, Much every way: chiefly because that unto them were committed the oracles of God. In the law and the prophets they had the most blessed means vouchsafed them to come to the knowledge of the truth, and especially of that Messiah who was the sum and substance of the oracles of God: and it was also their honour to be intrusted with the keeping of those sacred records. Their advantages therefore above the Gentiles were very great and singular. Note, Among our most invaluable blessings we should always reckon our Bibles; for in them we have eternal life revealed to us.

(2.) If it be objected to this; that, though the Jews had the oracles of God, some did not believe; admit it. But what then? Shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? Shall the faithful God, because of the infidelity of some, fail of fulfilling his promises to Abraham and his spiritual seed, who trust upon him according to his word? God forbid! His word must be accomplished, and his promises are sure. Yea, let God be true; let it be for ever acknowledged that he is so; but let every man, who dares dispute his veracity and truth, know that he must be found a liar. Men are inconstant, deceitful, and vain: no confidence is to be placed in them, but God never can nor will deceive us: as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged; as David acknowledged, Psal. li. 4. for, notwithstanding his foul falls and great unfaithfulness, God would not alter the word which was gone out of his mouth concerning that Messiah who should spring from his loins. And he will for ever stand clear of all imputations which foolish men may cast upon him, and be found faithful and true, though we presumptuously dare arraign his righteousness, or censure his conduct.

(3.) But some perverse Jew may say, whose character I will personate, speaking as such a man, If our unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, and he gains glory by our wickedness and unbelief, both glorifying his justice in our punishment, and his grace in calling the Gentile sinners in our stead, and justifying them by the righteousness of his Son, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous, (μη αδικος ὁ Θεος) who taketh vengeance for that unbelief and unrighteousness, which serves as a foil more eminently to display the lustre of his divine perfections, his truth, holiness, and grace? With abhorrence the apostle rejects the insinuation. God forbid: for then how shall God judge the world? If he were not infinitely righteous in his nature, he would be unfit for this high office: and if he, by his over-ruling providence, brings good out of evil, and magnifies his grace more eminently where sin hath most abounded, sin hath not therefore the less evil or malignity, nor hath the sinner ought to plead, since he designs nothing less than the divine glory.

(4.) But the same carnal Jew, whom I have personated before, may further urge, If the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory, and my unbelief, which gives the lie to his promises, and my wickedness, which gives the lie to my profession, serves to magnify his veracity, why yet am I also judged as a sinner? and punished for transgressions that serve rather to magnify God than to dishonour him? and may we not rather abandon ourselves to evil, in order that good may come? and God's grace and truth receive greater glory in justifying those who believe on his Son? And such malicious and blasphemous reports are spread by our Jewish enemies, who confidently affirm that this is the doctrine which we as apostles preach, and as Christians believe. But we abhor the suggestion, and declare to such slanderers of us and the truth, and to all who dare thus abuse the holy doctrines of grace, that their damnation is just, and inevitable. Note, (1.) The best of ministers and of men have had the foulest aspersions cast on them, and have been charged with holding the most abhorred blasphemies. (2.) The injured characters of his ambassadors God will avenge. (3.) They who abuse the doctrines of grace, as arguments for licentiousness, will perish with most aggravated guilt.

2. The apostle returns, after confuting the Jewish objections, to the main point in debate, whether Jews, as well as Gentiles, were not all under sin. Are we better than they? No, in no wise: for we have before proved at large in the two former chapters, that both Jews and Gentiles are all under sin, condemned by the guilt, enslaved by the power, and liable to the eternal wrath which is the wages of sin: so that all need a better righteousness than their own to justify them before God. And to enforce this truth, the apostle quotes the Scriptures, which the Jews admitted, as containing the fullest proof of his assertion. God declares, Psal. xiv. 1. that there is none righteous, according to the perfect demands of his holy law, no, not one; so corrupted is our nature, that there is none that understandeth; the human mind is darkened, and cannot discover or receive the things that be of the Spirit of God; there is none that seeketh after God, no one good disposition remaining in the natural heart, nor desire after communion with God; but evil, and only evil, and that continually. Hence of all men, the Psalmist asserts, that they are all gone out of the way, following the bent of their native corruptions, they are altogether become unprofitable, bringing forth no fruit to God's glory; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. And the foul streams which flow from this polluted fountain are described in other places of the Scripture: their throat is an open sepulchre, voracious and insatiable in the pursuits of their lusts and covetousness; with their tongues they have used deceit, flattering, false, faithless; the poison of asps is under their lips, secretly, artfully, incurably, does their tongue drop the malignant venom, to blast the fame, or destroy the life, of their neighbour: whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness, blaspheming God himself, and shooting out their bitter words of rancour and reviling against the people and good ways of the Lord: their feet are swift to shed blood, every member of their body is a ready instrument of iniquity; destruction and misery are in their ways, and wherever they go, they mark their path with mischief, spreading their wickedness as a plague, pestilential to others, and at last bringing perdition on themselves; and the way of peace have they not known, strangers to whatever would conduce to their own peace and happiness both here and hereafter; disturbing, as far as they can, by their malignity and perverseness, the peace of mankind: there is no fear of God before their eyes; destitute of every gracious principle: and this, as it is the root of all their wickedness, so it is the summit of all their ungodliness; they leave God far above out of their sight. And such being the divine description of every man by nature, declared by him who searcheth the heart, and knoweth what is in man, the universal guilt and desperate wickedness of the whole human race, both Jews and Gentiles, cannot but be most evident. Whilst we read the dreadful charge, may we be led to an humbling acknowledgment of the truth, and from the deepest heartfelt conviction be laid in the dust, submitting wholly to the righteousness of God.

19. Now we know that what things [y] soever the law saith, [y] it saith to them who are under the law: [z] that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become * guilty before God. 20. Therefore [a] by the deeds of the law there shall no [b] flesh be justified in his sight: for [c] by the law is the knowledge of sin. 21. But now [d] the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, [c] being witnessed by the law and the prophets; 22. Even the righteousness of God, which is [f] by faith of Jesus Christ [g] unto all and upon all them that believe; for there is no difference: 23. For [h] all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God; [e] 24. [i] Being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: 25. Whom God hath [k] set forth to be a propitiation, [l] through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the [m] remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God; 26. To de[y] Gal. 3. 10, 13, 23. ch. 1. 32. & 2. 14, 17, 18. ver. 9.

[z] Job 5. 16. Ps. 107. 42. Ezek. 16. 63. 1 Cor. 1. 29. & 14. 21. ch. 1. 20, 32. & 2. 1. John 15. 22. Job 9. 2, 3.
* Or subject to the judgment of God.
[a] Gal. 2. 16. & 3. 10. Ps. 143. 2. & 130. 3. Job 9. 2, 3. Tit. 3. 3, 5. ch. 4. 5. & 7. 9.
[b] With ch. 7. 5, 18, 25. & 8. 1, 3—5, 8, 9, 12, 13.
[c] Ch. 7. 7, 9, 14. & 5. 20.
[d] Is. 45. 24. Jer. 23. 6. & 33. 16. ch. 1. 17. & 10. 3. & 5. 19. Phil. 3. 9. 2 Pet. 1. 1. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Is. 45. 24.
[e] Gen. 3. 15. & 15. 6. & 22. 18. & 40. 10. Is. 42. 21 & liii. & 45. 24, 25. & 54. 17. & 61. 10. Jer. 23. 6. Dan. 9. 24, 26. Zech. 13. 7. Acts 10. 43. & 15. 11. & 26. 22. John 5. 46. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 12.
[f] Ch. 1. 17. & 5. 1. Phil. 3. 9. Gal. 2. 16.
[g] Ch. 10. 12. Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11.
[h] Ch. 1. 18—32. ver. 10—18. ch. 11. 32. Gal. 3. 22.
[i] Eph. 1. 6, 7. & 2. 7, 8. Col. 1. 14. Tit. 3. 5, 7. Is. 53. 11. Mat. 20. 28. John 3. 6. ch. 6. 6. & 5. 19. Heb. 9. 12, 14.
[k] Or foreordained. 1 Pet. 1. 18—20. 2 Cor. 5. 21. ch. 8. 3, 32. Gal. 4. 4. 1 John 1. 2. & 4. 10. Col. 1. 20.
[l] Ch. 1. 17. & 5. 1. Acts 13. 38, 39. & 10. 43. Phil. 3. 9.
[m] Or passing over. Heb. 9. 15. Acts 17. 30.

clare, I say, at this time [n] his righteousness: that [o] he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus. 27. [p] Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? Nay; but by the [q] law of faith. 28. Therefore we conclude that [r] a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law. 29. [s] Is he the God of the Jews only? is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also: 30. [t] Seeing it is one God which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith. 31. [u] Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law.

n Ps. 11. 7. & 119. 137, 142. or Dan. 9. 24. Is. 45. 24. & liii. & 54. 17. & 61. 10. 1 Cor. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Phil. 3. 9.
o 2 Cor. 5. 19, 21. Is. 42. 21. 1 John 1. 9. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. John 3. 14—17. p Ch. 2. 17, 23. & 4. 2. 1 Cor. 1. 29, 31. Eph. 2. 9. Tit. 3. 4, 5. Ezek. 16. 62, 63. & 36. 25—32.
q Is. 2. 2. & 51. 4. Luke 2. 10, 11.
r Ver. 19—26. Gal. 2. 16. Phil. 3. 9. Tit. 3. 5. Acts 13. 38, 39. ch. 4. 5, 6. & 5. 1. Is. 45. 24, 25. & 64. 6. Eph. 2. 4—9.
s Ch. 1. 16. ver. 22. Gen. 17. 5, 7. & 22. 11. with Gal. 3. 26, 28. Col. 3. 11.
t Ch. 4. 11. Acts 13. 39. u Ch. 10. 4. & 8. 4. Mat. 5. 17. 1 John 4. 9, 10, 19. Gal. 3. 24.

Verses 19—31. The apostle proceeds to apply the truths which he had advanced and proved.

1. All the world is become guilty before God, and no flesh can be justified in God's sight by the deeds of the law, because all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, have come short of righteousness, and therefore of heaven, ver. 23. According to the several dispensations under which they have lived, the law speaketh both to Jews and Gentiles, and condemns them as transgressors. The Gentiles have offended against those precepts of the moral law, which God, though more obscurely, hath showed them; and the Jews, against the clearer revelation, which in the Scriptures they have enjoyed; so that every mouth must be stopped, and guilt evident and confessed appear upon every living soul. For by the law is the knowledge of sin; so far from being able to justify any man, it is the glass that can only show him his deformity, the straight rule to mark his sad deviations from it. Note, (1.) Man in his nature is become flesh, fallen and corrupted; and therefore it is impossible that, in his present ruined state, he should be just before God. (2.) The law is designed to discover sin to the conscience, not to justify any, but to convince all men of the necessity of a better righteousness than their own to appear in before God. (3.) All flesh must plead guilty at God's bar: and no man can possibly be saved, till he has seen, felt, and owned that he hath deserved most justly to be damned.

2. To those who, from the conviction which the law brings to their consciences, are driven to despair of acceptance with God, on account of any doings and duties of their own, the gospel reveals the method of divine grace, appointed and provided for the sinner's justification before God. But now, since all hope is fled of obtaining favour with God on the footing of our own obedience, the righteousness of God, that divine righteousness which God incarnate wrought out, and which God the Father accepts on our behalf, without the law, which the moral law never discovered, but required personal, not imputed righteousness; and which is complete, exclusive of all respect to any obedience of ours to the law, is manifested in the person of Jesus Christ, and by the preaching of the gospel, being witnessed by all the types and figures of the ceremonial law, and by the prophets, Isa. xlv. 24, 25. Jer. xxiii. 6. Dan. ix. 24. So that even during the time that the Mosaical dispensation lasted, the Jews were taught to look for a better righteousness than that which they could obtain by the deeds of the law; even the righteousness of God; of our divine substitute and surety, who for us men and our salvation became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross, and which is now received by faith in this adored Redeemer Jesus Christ, and, judicially made over, and reckoned to the account of every soul, who, renouncing every other hope, lays hold on this set before him; and it is unto all and upon all them that believe, whether Jew or Gentile, for there is no difference; they alike need it, as having all sinned and come short of God's glory, and he freely bestows it on them without any regard to the degrees of their guilt, or the different measures of their faith; the weakest believer, though the chief of sinners, being freely, fully, and everlastingly justified before God through this divine righteousness. Nor is there the least moving cause in any of us to engage God to have respect to us. We lie in one promiscuous mass of corruption till justified freely by his grace, by his sovereign and undeserved mercy, through the redemption which is in Jesus Christ, who by his obedience unto death, paid down the invaluable price of our redemption, which doth not at all affect the riches of the grace respecting us; though bought with his blood, it is sovereignly and freely imputed to our account; and we owe it to God's boundless mercy, that he provided, qualified, and accepted our glorious surety, and freely gave him up for us all. Whom God hath set forth, predestinating him in his eternal counsels, and in the fulness of time sending him in the human nature, to be a propitiation, to be the one great propitiatory sacrifice, that, through faith in his blood, the chief of sinners might boldly approach a throne of grace. And hereby, (1.) The best of blessings is secured to us, even the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God. The sacrifices under the law were insufficient to take away sin: the faithful therefore under the Old Testament had recourse to this atoning blood which in the fulness of time should be shed, and in the view thereof God bore with them, pardoned and accepted them. And we are infinitely indebted to this blood, that speaks before the throne, and to the forbearance of God with us, in consequence thereof, that we have not, through our repeated provocations, been cut off long since, as we have deserved, and cast into hell for our sins. (2.) Hereby the greatest honour redounds to God; for in this his method of dealing with sinners, he shows and demonstrates his own righteousness, both the glory of his justice in the punishment of sin, and the transcendent excellence and perfection of the Redeemer's righteousness, by means of which, consistent with the divine glory, an honourable provision was made for the pardon of sin, and neither God's truth, justice, nor holiness impeached by the grace extended to the sinner: so that at this time, under the gospel dispensation, he declares his righteousness, that he might be just, and withal, the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus. Never was God's displeasure against sin more awfully displayed than when he laid upon his Son the iniquities of us all. Having exacted from him the debt of suffering, it is now become an act of justice that we should be discharged; our Surety's obedience being accepted in our stead, we have by right a title to the divine favour. (3.) Hereby all boasting is excluded from the sons of men; none can say he is accepted before God on account of any works of righteousness done by him, or foreseen in him; all are excluded. By what law? Of works? Nay: but by the law of faith, by that gracious evangelical dispensation, wherein the blood and righteousness of God our Redeemer are proposed as the only meritorious cause of the sinner's acceptance.

The conclusion then from the above premises is evident, that a man is and can be justified before God in no other way than by faith only, without the deeds of the law, the only justifying righteousness being that of the Saviour which faith apprehends, and exclusive of all other considerations, whether of our duties or our sins, entitles the believer to the favour of God.

3. This privilege of free justification, through a Redeemer's righteousness, is common to the Gentile as well as Jew. Is God then in this new dispensation of his grace in the gospel of his dear Son, the God of the Jews only? or peculiarly? Is he not of the Gentiles also? Yes, of the Gentiles also. It is a common salvation, and both are alike freely invited to partake of it. See- ing it is one God which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and the uncircumcision through faith; both Jews and Gentiles standing exactly on the same footing, without respect of persons, or any difference in the way of their acceptance.

4. He concludes with obviating an objection which some might raise, as if he hereby made void the moral law, the eternal rule of righteousness, as useless and insignificant; but he rejects with detestation the suggestion, God forbid! Yea, so far from making it void, we establish the law. Its true use remains the same as ever to convince of sin; to be not a covenant of life, but a rule of obedience; and that faith which shows it manifested in the highest, by the perfect righteousness of our Redeemer, as it works by love, is the most powerful principle to engage our hearts to delight in the law of God after the inner man, and to run the way of his commandments, walking in the glorious liberty of the children of God, a liberty not to transgress, but to obey.

CHAP. IV.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

Nothing could serve so effectually to prove the argument he advanced, as to show that Abraham, in whom the Jews so highly gloried, was justified by faith only. The apostle, therefore, in this chapter, 1. Enters into the evidence of this fact, ver. 1—8. 2. He observes when and why Abraham was so justified, ver. 9—17. 3. He describes and commends that faith of his, ver. 18—22. 4. He applies all this to us, ver. 23—25.

a Ch. 6. 1. & 7. 7. & 9. 14.
b Is. 51. 2. Mat. 3. 9. John 8. 39. Phil. 3. 4, 5.
c 1 Cor. 4. 7. Eph. 2. 8. 1 Ti. 6. 6. Tit 3. 5. Is. 45. 24, 25. Phil. 3. 9. d Gen. 15. 6. & 12. 3. Gal. 3. 3. Jam. 2. 23. with ch. 3. 24, 25, 28.
e Mat. 20. 7, 14. ch. 11. 6. with 35.
f Gal. 2. 16. Phil. 3. 9. Acts 13. 39. & 15. 11. ch. 5. 1, 11. ver. 3.
g Josh. 24. 2. ch. 5. 6, 8. 1 Tim. 1. 13, 15. ch. 5. 10.
h Ch. 10. 4, 10. & 5. 11. or Gal. 3. 23, 25. with 1 Tim. 1. 1. Col. 1. 27.
i Is. 45. 24, 25. & 64. 17. & 61. 10. Jer. 23. 6. & 33. 16. Dan. 9. 24. ch. 1. 17. & 3. 21—28. & 5. 15—21. & 8. 1—4, 32, 33. 1 Cor. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 5. 19, 21. Phil. 3. 9. 1 John 2. 2. & 4. 10. Rev. 1. 5. & 5. 9. & 19. 8.
k Ps. 32. 1. & 85. 2. & 103. 3. & 130. 4. & 51. 9. Is. 1. 18. & 40. 1, 2. & 43. 25. & 38. 17. & 44. 22. Jer. 33. 8. & 50. 20. Mic. 7. 18, 19. Acts 13. 38, 39. ch. 8. 1, 33, 34. 2 Cor. 5. 19, 21.

1. WHAT [a] shall we then say that Abraham, [b] our father as pertaining to the flesh, hath found? 2. For [c] if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory; but not before God. 3. For what saith the scripture? [d] Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness. 4. Now [e] to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt. 5. But to him that worketh not, but [f] believeth on him that justifieth [g] the ungodly, his [h] faith is counted for righteousness. 6. Even as David also describeth the blessedness of the man unto whom God [i] imputeth righteousness without works, 7. Saying, [k] Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered. 8. Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin.

Verses 1—8. Abraham was the renowned ancestor, on their descent from whom the Jews so highly prided themselves. If therefore it can be made appear, that he who was so eminent for his obedience was justified not by works but by faith, then surely none of his descendants, who came so short of his excellent character, may expect to be justified in any other way.

What shall we then say that Abraham, our father as pertaining to the flesh, hath found? Did he obtain justification by the efforts of his natural wisdom and strength, or by circumcision, or his outward privileges and performances? No, in no wise. For,

1. If he were justified by works, he might have had room for boasting; for whatever excellence there was in his character before men, he had nothing whereof to glory before God: for in the Lord alone can we be justified or permitted to glory. Therefore, when speaking of Abraham, the scripture expressly observes, Gen. xv. 6. Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness, that which he believed respecting the promised seed, who should suffer and obey in his stead, was reckoned to his account, as the ground of his justification and righteousness before God, and not any doings or duties of his own; so that he had no room for glorying, except in the Lord his righteousness.

2. If Abraham was justified by works, his reward would have been of debt, not of grace; for perfect obedience would have entitled any man to eternal life: but God called Abraham when he was (ασεβη) an ungodly idolatrous heathen, and justified him through faith in the promised Messiah. And to him that worketh not, who is utterly unable to perform that perfect righteousness which God requires, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, conscious that this is his character, and perceiving the absolute necessity of a better righteousness than his own, even that which God hath provided in his Son; his faith, not the act, but the object of it, the righteousness of Jesus Christ, is counted and imputed to him, for his justifying righteousness and title to God's favour. If Abraham then must be justified as an ungodly sinner, as one that worketh not, it would be strange presumption in his descendants, or any others, to expect justification in any other way.

3. He argues the necessity of free justification from the declarations of the psalmist, who describes him as the truly blessed man, not who hath no sins to answer for, but who hath them not imputed to him, being justified from them all by the free grace of God, without any works of his own, of whatever kind, to recommend him to the divine regard. Indeed how else could he regard us, since all have sinned, are chargeable with iniquity, and liable to wrath? But God forgives, covers, doth not impute our sins to us, but to our Surety, and reckons his righteousness to our account; and this is the ground of all true blessedness in time or eternity. From hence flows forgiveness of sin, admission to God's favour, and a title to the eternal inheritance: and blessed indeed and happy are they, who through a Redeemer are thus justified from all things, and shall never more enter into condemnation!

9. [l] Cometh this blessedness then upon the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? for we say that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousness. 10. How was it then reckoned? when he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision?* [m] Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision. 11. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised: that he might be [n] the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumcised; [o] that righteousness might be imputed unto them also: 12. And the father of circumcision to them [p] who are not of the circumcision only, but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised.

l Ch. 3. 22, 29. 30. & 1. 16. & 9. 24, 30. & 16. 12, 13, 18. & 11. 11. & 15. 8—19. Gal. 3. 26—28. Col. 3. 11.

* God entered into covenant with Abraham, in Haran, (Gen. xii. 1—3.) about 24 years before the institution of circumcision; in which interval the promise was frequently renewed.—Terrot.

m Gen. 12. 3. & 15 6. with 17. 11.

n Luke 19. 6. Gal. 3. 7, 29. John 8. 39. ch. 6. 9. Gal. 6. 16.

o Ch. 3. 22, 24, 30. & 9. 24, 30. & 5. 19. 1 Cor. 6. 11. Is. 45. 22, 24, 25.

p 2 Pet. 1. 1. Gal. 3. 7, 26—29. John 9. 39.

Verses 9—12. The blessedness above described is, no doubt, most desirable; the question is, to whom it belongs? Is it peculiar to the circumcised Jews, or common to the uncircumcised

Gentiles? The former would fain monopolize it as the sole privilege of those who were within the pale of circumcision; but the gospel declares the uncircumcised Gentiles alike capable of receiving it.

It was faith, the object of it, even the divine righteousness of a Redeemer, not circumcision, which was Abraham's justifying righteousness as hath before been shown. This was imputed to him, and in consequence thereof he was a justified man, fourteen years before he was circumcised. It is evident, therefore, that when he afterwards submitted to this instituted ordinance of God, and received the sign of circumcision, it was not in order to his being justified, since that he had been long before, but as a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had, being yet uncircumcised; a visible token that God had taken him and his seed into the bond of the covenant, and an assurance to him of all the blessings which were to be procured by that Redeemer in whom he had believed. Thus, in this eminent instance of him, who bore the distinguished title of father of the faithful, and from whom the Messiah should spring, in whom all nations were to be blessed, the Gentiles, though uncircumcised, might behold the way of justification freely opened to them, and stand in the nearest relation to Abraham, whose faith they followed, as his spiritual children; and though they were not his natural descendants, might share in all his most distinguished blessings, through that righteousness which should be imputed unto them also, in like manner as it was to him, during his uncircumcised state.

And herein also God showed to the Jews, it was not their being the natural descendants of Abraham, and partakers of circumcision with him, which entitled them to pardon, but that the distinguished privileges of that covenant of grace into which Abraham was admitted, belonged only to those who walked in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham which he had, being yet uncircumcised; and without which, circumcision, and all their other duties and performances, would never procure for them justification to life.

13. [q] For the promise, that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. 14. [r] For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect: 15. [s] Because the law worketh wrath: [t] for where no law is, there is no transgression. 16. [u] Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promise might be sure to all the seed; not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all, 17. (As it is written, [x] I have made thee a father of many nations,) [y] before him whom he believed, even God, who [z] quickeneth the dead, and calleth those things which be not as though they were. 18. [a] Who against hope believed in hope, that he might become [b] the father of many nations, according to that which was spoken, So shall thy seed be. 19. And being not [c] weak in faith, [d] he considered not his own body now dead, when he was about an hundred years old, neither yet the deadness of Sara's womb: 20. He [e] staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; 21. And being fully persuaded, that what he had promised, [f] he was able also to perform. 22. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness.

q Gen. 12. 3. & 13. 15, 17. & 15. 6, 7, 18—21. & 22. 17, 18. & 17. 4, 8. Gal. 3. 18. Heb. 11. 17.
r Ver. 4, 5. ch. 11. 6. Gal. 3. 10, 18. & 2. 21. & 5. 4. s Ch. 5. 20. & 7. 8, 10. & 3. 19, 20. John 15. 22. 1 Cor. 15. 56. 2 Cor. 3. 7, 9. Gal. 3. 10.
t Ch. 5. 13. 1 Cor. 15. 56.
u Ch. 9. 11. & 11. 29. Gal. 3. 9, 16—18, 28, 29. & 4. 28. & 3. 9, 14. Col. 3. 11. Mat. 8. 11.
x Gen. 17. 5. Heb. 11. 12.
y Or like unto him. ch. 3. 29.
z Ch. 8. 11. John 5. 25. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Eph. 2. 1, 5. 1 Cor. 1. 28. Mat. 3. 9. & 8. 11. Is. 43. 6. & 49. 12. & 55. 5.
a 2 Chr. 20. 20. Is. 7. 9. Mark 5. 35, 36. Acts 27. 25. Job 13. 15. b Gen. 12. 2. & 13. 16. & 15. 5, 6. & 17. 5, 6. & 22. 17, 18. & xxv.
c Ch. 14. 1, 21. 1 Cor. 8. 7—12.
d Gen. 17. 17. & 18. 11. Heb. 11. 11, 12. e Ver. 18, 19. Jam. 1. 6. Mark 5. 36. Acts 27. 25. 2 Chr. 20. 20. Luke 17. 18. Is. 7. 9.
f Luke 1. 37. Gen. 17. 1. & 18. 14. Jer. 32. 17, 27. Mat. 19. 26. ch. 14. 4. & 11. 23. Heb. 7. 25. & 2. 18. 2 Cor. 9. 8. Ps. 115. 3.

Verses 13—22. As circumcision was not a justifying righteousness to Abraham, nor to any of his seed, neither was the law, in which the Jewish people trusted. For the promise that he should be heir of the world, inheriting all true blessedness both here and hereafter, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law of Moses, which was not yet given, nor in virtue of any personal obedience of his or theirs, but through the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the law be heirs, and the title to the blessings promised arose from the fulfilling the law, whether that of Moses or any other, then faith is made void; there is no place for the exercise of it, and the promise is of no effect, since the inheritance would depend on our obedience, and if that were not perfect, the promise would be useless, which must necessarily be the case in our present corrupted state, because the law worketh wrath, and can only deliver over every man to the righteous judgment of God, as transgressors. Had there indeed been no law given, had no notice of God's will, traditionary or revealed, been afforded, there would have been no conscience of sin, for where no law is there is no transgression; but now that there is a law, the offender is obnoxious to the curse, which is the sanction annexed to the transgression of it. Therefore, since none by their obedience to any law, moral or ceremonial, could possibly be entitled to the promised blessings, God so ordained, that it should be of faith, that it might be by grace; that the promise, and all the blessings contained in it, of pardon, adoption, and eternal life, might appear to be given of God's mere goodness and sovereign pleasure, without the least desert on our part, faith stretching out its empty hand to receive the inestimable treasure, and that faith too the gift of God, that it might be wholly of grace, to the end that the promise might be sure; and notwithstanding our unworthiness, secured to us in our divine substitute and covenant head Christ Jesus, independent of any obedience of our own; for such is our frailty and corruption, that if it depended upon our own obedience as the condition of it, not a moment could we be sure of it; but now it is infallibly ascertained to all the seed, to the spiritual seed of Abraham, even all true believers, not to that only which is of the law, who live under the Mosaical dispensation, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who, though Gentiles by birth and profession, yet through faith become, in God's account, the children of this eminent patriarch, who is the father of us all, whether believing Jews or Gentiles; as it is written, I have made thee a father of many nations: in a spiritual sense, before him whom he believed, even God, was he thus reputed as the father of many nations; even before him who quickeneth the dead, Abraham and his wife, whose bodies were now as good as dead; or the Gentiles dead in trespasses and sins; or the bodies of the deceased in the last day; and who in virtue of his almighty power, calleth the things which be not as though they were, since whatever he wills, at his word starts into being. Persuaded of this, notwithstanding all the difficulties which his faith had to encounter, Abraham against hope, if reason were consulted, believed in hope, and against all arguments which sense or experience urged, he rested satisfied in the fulfilment of the promise, that he should become the father of many nations, according to that which was spoken, Gen. xv. 5. when, pointing him to the stars, God assured him, so shall thy seed be, so numberless, so illustrious. Having this divine promise, he staggered not a moment through any improbabilities which unbelief might suggest, from the consideration of his own great age, which, with regard to his having children, rendered his body as if already dead, nor at the deadness of Sarah's womb, long since past childbearing, but was strong in faith, giving glory to God, with the fullest assurance expecting the fulfilment of what God had promised, and was able also to perform. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness; and what he saw about to be done by the promised seed, Christ Jesus, was now reckoned to his account, and he stood thereby justified before God. Note, (1.) Where God hath promised, whatever objections carnal reason and unbelief may make, it is our wisdom to turn a deaf ear to every suggestion, and confidently wait the accomplishment of his word; and this gives God the highest glory. (2.) Though unbelief will war against the soul, yet in every child of Abraham faith will get the victory.

g Ch. 15. 4. 1 Cor. 10. 6, 11. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17.
h Gal. 2. 16. 1 Pet. 1. 21. ch. 1. 17. & 10. 4, 9, 10. Acts 2. 24.
i Is. 53. 4—12. Dan. 9. 24, 26. Zech. 13. 7. Mat. 20. 28. ch. 3. 25. & 5. 6, 8. & 8. 3, 32. 1 Cor. 15. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Gal. 3. 13. Eph. 5. 2. 1 Pet. 2. 19—21. & 2. 24. & 3. 18. 1 John 1. 7. & 2. 2. & 4. 9, 10. Rev. 5. 9. 1 Tim. 3. 16. Rom. 8. 33, 34. Heb. 4. 14—16. & 1. 3. & 8. 1. & 9. 12.

23. Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him; 24. [g] But for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, [h] if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead; 25. [i] Who was delivered for our offences, and [k] was raised again for our justification.

k 1 Cor. 15. 7.

Verses 23—25. Great was the faith of the patriarch, great the honour put upon him thereby. But this record borne to him of his acceptance before God was not written for his sake alone, historically to inform us of that which rendered him so eminent, but for us also, as a pattern, comfort, and encouragement to us, and an assurance that the same divine righteousness shall be imputed to us, for our justification, if we, as true sons of this father of the faithful, believe as he did, on him that raised up Jesus Christ our Lord from the dead, who, as our substitute and surety, was delivered for our offences, to bear our sins in his own body on the tree, and, by his obedience unto death, to bring in an everlasting righteousness: and, having so done, was raised again for our justification; who, in virtue of his finished work, are now by faith in him, entitled to pardon, acceptance, and eternal life. Note, There is but one justifying righteousness before God, even that of Jesus Christ. In that Abraham stood accepted, and all his seed must look for no other.

CHAP. V.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle having made out his point, and fully proved justification by faith, doth in this chapter proceed in the explication, illustration, and application of that truth. (1.) He shows the fruits of justification, ver. 1—11. (2.) He shows the fountain and foundation of justification in the death and righteousness of Jesus Christ, which he discourseth of at large in the rest of the chapter.

a Ch. 4. 25, 4, 5, 11. & 8. 22, 25, 28. Gal. 2. 16. Phil. 3. 9.
b Is. 27. 5. Eph. 2. 13—15. Col. 1. 20. 2 Cor. 5. 19—21. Mic. 5. 5. Is. 54. 8—10. & 32. 17. & 57. 19. John 14. 27. & 16. 33. c Eph. 2. 18. & 3. 12. 1 Pet. 3. 18. John 10. 7, 9. & 14. 6. Heb. 10. 19—22. & 3. 6. & 12. 28. 1 Cor. 15. 17. ch. 8. 23. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. Phil. 1. 29. Jam. 1. 2, 3. d Acts 4. 41. 2 Cor. 12. 9, 10. & 4. 17. & 8. 2. Mat. 5. 12. 1 Pet. 4. 13. & 1. 6.
e 2 Tim. 4. 17. 2 Cor. 1. 5, 10. John 16. 20. 1 Pet. 1. 7, 8, 13. & 5. 10.

1. THEREFORE, [a] being justified by faith, [b] we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. 2. [c] By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God. 3. And not only so, but we [d] glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience; 4. [c] And patience, experience; and experience, hope: 5. [f] And hope maketh not ashamed;* because the love of God is [g] shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us.

f Phil. 1. 20. Ps. 22. 5. & 25. 2, 3.
* Does not deceive, so as to render us ashamed of having indulged in it.
g Tit. 3. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 22. ch. 8. 15, 16.

Verses 1—5. The sinner's justification before God through faith being set forth, the blessed effects of it are here described. Not that faith is the meritorious cause of our justification, as any act of our own, or any work of grace wrought in us, but we are justified by faith, as the means whereby we receive the righteousness of Jesus as our own, and thereby appear complete in him. And being now justified,

1. We have peace with God. The dreadful breach which sin had made is repaired, the enmity between God and us is removed, and being restored to a state of favour and reconciliation with him, we have that peace of God in our souls which passeth all understanding, and which none can know or taste till they have through Jesus Christ our Lord, received the atonement, and seen the arms of everlasting love stretched out to receive their sinful souls.

2. We have, by him, access into this grace wherein we stand; have freedom and liberty to approach a throne of grace, as abiding in a state of constant acceptance before God; and are assured that all our requests shall, through our great high priest, be always heard and answered.

3. We rejoice in the hope of the glory of God, that glory which shall be revealed in us, at the day of the appearing of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ, which being secured to us by the promises of the unchangeable God, and our title clear through the divine righteousness of the Redeemer, we can even now antedate by faith our blessedness, and rejoice in the purchased possession prepared for us in heaven.

4. Even our severest trials now have in them matter of abundant joy. And we can not only rejoice in the prospect before us, but glory in tribulations also, in all our afflictions, persecutions, sufferings, and reproaches for Christ, knowing that, however grievous to flesh and blood these things at present may be, in the issue they shall prove blessings in disguise, whilst tribulation worketh patience, and gives us an opportunity to exercise submission to God's holy will; and, without repining, cheerfully to resign ourselves into his hands, neither angry at the instruments of our troubles, nor resenting their indignities. And patience brings experience of God's power, grace, and faithfulness, supporting us under our trials, and extricating us out of them; and of our own frailty and infidelity, whilst we feel how weak we are in ourselves, yet that we can do all things through Christ strengthening us. And experience begets hope; every support he ministers, every deliverance which he gives, confirms and encourages our hope in God; and hope maketh not ashamed, will never disappoint nor deceive us, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us; and our hope rests not on any goodness, or strength in ourselves, but on the sovereign, free, and boundless love, which, in the most copious streams, is poured forth by the Holy Ghost, into our hearts, in the richest manifestations, and produces these blessed and happy effects.

6. For [h] when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. 7. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet [i] peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die. 8. But [k] God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. 9. [l] Much more h Ezek. 16. 3. Eph. 2. 1. Col. 2. 13. Gal. 4. 3—5. Heb. 7. 18. & 9. 10, 15. ch. 3. 3. & 4. 25. 1 Pet. 1. 18—20. & 2. 24. Luke 19. 10. Mat. 20. 20, 28. & 1. 21. & 9. 13. 1 Tim. 1. 15.

i John 15. 13. 1 John 3. 16.
k John 3. 16. 1 John 4. 9, 10. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Is. 53. 6. ver. 6, 10.
l Ch. 3. 24. & 8. 1, 33, 34. & 11. 25. John 5. 24. Rev. 12. 11. 1 Thes. 1. 10.

then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him. 10. For if, when we were enemies, [m] we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son; much more, being reconciled, we [n] shall be saved by his life. 11. And not only so, [o] but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

m 2 Cor. 5. 19—21. Col. 1. 20—22. Eph. 2. 13—16. ch. 3. 24, 25. & 4. 25. Rev. 1. 5. Eph. 5. 2. 1 Tim. 2. 5.

n Heb. 7. 25. Rev. 1. 18. John 14. 19. & 6. 40, 57. & 10. 28.

o Exod. 15. 1, 2. Ps. 33. 1. & 149. 2. Is. 45. 17, 25. & 61. 10. Luke 1. 46, 47. Hab. 3. 18. Phil. 4. 4.

Verses 6—11. The apostle having mentioned that delightful theme, the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord, cannot but expatiate thereon. It is amazing love, if we consider the persons to whom it is shown, the manner in which it is expressed, and the blessings thence derived. (1.) The persons were ungodly wretches, apostate from God, desperately wicked, sunk in the lowest abyss of misery, sinners in nature, in practice, and exposed to all the terrible wrath of an offended God, without strength to afford ourselves the least relief, or to take a single step in order to escape the just and inevitable destruction which was before us; yea, enemies, determinately set on evil, and rebels open and avowed against God's crown and dignity. (2.) In this state of deadly guilt, and hopeless misery, in due time, according to the divine appointment, Christ died for the ungodly; an instance of such transcendent grace and love, as never had appeared on earth before. Were we to search the world throughout, scarce could we find a man who, for the most righteous, excellent, and amiable person, would lay down his own life to ransom him: though peradventure for a good man, whose public usefulness was eminent, or to whom he owed the deepest obligations, one might be found so generous and grateful, as even to dare to die in his stead. And with what astonishment would such an heroic action be heard, and preserved in the records of fame, for the admiration of all succeeding ages! But lo! with infinitely transcending glory doth God commend the surpassing excellence of his love towards us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us, took our nature, stood in our place, endured the curse which we had deserved, and by the ransom of his own blood redeemed us from our state of guilt, misery, and despair. Hear it, ye angels, with admiration and astonishment! Hear it, ye sinful sons of men, with wonder and love, and henceforth let heaven echo and earth resound with the praises of redeeming love! (3.) Inestimable are the blessings derived to us through this love of God in Jesus Christ.

1. We are now justified through his blood, and reconciled to God by his death. All the enmity between us is done away, his favour restored, and we are accepted in the beloved.

2. Much more then may it be depended upon as a most assured truth, that if we are now justified before God, we shall be saved from wrath through him; shall never enter again into condemnation, but shall hold fast the most assured hope of eternal life. For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being now in a state of reconciliation, and having an everlasting advocate in our ascended Jesus, to whom all power is given in heaven and in earth, shall we be saved by his life: because he lives, we shall live also, and reign with him in glory everlasting.

3. Such a prospect ministers the most enlivened delight to the soul: Not only are we reconciled, and raised superior to all tribulations, but having through Jesus Christ, now received the atonement, and being actually made partakers of the justification, acceptance, and title to glory, which by his obedience to death, he purchased for us, we joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, as our God for ever and ever, our portion, and exceeding great reward, in whose present and eternal favour we have a sure and indefeasible interest. Blessed and happy the people that are in such a case!

12. Wherefore, [p] as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, * for that all have sinned: 13. (For [q] until the law sin was in the world: [r] but sin is not imputed when there is no law. 14. Nevertheless [s] death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression, [t] who is the figure of him that was to come. 15. But not as the offence, [u] so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many. 16. [x] And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation, but the free gift is of many offences unto justification. 17. For if [y] by one man's offence [z] death reigned by one; [a] much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ.) 18. Therefore, as † by the offence of one judgment [b] came upon all men to condemnation, even so ‡ by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life. 19. For [c] as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, [d] so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. 20. Moreover, [e] the law entered, that the offence might abound. But [f] where sin abounded, grace did much more abound: 21. That as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ our Lord.

p Gen. 2. 17. & 3. 6, 19. ch. 6. 23. Ezek. 18. 4. 1 Cor 15. 21.

* Or in whom.

q Gen. 6. 5, 12. & 8. 21. & 13. 13. with Exod. xx.

r Ch. 4. 15. 1 Cor. 15. 56. John 3. 4.

s Gen. 4. 8. & v, vii, xi, xxiii, xxv, xxxv, xlix. ch. 5. 21 & 6. 23.

t 1 Cor. 15. 21, 22, 45.

u John 3. 16. 1 John 4. 9, 10. John 1. 16. Eph. 1. 6, 7. & 2. 4—9. Mat. 20. 28. & 26. 28. ver. 19. 21.

x Gen. 3. 1, 16. ver. 12. with Is. 1. 18. & 43. 25. & 44. 22. Jer. 33. 8. Eph. 1. 7. Rev. 1. 5. Acts 2. 39. Col. 2. 13.

y Or by one offence. Gen. 3. 6.

z Ver. 12, 14, 21.

a John 1. 16. Eph. 1. 6, 7. & 2. 4—7. Is. 61. 10. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Cor. 4. 8. 2 Tim. 2. 12. John 10. 10. Rom. 8. 23. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. & 20. 4. & 22. 5.

† Or by one offence.

b Ver. 12, 19. ch. 3. 19, 20. John 12. 32. Heb. 2. 9.

‡ Or by one righteousness.

c Ver. 12, 14, 15—18. 1 Cor. 15. 21, 22.

d Dan. 9. 24. Is. 53. 4—6, 10—12. & 45. 24. & 54. 17. & 61. 10. Jer. 23. 5, 6. & 33. 15, 16. Mat. 20. 28. & 26. 28. Rev. 1. 5, 6. & 5. 9, 10. & 7. 4, 9, 14. & 19. 8.

e Ch. 3. 19, 20. & 4. 15. & 6. 1, 15. & 7. 5, 8, 11, 13. Gal. 3. 19, 23. John 15. 22.

f Luke 7. 47. 1 Tim. 1. 13—16. Is. 1. 18. & 43. 24, 25. & 44. 22. Jer. 3. 1, 4, 5, 14, 19, 22. & 31. 31—34. & 33. 8. & 50. 20. Mic. 7. 18, 19. Mat. 9. 13. John 10. 10. 1 Cor. 6. 9—11. Eph. 1. 2—9. & 2. 1—9. Tit. 3. 3—7.

Verses 12—21. In these verses the apostle draws a parallel between the two covenant heads, Adam and Christ; between the guilt and misery derived from the one, and the blessedness obtained by the other for his people; where it appears how men came into the wretched state of sin in which at present they appear, and how rich was that love of God, which drew them out of it.

By one man sin entered into the world; one sin opened the floodgates of ungodliness, and deluged the world, overwhelming it with miseries unutterable: and death by sin, in every tremendous form, seized on the human nature; and so death, the wages of sin, death temporal, spiritual, and eternal, passed upon all men, for that, or in whom, (ἐφ' ᾧ) all have sinned. Adam was the common parent and covenant head of mankind, and at that time possessed the whole human nature; so that all his posterity, being in his loins, (Heb. vii. 9, 10.) fell with him: his offence became theirs, is imputed them, and renders them obnoxious to the same punishment with himself. So that it appears hereby that Jews as well as Gentiles are in the same state of condemnation. For until the law, before the revelation of God's will on mount Sinai was made, sin was in the world, with death and all its attendant miseries; but this supposes some law in force, before that which was given by Moses; for sin is not imputed where there is no law, nor would any punishment have been inflicted where there was no offence committed. But though the law of Moses was not in being, nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses, not only over actual transgressors, grown up to the knowledge of good and evil, but even over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression, multitudes of infants suffering in the deluge and desolations of Sodom and Gomorrah; and daily their dying groans and agonies testify that sin is in them, because the wages of it is exacted from them, and evidently prove that they are involved in the guilt of that one man's disobedience, by which sin and death entered into the world, and who is the figure of him that was to come, the type of our second covenant-head and representative Jesus Christ, who in the fulness of time should become incarnate; that as sin and death are communicated to us by the one, so should righteousness and life be obtained for us by the other. But, though the parallel between them is striking, yet in comparing them the latter far excelleth; for not as the offence, so also is the free gift; the benefit accruing from the divine righteousness, doth not barely answer the dire effects of the first man's sin, it doth much more. For if through the offence of one, many be dead, the dreadful sentence being passed upon them, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man Jesus Christ, who hath wrought out that righteousness, by which the most unsearchable riches of divine grace are procured for his people, hath abounded unto many, securing to them not merely such a life as Adam had in innocence, but one far surpassing in glory, and eternal in its endurance, And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift; the dissimilitude is considerable with regard to the efficacious influence of the transaction of the two great covenant-heads: for the judgment, the guilt and sentence in consequence thereof, was by one sin, of one man, to the condemnation of all his posterity whom he represented; but the free gift of God through the Redeemer's obedience to death, reaches not to the pardon of one sin, but of many offences unto justification; all the sins of his elect, actual as well as original, being laid on their substitute, and they, through faith in him, are freely and fully delivered from all condemnation, and accepted as righteous before God. For if by one man's offence, or by one offence, death reigned by one, and set up the pillars of his throne, bringing the whole human race under his mortal power, much more they who receive abundance of grace, even all that fulness which is laid up for them in Jesus Christ, and of the gift of righteousness, that everlastingly glorious, and infinitely meritorious righteousness of their Lord, shall reign in life, by one Christ Jesus, triumphant over sin, its guilt and power, quickened to spiritual life here, and looking for that life of glory hereafter, when they shall reign with Jesus in heaven, and see sin and death and hell for ever put under their feet. Therefore, as by the offence of one, or by one offence, judgment came, (or, sin entered, as it may be supplied) upon all men to condemnation, and they were exposed to death eternal thereby, even so by the righteousness of one, the second man, the Lord from heaven, the free gift came upon all men to justification of life, their Redeemer having provided the complete righteousness which contains their title to life and glory, and which God accepts and graciously makes over to all the heirs of promise; so that in both cases God appears as a righteous judge, placing the acts of the representatives to those, whose persons and characters they bore, and who were, in the eye of the law, one with them. For as by one man's disobedience, many were made sinners, (κατεστάθησαν) and in virtue of the imputation of his sin, regarded in the eye of the law as guilty, and condemned as one, in crime and punishment, with their covenant-head; so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous, his righteousness being imputed to them, and they thereby being, in the eye even of the holy law, regarded as righteous, and declared to be so, as complete in him. Moreover, let it be observed, that long after sin and death were in the world, the law entered, which was given on mount Sinai, not that the Jews might be justified thereby, but that the offence might abound, and sin be more clearly discovered to the conscience, and appear exceeding sinful; but where sin abounded, grace did much more abound, God taking occasion, even from the creature's vileness, to magnify the more transcendently the riches of his own free mercy, in pardoning, justifying, and saving lost souls, and raising them to higher glory than that which they had lost by the first man's disobedience. So that as sin hath reigned unto death, and, usurping the throne, spreads its dire dominion over the fallen sons of men, even so might victorious grace erect her throne on the ruins of these vanquished foes, and reign through that righteousness which is brought in by Jesus Christ our Lord, over all his redeemed people unto eternal life, rescuing them from the power of sin and death, bringing them into a state of favour with God, which is better than life itself, quickening them to spiritual life here, and securing to them eternal life hereafter. Thou God of all grace, set up this blessed kingdom in my heart, and reign for ever there!

CHAP. VI.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle having at large asserted, opened, and proved the great doctrine of justification by faith, lest any should turn this grace of God into licentiousness, he doth with a like zeal, copiousness of expression, and cogency of argument, press the absolute necessity of sanctification, as the inseparable fruit and companion of justification. The water and the blood came streaming together out of the pierced side of the dying Jesus: and what God hath thus joined together, let us not dare to put asunder.

1. WHAT [a] shall we say then? [b] Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? 2. [c] God forbid. [d] How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein? 3. Know ye not, that [e] so many of us as * were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? 4. Therefore we are [f] buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by [g] the glory of the Father, even so [h] we also should walk in newness of life. 5. [i] For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection: 6. Knowing this, that [k] our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin. 7. [l] For he that is dead is † freed from sin. 8. [m] Now, if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him: 9. Knowing that Christ, [n] being raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more do-

a Ch. 3. 5. & 4. 1. & 7. 7. & 9. 14.
b Ch. 3. 7, 8. & 5. 20, 21. & 2. 4, 5. c Ch. 3. 5. Mat. 4. 10. Tit. 2. 11, 12. Jam. 1. 15. ch. 1. 18. & 2. 5. & 6. 23.
d Col. 3. 3. 1 Pet. 2. 24. Gal. 6. 14. Col. 2. 12, 13. Gen. 39. 9. Ps. 119. 104.
e Mat. 28. 19. Acts 19. 5. Gal. 3. 27. Col. 2. 12. 1 Pet. 3. 21.
* Or are.
f Col. 2. 12. & 3. 4. ver. 3, 5, 6, 8, 11.
g John 11. 40. Col. 1. 11. Eph. 3. 10. 2 Cor. 13. 4. 1 Cor. 6. 14. ch. 8. 11.
h 2 Cor. 5. 17. Gal. 6. 15. Eph. 4. 22—24. Col. 3. 9—13. 1 Pet. 4. 1, 2. & 2. 1, 2. ch. 7. 4, 6. & 12. 1, 2. Heb. 12. 1, 2. 2 Pet. 1. 4—9. ver. 19.
i Ch. 8. 11. Phil. 3. 10, 11.
k Ch. 7. 24. Gal. 2. 20. & 5. 24. & 6. 14. Col. 2. 11, 12. & 3. 5, 9. Eph. 4. 22.
l 1 Pet. 4. 1. ch. 8. 33. John 8. 30. Job 3. 19.
† Gr. justified. 4. & 8. 11, 13.
m 2 Tim. 2. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 5. 1. Gal. 2. 20. John 14. 19. ver. 4, 5, 22. ch. 7.
n Acts 2. 24. Heb. 9. 28. & 7. 25. & 10. 12, 14. Rev. 1. 18. Ps. 16. 11. & 21. 4.

minion over him. 10. [o] For in that he died, he died unto sin once: [p] but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. 11. [q] Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. 12. [r] Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof. 13. [s] Neither yield ye your members as ‡ instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God. 14. [t] For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace. 15. [u] What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid. 16. Know ye not, that [x] to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? 17. But God be thanked, that [y] ye were the servants of sin, [z] but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine || which was delivered you. 18. [a] Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness. 19. [b] I speak after the manner of men, because of the infirmity of your flesh: [c] for as ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness, and to iniquity unto iniquity; even so now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness. 20. [d] For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were free * from righteousness. 21. [e] What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? [f] for the end of those things is death. 22. [g] But now, being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, [h] and the end everlasting life. 23. [i] For the wages of sin is death; [k] but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

o Heb. 9. 14, 26, 28. 1 John 4. 10. Tit. 2. 14. Mat. 26. 28. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18. p Luke 20. 38. Heb. 10. 12—14. q Gal. 2. 19, 20. Col. 3. 3, 5. 2 Cor. 5. 15. Phil. 1. 11.
r Ps. 19. 13. & 119. 133. ch. 7. 23, 24. Jam. 4. 1. Col. 2. 11. Eph. 4. 22. & 3. 5, 9. Gal. 5. 24. s Ch. 12. 1, 2. 1 Pet. 4. 2. Col. 3. 5. ch. 8. 13. & 7. 4—6. Heb. 9. 14. Gal. 2. 19, 20. Luke 1. 74, 75. 2 Cor. 7. 1.
‡ Gr. arms, or weapons.
t Mic. 7. 19. Tit. 2. 14. ch. 5. 20, 21. Heb. 8. 10. Gal. 3. 13. & 4. 5. with ch. 7. 4, 5, 8, 11.
u Ver. 1, 2. 1 Cor. 9. 21. Gal. 5. 18. & 2. 18. 2 Cor. 7. 1. Jude 4.
x John 8. 34. 2 Pet. 2. 19. Mat. 6. 24. with ver. 13, 19, 21—23.
y 1 Cor. 6. 9—11. Tit. 3. 3—7. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
z 1 Thes. 1. 5. & 2. 13. 2 Tim. 1. 1, 13. Heb. 6. 1, 2. ch. 2. 20.
|| Or whereto ye were delivered.
a John 8. 32, 36. 1 Cor. 7. 22, 23. Gal. 5. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 16. Luke 1. 74, 75. Tit. 2. 11, 12, 14. Ps. 116. 16.
b Ch. 3. 5. John 3. 12. Gal. 3. 15.
c Ver. 13, 16, 18. 1 Pet. 4. 2, 3. d John 8. 31. Eph. 2. 1, 2. Tit. 3. 3. Mat. 7. 18.
* Gr. to righteousness.
e Ch. 1. 24—32. & 7. 5. Ezek. 16. 63. & 36. 31. Job 40. 4. & 42. 6. Ezra 9. 6. 2 Cor. 7. 11. Luke 15. 18, 19, 21.
f See ver. 23.
g Ver. 2, 7, 11, 12, 14, 18. Ps. 116. 16. & 119. 32. Luke 1. 74, 75. 2 Cor. 7. 1. Heb. 12. 14, 28. ch. 8. 2.
h See ver. 23.
i Ver. 21. Gen. 2. 17. ch. 5. 12. Jam. 1. 15. Ezek. 18. 4. ch. 7. 5. & 8. 13. & 2. 8, 9. Is. 3. 11. Gal. 6. 7, 8. 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Rev. 21. 8. & 22. 15.
k Ver. 22. ch. 2. 7. & 5. 10, 17, 18, 21. 1 John 2. 25. & 5. 11, 12. Tit. 1. 2. John 3. 14—17, 36. & 6. 40, 54, 57. & 17. 2. & 10. 10, 28, 29. Eph. 2. 8. 1 Pet. 1. 3.

Verses 1—23. The riches of the grace which he had displayed in the former chapter, the apostle clearly foresaw would furnish objections against his doctrine, which he therefore states and obviates. What shall we say then? Is this a licentious doctrine; and shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid: the apostle rejects the thought with abhorrence, as the vilest abuse of this most blessed truth. How shall we that are dead to sin live any longer therein? under its power and dominion: how inconsistent would it be with our character; how contrary to the obligations of gratitude and duty lying upon us; and how destructive of our peace and hope! Our very baptism represents our profession, and intimates to us the conversation becoming the name we bear. Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, into the faith of his name, and obedience to his authority, were baptized into his death? that we should resemble him, dying to sin, as he died for it, and corresponding with his great design in suffering, which was to redeem us from all iniquity. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; partaking of the benefits of his death; and, as a corpse laid in the grave, which ceases from the actions of life, so should we show an abiding deadness to sin: that, like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, by his almighty power, even so also we should walk in newness of life: quickened by virtue derived from him, our head of vital influence, as well as representative; and having received a new nature, new principles, and new hearts from him, we are bound to his praise to show forth in all holy conversation and godliness, the real and universal happy change which is passed upon us to the praise of the glory of his grace. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death; engrafted into him, and one with him as the members of his body mystical, sharing in the blessed effects of his death, and experiencing its efficacy in separating our souls from sin, as death separated his body and soul; we shall be also planted in the likeness of his resurrection; quickened by his divine power, and enabled to walk before God in holiness here, till we shall come in perfect holiness to dwell with him for ever in glory. Knowing this, that our old man, that fallen nature derived from Adam, and coeval with our very being, is crucified with him; so that its condemning guilt is abolished, and its tyrannizing power is broken. And though it be a painful, lingering death, and the remainders of indwelling sin will struggle to the last; yet we know Christ died, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin; should no longer be the slaves of corruption as before, and that shortly its very being in us might be at an end. For he that is dead is freed from sin; as a man that is dead can have no farther claims laid against him, so if we are crucified with Christ, we are freed from the legal power and dominion of our former master; shall never perish under guilt, nor return to the bondage of corruption; yea, though we may be overtaken by temptation, we shall not finally or fatally be enslaved by sin. Now if we be thus dead with Christ, through union with his crucified body, and virtue thence derived; we believe that we shall also live with him; quickened to a life of grace here, and shortly to be raised to a life of eternal blessedness and glory, to reign with him in heaven. Knowing that Christ, our covenant-head and representative, being raised from the dead, dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him; he hath for ever satisfied all the demands of justice; for in that he died, he died for sin once, and by one oblation once offered hath obtained eternal redemption for us; but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God, a life heavenly, immortal, which death can never more affect, being exalted to the right hand of the Majesty on high, as our covenant-head of righteousness, and the eternal source of vital influence to all the members of his body mystical; and because he liveth, we must live also, our life being eternal as his own.

From these glorious views which the apostle sets before us of our union and communion with Christ in his death and resurrection, the apostle proceeds to urge upon the faithful two things: (1.) That they should reckon themselves dead indeed unto sin; not only discharged from its condemning guilt, but delivered from its power and dominion, so as henceforward willingly to have no more fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, ceasing from them as a dead man does from the actions of life. (2.) That they should reckon themselves alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord; quickened by his grace as the divine principle, to newness of life, and engaged and inclined to live to his glory as their great end.

This being then the great privilege, dignity, and duty of believers, we are most powerfully urged to walk agreeably thereunto. Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey the lusts thereof. Whilst we carry a mortal body about us, we must expect to feel the warrings of indwelling sin; till death comes, the conflict will not end: we need, therefore, to watch and pray, which are the great appointed means of grace, that the tyrant which is dethroned, may not again usurp dominion over us; and particularly are called upon to deny the cravings of bodily appetite, by which the strongest temptations to sin enter; that, however beset, we may not yield a willing obedience to the former lusts, in which we walked in the days of our ignorance. But, though overtaken, nay, overcome, we may not, must not, cannot lie down contented slaves; but shall rise through the power of divine grace, and cast the hateful yoke away, under which we groan being burdened. Neither yield ye your members, neither those of your bodies, nor the faculties of your souls, as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin, to war in that hateful cause under so foul a captain: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead; and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God, living henceforward for his glory, and employing body, soul, and spirit in his blessed service, and to advance his kingdom and interests in the world, fighting under his banners, and faithful unto death. For sin shall not have dominion over you; though it may surprise and prevail against you for a while, it shall not gain your approbation, lord it over you abidingly or unresisted, nor obtain an allowed sovereignty. But though the conflict be sometimes sharp and afflictive, the victory is sure at the last; for ye are not under the law, as a covenant of works, which can give no hope of pardon of guilt, nor afford any assistance against the power of sin; but under grace, under that gracious covenant established with the second Adam, wherein the pardon of all sins is granted, where unchangeable promises secure our stability, and never-failing springs of divine support and assistance shall make us at last more than conquerors; and what can afford such an encouraging argument to strive against sin, as the assurance that we shall overcome?

But some man might object to this, that if this be the case, and we are no more under the law, we may live as we list. The apostle prevents and refutes the objection: What then? shall we sin because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid: this would be to act in opposition to the whole design of the gospel salvation, and inconsistently with all our professions as children of grace. For know ye not, that, it is a truth obvious and incontestable, to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? No man can serve two masters utterly contradictory in their commands. The servants of sin, who willingly surrender themselves to this tyrant's will, must infallibly reap eternal death as the wages of their work: whilst the servants of God are servants of obedience unto righteousness, his interests being thus served and advanced, and their end is eternal life; according, therefore, to the service in which we are employed, we show what master we serve, and to whom we belong. But God be thanked, that though ye were in times past the servants of sin, ye do not continue so; but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered unto you: both in heart and conduct now cast into the mould of the glorious gospel, (τυπον εις ον παρεδοθητε) and bearing all its amiable lineaments, in the most blessed and happy conformity to him who is the great author of it, Jesus Christ.

Being then made free from sin, by the power of the eternal Spirit, through the gospel, effectually operating to destroy the dominion, tyranny, and love of sin, ye became the servants of righteousness; were discharged from the hateful servitude of iniquity, and entered into the service of a better master, which is perfect freedom, the willing subjects of the holy Jesus, your rightful Lord and Sovereign. I speak after the manner of men, representing this matter under the familiar images of masters and servants, because of the infirmity of your flesh, the understanding being still dark through the remainders of corruption, and most easily receives spiritual ideas, when communicated under the vail of sensible objects. For as, in times past, ye yielded your members, both of body and soul, servants to uncleanness, and to iniquity unto iniquity, willing slaves to every vile affection, going from evil to worse, and fulfilling all the corrupt desires of the flesh and of the mind; even so now yield your members servants of righteousness unto holiness; let every member of your body and faculty of your soul be as freely, delightfully, constantly, and universally employed in the service of the blessed Jesus your Master, and in the practice of righteousness and true holiness, as by nature they were before engaged in the service of sin.

And surely the strongest obligations now lie upon you thus to walk in holiness: for when ye were the servants of sin, wholly devoted to its service, ye were free from righteousness, not from the obligations to it, which are immutable and eternal, but ye cast off all restraint, were utterly averse to the rule of righteousness, and boasted of liberty, when the most wretched slaves of corruption. And a moment's reflection will now convince you of the misery of that state in which you lay; for what fruit had ye then in those things, whereof ye are now ashamed? did not the curse of sin follow you close as your shadow? did not the sting of it at times torment and make you miserable in the midst of your enjoyments? did not the very pursuits in which you were engaged, involve you in trouble, disappointment, vexation? and were you not always unsatisfied, and felt an aching void, which nothing you possessed could fill? and with what shame horror, and remorse, do you now reflect upon your past conduct? for, careless and thoughtless as you then were, you now know, that the end of those things is death eternal, which must have been your miserable lot, if divine grace had not interposed, and plucked you as brands from the burning. But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, since this blessed exchange of masters, ye have your fruit unto holiness, walking in that good conversation and godliness which brings glory to God, and is most comfortable to your own souls, and the blessed end and issue of which will be everlasting life: for the wages of sin, the accursed master whom ye formerly served, is death, including all miseries, both here and hereafter, of soul and body, and that to eternity: but the gift of God is eternal life, which he bestows not out of respect of any service or desert of ours, but as a matter of mere grace, and favour, through Jesus Christ our Lord, in whom this eternal life is secured to us, and for whose righteousness' sake it is bestowed upon us, purchased by the Saviour, but absolutely free to the sinner.

Let us examine ourselves then, whether we are in the faith, and with deepest self-application consider what the apostle hath here advanced. Our everlasting hopes depend on our experience of these things. We most fatally deceive ourselves, if we talk of grace, and promise ourselves heaven, and live, and die the servants of corruption.

CHAP. VII.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

We may observe in this chapter, 1. Our freedom from the law further urged as an argument to press upon us sanctification, ver 1—6. 2. The excellency and usefulness of the law asserted and proved from the apostle's own experience notwithstanding, ver. 7—14. 3. A description of the conflict between grace and corruption in the heart, ver. 14, 15. to the end.

1. KNOW ye not, [a] brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) [b] how

[a] Ch. 9. 3. & 10. 1. & 2. 18.

[b] Ch. 3. 19. with 6. 14.

that the law hath dominion over a man as long as * he liveth? 2. For [c] the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. 3. [d] So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: [e] but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man. 4. Wherefore, my brethren, [f] ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that [g] ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, [h] that we should bring forth fruit unto God. 5. For when we were [i] in the flesh, the † motions of sins, which were by the law, [k] did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death. 6. [l] But now we are delivered from the law, ‡ that being dead wherein we were held; [m] that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

* Or it.
c Gen. 2. 23, 24. Mal. 2. 16. Num. 5. 29. Prov. 6. 29, 32. Mat. 19. 4—9. 1 Cor. 7. 2, 10, 39. Lev. 22. 12, 13.
d Num. 5. 20, 21. Judg. 14. 20. Mat. 5. 32. See ver. 2.
e Ruth 1. 13. 1 Tim. 5. 14. Lev. 22. 12, 13.
f Ch. 6. 14. & 8. 2. Gal. 2. 19, 20. & 5. 18. Col. 2. 14. Gal. 3. 13. & 4. 4, 5. 1 Pet. 2. 24. Tit. 2. 14.
g 2 Cor. 11. 2. Hos. 2. 19, 20.
h Mat. 5. 16. John 15. 8. Phil. 1. 11. with Ps. 127. 3. Luke 1. 42.
i Ch. 8. 8. Eph. 2. 1. Tit. 3. 3.
† Gr. passions.
k Gal. 5. 19—21. & 6. 8. ch. 6. 19, 21, 23. Tit. 3. 3. Mat. 5. 19. James 1. 15.
l Ver. 4. ch. 6. 14. & 8. 2. Gal. 2. 19, 20.
‡ Or being dead to that.
m Ver. 4. ch. 6. 4, 11, 13, 19, 22. John 4. 23, 24. Phil. 3. 3. 2 Cor. 3. 6, 7. ch. 2. 29. Luke 1. 74, 75. Gal. 5. 22, 23.

Verses 1—6. The apostle had asserted, that we are not under the law, and in what sense he here explains. He was addressing himself to them who knew the law, and would admit it as the most obvious truth, that the law can no longer be binding, than the person lives under it. As for instance; The woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband, so long as he liveth: but if her husband be dead, the bond of wedlock is dissolved, and, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but the case is quite different if her husband be dead, for then she is free from the law; so that she is no adulteress though she be married to another man.

Now such was our case:

1. Our first marriage was to the law; we were under it as a covenant of works, and the fruits of that marriage were dreadful. For when we, Jews as well as Gentiles, were in the flesh, in our natural, corrupt, and unregenerate state, the motions of sins, the passions and vile affections of our fallen hearts, which were by the law considered as a covenant of works, which demanded a perfection we could not pay, and denounced a curse we could not endure; our corruptions, I say, were but the more irritated by the strictness of the prohibition, and the severity of the sanction, and did work in our members with such mighty and irresistible energy, as to bring forth fruit unto death, producing all those actual transgressions which spring from the original root of bitterness in our nature; and, unless we were delivered from the guilt and dominion of them, must issue in eternal death: and as long as any soul is under the law as a covenant, this must be his miserable case. But,

2. We are married to another, even to Jesus Christ. Our first husband the law being dead, wherein we were held, we are delivered from its obligations as a covenant, and from the curse denounced on the transgressors. We are no more in these respects under it, than a wife is subject to her departed husband. We are become dead to the law, and the law unto us, by the body of Christ, for he hath satisfied all its demands; and we are thus discharged from all connection with, and obligation to, our former husband, that we might be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, the risen and exalted Saviour, to whom we now pledge our fidelity, and by ties of love, that never can be dissolved, are drawn to a willing subjection to his pleasing yoke, that we should bring forth fruit unto God, the fruits of grace and holiness produced through the quickening influences of his Spirit, which, till this union with Christ commences, never can be brought forth, and tending to advance the divine glory, acceptable also to God, through Jesus Christ: and that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter: though made free from the law as a covenant of life, yet under the law to Christ, receiving from him the new heart, walking before him under the influence of new principles, and enabled to show forth a very different conversation in righteousness and true holiness, from what we ever did or could practise, when under the power of the old man; not regarding the law as a covenant of life, which only provoked, instead of restraining, the corruption of our hearts.

7. What shall we say then? [n] Is the law sin? God forbid. [o] Nay, I had not known sin but by the law: for I had not known ‖ lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet. 8. But sin, [p] taking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. [q] For without the law sin was dead. 9. For [r] I was alive without the law once: but [s] when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died. 10. And the commandment, [t] which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death. 11. [u] For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me. 12. Wherefore [x] the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and just, and good.

n Ver. 5, 8, 11, 13. 1 Cor. 15. 56.
o Exod. 20. 17. Deut. 5. 21. with ch. 3. 19, 20.
‖ Or concupiscence.
p Ch. 4. 15. & 5. 20. 1 Cor. 15. 56. ver. 5, 9, 11.
q Mark 10. 20. Luke 18. 11, 12. John 15. 22. 1 Cor. 15. 56. Gal. 3. 19.
r Mat. 19. 20. Luke 18. 11, 12. Phil. 3. 5, 6. s Ch. 3. 19, 20. & 10. 5. Gal. 3. 10. ver. 5, 7—14. Ps. 38. 4—8. & 40. 12.
t Ch. 10. 5. Lev. 18. 5. Ezek. 20. 11. with 2 Cor. 3. 7. ch. 3. 19, 20.
u Ver. 8, 9, 13. Heb. 3. 13. Jer. 17. 9. Jam. 1. 15. 1 Cor. 15. 56.
x Ps. 19. 7—9. & 119. 39, 96, 137, 138. 1 Tim. 1. 8.

Verses 7—12. An objection might be raised from what the apostle had said, as if he had most dishonourably reflected on the law. What shall we say then? Is the law sin? with indignation he replies, God forbid: the law is good; the evil is all in ourselves.

1. The law is in itself most holy, just, and good; it contains a transcript of God's purity, inculcates the most perfect obedience, demands nothing but what essentially flows from the very relation of Creator and creature, and in its nature is like its Author, excellent.

2. The advantages of the law are great, as it convinces the conscience, and humbles the soul under a sense of sin. I had not known sin, but by the law; so far is the law from leading to sin, or approving it, that it discovers and condemns the most secret workings of evil. For I had not known lust, the sinfulness of the first motions of corrupt desire, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet; the law therefore is not sinful, but, as the bright mirror, discovers that deformity which would otherwise have been overlooked. The evil is all in ourselves, where sin, taking occasion by the commandment, raged even more violently because of the prohibition, and wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. For without the law, whilst in my Pharisaical state I knew not its spirituality and extensive demands, sin was dead, did not terrify my conscience, and to my apprehension was entirely subdued; so that I counted myself, as touching the righteousness which is by the law, blameless. For I was alive without the law once; in those days of my vanity, when Pharisaical pride swelled my bosom, I counted my title to life clear on the footing of my own obedience, being a perfect stranger to the spiritual nature and extent of the law: but when the commandment came, laid open to my conscience by the Spirit in its purity and spirituality, conviction flashed on my mind; sin revived, and brought unnumbered charges against me, which I had overlooked: and I felt its living power in my heart, when I thought it had been utterly destroyed, and in consequence thereof, I died; I saw myself a condemned criminal, most justly obnoxious to the divine displeasure, and in the eye of the law under the fearful sentence of eternal death. And the commandment which, if perfectly obeyed, was ordained to be a covenant of life to man in innocence, I found to be unto death; and through the corruption of my nature rendering me incapable of keeping it, I perceived the only thing it could do for me was, to consign me over to the wrath of God as a transgressor. For sin, that native principle of corruption in my heart, taking occasion by the commandment to rebel against the law, as if it was unreasonably severe, deceived me, with hopes of pleasure and impunity, and by it slew me, like an assassin, that having misled the traveller, plunges his dagger into his heart. Wherefore all these dire consequences are to be ascribed wholly to our desperate corruption, whilst the law is holy, and no blame to be laid against it, and the commandment is holy, just, and good.

13. Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. [y] But sin, that it might appear sin, working death in me by that which is good; that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful. 14. For we know that the law is [z] spiritual: but I am [a] carnal, sold under sin. 15. [b] For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I. 16. If then I do that which I would not, [c] I consent unto the law that it is good. 17. Now then [d] it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me. 18. For I know that [e] in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing: [f] for to will is present with me, but how to perform that which is good I find not. 19. [g] For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do. 20. Now, if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me. 21. I find then a [h] law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me. 22. For [i] I delight in the law of God after [k] the inward man: 23. But I see [l] another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. 24. [m] O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me * from the body of this death! 25. [n] I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then [o] with the mind I myself serve the law of God; but with the flesh the law of sin.

y Ver. 8—11. ch. 3. 20. & 5. 20. John 15. 22.
z Heb. 4. 12. Mat. 5. 22, 28. & 22. 37. Lev. 19. 17. a Ver. 15, 18, 19, 21, 23, 25. 1 Cor. 3. 1, 3. Is. 6. 5. & 64. 6. with 1 Kin. 21. 20. 2 Kin. 17. 17. Is. 50. 1, 10.
b Gal. 5. 17, 24. ver. 18, 19, 21, 23—25. c Ver. 14, 22. Dan. 9. 5.
d Ver. 20, 22—25.
e Gen. 6. 5. & 8. 21. Job 14. 4. Ps. 51. 5. Is. 1. 6. & 64. 6.
f Ver. 16, 22, 25. Phil. 2. 13. & 3. 12. Gal. 5. 17. 2 Cor. 3. 5.
g See ver. 15—17.
h Ver. 23, 25. ch. 8. 2. ver. 17, 20, 24. Gal. 5. 17. Eph. 6. 12. Col. 3. 5, 9. ch. 6. 6. Is. 1. 6. & 64. 6.
i Ps. 1. 2. & cxix. & 19. 7—11. & 40. 8. & 119. 77, 97, 111. ver. 12, 14, 16.
k Ch. 2. 29. 2 Cor. 4. 16. Eph. 3. 16. Luke 17. 21. 1 Pet. 3. 4. 1 John 3. 9. Col. 3. 10. 2 Cor. 5. 17. John 3. 3, 5, 6.
l Job 40. 4. Ps. 38. 4, 5. Is. 6. 5. & 64. 6. ver. 21, 24, 25. Gal. 5. 17. Jam. 4. 5. & 3. 2. 1 Pet. 2. 11. ch. 6. 18, 19. Prov. 24. 16. Eccl. 7. 20. 1 Kin. 8. 38, 46.
m 1 Kin. 8. 38.
* Or this body of death.
n Ps. 103. 2—5. 1 Cor. 15. 57. Phil. 4. 6. Col. 3. 17. Eph. 5. 20. 2 Cor. 12. 9.
o Ver. 15—24. Gal. 5. 17—24.

Verses 13—25. A new objection is started from the title he gives to the law as good. Was then that which is good made death unto me? might one suggest: can that which is so good in its nature be in its effects so deadly? and is the law of God the cause of all human miseries? God forbid. It is not the law but the crime committed against it, which causes the death of the malefactor. Thus sin, the concupiscence of my corrupted nature, that it might appear sin, and be discovered to my conscience in its true malignity, working death in me by that which is good, and taking occasion to rebel from the very purity and perfection of the holy law of God, brought the sentence of death upon me; that sin by the commandment, so clearly forbidden, yet rising in wilful opposition thereto, might appear exceeding sinful; and that this corruption of my nature, the source of all my actual transgressions, might be seen in the blackest colour that words can express, or thought conceive, (καθ' ὑπερβολην αμαρτωλος.)

Such was the apostle's state before conversion; and afterwards he still proved the severest conflicts with in-dwelling sin, and saw how unable he was to stand before the demands of a holy law. For we know, I Paul, and all who are enlightened to a knowledge of the truth, that the law is spiritual, reaching to the thoughts and intents of the heart, and requiring perfection of nature, as well as outward obedience; but I am carnal, feel myself a poor fallen creature, sold under sin; by the first man's transgression delivered into the tyrant's hands, and born the slave of corruption, the dire effects of which I daily feel, and groan under them. For that which I do, I allow not; when in thought, word, or deed, my wretched heart yields to the tempter's wiles, my judgment disapproves the evil I commit; and far from a deliberate choice, my soul rises against it, and I loathe both the sin and myself. For what I would, and in my better part approve and desire, that I do not; I desire always with the most intense application, that my soul should be fixed on God, and engaged in his blessed work and service; yet how short do I come of that spirituality of temper and conduct which I wish to exercise? But what I hate, that I do; insensibly, through infirmity, surprise, or temptation, betrayed into things that habitually I abhor. If then I do that which I would not, and am overcome by the power of in-dwelling sin, whilst I feel a settled aversion to this hateful service, I consent unto the law, (συμφημι) give my full approbation to it, that it is good, most excellent in itself, most becoming God to enjoin, and me to obey: and even if its fearful penalty were levied upon me, I must own the sentence righteous, just, and good. Now then it is no more I, as a new man, that do it, but sin; the old native corruption, that dwelleth in me; like the Canaanites, and is as burdensome to me, as they were to God's Israel. For I know, by sad experience, that in me (that is, in my flesh,) in my carnal self, there dwelleth no good thing, but evil, and only evil, and that continually: for to will is present with me, and under the influence of the divine nature, of which I am made a partaker, my judgment approves the things that are excellent, and my choice determines me to walk and please God; but how to perform that which is good I find not; the storms of temptation, and the current of corruption carry me out of the course I mean to steer; so that I cannot keep in the straight way of holiness, nor proceed with that steadiness and speed I hoped and purposed. For the good that I would, even to be found complete in all the will of God, I do not, cannot attain unto; but the evil which I would not, but condemn, disapprove, and disallow, that I do, feeling myself weak as an infant, and unable to make resistance. Now if I do that I would not, as I said before, it is no more I that do it; sin is in my eyes an abominable thing, and my renewed part feels an aversion to it, and a hearty approbation of the holy law of God: but all the evil proceeds from sin, that corrupted principle, which still dwell-

eth in me. I then find a law, my fallen nature acting in me with such mighty influence, that when I would do good, evil is present with me; some discouragement is suggested to deter me, some snare to allure me, or some evil desire rises up, quenches the gracious purposes I had formed, and turns me aside from the path of righteousness. For I can say with the greatest truth, I delight in the law of God after the inward man; my inmost soul, renewed by grace, doth not only approve the law in all its spirituality as good, but feels a complacency therein, and knows no happiness equal to that perfect conformity thereto, which it desires, and to which it hopes one day to arrive. But, what is the bitterest burden I groan under, I see another law in my members, the mighty workings of remaining corruption, warring against the law of my mind; my better part, which divine grace has renewed; and though habitually the power of the new nature predominates, yet the war is often sharp, and sometimes corruption prevails, bringing me into captivity to the law of sin, which is in my members; whilst for a time overpowered, reluctantly I am drawn aside, not a willing slave, but an unhappy captive. O wretched man that I am! thus tied and bound with the chain of my sins, who shall deliver me from the body of this death? from this fallen nature, which, like a body consisting of various members, works so powerfully, and must, for any thing I can do to help myself, bring me under the sentence of eternal death. But though I feel my helplessness, and lie down under self-despair, I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. By his grace I am already delivered from condemnation; by his Spirit I shall be saved from the power of evil; and his unchangeable promises assure me of a complete victory shortly, when all the remainders of sin shall be finally and utterly destroyed. So then the sum of the matter is shortly this: with my mind, in my settled judgment and choice, I myself (αυτος εγω) my real self, with my renewed heart in the inner man, I serve the law of God, with full consent, and willing subjection; but with my flesh the law of sin, feeling its workings in me, though disallowed and condemned, and sometimes, though reluctantly, brought under its hateful power.

Many have asserted, that Paul in his whole description personates an unregenerate man, and seem to think it highly derogatory to his high character to suppose, that so great a Christian, the chief of the apostles, should feel such a war of corruption as is here described: but if any man considers the expressions of his hating and not allowing the evil he did; his consenting to the law as good; delighting in it after the inward man, (with which compare 2 Cor. iv. 16. Eph. iii. 16.) serving it with his mind, &c. and contrasts herewith the state of unregeneracy described in the former chapter, ver. 12, 13, 16, 19. he will see that the apostle spoke indeed of himself, and not another person. And will not the experience of the dearest children of God correspond herewith, whose minds are truly enlightened to know the spirituality of the law, and the corruption of their nature? Those who are ignorant of the one, and feel not the other, may fancy themselves indeed to have attained, and be already perfect: but to that the apostle pretended not, Phil. iii. 12. and those who like him experimentally know their fallen state, and impotence to obey the perfect law of God, will still adopt his complaint, and feel the necessity of living constantly on the riches of that grace which is revealed in the gospel.

CHAP. VIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle having fully explained the doctrine of justification and pressed the necessity of sanctification, in this chapter applies himself to the consolation of the Lord's people. Ministers are helpers of the joy of the saints. Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people; so runs our commission, Isa. xl. 1. It is the will of God, that his people should be a comforted people. And we have here such a draught of the gospel charter, such a display of the unspeakable privileges of true believers, as may furnish us with abundant matter for joy and peace in believing, that by all these immutable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we might have strong consolation. And many of the people of God have accordingly found this chapter a well-spring of comfort to their souls, living and dying; and have sucked and been satisfied from these breasts of consolation, and with joy drawn water out of these wells of salvation. There are three things in this chapter, 1. The particular instances of a Christian's privileges, ver. 1—29. 2. The ground thereof laid in predestination, ver. 29, 30. 3. The apostle's triumph herein, in the name of all the saints, ver. 31. to the end.

1. THERE [a] is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who [b] walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. 2. [c] For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the [d] law of sin and death. 3. For what the law could not do, [e] in that it was weak through the flesh, [f] God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and * for sin, condemned sin in the flesh: 4. That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. 5. [g] For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; [h] but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. 6. For † to be carnally minded is death; but ‡ [k] to be spiritually minded is life and peace. 7. [l] Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. 8. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.

[a] Ch. 5. 1, 21. & 6. 22, 23. & 7. 4, 15—25. John 5. 24. Heb. 6. 18. Gal. 2. 19, 20. & 3. 13, 14. & 4. 4, 5. 2 Cor. 5. 21, 1 Chr. 1. 30. Eph. 3. 17. John 15. 4. Phil. 3. 9.

[b] Gal. 5. 16—26. ch. 7. 6, 15—25. Luke 1. 74, 75. 2 Cor. 1. 12. Phil. 3. 3, 7—14. Tit. 2. 11—14.

[c] Ch. 3. 27. Is. 2. 3. & 5. 14. John 6. 63. & 8. 32, 36. 2 Cor. 3. 6. Gal. 2. 19, 20. & 5. 1. ch. 6. 18, 22.

[d] Ch. 6. 14. & 7. 4, 6—8, 13. & 3. 19, 20. 2 Cor. 3. 7. ch. 4. 15.

[e] Ch. 3. 19, 20, 23. & 8. 7, 8. Gal. 2. 16. Heb. 10. 4. & 7. 18, 19. & 9. 9.

[f] John 1. 14. & 3. 14—17. Heb. 10. 8. Gal. 4. 4, 5. & 3. 13. 1 John 2. 2, 4, 9, 10. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18. Dan. 9. 24. Ch. 3. 24—26. & 5. 6—11, 19, 21. Acts 13. 39.

* Or by a sacrifice for sin.

[g] John 3. 6. 1 Cor. 2 14. Phil. 3. 19.

[h] Ver. 9, 14. 1 Cor. 2. 15. Gal. 5. 22—25. Eph. 5. 9. Col. 3. 1, 2.

† Gr. the minding of the flesh. 1 Ch. 6. 21, 23. & 7. 10, 11. Gal. 6. 8. ver. 13. Jam. 1. 15.

‡ Gr. the minding of the spirit.

[k] Ver. 13. Gal. 5. 16, 22—25. Ps. 19. 11. Is. 3. 10. ch. 14. 17. 2 Cor. 4. 12. Phil. 3. 3. 1 Gen. 6. 5. & 8. 21. Job 14. 4. Ps. 51. 5. & 53. 1—5. Is. 1. 4, 6. Jer. 17. 9. Jam. 4. 4. 1 Cor. 2. 14. 1 John 2. 16. Eph. 2. 1—3. Tit. 3. 3. ch. 1. 28—31. John 15. 5.

Verses 1—8. This chapter opens with a most reviving view of the safety of every believer in their great covenant-head Christ Jesus, notwithstanding all the accusations of guilt, and the struggles of remaining corruption. There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus; being united to him by faith as their surety, the sentence of the law is reversed; though they deserve wrath as much as others; though Satan lays many grievous charges against them; and God himself is pleased to visit sometimes their iniquities with a rod, and their sin with scourges, yet the bitterness of death is past. Since they have fled for refuge to the blood and righteousness of a Redeemer, they are safe for eternity. And they are to be known by their daily conversation, as those who walk not after the flesh, under the habitual dominion of their fallen nature and corrupt affections; but after the Spirit, directed by God's word as their rule, and under the teachings, guidance, and influence of the Holy Ghost, who hath implanted a new and divine nature in them. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus, either that gospel which, where truly embraced, operates most powerfully in constraining the conscience by love unto obedience, through the quickening influence of the Divine Spirit, in its utmost perfection, both in heart and practice, Jesus, as our substitute, obeyed: and having thereby brought in an everlasting righteousness, hath made me free from the law of sin and death, delivering me from the condemning sentence of that law which discovered sin to my conscience, and denounced wrath as the wages due to it; and from the enslaving power of corruption, through the grace purchased by the Redeemer's obedience unto death. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, because of the corruption of our nature it was impossible that, as a covenant of works, any fallen creature could obtain life and salvation by the law, and it neither provided nor admitted any atonement or expiation for guilt; God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin condemned sin in the flesh; rescuing us in his infinite grace from the ruin which a broken law, never to be repaired, threatened; and this in a way so transcendently glorious, even by the incarnation of his co-equal Son, who took the human nature, with all its sinless infirmities, and stood in the sinner's stead; and laying upon him the iniquities of us all, God testified, in the sufferings of his own Son, for the sin we had committed, the abhorrence he had of sin, and exacted the punishment due to it from the incarnate Saviour; that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who in virtue of our union with Jesus as our covenant-head and representative, are now personally, legally, and perfectly justified, even by that law which before condemned us; because being complete in him, we are now possessed of a righteousness adequate to all the demands of the law, yea, in the highest magnifying the law and making it honourable. And all who are thus vitally united to Christ as their head, walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit; for they are not only brought into a new state, but are made partakers of a new and divine nature, which now influences and actuates them in all their conversation. For they that are after the flesh, under the dominion of their native corruptions, do mind the things of the flesh; relish, delight in, and pursue the things that are pleasing only to the carnal mind and sensual appetite; but they that are after the Spirit, partakers of his effectual grace through union with Jesus the living head of vital influence to his people; they (φρονουσι) understand, are attached to, delight in, and follow the things of the Spirit; both the doctrines he reveals, the blessings he bestows, and the services which he enjoins, and for which he enables them. For to be carnally minded, to live under the reigning dominion of the fallen spirit, governed by lawless passions and sensual appetites is death; is a present state of spiritual death, and must end in death eternal: but to be spiritually minded, renewed by the Holy Ghost, under the habitual influence of his grace, and supremely and abidingly attached to, and engaged in, the pursuit of spiritual objects; this is life and peace; it is the proof of the divine life begun in the soul; peace of conscience is the present happy fruit which it produces, and it will issue in eternal peace and blessedness. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God, and stands in direct opposition to his perfections and authority, abhorring the government of his providence, and hating the restraints and sanctions of his law: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. There is an absolute impossiblity of such a nature being brought into conformity to the holy will of God; and till a new heart and right spirit be given from above, the enmity must for ever remain inveterate and unsubdued. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God; whilst they continue in this state, every thing they do is defiled, and the very duties they perform, however right in themselves are abominable in his sight. So desperate is our condition by nature, till the almighty grace of God works the blessed change, enabling us to walk and please God.

m John 3. 6 Eph. 1. 17, 18. Ezek. 36. 27. 2 Tim. 1. 14. 1 John 2. 20, 29. 1 Cor. 3. 16. & 6. 19. Gal. 4. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 11. Phil. 1. 19.

9. [m] But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his.

n John 17. 23. Eph. 3. 17.

o Ch. 5. 12. & 6. 23.

10. And if Christ be [n] in you, [o] the body is dead because of sin; [p] but the Spirit is life because of righteousness. 11. [q] But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that [r] raised up Christ from the dead shall also [r] quicken your mortal bodies || by his Spirit that [s] dwelleth in you. 12. Therefore, brethren, [t] we are debtors, not to the flesh to live after the flesh. 13. For [u] if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: [x] but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. 14. [y] For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. 15. [z] For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. 16. [a] The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God:

p Ch. 5. 21. 1 Cor. 15. 45. & 1. 30. Gal. 4. 19. Rev. 22. 14. Is. 3. 10.

q Acts 2. 24. 1 Pet. 1. 21. Heb. 13. 20.

r Eph. 2. 5. Col. 2. 13. 1 Cor. 15. 16. 2 Cor. 4. 14.

|| Or because of his Spirit.

s Ver. 9. Ezek. 36 27. John 7. 38, 39. 1 Cor. 3. 16. 2 Tim. 1. 14. John 14. 17. 1 John 2. 27.

t Ch. 6. 2, 7, 11, 14, 18. 1 Cor. 6. 19, 20.

u Col. 3. 5, 6. Eph. 5. 3—5. ch. 6. 21. Gal. 6. 8. & 5. 19—21.

x Col. 3. 1—6. Eph. 4. 22. & 5. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 11.

y Gal. 5. 16, 18, 25. & 4. 6. ver. 9. Luke 20. 36. John 1. 12.

z Heb. 2. 15. 1 John 4. 18. 2 Tim. 1. 7. 1 Cor. 2. 12. Gal. 3. 26. & 4. 5, 6. Mark 14. 36. Is. 56. 5.

a 2 Cor. 1. 12. 22. & 5. 5. Eph. 1. 13. & 4. 30. 1 Cor. 2. 12. 1 John 4. 13.

Verses 9—16. With comfort the apostle addresses the believers at Rome, confident of their interest in the blessed Spirit of all grace. But ye are not in the flesh, under the dominion and influence of the carnal mind; but in the Spirit, being regenerate and born again; if so be, or seeing that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you, as in his peculiar temple, taking up his abode in your hearts, manifesting there his presence and love, and showing his powerful and perpetual agency. But now, if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, who is the very God from whom, as from the Father, that one Spirit proceeds, and be not renewed by his grace, and under his guidance and influence, he is none of his; whatever his professions may be, he doth not belong to Christ as a member of his body mystical, he is not a child of his family, nor a subject of his kingdom, and must be eternally disowned by him and separated from him, if he dies in this unregenerate state. And, on the other hand, if Christ be in you by his Spirit dwelling in your hearts, the body indeed is dead because of sin, and must lie down in the dust; but the spirit, the immortal part, is life, because of righteousness, raised from spiritual death in virtue of the Redeemer's righteousness here, and entitled to eternal life hereafter, and by the divine principle implanted in you, made meet for the inheritance among the saints in light; but if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, being one in essence and co-operation with the Father and the Son, (compare 1 Cor. vi. 14. John v. 28, 29.) and concurring in the work of raising the body of Jesus, dwell in you as his temple, he that raised up Christ from the dead, as the pledge of our resurrection, and the first-fruits of them that slept, shall quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit which dwelleth in you; your bodies shall by the same indwelling almighty power which raised him, be ransomed from the grave, and become immortal and glorious, fashioned like to your exalted Head. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh to live after the flesh; we have neither obligation nor inducement to follow the cravings of corrupt nature; but, on the contrary, are under every bond of love and duty to live for God, in the daily and habitual mortification of every vile affection; for if ye live after the flesh, the slaves of corruption, ye shall die eternally; but if ye through the Spirit, do mortify the deeds of the body, denying your corrupt affections and sensual appetites, and through the power of the Spirit growing conformed to your crucified Lord, ye shall live with him in glory everlasting. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, under his conduct, enlightened, directed, and supported by him, they are the sons of God, made his children by adoption and grace, and bearing in their renewed minds his image and likeness. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear, are not under that slavery to your lusts and passions, which was attended with a fearful looking for of judgment; nor under that legal dispensation which brought the conscience into distress and darkness, exacting an obedience that could not be paid; nor under those horrors which, on the first discoveries of your danger in a state of unregeneracy, seized on your souls; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption; being admitted by God's sovereign grace into that high relation of children, he hath sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, producing every childlike disposition of filial love, confidence, and delight in him, whereby we are emboldened to approach him with faith and joy, and to cry, Abba, Father, before him. The Spirit itself, in such approaches to God, when in simplicity we offer our hearts unto him, beareth witness with our spirits, shining upon his own work in our souls, and satisfying our consciences that we are the children of God, and may take the comfort of that blessed and honourable relation.

b Gal. 4. 7. Phil. 3. 10, 14. Luke 22. 29. Rev. 3. 21. & 21. 7. 1 Cor. 2. 9. & 3. 22.
c Acts 14. 22. 1 Pet. 4. 13. 2 Tim. 2. 11, 12. Luke 24. 26.
d 2 Cor. 4. 17. Mat. 5. 12. 1 Pet. 1. 6, 13. & 4. 13. Col. 3. 4. Phil. 3. 10, 21. 1 John 3. 2. 2 Thes. 1. 10. Rev. 3. 21.
e Is. 65. 17. Acts 3. 21. 2 Pet. 3. 13. Rev. 21. 1, 5.
f Gen. 3. 17. Is. xxiv.
g 2 Pet. 3. 10, 13. Is. 65. 17. Acts 3. 21. Rev. 21. 1, 4, 5, & 22. 3.
h John 16. 21. Is. 24. 5, 6. Jer. 12. 4, 11. & 14. 4—6. Hos. 4. 2. Joel i. ii. Job 31 38. Hab. 2. 11.
* Or every creature.
i Ver. 15, 16. Eph. 1. 13, 14. 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. Gal. 5. 22, 23. Eph. 5. 9. Phil. 3. 3.
k 2 Cor. 5. 2, 4. 2 Tim. 4. 8. Heb. 9. 28. 2 Pet. 3. 12. Phil. 3. 20, 21. Eph. 4. 30. Luke 21. 28. 1 John 3. 2. Tit. 2. 13. 1 Pet. 1. 7, 13.
l Gal. 5. 5. 2 Cor. 5. 7. Heb. 11. 1. & 6. 11, 18, 19. 1 Pet. 3. 11. 1 Thes. 5. 8. 2 Thes. 2. 16. ch. 5. 2. & 15. 13. Tit. 1. 2. Col 1. 27. Tit 2. 13. Jam. 5. 7. 2 Cor. 4. 18.

17. [b] And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; [c] if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. 18. For I reckon that [d] the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. 19. For the [e] earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. 20. [f] For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope; 21. Because the creature itself also [g] shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. 22. For we know that [h] * the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. 23. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have [i] the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves [k] groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body. 24. [l] For we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? 25. But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it.

Verses 17—25. The inheritance of glory is the necessary consequence of our adoption of God. To this transcendently excellent privilege the apostle therefore passeth; and concludes, that if children by adoption and grace, then are we heirs, and entitled to the eternal inheritance; heirs of God, made so by his Spirit, and receiving from him all the blessedness which he hath to bestow, and hath promised in his Son; and joint heirs with Christ, who is the first-born of many brethren, and hath secured for them, as for himself, the title to eternal life: if so be that we suffer with him, as we must expect to do in his service, this being the inseparable attendant of it, that all who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution; but the issue will be highly to our advantage; that we may be also glorified together at the great day of his appearing, when he shall bestow the promised crown, and before men and angels acknowledge us as his brethren. And such a prospect makes all our trials light and easy. For I reckon (λογιζομαι) on summoning up the account of our loss and gain, that the sufferings of this present time, however acute or continued, are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us: but, when placed against the glories of eternity, they appear trivial and momentary, and sink unnoticed as the drop into the boundless ocean. For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God; which some understand of the Gentile world, and the elect of God among them who through the power of Satan had been made subject to vanity and idolatry; but now, being themselves rescued from the bondage of corruption, they earnestly expected, as a woman in travail, the happy time, when, by the more abundant outpouring of the Spirit, a more general conversion should be wrought in the earth, and far greater multitudes of lost souls be rescued from the dominion of the wicked one, and brought into the glorious liberty of the sons of God. Others suppose that the creature, even the whole creation in general, (πασα κτισις) animate or inanimate, is here by a noble prosopopœia introduced as waiting with eager impatience for that blessed alteration which the gospel will make, when the creatures of God shall be recovered from their present disordered state, and employed by the sons of God, according to their original design, to exalt their Maker's glory. For the creature was made subject to vanity; the very ground being cursed for man's sin, and all the creatures perverted, through the corruption that is in the human nature, from their original design and use; not willingly, by any choice or tendency of their own, or any sin in them; but by reason of him who hath subjected the same, and by that sin to which Adam was instigated through the malice of the devil, were involved in the miseries of his fall. Not that they should always remain under the dreadful abuses which they suffer; but they rest in hope that the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, under which they lie at present, into the glorious liberty of the sons of God, restored by them to answer the great end for which they were created, and expecting the general restitution of all things, when the new heavens and new earth shall arise, wherein dwelleth righteousness. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now, under the grievous burden of abuses which the creatures suffer, and longing for deliverance. And not only they, but ourselves also which have the first-fruits of the Spirit, in his present sealing, sanctifying, and comforting operations, the earnests of the eternal felicity provided for us in a better world; even we ourselves, notwithstanding the riches of the grace of which we have been made partakers, yet, groan within ourselves, under the remainder of indwelling sin, and the afflictions which still lie heavy upon us till death; waiting for the adoption, when Christ will publicly own the relation he bears to us before men and angels at the great day: to wit, the redemption of our body, when, triumphant over the grave, we shall reach the summit of heavenly felicity: our souls perfected in holiness, our bodies fashioned like to Christ's glorious body, and the whole man shall together be blessed with the fruition of God himself as his everlasting portion. For we are saved by hope; though we are not yet in possession of the purchased glory, we hold our title in sure and certain hope; but hope that is seen is not hope; when the object is possessed hope ceases: for what a man seeth why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, expecting shortly perfect deliverance from all our corruptions and afflictions; then do we with patience wait for it, persuaded that the Lord, in his own good time, will fulfil his promises, and bring us at last through all our trial, to the inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, which fadeth not away, reserved for us in the heavens. And blessed and happy are all they who thus wait for him.

26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for [m] we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but [n] the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. 27. And [o] he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, † because [p] he maketh intercession for the saints [q] according to the will of God. 28. And we know that [r] all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the [s] called according to his purpose.

m Mat. 20. 22. Jam. 4. 3.
n Zech. 12. 10. 1 Cor. 12. 8. 2 Cor. 3. 5. Mal. 10. 20. Gal. 4. 6. Eph. 6. 18. ch. 7. 21. Ps. 6. 3.
o 1 Chr. 28. 9. Ps. 7. 9. Jer. 11. 20. & 17. 10. Rev. 2. 23. Mat. 6. 6. Ps. 5. 1. & 38. 9.
† Or that.
p Ver. 26. Zech. 12. 10. Jude 20. Eph. 5. 18.
q 1 John 5. 14. Mat. 7. 7, 8. & 21. 22. Jer. 29. 12. Luke 11. 9. Is. 45. 11. John 14. 13. & 15. 7. & 16. 24. Jam. 1. 5. Mat. 7. 7.
r Gen. 50. 20. Prov. 12. 21. ch. 5. 3, 4. 1 Pet. 1. 7. Jer. 24. 5. Ps. 119. 67, 71. Heb. 12. 6—11. Deut. 8. 2, 3, 6. 2 Cor. 4. 17. Rev. 3. 19. s Ver. 30. ch. 2. 28. & 3. 29. & 4. 11, 16. & 9. 6, 23, 24. & 11. 2, 5. Eph. 1. 4—11. 2 Tim. 1. 9. & 2. 19.

Verses 26—28. We have not only a glorious hope before us, but have likewise the most reviving supports by the way; for the Spirit of our God, quickening, comforting, strengthening us, helpeth our infirmities, that we may not sink under our burdens, or be discouraged by our trials, or err through our remaining darkness (συναντιλαμβάνει) having implanted the graces of hope and patience, he still supports us in the exercise of them, and particularly in our approaches to God in prayer; for we know not what to pray for as we ought; ignorant, and knowing not what is best for us; weak, and unable to express our wants aright; our affections so cold, our attention so distracted, and sometimes our lips sealed up, that we cannot speak before God: but the Spirit itself, by his gracious suggestion maketh intercession for us, pouring out a spirit of prayer and supplication upon our hearts, giving us such a sense of our wants, and exciting desires after God so intense and affecting as words cannot express, which can only be breathed forth with groanings which cannot be uttered. And he that searcheth the hearts, the all-seeing God, knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit; though our tongue may not form an articulate sound in prayer, God regards and will answer these gracious workings of his Spirit in our hearts, because he maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God, inclining us always to ask according to the mind and will of God, and engaging us humbly to resign ourselves, for an answer to our prayers, in time, manner, and measure, to his good pleasure. And we know, by the assured promises of his word, by the experience of all his saints, and by our own, when thus unreservedly casting our care upon him, that all things work together for good to them that love God; and however dark, and for the time grievous to flesh and blood, the dispensations of Providence may appear, we are now assured, and we shall hereafter prove, that the circumstances which seemed most afflictive we could not have done without, and that they especially conduced to promote our spiritual and eternal welfare; and this is one of the inestimable privileges peculiar to them who are called according to his eternal purpose, and by the gospel, through the power of the Spirit, effectually turned to God.

29. [t] For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be [u] conformed to the image of his [x] Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. 30. Moreover, [y] whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, [z] them he also [z] justified: and whom he justified, them he also [a] glorified.

t Exod. 33. 12. Jer. 1. 5. & 31. 3. 2 Tim. 2. 9, 19. ch. 11. 2. Eph. 1. 5, 11. 1 Pet. 1. 2.
u John 17. 16, 17, 22, 23, 25, 26. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Phil. 3. 21. 1 John 3. 2. Rev. 3. 21. 1 Thes. 2. 13. 1 Pet. 1. 2. John 20. 17. Heb. 2. 11—13.
x Ps. 89. 27. Heb. 1. 6. Col. 1. 15, 18. Rev. 1. 5.
y Is. 43. 1. & 51. 2. ver. 28. Acts 13. 48. ch. 1. 6. & 9. 24. 1 Cor. 1. 9. & 1. 24. & 6. 11. 2 Tim 1. 9.
z Acts 13. 38, 39. ch. 3. 22, 24, 26. & 5. 1. Rev. 1. 5. a Ch. 5. 9, 10. & 9. 23, 24. Tit. 3. 7. Heb. 9. 15. 1 Pet. 2. 9. & 3. 9. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. ver. 17.

Verses 29, 30. The apostle, having mentioned several of the inestimable privileges which belong to the faithful in Christ Jesus, here traces them up to their origin in God's predestination, and to their issue in our eternal glory. For whom he did foreknow, as the objects of his eternal love, chosen of his sovereign will and pleasure to be to the praise of the glory of his grace, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, in holiness of heart and life, in sufferings here, and in eternal glory hereafter; that he might be the first-born among many brethren, their Prince and Pattern, having in all things the pre-eminence, the first-begotten from the dead, and the forerunner in our name and nature, entered for us into possession of the heavenly inheritance. Moreover, whom he did predestinate to holiness and sufferings as the way, and heaven as the end, them he also called by his grace, through the gospel word, to know, embrace, and profess the faith of Jesus; and whom he called, them he also justified, discharging them from all guilt and condemnation, and accepted them as righteous through their covenant head and substitute; and whom he justified, them he also glorified, advancing them to his own right hand, and making them to sit down with him on his eternal throne. And this, being sure to be accomplished in all God's redeemed people, is spoken of as already done, because not one can perish of the many sons whom the Lord Christ is appointed to bring unto glory. Note, (1.) God doth not choose us for any good in us, or done by us, or which he foresaw we should do afterwards; but merely of his sovereign will and pleasure. (2.) God's predestination is so far from leading us to live as we list, as some suppose, that it is the most powerful argument to walk in holiness as Christ also walked, whereunto we are appointed. (3.) It were the height of folly to flatter ourselves we shall live with God hereafter, if we are not like him now. (4.) The Redeemer's undertaking was not uncertain; he knew that none whom he purchased should ever perish. (5.) God by his word, his providences, his Spirit, calls all those whom he hath chosen, and so effectually, that they cannot but hear and obey him. (6.) They who, obedient to the gospel call, have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before them, are justified from all things, and shall never again enter into condemnation, so as finally to perish. (7.) All the redeemed must be glorified. Our salvation stands not upon our frail and sinful selves, but upon the well ordered covenant, and the perfection of our Divine Substitute: we are complete in him, and are already set down in heavenly places with and in Christ Jesus.

31. What shall we then say to these things? [b] If God be for us, who can be against us? 32. [c] He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, [d] how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? 33. [e] Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth: 34. [f] Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. 35. [f] Job 34. 20. Num. 23. 8. with ch. 4. 25. & 5. 6—11, 19, 21. Mat. 20. 28. Tit. 2. 14. Gal. 3. 13. 1 Pet. 1. 18—21. Heb. 1. 3. & 4. 14. & 6. 25. & 9. 24. 1 John 2. 1, 2. Jer. 50. 20. 6—11. Rev. 3. 19. 2 Cor. 11. 23—27.
[g] Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or b Num. 14. 9. 2 Kin. 6. 16. Ps. 56. 12. & 118. 6. c Gen. 22. 12. Is. 53. 4—6, 10. Dan. 9. 24. Zech. 13. 7. John 3. 16. 1 John 4. 9, 10. ch. 3. 25, 26. & 4. 25. & 5. 6—10. 2 Cor. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18.

d Ps. 34. 10. & 84. 11. Mat. 6. 33. 1 Tim. 4. 8. 1 Pet. 1. 2, 3. 2 Pet. 1. 3, 4.
e Is. 50. 8, 9. Rev. 12. 10. with ch. 3. 24, 26, 30. Is. 43. 25. & 44. 22.
g John 10. 28. & 13. 1. Jer. 31. 3. Heb. 12.

peril, or sword? 36. (As it is written, [h] For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter.) 37. Nay, in all these things [i] we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. 38. For [k] I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, 39. [l] Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, [m] shall be able to separate us from the love of God, [n] which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

h Ps. 44. 22. 1 Cor. 4. 9. 2 Cor. 4. 11. ver. 35.
i 1 Cor. 15. 57. 2 Cor. 2. 14. & 4. 8, 16. & 12. 9, 10. 1 John 4. 4. & 5. 4, 5. Rev. 12. 11. Phil. 4. 13. 2 Tim. 2. 1. Eph. 6. 10.
k 2 Cor. 4. 13. Acts 27. 25. ch. 4. 17—20. 2 Chr. 20. 20. 2 Tim. 1. 12 Is. 7. 9.
l Rev. 14. 13. 1 Thes. 4. 16. Eph. 1. 21. & 6. 12. Col. 2. 15. 1 Pet. 5. 8. Rev. 1. 17, 18.
m John 10. 28, 29. Col. 3. 3.
n 2 Cor. 5. 19. Eph. 1. 6. & 2. 4—9. Col. 1. 20.

Verses 31—39. Having enumerated the distinguishing blessings of the faithful, the apostle triumphantly exults in the assurance of God's unchangeable regard.

1. In the view of what God hath done he defies all accusers. What shall we then say to these things? shall we start back from sufferings, when the issue is so glorious? what can we wish or desire more transcendently glorious than these great and precious promises? If God be for us, with infinite wisdom to guide, almighty power to protect, and boundless love to comfort us, who can be against us? what have we to fear from men or devils? they cannot frustrate his purposes of grace, nor disappoint his designs. He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, of his own good pleasure freely gave him to become incarnate, laid upon him our iniquities, and exacted from him all that punishment which his people had deserved; how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? what can he now withhold, when, compared with the gift of his Son, every thing beside must appear but little? since he hath given him, we may surely conclude he will much more add all the rest, and freely enrich us with all spiritual and eternal blessings in Christ Jesus. Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? be their transgressions ever so many, great, and aggravated; it is God that justifieth them: and, since he hath accepted them in their Surety, they can appear with boldness at his tribunal, and plead that perfect atonement and righteousness which even justice itself must approve; who is he that condemneth? let the law accuse, let conscience plead guilty; yet, since he who hath redeemed us from the curse of the law is our Advocate, there is no condemnation; for it is Christ that died, he hath paid the ransom; yea rather that is risen again; God hath testified his full approbation therein of his undertaking, and that his justice is completely satisfied; so that we may safely trust upon his finished salvation; who is even at the right hand of God, exalted to the highest dignity and glory, as a Prince and Saviour, to give repentance and remission of sins; who also maketh intercession for us; our friend in every time of need, and, in the all-prevailing merit of his atonement, pleading effectually our cause, and securing our eternal felicity. Note, The views of a dying, risen, ascended, glorified Redeemer, should silence all our fears and doubts, and engage us comfortably and confidently to trust him under all our trials for time and for eternity.

2. He professes his confidence that, with such a Saviour at the right hand of God, no sufferings shall ever separate our souls from Christ and his love. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? what shall be able to quench the fervour of his affection towards us, or extinguish the sacred flame which he hath kindled in our bosoms? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword, shall all the various ills that flesh is heir to, from sickness, pain, poverty, a malignant world, a corrupted nature, a tempting devil, shall these separate us from the Redeemer's arms? No. That we must suffer he hath foretold us, as it is written, For thy sake we are killed all the day long, we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter, butchered without remorse by our cruel persecutors, and for the sake of Jesus are in jeopardy every hour. But do these things move us? Nay: so far from it, that in all these things we are more than conquerors, rising superior to every foe, through him that loved us, whose inward supports and consolations overbalance all our sufferings, and whose power and grace, continually exerted on our behalf, carry us triumphantly through our conflicts. For I am persuaded that neither death, with all its terrors; nor life, with all its allurements, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers; neither the fiends of darkness, nor the persecuting rulers of the earth; nor things present, the afflictions and temptations now felt; nor things to come; the greater evils which we fear; nor height of prosperity, nor depth of adversity, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. Till the Son be separated from the Father's bosom, we never can be separated from his love; for we are one with him in union indissoluble. When any gracious soul is tempted to doubt his final perseverance, and ready to sink under present trials, let him read this blessed chapter, and in the unchangeable love of God in Christ sweetly repose. He is faithful; therefore we shall never perish.

CHAP. IX.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle, 1. Expresses his deep concern for his countrymen who rejected the gospel, ver. 1—5. 2. He proves that the promises made to the fathers are nevertheless made good, ver. 6—13. 3. He answers the objections raised against God's sovereignty and predestination, both with regard to his dealings with Jews and Gentiles, ver. 14—29. 4. If the Gentiles obtained righteousness and salvation, and the Jews neither, it was because they sought it in a wrong way, ver. 30—33.

I. [a] I SAY the truth in Christ, I lie not, [b] my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost, 2. [c] That I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart. 3. [d] For I could wish that myself were * accursed from Christ for [e] my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh: 4. [f] Who are Israelites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and [g] the glory, and [h] the † covenants, and [i] the giving of the law, and the service of God and [k] the promises; 5. [l] Whose are the fathers, and [m] of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, [n] who is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen.

a Ch. 1. 9. 2 Cor. 1. 23. & 11. 31. & 12. 19. Gal. 1. 20. Eph. 4. 17. Phil. 1. 8. 1 Thes. 2. 5. 1 Tim. 2. 7. & 5. 21.
b Ch. 2. 15. & 8. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 12. Acts 23. 1. & 24. 16. c Ch. 10. 1. Phil. 3. 18. Jer. 4. 19—22. & 9. 1. Lam. i.—v. 1 Sam. 15. 35. Luke 19. 32—44. & 23. 28—30.
d Exod. 32. 32. 1 Cor. 16. 22. Gal. 1. 8.
* Or separated.
e Ch. 11. 1. Acts 22. 3. & 26. 3. 4. 2 Cor. 11. 22. Phil 3. 5, 6.
f Exod. 4. 22. Deut. 7. 6. & 10. 15. & 4. 1. Jer. 31. 9, 19. g 1 Sam. 4. 21. Ps. 78. 61. 1 Kin. 8. 10. Ezek. 7. 20. Ps. 63. 4. & 76. 1, 2. Num. 7. 89. h Gen. 15. 8. & 17. 2, 7, 10. Exod. 34. 27. & 24. 7, 8. † Or testaments. i Ch. 3. 2. Ps. 147. 19. Exod. xii. to Deut. xxvii. Heb. viii—x. k Jer. 31. 22, 31—34. Lev. 26. 1—13, 40—46. Deut. 28. 1—14. & xxx. Exod. 23. 2, 23—33. Acts 3. 25. & 13. 32, &c. with Eph. 2. 12. l Acts 3. 25. ch. 11. 28. m Is. 7. 14. & 9. 6. & 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5, 6. Mic. 5. 2. Mat. 1. Luke iii. ch. 1, 3, 4. 2 Tim. 2. 8. n John 1. 1. & 3. 31. & 10. 30. Col. 1. 16. & 2. 9, 10. 1 Tim. 3. 16. Phil. 2. 6—11. Heb. 1. 8.

Verses 1—5. The Jewish bigots looked upon Paul as a signal apostate, and persecuted him with peculiar virulence and enmity. He wished therefore to soften their exasperated spirits, whilst he makes profession of his own tender concern for their welfare and salvation. And there is a peculiar propriety in his introduction, when we consider the offensive truths he was about to advance.

1. He makes a solemn protestation of the very fervent regard he bore towards them. I say the truth in Christ, solemnly appealing to him who is the searcher of hearts, and knoweth that I lie not, my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost, to the simplicity and sincerity of what I am going to say, that far from entertaining the least prejudice or ill will against my countrymen, I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart, feeling the acutest pangs of grief, when I think of their fearful condition, and what must be the inevitable consequences of their unbelief. For I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ, (ανα9ημα) content to be cut off from all my privileges as an apostle, and to be separated from the society of the faithful with shame and disgrace, yea to undergo the most ignominious and tormenting death, for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh.

2. He mentions the distinguished privileges with which they had been favoured of God, which could not but make their rejection peculiarly grievous to him. Who are Israelites, bearing the name of their eminent progenitor Jacob; to whom pertaineth the adoption, taken into that covenant of peculiarity in which God regarded the whole nation as his children, Exod. iv. 22. and the glory, the ark, the shechinah, the mercy-seat, the tokens and emblems of the Divine presence in the midst of them; and the covenants, the covenant of circumcision made with Abraham, and renewed with Isaac and Jacob, and that of Sinai with the whole body of Israel; and the giving of the law, containing God's ordinances, moral, judicial, and ceremonial; and the service of God, in what manner his worship should be performed: and the promises of temporal prosperity, which would be the reward of their obedience, and of the Messiah and his great salvation; whose are the fathers, the descendants of the famed patriarchs; and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, the promised seed of Abraham in his human nature; but who, in his divine, is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen. Note, (1.) The divinity of our incarnate Saviour is a chief article of our creed. Thereon depends the perfection of his work on our behalf. (2.) As God, the Lord Jesus is the great object of worship, and our prayers and praises must be addressed immediately to him.

o Is. 55. 11. Acts 13. 32, 33. ch. 3. 3. 2 Tim. 2. 13. Num. 23. 19. Heb. 6. 17, 18. with Gen. 17. 7. & 22. 18.

p Ch. 2. 28, 29. & 11. 25. Gal. 6. 16. John 8. 39.

q Gen. 21. 12. Gal. 4. 23. Heb. 11. 18.

r Ver. 6, 7. ch. 4. 11, 16. John 8. 37, 39. Gal. 4. 28. & 3. 26—29. & 6. 15, 16. Jam. 1. 18. John 1. 13.

s Gen. 18. 10, 14. Heb. 11. 11, 12.

t Gen. 25. 21. Acts 7. 8.

u Ch. 4. 17. & 8. 28—30. Eph. 1. 4. & 2. 9. 2 Tim. 1. 9. Tit. 3. 5. ch. 11. 5—7, 29. 1 c. 46. 10. ver. 16, 18.

x Gen. 25. 23. with 2 Sam. 8. 14.

‡ Or greater.

‖ Or lesser.

y Mal. 1. 2, 3.

z Gen. 29. 30. Deut. 21. 15. Prov. 13. 24. Mat. 10. 37. Luke 14. 26. John 12. 25.

6. ° Not as though the word of God hath taken none effect. For ᵖ they are not all Israel, which are of Israel: 7. Neither, because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children: but, ᵠ In Isaac shall thy seed be called: 8. That is, ʳ They who are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God: but the children of the promise are counted for the seed. 9. For this is the word of promise, ˢ At this time will I come, and Sara shall have a son. 10. And not only this; but ᵗ when Rebecca also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac; 11. (For ᵘ the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth;) 12. It was said unto her, The ˣ ‡ elder shall serve the ‖ younger. 13. As it is written, ʸ Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I ᶻ hated.

Verses 6—13. Grief for his unhappy countrymen filled the apostle's heart: but, though the generality of them perished, the promise made to Abraham would not be frustrated. He would not therefore have them suppose as though the word of God had taken none effect, and failed of its accomplishment, because they believed not. It is not possible (as the words may be rendered) that the word of God should fail. For they are not all Israel, true Israelites, and savingly interested in the spiritual blessings of the covenant, which are of Israel, the offspring of Jacob; neither because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children of God, and sure of acceptance with him and of salvation, as they flattered themselves. External privileges never entitled any soul to life and glory. And they might very early observe that,

1. In the difference made between the two sons of Abraham, not in Ishmael, but in Isaac, (says God, Gen. xxi. 12.) shall thy seed be called, from him the Messiah was to spring, in his line only was the favoured posterity of Abraham to be reckoned, and like him were the spiritual seed to be, the children of the free woman, Gal. iv. 22. and partakers of eternal blessedness. That is, They which are the children of the flesh, the natural descendants of Abraham, they are not all the children of God, but as was evident from the first in the case of Ishmael and Isaac, the children of the promise are counted for the seed, even those who, as Isaac, are born not of the will of the flesh, nor of man, but of God, and through faith embrace the great promise of salvation through Jesus Christ. For this is the word of promise, At this time will I come, and Sara shall have a son. When Sarah had been long since past childbearing, this son, the type and figure of the spiritual seed, was raised up through the supernatural agency of God, according to his promise.

2. The same distinction is also observable between the sons of Isaac, though sprung from the same mother, and this too before they were born, and could have done any personal acts to cause the difference which God was pleased to put between them. And not only was this the case with the sons of Abraham, but when Rebecca, also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac, though twins in the same womb, God preferred one to the other. (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, there could be nothing in them to influence God's choice, both being alike born in sin: yet were they sovereignly distinguished from each other, that the purpose of God according to election might stand firm and immutable, not of works, either done or foreseen, but of him that calleth effectually, according to the good pleasure of his will.) When therefore the children were yet in the womb, it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger, Jacob inheriting the birthright and blessing, whilst Esau was rejected; and in after ages the posterity of the elder became tributary to Israel, 2 Sam. viii. 14. As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated. Which some refer to the election and rejection of their posterity, others of their persons, God sovereignly choosing Jacob to be an heir of grace, and leaving Esau under the corruption and wrath of a fallen nature. Note, Though none are damned but for their sins, yet all who are saved owe it to God's free and sovereign grace alone.

14. ª What shall we say then? ᵇ Is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid. 15. For he saith to Moses, ᶜ I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion. 16. ᵈ So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy. 17. For ᵉ the scripture saith unto Pharaoh, ᶠ Even for this same purpose have I raised thee up, that I might shew my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth. 18. ᵍ Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy, and

a Ch. 3. 5. & 4. 1. & 6. 1.

b Gen. 18. 25. Deut. 32. 4. Job 8. 3. & 34. 10. 2 Chr. 19. 7. Ps. 92. 15. & 11. 6, 7.

c Exod. 33. 19. ver. 11, 16, 18.

d Ver. 11, 15, 18, 20, 21. Ps. 115. 3. Is. 65. 1. Mat. 11. 25, 26. 1 Cor. 4. 7. & 1. 26—31. Ps. 11d. 3. Phil. 2. 13. 2 Thes. 2. 13, 14. Tit. 3. 5.

e Gal. 3. 8, 22.

f Exod. 9. 16 & 10. 1. & 14. 4, 17. Prov. 16. 4. Ps. 58. 10, 11. & 9 16. & 83. 17, 18.

g Luke 10. 21. & 12. 32. ch. 5. 20 21. & 11. 5—7. see ver. 5, 11, 16, 20—24. Tit. 3. 5.

whom he will he [h] hardeneth. 19. Thou wilt say then unto me, [i] Why doth he yet find fault? for who hath resisted his will? 20. Nay but, O man, [k] who art thou that * repliest against God? shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus? 21. Hath not the [l] potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honour, and another unto dishonour? 22. [m] What if God, willing to shew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-suffering the vessels of wrath [n] fitted to destruction: 23. [o] And that he might make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory, 24. [p] Even us, whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles?

h Exod. 4. 21. & 8. 15, 32. 1 Chr. 21. 1. 1 Kin. 22. 21 22. ch. 1. 24, 26, 28. Ps. 81. 12. 2 Thes. 2. 11.

i Gen. 50. 20. 2 Chr. 20. 6. Job 9. 19. & 41. 10. Is. 46. 10. Jer. 49. 19. & 50. 44.

k Job 9. 12. 14, 15. & 23. 13. & 33. 13. & 34. 31, & 40. 2, 4, 5. Is. 29. 16. & 45. 9. Dan. 4. 35. Mat. 20. 15. ver. 21.

* Or answerest again, or disputest with God?

l Jer. 18. 6. Is. 64. 8. Prov. 16. 4. 2 Tim. 2. 20. ver. 11, 15, 16, 18.

m Prov. 16. 4. ch. 2. 4, 5. & 11. 7, 8. 1 Pet. 2. 8. Jude 4. 1 Thes. 5. 9.

n Or made up. Gen. 15. 16. Mat. 23. 32, 33. ch. 2. 5. Jam. 5. 3.

o Ch. 5. 20, 21. & 8. 28. & 2. 4, Eph. 2. 7, 8. & 1. 3—7, 18. Col. 1. 27. 2 Tim. 1. 9. & 2. 21. 2 Cor. 5. 5. 1 Pet. 1. 3, 4. 2 Pet. 1. p Heb. 2. 1. ch. 8. 28, 30. 1 Pet. 2. 6. 1 Cor. 1. 9. 2 Tim. 1. 9. ch. 3. 22, 29, 30. & 4. 11, 12, 16. & 10. 12, 13. & 11. 11—32. Gal. 3. 28. Eph. 2. 12—20. Col. 1. 6, 23. & 3. 11.

Verses 14—24. The apostle proceeds to vindicate the ways of God to men, and to answer the objections which every fallen spirit naturally raises against the sovereignty of God. What shall we say then? If he thus of his mere pleasure chooses one, and leaves another, Is there not unrighteousness with God? Is not this procedure unjust and partial? God forbid. His grace is his own. The favour shown to some is no injustice to others from whom he is pleased to withhold it.

1. He sovereignly extends mercy to some. For he saith to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion. And such an exercise of his power and grace, in rescuing some of the apostate race of mankind who deserve nothing from him, can be no injustice to the rest. His prerogative it is to do what he will with his own; and whatever he doth must be right. So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy; the sinner's salvation comes not from any works, or will, or ability of his own, recommending him to the divine favour in preference to another, but is an act of sovereign mercy, according to God's eternal purpose.

2. He sovereignly passes by others, and leaves them to the miseries of their fallen nature; as in the case of Pharaoh. For the scripture saith unto Pharaoh, Even for this same purpose have I raised thee up to the throne of Egypt, that I might show my power in thee, making this impious king's stubbornness and rebellion, the means of more gloriously displaying his own might, and showing, that those who walk in pride he is able to abase; and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth, in the manifestation of my patience and righteous vengeance towards my enemies, and of my love and faithfulness to my chosen.

3. Therefore, it is evident, he hath mercy on whom he will have mercy, according to the good pleasure of his own will; and whom he will he hardeneth, leaving them, like Pharaoh, to the stupidity and pride of their fallen hearts; and, when they have resisted all his warnings and corrections, he delivers them up to judicial blindness and impenitence. And herein he is righteous: as he owes no man any thing, those who are left to themselves have no right to complain, since they are alone the authors of their own miseries; whilst those who are rescued from the ruin of their fallen nature, ascribe their recovery to his sovereign and boundless grace.

4. The apostle foresees an objection which would immediately be started against the sovereignty of God in bestowing his peculiar and distinguishing grace on some, and withholding it from others. Why doth he yet find fault? and threaten to punish the disobedience he will not prevent? for who hath resisted his will? if he gives them up to follow their own hearts, and they cannot but do evil, how can that be construed resistance against him, which he abandons them to commit? Note, When we hear the same objections now raised against us, as were of old against the apostle, it is a strong presumption that our doctrine is the same; and we will answer as he doth.

5. Nay but, O man, who art thou that repliest against God? what arrogance for a despicable worm to dispute with his Creator? for a fallen sinner to question a holy God on his procedure? and for folly itself to arraign infinite wisdom at its bar? shall the thing say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus? in the dispensations of thy providence and grace leaving me to perish, whilst others equally guilty are saved? Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honour and another unto dishonour? and hath not God the same authority, out of the same mass of the human nature, to form vessels of wrath and mercy; exalting some to undeserved blessedness, and leaving others to most deserved contempt. What if God, willing to show his wrath, and to make his power known in punishing the wicked, endured with much long-suffering the vessels of wrath fitted to destruction; Is this unrighteous? No. The objects of his vengeance most justly suffer. They are corrupted creatures, children of wrath by nature, have rejected his warnings, abused his patience, and filled up the measure of their iniquities; and if God had taken this course that he might more eminently make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy which he had afore prepared unto glory, can any man object to the riches of his grace, manifested to those who in his eternal purposes were appointed, and in the fulness of time prepared, for the inheritance among the saints in light? Surely he hath full right to exercise such sovereign grace to others as he hath done even to us whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles. If they are the objects of his love, and the people of his choice, it matters not of what nation they are, he regards them as Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. Note, (1.) How hard is it to submit to God's sovereignty, and to be satisfied to lie passive as the clay in the hands of the potter? (2.) None go to hell but those whose sins have fitted them for destruction: none go to heaven but those whom God hath afore prepared unto glory. For which place then are we on the wheel?

25. As he saith also in Osee, [q] I will call them my people which were not my people; and her beloved which was not beloved. 26. [r] And it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there shall they be called the children of the living God. 27. Esaias also crieth concerning Israel, [s] Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved: 28. [t] For he will finish † the work, and cut it short in righteousness: because a short work will the LORD make upon the earth. 29. And as Esaias said before, [u] Except the Lord of Sabaoth had left us a seed, we had been as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorrha.

q Hos. 2. 23. 1 Pet. 2. 10. with Gen. 49. 10. Deut. 32. 43. Ps. 22. 27—31. & xlv, xlvii, lxvii, lxviii, lxxii, xcvi—c, cxviii, Is. 9. 7. & 24. 16. & xl—lxvi. Jer. iii, xxx, xxxi, &c.

r Hos. 1. 1. with Is. 11. 10. & 43. 6. & 49. 12. & liv. & 56. 8. & 27. 12, 13. & lx—lxii, &c.

s Is. 19. 22, 23. Ezek. 6. 8. ch. 11. 5. Jer. 5. 10. & 46. 28.

t Is. 28. 22. Jer. 1. 16. & 14. 22. Is. 30. 13, 14.

† Or the account.

u Is. 1. 9. with 6. 13. Ezek. 22. 30. Gen. 19. 24. Is. 13. 19. Jer. 49. 18. & 50. 40. Lam. 3. 22. & 4. 6. Ezek. 16. 46—52. Amos 4. 11. Zeph. 2. 9. 2 Pet. 2. 6. Jude 7.

Verses 25—29. As it was a truth so hard to be digested, and so contrary to the apprehensions of the Jews concerning the promises made unto their fathers, the apostle from the Old Testament proves, that the calling of the Gentiles to all the privileges of children of Abraham had been long since foretold.

1. In Hosea it was said, I will call them my people which were not my people; and her beloved which was not beloved; bringing the Gentiles, who before were aliens, and disregarded of God, into a covenant relation as his chosen; and treating them as the objects of his peculiar love. And, again in another place, It shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people; there shall they be called the children of the living God, admitted to all the privileges of adoption and grace.

2. In Isaiah the rejection of the far greater number of the Jews is declared, into whose room the Gentiles were to succeed. Thus Esaias also crieth concerning Israel, Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant only according to the election of grace, shall be saved: for the prophet in another place adds, He will finish the work, and close his accounts, and cut it short in righteousness, consuming with just vengeance the apostates: because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth; those who are left as monuments of grace will be comparatively but few, whilst the generality of the Jewish nation will quickly be consumed from the face of the earth. And, again, as Esaias had said before to the same purpose, he adds, Except the Lord of Sabaoth, at whose disposal are all the hosts of heaven and earth, had left us a seed, we had been as Sodoma, and made like unto Gomorrha, utterly cut off as these devoted cities. Note, Considering the sinfulness of man, the wonder is not that so few, but that any should be saved. When justice might well have destroyed all, it is a matter of astonishing grace that mercy hath been extended to so many.

30. What shall we say then? That the Gentiles, which [x] followed not after righteousness, [y] have attained to righteousness, even the righteousness which is of faith. 31. But Israel, which [z] followed after the law of righteousness, hath not attained to the law of righteousness. 32. Wherefore? [a] Because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law: for they [b] stumbled at that stumbling-stone; 33. As it is written, [c] Behold, I lay in Sion a stumbling-stone and rock of offence; and [d] whosoever believeth on him shall not be ‡ ashamed.

x Ch. 1. 18—32. 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Eph. 2. 12. Tit. 3. 3. Eph. 4. 17—19. 1 Pet. 4. 3. Is. 65. 1.
y Ch. 3. 22, 30. & 4. 11. & 10. 20. & 11. 11, 12. & 15. 8—19.
z Ver. 32. ch. 10. 2, 3. & 11. 7. Gal. 3. 21. & 5. 2, 4. Mat. 9. 13.
a Mat. 19. 16. John 6. 28. ch. 10. 3.
b Luke 2. 34. Mat. 13. 57. 1 Cor. 1. 23. John 15. 22, 24.
c Is. 8. 14. & 28. 16. 1 Pet. 2. 6. Ps. 118. 22. d Ch. 11. 11. Ps. 2. 12. Is. 45. 22. & 55. 1, 4, 7. Joel 2. 32. Mark 16. 15, 16. John 6. 37, 40. & 3. 16, 36.

‡ Or confounded.

Verses 30—33. Having proved the rejection of the Jews and the calling of the Gentiles, he suggests the reason. What shall we say then, farther in vindication of God's free grace in saving some and leaving the rest to perish? It is evident, that the Gentiles which followed not after righteousness, neither knew their malady nor sought their remedy, have notwithstanding attained unto righteousness, even the righteousness which is of faith, being accepted of God, as righteous through faith in Jesus Christ: but Israel which followed after the law of righteousness, and sought justification before God by their own obedience, hath not attained unto righteousness, not being capable of performing that perfect righteousness which the law demands, and therefore being left under the curse as transgressors. Wherefore have they not attained? Because they sought it not by faith in the righteousness of another; but as it were by the works of the law, placing their dependence upon their own doings and duties, either in part or in the whole, for their acceptance with God: for they stumbled at that stumblingstone, the crucified Galilean, whose lowly appearance offended them, and they could not think of embracing him as their Messiah. As it is written, in Isaiah, Behold, I lay in Zion a stumblingstone, and rock of offence, that Messiah who should be the tried stone and sure foundation to those who believed, and would to those who rejected him be as the rock which dashes those to pieces who fall thereon: and whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed; though the generality perish in their impenitence and unbelief, yet those few who dare trust him for pardon, life, and salvation, shall never be disappointed of their hopes, but find him a Saviour to the uttermost. Note, Nothing is so fatal to the soul as dependence upon our own righteousness, either in whole or in part, for acceptance with God; whilst those who, self-despairing, fly to the righteousness of faith revealed in the gospel, are sure to be justified from all things, and saved with an everlasting salvation.

CHAP. X.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle again, (1.) Repeats his hearty wish for the salvation of his brethren. (2.) Shows the difference between the righteousness of faith and the righteousness of the law, by which they ought to be justified, ver. 5—11. (3.) Declares that Jews and Gentiles are on a level, with respect to justification before God, ver. 12—18. (4.) He proves this from their own scriptures, ver. 19—21.

1. BRETHREN, [a] my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved. 2. For I bear them record that they [b] have a zeal of God, [c] but not according to knowledge: 3. For they, being ignorant of [d] God's righteousness, and [e] going about to establish their own righteousness, [f] have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God. 4. For Christ is [g] the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

a Ch. 9. 1—3. Ps. 51. 18. & 10. 2, 13. & 122. 6—9. & 137. 5, 6.
b John 16. 2. Acts 21. 20. & 22. 3. Gal. 1. 14. & 4. 18. Phil. 3. 6. ch. 9. 31.
c Is. 27. 11. Hos. 4. 6. with John 17. 3. & 6. 44. & 1. 11.
d Ps. 11. 7. Deut. 32. 4. or ch. 1. 17. & 3. 22, 26. & 5. 19, 2 Cor. 5. 21. Phil. 3. 9. 2 Pet. 1. 1.
e Ch. 9. 31, 32. Luke 18. 11. Mat. 19. 16. John 6 28.
f Ch. 9. 32. Heb. 10. 29.
g Ch. 3. 25, 26, 31. & 8. 3, 4. Gal. 3. 13. & 4. 4, 5. Mat. 3. 15. & 5. 17, 18. Dan. 9. 24. Phil. 3. 9. Gal. 3. 24. Acts 13. 38, 39. Gal. 2. 16. Deut. 27. 26.

Verses 1—4. The apostle here,

1. Expresses his fervent desire for the salvation of his countrymen. Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved. Notwithstanding what he was, in the discharge of his office, compelled to say concerning the general rejection of the Jews, he was yet affectionately desirous of their salvation, and ceaseless in supplications at a throne of grace that they might yet be convinced and converted, and thereby plucked as brands from the burning. Note, (1.) Those we preach to, we must fervently pray for, that God may give them repentance to the acknowledgment of the truth. (2.) They who know the value of immortal souls, will feel their eternal interests warm upon their hearts.

2. He speaks most respectfully of them. For I bear them record that they have a zeal for God, a fixed aversion to idolatry, a strong attachment to his law and divinely instituted ordinances, and in their persecutions of Christianity really think they do God service: but they are misguided, and do not act according to knowledge: they understand not the nature and design of the law, and have imbibed the strongest prejudices against the true Messiah and the way of salvation, which he hath brought to light by the gospel. For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, ignorant of the perfection of obedience which he requires, as the only title to life by the law: ignorant of the strictness of his justice, which can overlook no flaw, and will accept nothing but what is absolutely complete; and ignorant of that righteousness which he hath provided in the incarnate Redeemer whom they rejected, and going about to establish their own righteousness, resting their acceptance before God on the footing of their own moral and ceremonial services, have not submitted to the righteousness of God, even that divine righteousness which he hath provided and accepted in his dear Son, and which, embraced by faith, is, and can be, the only ground of the sinner's justification before God. For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. He alone perfectly fulfilled the moral law, and in his life and death fully satisfied the demands of divine justice. He hath abolished the ceremonial law, being himself the substance of which that was the shadow; and the righteousness complete and perfect which he hath wrought out is the only one, which being embraced by faith, can justify the sinner before God: to which all, both Jew and Gentile, must flee or perish. Note, Nothing is more fatally dangerous to the soul, than ignorance of the spirituality of God's law, and of our own inability to answer its demands. The more zealously we strive to commend ourselves to God, on the footing of our own duties, the more fearfully do we seal up our souls under wrath.

5. For Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, [h] That the man which doeth those things shall live by them. 6. But the [i] righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise, [k] Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to [l] bring Christ down from above:) 7. Or, Who shall descend into the deep? (that is, to [m] bring up Christ again from the dead.) 8. But what saith it? [n] The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach; 9. That [o] if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and [p] shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. 10. For with the heart man believeth [q] unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made [r] unto salvation. 11. For the scripture saith, [s] Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed.

h Lev. 18. 5. Ezek. 20. 14. Neh. 9. 29. Gal. 3. 10, 12. Jam. 2. 10.
i Ch. 3. 22, 27, 31. & 4. 13. & 9. 30, 31. Phil. 3. 9. Heb. 11. 7. with Gal. 3. 8, 22. ch. 4. 3. Gen. 15. 6. k Deut. 30. 11—13.
l John 1. 8. Eph. 4. 8—10. Ps. 110. 1. Heb. 1. 3. & 8. 1. m 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4. Mark 15. 46. & 16. 9.
n Dent. 30. 14. ch. 1. 16, 17. Acts 2. 39. & 3. 26. & 13. 26, 46. & 28. 28. & 10. 36. Is. 57. 19.
o Mat. 10. 32. Luke 12. 8. 1 John 4. 15. ver. 13.
p John 6. 69. Acts 8. 37. 1 John 5. 1. 1 Pet. 1. 21. Mark 16. 16.
q Ch. 1. 17. & 3. 22. Gal. 2. 16.
r Mat. 10. 32. 1 John 4. 15. ver. 13.
s Is. 28. 16. & 49. 23. Jer. 17. 7. ch. 9. 33.

Verses 5—11. There are two methods of righteousness.

1. By the law; and that righteousness is thus described by Moses. The man that doeth those things, all that is written in the book of the law, perfectly, universally, abidingly, without failure, flaw, or infirmity, shall live by them, and be entitled to life eternal. But no fallen creature ever did, or ever can do this; therefore justification and salvation are not this way attainable.

2. By the Redeemer's substitution and obedience in our stead. The law, in our present condition, only preaches despair; but the righteousness which is of faith, which God hath provided and accepted, and faith embraces, speaketh on this wise, to the conscience burdened with sin and guilt, Say not in thine heart, as if despairing of justification before God, Who shall ascend into heaven, that is, to bring Christ down from above to make atonement for sin; it is needless, seeing by one oblation, once offered, he hath perfected for ever his redeemed: or who shall descend into the deep? that is, to bring up Christ again from the dead. This is already done, and God, by the resurrection of Jesus, hath testified the full satisfaction which hath been made to his law and justice; so that the bar to our acceptance before God is now removed. Instead therefore of the impossibilities, which guilty fear and unbelief would suggest, the gospel opens a door of hope to the miserable and the desperate. But what saith it? Why, all that we can wish and desire, to silence our terrors and revive our drooping hearts. The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart; brought near in the gospel revelation, acknowledged, and made effectual by the Spirit to the heart: that is, the word of faith which we preach, holding up Christ as the glorious object, whom faith embraces for righteousness and salvation: the tenor of our declarations, as authorized of God to speak, is this, that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, as the true Messiah, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. No works of the law, nor other title whatever, is needful to eternal life but this; and all who, renouncing themselves, repose their whole confidence upon Jesus, as delivered for their offences, and raised for their justification, are built on that foundation which never can be moved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; faith is not a mere notion entertained in the head, but the cordial submission of the heart to the Redeemer's righteousness, as a matter in which it is deeply interested: and with the mouth confession is made of our faith before God and men unto salvation, there being an inseparable connection between true faith and eternal blessedness; for the Scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed; whatever his condition hath been, he will never be ashamed of Christ; and however great his guilt, no condemnation shall lie against him, either in time or eternity, but he shall have boldness in the day of judgment. Lord, in this faith may I be found, living and dying! making mention of thy righteousness only.

12. [t] For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. 13. [u] For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. 14. [x] How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and [y] how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? 15. [z] And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, [a] How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! 16. [b] But they have not all obeyed the gospel. For Esaias saith, [c] Lord, who hath believed * our † report? 17. So then [d] faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God. 18. But I say, Have they not heard? Yes verily, [e] their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world. 19. But I say, Did not Israel know? First Moses saith, [f] I will provoke you to jealousy by [g] them that are no people, and by a foolish nation I will anger you. 20. But Esaias is very bold, and saith, t Acts 10. 34, 35. & 15. 9. & 10. 36. ch. 3. 22, 29, 30. & 4. 11, 12, 16. & 8. 24. Eph. 1. 7. & 2. 4, 7. 1 Tim. 2. 5, 6. Ps. 103. 17 & 130. 4, 7, 8.

u Joel 2. 32. Acts 2. 21. Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11. Is. 45. 22. Ps. 98. 3. Mark 16. 16.
x Heb. 11. 6. ch. 14. 23.
y Mark 16. 15, 16. Is. 52. 15. & 53. 1. John 15. 22. Prov. 29. 18. Eph. 2. 12. Tit. 1. 3.
z Jer. 23. 32. Heb. 5. 4. Mat. 9. 38.
a Is. 52. 7. Nah. 1. 15. Rev. 14. 6. Mark 16. 15. Luke 2. 10, 11, 14. Acts 13. 26.
b Heb. 4. 2. Acts 28. 24. John 10. 26. ch. 11. 7.
c Is. 53. 1. John 12. 38—40.
* Gr. The hearing of us.
† Or preaching.
d Luke 16. 29. 1 Cor. 1. 21. Eph. 1. 13. Heb. 11. 13. ver. 14. ch. 1. 16, 17.
e Ps. 19. 4. Mat. 24. 14. & 26. 13. & 28 19. Mark 16. 15. Acts 2. 5. ch. 1. 8. & 15. Col. 1. 6, 23. f Deut. 32. 21. with 4. 6. Acts 22. 21, 22. 1 Thes. 2. 16. ch. 11. 11.
g Hos. 1. 10. 1 Pet. 2. 10. Mat. 21. 43. Jer. 10. 8. 1 Cor. 12. 2. Tit. 3. 3. ch. 1. 21—31.

[b] Is. 65. 1. & 10. & 42. 6, 7. & 49. 6, 22. & 60. 3. & 52. 15. & 55. 4, 5 ch. 15. 19. & 9. 30.

[h] I was found of them that sought me not; I was made manifest unto them that asked not after me. 21. But to Israel he saith, [i] All day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people.

[i] Is. 65. 2. Prov. 1. 24. 1 Thes. 2. 14, 15. Heb. 2. 3. & 10. 26—31. Acts 13. 45, 46. ch. 11. 7, 8, 20.

Verses 12—21. Under the gospel dispensation mankind are on a level, without respect to any people or nation. For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; both have sinned and come short of the glory of God; both must be saved freely by grace, through the redemption which is in Jesus Christ, or perish everlastingly: for the same Redeemer, who is Lord over all, is rich in grace, and boundless in mercy unto all that call upon him, as perishing and helpless without him. For, so it was foretold, Joel ii. 32. whosoever, without exception, shall call upon the name of the Lord Jesus, depending upon his atonement and righteousness alone, shall be saved, from guilt and sin, and wrath and hell, and advanced to eternal glory. But if the Gentiles are included in the dispensation of the gospel, then,

1. It was needful that the gospel should be preached to them; and Paul's brethren had no just grounds for their enmity against him, because he was appointed the apostle of the Gentiles. For How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? Faith is essential to the very being of prayer, and without it, the service of the lip and the knee is vain and unprofitable: and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? They must hear of Jesus in his saving offices, before they can possibly trust in him: and how shall they hear without a preacher, to make known to them the revelation of God's will? and how shall they preach, except they be sent with a divine commission? Note, Before any presume to preach, let it be clear that they have a mission from God. To run unsent is insolent presumption.

2. The gospel contains the best news which ever reached mortal ears, and should be matter of joy wherever it is carried, as it is written, Isa. lii. 7. How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! which prophecy terminated not in the joyful messages of Israel's deliverance from Babylon, but looked forward to the great redemption of Jesus, and that gospel which his ministers should publish, a gospel of peace, where God was in Christ, reconciling sinners to himself, and proclaiming the glad news of pardon and salvation to guilty and perishing souls; and they who feel the comfort of the message cannot but, for its sake, delight in and honour the messengers.

3. Though the gospel in itself contained such a welcome message, yet in general, both among Jews and Gentiles, it hath been rejected. But they have not all obeyed the gospel, and yielded themselves up to the Saviour. No, contrariwise, the generality of those to whom it is preached, harden their hearts. For Esaias saith, foreseeing the little success which the ministers of Christ should meet with, Who hath believed our report? How few are found faithful among the many called? Yet the gospel report is the savour of life unto life in them who are saved. So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God, this being the ordinary means, and made effectual by the Spirit's power, that arm of the Lord, which reveals Christ to the heart.

4. But I say, have they not heard, both Jews and Gentiles, the gospel word? Yes verily, their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the end of the world. And this extensive spread of the gospel, by those preachers whom he sent forth, however the multitude rejected the counsel of God, was a token of his good will to the Gentiles, and of his design to gather out of them a people to be to the praise of the glory of his grace.

5. But I say, did not Israel know that God designed to show mercy to the Gentiles? Had they attended to their own prophets, they would have seen how groundless their imaginations were that the blessings of the Messiah's kingdom should be confined to them, and the Gentiles excluded. For first, Moses saith, for whom they profess peculiar veneration, I will provoke you to jealousy by them that are no people, and by a foolish nation will I anger you. The Gentiles were long excluded from God's regard, and, amidst all their wisdom, were entirely ignorant of spiritual things: to have them now brought into favour, and made wise unto salvation, should have provoked a holy emulation in the Jewish nation; but it wrought a contrary effect, exciting the greatest bitterness and enmity against the converted Gentiles. (2.) He produces another Scripture, strongly proving the divine determination, with regard to the calling of the Gentiles and the rejection of the Jews. Moses had intimated it, But Esaias is very bold, and, with great plainness and freedom, foretells to his countrymen this mortifying event, and saith, I was found of them that sought me not, I was made manifest unto them that asked not after me, preventing the Gentiles with blessings of his goodness, and the calls of his grace, when they were without one thought of God, worshipping their idols, and had not so much as a desire in their hearts after him. But to Israel he saith, now to be rejected for their impenitence and obstinacy, all day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people; his patience therefore being wearied out, especially by their opposition to the gospel, he abandons them to ruin. Note, (1.) If God had not first sought us, we should never have inquired after him. (2.) When the Lord had waited long to be gracious, and used the most powerful means to work upon the sinner's heart, if he still rejects the counsel of God against his own soul, justly doth God decree, My Spirit shall not always strive, and leaves him to the destruction which he hath chosen.

CHAP. XI.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle having reconciled that great truth of the rejection of the Jews with the promise made unto the fathers, is in this chapter farther labouring to mollify the harshness of it, and to reconcile it to the divine goodness in general. It might be said, Hath God then cast away his people? The apostle therefore sets himself in this chapter to give an answer to this objection; and that two ways: 1. He shows at large what the mercy is, that is mixed with this wrath, ver. 1—32. 2. He infers from thence the infinite wisdom and sovereignty of God; with the adoration of which he concludes this chapter and subject, ver. 33—36.

1. I SAY then, [a] Hath God cast away his people? God forbid. [b] For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. 2. [c] God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying, 3. [d] Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine [e] altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life. 4. But what saith the answer of God unto him? [f] I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal. 5. [g] Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace. 6. [h] And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no

[a] 1 Sam. 12. 29. Ps. 94. 14. Jer. 31. 37. with Gen. 17. 7. Deut. 32. 9.

[b] 2 Cor. 11. 22. Phil. 3. 5. ch. 9. 3. Acts 22. 3. & 26. 3.

[c] Ch. 8. 28—30. & 9. 6, 8, 23. John 10. 14, 28, 29. Acts 13. 48.

[d] 1 Kin. 19. 10, 14. & 18. 4, 30.

[e] Judg. 6. 24. & 21. 4. 1 Sam. 7. 17. & 11. 15. & 16. 2, 5. 2 Sam. 24. 18, 25. Exod. 20. 24. Deut. 27. 6.

[f] 1 Kin. 19. 18. with Jer. 2. 8. & 11. 13. & 19. 5. & 23. 27. & 32. 35. Hos. 2. 8. Zeph. 1. 4.

[g] Ch. 9. 27. Acts 13. 48. ver. 6, 7

[h] Deut. 9. 4. Gal. 5. 2, 4. & 2. 21. ch. 4. 4, 5. Eph. 2. 4—9. Tit. 3. 5. ch. 3. 27, 28.

more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwise work is no more work. 7. What then? [i] Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the [k] election hath obtained it, [l] and the rest were [m] blinded 8. (According as it is written, [n] God hath given them the spirit of * slumber; eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear) unto this day. 9. And David saith, [o] Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumbling-block, and a recompence unto them: 10. [p] Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not see, and bow down their back alway. 11. I say then, [q] Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather [r] through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy. 12. Now, [s] if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the † diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles; [t] how much more their fulness? 13. For I speak to you Gentiles; [u] inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office: 14. [x] If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them. 15. For [y] if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but [z] life from the dead? 16. [a] For if the first-fruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches. 17. And [b] if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive-tree, were graffed in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive-tree; 18. [c] Boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, [d] thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. 19. Thou wilt say then, [e] The branches were broken off that I might be graffed in. 20. Well; [f] because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou [g] standest by faith. [h] Be not high-minded, but fear: 21. For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee. 22. Behold therefore [i] the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou [k] continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off. 23. And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be graffed in: for God is able to graff them in again. 24. For if thou wert cut out of the olive-tree which is wild by nature, and wert graffed contrary to nature into a good olive-tree; how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be graffed into their own olive-tree? 25. For I would not, brethren, that [l] ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be [m] wise in your own conceits; that [n] blindness in part is happened to Israel, [o] until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. 26. And so [p] all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, [q] There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: 27. [r] For this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins. 28. As concerning the gospel, [s] they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the election, they are beloved for [t] the fathers' sakes. 29. For [u] the gifts and calling of God are without repentance. 30. For [x] as ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief; 31. [y] Even so have these also now not ‡ believed, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy. 32. For [z] God hath ‖ concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.

1 Ch. 9. 31, 32. & 10. 3.
k Ch. 3. 28—30, 33. & 9. 23. Acts 13. 48. 2 Tim. 2. 19. John 10. 27, 28.
l John 12. 40. 2 Cor. 3. 14. & 4. 3, 4. Deut. 29. 4. Acts 28. 27. ch. 9. 31. & 10. 3.
m Or hardened. Ch. 9. 18. n Is. 29. 10. & 6. 9. & 44. 18. ch. 1. 24. 2 Thes. 2. 11. Deut. 29. 4. Jer. 5. 21. Ezek. 12. 2. Mat. 13. 14. Acts 28. 26, 27.
* Or remorse.
o Ps. 69. 22. & 28. † Prov. 1. 32. Deut. 32. 15—15. Is. 8. 14, 15. & 66. 3, 4. 1 Pet. 2. 8. p Ps. 69. 23. ver. 8. John 12. 38—40. 2 Cor. 3. 14. Deut. 28. 64—68.
q Ezek. 18. 23, 32. & 33. 11.
r Acts 13. 42, 45, 46. & 18. 6. & 28. 25, 28. ch. 10. 19. ver. 31.
s Mat. 8. 11, 12. ver. 11, 31.
† Or decay or loss.
t Ver. 15, 31. Rev. 11. 15—19. & xix—xxii. Is. lx—lxiii, lxv, lxvi. Jer. xxx, xxxi, xxxiii. Ezek xxxiv—xlviii. Zech. 2. 11. & 8. 20—23. & ix—xiv.
u Ch. 15. 16, 19. Gal. 2. 2, 7, 8. 1 Tim. 2. 7. 2 Tim. 2. 11. Acts 9. 15. & 13. 2. & 22. 21. & 26. 17.
x Ch. 9. 1—3. & 10. 1. 1 Cor. 9. 22. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Jam. 5. 20. ver. 5. 11. 1 Cor. 7. 16.
y Ver. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 5. 19, 20. Eph. 1. 10. Col. 1. 20, 21. z Dan. 12. 2. Ezek. xxxvii. Rev. 11. 11. & 20. 4—6. a Lev. 23. 10, 11. Num. 15. 17. with Gen. 17. 7. 1 Cor. 7. 14. ver. 11, 18. b Jer. 11. 16. Mat. 21. 43. & 8. 11, 12. Eph. 2. 12—20. Acts 18. 45, 46. ver. 11, 15. John 1. 16. Acts 9. 32. Eph. 3. 6.
c Ver. 20. 1 Cor. 4. 7. & 10. 12.
d John 15. 16. ch. 4. 16. Eph. 2. 19, 20. & 3. 6.
e Ver. 11, 12, 15, 17.
f Acts 13. 45, 46. & 18. 6.
g 2 Cor. 20. 20. Is. 7. 9. Rom. 5. 1, 2. & 14. 4. 1 Cor. 15. 1. 1 Pet. 5. 12. 2 Cor. 1. 24. Eph. 6. 13, 14.
h Jer. 13. 15. Prov. 28 14. Is. 66. 2. ch. 12. 16. Phil. 2. 12. Jam. 4. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 5. 1 Cor. 10. 6, 11, 22.
i Ch. 9. 18, 22, 23. Mat. 8. 11, 12. & 21. 43.
k John 15. 2, 4. 1 Cor. 15. 2. Heb. 3. 6, 14. Gal. 6. 9. 2 Cor. 3. 16. ver. 11, 12, 15, 24, 25, 31. Ps. 68. 22. Is. 11. 11—16. & 24. 23. & 27. 12, 13. & 49. 14—26. & 51. 22. & liv, lv, lx—lxii, lxv, lxvi. Jer. iii, xxx, xxxi. & 32. 37—44. & xxxiii. Ezek. xxxiv, xxxvi—xlviii. Hos. 3. 5. & 1. 10, 11. & 2. 14—23. Joel 3. 16—21. Mic. iv, v. Amos 9. 11—15. Zeph. iii. Zech. ii, viii—xiv.
l Ps. 3. 2. & 107. 43. Hos. 14. 9. Deut. 32. 29. with ch. 16. 25. Eph. 3. 3, 6. Col. 1. 27.
m Ch. 12. 16. Prov 3. 5, 7. & 26. 12, 16. Is. 5. 21.
n Or hardness. Ver. 5, 7. ch. 9. 18. 2 Cor. 3. 14—16.
o Hos. 3. 5. Rev 11. 15. & xix—xxii. Zech. 14. 8—21. & 8. 20—23. Is. 11. 9, 10. & lv. lx. Ezek. xxxiv—xlviii. Luke 21. 24. Rev. 7. 9. p Jer. 3. 18. & 30. 3. & 31. 1, 8, 9. Ezek. xxxvii. Is. 60. 15.
q Is. 59. 20. Ps. 14. 7. Is. 27. 9. Jer. 31. 31. Ezek. 20. 40.
r Jer. 31. 31—34. & 32. 38—40. Heb. 8. 8—12. & 10. 16. s Mat. 12. 43. Acts 13. 45, 46. & 28. 24, 28. ver. 11, 20, 25, 30. t Lev. 26. 44. Exod. 32. 13. Gen. 17. 7. & 26. 4. & 28. 14. Deut. 7. 8. & 4. 31.
u Gen. 17. 7. Num. 22. 19. Deut. 7. 7. & 9. 5. & 10. 15. Jer. 4. 27. & 46. 28. Hos. 13. 14. x Eph. 2. 3, 12, 19, 20. & 3. 6. Col. 3. 6, 9, 10. Tit. 3. 3, 5, 7. 1 Cor. 6. 9—11.
y Ver. 15, 25.
‡ Or obeyed.
z Ch. 3. 9. Gal. 3. 22. ver. 30, 31. John 12. 32.
‖ Or shut them all up together.

Verses 1—32. Nothing could be more grating to the Jews than the subject of their rejection; and some one might say, Hath God cast away his people, universally and finally? God forbid.

1. Though some are cast off, yet not all.

2. If the nation of the Jews in general be at present abandoned, the Gentiles are called into the Messiah's kingdom.

3. The time will come when the Jews shall be brought back, and admitted into the church of the redeemed.

1. Though some are cast off, yet not all: of this Paul was himself an instance, For I also am an Israelite of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin; and though none showed greater bitterness against the gospel, yet have I obtained mercy; and multitudes besides, of the Jewish people, share the same blessing, for God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew, having a chosen generation, whom he from eternity decreed to bring unto glory, though the generality should perish in their unbelief; and these were more than might be at first imagined, as was the case in the days of Elias, when, on account of their general defection to idolatry, and persecution of God's prophets, that zealous reformer complained to God as if he was left alone, and his life daily in jeopardy; and, from the melancholy appearances, could not but conclude that the people were ripe for ruin. But God informs him that, bad as things were, he had still reserved seven thousand faithful worshippers, who had not bowed to Baal; even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace. Note, (1.) There are many more faithful souls than we, looking round on the general apostasy, are ready to suppose. (2.) In every age the children of God have been but few, like these seven thousand, compared with the myriads of Israel. (3.) If any soul be kept from swimming down the stream of general corruption, it is of God's mere grace, or we had been exactly like our neighbours. (4.) When religion is out of countenance, it is a great thing to dare to be singular, and not bow the knee to Baal. (5.) If there had not been an election of grace, the whole human race had been as the angels which left their first estate, and had perished with them. And if this election of some, in preference to others, be by grace, of God's mere sovereign and undeserved favour, then is it no more of works, either done by them, or foreseen in them, as the motive for his choice of them; for, otherwise, grace is no more grace. The very idea of grace would be destroyed, if any thing in the objects recommended them in preference to others, to the divine regard. But if, on the other hand, it be of works, in any sense whatever, then it is no more grace; otherwise work is no more work, these standing in direct opposition to each other. Salvation must therefore be wholly of the one or the other: but it cannot be of works, for we have none which can bear the severity of God's justice: it must therefore be of grace, or not at all. What then is the case? Why the fact is evident; Israel hath not attained that which he seeketh for; the reason of which is given, chap. ix. 31, 32. but the election hath obtained it, through faith in Jesus, professing that righteousness which entitles them to life eternal, and the rest were blinded, left to their impenitence and unbelief, and perishing by the sentence of that law, for their obedience to which they expected justification before God. Note, (1.) Our election of God is the ground-work of all our hopes and happiness in time and eternity. (2.) They who trust in whole or in part on their works for salvation, make Christ to have died in vain, and the grace of God of no effect. (3.) They who trust on their own righteousness, are ever most hardened against the gospel method of salvation.

In proof of what he had alleged, terrible as it might appear to some, he appeals to the Scriptures, according as it is written, God hath given them the spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear, unto this day. They are sunk into stupidity and insensibility, and in just judgment for their rejection of all the means, mercies, and corrections vouchsafed to them, especially for their wilful unbelief of the gospel, God hath abandoned them to a reprobate mind: and unto this day it continues. And, to the same effect, David saith, when speaking of the enemies of the Messiah, Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumblingblock, and a recompense unto them. The altar, and all the ritual service on which they depended, would prove the means of their ruin; or those bounties of Providence, which they abused to pride and luxury, should intoxicate them, and, like drunken men, for the punishment of their infidelity, they should stumble into perdition. Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not see; since they hate the light, they shall be left in blindness: and bow down their back alway, under perpetual bondage and servitude, enslaved by the powers of earth, and more enslaved by worldly-mindedness, by sin and Satan. Note, (1.) Of all judgments, spiritual ones are most to be dreaded, and yet are usually least perceived. (2.) They who mind earthly things cannot but walk in darkness.

2. Though the Jews were cast off for a while, the Gentiles were called into the church.

I say then, have they stumbled that they should fall, utterly and irrecoverably? God forbid: but rather, so hath God ordered it in his providence, through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, (See Acts xiii. 46, 47.) for to provoke them to jealousy; that, ashamed to be outdone by the Gentiles, they may be stirred up to a noble emulation. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles, God in his infinite wisdom and mysterious designs making the apostasy and obstinacy of the Jews the occasion of spreading his gospel the sooner among the Gentiles, whom he is pleased to enrich with the abundance of his grace; how much more will the Gentiles be confirmed in the faith, and the multitude of converts increase, when they shall see their fulness, the restoration of the dispersed Jews to their forfeited privileges, when at the last they shall be turned to the Lord? For I speak to you, Gentiles, for your comfort and caution, inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, particularly appointed of God to preach the gospel to you: I magnify mine office, I glory in my employment, and bless God for having honoured me so far as to appoint me thereunto. And this I say, If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, to outstrip the Gentiles, ashamed to be exceeded by them in faith and holiness, and might thus save some of them, by leading them to Christ for pardon, grace, and eternal life: for, as I said, if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, the gospel, through their infidelity, being sent unto the Gentiles, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead? How surprising and delightful will that great event be, when the Jews in general shall be converted to Christ, and restored to the church as men raised from the dead; and their conversion inspire the Gentiles with fresh life and vigour! For if the first-fruits be holy, and some few converts of the Jewish people now appear the pledges and earnests of what God will do for the nation hereafter, the lump is also holy, and they shall at last be wholly consecrated as a nation to God; and if the root be holy, Abraham and the patriarchs, from whom the Jews descended, considered as their federal head, to whom and his seed the promises were made, so are the branches: they have a relative holiness in virtue of their descent, and though at present their unbelief cuts them off from all the privileges of the covenant, yet for their fathers' sakes, in future ages God's love to them, as a nation, shall appear, and they shall again be received into the bosom of his church. And if some of the branches be broken off, for their unbelief, and thou a Gentile, being a wild olive-tree, by birth an alien from the commonwealth of Israel, and a stranger to the covenants of promise, wert graffed in amongst them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive-tree, admitted in common with Abraham's natural descendants, who believe, to share in all the blessings and privileges of the covenant of grace, boast not against the branches, looking down with scorn on the Jews, who for their infidelity are broken off; but if thou boast, and grow proud of thy advancement, remember, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee, and all the mercies thou enjoyest are from the Jews; from them according to the flesh, Christ descended: the first preachers of the gospel were of their nation; and all church privileges are derived from Abraham, the great father of the faithful: therefore this people, though now fallen, must not be trampled upon. Thou wilt say then, perhaps, The branches were broken off that I might be graffed in; I was preferred to them, and have reason to esteem myself above them. Well; because of unbelief they were broken off; it was not on account of any goodness in you, but because of their own infidelity; and thou standest by faith, not holding your privileges on account of any descent, but through God's free grace in Christ Jesus; and therefore all boasting is excluded. Be not then high-minded, but fear, lest ye also fall through the same example of unbelief. For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee; if the Gentiles imitated their pride and unbelief, they might much more apprehend he would deal with them in the same manner, and deprive them of all the privileges to which he had admitted them. Behold, therefore, and admire the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, he hath exercised just severity, cutting them off from his church, and depriving them of all the privileges of his people; but towards thee, unworthy as thou art, he hath shown the most transcendent goodness, admitting thee, a despised idolatrous Gentile, into his kingdom, and will continue to bless thee, if thou continue in his goodness, and do not abuse the merciful dispensation, under which you at present stand, by pride and infidelity: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off; and no nominal profession of Christianity, if the heart prove apostate, will secure any man from the wrath of God.

3. There is still hope in the end, that all Israel, notwithstanding their present rejection, shall at last be converted and saved. And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be graffed in: and when they receive the gospel, and believe in Jesus, as the Messiah, shall be re-admitted into the church of the redeemed; for God is able to graff them in again, as the children of believing Abraham. Nor is this at all inconceivable or improbable; for if thou wert cut out of the olive-tree which is wild by nature, sprung from the Gentile stock, which was out of the covenant, and wert graffed contrary to nature into a good olive-tree, which is like graffing a wild scion on a good tree; how much more shall these which be the natural branches, and descendants of Abraham, be graffed into their own olive-tree, and be received into the gospel church, which was once wholly confined to their people and nation? For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, (lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; puffed up with an opinion of your own excellence, and fancying that the favour of God is henceforth to be confined to you alone,) that blindness in part is happened to Israel, and they are left to their unbelief for a while, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, when in the latter days the nations of the earth shall, in a more general manner than ever, become obedient to the faith. And so all Israel shall be saved; in general they shall be brought into the gospel church and converted to the Lord: as it is written, There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob; the adored Messiah in the last days shall go forth in the power of his gospel, and by the efficacy of his word and Spirit shall turn these disobedient unto the wisdom of the just: so that all their iniquities shall be pardoned, and the enmity of their hearts be subdued by his almighty grace. For this is my covenant unto them, and he will fulfil his promises, as will be seen in the latter day; when I shall take away their sins, freely pardoning, for his name's sake, all that is past, and receiving them into the arms of his everlasting love.

Upon the whole then the state of the case stands thus. As concerning the gospel, they are at present enemies to it, and permitted so to be for your sake, that the gospel might be the sooner and farther diffused through the Gentile world, (Acts xiii. 46, 47.) But as touching the election of them as a nation to be his peculiar people, they are beloved for the fathers' sakes; and though for the present abandoned, yet there is still mercy in store for them. For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance; God is in one mind and cannot change; and having made his promises to Israel, as a chosen nation, they shall assuredly be called again into his church, and the elect among them be made partakers of eternal salvation. For as ye in times past have not believed God, but lived without him in the world, serving stocks and stones, yet have now obtained mercy, through God's boundless grace admitted into the fellowship and privileges of the gospel, through their unbelief, who put that gospel from them: even so have these also now not believed, but have been left to infidelity that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy; provoked to emulation by you, and led by faith to embrace the same Redeemer, through whom the Gentiles have found acceptance with God. And this conversion of the Jews is at least as likely, and will be as sure, as the conversion of the idolatrous Gentiles. For God hath concluded them all in unbelief; both Jews and Gentiles have been left by turns under the power of infidelity; that he might glorify the riches of his grace towards both, and have mercy upon all: upon the body of Jews and Gentiles in general, making them at last one fold under one Shepherd.

Some suppose this conversion of the Jews is already past, and that after the destruction of their city and temple, multitudes were convinced, and converted to Jesus as the Messiah; but I am much more inclined to think, that this prophecy is yet to receive its accomplishment. And it is a very remarkable circumstance, that the Jewish people, in all their dispersions, are still as distinct from the nations among whom they dwell as ever, and no doubt, are thus by divine providence preserved for this great event.

33. [a] O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! 34. [b] For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? 35. [c] Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? 36. [d] For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: [e] to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

[a] Job 5. 9. & 9. 10. & 11. 7. & 28. 12, 14. & 37. 23. & 26. 14. Ps. 36. 6, 7. & 77. 19. Eccl. 3. 11. Dan. 4. 35.
[b] Job 15. 8. & 36. 22, 23. Ps. 92. 5, 6. & 40. 5. Is. 40. 13. Jer. 23. 18. 1 Cor. 2. 16.
[c] Ps. 35. 7. & 41. 11.
[d] Job 33. 6. Prov. 16. 4. 1 Cor. 8. 6. & 10. 31. Col. 1. 16. Acts 17. 25. 28. Rev. 21. 6.
[e] Gal. 1. 5. 2 Tim. 4. 18. Heb. 13. 21. 1 Pet. 5. 11.

Verses 33—36. Having evidently reconciled the rejection of the Jews with the justice and goodness of God, and shown that there was mercy yet in store for them; in the view of this astonishing dispensation the apostle breaks out, O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! Farther the apostle dares not pry into the divine counsels, but stands admiring on the ocean's brink, and cries, O the depth of the riches of that grace, which both Jews and Gentiles experience, unworthy as they are of the least of it! What wisdom and knowledge appear in the contrivance of this admirable scheme, planned in the divine mind, to make even the rejection of the Jews subservient to the calling of the Gentiles; and their conversion, the means at last of restoring the Jews to the divine favour. These counsels are too deep for us to fathom, the reasons of his determinations are hid in his own eternal mind; and the methods which in his providence he takes to effect his own purposes, are beyond our ken; we are lost in the labyrinth, of which he who is infinite in wisdom alone holds the clue. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? what creature ever pried into the deep things of God, or could discover his eternal counsels? Or who hath been his counsellor? nor man nor angel were consulted in planning his designs of grace, where all was fixed by his infinite wisdom according to his sovereign pleasure. Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? Who can claim any thing by right from him? He is debtor neither to Jew nor Gentile; and how then dare any arraign his procedure, or say unto him, What doest thou? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; all things in nature and providence own him their former and upholder, their efficient cause, and ultimate end; and, in the dispensation of his grace especially, the whole of the sinner's salvation, from first to last, is derived from him; arising from his sovereign pleasure, the effect of his infinite wisdom and love, accomplished by his power, and designed for the advancement of his glory; to whom therefore it is most fit that the redeemed upon earth, and the exalted spirits in heaven, should ascribe glory for ever! and all who have tasted of his grace, will add their joyful Amen! Note, Though we have the deepest insight into the mysteries of grace, the wisest must own, that they know but a part of God's ways. There are many things which our short line cannot fathom, and we can only resolve into the divine sovereignty: our business, therefore, is not to dispute, but believe; not to demand God's reasons, but to acquiesce in his determinations; not to cavil, but to admire and adore.

CHAP. XII.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle having at large cleared and confirmed the prime fundamental doctrines of Christianity, comes in the next place to press the principal duties. We mistake our religion, if we look upon it only as a system of notions, and a guide to speculation: No: it is a practical religion, that tends to the right ordering of the conversation. It is designed not only to inform our judgments, but to convert our souls, and amend our lives. The riches of grace, revealed in the gospel, are designed to engage our hearts to God, and to make us holy and happy. This chapter contains an exhortation to believers, engaging them, 1. To dedicate themselves wholly to God, ver. 1, 2. 2. To walk humbly before him, ver. 3—5. 3. To use faithfully their gifts to God's glory, and their brethren's edification, ver. 6—8. 4. To discharge the various duties which adorn the Christian character, ver. 9—21.

1. I [a] BESEECH you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, [b] that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. 2. [c] And be not conformed to this world: but [d] be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may [e] prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God. 3. [f] For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, [g] not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think * soberly, [h] according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith. 4. For [i] as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office; 5. So [k] we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another. 6. [l] Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith; 7. [m] Or ministry, let us wait on our ministering; or he that teacheth, on teaching; or he that exhorteth, on exhortation: 8. [n] He that † giveth, let him do it ‡ with simplicity; [o] he that ruleth, with diligence; he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness. 9. [p] Let love be without dissimulation. [q] Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. 10. [r] Be kindly affectioned one to another || with brotherly love; [s] in honour preferring one another; 11. [t] Not slothful in business; [u] fervent in spirit; serving the LORD; 12. [x] Rejoicing in hope; [y] patient in tribulation; [z] continuing instant in prayer; 13. [a] Distributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality. 14. [b] Bless them which persecute you: bless, and curse not. 15. [c] Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. 16. Be of the same mind one toward another. Mind not high things, but [d] condescend to men of low estate. [e] Be not wise in your own conceits. 17. [f] Recompense to no man evil for evil. [g] Provide things honest in the sight of all men. 18. [h] If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. 19. Dearly beloved, [i] avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, [k] Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the LORD. 20. [l] Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. 21. [m] Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

a 2 Cor. 5. 20 & 10. 1. Eph. 4. 1. John 4. 19. Ps. 116. 12.
b 1 Pet. 2. 5, 9. ch. 6. 4, 6, 13, 16. 1 Cor. 9. 27. & 6. 19, 20. Col. 1. 22. Heb. 10. 22. with Lev. 1—vii. Num. xxix.
c Exod. 23. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 14, 18. 1 John 2. 15, 16. d 2 Cor. 5. 17. Gal. 6. 15. Col. 3. 10. Eph. 1. 18. & 4. 22—24.
e Ch. 2. 18. Phil. 1. 10. Eph. 1. 18. & 5. 10, 17. 1 Thes. 4. 3. Col. 1. 21, 22. & 3. 10. with ch. 7. 12, 14. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17. Ps. 19. 7—10. f Mark 2. 11. Gal. 5. 16. with ch. 1. 5. & 15. 15. 1 Cor. 3. 10. & 15. 10. 1 Pet. 4. 11. Eph. 3. 8. ver. 6, 8.
g Prov. 25. 27. Eccl. 7. 15. ch. 11. 20. Gal. 6. 3. Prov. 26. 12, 16.
* Gr. to sobriety.
h 1 Cor. 3. 10. & 12. 7—11. & 15. 10. Gal. 1. 15. & 2. 7. 1 Cor. 4. 7. Luke 19. 13.
i 1 Cor. 12. 12—27. Eph. 4. 16. Col. 2. 19. k Ver. 4. 1 Cor. 10. 17. & 12. 12—28. Eph. 1. 23. & 4. 4, 25. & 5. 21, 23, 30. Col. 1. 24. & 2. 19.
l 1 Cor. 12. 7—11, 28—30. & 6. 14. & 14. 1, 3. & 13. 2. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. Acts 11. 27. & 13. 1. & 15. 32. & 21. 9. 2 Cor. 10. 13. Eph. 3. 5. & 4. 11. m 2 Tim. 4. 2. 1 Tim. 4. 16. 1 Pet. 5. 2, 3. Acts 20. 28, 31. Ezek. 3. 17—21. & 33. 7—9. Col. 4. 17. Jude 3, 29. with Eph. 4. 11, 12.
n Deut. 15. 7. Prov. 22. 8. Acts 6. 3, 5. Phil. 1. 1. 2 Cor. 9. 7. 1 Tim. 5. 17. 1 Pet. 5. 2, 3.
o 1 Cor. 12. 28 2 Thes. 5. 12, 13. Heb. 13. 17. 1 Tim. 5. 17. 1 Pet. 5. 2, 3.
p 1 Tim. 1. 5. 1 Cor. 6. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 22. & 4. 8. 1 John 3. 18.
q Ps. 34. 14. & 36. 4. & 97. 10. & 101. 3. & 119. 104. & 139. 21. 1 Cor. 13. 6. Amos 5. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 11.
r Heb. 13. 1. Job 1. 4. Ps. 133. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 8. & 4. 8. & 1. 22. & 2. 11. 2 Pet. 1. 7. Eph. 4. 3. 1 Thes. 4. 9.
|| Or in the love of the brethren.
s Mat. 20. 26. Phil. 2. 3. 1 Pet. 5. 5. Gen. 13. 9.
† Eccl. 9. 10. Gal. 6. 10. Heb. 6. 10. Mat. 25. 26. see Prov. 6. 6, 9. & 19. 15. & 10. 4. & 13. 4. & 22. 29.
‡ Or liberally.
t Acts 18. 26. Rev. 3. 15, 16.
u Ch. 5. 2. & 13. Luke 10. 20. Phil. 3. 1, 3. & 4. 4. Ps. 71. 20—24. & 73. 24—26. & 138. 7, 8. 1 Thes. 5. 16. Col. 3. 16. Eph. 5. 19.
x Luke 21. 19. Ps. 37. 7. Rom. 5. 3, 4. Heb. 6. 12. & 10. 36. & 12. 1, 2. Jam. 1. 3, 4. & 5. 7, 10, 11. 2 Pet. 1. 6. 1 Pet. 2. 20.
y Acts 1. 14. & 2. 42, 46. & 6. 4. Eph. 6. 18, 19. Col. 4. 2. 1 Thes. 5. 17. Heb. 3. 6, 14. Luke 18. 1—7.
z Gal. 6. 10. Heb. 6. 10 & 13 16. Deut. 15. 8. & 10. 19. Is. 58. 7. Eccl. 11. 1, 2. Mat. 5. 42 Luke 6. 35, 36. Phil. 2. 14. 1 Cor. 16. 1. Gal. 2. 10. 1 Tim. 3. 2. & 2. 9. Eph. 4. 28. & 5. 2. Tit. 1. 8. Heb. 13. 2, 16. 1 Pet. 4. 9. 1 John 3. 17. Jam. 2. 15, 16.
a Mat. 5. 44. Luke 6. 28. 1 Cor. 4. 12. 1 Pet. 3. 9. & 2. 23. Is. 53. 12. Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60.
b Ch. 5. 2. 1 Cor. 12. 26. Luke 1. 58. 2 Cor. 11. 29. Neh. 1. 4. Heb. 13. 3. c Ch. 5. 2. 1 Cor. 12. 26. Luke 1. 58. 2 Cor. 11. 29. Neh. 1. 4. Heb. 13. 3. d Or, be contented with mean things. Ps. 131. 1. Prov. 18. 12. & 29. 23. Jer. 45. 5. ch. 15. 5. 1 Cor. 1. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 1. Phil. 1. 27. & 2. 2. & 3. 16. Col. 2. 18. 1 Pet. 3. 8. & 26. 12, 16. Is. 5. 21. ch. 11. 20, 21.
e Prov. 3. 7.
f Mat. 5. 39. 1 Thes. 5. 15. Prov. 20. 22. 1 Pet. 3. 9. & 2. 23.
g Prov. 3. 4. ch. 14. 16. 1 Cor. 6. 6, 7. & 8. 13. & 10. 32. 33. & 13. 4, 5. 2 Cor. 8. 21.
h Mark 9. 50. Heb. 12. 14. 1 Pet. 3. 11. Jam. 3. 17, 18. Ps. 34. 14. Zech. 8. 16, 19. Eph. 4. 3. 2 Cor. 13. 11.
i Ver. 14, 17 Lev. 19. 18. Prov. 19. 11. & 24. 29. Ezek. 25. 12. Mat. 5. 39. Luke 6. 29. & 9. 55. 1 Pet. 3. 9.
k Deut. 32. 24. Heb. 10. 30. 1 Prov. 25. 21, 22. Mat. 5. 44. Exod. 23. 4. 1 Sam. 24. 16, 17. & 26. 21.
m Prov. 24. 17. Luke 6. 27—30. Mat. 5. 39—45. 1 Pet. 2. 23. & 3. 9. ver. 14, 17.

Verses 1—21. The doctrines of grace are so far from leading to licentiousness, that nothing but these can effectually engage the heart to walk in holiness as Christ also walked.

1. The apostle exhorts them to yield themselves wholly to God. I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God; by the consideration of that sovereign, boundless, undeserved grace, which you have tasted; that, constrained by a sense of such distinguishing and astonishing love, ye as spiritual priests, present your bodies, not the carcass of a dead animal, but a nobler oblation than any which were offered under the law, even a living sacrifice; your whole selves to be employed for God's glory, holy, without allowed guile; in spirit, temper, and conduct, conformed to his will; and acceptable to God through Jesus Christ, in whom your persons and services are regarded as a sacrifice of a sweet smell; all which is your reasonable service, to be performed with all the powers of your rational souls, and most fit and right, considering the infinite obligations lying upon you. And in order hereunto, be not conformed to this world, to its temper, maxims, fashions, manners; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, after the image of God in righteousness and true holiness, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God; discerning what is the mind of God in his word; commending to others the excellence and importance of the revelation he hath made; and cast into the very mould of the gospel, the best proof of your approbation of it. Note, (1.) No argument is so powerful to engage the ingenuous heart, as a sense of the mercies of God. (2.) The most acceptable sacrifice to God is the surrender of our whole selves to him at the foot of the cross of Jesus, the altar which sanctifies the gift. (3.) They who yield themselves to God, must prove their simplicity in all holy conversation and godliness. (4.) Religion is indeed a reasonable service; the more we consider what we owe to God, the more shall we be bound to acknowledge, that he deserves to be served with every faculty of our soul, and every member of our body. (5.) They who partake of the true grace of God, and experience its transforming efficacy upon their tempers and conduct, they die unto the world, and live only for God.

2. He enforces upon them humility and lowliness of mind, that great ornament of the Christian character. For I say, through the grace given unto me, in virtue of the office with which I am invested, to every man that is among you, whatever his rank or attainments may be, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; affecting a superiority over others, or pretending to be wise above what is written, and to intrude into things that are too high for him; but to think soberly and lowly of his gifts, graces, and attainments, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith; and acknowledging, that whatever measure of faith he possesses, or however distinguished his endowments by nature or grace may be, yet he had nothing which he hath not received, and therefore all boasting is excluded. And as our talents are merely lent us for our own soul's good, and the edification of others, it will become us to see that our profiting appears. For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office, but each discharges his separate function, and all are alike needful in their place, and contribute to the good of the whole; so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another; united under our adored Head, each occupying his respective place according to the measure of the gift of Christ; and therefore, instead of being puffed up in pride, and despising one another, we should give diligence to discharge the several services allotted to every member, acknowledging the mutual obligation which one hath to the other, and contributing heartily to the prosperity of the whole. Having then, gifts differing according to the grace that is given unto us, as the Lord hath sovereignly been pleased to dispense to every man, let it be our care to improve them, according to our respective offices and stations, for the glory of God, and the good of our fellow-members, Whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith. They who are put in trust with the gospel, must preach it with all fidelity and diligence, according to the measure of light, faith, and experience which they have received; or according to the analogy of faith; in exact consistence with the grand principles laid down in the word of God, in Scripture language, and with attention to the context. Or ministry, let us wait on our ministering, in the inferior departments of the church, where attention, care, and constancy are required. Or he that teacheth, on teaching; opening, explaining, and defending the doctrines of the Scripture. Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation; with warmth applying the word to the conscience, warning the unruly, supporting the feeble-minded, reproving the guilty, comforting the dejected, and according to the different state of the people's souls, suiting his discourse for their edification and consolation. He that giveth, and is intrusted with the distribution of the public stock appropriated to charitable uses, let him do it with simplicity; without fraud, favour, or affection, according to the real wants of the church's poor. He that ruleth, and hath the management of affairs, must do it with diligence, careful that proper discipline be observed. He that showeth mercy, with cheerfulness; ready to every work and labour of love; not dragged reluctantly to visit the sick or afflicted; or grudging the time, trouble, or expense; not treating the poor with coldness, or sternness, but with that affability, tenderness, and compassion, which bespeak the pleasure that he takes in assisting them. Note, (1.) Pride is a busy sin; we can never be enough on our guard against it. The very gifts and graces of God (such is our corruption) we are ready to abuse, and plume ourselves upon them. (2.) If God hath put us in trust with any office, our business is to approve our fidelity to him, employing the talents which he hath lent us; not puffed up with any distinction which he may have made between us and others, but remembering the solemn account we must shortly make before him, when he calleth us to give an account of our stewardship. (3.) Ministers have different gifts, all excellent in their place. One is blessed with a clearer judgment, another with a warmer heart, and all for the edification of the body of Christ.

3. The apostle proceeds to urge Christians in general to walk before God and man, in such a way as may most eminently adorn the doctrine they profess, and glorify their Divine Master.

Let love be without dissimulation. Let your love to God in Christ be supreme, and your love to your brethren unfeigned and hearty; the living principle of every good word and work, and without which all our doings are nothing worth.

Abhor that which is evil. Turn away with abhorrence from all manner of iniquity, harbouring no allowed sin in yourself, and testifying your hatred of it wherever it appears, though in those who are nearest and dearest to you. And, on the contrary, cleave to that which is good, to God, his people, his word, his worship, will, and ways; never deterred by any danger, or seduced by any allurements, from the path of duty.

Be kindly affectioned one to another; tenderly desiring to promote each other's happiness; delighting in each other's prosperity; bearing each other's burdens; and ready to every word and work which fervent charity dictates: with brotherly love, in honour preferring one another; casting the veil of oblivion over the faults of others, and humbly acknowledging your own; thinking and speaking honourably of the gifts, graces, and attainments of your brethren, and entertaining lowly thoughts of yourselves.

Not slothful in business. In the business of your station be vigorous and active, and what thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; but especially in all the work of God be lively, fervent in spirit, animated with burning love and holy zeal for his glory: serving the Lord, in prayer and praise, and all ordinances; in persevering obedience to his will, and submission to his providences, approving your fidelity unshaken to the adored Jesus.

Rejoicing in hope: believing the faithfulness of God to his promises, and going forward with cheerfulness and delight in his work and ways, knowing that your labour shall not be in vain in the Lord.

Patient in tribulation; resigned to the divine providence; calm under every provocation; with holy courage sustaining the rudest shocks of opposition and persecution; and under the longest afflictions, quietly waiting to see the salvation of God.

Continuing instant in prayer; fervently and frequently approaching a throne of grace; seeking help and strength for all the work and service to which you are called; deeply conscious of your own insufficiency, without continual supplies of power from on high, to do any thing aright before God.

Distributing to the necessity of saints; cheerfully, liberally, according to their wants, and your abilities. Given to hospitality; welcoming to your house and table those who for the sake of Christ are destitute, and giving them that warm and cordial reception which true charity dictates.

Bless them which persecute you: bless, and curse not. Speaking of them and to them respectfully; commending what is praise-worthy in them, never returning railing for railing; never harbouring a thought of resentment against your most malignant revilers; forgiving them, and praying to God, that he would forgive them also, and turn their hearts.

Rejoice with them that do rejoice; sharing their joys, and, instead of envying, sincerely partaking of their prosperity; and weep with them that weep; feeling the tenderest sympathy with them in their sufferings; and by prayer, advice, and every assistance, desirous to alleviate or remove the sorrows of the miserable.

Be of the same mind one toward another; united as much as may be in sentiment; and where any lesser difference in judgment subsists, still preserving the same warm affection towards each other; wishing all good to your brethren, and seeking to promote each other's happiness.

Mind not high things; affect not pre-eminence; aspire not after the honours and dignities of the world; nor court the company of the great: but condescend to men of low estate: treating your inferiors with kindness: and to whatever eminence or affluence you may arrive, be courteous, affable, and free to the lowest; ready to stoop to every proper office of love for the service and comfort of the meanest saint of God. Or, condescend to low things, as the words may be rendered: let your mind be humbled to your condition, and cheerfully acquiesce in every dispensation of providence, however strait and necessitous your circumstances may be.

Be not wise in your own conceits. Beware of entertaining a high imagination of your own abilities, gifts, or graces; treating the advice and admonitions of others with scorn, as if you were above all teaching, and satisfied in your own self-sufficiency.

Recompense to no man evil for evil, neither in looks, words, or works.

Provide things honest in the sight of all men; not only taking care of your families and worldly concerns, but so ordering the general course of your conduct and conversation, that the unprejudiced part of mankind, at least, may bear you an honourable testimony; and that none may be able to reproach you with any thing mean, or unbecoming your Christian character.

If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men; studiously avoiding whatever may bring on disputes or uneasiness; and, as far as is consistent with truth, charity, and the glory of God, cultivating a spirit of love and peace; that at least, if through the perverseness of others it be not possible to avoid contentions, you may have the satisfaction of your own conscience in the reflection, that as much as lieth in you, it hath been your endeavour to please all men for their good to edification.

Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: forgive the injuries you receive; take no private revenge: suppress the angry passions which naturally rise within you; give the soft answer which turneth away wrath; nor, by opposing, irritate; but however unreasonable others may appear, yield, or go away till the storm hath subsided: and if, after all, you meet with implacable resentment, refer the matter to God; for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord. This is his prerogative, and not to be invaded by us. As magistracy is his ordinance, in some cases, for the good of society, we are bound to have recourse thereto; in others, where ourselves are only concerned, we must wait the great decisive day, when every man shall receive according as his work is. Therefore, if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head; either by such instances of kindness you will melt him down, (as the refiners do their metals,) into repentance, and gain his heart to love you; or, if he continues obstinate in hatred, it will exceedingly aggravate his condemnation, to add base ingratitude to his unprovoked enmity.

Finally, Be not overcome of evil; let no ill-usage, however aggravated, repeated, or persisted in, discompose your spirit, weary out your patience, or quench your charity; so as that you should give way to anger, be enslaved by corruption, and afford the enemy an occasion to triumph over your infirmity. But overcome evil with good, which is the most glorious conquest, the proof of the noblest spirit, and the assured evidence that you are born of him who causeth his sun to rise upon the evil and the good, and sendeth his rain upon the just and upon the unjust. Lord Jesus, give me such a heart, and stamp this thy image on my soul!

CHAP. XIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

There are three good lessons taught us in this chapter: 1. A lesson of subjection to lawful authority, ver. 1—6. 2. A lesson of justice and love to our brethren, ver. 7—10. 3. A lesson of sobriety and godliness in ourselves, ver. 11. to the end.

1. LET every [a] soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are *ordained of God. 2. [b] Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. 3. [c] For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same: 4. For he is [d] the minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is [e] the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil. 5. [f] Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience' sake. 6. For, for this cause pay ye tribute also:† for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing. 7. [f] Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due: custom to whom custom; [g] fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.

a Titus 3. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 13—17. with 1 Cor. 7. 21. Jude 8. 2 Pet. 2. 10. Prov. 8. 15, 16. Dan. 2. 21. & 4. 32. John 19. 11.

* Or ordered.

b 1 Sam. 29. 9. Jer. 27. 8. Tit. 3. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 13.

c Prov. 14. 35. & 16. 13. 1 Pet. 2 14. & 3. 13. Deut. 25. 1.

d Ver. 1, 2, 6. 1 Chr. 28. 7. 2 Chr. 19. 6. 1 Kin. 10. 9. Jer. 25. 9. & 27. 6. 1 Pet. 2. 13, 14. John 19. 11. Dan. 2. 21. & 4. 32. Prov. 8. 15, 16. 1 Chr. 29. 23.

e 1 Sam. 24. 5. Eccl. 8. 2. 1 Pet. 2. 13. ver. 1—3.

† The question, Is it lawful to pay tribute to Cæsar? was much agitated at this time, not in Judea only, but also in all the heathen countries where the Jews were settled.

f Mat 22. 21. Mark 12. 17. Luke 20. 25. Acts 5. 57.

g Eph. 5. 23. & 6. 5. Mal. 1. 6. Exod. 20. 12. 1 Pet. 2. 17.

Verses 1—7. From the duties they owed to each other, as members of civil society, the apostle proceeds to enforce submission in all lawful things to the authority of the civil government under which they lived. The Christian doctrine makes no alteration in the natural and civil rights of mankind. Dominion is not founded in grace; therefore, let every soul be subject unto the higher powers; respectful and obedient to all lawful magistrates, from the highest to the lowest, and willingly observant of the laws, with the execution of which they are intrusted. For there is no power but of God; he is the source of all authority, dignity, and honour; by him kings reign. The powers that be are ordained of God; whatever be the mode of government, whether the ruling power be lodged in the hands of one person or many, submission is our duty; and though the men who are invested with the authority be ever so vile and wicked, their lawful commands are nevertheless to be obeyed; and the magistrate is to be honoured, however despicable the man may appear. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, and refuses obedience to the lawful orders of the established government, resisteth the ordinance of God; and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation, (κριμα) the punishment due to their offence, according to the laws, from the sword of the magistrate, and judgment also from God, for the transgression against his ordinance. For rulers are not a terror to good works: they who are quiet and submissive have nothing to fear, for such subjects the magistrates are bound to protect and cherish;

but they are appointed to restrain the evil actions of men, which tend to disturb the peace of society, to dishonour God, or injure their neighbour. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, peaceable and obedient to the laws, and thou shalt have praise of the same; in every well-ordered government such subjects will be protected and encouraged. For he is the minister of God, appointed to preserve the peace of the state, to redress injuries, administer justice, suppress vice, profaneness, and immorality; to punish offenders, and promote the general welfare: and therefore if thou art found obedient, the office of magistracy will be to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, and violate the established laws, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain; being obliged by his very office impartially to inflict the penalty due to every offence; for he is the minister of God, who puts the sword of judgment into his hands, as a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil; not out of any private personal resentment, but coolly as God's vicegerent, without partiality or favour, according to the dictates of justice. Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, merely through fear of punishment and penalties, but also for conscience' sake; from a principle of duty towards God, whose ordinance is binding, and obedience for his sake is due to human laws, though no pains or penalties were annexed. For, for this cause pay ye tribute also; the taxes and duties necessary for the support of the government, whose protection you enjoy; for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing; and therefore every fraud committed against the public is even more criminal than if it merely affected an individual. Render therefore to all their dues, according to the laws human or divine: tribute to whom tribute is due, custom to whom custom; all subsidies, taxes, &c. imposed by lawful authority: fear to whom fear and reverence should be paid; honour to whom honour is due according to the superior rank and relation in which by the providence of God they are placed.

h Mat. 7. 12. Prov. 3. 27, 28. Gal. 5. 15.

8. [h] Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: [i] for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. 9. For this, [k] Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, [l] Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. 10. [m] Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

i 1 Tim. 1. 5. Jam. 2. 8.

k Exod. 20. 12—17. Deut. 5. 16—21. Mat. 19. 18, 19. James 2. 11.

l Lev. 19. 18. Mat. 22. 39. Gal. 5. 14. Jam. 2. 11.

m 1 Cor. 13. 4—7. Mat. 22. 40.

Verses 8—10. From the payment of dues to magistrates, the apostle passes on to enforce the discharge of every debt, to whomsoever due.

Owe no man any thing; never run in debt where you have no immediate prospect of paying, nor continue in debt when you have ability to discharge it; and in every relation of life be ready to fulfil the duty which you owe. One debt there is, however, and but one, where, though ever paying, you neither wish nor desire that it should be less, and that is, to love one another as men, and especially as Christians, seeking to promote each other's present and eternal welfare; and this, as the great and reigning principle in all your conduct; for he that loveth another, and, from a sense of the love of God in Christ, experiences this Godlike charity, hath fulfilled the law; if his love were perfect, he would be complete in all the will of God; which is not indeed the lot of man in this life; it is reserved for the felicity of a better. Yet so far as love is in vigorous exercise, so far will his spiritual obedience advance towards perfection; For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, and act conscientiously towards them, as, were our circumstances reversed, we might reasonably expect they should behave towards us; for then, were there no human restraints or punishments, love would itself effectually prevent every violation of our neighbour's person, goods, or fame; we cannot hurt the body, which we love; we cannot defraud those we love; we cannot speak evil of those we love; we cannot defile those we love; though lawless lust (which is real hatred) often covers its horrid features with the false vizor of this sacred name. Love worketh no ill to his neighbour, neither in act nor intention; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

11. And that, knowing the time, that [n] now it is high time to awake out of sleep: [o] for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed. 12. [p] The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore [q] cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on [r] the armour of [s] light. 13. [t] Let us walk † honestly, as in the day; [u] not in rioting and drunkenness, [x] not in chambering and wantonness, [y] not in strife and envying. 14. But [z] put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and [a] make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof.

n 1 Cor. 15. 34. Eph. 5. 14. 1 Thes. 5. 6. Mat. 25. 5.

o Luke 21. 28. Jam. 4. 14. Rev. 22. 7, 12, 20.

p Song 2. 17.

q Eph. 5. 11. 1 Thes. 5. 7. John 3. 20. Job 24. 14—17. Col. 3. 5, 8. Eph. 5. 3.

r 2 Cor. 6. 7. Col. 3. 10—17. 1 Thes. 5. 8. Eph. 6. 11—18.

s John 1. 4, 9. & 3. 19. & 8. 12. & 12. 35. or Mat. 5. 16. Phil. 2. 15, 16.

t Phil. 1. 27. & 4. 8. 2 Cor. 1. 12. Acts 24. 16. ch. xii, xiii. Eph. 5. 15. iv—vi. 1 Thes. v. & 4-12. 1 Pet. 2. 12. † Or decently. u Luke 21. 34. Gal. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 4. 3. x Gal. 5. 19. Eph. 5. 3—5. 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Col. 3. 5. 1 Thes. 4. 3, 5. 1 Pet. 4. 3. y Jam. 3. 14—16. & 4. 1. Gal. 5. 15, 26. z Gal. 3. 27. & 2. 20. Eph. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10. Rev. 16. 15. & 19. 8. Is. 61. 10. Gal. 5. 16. a Gal. 5. 17, 24. 1 Pet. 2. 11. 1 John 2. 16. Col. 3. 5, 8. Eph. 5. 3, 4. Luke 21. 34.

Verses 11—14. The apostle enforces what he had been recommending to their practice by a very awful consideration. And this duty of love I press upon you, knowing the time, the day of gospel grace and light having broke upon us; so that now it is high time to awake out of sleep, and shake off all spiritual sloth, and carnal security; for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed; and as our journey's end draws nearer, we should mend our pace, not loiter, when the mansions of eternal rest are, as it were, in view. The night is far spent, the night of trials and afflictions, of remaining ignorance and corruption, is drawing to an end, the day of our complete redemption from darkness, trouble, sin, and suffering, is at hand, when in eternal glory our sun shall rise to set no more: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness; as persons rising from their beds remove the clothes, so must we reject and put far away all those sinful tempers and practices, which are opposite to the light of truth, are usually done in secret, and for which the blackness of darkness is the reserved punishment; and let us put on the armour of light; all those bright and shining graces of the Spirit, which adorn our holy profession, and enable us to stand against the assaults of sin, the world, and Satan, till triumphantly we shall appear in all the lustre of eternal glory. Therefore let us walk honestly as in the day, showing a conversation such as becometh godliness in the eyes of men; guided by the light of truth, and the spirit of purity; and able to bear the strictest scrutiny of our observers; not in rioting and drunkenness, indulging to excess in meat and drink our sensual appetites, not in chambering and wantonness, for which sensuality supplies the fuel; but restraining every lascivious thought, immodest word, indecent action, as well as abstaining from the grosser pollutions which are in the world through lust; not in strife and envying, contentions, quarrelsome, and grieved, instead of rejoicing in the prosperity of our neighbours. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, that you may be complete in him; put on his righteousness, as your glorious dress; put on his image, that being like him, you may come to be with him; put on his holy profession, owning your own entire dependence upon him, as your prophet, priest, and king, that all who see you may take knowledge of you that you indeed belong to him; and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof; let your soul, and your eternal interests, be your great concern, without anxiety about a wordly provision; and, especially mortify your sensual appetites in whatever would tend to inflame the native corruption of your hearts; and to as many as walk after this rule, peace be on them and mercy, and on the Israel of God.

CHAP. XIV.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle, in order to cultivate mutual love and peace between the Jewish and Gentile converts, (1.) Cautions the one against judging, and the other against despising their brethren in indifferent things, ver. 1—13. (2.) He exhorts the Gentiles rather to forego the use of their Christian liberty, than offend their Jewish brethren in these things, ver. 14—23.

1. HIM [a] that is weak in the faith receive ye, but * not to doubtful disputations. 2. For [b] one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, [c] eateth herbs. 3. [d] Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him. 4. [e] Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth; yea, he shall be holden up: for God is [f] able to make him stand. 5. [g] One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. [h] Let every man be † fully persuaded in his own mind. 6. He that ‡ regardeth the day, regardeth it [i] unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for [k] he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks. 7. [l] For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. 8. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. 9. [m] For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living. 10. But [n] why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for [o] we shall all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ. 11. For it is written, [p] As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God. 12. So then [q] every one of us shall give account of himself to God. 13. [r] Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, [s] that no man put a stumbling-block, or an occasion to fall, in his brother's way.

a Is. 42. 3. & 35. 3, 4. Ezek. 34. 4, 6. Mat. 18. 10. ch. 15. 1, 7. 1 Cor. 8. 11. & 9. 22.

* Or not to disputatious reasonings.

b 1 Cor. 10. 25. 1 Tim. 4. 3. Tit. 1. 15.

c Dan. 1. 12. Lev. 17. 10—14.

d Acts 10. 34, 44. Col. 2. 16.

e 1 Cor. 4. 4. Jam. 4, 11, 12.

f Will make, as ch. 4. 21. & 11. 23. Heb. 2. 18. ver. 3.

g Gal. 4. 10. Col. 2. 16.

h Phil. 3. 15. ver. 23.

† Or fully assured.

‡ Or observeth.

i 1 Cor. 10. 31. 1 Pet. 4. 11.

k 1 Cor. 10. 26, 28. Mat. 14. 19. & 15. 35. & 26. 26. 1 Tim. 4. 3, 4.

l 1 Cor. 6. 19, 20. Gal. 2. 20. 2 Cor. 5. 15. 1 Thes. 5. 10. 1 Pet. 4. 2. Eph. 1. 12. Phil. 1. 21—23. Rev. 14. 13.

m Acts 10. 42. Rev. 1. 18. 2 Cor. 5. 15. Acts 2. 36. Mat. 28. 18. Phil. 2. 9—11.

n Ver. 3, 4.

o 2 Cor. 5. 10. Eccl. 12. 14. Mat. 25. 32. John 5. 22. Rev. 20. 12.

p Is. 45. 23. Phil. 2. 10. Rev. 5. 13.

q Mat. 12. 36. Luke 16. 2. Heb. 13 17. 1 Pet. 4. 5. 1 Cor. 3. 8. & 4. 5. 2 Cor. 5. 10 Gal. 6. 4, 5.

r Ver. 3, 4. Mat. 7. 1, 2. Jam. 4. 11. & 3. 1. & 2. 4.

s 1 Cor. 8. 9. & 10. 32. 2 Cor. 6. 3. Mat. 18. 7—9. Luke 18. 2.

Verses 1—13. As many of the Jewish converts still retained a high veneration for the Mosaical institutions, and were scrupulous in observing a distinction of meats and days, from which the Gentile Christians justly apprehended themselves entirely at liberty, the apostle therefore recommends a kind condescension to the educational prejudices of the Jewish brethren, and that there should be no coolness or distance between them on account of these indifferent matters. Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, heartily embracing and welcoming them, but not to doubtful disputations, not perplexing them with useless disputes about things of a trivial nature.

1. Respecting meats. One believeth that he may eat all things, and, satisfied about the abolition of the ceremonial law, counts nothing any longer common or unclean, eating without scruple whatever kind of wholesome food is set before him. Another who is weak, through the prejudice of education, or want of light, fearful of using any meat but what is permitted by the law of Moses, and killed according to the manner there prescribed, (Lev. xvii. 10—14.) when he is invited to eat with Gentiles, lest he should incur ceremonial defilement, abstains from their victuals, and eateth only herbs. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not, as weak and superstitious, priding himself on his superior knowledge, and clearer views of his Christian liberty: and, on the other hand, let not him that eateth not, judge him that eateth; and being prejudiced and narrow in his own conceptions, dare uncharitably to censure his brother as a loose liver, and irreligious professor, because he hath no such scruples about indifferent matters: for God hath received him into his favour, and therefore, whom he accepts, none should condemn. Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. It is the highest arrogance to usurp God's throne, and sit in judgment on our brother, who is responsible to God alone, and uses only that liberty which he is in conscience satisfied God allows. Yea, and whatever rash censures the weak and superstitious may cast upon him, he shall be holden up; the Lord will strengthen and preserve him through faith unto salvation, for God is able to make him stand, persevering in fidelity unto the end, and appearing with boldness in the day of judgment. Note, (1.) Nothing is more contrary to the spirit of charity than rash and hasty censures. (2.) We are to leave every man to the great Judge, nor should pretend to decide upon their everlasting state, without the clearest warrant of God's word.

2. Respecting days. One man esteemeth one day above another, as the Jewish converts did, who paid a particular regard to the passover, pentecost, new moons, and other feast and fast days, as more sacred than others: another esteemeth every day alike, counting all those Jewish distinctions abolished. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind; and, being satisfied in his own conscience, be content that others should judge for themselves, allowing them the same liberty we claim ourselves; charitably concluding, that he that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord, intending therein to glorify the Lord Jesus, who on mount Sinai, at first enjoined the ceremonial law; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it, from the same principle, and with a view to the Redeemer's glory, by whose authority they suppose the Mosaical institutions are laid aside. He that eateth, as the converted Gentile, every kind of meat without scruple, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks, and is persuaded that all the creatures of God are good, when sanctified by the word of God, and by prayer: and he that eateth not, supposing that the prohibition of a variety of meats enjoined by Moses is still in force, to the Lord he eateth not, pursuaded in conscience he ought to abstain, and giveth God thanks for the food which he hath allowed him under the law. In these points, therefore, we should bear and forbear; nor for such trifles dispute and break the bonds of Christian love.

3. Our grand end and aim in these things, and all others, should be the glory of God. For none of us liveth to himself; we are not our own, and must not live as self-seekers, or self-pleasers; we are bought with a price, that we should glorify God in our bodies and in our spirits, which are his: and no man dieth to himself, wishing to get rid of his troubles, or to gain a name; or selfishly desiring his crown before the time when God shall appoint him an end to his warfare; for whether we (who are truly the servants of Jesus) live, we live unto the Lord, desirous to be, and do, and suffer, according to his holy will and pleasure; or whether we die, a natural, lingering, sudden, or violent death we die unto the Lord, resigned to his will, committing all our concerns into his hands, and with our departing breath desiring to exalt his great and glorious name, and to commend the goodness of our God; whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's, belong to him as his devoted servants; as his inseparable property depending on him, and singly aiming at his glory. And thus, whether we are weaker or stronger believers, we have all one purpose, one end, one home. For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, having made the great atonement for the sins of his people, and being raised in token of God's approbation of his undertaking, and seated on the mediatorial throne, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living, as head over all things to his church; invested with universal dominion and authority, to rule the living, to revive the dead; and when in the day of his appearing and glory, the dead shall rise, the living be changed, he will be the object of their everlasting praises. Since then we are Christ's, and he alone hath dominion over us, it becomes us never to usurp authority over the consciences of our brethren, or to pass censures on the dead or the living. We have one Master only, whose approbation we need be solicitous to secure.

4. We must each, shortly, answer for ourselves before God; and therefore to his judgment all should be referred. But why dost thou judge thy brother, as lax and latitudinarian, because you are rigid and scrupulous? or why, on the other hand, dost thou set at nought thy brother, as an ignorant, weak, and despicable bigot, because he thinks that evil, which you know to be innocent? This is to take the matter out of God's hands, and to erect an unhallowed tribunal: for we shall all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ, and by his sentence, and no other, must stand or fall for ever. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God: owning me the eternal Jehovah, acknowledging my eternal glory and Godhead, and bowing before the sceptre of my judgment, as accountable to me alone, and expecting from my lips the decision of their eternal state for happiness or misery: so then every one of us shall give an account of himself to God, to Christ to whom all judgment is committed, and who is essentially very God. Let us not therefore judge one another any more, with any rash and precipitate censures: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumblingblock, or an occasion to fall, in his brother's way; and whatever knowledge he may have of Christian liberty, yet to be careful so to use it, as not willingly to grieve or ensnare his brother, by tempting him to sin, by giving him a handle for censure, or emboldening him to do what his conscience may not be satisfied is right. Note, Our great concern is to prepare for a judgment-day, and the best means to be ready for it is to keep it often in our view, and to bring ourselves thither in self-examination, before the Lord shall cite us to his bar.

14. [t] I know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing * unclean of itself: but to him that esteemeth any thing to be * unclean, to him it [u] is unclean. 15. But if thy brother be † grieved with thy meat, now walkest thou [u] not † charitably. Destroy not him with thy meat [x] for whom Christ died. 16. [y] Let not then your good be evil spoken of: 17. [z] For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but [a] righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. 18. [a] [b] For he that in these things serveth Christ is acceptable to God, and approved of men. 19. [c] Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another. 20. [d] For meat destroy not [e] the work of God. All things indeed are pure; but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence. 21. [f] It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak. 22. Hast thou [g] faith? have it to thyself before God. [h] Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth. 23. And he that [i] doubteth is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: for whatsoever is not of faith is sin.

[t] Gen. 1. 31. Mat. 15. 11. 1 Tim. 4. 4. Tit. 1. 15. 1 Cor. 8. 7—10.
* Gr. common.
[u] 1 Cor. 13. 4. & 8. 11. ver. 20.
† Gr. according to charity.
[x] 1 Tim. 2. 6. Heb. 2. 9. 2 Pet. 2. 1. 1 John 2. 2.
[y] Ch. 12. 16. 1 Cor. 10. 29, 30.
[z] 1 Cor. 4. 20. Luke 17. 21. 1 Tim. 4. 8. Gal. 5. 6. 1 Cor. 8. 8. ch. 2. 28, 29. Heb. 13. 9.
[a] Mat. 6. 33. 2 Cor. 5. 21. John 14. 27. & 16. 33. 2 Cor. 1. 12. Rom. 5. 2—5. & 8. 16. & 12. 12, 18. & 15. 13. Gal. 5. 22, 23. Phil. 3. 3.
[b] Acts 24. 16. Phil. 1. 10, 11, 27. & 2. 15, 16. Col. 1. 22. 1 Pet. 2. 5, 12—15, 20. & 3. 13, 16.
[c] Ch. 12. 18. & 15. 2. Ps. 34. 14. Phil. 3. 16. Heb. 12. 14. 1 Cor. 14. 12, 26. 2 Cor. 12. 19. Eph. 4. 29. 1 Thes. 5. 11, 12. 1 Pet. 3. 11. 2 Cor. 13. 11.
[d] Ver. 14, 15. Mat. 15. 11. 1 Cor. 3. 9, 16. & 8. 10. Tit. 1. 15. ver. 23.
[e] Ver. 10, 15. Eph. 2. 10.
[f] 1 Cor. 8. 13. Mat. 18. 6—10. Luke 18. 2.
[g] Ver. 2, 5, 14.
[h] 1 John 3. 21.
Acts 23. 1. & 24. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 12.
[i] Or discerneth and putteth a difference between meats. [i] Tit. 1. 15. ver. 5, 14. or staggers. Rom. 4. 20. Jam. 1. 6.

Verses 14—23. The apostle had just intimated, that they should desire mutual edification, and not abuse their Christian liberty to others' detriment.

1. As to his own sense of these ceremonial things, he saith I know, and am persuaded, by the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean of itself, the ceremonial law concerning meats being wholly abrogated, and these communicate no moral defilement to the conscience; but to him that esteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean, as he would act against his conscience if he should eat; and though his conscience be erroneous he would do evil.

But, 2. Whatever conviction any man may have of the lawfulness of all kinds of food, yet, if thy brother be grieved with thy meat, through his educational prejudices, and you unkindly persist in the use of your liberty, and eat before him what he esteems forbidden, now walkest thou not charitably; destroy not him with thy meat for whom Christ died; destroy not the peace of his mind, by giving him unnecessary offence; or at least, be not the means of stumbling such, as in the judgment of charity, we may reckon among the redeemed. Those who are really the purchase of Christ's blood can indeed never perish; but what hath in its nature but the most distant tendency to endanger them must carefully be avoided.

3. Another reason why you should abridge yourself of something of your Christian liberty, is this: Let not then your good be evil spoken of; do not provoke those who are misinformed to speak evil of you, for that which is itself lawful; nor do any thing which may lessen you in men's esteem, and prevent your usefulness: nor give occasion to the enemy, by needless contentions, to speak evil of Christianity itself.

4. As the greatest points of Christianity stand distinct from all these trivial matters, no stress should be laid upon them. For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; consists not in using or abstaining from the ceremonial institutions which the law prescribed concerning these things; but it is righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. These are the grand essential matters; Righteousness, imputed and implanted; peace with God through Jesus Christ, and the sense of his love kindling ours, and engaging us to live peaceably with all men; and joy in the Holy Ghost, which this divine Spirit communicates to our souls, making us happy in God and his holy ways. For he that in these things serveth Christ; faithful to his cause, and in simplicity designing his honour, whatever his practice or sentiments may be in unessential matters, is acceptable to God; his person and services are accepted in the beloved, and he is approved of men, as a sincere convert, at least by all those of sound judgment and solid experience.

He therefore exhorts, 5. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, laying aside all uncharitable contentions; and things whereby one may edify another, not seeking our own pleasure merely but others' good. For so trivial a consideration as this or that kind of meat, destroy not the work of God, nor disturb the peace, and love, and harmony, which should subsist between fellow Christians, and which it is the great design of God in his gospel to produce in the hearts of the faithful. All things indeed are pure, I will admit, to those who have knowledge; but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence; and the liberty of using any meat, which in itself was lawful, becomes criminal, when we choose rather to offend a weak brother, than forego the gratification of our appetite for his sake. In such a case it is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak. It would be right and prudent to abstain from any of these creatures, however good in themselves, and lawful to be used, rather than be a hinderance to the weak, grieve or discourage the less enlightened, or tempt our brother rashly to censure us, or with a doubting conscience to follow our example. Hast thou faith, and art satisfied concerning the abrogation of the ceremonial institutions; have it to thyself before God, and use thy liberty to God's glory on proper occasions. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth, and never exposes himself to the just reproaches of his conscience, by warping his better judgment to gratify his covetousness, his pleasure, or his pride. And where this is the case, he that doubteth about the propriety of what he is going to do, supposes there may be a difference between meats lawful and unlawful, and therefore hesitates whether he shall eat or not, is damned if he eat; his conscience will condemn him, because he is not sure that he hath God's warrant for what he doth, and eateth not of faith; for whatsoever is not of faith is sin. God's word must be our rule; we must ever from thence receive our directions; and where our minds are not fully satisfied concerning his will, nothing must tempt us to take one step farther. We are safe, though mistaken, when we through jealousy abridge ourselves of our liberty; but where we presumptuously act, though doubts remain, we show an evident disregard to God's authority, and violate the sacred dictates of conscience.

CHAP. XV.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle in pursuance of his discourse, (1.) Directs the strong in faith to bear with the weak, ver. 1—6. (2.) That all should receive one another as brethren, ver. 7—12. (3.) Draws to a conclusion of his epistle, ver 13—33.

1. WE [a] then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. 2. [b] Let every one of us please his neighbour for his good to edification. 3. [c] For even Christ pleased not himself; but, as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me. 4. [d] For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning; that we, through patience and comfort of the scriptures, might have hope. 5. [e] Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be [f] like-minded one toward another, *according to Christ Jesus: 6. That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the [g] Father of our LORD Jesus Christ.

a Exod. 23. 5. ch. 14. 1. 1 Cor. 9. 22. Gal. 6. 1, 2. b Ch. 14. 19. 1 Cor. 9. 19. & 13. 5. & 10. 24, 33. Phil. 2. 4, 5. c Is. 53, 4, 5. Mat. 26. 39. John 5. 30. & 6. 38. Ps. 69. 9, 20. & 89. 50, 51.
d Ch. 4. 23, 24. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17. 2 Pet. 1. 19, 20. Heb. 13. 5. Acts 13. 40, 41. 1 Cor. 10. 11. & 9. 10. ch. 5. 3. & 8. 25. e Exod. 34. 6. 2 Cor. 1. 3. Ps. 86. 5. & 103. 8.
f 1 Cor. 1. 10. Acts 4. 32. ch. 12. 6, 16. Phil. 2. 2, & 3. 15, 16. Acts 2. 1. & 4. 32. Eph. 3. 9. Zech. 14. 9.
* Or after the example of. g 2 Cor. 1. 3. Gal. 1. 1. Eph. 1. 3. 1 John 5. 7.

Verses 1—6. The apostle infers from what he had advanced in the foregoing chapter,

1. That, We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves: having compassion towards them; making every kind allowance for their prejudices and scruples; not provoked by their rash censures, and desirous to prevent them by foregoing our own pleasure for their profit. Let every one of us therefore please his neighbour for his good to edification; not complying with him in any thing that is sinful, but in all indifferent matters ready to yield to him, in order to insinuate into his confidence, for the advantage of his soul.

2. He enforces his exhortation by the strongest motive of Christ's example. For even Christ pleased not himself; when he was under no obligations to us, he freely submitted to all hardships and sufferings for our sakes; as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me; he willingly bore the contradiction of sinners against himself; and all the reproaches which transgressors by their offences had cast on the blessed God, he bore in his own body on the tree when he made atonement for them. And in this Scripture, as well as others, we are not to suppose David speaks of himself, but of Christ, and with a view to the edification of his people, For whatsoever things were written aforetime, were written for our learning: that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope; animated by the example there set forth, to show the same meekness, patience, and forbearance: revived by the views of the great and precious promises, and comforted in the assured hope of eternal life therein revealed to us. Note, (1.) Christ's pattern should be ever in our view. "Would the Lord Jesus in our situation have thus thought, spoke, and acted?" should be our inquiry. (2.) They are the truly wise who are learned in the Scriptures, and know the way to everlasting life. (3.) The Scriptures afford us the most powerful arguments for patience under all our trials and provocations, and furnish us with the most substantial comforts under all our discouragements, both in the precious promises of present divine support, and in the prospect of the glory which shall be revealed.

3. He seconds his exhortations with his prayers. We can only speak to the ear; God must make it effectual to the heart. Now the God of patience and consolation, who is so long suffering towards us, and ready to comfort the afflicted, and is the source and author of all patience to us, and the giver of all consolation, grant you to be like-minded one towards another; united in sentiment and affection; according to Christ Jesus; copying his example, and obedient to his holy will; that ye may with one mind and one mouth, as if animated by one soul, in your religious assemblies, and in social converse, glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; in spirit and conversation desirous to exalt his great and glorious name, and show forth his praises. Note, (1.) Christians should be united in one mind, and join in the same worship: all schismatical divisions are God's abhorrence. (2.) Our prayers must follow our preachings, that God may give the blessing.

7. Wherefore [h] receive ye one another, as Christ also received us, [i] to the glory of God. 8. Now I say, that [k] Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers: 9. [l] And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; as it is written, [m] For this cause I will confess to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name. 10. And again he saith, [n] Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people. 11. And again, [o] Praise the LORD, all ye Gentiles; and laud him, all ye people. 12. And again Esaias saith, [p] There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles; in him shall the Gentiles trust. 13. Now the [q] God of hope [r] fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghost.

h Ch. 14. 15. Eph. 3. 6. John 13. 34. & 6. 37. i Ver. 8, 9. 1 Cor. 10. 31. 1 Pet. 4. 11.
k Mat. 15. 24. John 1. 11. Acts 3. 25, 26. & 13. 46. ch. 3. 3. & 9. 4. 2 Cor. 1. 20. Acts 10. 43.
l John 10. 16. ch. 9. 23, 24. & 11. 22, 30. Eph. 1—iii.
m Ps. 18. 49. 2 Sam. 22. 50.
n Deut. 32. 43. Is. 24. 14, 16. & 42. 11.
o Ps. 117. 1. & 47. 1. & 66. 1, 4. & 67. 3—5. & 68. 32. & 96. 1. & 97. 1.
p Is. 11. 1, 10. & 9. 6, 7. & 42. 1, 4, 6. & 49. 6, 22. & 54. 3, 5. & 60. 3, 5. Dan. 2. 44. & 7. 14. Mic. 5. 4. Rev. 5. 5. & 22. 16.
q Jer. 14. 8. & 17. 7. Ps. 22. 4. 1 Tim. 6. 17. 1 Pet. 1. 3.
r Phil. 4. 11. 1 Thes. 5. 16, 18. 2 Thes. 2. 16, 17. ch. 14. 17. Heb. 6. 11, 18, 19. ch. 12. 12, 18.

Verses 7—13. The apostle returns to enforce his former exhortation. Wherefore receive ye one another, with brotherly affection, in friendly intercourse, and holy communion, as Christ also received us, whether Jews or Gentiles, notwithstanding all our infirmities, to the glory of God; as this was the end he had in view, the same must we propose to ourselves.

1. Christ had received the Jewish converts. Now I say, that Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision; submitted himself to that bloody rite, and personally ministered to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, for the truth of God, to display his faithfulness to his covenant, and to confirm the promises made unto the fathers, that of their seed Christ should come. Now as this put a peculiar honour upon the Jews, their Gentile brethren should not despise them, because of any weak attachment to the ceremonial institutions.

2. Christ had also received the Gentiles to the participation of the same privileges, and therefore this should engage the brotherly regards of their Jewish brethren, since the salvation that Jesus obtained was to extend to them, that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy, who now at last looked with compassion upon them, and had called them into his church: as it is written, For this cause I will confess to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name. Because thou hast given me the heathen for my inheritance, I will declare thy word among them, and call upon them to offer their thanksgivings for the inestimable blessings of which in the gospel they are made partakers. And again, in another prophecy, he saith, Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people: incorporated with them, sharing their privileges, and therefore happy in the experience of the same gospel grace. And again, it is said, Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud him, all ye people; joining your voices together in the great congregation, the partition wall being taken down. And again, Esaias saith, There shall be a root of Jesse, the divine Messiah, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles, exalted to the mediatorial throne, and extending his conquests over the souls of sinners to the ends of the earth; in him shall the Gentiles trust; placing their dependence upon him as their only Lord and Saviour. All which prophecies clearly show, that the time should come when the Gentiles should be fellow-heirs, and of the same body; and therefore the Jewish converts should with hearty affection embrace their Gentile brethren as all one in Christ Jesus.

3. The apostle adds his affectionate prayer for them both. Now the God of hope, who in Christ Jesus is the ground and author of our hope of all the spiritual and eternal blessings, fill you with all joy and peace in believing; enabling you to lay hold of the promises of the everlasting covenant, and giving you the abundance of divine consolations, and of that peace which passeth all understanding; that ye may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghost; in the fullest assurance of possessing the eternal blessedness above, the earnests and foretastes of which the Spirit gives, in the light, strength, and comforts which he now communicates. Note, (1.) When faith is in exercise, then our souls will be happy even here below. (2.) The Christian's hope never makes ashamed, because it never can disappoint him. (3.) They who would abound in hope, peace, and joy, should be much in prayer to him who is the giver of every good gift, and whose face none need seek in vain.

14. [s] And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, that ye also are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another. 15. Nevertheless, brethren, I have written [t] the more boldly unto you in some sort, as putting you in mind, because of [u] the grace that is given to me of God. 16. That I should be [x] the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, [y] that the † offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost.

s Heb. 6. 9. & 3. 1. 2 Pet. 1. 12. 1 John 2. 21. Phil. 1. 7, 11. Col. 1. 10. Eph. 5. 9. Gal. 5. 22, 23. 1 Thes. 5. 14. Heb. 10. 24.
t 2 Cor. 2. 3. 2 Pet. 1. 12, 13, 15. & 3. 1. Heb. 13. 22. 1 Tim. 4. 6. 2 Tim. 1. 6. & 2. 14. Jude 3, 5.
u Ch. 1. 5. & 12. 6. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 15. 10. & 3. 10. Gal. 1. 15. & 2. 9.
x Acts 9. 15. & 13. 2. & 22. 21. & 26. 17, 18. ch. 11. 13. 1 Cor. 3. 5. 2 Cor. 3. 6. Gal. 1. 16. & 2. 7, 8. 1 Tim. 2. 7. 2 Tim. 1. 11. Eph. 3. 8.
y Is. 66. 19, 20. Phil. 2. 17. ch. 12. 1, 2. 1 Pet. 2. 5. Phil. 4. 18. Heb. 13. 16.
† Or sacrificing.

Verses 14—16. St Paul here,

1. Expresses the high estimation in which he held them. And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, from the gracious testimony borne to you by those who are acquainted with your state, that ye also are full of goodness: enriched with every gracious fruit of the Spirit, with tender benevolence and sympathy, willing to bear and forbear, and united in love and peace, notwithstanding any lesser differences of opinion; filled with all knowledge, in the great essential points of the gospel revelation; able also to admonish one another, and to communicate your gifts for mutual edification.

2. He elegantly apologizes for the freedom he had taken in reproving, advising, and exhorting them, who were themselves so eminent in gifts and graces. Nevertheless, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you, in some sort, as putting you in mind; rather as your monitor, to refresh your memory, than, setting up myself for your instructor, as if you were ignorant. The liberty he used with them was what his office obliged to: because of the grace that is given to me of God; honoured by him with apostleship: that I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, discharging the office of a Christian priest with unwearied diligence, fidelity, and zeal; that the offering up of the Gentiles, their spiritual sacrifices of prayer and praise, might be acceptable, through Jesus Christ, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost, and thereby infinitely more excellent than any of the oblations that were ever made at the temple.

17. [z] I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ in those things which pertain to God. 18. [a] For I will not dare to speak of any of those things which Christ hath not wrought by me, [b] to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed, 19. [c] Through mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God; [d] so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ. 20. Yea, [e] so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another man's foundation: 21. But, as it is written, [f] To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they that have not heard shall understand.

z Ps. 115. 1. 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7. 2 Cor. 2. 14—16. with Heb. 5. 1. a Prov. 25. 14. 2 Cor. 10. 15.
b Ch. 1. 5. & 16. 26. 1 Cor. 4. 15. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. c Acts 19. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 12. 12. Heb. 2. 4. 1 Pet. 1. 12.
d Acts 9. 22, 29. & 12. 25. & 13. 2. 11. & 14. 10, 26. & 16. 18. & 7. 1, 10, 16. & 18. 9. & 9. 6, 11. & 20. 2, 20, 27. & 21. 19. & 23. 5, 8. Gal. 2. 8. Acts 20. 20. 2 Tim. 4. 7.
e 2 Cor. 12. 15, 16. 1 Cor. 3. 1, 5. Eph. 2. 20.
f Is. 52. 15. & 65. 1. Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19. Eph. 3. 8.

Verses 17—21. Having mentioned his office, as the apostle of the Gentiles, he glories therein. I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ, by whose grace I have been so supported, and who hath given such eminent success to my labours, in those things which pertain to God, wherein his glory is so greatly concerned, and in the conversion of the Gentiles so highly exalted. Or the words may be rendered, I have therefore a rejoicing in Christ concerning the things of God; that is, the Gentiles, who are offered up to him as living sacrifices, in which he felt the most unfeigned satisfaction. For I will not dare to speak of any of those things which Christ hath not wrought by me; far be all arrogant boasts from me; nor would I ascribe the least honour to myself, but only to him whose efficacious grace, under my preaching, hath wrought powerfully, to make the Gentiles obedient by word and deed: showing forth by an open confession, and a becoming conversation, the reality of their conversion to God, through mighty signs and wonders, which were wrought in confirmation of my divine mission, by the power of the Spirit of God, whose mighty influence gives energy and demonstration to the word preached: so that from Jerusalem and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ; diffusing with indefatigable labours the light of truth through Syria, Lesser Asia, and Greece; and keeping back nothing of the whole counsel of God concerning the free and perfect salvation of sinners through the great Redeemer. Yea, so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named; but with a holy ambition I went rather to the places where he was wholly unknown, lest I should build upon another man's foundation, and so be thought to be inferior to those who went before, and to have borrowed my knowledge from them, and so should have wanted a signal proof of my doctrine and office, as immediately received from Christ himself. But as it is written, (Isa. lii. 15.) so hath it been fulfilled by my ministry; To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see; and they that have not heard, shall understand: the Gentiles, who lay in darkness, utterly ignorant of the Messiah and his kingdom, shall see the light of life, and be made wise unto salvation. Note, Whatever success attends our labours, God must have all the glory, who alone giveth the increase.

22. For which cause also [g] I have been ‡ much hindered from coming to you. 23. But now, having no more place in these parts, and having [h] a great desire these many years to come unto you; 24. Whensoever I take my journey into Spain, I will come to you: for I trust to see you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if first I be somewhat filled [i] with your company. 25. [k] But now I go unto Jerusalem ‖ to minister unto the saints. 26. [l] For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor saints which are at Jerusalem. 27. It hath pleased them verily, * and their debtors they are. [m] For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, their duty is also to minister unto them in carnal things. 28. When therefore I have performed this, and [n] have sealed to them this fruit, I will come by you into Spain. 29. And I am sure that, when I come unto you, I shall come in [o] the fulness of the blessing of the gosoel of Christ.

g Ch. 1. 13. 1 Thes. 2. 18. Acts 9. 21. & 23. 11.
‡ Or many ways, or oftentimes.
h Ch. 1. 10, 12. 1 Thes. 3. 10. 2 Tim. 1. 4. ver. 32.
i Gr. with you. ver. 32.
k Acts 18. 21. & 19. 21. & 20. 22. Gal. 2. 10.
‖ Of this journey, the apostle gave an account to Felix, Acts 24. 17.
l 1 Cor. 16. 1. 2 Cor. viii. ix. Acts 11. 27—30. 1 Cor. 9. 11. Gal. 6. 6. ch. 11. 17. Acts 1. 4, 8.
* This repetition is very emphatical.
m Acts 1. 4, 8. ch. 11. 17. 1 Cor. 9. 11. Gal. 6. 6. Is. xlix, liv, lx.
n Phil. 4. 17.
o Ch. 1. 11. Eph. 3. 8.

Verses 22—29. St Paul had travelled far, but he intended still to extend his labours to a wider circle, and visit Rome also, and the regions beyond it.

1. He had long proposed to visit them, but his many avocations had hitherto prevented him. For which cause also I have been much hindered from coming to you; but now having no more place in these parts, the gospel being fully preached, and Christian churches planted throughout the country between Jerusalem and Italy, and having a great desire these many years to come unto you, that I might impart to you some spiritual gift, and be comforted by you; whensoever I take my journey into Spain, where I purpose, God willing, to erect the gospel standard, I will come to you, and take you in my way, for I trust to see you in my journey, and, according to the kind reception I have met in other churches, to be brought on my way thitherward by you, some of you going with me, and giving me such directions and necessaries as may conduce to the success of the expedition: if first I be somewhat, or in part, filled with your company; enjoying the satisfaction of their conversation, rejoicing in their steadiness, and tasting a little of the sweetness of that communion of saints which he hoped in perfection to enjoy with them in heaven. Note, (1.) When duty detains us from those whose company we most delight in, we are ever cheerfully to forego our own pleasure, for the sake of our Master's service. (2.) All our purposes should be formed in subordination to Divine Providence. (3.) Christian fellowship is one of the greatest joys on earth, and a little foretaste of what we expect, when we shall join the spirits of the just made perfect.

2. He at present was obliged to return to Jerusalem with the collections of the several churches for their poor brethren in Judea, who by persecution and the famine were in great distress. But now I go unto Jerusalem to minister unto the saints, to distribute among them the generous contributions of their Gentile brethren; For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make a certain contribution for the poor saints which are at Jerusalem. It hath pleased them verily, thus freely and liberally to contribute of their substance, and afford a noble example of Christian benevolence: and their debtors they are; gratitude as well as charity required this at their hands. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, and have been called by them, to share in those privileges that were long peculiar to the church of Israel, their duty is also, in return, to minister unto them in carnal things, (λειτουργησαι) honouring God by a conscientious and liberal supply of their wants.

3. When he had finished this work, he expresses his confidence that he shall come to them. When therefore I have performed my present journey and service, and have sealed to them this fruit, careful that it be rendered up to them undiminished, I will come by you into Spain. And I am sure, that when I come unto you, I shall come in the fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ, as a merchant vessel richly fraught, bringing with me the inestimable treasures of the gospel-word, for your most abundant edification and comfort. Note, It is a happy meeting between a minister and his people, when he thus comes to them in the fulness of the blessings of the gospel of Christ.

30. [p] Now I beseech you, brethren, for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me; 31. [q] That I may be delivered from them that ‖ do not believe in Judea; and that [r] my service which I have for Jerusalem may be accepted of the saints; 32. [s] That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreshed. 33. Now [t] the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

p Phil. 2. 1. Col. 4. 3, 12. 2 Cor. 1. 11. Eph. 6. 19, 20. 1 Thes. 5. 25. 2 Thes. 3. 1.
q Acts 20. 3, 23. & 21. 27. 1 Thes. 2. 15, 16.
‖ Or disobedient.
r See ver. 25, 26. 1 Cor. 16. 1—3. 2 Cor. 8. 4. & 9. 1. s Ver. 23, 24. Acts 18. 21. ch. 1. 10—13. 1 Cor. 1. 9. Jam. 4. 15.
t Ch. 16. 20. 1 Cor. 14. 33. 2 Cor. 13. 11. Phil. 4. 9. 1 Thes. 5. 23. 2 Thes. 3. 16. ch. 5. 1. Luke 2. 14. 2 Cor. 5. 19, 20. Eph. 2. 14, 15.

Verses 30—33. Having declared to them his purpose, he entreats their prayers, that he may be able to accomplish it.

Now I beseech you, brethren, for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, by every powerful argument, which can be drawn from the grace which is in him, whose I am, and whom I serve; and for the love of the Spirit, who visited your souls with his blessed influence; and as a proof of your being possessed of this divine principle, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me; fervently and importunately joining me in my earnest cries to God, that I may be delivered from them that do not believe in Judea, those most envenomed foes, his own infidel and wicked countrymen: and that my service which I have for Jerusalem may be accepted of the saints; that all their prejudices against him and the Gentile converts might be removed, and this benevolence thankfully and cheerfully received, to the cementing a nearer union between them. And also, that I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, having found success in this ministry, if the Lord so pleased; and may with you be refreshed, in the enjoyment of your company, and the communication of our mutual happy experience. Now, in return for the favour I ask, may the God of peace be with you all, uniting your hearts in love to his blessed self, and to one another; and filling you with all peace and prosperity in your souls. Amen. I pray that this may, and trust that it will be your happy case. Note, (1.) We are bound to desire each other's prayers, and should count these among the greatest obligations which can be conferred upon us. (2.) Our applications to a throne of grace must be fervent and agonizing, as becomes those who know the inestimable value of the prize for which they wrestle.

CHAP. XVI.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

Paul is now concluding this long and excellent epistle; and he doth it with a great deal of affection. 1. He recommends one friend to the Roman Christians, and particularly salutes several among them, ver. 1—16. 2. He gives a caution to take heed of those who caused divisions, ver. 17—20. 3. Salutations are added from some who were with Paul, ver. 21—24. 4. He concludes with a solemn celebration of the glory of God.

1. I COMMEND unto you Phebe our sister, which is a [a] servant of the church which is at Cenchrea: 2. That ye [b] receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you: for she hath been a succourer of many, and of myself also. 3. [c] Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus: 4. Who have for my life [d] laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles. 5. Likewise greet [e] the church that is in their house. Salute my well-beloved Epenetus, who [f] is the first-fruits of Achaia * unto Christ. 6. Greet Mary, who [g] bestowed much labour on us. 7. Salute Andronicus and Junia, my kinsmen, and my [h] fellow-prisoners, who are [i] of note among the apostles, who also were [k] in Christ before me. 8. Greet Amplias my [l] beloved in the Lord. 9. Salute Urbane, our [m] helper in Christ, and Stachys my beloved. 10. Salute Apelles, [n] approved in Christ. Salute them which are of Aristobulus' † household. 11. Salute Herodion my [o] kinsman. Greet them that be of the ‡ household of Narcissus, which are in the Lord. 12. Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, who [p] labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which laboured much in the Lord. 13. Salute Rufus, [q] chosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine. 14. Salute [r] Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the [s] brethren which are with them. 15. Salute Philologus, and Julia, Nereus, and his sister, and Olympas, and all [t] the saints which are with them. 16. [u] Salute one another with an holy kiss. The churches of Christ salute you.

a Ver. 2. Luke 8. 3. It is probable Phebe held the office of a female deacon in the church at Cenchrea. Both Origen and Chrysostom so understand the term here used.
b Phil. 2. 29. 3 John 6. ver. 6.
c Acts 18. 2, 26. 2 Tim. 4. 19. ver. 9, 21.
d Hazarded their lives. Acts 18. 6, 17. & 17. 5. & 19. 23, 30.
e Mat. 18. 20. 1 Cor. 16. 19. Col. 4. 15. Philem. 2.
f 1 Cor. 16. 15. Acts 18. 10.
* Rather Asia, i. e. Proconsular Asia. g Luke 8. 3. 1 Tim. 5. 10.
h Rev. 1. 9. Phil. 4. 14. 2 Tim. 1. 8. & 2. 12. Eph. 3. 1. & 4. 1.
i Gal. 1. 2, 9. Acts 1. 15. or Acts 2. 41. & 4. 4.
k 1 Cor. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 5. 17. Eph. 2. 10. Gal. 6. 15.
l 1 John 3. 14. & 5. 1. & 4. 21.
m Ver. 3, 21.
n Ch. 5. 2, 8. 1 Pet. 1. 7. Phil. 2. 22.
† Or friends.
o Ver. 7, 21.
‡ Or friends.
p Ver. 2, 3, 6, 9.
q Eph. 1. 4. 2 John 1. Mat. 20. 16. & 22. 14.
r Mat. 12. 49. John 19. 27.
s Heb. Gal. 3 1. 3. 2 3. John 20. 17. Heb. 2. 11, 12.
t Is. 60. 21. & 62. 12. Heb. 3. 1. 1 Pet. 1. 2. 1 Cor. 6. 11. Tit. 3. 5. & 2. 11, 12, 14. u 1 Cor. 16. 21. 2 Cor. 13. 12. 1 Thes. 5. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 22. & 5. 12.

Verses 1—16. The apostle now takes his leave of them:

1. With commending to them the bearer. I commend unto you Phebe our sister in the Lord, which is a servant, or a deaconess of the church which is at Cenchrea, in the neighbourhood of Corinth. She was one of those who devoted her time and substance to the service of the cause of Christ: probably her house served for the assemblies of the church, and she entertained those who came to preach the gospel among them. Therefore he desires, That ye receive her in the Lord, with all holy affection, in the Redeemer's name, and for his sake, as becometh saints, such as ye profess yourselves to be; and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you, showing her every mark of kindness and respect: for she hath been a succourer of many, and hath most hospitably received and entertained them; and of myself also; with gratitude therefore I desire to acknowledge her kindness and generosity. Note, The least return we can make for favours is to testify our gratitude to our kind benefactors.

2. He sends his affectionate salutations to many at Rome.

(1.) To Priscilla and Aquila, of whom he speaks with the deepest regard as his helpers in Christ Jesus, who had been particularly assistant to him in his labours at Corinth, and had for his life laid down their own necks, and when he was in danger rescued him at the hazard of their lives, Acts xviii. 12—17. For which noble instance of generous love, saith he, not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles, who owe the continuance of my ministry to their zeal and interposition. Likewise greet the church that is in their house; either their family, who were all professors of the faith; or the saints who usually assembled there for public worship.

(2.) To Epenetus, whom he entitles his well-beloved. So tenderly affectionate was the apostle's heart towards his spiritual children, and especially to Epenetus, as being the first-fruits of his ministry in Achaia unto Christ, and the earnest of that plenteous harvest which followed.

(3.) To Mary, whom he distinguishes as having bestowed much labour on us, peculiarly assiduous in every kind office of love towards me and my fellow-labourers.

(4.) To Andronicus and Junia, whom some suppose to be husband and wife, but others, more probably, to be brothers. They were Jews, near kinsmen to the apostle, had been endeared to him by confinement in the same prison for Christ, were persons eminent for their gifts, graces, sufferings, and services, and, he adds to their honour, who were in Christ before me, called among the earliest converts, and preaching the faith whilst he destroyed it.

(5.) To divers others, the most of whom he mentions with some note of distinction. Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord, who bears his image, and is most amiable in the relation wherein he stands to the same Divine Master. Salute Urbane, our helper in Christ, and fellow-labourer in the glorious gospel; and Stachys my beloved. Salute Apelles, approved in Christ, whose constancy and fidelity have appeared in many trials. Salute them which are of Aristobulus' household. Salute Herodion my kinsman both in the flesh and in the spirit. Greet them that be of the household of Narcissus, which are in the Lord, vitally united by faith unto him. Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, those excellent women, who labour in the Lord, in their place and station, indefatigable to serve the interests of the gospel. Salute the beloved Persis, which laboured much in the Lord, remarkably diligent in her sphere to advance the cause of God. Salute Rufus, chosen in the Lord, eminent for gifts and graces, and an elect vessel of distinguished honour: and his mother and mine, whose kindness to me lays me under such obligations of filial love as if I were by birth her son. Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren which are with them, and belong to their families, from the highest to the lowest. Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints which are with them, of their respective households. Salute one another with a holy kiss, loving one another out of a pure heart fervently. The churches of Christ salute you, joining me in the most affectionate remembrances, prayers, and good wishes.

x Mat. 18. 8, 17. Acts 15. 1, 5, 24. 1 Cor. 5. 9, 11. Gal. 1. 9. & 5. 9. Phil. 3. 2. Col. 2. 6. 2 Thes. 3. 6, 14. 1 Tim. 6. 3—5. 2 Tim. 3. 2—5. Tit. 3. 10. 2 John 10. 11.

17. Now I beseech you brethren, [x] mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and avoid them. 18. For [y] they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple. 19. For your obedience is [z] come abroad unto all men. I am glad therefore on your behalf: but yet I would have you [a] wise unto that which is good, and ‡ simple concerning evil. 20. And the [b] God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly. [c] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

y Phil. 3. 19. Is. 56. 10—12. Ezek. 13. 18. 2 Cor. 2. 17. & 4. 2. & 11. 23. Col. 2. 4. 1 Thes. 2. 3. 2 Thes. 2. 8. 1 Tim. 6. 5. 2 Tim. 2. 17. & 3. 2—6. & 4. 3. Tit. 3. 10. 2 Pet. 2. 3. Jude 2. 2 Thes. ii. Mat. 24. 11, 24. Prov. 14. 15.

z Ch. 1. 8. 1 Thes. 1. 8.

a Mat. 10. 16. 1 Cor. 14. 20. 1 Thes. 5. 21. Luke 16. 3.

‡ Or harmless.

b See ch. 15. 33. Heb. 13. 20. with Gen. 3. 15. 1 John 3. 8.

Heb. 2. 14. c Ver. 24. ch. 15. 33. 1 Cor. 16. 23. 2 Cor. 13. 14. Gal. 6. 18. Eph. 6. 24. Phil. 4. 23. Col. 4. 18. 1 Thes. 5. 28. 2 Thes. 3. 18. 1 Tim. 6. 21. 2 Tim. 4. 22. Tit. 3. 15. Heb. 13. 25. Rev. 22. 21.

Verses 17—20. Having testified his own warm affection towards them, and sought to unite them in mutual love, he adds,

1. A solemn caution. Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences, so opposite to the spirit of vital Christianity, and so contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned. Mark, with holy jealousy, those deceivers, who, under plausible pretences of greater purity of worship, rend the peace of the church, and avoid them, join not with them in communion, and shun, as the greatest evil, whatever would introduce or perpetuate needless divisions.

2. He discovers to them the true character of these pretenders, as the strongest argument to avoid them. For they that are such, serve not our Lord Jesus Christ; whatever plausible pretences and professions they make, they have not really his glory and interest at heart, but their own belly, designing some mean, selfish, sinister, worldly advantage; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple, who credulously follow them in their destructive ways. Of you I am persuaded better things; for your obedience is come abroad unto all men, and, to your honour, mention is made through all the churches of your professed and exemplary subjection to the gospel of Christ. I am glad therefore on your behalf, that you are so well established, and have not been beguiled by these false teachers: but yet knowing the weakness and folly of our fallen nature, and the subtlety of deceivers, I warn you to watch against their first efforts; for I would have you wise unto that which is good, and simple concerning evil, cautious to discern truth from error, and joining the wisdom of the serpent to the harmlessness of the dove.

3. He expresses his confidence in the Lord's preservation of them from all their enemies and seducers. Now the God of peace, reconciled to you in a covenant of everlasting love, to whose blessing and protection I have recommended you, shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly, and all his instruments, though ever so crafty. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you, to strengthen, stablish, settle you, and make you more than conquerors. Amen. Note, (1.) None do the devil's work more effectually than those who foment needless divisions among the people of God. (2.) Satan is a vanquished foe; and whomsoever it is possible for him to deceive, he cannot, we know, deceive the elect. (3.) The confidence of victory secured for us in Christ, is the greatest encouragement boldly to conflict with our spiritual enemies. (4.) The time is short; if faith and patience hold out, a moment longer, we shall be placed for ever out of the reach of sin and Satan, and reign triumphant with him who shall make our foes become our footstool. (5.) The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ must do all for us, and, therefore to his glory must all our victories be ascribed.

21. [d] Timotheus my work-fellow, and Lucius, and [e] Jason, and Sosipater, my d Acts xvi—xx. Phil. 2. 19. 1 Thes. 3. 2. Heb. 13. 23.

Acts 19. 22. & 20. 4. with 3 John 8. 1 Cor. 1. 14. 2 Tim. 4. 20. e Acts 17. 5. & 20. 4.

kinsmen, salute you. 22. [f] I Tertius, who wrote this epistle, salute you in the Lord. 23. Gaius * mine host, and of the whole church, saluteth you. Erastus, the chamberlain of the city saluteth you, and Quartus a brother. 24. [g] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

f Perhaps Silas or Silvanus. Acts 15. 22, 32—40. & xvi—xviii. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 1.

* Generally supposed to have been Gaius of Corinth, whom Paul baptized, 1 Cor. 1. 14.

g See ver. 20.

Verses 21—24. As the apostle had before saluted many of the saints by name, he adds,

1. The affectionate remembrances of some of those who were at present his companions. Timotheus my workfellow, as a son with a father, serving with me in the gospel; and Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen, salute you. I Tertius, who wrote this epistle, as the apostle's amanuensis, salute you in the Lord. Gaius mine host, and of the whole church, whose hospitable doors are ever open to the faithful, saluteth you. Erastus the chamberlain of the city saluteth you; such had been his high office, and perhaps he still continued in his post, though converted to the faith, one of the not many noble who were called; and Quartus a brother in Christ Jesus; for all who have him for their Saviour, have one Father, even God.

2. He repeats his fervent prayers for their spiritual prosperity. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. May you experience his pardoning, comforting, strengthening, sanctifying grace below, and come to his complete and eternal glory above. Amen! I pray it may be so. I trust it shall be.

25. Now to him that is [h] of power to stablish you [i] according to my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, (according to the revelation of the mystery, [k] which was kept secret since the world began, 26. But [l] now is made manifest, and by the scriptures of the prophets, [l] according to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the [n] obedience of faith:) 27. [o] To God [p] only wise, be glory through Jesus Christ for ever. Amen.

¶ Written to the Romans from Corinthus, and sent by Phebe, servant of the church at Cenchrea.

h 2 Tim. 3. 1, 12. Eph. 3. 20. Jude 24. Heb. 7. 25. 1 Thes. 3. 13. 2 Thes. 2. 17. & 3. 3.

i Ch. 2. 16. 1 Cor. 1. 23, 24, & 2. 2. Eph. 3. 8.

k 1 Cor. 2. 7. Eph. 3. 5, 9. Col. 1. 26. 2 Tim. 1. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 20. ch. 3. 21.

l Ch. 1. 5. Col. 1. 27. 2 Tim. 1. 10. Tit. 1. 3.

m Mark 16. 15. Mat. 28. 19. Is. 11. 9.

n Ch. 1. 5. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Acts 6. 7.

o Ch. 9. 5. & 11. 36. Gal. 1. 5. Phil. 4. 20. Eph. 3. 20, 21. 1 Tim. 1. 17. & 6. 16. 2 Tim. 4. 18. Heb. 13. 21. 1 Pet. 4. 11. & 5. 11. 2 Pet. 3. 18. Jude 25. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 13.

p Ps. 147. 5. Dan. 2. 21. 1 Tim. 1. 17. ch. 11. 33, 34.

Verses 25—27. Once and again, when he seemed to close his epistle, some new matter arose to his mind, here he solemnly takes his leave of them.

1. He commends them to God and the word of his grace. Now I commend you to him that is of power to stablish you, and keep you from falling, according to my gospel, which, by divine authority commissioned, I here declare unto you, and according to the preaching of Jesus Christ, agreeably to what he himself taught, and I speak in his name, pointing him out as the great sum and substance of the gospel, the hope and the help of his people; according to the revelation of the mystery which was kept secret since the world began, wholly hid from the Gentiles, and but obscurely intimated to the Jews in types and dark prophecies; but now is made manifest by the ministry of the divinely illuminated servants of Jesus, and by the Scriptures of the prophets which, having received their accomplishment, are unveiled, and clearly understood; according to the commandment of the everlasting God, who hath given his ministers an express commission to declare the unchangeable purposes of his grace, that they might be made known to all nations, Gentiles as well as Jews, for this glorious end, that they might be brought to the obedience of faith receiving the testimony of his word, and from the divine principle of faith, which worketh by love, engaged to walk before him in righteousness and true holiness.

2. He concludes with a doxology. To God only wise, essentially wise in himself, and seen especially to be so in the amazing contrivance of the gospel method of salvation, be glory and honour ascribed, through Jesus Christ the only Mediator, for ever. Amen. May his saints on earth perpetuate with their latest breath his praises! and in heaven he shall for ever be to all his hosts the glorious object of their unceasing adorations. Amen and Amen!

A PRACTICAL COMMENT

UPON THE

FIRST EPISTLE OF ST PAUL

TO THE CORINTHIANS.

Introduction.

CORINTH was a famed city of that part of Greece called Achaia, situated on the neck of land which joined the Peloponnesus, now called Morea, to Greece. Its very situation made it a most convenient mart; and, in consequence of the vast trade carried on there, it became exceeding rich and populous: so that the place was noted for pride and luxury, and lewd to a proverb. Here was the gospel standard erected by the blessed Paul, and abundant fruit of his labours appeared during his two years' stay: but, on his absence, faction arose; false teachers sought to raise a party against the apostle; disputes followed; disorders in discipline, doctrine, and morals, were introduced; and these grievous abuses, which had come to the apostle's ears, are severely reprehended. After a short introduction at the beginning of the epistle, he first blames them for their discord and factions, enters into the original and source of them, shows them how much pride and vanity, and the affectation of science, learning, and eloquence, flattered by false teachers, had contributed to the scandalous schism; and prescribes humility and submission to divine instruction, to the teaching of God by his Spirit, both by external revelation and internal illumination, as a remedy for the evils that abounded amongst them. He shows them the vanity of their pretended science and eloquence on many accounts. This he doth through the first four chapters. In the fifth he treats of the case of the incestuous person, and orders him to be put out from amongst them. Nor is what the ancients say improbable, that this incestuous person was a man in great esteem, and head of one party at least amongst them. The apostle seems to tax them with being puffed up on his account, chap. v. 2. In the sixth chapter he blames them for their lawsuits carried on before heathen judges, when their disputes about property should have been amicably determined amongst themselves: and in the close of the chapter warns them against the sin of fornication, and urges his caution with variety of arguments. In the seventh chapter he gives advice upon a case of conscience, which some of that church had proposed to him in an epistle, about marriage; and shows it to be appointed of God as a remedy against fornication; that the ties of it were not dissolved though an husband or wife continued an heathen when the other became a Christian, and, in short, that Christianity made no change in men's civil states and relations. He gives also some directions here about virgins, in answer, as is probable, to the Corinthians' inquiries. In the eighth he directs them about meats offered to idols, and cautions them against abusing their Christian liberty. From whence he also takes occasion in the ninth chapter to expatiate a little on his own conduct upon this head of liberty; for though he might have insisted on a maintenance from the churches where he ministered, he waved this demand, that he might make the gospel of Christ without charge: and did in other things comply with and suit himself to the tempers and circumstances of those among whom he laboured for their good. In the tenth chapter he dissuades them, from the example of the Jews, against having communion with idolaters, by eating of their sacrifices, inasmuch as they could not be at once partakers of the Lord's table and the table of devils; though they were not bound to inquire concerning meat sold in the shambles, or set before them at a feast made by unbelievers, whether it were a part of the idol sacrifices or no, but were at liberty to eat without asking questions. In the eleventh chapter he gives direction about their habit in public worship, blames them for their gross irregularities and scandalous disorders in receiving the Lord's supper, and solemnly warns them against the abuse of so sacred an institution. In the twelfth chapter he enters on the consideration of spiritual gifts, which were poured forth in great abundance on this church, upon which they were not a little elated. He tells them in this chapter, that all came from the same original, and were all directed to the same end. They issued from one Spirit, and were intended for the good of the church; and must be abused when they were not made to minister to this purpose. Towards the close he informs them that they were indeed valuable gifts, but he could recommend to them somewhat far more excellent. Upon which he breaks out, in the thirteenth chapter, into the commendation and characters of charity. And then in the fourteenth directs them how to keep up decency and order in the churches in the use of their spiritual gifts, in which they seem to have been exceedingly irregular, through pride of their gifts, and a vanity of showing them. The fifteenth chapter is taken up in confirming and explaining the great doctrine of the resurrection. The last chapter consists of some particular advices and salutations, and thus the epistle closes.

CHAP. I.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter we have, 1. The preface or introduction to the whole epistle, ver. 1—9. 2. One principal occasion of writing it hinted, viz. their divisions, and the original of them, ver. 10—13. 3. An account of Paul's ministry among them, which was principally preaching the gospel, ver. 13—17. 4. The manner wherein he preached the gospel, and the different success of it, with an account how admirably it was fitted to bring glory to God, and beat down the pride and vanity of man, ver. 17, ad finem.

1. [a] PAUL, called to be [b] an apostle of Jesus Christ [c] through the will of God, and [d] Sosthenes our brother, 2. [e] Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that [f] are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with [g] all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours: 3. [h] Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. 4. [i] I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ; 5. [k] That in every thing ye are enriched by him, in all utterance and in all knowledge; 6. Even as [l] the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you: 7. So that [m] ye come behind in no gift; [n] waiting for the * coming of our Lord Jesus Christ: 8. Who shall also [o] confirm you unto the end, that ye may be [p] blameless in [q] the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9. [r] God is faithful, by whom ye were [s] called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

a See Rom. 1. 1. Acts 13. 9.
b Mat. 10. 2. John 20. 21. Eph. 4. 11. ch. 9. 1, 2. c 2 Cor. 1. 1. Eph. 1. 1. Col. 1. 1. 2 Tim. 1. 1. Gal. 1. 15. Acts 13. 2. d Acts 18. 17.
e Acts 18. 1—17.
f John 17. 19. Acts 15. 9. Rom. 1. 7. & 8. 28—30. ver. 30. Eph. 1. 1. Col. 1. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 9. & 2. 21. Jude 1. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Heb. 3. 1. 1 Thes. 4. 7. 2 Pet. 1. 3, 4.
g Joel 2. 32. Rom. 10. 12. ch. 8. 6. 2 Tim. 2. 22. Zeph. 3. 9. Ps. 45. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 2.
h 2 Pet. 1. 2. 2 Cor. 1. 2.
i See Rom. 1. 8. 2 Cor. 1. 3. Eph. 1. 3. Phil. 1. 3, 4. Col. 1. 3, 4. 1 Thes. 1. 2, 3. 2 Thes. 1. 3. 2 Tim. 1. 3, 5. k 2 Cor. 8. 7. Eph. 1. 3. Col. 1. 9. ch. 4. 8, 10. & 10. 15. & 12. 8. & 14. 26.
l Ch. 2. 1, 2. Acts 20. 24. 2 Tim. 1. 8. Rev. 11. 2. & 19. 10. Mat. 24. 14. 2 Cor. 1. 20, 21. 2 Thes. 1. 10.
m See ver. 5.
n Phil. 3. 20. Col. 3. 4. 1 Thes. 1. 10. Tit. 2. 13. 2 Tim. 4. 8. Heb. 9. 28. & 10. 35. 1 Pet. 1. 13. 2 Pet. 3. 12. * Gr. revelation.
o Ch. 10. 13. 1 Thes. 5. 24. 2 Thes. 3. 3. Heb. 10. 23. 2 Cor. 1. 21.
p Eph. 5. 27. Phil. 2. 15. Col. 1 20. 1 Thes. 3. 13. & 5. 23. 2 Pet. 3. 14. Jude 24.
q Phil. 1. 10. 1 Thes. 2. 19. & 3. 13. & 4. 15. 5. 23. 2 Thes. 7. 8. 2 Pet. 3. 12. 1 John 2. 28. 1 Tim. 6. 14.
r Ch. 10. 13. 1 Thes. 5. 24. 2 Thes. 3. 3. Heb. 10. 23. & 11. 11. Jer. 32. 40. Is. 49. 7. Tit. 1. 2. s See ver. 2. Col. 1. 13. 1 Pet. 2. 9. Is. 27. 13. ver. 30. 2 Cor. 5. 17—21.

Verses 1—9. The apostle opens his epistle,

1. With an assertion of his apostolic character, which some among them affected to traduce and vilify, as if he had assumed an honour to which he was in no wise entitled. He affirms therefore the divine authority upon which he acted; not self-constituted, but called of Jesus Christ to the high honour and important charge of apostleship. And Sosthenes, a fellow-minister, joins him in affectionate salutations. Note, There are times when to vindicate our real character and magnify our office, is not pride, but a debt we owe to the church of God.

2. He addresses himself to the church of God at Corinth, as to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, set apart by God's eternal designation in Christ their head, separated by his grace from the world which lieth in wickedness, incorporated in his name, and making open profession of their faith in him by baptism; called to be saints, justly so denominated, and proving by their conduct the propriety of the name they bore; with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours, in whom we have a joint interest, and are all one in him. Note, (1.) All who profess the name of Jesus are called to prove their relation to him by the holiness of their walk. (2.) Since Christ is proposed to us as the object of our worship, he must needs be very God. (3.) The life of a Christian is a habitual course of calling upon God. To live without prayer is the surest mark of a Christless soul.

3. He gives them his apostolic benediction. Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. Grace, the source of every blessing, and peace with a reconciled God through Jesus Christ. Note, (1.) Every mercy a sinner enjoys in time, or hopes for in eternity, flows purely from the sovereign, free, and boundless grace of God in Jesus Christ. (2.) All solid peace of conscience can only arise from a sense of God's favour, and reconciliation through the Redeemer.

4. He thanks God, on their account, for the graces and gifts which were bestowed upon them. I thank my God (and blessed and happy are they who can call him so) always on your behalf, (so constantly did he feel a tender concern for them upon his heart) for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ, as the great Head of his people, to whom they are united, and from whom, as the fountain of vital influence, they draw continual supplies of strength and consolation. And as he charitably hoped the generality of them were partakers of the grace of God in truth, he had also another cause for thankfulness, because in every thing ye are enriched by him, in all utterance and in all knowledge, endued with clear views of that rich salvation which is in a crucified Jesus, and capable of expressing themselves on the subject with singular fluency of speech and energy of diction; even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you, the Holy Ghost giving the fullest demonstration to their consciences of the truth of that gospel which was preached unto them; so that ye come behind in no gift, in nothing inferior to any church which had been planted; in these distinguished gifts of the Spirit; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, according to the declarations of his word, which they had heard and embraced, preparing to meet him, and, with patient but joyful expectation, looking for the day of his appearing. Note, They who are Christians indeed cannot but rejoice in the prospect, that, when Christ who is our hope shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory.

5. The apostle professes his confidence in them, that they will never be moved from the hope of the gospel. Who shall also confirm you unto the end, in faith and holiness, enabling you to persevere unshaken amidst all your trials, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ, being found complete in him, and then transformed wholly into his image. And this his expectation Paul builds on the surest foundation, even because God is faithful to all his promises, and never can or will fail his people; by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord; and the same almighty grace which brought you into this blessed estate is engaged to cement the union, till it shall be perfected in glory. Note, (1.) They who are Christ's are sure finally to overcome: none can pluck them out of his hand. (2.) The faithfulness of God should be the matter of our frequent meditation; since nothing so much enlivens the heart with hope, and quickens it to walk in holiness, as the assured confidence that nothing shall ever be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

10. Now I [t] beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, [u] that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no † divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment. 11. For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are [x] contentions among you. 12. Now this [y] I say, that every one of you saith, [z] I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ. 13. [a] Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul? 14. I thank God that [b] I baptized none of you but Crispus and Gaius: 15. [c] Lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name. 16. And [d] I baptized also the household of Stephanas: besides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

t Rom. 15. 30. Phil. 2. 1, 2. 2 Cor. 5. 20. & 10. 1. ch. 5. 4.

u Rom. 12. 16. & 15. 5, 6. ch. 11. 18. 2 Cor. 13. 9, 11. Eph. 4. 1—7. Phil. 3. 15, 16. & 2. 2. 1 Pet. 3. 8.

† Gr. schisms.

x Prov. 13. 10. Jam. 4. 1. ch. 3. 3. & 11. 18.

y Ch. 7. 29. & 15. 50. 2 Cor. 9. 3. Gal. 3. 17.

z Ch. 3. 4. & 16. 12. Acts 18. 24. John 1. 42. ch. 13. 4.

a 2 Cor. 11. 4. Gal. 1. 7. Eph. 4. 5.

b Acts 18. 8. Rom. 16. 23.

c Mat. 10. 16. Eph. 5. 15. ch. 3. 10.

d Ch. 16. 15, 17. Acts 16. 15, 33.

Verses 10—16. One chief end of writing this epistle appears to be the healing those divisions of which Paul had been informed. He therefore,

1. Exhorts them to union among themselves; in sentiment and affection to have their hearts knit together, avoiding, as the most dangerous rock, those disputes and divisions, which must be the bane of Christian charity, and could not but end in the ruin of the church. And he urges this by the most powerful motive, even by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ; not only as one authorized to enjoin this upon them, but suggesting that the very mention of the endearing name of Jesus should silence every jar, and fill their souls with love to him and one another. Note, Internal divisions among the members of Christ have more wounded his cause than all the external attacks of earth or hell.

2. He informs them whence he received his information of those evils which he so justly condemns; and solemnly remonstrates against their making so ill a use of his name, as well as of his brethren, to range themselves in different parties; while some said, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, and I of Cephas, or Peter, depreciating the one and exalting the other; as if it mattered ought by whose instrumentality they were converted to the faith; whilst others, as if above all means and instruments, boasted, I am of Christ, and so immediately under the teachings of his Spirit as to need no other instructor. But how absurd were these pretensions, and how dangerous these discords! Is Christ divided? so as to act separately from the means of his own appointment? or can there be the least sort of division between him and those who act by his authority? and with whom he hath promised to be to the end of the world? or can his church, which is his body, and one with him, be disjointed, and his members subsist separately from each other? surely no. And as for those ministers, under whose names you range yourselves, let me ask, applying it to myself, Was Paul crucified for you? Did I, or my brethren, ever pretend that we were your saviours, or were ye baptized in the name of Paul, by my authority, as my disciples, professing your faith in me, or obedience to my service? God forbid. Neither I, nor my fellow-labourers, ever taught you to hope for any other atonement but in a crucified Jesus, nor baptized you in any other name but his. I thank God, since this matter hath been so abused by many of you, that I baptized none of you but Crispus and Gaius, lest any should say that I had baptized in my own name, and sought to set myself at the head of a party. I baptized also the household of Stephanus: besides, I know not whether I baptized any other. Note, A faithful minister of Christ rejects with abhorrence all attempts to set him at the head of a party, solicitous only that his Master should be glorified, and jealous above all things never to rob him of his peculiar honours.

17. For Christ sent me [e] not to baptize, but to preach the gospel: [f] not with wisdom of ‡ words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect. 18. For [g] the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. 19. For it is written, [h] I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent. 20. [i] Where is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this world? hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? 21. [k] For after that in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. 22. For [l] the Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom: 23. But we preach [m] Christ crucified, [n] unto the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; 24. But unto them [o] which are called, both Jews and Greeks, [p] Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God. 25. [q] Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men. 26. For ye see your calling, brethren, how that [r] not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: 27. But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; 28. And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are: 29. [s] That no flesh should glory in his presence. 30. But of him are ye [t] in Christ Jesus, who [u] of e John 4. 2. Acts 10. 43. Mark 16. 15. Acts 26. 17, 18. Rom. 15. 20.

f Ch. 2. 1, 4, 13. 2 Pet. 1. 16. 2 Cor. 4. 2.

‡ Or speech.

g Ver. 23, 24. Acts 17. 18. Rom. 1. 16. 2 Cor. 2. 15, 16.

h Job 5. 13. Is. 29. 14. Jer. 8. 9.

i Is. 33. 18. & 44. 25. Job 12. 17. & 20. 24. Rom. 1. 22.

k Rom. 1. 21, 22, 28. Mat. 11. 25. Luke 10. 21.

l Mat. 12. 38. & 16. 1. Luke 11. 16. John 2. 18. & 4. 48.

m Ch. 2. 2. Gal. 3. 1. Acts 8. 32, 33, 35. Gal. 6. 14. Eph. 3. 8.

n Ch. 2. 14. Mat. 11. 6. & 13. 57. & 24. 10. Is. 8. 14. Luke 2. 34. John 6. 60, 66. Acts 17. 18. Rom. 9. 32. Gal. 5. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 7. Is. 53. 2, 3.

o Luke 7. 35. Rom. 8. 28, 30. & 9. 24. ver. 2, 9.

p Prov. 8. 12. Rom. 1. 4, 16. Eph. 1. 19, 20. Col. 2. 3. ver. 30.

q 1 Kin. 3. 12. 24. 2 Cor. 4. 7. Ps. 147. 5.

r 1 Sam. 17. 49. Ps. 8. 2. Mat. 11. 22. & 19. 25. Luke 16. 15. John 7. 48. Acts 4. 13. & 6. 9, 10. & 7. 54. & 17. 34. & 13. 16. Rom. 4. 17. ch. 2. 3, 6 2 Cor. 4. 7. & 10. 5. Rev. 6. 15. Jam. 2. 5, 7. Mat. 11. 5. Zeph. 3. 12. Zech. 11. 7, 11. Ps. 68. 10. & 72. 12—14.

s Eph. 2. 9. Rom. 4. 2. & 3. 19, 27. ver. 31.

t Eph. 1. 4, 6. 7. & 2. 10. & 3. 17. John 17. 21—23.

u Rom. 11. 36. 2 Cor. 5. 18—21. Eph. 1. 3, 4. John 3. 16, 17.

x Col. 2. 3. Is. 48. 17. & 6. 1—3. 2 Cor. 4. 6. John y 14. 9, 10. & 1. 18 Col. 1. 15. z redemption: 31. That, according as it y Is. 45. 24, 25. & liii. & 54. 17. Jer. is written, b He that glorieth, let him 23. 6. Dan. 9. 24. Rom. 3. 22. 24— glory in the Lord.
26. & 5. 19. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Phil. 3. 9. Jer. 33. 16. z John 1. 14, 16. & 14. 6. & 17. 17, 19. ch. 6. 11 a Rom. 3. 24. & 4. 25. Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. Tit. 2. 14. Rev. 5. 9. Hos. 13. 14. Gal. 1. 4. & 3. 13.
b 1 Sam. 2. 10. Is. 65. 16. Jer. 9. 23, 24. 2 Cor. 10. 17.

God is made unto us x wisdom, and righteousness, and z sanctification, and a

Verses 17—31. Having vindicated himself from every insinuation that he designed to form a party by baptizing disciples, he disclaims here every attempt to aggrandize himself in the manner in which he preached the gospel unto them. For, saith he, Christ, from whom immediately I received my commission, sent me not to baptize as my principal business, but to preach the gospel, according to the revelation made known unto me; and he informs them,

1. Of the manner in which he preached, not with wisdom of words, with affected flourishes of oratory, or to gratify philosophic pride, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect, the simple truth of a crucified Jesus should be obscured, its efficacy defeated, its honour tarnished, and the success be ascribed not to the divine simplicity and native force of the truth, but to the art and eloquence of those who preached the gospel. Note, Though eloquence, without ostentation, is both lawful and laudable, yet, as Luther says, he is the best preacher that can speak the most familiarly, and suits his discourse best to the capacity and understanding of the hearer, more solicitous to be understood than to be admired.

2. Of the effect of his preaching. For the preaching of the cross, and the great salvation obtained by the bloodshedding of the Redeemer on the ignominious tree, is to them that perish, foolishness. They who are puffed up in pride on their own sufficiency, or ignorant of their guilt and sinfulness, and their need of the redemption which is in Christ, reject the gospel as nonsense and absurdity, and perish in their impenitence and unbelief. (1.) The doctrine of the cross was to the Jews a stumblingblock, ver. 23. They could not bear to receive him for their Messiah, who made so mean an appearance in his life, and died as a malefactor on a tree. Rejecting all the amazing miracles which he wrought, they required a sign from heaven, Matt. xii. 38. expecting he should appear in all worldly pomp and grandeur, as their temporal, instead of a spiritual, Redeemer. (2.) To the Greeks this doctrine was foolishness. They sought after wisdom, ver. 22. they received nothing but what was demonstrable on what they termed the principles of reason: and since their philosophic minds could perceive no connection between a man who was crucified, and the redemption of sinners; nor esteemed it possible, on their principles, that he who could not, as they conceived, save himself from the cross, should be able to save others from death and hell; they stamped the declaration with folly, and rejected it as absurd. But, (3.) Unto us who are called, and saved by grace, however proud Greeks or self-righteous Jews may think of it, Christ, and the doctrine of salvation through his cross, appears to be the power of God, and the wisdom of God. The power of God is seen to be most gloriously displayed in the Mediator's undertaking and sufferings: in his miracles, resurrection, ascension; and especially in the mighty efficacy with which his gospel is attended, through the influences of his Spirit, effectually quickening the dead in trespasses and sins, turning them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. The wisdom of God is astonishingly displayed in the stupendous scheme of man's redemption, wherein the sinner, consistent with the glory of every divine perfection, can be received into the bosom of mercy; and pardon, righteousness, and glory, be bestowed on him, without dishonour to God's government or law, and this through the substitution of the second Adam, the Lord from heaven in our stead.

3. He shows the triumph of this doctrine of a crucified Jesus over all the inventions of the wisest sages; their schemes and systems could never relieve a guilty conscience, or lay a solid foundation for the sinner's hope. The Lord therefore, according to his word, Isa. xxix. 14. stamps all human wisdom as folly Where is the wise philosopher? Where is the learned scribe, deep read in traditions? Where is the disputer of this world, whether Jew or Gentile? Can the one or the other give the least satisfactory account, how a guilty sinner can be reconciled to an offended God? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? and left philosophers and Rabbins to grope for the wall as blind? For after that, or since in the wisdom of God, it was so ordered, that the world by wisdom knew not God, but their most learned sages were permitted to become vain in their imaginations, see Rom. i. 21, 22. ignorant of God, his worship, and ways: it pleased God, in his infinite grace and love, to make a more transcendent display of his own glory, by the foolishness of preaching, (for so would a wise world call the doctrine of the cross,) to save them that believe, making it effectual to their eternal peace and joy. This contrivance of divine wisdom, to save lost souls by the incarnation of Jesus, is deemed the greatest folly; but the foolishness of God is wiser than men, infinitely excelling all their boasted researches, and ingenious systems; and the weakness of God is stronger than men, however inadequate the gospel method in their eyes may appear; and however weak the instruments are, which are chiefly employed in the work, yet it was clear to demonstration, that what all the precepts of philosophy, and the power of oratory, never produced, the doctrine of the cross effected, destroying the kingdom of sin and Satan in the hearts of men, and causing such an evident change in their tempers and conduct, as spoke the finger of God. Note, Wherever the gospel is truly preached, however weak the instrument may be, God will bear testimony to his own word, that the excellency of the power may appear to be of God and not of us.

4. He appeals to them for the truth of what he had advanced, as verified by experience. For ye see your calling brethren, and cannot but observe who are the partakers of the gospel salvation; how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called; some few singular instances of these may be observed, whom the sovereign grace of God hath effectually wrought upon: but, in general, the proud philosopher, the self-righteous scribes, and the men of high birth and affluence, refuse to submit to the humbling and self-denying doctrines of the cross: and leaving them to their folly and ruin, God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, that an illiterate Christian should shame the proud philosopher, and show the surpassing influence of the doctrine of Jesus, above all his learned precepts. And God hath chosen the weak things of this world, men in the meanest outward circumstances to confound the things that are mighty, to stamp vanity on human grandeur, and to show that his kingdom stands without any earthly supports, nay, in defiance of all worldly power and influence; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, even the poor Gentiles, whom the self-righteous Jews would scarce deign to put among the dogs of their flock, these hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, who never had a name or place in the church of God before, to bring to nought, (καταργησῃ,) to abolish the things that are, putting a period to the covenant of peculiarity, under which the Jewish people formerly stood, and thought themselves, exclusive of all others the only favourites of heaven. But now all difference ceases, that no flesh should glory in his presence, on account of any imagined superiority in wisdom, wealth, nobility, or any external privileges; but that, as it is written, he that glorieth should glory in the Lord, ascribing the whole of their salvation to his sovereign, rich, and boundless grace, as revealed in the gospel of Jesus to the miserable and the desperate.

5. He reminds them of the inestimable blessings, to which, in virtue of their interest in Christ, they are entitled. They had in themselves nothing to glory in, nothing but weakness and wickedness; but of him are ye in Christ Jesus, chosen from eternity, called in the fulness of time into the fellowship of the gospel, and incorporated into the mystical body of Christ, who of God is made unto us, according to the constitution of the covenant of grace, wisdom and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption. (1.) Wisdom; we are naturally foolish, deceived, and ignorant; but all the treasures of wisdom reside in our exalted head; and as the prophet of his church, it is his office to lead us into all truth, for which end he hath given us his word, and promises his Spirit that we may be taught of God, and thereby be made wise unto salvation. (2.) Righteousness; by his obedience unto death he hath brought in an everlasting righteousness for our use, in which we can appear complete before God; and, sinful and corrupt as we are in ourselves, we are ever accepted in this beloved; and God justifies us, though ungodly, because found in him, who is the Lord our Righteousness. (3.) Sanctification; he is the head of vital influence, and, as a quickening spirit, works effectually in the hearts of his people, mortifying their corrupt and vile affections, and daily renewing them in the inner man, that their spirits and temper may be brought to a nearer conformity with his own. (4.) Redemption; his work is perfect; he hath obtained eternal redemption for his people; they can therefore never perish. The trials of time can never separate us from his love, we shall now be saved from the dominion of sin; at death, the very being of it shall be destroyed in us; and though our bodies return to the dust from whence they came, at the great resurrection-day we shall awake in the perfection of beauty, no more to see corruption, our bodies glorious and immortal as his own. Thus Christ is to us all in all, and to him alone must all the glory be ascribed.

CHAP. II.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

The apostle proceeds with his argument in this chapter, and, (1.) Reminds the Corinthians of the plain manner wherein he delivered the gospel to them, ver. 1—5. But yet, (2.) Shows them that he had communicated to them a treasure of the truest and highest wisdom; such as exceeded all the attainments of learned men; such as could never have entered into the heart of man, if it had not been revealed; nor can be received and improved to salvation, but by the light and influence of that Spirit who revealed it, ver. 6. ad finem.

a Ch. 1. 17. ver. 4, 13. 2 Cor. 10. 10. & 11. 6. 2 Pet. 1. 16.
b 2 Pet. 1. 16. 2 Thes. 1. 10. 2 Tim. 1. 8. Rev. 1. 2, 9. Is. 8. 20. c Ch. 1. 6, 23. & 15. 3, 4. John 17. 3. Acts 26. 18. Gal. 6. 14. Phil. 3. 8—10. d Acts 18. 3. & 20. 18, 19. 2 Cor. 10. 10. & 4. 7. & 11. 29, 30. & 12. 9. Gal. 4. 13. ch. 4. 10—13. 2 Cor. 7. 5. & 6. 4.
e Rom. 15. 19. 2 Pet. 1. 16. ch. 1. 17. ver. 13. ch. 4. 20. Col. 2. 4. 1 Thes. 1. 5.
* Or persuasible.
f Ch. 1. 17. & 3. 6. 2 Cor. 4. 7. & 6. 7. & 12. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 5. Acts 16. 14. & 26. 18. † Gr. be.

1. AND I, brethren, when I came to you, [a] came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the [b] testimony of God. 2. For I determined [c] not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. 3. And I was with you [d] in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling. 4. [e] And my speech and my preaching was not with * enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: 5. [f] That your faith should not † stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

Verses 1—5. The apostle had before declared with what unadorned simplicity he had preached to them the doctrines of the gospel: they needed no varnish, and he trusted to their native weight and evidence to recommend them. And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech, or of wisdom, declaring to you the testimony of God; he used no rhetorical arts, nor affected curious speculations, but plainly declared the message which he had received of the Lord, the truth of which was attested by prophecies and miracles, and sealed to their hearts by the demonstration of the Spirit. For I determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified, avoiding all show of Jewish or Grecian literature, and simply confining myself to that one distinguished point, in which all the lines of our salvation meet as in one centre, from which all the privileges of the gospel flow as from their source, and under the influence of which we can alone be engaged and inclined to all the service to which the Saviour calls us, constrained by his dying love. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling, deeply sensible of his own insufficiency for the arduous work; in his outward circumstances and appearance, poor and despicable; exposed to innumerable difficulties from the enmity of the world without, and the envy of some within, who wanted to make a party against him, and above all, deeply exercised in his own soul, lest his message should be despised and rejected by them to their eternal ruin. And my speech, and my preaching, was not with enticing words of man's wisdom; these he studiously avoided, but he taught with much more effectual evidence, in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; not only by the miracles which he wrought in confirmation of his mission, but by the energy with which the Holy Ghost accompanied his preaching to the consciences: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, as supported by human evidence, or wrought by moral persuasion or argument, but in the power of God, arising from a divine conviction of the truth, resting on divine testimony, and produced by the operation of God. Note, (1.) Nothing is more contrary to the spirit of the gospel than the affectation of being admired as orators, instead of being useful preachers. (2.) Christ, in his person and offices, should be the great subject of all our discourses; nothing so effectually reaches the conscience as the doctrine of the cross. (3.) Faithful ministers have peculiar trials, both from without and within, trembling sometimes for themselves, conscious of their own infirmities: trembling for the people, lest that which should be to them a savour of life unto life, should by their unbelief and prejudices, become a savour of death unto death. (4.) The faith of God's elect is not the effect of human persuasion, but of divine operation.

6. Howbeit, we speak wisdom among them [g] that are perfect: yet [h] not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought: 7. But we speak [i] the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom which God ordained before the world unto our glory: 8. [k] Which none of the princes of this world knew: for, [l] had they known it, they would not have crucified [m] the Lord of glory. 9. But, as it is written, [n] Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. 10. [o] But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. 11. [p] For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? [q] even so g Phil. 3. 15. Heb. 5. 14. & 6. 1. Eph. 1. 13, 14. 1 John 2. 14. ch. 1. 5. & 14. 20.

h Ch. 5. 19, 20, 28. Jam. 3. 15. with Ps. 2. 1—4. ch. 15. 24.
i Eph. 3. 9, 10. Rom. 16. 25, 26. Col. 1. 26, 27. 2 Tim. 1. 9, 10. John 17. 3. k Mat. 11. 25. John 7. 48. Acts 13. 27. ver. 6. ch. 1. 26—28.
l Luke 23. 34. John 8. 19. & 10. 3. Acts 3. 17. & 13. 27. 2 Cor. 5. 14. 1 Tim. 1. 13.
m Acts 7. 2. Ps. 24. 7—10. & 110. 5.
n Is. 64. 4. ver. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 12. 1 Kin. 10. 7. Ps. 31. 19. Col. 3. 3.
o Mat. 13. 11. & 16. 17. John 14. 26. & 16. 13. 2 Cor. 3. 18. 1 John 2. 20, 27. with John 1. 18. & 14. 7, 9. Ps. 92. 5. Rom. 11. 33, 34. p Jer. 17. 9. Prov. 20. 27. & 27. 19. q Ver. 10. Mat. 11. 27. & 16. 17. Rom. 11. 33. 1 John 2. 20, 27.

the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. 12. Now we have received, [r] not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God; [s] that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. 13. [t] Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. 14. [u] But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. 15. [x] But he that is spiritual [y] ‡ judgeth all things, yet he himself is ‖ judged of no man. 16. [z] For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he * may instruct him? [a] But we have the mind of Christ.

r Ver. 6. Rom. 8. 5, 6, 15, 16, 26.
s 1 John 2. 20, 27. Rom. 8. 32. 1 Cor. 3. 22.
t Ch. 1. 17. ver. 4. 2 Pet. 1. 16. Gen. 40. 8. & 41. 16. Dan. 5. 12.
u Acts 17. 18. & 26. 24, 25, 28. Rom. 8. 5–8. ch. 1. 18. 23. Gal. 1. 12. Mat. 16. 23. Jude 4. 2 Pet. 3. 16. Rev. 3. 17, 18. John 3. 3, 4, 6 x Ch. 3. 1. Gal. 6. 1. Phil. 1. 10. John 3. 6. Rom. 8. 1, 4. 2 Cor. 5. 17.
y Prov. 27. 19, & 28. 5. John 7. 17. 1 Thes. 5. 21. 1 John 4. 1. Heb. 5. 14.
‡ Or discerneth.
‖ Or discerned.
z Job. 15. 8. Jer. 23. 18.
* Gr. shall.
a Ps. 25. 14. John 15. 15. & 14. 26. & 16. 13–15.

Verses 6—16. The apostle had disclaimed all affectation of human wisdom. Howbeit, says he, we speak wisdom among them that are perfect, (τελειους) and grown up to greater maturity in knowledge, understanding, and grace; demonstrating the infinite wisdom, and suitableness of the divine contrivance, in the grand scheme of man's salvation, through faith in a crucified Jesus. Yet not the wisdom of this world, such systems as philosophers have invented or will approve; nor the princes of this world, such as the proud Rabbins and great men of the earth comprehend, or can conceive, who, with all their boasts of science, come to nought, and perish in their pride. But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom which God ordained before the world unto our glory. The divine contrivance for the salvation of lost sinners had been unknown to the Gentile world, and but dimly revealed to the Jews in mysterious types and figures; but now the fulness of time was come, foreordained in the eternal counsels, when the mystery of grace should be unfolded, and the elect of God effectually brought to his kingdom and glory. And this design of the divine wisdom none of the princes of this world knew, neither the Roman governor, nor the high priest and elders of the Jews; for had they known it, they would not have crucified him, who in essential deity is one with the Father, and justly claims the title of the Lord of glory. But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. Low as their apprehensions were of the crucified Redeemer, yet hath he brought in a salvation for lost souls, unutterably glorious, by a contrivance far above human conception, and hath prepared for those who, sensible of his amazing grace, feel the constrainings of divine love in their hearts, such inestimable blessings as pass man's understanding. But these glorious things which are hidden from others, God hath revealed unto us by his Spirit, by a divine illumination in the preaching of the gospel; for the Spirit, who is the great agent in the conversion of the sinner's soul, illuminating his darkness, and quickening him from his state of death, searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God, and who alone being perfectly acquainted with his counsels, is fully able to reveal them to us. For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? None but our own spirit can discover what passes in our secret thoughts, even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. The wisest and weakest are equally at a loss respecting God's eternal counsels and designs; and none but that eternal Spirit, who is essentially God, and one with the Father and the Son, (as a man's soul is one with him, and conscious of all that passes in his breast) can know or reveal these unto us. Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, that we should be guided by its wisdom, or follow its maxims, but the Spirit which is of God, whose office it is, in the economy of man's salvation, to enlighten the darkened mind, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God, even all those inestimable blessings and privileges, of which, by grace through faith, we are make partakers. Which things also we speak, declaring from happy experience, the truths which the Spirit hath revealed to us, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, affecting to set them off with figures of oratory, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth, to add to which would be but to gild the brilliant, which shines infinitely brighter in its native lustre: comparing spiritual things with spiritual, the types with the antitype, the prophecies with their fulfilment, the Old Testament with the New, which serve to cast mutual light and glory on each other, and supply us with expressions, which most forcibly and clearly convey the Spirit's meaning to the heart. But the natural man, who continues under the darkness of his fallen mind, whatever attainments in human wisdom and literature he may have made, receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness to him, because he cannot reconcile them to his corrupted reason and defiled mind; neither can he know them: he is as much under a moral incapacity of ever attaining to the true understanding of spiritual things, as the blind man is under a natural incapacity of discovering the brightest objects, till the faculty of vision be given to him, because they are spiritually discerned, and therefore cannot be comprehended without divine illumination. But he that is spiritual, and effectually taught of God, judgeth all things, discovering the excellence, all-sufficiency, and suitableness of God's method of salvation, and distinguishing truth from error. Yet he himself is judged of no man; no natural man, however wise or learned, discerns the principles upon which he acts: or can apprehend the truths which the spiritual man experimentally knows: or can confute him by any reasonings when he sees that he hath the word of God for his guide, and the Spirit of God promised to lead him into all truth. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? what philosopher ever soared so high as to penetrate into the secrets of God's eternal mind, that he may instruct him who is spiritual, in these supernatural truths? Darkness and folly are evident in all the schemes and notions of the wisest sages; but we have the mind of Christ, are divinely led into the knowledge of his designs of grace, and therefore can never be moved away from the hope of the gospel, by any pretenders to science, or by the disputation of philosophers, with whatever sounding names or titles they may be dignified. Learn hence, (1.) That the wisest sage and the most illiterate peasants are on a level, respecting the knowledge which maketh wise unto salvation. (2.) If all the wisdom which ever existed in the whole fallen race was centred in one person, he would be as incapable of communicating one title of divine truth to us, as the glow-worm of enlightening the universe. (3.) It is the distinguished character of the redeemed, that they are all taught of God, not only by external revelation, but by the Spirit's internal illumination. (4.) The love of God, now shed abroad in our hearts, is the earnest of that inheritance which he hath prepared for us. (5.) We are not to wonder that those, who are most advanced in human literature, are usually most averse to the truths of God. The reason is evident, ver. 14. (6.) A spiritual understanding of the Scriptures is a better qualification for the ministry than all Roman or Grecian literature.

CHAP. III.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter, the apostle, (1.) Blames the Corinthians for their carnality and divisions, ver. 1—4. (2.) He instructs them how what was amiss among them might be rectified, by remembering,

1. That their ministers were no more than ministers, ver. 5. 2. That they were unanimous, and carried on the same design, ver. 5—10. 3. That they built on one and the same foundation, ver. 11—16. (3.) He exhorts them to give due honour to their bodies by keeping them pure, ver. 16, 17. And to humility and self-diffidence, ver. 18—22. 4. And exhorts them from glorying in particular ministers, because of the equal interest they had in all, ver. 22. ad finem.

1. AND I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto [a] spiritual, but as unto [b] carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. 2. [c] I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. 3. [d] For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and * divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk † as men? 4. [e] For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal? 5. [f] Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? 6. [g] I have planted, Apollos watered; [h] but God gave the increase. 7. [i] So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase.

a Ch. 2. 6. 15 & 14. 20. Heb. 5. 14. & 6. 1. b Rom. 7. 14. Eph. 4. 13, 14. Heb. 5. 11—13. 1 John 2. 12. c John 16. 12. 1 Thes. 2. 7. Heb. 5. 12, 13. 1 Pet. 2. 2. d Ch. 1. 11, 12. & 11. 18. 2 Cor 12. 20. Gal. 5. 19, 20. Jam. 3. 16. ch. 5. 11.
* Or factions.
† Gr. according to man.
e Ch. 1. 12. & 4. 6.
f Rom. 10. 15, 17. ch. 4. 1, 2. 2 Cor. 1. 24. & 4. 5, 7. & 3. 3. & 6. 4. & 10. 4, 5. & 12. 6. ver 7. Rom. 12. 3, 6. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11.
g Acts 18. 4, 8, 11, 26, 27. ver. 10. ch. 4. 15. & 9. 7, 11. & 15. 1, 2.
h Ps. 22. 13. & 65. 10. & 127. 1. Is. 55. 10, 11. & 61. 11. Acts 11. 21. & 16. 14. ch. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 3. 2, 3.
i John 15. 5. Ps. 115. 1. 2 Cor. 3. 5. & 12. 11. ch. 4. 7. & 1. 28, 30. & 15. 10.

Verses 1—7. The apostle proceeds here,

1. To rebuke the carnality and contentions which reigned among the members of the Corinthian church. I, brethren, (for as such I regard you, notwithstanding the many imperfections I perceive among you) could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ; for greatly as many are enriched in gifts, (see chap. i. 5.) yet in grace your attainments are very low, and your affections grovelling still on earth; and therefore as babes I have fed you with milk, with the simplest and plainest truths of the gospel, and not with meat, the more sublime points of revelation and the deep things of God; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able; you would not have been edified by them, but have abused them, and made them minister to your pride and disputatious humour. For ye are yet carnal, and show too much of an unrenewed spirit; for whereas, or since there is among you envying and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? Whilst under the powers of such evil tempers, wherein do ye differ from the world that lieth in wickedness? For while one saith, I am of Paul, and another, I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal? Doth not such a spirit of party prove the deep, unmortified remainders of carnality in your hearts? Assuredly. Note, (1.) Ministers must be faithful to the souls of the people, and never flatter. (2.) There may be great attainments in knowledge, and yet little grace in the heart; and this wisdom puffeth up. (3.) Among real Christians, there are great differences to be observed; some are weak as babes; others strong as men grown to maturity. Our wisdom, as ministers, is therefore to give to every man his portion in due season. (4.) Nothing is more contrary to the spirit of Christianity than angry disputes, and schismatical divisions.

2. The apostle ascribes to the rich grace of God all the success which the gospel had met with among them. It became effectual, not through human instruments, but by divine energy. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? The men were mere instruments; it was the Lord alone who made their ministry effectual. I have planted, by first preaching the gospel to you; Apollos watered, succeeding me in labouring among you: but God gave the increase, without whose special operation and mighty influence, however great the natural abilities of either may have been, I must have planted and Apollos watered in vain. So then, neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase, to whom the whole glory must be ascribed, exclusive of all the instruments he may have been pleased to employ. And therefore they are not to be set up either as the authors of the gospel, or the cause of its efficacy. Note, (1.) If any man believes the gospel word, this must be by the gift of God; for we can neither give ourselves faith, nor can the most powerful preachers communicate it to us. (2.) Ministers should ever be careful to ascribe to God the glory of all the success they meet with; we are nothing: he is all in all.

8. [k] Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one: [l] and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour. 9. For we are [m] labourers together with God: ye are God's ‡ [n] husbandry, ye are God's ° building. 10. [p] According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as [q] a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. 11. [r] For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. 12. Now, if any man [s] build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; 13. [t] Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because ‖ it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. 14. [u] If any man's work abide, which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. 15. [x] If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire.

k John 4. 36—38. ver. 9, 19. with ch. 4. 6. & 1. 11, 12.
l Ps. 62. 12. Jer. 17. 10. & 32. 15. Gal. 6. 5. Mat. 16. 27. Rom. 2. 6. ch. 4. 4. & 9. 17. Rev. 2. 23. & 22. 12. m 2 Cor. 6. 1. & 3. 5, 6. 3 John 8. Mark 16. 20. Mat. 28. 20.
‡ Or tillage.
n Ps. 80. 8, 9. Is. 5. 1. & 61. 3. & 58. 11. Mat. 20. 1—14. & 21. 33. Ps. 72. 16. John 15. 1—6.
o Eph. 2. 10, 20—22. Col. 2. 7. Heb. 3. 3, 4. 1 Pet. 2. 5. 1 Tim. 3. 15. p Rom. 1. 5. ch. 15. 10. 1 Pet. 4. 11.
q Rom. 15. 20. Acts 18. 4, 8. ch. 1. 6. & 4. 15. & 9. 1, 2. & 15. 1—4. 2 Cor. 3. 2, 3. Gal. 2. 7, 9. Eph. 2. 20. 1 Pet. 4. 11. Rev. 21. 14. ver. 11. ch. 2. 2.
r Acts 4. 12. Is. 28. 16. Mat. 16. 18. Eph. 2. 20. ch. 1. 13. Gal. 1. 7—9.
s 2 Cor. 2. 17. & 4. 2. & 11. 13. & 13. 5.
t Ch. 4. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 19. Is. 8. 20. Jer. 23. 29. Is. 27. 9 & 48. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 7. & 4. 12.
2 Thes. 1. 7. 2 Pet. 3. 7. ‖ Gr. is revealed. u Ch. 4. 5. Mat. 25. 21, 23. 1 Thes. 2. 10. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. 1 Pet. 5. 4. Dan. 12. 3. Mat. 19. 28. x 2 John 8. Amos 4. 11. Zech. 3. 2. Jude 23. 1 Pet. 4. 18.

Verses 8—15. All faithful ministers are engaged in the same blessed cause, and have but one end in view, to glorify Christ and save immortal souls; and they shall not lose their reward. Now he that planteth, by first preaching the gospel word, and he that watereth the seed sown by coming after him, are one in affection and intention: and therefore those who are converted under their preaching should be united also, nor think of setting up one against another: and every man shall receive his own reward, according to his own labour; when the great Master comes, he will give to every man according as his work is; to secure his approbation must therefore be our great design, and not the empty honour which cometh from man only, which some of you affect. For we are labourers together with God, united in the same service, and honoured abundantly by the very work committed to us; whilst ye are God's husbandry, your hearts the field wherein he sows the seed of eternal life; ye are God's building, the spiritual temple which he erects, and where he is well pleased to take up his abode; for ye are the habitation of God through the Spirit. Of this building we may observe,

1. The foundation is Jesus Christ. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, who hath appointed me to the office, and qualified me for the service, as a wise master-builder I have laid the foundation of your faith and hope in a crucified Jesus; and another buildeth thereon, succeeding ministers have carried on the blessed work begun in your hearts: but, it is a needful and important caution, let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ, the rock of ages, the only hope of the miserable and desperate, and out of whom there is no salvation.

2. The superstructure must correspond with the foundation. Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, inculcating the holy doctrines of the gospel, and exhorting men to a heavenly conversation which may adorn them, such labourer's work will bear the severest scrutiny, and shine gloriously before the eyes of men; but if they build wood, hay, stubble, urging their own conceits and fancies, and zealous about things insignificant and unessential, whilst the weightier matters are neglected, every man's work shall be made manifest; for the day of judgment shall shortly declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and, as the refiner tries the metal in the furnace, the fire shall try every man's work, of what sort it is; the exact scrutiny of that day shall prove whether every man's opinions and practices corresponded with the Scripture standard or not: and the consequences of the trial will be awful. (1.) If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, and it appears, before the great Judge, that he hath followed his plan, and corresponded with his designs, in building up men's souls in the doctrines of grace and holiness, he shall receive a reward, eminent and distinguished, according to his labours and fidelity. (2.) If any man's work shall be burnt, and his opinions and practices be found unscriptural and erroneous, however highly he may have valued himself upon his abilities, he shall suffer loss, and see his fine spun conceits all destroyed: but, if he hath himself been founded upon Christ, and, though weak or mistaken, yet was not allowedly wicked or licentious, he himself shall be saved from the wrath to come, yet so as by fire, with such difficulty as a man escapes naked from his house when in flames. Note, (1.) Before the great trying day comes, we should be often examining ourselves by that word of God whereby we must at last be justified or condemned. (2.) We may not be liberal of rash censures concerning the eternal states of men; but, whilst we condemn their opinions, must leave their hearts to the great Judge.

16. [y] Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? 17. [z] If any man * defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for [a] the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are. 18. [b] Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. 19. [c] For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness. 20. And again, [d] The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain. 21. Therefore let no man [e] glory in men: for [f] all things are yours; 22. Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; 23. And [g] ye are Christ's; [h] and Christ is God's.

y Eph. 2. 20—22. Heb. 3. 6. 1 Pet. 2. 5. ch. 6. 19. 2 Cor. 6. 16. Rom. 8. 9. John 14. 16, 17. 2 Tim. 1. 14. Ezek. 36. 27.

z Rom. 8. 13. 2 Pet. 2. 1—3. Is. 3. 11.

* Or destroy.

a Ps. 93. 5. Ezek. 43. 12. Heb. 3. 1. & 12. 14—16.

b Gal. 6. 3, 7. Prov. 3. 5, 7. Is. 5. 21. Mat. 16. 21. ch. 4. 10. & 1. 23, 24. Col. 2. 3.

c Job 5. 13. ch. 1. 19, 20. Ps. 7. 15, 16 & 9. 15, 16. & 35. 7, 8. & 141. 10. & 17. 13. Is. 29. 14, 16. Rom. 1. 21, 22. Is. 44. 25.

d Ps. 94. 11. & 2. 1. Job 11. 11, 12.

e Ch. 1. 12, 29. & 4. 6. ver. 5, 7.

f Rom. 8. 28. 2 Cor. 4. 5, 15. Gal. 2. 7. Rev. 21. 7. Phil. 2. 21.

g Ch. 6. 19, 20. Mat. 23. 8, 10. Rom. 14. 8.

h Eph. 1. 3, 17. 1 Pet. 1. 3. ch. 8. 6. & 11. 3. Heb. 1. 3. & 5. 8. Phil. 2. 8. John 17. 4. & 6. 38.

Mat. 26. 39. Eph. 1. 10. ch. 15. 28.

Verses 16—23. The apostle here,

1. Presses the argument of holiness upon them from the consideration suggested, ver. 9. Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, designed in a more peculiar manner for his abode than that house which Solomon built: and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you, in his gracious presence and mighty operations? If any man defile the temple of God, and seek, by broaching his corrupt opinions, to subvert the foundation, or by evil practices to seduce and draw men away from the truth of the gospel, him shall God destroy with more fearful judgment than was threatened against the defilers of the material temple: for the temple of God is holy, set apart for himself; which temple ye are, and therefore are bound to be holy in all manner of conversation.

2. He warns them against the danger of vain conceit on their gifts and attainments. Let no man deceive himself with high imaginations of his own superior excellence, and in consequence propagate as truth his own erroneous opinions. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, and values himself upon his attainments in philosophy and human literature, let him become a fool, that he may be wise, renouncing it all so far as it would beget perverse reasonings against the humbling truths of revelation, and content simply to embrace the doctrine of the cross, which the wise world counts foolishness: for thus only can any man become wise unto salvation: for the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God, all their systems of theology, and their learned disquisitions on religion, are mere folly, compared with his glorious scheme of salvation through a dying Redeemer: for it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness, their fine spun reasonings are the nets wherein they entangle and ruin themselves; and again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain; all their projects and designs, however deep concealed, are open to his eye; and, compared with his thoughts, weakness, folly, and vanity, are stamped upon them. Note, (1.) No man can become truly wise till, sensible of his spiritual ignorance, like a little child he comes to God's word to learn the first elements of truth. (2.) How amazingly foolish will all the wisdom of this world shortly appear, when those who trusted on the powers of their fallen reason to lead them to happiness, will find it to have been, like the deceitful meteor, a light only to delude them into eternal darkness.

3. He warns them against exalting men, even the best and wisest, or following any minister implicitly, when their faith ought to stand not in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God. Therefore let no man glory in men, as being this or that man's disciples, despising others and undervaluing their ministry: for all things are yours, appointed and ordained for your blessing and advantage; whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, their gifts are bestowed on them for the edification of the body of Christ; or the world, the administration of it is in the hands of Jesus, and he will give his people such a portion of it as shall be most for their good; or life, he will preserve you so long, and in such circumstances, as shall be most for his glory and your eternal happiness; or death, he will disarm it of its sting, and, in whatever manner it may come upon you, will cause it to prove your greatest gain; or things present, you shall be cared for through all your pilgrimage by his gracious providence; or things to come, an eternity of glory is before you; all are yours, secured to you in the everlasting covenant, and working together for your present and eternal benefit; and ye are Christ's, the objects of his love, the purchase of his blood, the members of his body; and Christ is God's, the appointed Mediator, the great Covenant-head, who hath all things in his hands, and ever lives to perfect the salvation of his people, and to bring them to reign with him in heaven, to the eternal praise of the glory of God's grace.

CHAP. IV.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, 1. Directs them how to account of him and his fellow-ministers, and therein, tacitly at least, reproves them for their unworthy carriage towards him, ver. 1—6. 2. He cautions them against pride and self-elation, and hints at the many temptations they had to conceive too highly of themselves, and despise him, and other apostles, because of the great diversity in their circumstances and condition, ver. 7—14. 3. He challenges their regard to him as their father in Christ, ver. 15—17. 4. He tells them of his having sent Timothy to them, and of his own purpose to come to them shortly, however some among them had pleased themselves, and grown vain upon the quite contrary expectation, ver. 18. ad finem.

1. LET a man so account of us as of [a] the ministers of Christ, and [b] stewards of the mysteries of God. 2. Moreover it is required in stewards, that [c] a man be found faithful. 3. But with me [d] it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's * judgment: [e] yea, I judge not mine own self; 4. For [f] I know nothing by myself; [g] yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord. 5. [h] Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God. 6. And [i] these things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes; that ye might learn in us [k] not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one against another.

a See ch. 3. 5. 2 Cor. 4. 5. & 6. 4. Col. 1. 25. Tit. 1. 7. 1 Pet. 4. 10.
b Mat. 24. 45. & 18. 19. ch. 9. 7. Is. 22. 22. c Luke 12. 42. 2 Tim. 2. 2. d Mat. 25. 21. Luke 16. 1, 10. ch. 7. 25. 2 Cor. 1. 12. & 2. 17. & 4. 2. Col. 1. 7. & 4. 7, 17. Acts 20. 20, 27. 1 Pet. 5. 3. Mark 10. 43. 2 Pet. 1. 16.
e 1 Sam. 16. 13. 2 Cor. 10. 10.
* Gr. day.
f 1 John 3. 20, 21.
g 1 John 3. 20, 21. ch. 15. 10. Rom. 15. 19. 2 Cor. 11. 23. Job 27. 6. Acts 23. 1. & 24. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 12.
h Job 9. 2. & 40. 4. Ps. 130. 3. & 143. 2. & 19. 12. Rom. 3. 19, 20. & 4. 2. Prov. 21. 2.
i Mat. 7. 1. Rom. 2. 1, 16 & 14. 4, 10, 12. 2 Cor. 5. 10. Eccl. xii. 14. ch. 3. 13. Rev. 20. 12. Acts 17. 31. Dan. 7. 10. Job 22. 22. Mat. 25. 34. Rom. 2. 29.
k Ch. 1. 12. & 3. 4, 6—8, 22. 8. Jude 16. k Prov. 3. 7. Rom. 12. 3. ch. 5. 2, 6. 2 Cor. 12. 20. 2 Pet. 2.

Verses 1—6. The apostle here,

1. States the true character of gospel ministers, and the esteem in which they should be held. Let a man so account of us as of the ministers of Christ, (ὑπηρέτας) servants, under-rowers, of the vessel where Christ is the pilot, and labouring with all their might to bring it to the haven of eternal rest; and stewards of the mysteries of God, dispensing to the household of faith the rich provision made in the gospel-word for their nourishment and growth in grace. Moreover it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful, true to the trust committed to them, and zealous for their Master's interest and honour.

2. Whatever they might think of him, he could appeal to God for his own simplicity and godly sincerity. But, though some among you in the spirit of party are crying up one minister, and censuring another, with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment: though I am desirous, for the honour of Christ and the success of my ministry, to vindicate my integrity before men, yet their censures are comparatively insignificant: the approbation of the Lord, in the great day, is my important concern. Yea, conscious of the corruption of my own heart, I judge not mine own self; for though I know nothing by myself, nor am at all conscious of allowed guile or unfaithfulness, yet am I not hereby justified, I would not on any consideration rest my justification before God on the footing of my own sincere obedience; he knows the deceitfulness of my heart better than I can, and may condemn me for what I have overlooked; but, living upon his grace, and enabled to appeal to him for my simplicity, I wait the great decisive day, knowing that he that judgeth me is the Lord, to whose blood and righteousness I have fled for acceptance, and by whose grace I am what I am. Note, (1.) It is a comfort to us, that men, even the best of men, are not our judges. (2.) Though we maintain a becoming care about our character before men, our great concern must be to approve ourselves to God; and where we are conscious that this is our desire and labour, then we may sit loose to every malevolent censure. (3.) The fidelity of a steward and the diligent labours of a servant characterize the real minister of the gospel.

3. He warns them against hasty judgment. Therefore judge nothing before the time, suspend every rash censure until the Lord come, who will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts, when every man's principles, as well as practices, will be laid naked and open; and then shall every man, who shall be found faithful, have praise of God, and be acknowledged and commended by the great Judge of all. Note, (1.) The prospect of a judgment-day should make us careful how we dare judge others. They shall then have judgment without mercy, who showed no mercy. (2.) However sin be now concealed, and false principles put on the most specious appearances, the cheat cannot be long undiscovered; the day is near when the secrets of all hearts shall be made known. (3.) They who can now approve themselves to their Lord, however reviled or maligned, shall shortly be owned by the eternal Judge.

4. To avoid every offence, he tells them, These things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes, choosing to make use of his own name, and that of Apollos, rather than to apply the matter to any of those who headed parties among them, which might but exasperate. And I do this that ye might learn in us, who, though chief in labours among you, disclaim all authority over your consciences, not to think of men above that which is written, setting them up as the lords of your faith, and implicitly following their opinions; and that no one of you be puffed up for one against another, exalting the character of one minister upon the ruins of another; but giving God the glory of the various gifts he hath bestowed on different men, and thankful for the benefit of their ministry.

7. For † [l] who maketh thee to differ from another? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive? now, if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it? 8. [m] Now ye are full, now ye are rich; ye have [n] reigned as kings without us; and [o] I would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you. 9. For I think that [p] God hath set forth us the apostles ‡ last, as it were appointed to death: for [p] we are made a ‡ spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men. 10. [p] We l John 3. 27. Rom. 12. 6. & 9. 16, 18. Jam. 1. 17. 2 Pet. 4. 10. ch. 7. 7. & 12. 11. Tit. 3. 5.

† Gr. distinguisheth thee.
m Rev. 3. 17. ch. 1. 5.
n Ps. 122. 6—9. 1 Thes. 2. 19, 20. Rom. 12. 15. o 1 Thes. 3. 3. 2 Cor. 1. 18. & 4. 11. Heb. 10. 33. ch. 15. 30. Eph. 6. 12. Rom. 8. 36.
‡ Gr. theatre.
p Acts. 17. 18. & 26. 24. ch. 1. 18—20, 26—28. & 3. 18. & 2. 3. 2 Kin. 9. 11. 2 Cor. 4. 18. & 10. 10. & 13. 9.

are fools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise in Christ; we are weak, but ye are strong; ye are honourable, but we are despised. 11. [q] Even unto this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place; 12. [r] And labour, working with our own hands: [*] [s] being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it: 13. Being defamed, we entreat: [t] we are made as the filth of the world, and are the off-scouring of all things unto this day.

q 2 Cor. 4. 8—10. & 11. 23, 27. & 6. 4. & 7. 5. Acts 20. 23. 2 Tim. 3. 11.
r Acts 20. 34. & 18. 3. 1 Thes. 2. 9. 2 Thes. 3. 8. ch. 9. 6.
* This, being written at Ephesus, shows us that the apostle took no maintenance from the Ephesians any more than he had done from the Corinthians.
s Mat. 5. 11, 44. Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60. Rom. 12. 14. 1 Tim. 4. 10. 1 Pet. 2. 23. & 3. 9.
t Lam. 3. 45. Acts 22. 22.

Verses 7—13. As they were puffed up with a high conceit of themselves, and their unreasonable partiality for one minister above another arose from an opinion of their own superior taste and judgment, the apostle rebukes this unchristian spirit.

1. He reminds them that all they possessed was of God's mere grace. For who hath made thee to differ from another, admitting your attainments may be singular? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive from above as a matter of sovereign favour? Now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory as if thou hadst not received it? and that it was not owing to his grace, but to your own desert, diligence, or ability? a claim how insolent, ungrateful, nay impious? Note, There is nothing we can properly call our own but sin: all good cometh from above, and God must have the glory of his own work: it is the worst of sacrilege to plume ourselves on the gifts or graces which he bestows.

2. He ironically reproves their vain imaginations of their own excellence. Now ye are full, now ye are rich, abounding in worldly wealth, high in spiritual gifts, and flattering yourselves with the apprehension of your exalted attainments in grace; ye have reigned as kings without us, priding yourselves as if you had attained the summit of prosperity, without any obligations to us, or any assistance of ours who first preached the gospel unto you; and I would to God ye did reign; far from envying you, I should be happy in your advancement, and wish for nothing more earnestly than that you really were as great and excellent as the glass of self-deceit represents you to be; that we also might reign with you, rejoicing in your attainments, and partaking of your glory as the instruments who contributed so greatly to your conversion and edification; whom you would then honour and respect, instead of adding to our troubles by your unbecoming conduct and ingratitude. For I think that God hath set forth us the apostles, who were last called to the ministry of the word, as it were appointed unto death, ordained to suffer peculiar afflictions, and every day exposed to danger and death: for we are, as public criminals, exposed to beasts in the theatres, and devoted to destruction, made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men, exposed to every ignominy, reproach, and suffering from the world which lieth in wickedness, whilst angels and good men admire our constancy and pity our sufferings, and devils and wicked men insult, revile, and persecute us. But whilst we are counted fools for Christ's sake, thus to expose ourselves for the sake of our crucified Master, and for our preaching the doctrines of the cross, which the world counts foolishness; ye are wise in Christ, and, varnishing over the offensive truths of the gospel, value yourselves on your wisdom and prudence in escaping that cross under which we groan; we are weak, oppressed with sorrows and sufferings, till our strength is ready to fail; but ye are strong, and know none of our tribulations to harass you: ye are honourable, and maintain a respectable character in the world, and with lukewarm professors of Christianity; but we are despised for our fidelity, which draws upon us the reproaches and persecutions under which we appear so contemptible. Whilst you enjoy ease and affluence, even unto this present hour, we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place, like our Master, without a settled abode to lay our head; and labour working with our own hands, for that maintenance which you should supply, but which, for the gospel's sake, we rather choose to earn with the sweat of our brow than demand: being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it patiently; being defamed, we entreat, return no opprobrious language, but mildly remonstrate, and humbly beg a hearing: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the off-scouring of all things unto this day, treated as the vilest miscreants, and as wretches chosen from the dregs of the people, who, being regarded by the heathen as the authors of all their public calamities, are offered in sacrifice to appease the wrath of their supposed offended deities. Note, (1.) Many dangerously mistake, who judge of themselves by their gifts. It is not great knowledge, but great grace, which constitutes the eminent Christian. (2.) They who will be faithful in the ministry should count the cost, and go forth with a readiness to suffer, if need be, the loss of all things. (3.) Nothing can serve to show the character of the blessed Paul in a more distinguished light than the account he here gives of himself. May we learn to copy his disinterested zeal, and bear our sufferings with the like meekness and unshaken fidelity!

14. [u] I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sons I warn you. 15. For, though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: [x] for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel. 16. Wherefore, I beseech you, [y] be ye followers of me. 17. For this cause have I sent unto you [z] Timotheus, who is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Christ, as I teach every where in every church. 18. Now some [a] are puffed up, as though I would not come to you. 19. [b] But I will come to you shortly, if the Lord will, and will know, not the speech of them which are puffed up, but the power. 20. [c] For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power. 21. What will ye? shall I come unto you [d] with a rod, or in love, and in the spirit of meekness?

u 2 Cor. 7. 3. & 2. 15. 1 Thes. 2. 11. ver. 15.
x Acts 18. 4, 11. Rom. 15. 20. ch. 3. 6. & 9. 1, 2. 2 Cor. 3. 2, 3. & 10. 14. Gal. 4. 19. Philem. 10. Jam. 1. 18. 1 Pet. 1. 23.
y Ch. 11. 1. Phil. 3. 17. 1 Thes. 1. 6. 2 Thes. 3. 9. Heb. 13. 7.
z Ch. 16. 20. Phil. 2. 19. 1 Thes. 3. 2. 1 Tim. 1. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 2.
a Ver. 6. ch. 5. 2.
b Acts 18. 21. & 19. 21. Rom. 15. 32. ch. 16. 5, 7. 2 Cor. 1. 15. Heb. 6. 3. Jam. 4. 15. c Rom. 15. 19. ch. 2. 4. 1 Thes. 1. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 16. Rom. 14. 17. Luke 17. 20, 21. Gal. 6. 15.
d 2 Cor. 10. 2. & 13. 10.
† Macknight supposes the apostle here terms the power of punishing obstinate offenders by miracle, a rod.

Verses 14—21. The apostle with singular address,

1. Insinuates the kind intentions he had in this discourse. I write not these things to shame or upbraid you, but as a father, tenderly concerned for my beloved sons, I warn you to beware of a conduct that is so unbecoming you, which must in the issue prove so much to your dishonour, and which it is highly incumbent on you to observe, lament, and amend. For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, who help to build you up in the faith, yet have ye not many fathers, to whose ministry ye were indebted for being called to the knowledge of the truth: for in Christ Jesus have I begotten you through the gospel, he using my instrumentality, and sending me first among you to preach his great salvation: and the most of you, through his effectual grace, by my ministry, have been called to the knowledge of the truth, and faith in him; and therefore I have a peculiar title to your esteem and regard. Wherefore, I beseech you, be ye followers of me as dear children, not led away by those who would pervert you from the simplicity of the gospel, and steal your affections from me that you might idolize them. Remember my example, and, as far as I appeared to imitate my Divine Master, copy after the pattern. Note, (1.) Those rebukes will be most effectual, where kindness gives weight to the admonition. (2.) The way to reclaim any man from the error of his ways is not by publicly exposing him to shame, but by secret and gentle remonstrances. (3.) They who have been our spiritual fathers have a title to our peculiar affection. (4.) Every minister by his example should adorn the doctrine he preaches, that he may with some humble confidence be able to say, "Be ye followers of me."

2. He tells them what were his kind intentions in sending the bearer of this epistle. For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, to second this letter by his exhortations and ministry, who is my beloved son, begotten in the gospel, and dear to me as a child; and faithful in the Lord, proved to be so by long experience; who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Christ, as I teach every where in every church, preaching the same doctrine, and walking in the same steps. Note, (1.) The great doctrines of the gospel can admit of no change: like their Author, they are the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. (2.) All faithful ministers of Christ bring the same message, walk after the same rule, and mind the same things. Novelty is the proof of error.

3. He assures them of his intention to visit them himself, notwithstanding the insinuations of some of their false teachers. Now some are puffed up as though I would not come to you, as if I was ashamed or afraid personally to meet them; and perhaps may make the sending of Timothy an argument to support their suggestions: but I will come to you shortly, it is my firm determination so to do, if the Lord will, in whose hands are all our ways; and will know, not the speech of them which are puffed up, but the power, examining into their credentials, and not to be deluded with the glare of their eloquence or learning: but inquiring what power accompanies their ministrations, and what efficacy their discourses have on the hearts of their hearers. For the kingdom of God is not in word: the church of the Redeemer is neither erected nor supported by human wisdom, nor doth mere profession constitute the Christian character; but it stands in the power of God; not by man's eloquence, but through the preaching of the cross, made effectual through the Spirit's energy, is this kingdom set up and maintained in the hearts of the redeemed.

4. He concludes with an authoritative question, What will ye? how would you choose I should visit you? shall I come unto you with a rod, according to my apostolic power, severely to chastise those offenders and disturbers of your peace? this would be my grief as well as yours; or shall I come to you as I desire to do, in love, and in the spirit of meekness? rejoicing to find a thorough reformation of whatever hath been amiss, forgetting what is past, and affectionately embracing you as my dear children. Note, (1.) Obstinate offenders call for the rod; and though it be painful, parents, masters, ministers, must not spare. (2.) Love and meekness are the ornament of the Christian character, and in these the preachers of the gospel should excel.

CHAP. V.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, 1. Blames them for their indulgence in the case of the incestuous person, and orders him to be excommunicated and delivered to Satan, ver. 1—7. 2. He exhorts them to Christian purity, by purging out the old leaven, ver. 7, 8. And, 3. Directs them to shun even the common conversation of Christians who were guilty of any notorious and flagitious wickedness, ver. 9. ad finem.

1. IT is reported commonly that there [a] is fornication among you, and [a] such fornication as is not so much as named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife.* 2. [b] And ye are puffed up, and have not rather mourned, that he that hath done this deed might be taken away from among you. 3. [c] For I verily, as absent in body but present in spirit, have †judged already, as though I were present, concerning him that hath [d] so done this deed. 4. [d] In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ, 5. [e] To deliver such an one unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. 6. [f] Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that [g] a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? 7. [h] Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. [i] For even Christ our passover ‡ is sacrificed for us: 8. Therefore let us keep § the feast, [k] not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

[a] Eph. 5. 3. Lev. 18. 8. Deut. 22. 30. & 27. 20.

* Macknight supposes the woman to have been the guilty person's stepmother.

[b] Ch. 4. 8, 18. Lev. 20. 11. 2 Cor. 7. 10. & 12. 21. Gal. 5. 10, 12.

[c] Col. 2. 5. ver. 5. 2 Kin. 5. 26.

† Or determined.

[d] Mat. 16. 19. & 18. 18. & 28. 18. John 20. 23. 2 Cor. 2. 10.

[e] 1 Tim. 1. 20. 2 Cor. 2. 7. & 10. 6, 8. & 13. 9. ver. 7, 13.

[f] Ch. 3. 21. & 4. 18, 19. Jam. 4. 16.

[g] Gal. 5. 9. ch. 15. 33. 2 Tim. 2. 17.

[h] Ver. 5. 13. Eph. 4. 22. Col. 3. 5, 9, 10. Exod. 12. 15. & 13. 6, 7.

[i] Exod. 12. 5, 6. Deut. 16. 2. Is. 53. 7, 10. John 1. 29, 36. Acts 8. 32, 35. ch. 15. 3, 4. 1 Pet. 1. 19, 20. Rev. 5. 6, 9.

‡ Or is slain.

§ Or holy day.

[k] Exod. xii. Deut. xvi. Lev. 23. 6. Jam. 1. 21. 1 Pet. 2 1, 2.

Verses 1—8. The apostle, after reproving their party disputes, passes on to other gross offences which subsisted among them.

1. A most gross and scandalous crime had been committed by one of the members of the church; that he should have his father's wife, either after his father's death, or, as seems more likely, during his father's life; a species of fornication abominable even in the eyes of civilized heathens, and bringing the greatest reproach on their profession as Christians.

2. What had been one man's sin in the commission, had become the sin of the whole by their connivance. Ye are puffed up. Perhaps this was some factious leader, whom his party screened from censure, and gloried still in his gifts; or the opposite party triumphed maliciously in his fall; or their outward prosperity made them negligent of inward purity among the members of the church; and, therefore, without mourning over such a scandalous offender, and casting him out of the church, as they ought to have done, he still continued to assemble with them, and they countenanced him in his wickedness. Note, (1.) In the most flourishing churches corruptions will creep in. (2.) Party divisions fill the heart with malice, and cause men to ascribe to the whole the faults of individuals. (3.) A Christian's heart mourns over the offences of his brethren, and cannot but sensibly feel the wounds given thereby to the Redeemer's cause.

3. The apostle pronounces sentence upon this incestuous Corinthian, and enjoins them to put it in force against him by an immediate excommunication. I verily, as absent in the body, but present in spirit, having my heart ever solicitous for your welfare, and knowing by revelation the true state of this case, have judged already, as though I were present, concerning him who hath so done this deed, that he be without delay cast out from among you. In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together to consult on this affair; and my spirit is among you, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath left this authority to his church for the maintenance of holy discipline among the professing members of it; I have determined that you are in duty bound to deliver such a one unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, expelling him from the society of the faithful, and delivering him back into the world that lieth under the dominion of the wicked one. And perhaps some signal mark of wrath was suffered to be inflicted upon his body, that, thus exposed to shame and suffering, he might yet perhaps be brought to repentance, and that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. Note, It is as necessary for the backslider as it is for the glory of God, that he should smart for his unfaithfulness: such chastisement is for his salvation, not destruction.

4. He exhorts them to purge out the leaven of wickedness from among them. Your glorying is not good, it is peculiarly unseasonable and strange, when such offences are committed among you with impunity; know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? and that in like manner corrupt principles and practices, connived at in the least measure, may soon spread, and communicate universal infection to the church. Purge out therefore the old leaven, search out and remove all scandalous persons from among you, as carefully as the Jews examine their houses before the passover, that ye may be in reality a new lump, as ye are in profession unleavened, in simplicity and truth devoted to the Lord Jesus as his peculiar people, and departing from all iniquity as the evidence that you belong to him. Note, (1.) The beginnings of evil are to be watched against and checked, lest, like the spreading mortification, the whole body become infected. (2.) They who are Christ's are new creatures. If we say we abide in him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth.

5. He urges his exhortation by the strongest argument. For even Christ our passover, who was signified by the paschal lamb, is sacrificed for us, that he might cleanse us from all iniquity, this being one great end of his death. Therefore let us keep the feast, which he hath instituted instead of the paschal supper, not with old leaven, admitting profane and scandalous offenders to the table of the Lord: neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, not harbouring allowed sin, or living under the power of corruption, defiled in body, or soured with pride and party disputes; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth, with real attachment of heart to the Saviour, and unfeigned love to the brethren. Note, (1.) The sacrifice of Christ, which we commemorate, should be a rich feast to our souls; since thereby every blessing in time and eternity is secured to us. (2.) They who approach the Lord's table should examine themselves, whether their old leaven be purged out, and their hearts in simplicity brought to the spirit and temper of the gospel.

9. I wrote unto you in an epistle [l] not to company with fornicators: 10. [m] Yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world or with the covetous,* or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then must ye needs go out of this world. 11. But now I have written unto you [n] not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such an one no not to eat. 12. For what have I to do to judge [o] them also that are without? do not ye judge [p] them that are within? 13. But them that are without [q] God judgeth. Therefore [r] put away from among yourselves that wicked person.

l Rom. 16. 17. Eph. 5. 7, 11. 2 Thes. 3. 6, 14. 2 Cor. 6. 14. ver. 2, 7, 13. Ps. 1. 1.

m Ch. 10. 27. & 12. 2. Eph. 2. 3. & 4. 17. 1 Pet. 4. 3. 1 John 5. 19. John 17. 15.

* The word signifies, one who is greedy of sensual pleasure, as well as of money.

n Ps. 101. 5. Mat. 18. 17. Rom. 16. 17. 2 Thes. 3. 6, 14. 2 John 10.

o Mark 4. 11. 1 Thes. 4. 11. 1 Tim. 3. 7. Col. 4. 5.

p Ch. 6. 2—4. Heb. 3. 1.

q Exod. 20. 7. Heb. 13. 4.

r Deut. 13. 7. & 17. 7. & 21. 21. & 22. 21—24. Num. 5. 2.

Verses 9—13. Some conceive that the apostle here refers to a former epistle which he had written to the Corinthians, others to one he was writing when he heard from them, and began a new letter in answer to them; though perhaps what he speaks may have only respect to what he had said before in this same epistle. I wrote unto you an epistle, not to company with fornicators; to be separate from all familiar intercourse with those who bring such reproach on the Christian name. Yet my intention is not that you should be altogether secluded from the world, and refuse all civil intercourse with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters: for then must ye needs go out of the world, so few would be left with whom to have any commerce or society in such an evil world as this is. But now I have written unto you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such a one, no not to eat; not only should he be excluded from eating bread with you at the Lord's table, but even all intercourse and connection with him should be cut off, and he should be shunned and avoided by you more than even the heathen themselves; that, being put to shame, he may yet be brought to repentance, and restored to the bosom of the church. For what have I to do to judge them also that are without? as they make no profession of Christianity, they lie under no censures; and in civil affairs, as duty calls, may lawfully be conversed with: but do not ye judge them that are within? the professing members of the church come under your jurisdiction, and are, when under censure, to be treated with this peculiar distance. But them that are without, who are open offenders, and live carelessly after the fashion of the world, God judgeth; to whose judgment they must be left. Therefore, since your power extends over your own community, put away from yourselves that wicked person.

CHAP. VI.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, 1. Reproves them for going to law with one another about small matters, and bringing the cause before heathen judges, ver. 1—8. 2. He takes occasion hence to warn them against many gross sins to which they had been formerly addicted, ver. 9—12. 3. And having cautioned them against the abuse of their liberty, he vehemently dehorts them from fornication by various arguments, ver. 12, ad finem.

1. DARE [a] any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints?* 2. Do ye not know that [b] the saints shall judge the world? and if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matter? 3. Know ye not that we shall [c] judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life? 4. If then ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church. 5. I speak to your shame. Is it so, that there is not a wise man among a Neh. 5. 9. ver. 6.

* Locke thinks this to have been spoken in reproof of a faction, who, to screen the incestuous person from church censure, carried the matter into a heathen court of judicature.

b Ps. 49. 14. Dan. 7. 18. Mat. 19. 28. Luke 22. 30. Rev. 2. 26. & 5. 10. & 20. 4.

c 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6. Rev. 20. 10.

you? no, not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren? 6. But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers. 7. [d] Now therefore there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded? 8. Nay, ye do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren.*

d Prov. 20. 22. Mat. 5. 39. Luke 6. 29. Rom. 12. 17, 19. 1 Thes. 4. 6. & 5. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 9.

* Or But ye injure and defraud; and that too your brethren.

Verses 1—8. The apostle proceeds to censure another grievous abuse among them. A litigious spirit prevailed; and, to the shame of their holy profession, brother went to law against brother, and that before the unbelievers, the heathen magistrates.

1. He rebukes them for thus going to law among themselves, and that too, as appears, ver. 2, 7. on matters of small importance, which, without great detriment to themselves or families, they might have quietly passed by, and borne the loss rather than seek a litigious redress: and worst of all, they chose rather to carry their causes before the heathen tribunals, than refer them to the decision of their own members, the saints of God; foolishly exposing themselves thereby to the partiality which might be expected from unjust judges, and giving the enemy occasion to triumph in their quarrels.

2. He suggests as an aggravation of their fault, the honour and dignity to which the saints of God must shortly be exalted as assessors with the eternal Judge on his throne, whilst fallen angels and a guilty world stand at his bar, and receive from his lips their eternal doom. And if so, how strange must it be that they should not now be able to judge of the smallest matters, and determine concerning the trivial affairs of this life, when even those who are least esteemed in the church would be much fitter to decide than the heathen magistrates before whom they carried their disputes.

3. With a warm expostulation on their folly and perverseness, he points out to them a remedy for the evil. I speak to your shame. In what an unbecoming and unchristian manner do you act. Is it so, that there is not a wise man among you? no, not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren? Where they boasted of such high attainments in wisdom, it would be very strange if they could not find a better umpire of their disputes among the whole body of their church than to have recourse to heathen tribunals. There was therefore, no doubt, a fault in this matter; and far better it was for them to suffer some wrong and loss, than to seek redress in such a way. But, instead of this meekness, patience, and forgiveness, ye do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren, to the great dishonour of your Christian profession. Note, All differences among Christians should be amicably determined by their brethren: at least, in lesser matters, it were better to quit our right than have recourse to the wrangling bar.

9. [e] Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, 10. Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.† 11. [f] And such were some of you: but ye [g] are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

e Ch. 5. 11. Gal. 5. 19—21. Eph. 5. 3—5. Col. 3. 5, 6. 1 Thes. 4. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 9, 10. Heb. 12. 14. & 13. 4. Rev. 21. 8. & 22. 15. Is. 3. 11. Mat. 23. 33.

† The repetition of the negative particles in this verse is very emphatical.

f Ch. 12. 2. Rom. 6. 19. & 7. 5. Eph. 2. 1—3, 11, 12. & 5. 8. Col. 3. 7.

g Ch. 1. 30. Heb. 10. 22. 1 Pet. 1. 2, 3. Tit. 3. 5—7. Acts 26. 17, 18. Is. 1. 18.

Verses 9—11. The apostle having warned them against some particular offences, passes on to enumerate a black catalogue, of which they had formerly been guilty, and under the power of which whosoever continued to walk, he never could inherit the kingdom of God.

1. The sins mentioned are fornication, idolatry, adultery, effeminacy, and lasciviousness, sodomy, theft, avarice, drunkenness, reviling, extortion, crimes which, if indulged, must necessarily exclude the soul from any part in the kingdom of grace, and for ever banish it from the presence of God in glory.

2. He warns them against all self-delusion in this matter. There was a lie in their right hand, if they flattered themselves with any vain imaginations that they had yet hope towards God, whilst walking in such abominations; which then, now, and for ever, if not forgiven and forsaken, must inevitably destroy both body and soul in hell.

3. He reminds them of the blessed change which had passed upon them, that they might not again return unto folly. Such were some of you. But, glory be to God's sovereign, rich, and boundless grace, ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the Spirit of our God: ye are washed in the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness; by the atoning blood and righteousness of the adored Redeemer your iniquities are pardoned, great and aggravated as they were, and your persons presented spotless before the throne of God; and you are not only accounted righteous, but made pure in heart by the mighty operation of the Divine Spirit, and in body, soul, and spirit, renewed, that you might be made meet for the inheritance among the saints in light. Note, (1.) The greatest crimes exclude none from salvation who fly to the atoning blood of Jesus. In him there is grace abounding for the chief of sinners. (2.) All who are justified by grace are sanctified by the Spirit. We deceive ourselves, if we think we have an interest in the one, if we do not experience the effectual operation of the other. (3.) Nothing is so strong an argument to a redeemed soul to fly from sin, as the remembrance of the mercy he hath tasted, and of the ransom which hath been paid.

12. [h] All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not ‡ expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any. 13. [i] Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God shall destroy both it and them. [k] Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body. 14. And [l] God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power. 15. Know ye not that [m] your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. 16. What! know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot is one body? for [n] two, saith he, shall be one flesh. 17. [o] But he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit. 18. [p] Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body. 19. What! [q] know ye not that your body is the temple of the h Ch. 10. 23. Col. 2. 21.

‡ Or profitable, or proper. Macknight understands the apostle here to mean, All meats are lawful for me to eat.

i Mat. 15. 17. Rom. 14. 17. Col. 2. 22, 23. Mat. 22. 30.

k Rom. 6. 13, 19. & 7. 4. ch. 3. 15, 16. & 6. 19, 20. 2 Cor. 11. 2. Eph. 5. 23.

l Acts 2. 24. 1 Thes. 4. 3. Rom. 6. 5, 8. & 8. 11, 17. 2 Cor. 4. 14. Eph. 1. 19, 20. Phil. 3. 10, 11.

m Rom. 12. 5. ch. 11. 3. & 12. 27. Eph. 1. 22. & 4. 12, 15, 16. & 5. 23, 30. Gen. 39. 9. Mark 10. 8.

n Gen. 2. 24. Mat. 19. 5. Eph. 5. 31.

o John 3. 6. & 7. 21—23. Eph. 4. 4. & 5. 30, 32. Phil. 2. 5.

p Exod. 20. 14. 2 Tim. 2. 22. 1 Pet. 2. 11. Rom. 1. 24—28. 1 Thes. 4. 4. Heb. 13. 4.

q Rom. 14. 7, 8. ch. 3. 16. 2 Cor. 6. 16. Eph. 2. 21. Heb. 3. 6. 1 Pet. 2. 5.

r Ch. 7. 23. Gal. 3. 13. Heb. 9. 12, 14. 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. & 3. 18. Rev. 5. 9. Tit. 2. 14. s Mat. 5. 16. Rom. 6. 19. 1 Thes. 4. 3. 2 Cor. 7. 1. ch. 3. 16.

Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? 20. For [r] ye are bought with a price: therefore [s] glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.

Verses 12—20. As some of them at Corinth appeared to have too light thoughts of the sin of fornication, which the apostle ranked under the damning sins, and seem to have set it on a footing only with the meats forbidden to the Gentile converts, (Acts xv. 29.) the apostle strongly sets himself to show their dangerous error. With regard to meats forbidden by the Levitical law, or offered to idols, All things are lawful unto me which Christ hath not forbidden, and are not in their own nature sinful; but all things are not expedient; even in indifferent matters, for the sake of others, it is right to forego our Christian liberty. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any, so as to have my affections enslaved by them, or to have my conscience subjected to any human arbitrary authority. Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats; all wholesome food is designed for our use: but these are things of trivial consequence, since God shall shortly destroy both it and them. In the eternal world the ransomed will not need these bodily refreshments, for they shall hunger no more, nor thirst any more: but respecting fornication, the matter is very different; though the belly is not at all defiled by meats, the body is by fornication.

He urges this matter by various arguments.

1. Now the body is not for fornication; it was not made to be prostituted to impurity; but for the Lord, to be employed for his glory, and the Lord for the body, who, as the bridegroom of his church and people, requires their bodies as well as souls to be under his holy government. And,

2. God hath both raised up the Lord Jesus, from the dead, that his quickened body might be the pledge and earnest of our resurrection; and will also raise up us by his own power: our bodies therefore, that shall be fashioned like to his glorious body, ought not now to be polluted by fornication and uncleanness.

3. Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? through faith we are united to Christ as our living head, and compose a part of his body mystical; shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of a harlot? how horrid the very suggestion! and every Christian heart, with detestation of the thought, cannot but cry, God forbid! What! know ye not, that he who is joined to a harlot, is one body? such an unhallowed connexion is most contrary to the union of the heart with Jesus: for two, saith he, shall be one flesh. A fornicator becomes united to a harlot, and not to Christ; but he that is joined to the Lord, in real vital union of heart and person, is one spirit, actuated and influenced by the same Divine Spirit, which in all its fulness dwells in our exalted head. Therefore flee fornication, as the highest indignity we can offer to the Lord, of whose body we are members. Note, In temptation to lewdness, flight is often the only preservative.

4. Every other sin that a man doth is without the body, and terminates upon an object without himself, not immediately defiling the body, though it brings guilt upon his soul; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body; not only offending against God and his neighbour, but immediately contaminating his own flesh by such an abomination.

5. What shall I farther urge? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God? and, since he hath been pleased to take up his abode in your hearts, ye are not your own, but bound to yield yourselves to his will and guidance, and to do nothing which should provoke the divine inhabitant to quit his temple with abhorrence.

6. For, to finish with one argument more, ye are bought with a price, even the amazing price of a Redeemer's blood, from the curse of the law, and the bondage of corruption, that you might be restored to the service and enjoyment of the blessed God. Therefore, since this was one great end of your redemption, glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's, nor dare to alienate your affections from him, or to dishonour your bodies by fornication, which should be employed in his blessed work, and wholly and unreservedly devoted to his glory.

CHAP. VII.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle answers some cases, proposed to him by the Corinthians about marriage. He, 1. Shows them that marriage was appointed as a remedy against fornication, and therefore persons had better marry than burn, ver. 1—10. 2. He gives direction to those who were married to continue together, though they might have an unbelieving relative, unless the unbeliever would part, in which case a Christian would not be in bondage. ver. 10—17. 3. He shows them, that becoming Christians does not change their external state, and therefore advises every one to continue, in general, in that state in which he was called, ver. 17—25. 4. He advises them, by reason of the present distress, to keep themselves unmarried: hints the shortness of time, and how they should improve it, so as to grow dead and indifferent to the comforts of the world; and shows them how worldly cares hinder their devotions, and distract them in the service of God, ver. 25—36. 5. He directs them in the disposal of their virgins, ver. 36—39. 6. And closes the chapter with advice to widows how to dispose of themselves in that state, ver 39, 40.

1. NOW concerning the things whereof [a] ye wrote unto me: [a] It is good for a man not to [b] touch a woman. 2. Nevertheless, [c] to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband. 3. [d] Let the husband render unto the wife due benevolence: and likewise also the wife unto [e] the husband. 4. The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath [f] not power of his own body, but the wife. 5. [e] Defraud ye not one the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency. 6. [f] But I speak this by permission, and not of commandment.* 7. [g] For I would that all men were even as I myself. But every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that. 8. I say therefore to the unmarried and widows, [h] It is good for them if they abide even as I. 9. But [i] if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn.

a Mat. 17. 10. ver. 8, 26, 28, 35.
b Gen. 20. 6. Ruth 2. 9. Prov. 6. 29.
c Ch. 6. 18. ver. 9. Prov. 5. 19.
d Exod. 21. 10. 1 Pet. 3. 7. ch. 8. 1.
e Exod. 19. 15. 1 Sam. 21. 4. Joel 2. 1, 16. Zech. 7. 3. 1 Thes. 3. 5. Mat. 19. 11.
f 2 Cor. 11. 17. & 8. 8. ver. 12, 25.
* This expression has occasioned much controversy. It seems to us that the apostle cannot be here understood, as disclaiming inspiration. We would understand him as our commentator has done—to mean, I say this in the way of permission, not of commandment or positive injunction. See a similar expression, 2 Cor. vii. 8.
g Ch. 9. 5. & 12. 11, 25, Mat. 19. 12. Acts 26. 29.
h Ver. 1, 26, 35, 40.
i Ver. 2, 36, 39. 1 Tim. 5. 14.

Verses 1—9. In answer to some case of conscience, which the Corinthians had sent to the apostle for his solution, he replies:

1. In the persecuted state of the church, and considering the incumbrances which a married state necessarily produced, he suggests, that it would be well for those who had the gift of continence to keep themselves single; and in order to avoid exciting any desire after women, that they should observe a cautious distance, and never touch them.

2. Yet he was far from enjoining celibacy as a duty. To avoid fornication, where the gift of continence was not possessed, and circumstances made it more eligible, it was advisable that, every man and woman should enter into the honourable estate of marriage, with all conjugal fidelity and love cleaving alone to those with whom they are thus united.

3. For those who are married, he lays down this rule: That neither of them afterwards have a right to withhold their bodies from each other, but mutually owe the duty of the marriage-bed. And though on some extraordinary occasions they may forego those lawful delights which they take in each other, it must be by consent, when peculiar seasons of humiliation call for prayer and fasting; and only for a time, not defrauding each other of that which is now a mutual duty, but coming together as before, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency, and whilst you wrongly abstain from what is lawful, he should lead you to what is criminal, and ensnare your affections with other objects.

4. The apostle declares, I speak this by permission, as my advice, and not of commandment, as what is absolutely necessary for every individual; not as if it was every man's duty to marry, who was thereto inclined; there were cases and circumstances when persons could best judge for themselves. For I would that all men were even as I myself, and could as contentedly continue in a state of celibacy; but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that, according to their different dispositions and constitutions. I say therefore to the unmarried and widows, It is good for them if, in these perilous times, they abide even as I, and can with safety and satisfaction continue single. But if they cannot contain, and they find their animal appetites too strong to be kept under, let them marry; this then becomes a duty, and it would be sinful to neglect the ordination of God; for it is better to marry than to burn, and be harassed with tormenting desire.

* The commands of Christ and his apostles are in one view — and that the most important — the same. Luke 16. 18. 1 John 4. 6. 1. Thess. 4. 8. 1 Cor. 14. 37. Yet there is a distinction, in emphasis, as it were, between sayings delivered by Jesus himself personally, when he was upon earth, and sayings delivered in his name by his apostles. We may understand the apostle to say, "I command — yet not I only, though an inspired apostle, but the Lord himself gives commandment as to this.

k Mat. 5. 32. & 19. 6, 9. Mark 10. 11, 12. Luke 16. 18.

l As Ezra 9. 2. & 10. 2, 3, 11.

m Ezra 9. 2. Mal. 2. 15. Tit. 1. 15. 1 Tim. 4. 5. Eph. 2. 12. Rom. 11. 16.

n Rom. 12. 18. & 14. 19. ch. 14. 33. Heb. 12. 14.

o 1 Pet. 3. 1. Mat. 5. 16.

10. And unto the married I command, yet not I, but the Lord, *[k] Let not the wife depart from her husband: 11. But and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband: and let not the husband put away his wife. 12. But to the rest speak I, not the Lord: If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and she be pleased to dwell with him, [l] let him not put her away. 13. And the woman which hath an husband that believeth not, and if he be pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave him. 14. [m] For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband: else were your children unclean; but now are they holy. 15. But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases: but [n] God hath called us to peace. 16. [o] For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife? 17. [p] But as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, so let him walk: and so ordain I in all churches.

p Ver. 7. Mat. 19. 12, 24.

Verses 10—17. As many who had been called in a conjugal state had partners of their bed, who still continued in heathenism, and divorces were common among the Jews, the apostle, by immediate authority from his Lord, declares what was their duty in such circumstances.

1. The wife may on no considerations (adultery excepted) depart from her husband. But if she depart voluntarily, or be dismissed through any quarrel, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband, whose regard it is her duty by all lawful means to endeavour to regain. And let not the husband put away his wife, on any consideration but the defilement of the marriage-bed. Note, Those who are married should desire and delight to make that state a comfort to each other; every breach involves both in misery.

2. With regard to those who have partners that continue in unbelief, whilst they themselves are called to the knowledge of the truth, the following directions I give by the Spirit, the Lord having left no express command concerning the matter.

(1.) If any unbelieving wife or husband choose to cohabit with their partner, who is converted to the faith of Christ, the believing wife or husband must not separate themselves from the unbeliever on account of religion. And he suggests his reasons for what he enjoined: [1.] The state is sanctified by the faith of either of the parties. The unbelieving husband is sanctified by, or in, the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by, or in the husband, they being one by virtue of the marriage union, and all their lawful marriage enjoyments sanctified to the faithful person; else were your children unclean, and not entitled to the blessings and privileges that belong to the visible church; but now are they holy, capable of being received into the congregation of the faithful, and admitted to the seal of the covenant, as much as if they descended from parents who were both believers in profession. [2.] God hath called us to peace; and therefore, so far as we can maintain it with our unbelieving relatives, we are bound to do it, and not make our different sentiments in religious matters the ground of contention and angry dispute: and though we wish they were even as we, yet should we not quarrel with them because they refuse to be of the same mind with us, but bear with the perverseness and displeasure which they may testify against us on account of our profession. [3.] Whilst thus walking in love, peace, and chastity, what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife? and be made the instrument of her conversion. But, whether this be the case or not, as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, in whatsoever state or relation, so let him walk, as may most adorn his holy profession; and so ordain I in all churches, laying this down as a general rule, to be accommodated to particular cases.

But, (2.) The case however is quite different, if the unbelieving depart, and offended at their partner for embracing the gospel, for that cause refuse any longer to cohabit with them; and, all kind means being used, insist on a separation; a brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases, nor obliged to detain them when they desire to depart. Nay some suppose, that such a malicious and obstinate desertion, where all proposals of reconciliation and return are rejected, amounts to the dissolution of the marriage covenant, with regard to the injured party, like death itself: but I should think otherwise, unless the desertion is accompanied with adultery in the unbeliever; and even then, though in God's sight the marriage bond is broken, the civil contract can be dissolved only by proper authority.

18. [r] Is any man called being circumcised? let him not become uncircumcised: is any called in uncircumcision? let him not be circumcised. 19. [s] Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God. 20. [t] Let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called. 21. [u] Art thou called being a servant? care not for it: but if thou mayest be made free, use it rather. 22. [x] For he that is called in the Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's † free man: likewise also he that is called, being free, is Christ's servant. 23. [y] Ye are bought with a price; [z] be not ye the servants of men. 24. Brethren, let every man, wherein he is called, therein [a] abide with God.

r Acts 15. 1, 19. Gal. 5. 1, 2. & 6. 15. Col. 3. 11.
s Rom. 2. 25. & 3. 30. ch. 8. 8. Gal. 5. 6. & 6. 15. Col. 3. 11. John 15. 14.
t Eph. 4. 1. Phil. 1. 27. Col. 1. 10. 1 Thes. 2. 12. & 4. 11. 2 Thes. 3. 12.
u Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11. ch. 12. 13.
x Ver. 18. Rom. 6. 18, 22. Gal. 5. 13. 1 Pet. 2. 16. John 8. 32, 36. Luke 1. 74, 75. ch. 9. 21. Eph. 6. 5, 6. Philem. 16. 1 Pet. 2. 16.
† Gr. made free.
y Lev. 25. 42. ch. 6. 20. Acts 20. 28. Mat. 20. 28. Rom. 4. 24. Tit. 2. 14. Gal. 1. 4. & 3. 13. Rev. 5. 9. & 1. 5, 6. 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. & 3. 18. Heb. 9. 12, 14. z Gal. 2. 4. Col. 2. 20—22. Dan. 3. 18. Mat. 33. 8—10. a Gen. 5. 24. & 6. 9. & 17. 1. 1 John 1. 3, 7.

Verses 18—24. The apostle passes on to other cases.

1. Respecting circumcision. Is any man called being circumcised, Jew or proselyte, let him not become uncircumcised, or regret that he submitted to this rite. Is any one called in uncircumcision? let him not become circumcised, all these marks of peculiarity being abolished under the gospel. Jew and Gentile have now but one way to glory: Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, of no avail at all to salvation; but the grand point is, the keeping the commandments of God, from the divine principle of faith which worketh by love.

2. With regard to men's stations in life. Let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called, desiring no alteration in his circumstances, but satisfied with the dispensations of God's providence. Art thou called being a servant? care not for it; as if because a servant or slave, therefore the less acceptable to God. With him there is no respect of persons. But if thou mayest be made free, use it rather; if the Lord open a door for your liberty, thankfully accept it, mean time resigned to wait his will. For he that is called in the Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's freeman, brought from the bondage of corruption to the most desirable freedom, even into the glorious liberty of the sons of God. Likewise also he that is called being free, is Christ's servant: whatever our civil privileges may be, when we have taken the Lord for our Master, we are, as much as the meanest slave, bound to yield ourselves to him, obedient in all things, Ye are bought with a price, both one and the other with the same price, even the blood of Jesus: be not ye therefore the servants of men; but whenever their commands interfere with the will of your great Master, hesitate not a moment whom ye shall obey. Upon the whole, brethren, this is my injunction; Let every man wherein he is called, whatever his station in life may be, therein abide with God, resigned to his will, aiming at his glory, maintaining communion with him, and looking up for grace to serve him acceptably. Note, (1.) As our worldly circumstances are ordered by divine appointment, to repine is to rebel against God. (2.) No attainments in religion give us a right to any superiority in worldly things. Dominion is not founded in grace.

25. [b] Now concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: ‡ yet I give my judgment, as one that hath [c] obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful. 26. I suppose therefore that [d] this is good for the present distress, I say, that it is good for a man so to be. 27. Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife. 28. [e] But and if thou marry, thou hast not sinned; and if a virgin marry, she hath not sinned: nevertheless such shall have trouble in the flesh; but I spare you. 29. But this I say, brethren, [f] the time is short. It remaineth, that [g] both they that have wives be as though they had none; 30. And they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and they that buy, as though they possessed not; 31. And they that use this world, as not abusing it: for the fashion of this world passeth away. 32. But I would have you [h] without carefulness. [i] He that is unmarried careth for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may please the Lord: 33. But he that is married careth for the things that are of the world, how he may please his wife. 34. There is difference also between a wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy [k] both in body and in spirit; but she that is married careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband. 35. And this I speak for your own profit; not that I may cast a snare upon you, but [l] for that which is comely, and that ye may attend upon the Lord without distraction.

‡ This was a case in which—like that in ver. 12—there was no commandment of Christ on record. Paul goes on to say that he gives a judgment as one who has obtained mercy to be faithful, that is, to his apostolic commission, 'not shunning to declare the whole counsel of God.'

b Ver. 6, 12, 40. 2 Cor. 8. 8, 10. & 11. 17.
c 1 Tim. 1. 12, 13. ch. 4. 2. 2 Cor. 2. 17. & 4. 2. d Ver. 1, 8, 35, 40. Job 15. 24. Ps. 119. 143. Jer. 9. 15. & 15. 4. & 16. 2—4. Mat. 24. 9, 19. 1 Pet. 4. 17. Zeph. 1. 15. Luke 21. 23, 28, 31. & 23. 29. e Heb. 13. 4. ver. 38.
f Rom. 13. 11. ch. 10. 11. 1 Pet. 4. 7. 2 Pet. 3. 8, 9. Ps. 102. 23.
g Ezek. 7. 12. Mat. 6. 19. Ps. 39. 6. Prov. 23. 5. Is. 24. 4. & 40. 6, 7. Jam. 1. 10. & 4. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 24. 1 John 2. 17.
h Ps. 55. 22. Mat. 6. 25—34. Phil. 4. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 7.
i 1 Tim. 5. 5, 6. Luke 10. 40—42. k Ch. 6. 20. 1 Thes. 5. 23.
l Mat. 6. 31. ch. 14. 40. Luke 8. 14. & 10. 41. & 21. 34. & 2. 37. & 1. 75.

Verses 25—35. In answer to their question with regard to unmarried persons, though our Lord had given no particular directions, yet the apostle, under divine inspiration, delivers his judgment.

1. Considering the troublesome times, and the present distress they were under, he advises those who with chastity could, to continue single. If they were already married, they must be content in that state, nor seek to loose that indissoluble bond; but if unmarried, they would do well not hastily to change their condition.

2. If any person found it more advisable or necessary for them to marry, they would commit no sin in so doing, marriage being honourable in all; only they would encumber themselves more in the world, and in those days of persecution expose themselves to more dangerous trials. But he urges not the point, lest he should bring them into a snare, when he only meant to suggest the cautions which prudence dictated.

3. Whatever was their state, married or unmarried, he had one important charge to give them. This I say, brethren, the time is short, eternity is advancing swiftly, and the days which here are allotted us draw to their end. Since therefore our great concern in this world is to prepare for a better, it remaineth that both they that have wives be as though they had none; not setting their affections on a dying world, or retarded from the pursuit of heavenly things by any engagements or attachments here below: and they that weep, as though they wept not; restraining all inordinate grief for the loss of dearest relatives, or for any other afflictions, since all present sufferings must so quickly have an end: and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; considering the transitory nature of all their worldly comforts, and therefore sitting loose to them: and they that buy, as though they possessed not; not trusting in uncertain riches, nor placing their happiness in these possessions, but looking for a more enduring substance; and they that use this world, as not abusing it, to flatter their pride, or gratify their luxury; for the fashion of this world passeth away, all things below are fleeting as the shadow, and will shortly vanish as the dream when one awaketh. Note, (1.) A deep sense of the vanity of time, and the importance of eternity, is needful to regulate both our joys and sorrows, and to keep our affections disengaged from the objects of sense which would otherwise enslave us. (2.) We are dying worms in a dying world: the longest life is but a short time; every moment we are in jeopardy; and what is all the world to a dying man?

4. He suggests the general reason on which he grounded the foregoing advice. I would have you without carefulness, not to lay a snare upon you by enforcing celibacy, but that those who have the gift, may attend on the Lord without distraction. The advantage of the unmarried state is this, that being less incumbered with worldly cares, the single brother or sister are more at leisure for the service of the Redeemer, and can more entirely devote their time and talents, and employ both body and spirit in his blessed work; whilst the married person must necessarily be more engaged in the care of a family, and the needful provision for them, and have the partner of their bosom to please in all lawful things, solicitous to promote their temporal and eternal happiness. Note, (1.) That is always best for a Christian, which is best for his soul. (2.) Our first desire should be to please the Lord, and, whether married or single, to be holy both in body and spirit.

m Heb. 13. 4. ver. 2, 9, 28, 36. with ver. 18, 26, 34.
n Rom. 7. 1—3. see ver. 10, 15.
o 2 Cor. 6. 14. ch. 10. 31. Ezra 9. 2. Deut. 7. 3, 4. Mat. 2. 11.
p Ver. 18, 26, 35.
q Ver. 25. 1 Thes. 4. 8. 2 Cor. 10. 10. & 12. 11. see Rom. 1. 1.

36. ¶ But if any man think that he behaveth himself uncomely toward his virgin, if she pass the flower of her age, and need so require: let him do what he will, he sinneth not: let them marry. 37. Nevertheless, he that standeth stedfast in his heart, having no necessity, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart that he will keep his virgin, doeth well. 38. [m] So then he that giveth her in marriage doeth well; but he that giveth her not in marriage doeth better. 39. [n] The wife is bound by the law as long as her husband liveth: but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will; [o] only in the Lord. 40. [p] But she is happier if she so abide, after my judgment: and I think also that [q] I have the Spirit of God.*

* As if he had said: "Whatever some may say, or may insinuate, I think I have the Spirit of God: I think I surely gave you sufficient evidence of this—did I not? Have you any reason to refuse my authority? I tender to you these directions in love; and I think, from the signs wrought amongst you, I may also enjoin upon you that which is convenient." — Wardlaw.

Verses 36—40. The apostle proceeds with farther directions concerning marriage.

1. Concerning virgins. If any man think that he behaveth himself uncomely towards his virgin, by restraining his daughter or ward, who is disposed thereto, from marrying; if she pass the flower of her age, and is come to years of maturity, and need so require, on deliberating the matter, it seems most eligible she should change her condition, let him do what he will, he sinneth not in disposing of her; let him marry her to a proper partner. Nevertheless, he that standeth stedfast in his heart, resolved to keep his ward or daughter single, having no necessity, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart, with her consent, that he will keep his virgin as she is, doeth well, and shows in such trying times a prudent care of her. So then, he that giveth her in marriage, when it becomes needful, doeth well; acts a lawful and commendable part: but he that giveth her not in marriage, doeth better; provides more for her comfort, and keeps her more at her liberty to serve the Lord.

Some suppose (την εαυτου παρθενον) signifies not his virgin, but the state of virginity, and give the sense, that if any man continued single beyond the usual time when it was thought reputable to marry, and afterwards should think that he had put an undue restraint upon himself, and see cause to change his condition, it would be lawful for him, even if advanced in years, to take a wife: for though it might be most commendable if he could keep his first purpose, yet, if he finds the state of wedlock needful, he is at liberty, and may marry.

2. Concerning widows. The wife is bound by the law to her husband for life, unless by obstinate desertion and adultery the marriage-bond is cancelled. But if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will, only in the Lord; careful not to be unequally yoked with an unbeliever, and giving her hand to no man, who hath not, as far as she can judge, given his heart to Christ. But, in most cases, she is happier if she so abides, after my judgment, and live unmarried; and, in what I here advise, I think also, whatever false teachers may suggest, that I have the Spirit of God, and now speak under his immediate inspiration.

CHAP. VIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

The apostle in this chapter answers another case proposed to him by some of the Corinthians, about eating those things that had been sacrificed to idols. (1.) He hints at the occasion of this case, and gives a caution against too high esteem of their knowledge, ver. 1—4. (2.) He asserts the vanity of idols, and the unity of the Godhead, and the sole mediation of Christ between God and man, ver. 4—7. (3.) He tells them, that upon supposition that it were lawful in itself to eat of things offered to idols, for that they themselves are nothing; yet regard must be had to the weakness of Christian brethren, and nothing done that would lay a stumblingblock before them, and occasion their sin and destruction, ver. 7. ad finem.

1. NOW, as [a] touching things offered unto idols, we know that [b] we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth. 2. [c] And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know. 3. But if any man love God, the same is [d] known of him. 4. As concerning therefore the eating of those things that are offered in sacrifice unto idols, we know that [e] an idol is nothing a Acts 15. 20, 29. Rev. 2. 14. ver. 10. ch. 10. 19—21, 25, 27.

b Ver. 2, 4, 7. Rom. 14. 3, 10, 14, 22.
c Ch. 13. 8, 12. Gal. 6. 3. 1 Tim. 1. 7, 3, 4, 6. d Exod. 33. 12. Num. 16. 5. Nah. 1. 7. Mat. 7. 23. Rom. 8. 29. & 11. 2. John 10. 14. Gal. 4. 9. 2 Tim. 2. 19.
e Is. 41. 24. & 44. 8, 9. Jer. 2. 5, 11. & 10. 14, 15. & 51. 17, 18. Ps. 115. 4—8.

in the world, and that [f] there is none other God but one. 5. For though there be that [g] are called Gods, whether in heaven or in earth; (as there be gods many, and lords many;) 6. But to us there is but [h] one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we * in him; and [i] one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him.

f Deut. 4. 39. & 6. 4. & 32. 39. Is. 37. 16. & 44. 6. Mark 12. 29. Eph. 4. 6. 1 Tim. 2. 5. & 1. 17.
g Deut. 3. 24. & 10. 17. Jer. 2. 11, 28. & 11. 13. Dan. 11. 8. & 5. 4. h Deut. 6. 4. & 32. 39. Mal. 2. 10. Eph. 4. 6. Acts 17. 28. Rom. 11. 36. Eph. 3. 15. John 17. 3.
* Or for him.
i Mat. 11. 27. & 28. 18. Rom. 14. 9. John 13. 13. ch. 12. 3. Eph. 4. 5. Phil. 2. 11. Acts 2. 36. Eph. 1. 4—6. 1 Pet. 1. 21. John 1. 3. Col. 1. 16, 17. Heb. 1. 2, 3.

Verses 1—6. The apostle proceeds to consider the case of eating the flesh of animals which had been offered in sacrifice to idols. Sometimes the idolaters feasted their friends thereon in the idol-temples, sometimes in their own houses; and what they did not make use of was sold in the shambles.

1. He warns them against leaning upon their own understanding, and proudly abusing their Christian liberty. Now as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all in general have knowledge, and are persuaded of the vanity of idols, as well as you. Nevertheless, knowledge without grace puffeth up, but charity edifieth, and will engage us not merely to consider what is lawful, but what is expedient, making us condescending to those whose attainments are less, and who do not see things as clearly as we may. And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, self-opinionated, and above attending to the sentiments or weakness of his brethren, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know. But if any man love God, and from that blessed principle is engaged to make a practical improvement of his knowledge for God's glory, and his neighbour's edification, the same is known of him, and will receive his approbation. Note, (1.) That is the truly valuable knowledge which enables us to be most useful. (2.) Self-conceit is a sure proof of ignorance. (3.) There may be much knowledge in the head, where there is little charity in the heart.

2. He admits, that an idol is nothing, a mere imaginary being; and that, abstractedly considered, the eating meat offered in sacrifice to them is no evil, since there is no other God but one, whose creatures are all good in themselves. For though there be that are called Gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many) multitudes of celestial and terrestrial deities being worshipped by the deluded heathen; but to us there is but one God, in opposition to the pagan polytheism, one in essence and operation, who is represented in the gospel revelation as the Father, of whom are all things, the Creator, Governor, and Preserver of all, and we in him, living, moving, and having our being; and one Lord Jesus Christ, not another God, and, like the heathen deities of an inferior nature, but a partaker of the same undivided Godhead and glory, by whom are all things, and we by him; one in operation with the Father as Creator of all, and as Mediator, in his personal character appointed to govern the peculiar kingdom delegated to him, to be our advocate for all blessings, and the dispenser of them to his redeemed people.

7. [k] Howbeit, there is not in every man that knowledge: for some with conscience of the idol unto this hour eat it as a thing offered unto an idol; and their conscience being weak is defiled. 8. [l] But meat commendeth us not to God: for neither, if we eat, † are we the better; neither, if we eat not, ‡ are we the worse. 9. But [m] take heed lest by any means this ‖ liberty of yours become a stumbling-block to them that are weak. 10. For if any man see thee which hast [n] knowledge sit at meat in the idol's temple, [o] shall not the conscience of him which is weak be * emboldened to eat those things which are offered to idols; 11. And through thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died? 12. [p] But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ. 13. Wherefore, [q] if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend.

k Ch. 5. 11. & 10. 28. Rom. 14. 14, 23.
l Rom. 14. 17. Heb. 13. 9. ch. 6. 13. Col. 2. 20—23.
† Or have we the more.
‡ Or have we the less.
m Rom. 14. 13, 20. Gal. 5. 13. ver. 10. Mat. 18. 6, 17. ch. 10. 32.
‖ Or power.
n Amos 2. 8.
o Ver. 11. ch. 10. 29. Rom. 14. 15, 20. 2 Pet. 2. 1.
* Gr. edified.
p Rom. 14. 15. Acts 9. 4. Mat. 25. 45. The more literal rendering is, by thus sinning.
q Rom. 14. 21. ch. 6. 12. & 9. 12. & 10. 23. 2 Cor. 11. 29.

Verses 7—13. Admitting the vanity of idols, the apostle shows, that for the sake of a weak brother they ought, notwithstanding, to abridge themselves of that liberty they might otherwise take, and not offend them by eating what was offered in sacrifice to those abominable deities. For,

1. Some of the new converts, not having entirely lost their veneration for those idols which they used to worship, nor as yet wholly persuaded of their vanity, still when they eat their sacrifices, pay them some sort of honour and regard; and their conscience being thus weak, through their remaining ignorance, is defiled with the guilt of idolatry.

2. We should be cautious therefore for others' sake, though we ourselves have knowledge, lest we should become a stumblingblock to them that are weak, considering that meat of one kind or another, used or abstained from, is no recommendation to God's favour; for neither if we eat the food, without any respect to the idol, are we the better; neither if we eat not, prudently abstaining for others' sake, are we the worse. But though the eating of the idol sacrifices be never so innocent in itself, yet it may prove a great hurt to the consciences of the weak, who seeing you eating in an idol-temple, may be emboldened by your example, though not satisfied of the lawfulness of the action, to do the like; and thus what you, who know the vanity of idols, might otherwise do innocently, may be the means of leading a weaker brother to wound his conscience with guilt, for whom Christ died: and who, having made profession of his faith, is, in the judgment of charity, to be reckoned among his redeemed people. But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ, whose compassions towards the lambs of his flock are great, and he will resent every slight put upon them, and every offence given to them. Wherefore if meat offered to idols make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, of any such sacrifice, however innocent the thing may be in itself, lest I make my brother to offend. Note, It is not enough that we avoid what is sinful ourselves; Christian charity will teach us even to abridge ourselves of liberty in lawful things for others' good.

CHAP. IX.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle seems to answer some cavils against himself: (1.) He asserts his apostolical mission and authority, and gives in his success amongst them as a testimony of it, ver. 1—3. (2.) He claims a right to subsist by his ministry, and defends it by several arguments from natural reason and the Mosaical law, and asserts it also to be a constitution of Christ, ver. 3—15. (3.) He shows that he had willingly waved this privilege and power for their benefit, ver. 15—20. (4.) He instances in several other things, in which he had denied himself for the sake of other men's spiritual interest and salvation, ver. 20—24.

And, (5.) Concludes this argument by showing what animated him to this course, even the prospect of an incorruptible crown, ver. 24. ad finem.

1. AM [a] I not an apostle? [b] am I not free? [c] have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? [d] are not ye my work in the Lord? 2. If I be not an apostle unto others, yet doubtless I am to you: for the seal of mine apostleship are ye in the Lord. 3. Mine answer to them that do examine me is this, 4. [e] Have we not power to eat and to drink? 5. [f] Have we not power to lead about a sister, a * wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?† 6. [g] Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working? 7. [h] Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? 8. Say I these things as a man? or saith not the law the same also? 9. For it is written in the law of Moses, [i] Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? 10. [k] Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thrasheth in hope should be partaker of his hope. 11. [l] If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things? 12. If others be partakers of this power over you, are [m] not we rather? nevertheless, we have not used this power; but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ. 13. [n] Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things ‡ live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? 14. Even so [o] hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel.

a See Rom. 1. 1. 2 Cor. 11. 5. & 12. 11. 1 Tim. 2. 7. 2 Tim. 1. 11. Acts 9. 15. & 13. 2, 3. & 22. 21. & 26. 17, 18. Gal. 2. 7.

b Gal. 5. 1, 13. ver. 19. 1 Pet. 2. 16.

c Ch. 15. 8. Acts 9. 3, 5, 17. & 22. 11, 17, 18. & 23. 11. & 26. 16.

d Ch. 3. 5, 6, 9, 10. & 4. 15. Acts 18. 9—11. 2 Cor. 3. 2, 3. & 12. 12.

e Ver. 14. Luke 10. 7. 1 Thes. 2. 6, 9. 2 Thes. 3. 8, 9. ch. 4. 12. ver. 18, 19.

f 1 Tim. 4. 3. Heb. 13. 4. Mat. 8. 14. & 12. 46. & 13. 55. John 2. 12. Acts 1. 14. Mark 6. 3. Luke 6. 15. Gal. 1. 19.

* Or woman.

† Or Peter, who is here called by his original name.

g 2 Thes. 3. 8, 9. 1 Thes. 2. 6, 7. Acts 20. 34. ch. 4. 12.

h Deut. 20. 6. Prov. 27. 18. ch. 3. 6—8. 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. 1 Tim. 1. 18. & 6. 12 2 Tim. 2. 3. & 4. 7. John 21. 15—17. Acts 20. 28. 1 Pet. 5. 2.

i Deut. 25. 4. 1 Tim. 5. 18. Prov. 12. 10. Exod. 23. 14. Jon. 4. 11.

k Rom. 15. 4. 2 Tim. 2. 6.

l Rom. 15. 27. Mat. 10. 10. Gal. 6. 6. Mat. 2. 8, 9.

m Acts 20. 31, 33, 34. 2 Cor. 11. 9, 12. & 12. 13. 1 Thes. 2. 6—9. 2 Thes. 3. 8, 9.

n Lev. 6. 16, 26. & 7. 6. Num. 18. 8, 20. Deut. 10. 9. & 18. 1. ch. 10. 18.

‡ Or feed.

o Mat. 10. 10. Luke 10. 7, 8. Gal. 6. 6. 1 Tim. 5. 17, 18. Jer. 31. 14. 1 Tim. 5. 8. Is. 23. 18.

Verses 1—14. It seems probable that the false teachers had raised some objection against Paul's authority as an apostle, because he had not asserted that right to a maintenance which was due to his office, and waving his privilege had refused to be burdensome to them.

1. He vindicates his authority: if he had not insisted on a maintenance, it was for their sakes he had waved this right. Am not I an apostle, because I have acted thus disinterestedly? am not I free to claim a subsistence, if I choose it? have not I seen Jesus Christ our Lord? and received my commission immediately from him. Are not you my work in the Lord? the converts of my ministry, and the fruit of my labours in the gospel. If I be not an apostle to others, yet doubtless I am to you, who owe to me chiefly, as the instrument, all you know and are: for the seal of my apostleship are ye in the Lord; the Lord attesting the truth of my mission, by the success with which he blessed my ministry to your souls. Note, (1.) The best of men and ministers may expect to meet with malignant revilers. (2.) They who have been blest under our ministry have in themselves the strongest proof that we are sent of God.

2. He asserts his right to all the privileges of an apostle. In answer to those who presumed to sit in judgment on his character, he replies, Have we not power to eat and to drink? have not Barnabas and I a claim upon you for a maintenance, though we have not exerted it? have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, and to expect a provision for our families as we are travelling from place to place, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? Or I only and Barnabas, who were particularly sent to the Gentiles, have not we power to forbear working? and must earn with our hands that maintenance which the other apostles are entitled to for their works sake? How absurd and unreasonable is such a supposition! Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? the soldier hath his stipend and provisions; who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? the vine-dresser is fed with the produce of his toil: or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? If these are justly entitled to eat the labour of their hands, much more have the ministers of the gospel, who sustain all these characters, a right to a competent provision. Say I these things as a man? merely on the footing of equity; or saith not the law the same also? let even my Judaizing opposers and maligners judge. For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn; but whilst he works, he shall be permitted to eat. Doth God take care for oxen? was this precept given merely with a reference to them? or saith he it altogether for our sakes, who labour in the gospel? for our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth, breaking up the fallow-ground of the sinner's heart, should plow in hope, of a reasonable return, and that he that thrasheth in hope, separating the chaff of corruption from the good seed of grace in the heart, should be partaker of his hope. And as the ploughman and thrasher eat the fruit of their toils, so much more should the laborious minister in God's spiritual husbandry have a just recompense of reward. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing, or unreasonable for us to expect, or for you to give, that we should reap your carnal things, and have a maintenance, when the value between the spiritual blessings we communicate, and the pittance we should receive is so disproportionate? If others be partakers of this power over you, and are supported at your expense, to whom ye never were nor can be so indebted as unto us; are not we rather entitled to a provision, if we choose to claim it? Nevertheless, we have not used this power, nor insisted on what we have a right to demand; but suffer all things, choosing to undergo any want and hardships, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ, and raise a prejudice in your minds, that our views were mercenary. But do ye not know, that they which minister about holy things, live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar, and receive their maintenance from their share in the sacrifices and oblations? Even so hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel. So that it appears, (1.) In the very reason of the thing: (2.) From the law of Moses: (3.) From Christ's express institution, (Luke x. 7.) that the ministers of Christ have a right to be supported becomingly by those among whom they labour.

15. [p] But I have used none of these things: neither have I written these p Acts 18. 3. & 20. 34. ch. 4. 12. 2 Cor. 11. 9—11. & 12. 13—18.

things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void. 16. For, though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for [q] necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel! 17. For if I do this thing willingly, [r] I have a reward; but if against my will, [s] a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me. 18. What is my reward then? [t] Verily that, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not my power in the gospel.

q Jer. 20. 7. Amos 3. 8. & 7. 15. Acts 9. 6, 15. & 13. 2. & 22. 14, 15, 21. & 26. 16—18. Rom. 1. 14. Gal. 1. 1, 12.

r Ch. 3. 8. 1 Pet. 5. 4.

s Luke 10. 7. ch. 4. 1. Gal. 2. 7. Phil. 1. 17. Col. 1. 25. Eph. 3. 2, 8. 1 Tim. 1. 11, 12. with Mat. 20. 10, 14.

t Ch. 4. 12. Acts 20. 34. & 18. 3. 2 Cor. 11. 9, 12. & 12. 13—18. 1 Thes. 2. 6—9. 2 Thes. 3. 8, 9. with ch. 7. 31. & 10. 33. 2 Cor. 4. 5. & 11. 7.

Verses 15—18. The apostle mentions his own disinterested conduct; for nothing is more opposite to the character of a Christian minister, than the very shadow of mercenary views. I have used none of these things, nor ever claimed my right among you! neither have I written these things that it should be so done unto me, on any future occasion: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void: I had rather wear out my body with labour to minister to my own wants, than not preach the gospel to you freely, and thereby cut off occasion from those, who, if I received any recompense, would thence take a handle to prejudice you against me. For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me, and I cannot but obey the Master's orders: yea, wo is unto me if I preach not the gospel, I must be exposed to the bitterest accusations of unfaithfulness, and justly sink under the heaviest vengeance. For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward: the consciousness of disinterested zeal is a satisfaction to my own soul, and the Lord will remember and reward my labours of love; but if against my will I labour, a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me, and I am bound to be faithful. What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge; showing the disinterested fidelity with which I act, and approving myself to God, and to my own conscience, that I abuse not my power in the gospel, nor exact even what I have authority to demand, demonstrating to the people, that I seek not theirs, but them. Note, For the sake of Christ it is prudent often to forego our rights and privileges, and to wave the claims to that reward, to which our office and labours may entitle us.

19. [u] For, though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all, that I might gain the more. 20. And [x] unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; 21. [y] To them that are without law, as without law, (being [z] not without law to God, but under the law to Christ,) that I might gain them that are without law. 22. [a] To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.* 23. And this I do [b] for the gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.

u Ver. 1, 20—23. Rom. 15. 2. 1 Tim. 4. 16. ch. 10. 33. Gal. 5. 13. 1 Pet. 3. 1. Rom. 11. 14.

x Acts 16. 3. & 18. 18. & 17. 2, 3. & 21. 20—26. Gal. 4. 21.

y Rom. 2. 12. Acts 15. 28. & 21. 25. Gal. 2. 3, 4, 11—14. 2 Cor. 3. 6.

z Ch. 7. 19, 22. & 10. 32. Ps. 116. 16. & 119. 32.

a Rom. 15. 12. 2 Cor. 11. 29. Gal. 6. 1, 2. ch. 8. 12. & 10. 33. & 7. 16. Rom. 11. 14. ver. 19—23.

* Some MSS. read, that I might save all.

b Ch. 25. 31. 1 Pet. 4. 11. 2 Thes. 3. 1. 2 Tim. 2. 10. & 1. 8.

Verses 19—23. In other instances of Christian liberty, as well as the foregoing, the apostle sets us a noble example of self-denial. For though I be free from all men, and under no obligations to be subservient to their will or humour; yet have I made myself servant unto all, willing in all indifferent matters to conform to them, and deny myself, that thus engaging their affections and attention, I might gain the more, and win them over to embrace the doctrines and ways of the gospel. And for this purpose, unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews? not refusing to observe those ceremonials in their worship, to which, though indifferent in themselves, they were still attached. To them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; submitting to many of its ordinances, to engage the affection of my Jewish brethren, who still maintain their veneration for the divinely-instituted service of the sanctuary. To them that are without law, as without law: not urging on them circumcision, or any of the ceremonial institutions, as at all necessary to salvation; but insisting on the necessity of faith in Christ alone, (being, not without law, to God, as if the moral law was abrogated, as well as the ceremonial; but under the law to Christ, walking in faith and holiness, according to the obligations which the gospel lays upon me,) that I might gain them that are without law, and lay no needless obstacles in the way of the Gentiles, but preaching the simple gospel, might engage their hearts to Jesus and his blessed service. To the weak, became I as weak, condescending to their infirmities, and abstaining even from things innocent and lawful, where their conscience was scrupulous, that I might gain the weak, and lead them on to farther attainments of knowledge and grace. In short, I am made all things to all men, studying to please every man for his good to edification, that I might by all means save some, and, through the blessing of the Redeemer, be made the instrument of their conversion. And this I do for the gospel's sake, if possible to remove all prejudice and objections, that I might be partaker thereof with you, and come to share with you in all its saving blessings and benefits. Note, It is highly our duty to avoid every unnecessary occasion of offence, and in all indifferent things to forego our own will and pleasure for the profit of our neighbour.

24. [c] Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? [d] So run, that ye may obtain. 25. And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we [e] an incorruptible. 26. I therefore so run, not as [f] uncertainly so fight I, not as one that beateth the air: 27. But [g] I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be [h] a cast-away.

c Ver. 15, 26. Hos. 12. 10. ch. 3. 1. 2 John 3. 12. Gal. 3. 15.

d Mat. 10. 22. Heb. 12. 1, 2. Rev. 2. 10. Phil. 3. 14. & 2. 16. Gal. 5. 7. & 6. 9. Heb. 12. 28. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. & 2. 4, 5. Eph. 6. 12. 1 Tim. 6. 12.

e 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. Jam. 1. 12. 1 Pet. 1. 4. & 5. 4. Rev. 2. 10. & 3. 11.

f 2 Tim. 2. 5. & 4. 8. & 1. 12. 2 Cor. 5. 1.

g Rom. 6. 4, 6, 18, 19. & 8. 13. Col. 3. 5. ch. 4. 11. 2 Tim. 2. 15. 1 Tim. 4. 7, 8. 2 Cor. 11. 23. Eph. 5. 3.

h Jer. 6. 30. 2 Cor. 13. 5, 6.

Verses 24—27. To quicken them to imitate his own example, and give all diligence to make their calling and election sure, he proposes to them the case of those who in the Isthmian games contended for victory. Know ye not that they who run in a race, run all, but one receiveth the prize? the prize itself was in value trivial, though such pains were used to obtain it; and only one could there possess the honour. Here the prize is no less than eternal life, and all who run are sure to win; so run then with faith, patience, and perseverance, that ye may obtain the inestimable reward. And again, every man that striveth for the mastery, and would overcome, as wrestlers or boxers in the games, is temperate in all things, that by observing the most exact regimen, and bringing their bodies into the best order, they may be the better prepared for the conflict. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, of withering leaves or flowers; but we have an incorruptible crown of glory in view, compared with which theirs is poor and trivial; and therefore how much more are we bound to deny our appetites; with how much greater earnestness ought we to contend with victory, where we are sure, if we fight manfully, to conquer, and the reward will be so unutterably and eternally glorious. I therefore, in this view, so run with unwearied diligence my Christian course, not as uncertainly, observing the path of duty prescribed, not dubious concerning the issue, but sure through Christ to win the prize. So fight I against the world, the flesh, and the devil, not as one that beateth the air, not merely exercising my arms as the boxers, that they might be ready for the combat: but I keep under my body, (ὑποπιαζω) mortify its corrupt appetites, as the boxers who beat their antagonist black and blue; and bring it into subjection, (δουλαγωγω) as the wrestlers when their adversary was thrown under them; lest that by any means when I have preached to others the necessity of such mortification, diligence, and self-denial, I myself, through negligence or unfaithfulness, should be overcome by my corrupted nature and spiritual foes, and be a cast-away at last (ἀδοκιμος) rejected by the great Judge, and counted unfit for the promised reward. And this holy jealousy which I feel for myself, I inculcate upon you, that in the use of all appointed means you may secure the glorious prize, and be approved of the Lord in the great day of his appearing. Note, (1.) In our Christian race and warfare, what diligence, constancy, and courage do we not need? blessed be God there is help laid on one mighty to save, and looking to him we are sure to gain the prize. (2.) Our bodies are our great snare, and the mortification of sensual appetite is absolutely necessary in order to the salvation of the immortal soul. (3.) Holy jealousy over ourselves is the great preservative against apostasy. (4.) Though God's elect can never be finally cast away, and the apostle strove not as uncertainly; yet we must remember God hath ordained the means as well as the end, and that we but deceive ourselves, if we promise ourselves safety, when we grow negligent, and work not out our salvation with fear and trembling. (5.) Many have appeared with zeal in the cause of Christ, and have been the means of saving others, who have perished themselves. Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

CHAP. X.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter the apostle prosecutes the argument at the close of the last, and (1.) Warns the Corinthians against security by the example of the Jews, whose history is left upon record for the admonition of Christians, ver. 1—15. (2.) He resumes his former argument, chap. viii. about eating things offered to idols; and shows that it is utterly inconsistent with true Christianity, ver. 15—23. (3.) He lets them yet know, that though they must not eat of things sacrificed to idols as such, and out of any regard to the idol, yet they might buy such flesh in the markets and eat it at the table of heathen acquaintance, without asking any questions: for that the brethren's abuse of them did not render the creatures of God unfit to be the food of his servants. Yet liberty of this kind must be used with a due regard to weak consciences, and no offence given by it to Jew or Gentile, or the church of God, ver. 23. ad finem.

a Exod. 13. 21. & 14. 19—22. Num. 9. 18. & 33. 8. Deut. 1. 33. Neh. 9. 11, 12, 19. Josh. 4. 23. Ps. 66. 6. & 78. 13, 14. & 105. 39. & 136. 13, 14. Is. 63. 11—13. Heb. 11. 29.

1. MOREOVER, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, [a] how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; 2. And were all [b] baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; 3. And [c] did all eat the same spiritual meat; 4. And [d] did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ. 5. But [e] with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness. 6. Now these things were [f] our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as [g] they also lusted. 7. [h] Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play. 8. [i] Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and fell in one day three and twenty thousand. 9. [k] Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were destroyed of serpents. 10. [l] Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer. 11. Now all these things happened unto them for † ensamples: and [m] they are written for our admonition, upon whom [n] the ends of the world are come. 12. Wherefore [o] let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. 13. There hath no [p] temptation taken you but ‡ such as is common to man: but [q] God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation [r] also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

b Exod. 14. 31.

c Exod. 16. 4, 14, 15, 35. Ps. 78. 24, 25. & 105. 40. Deut. 8. 3. Neh. 9. 15, 20. John 6. 32—56.
d Exod. 17. 6. Deut. 9. 21. Num. 20. 11. & 21. 16. Neh. 9. 15, 20. Ps. 78. 15, 20. & 105. 41. Is. 43. 20. & 48. 21. & 53. 5. John 4. 10, 14. & 7. 37. Rev. 22. 17.
e Num. 14. 23, 37. & 26. 64, 65. Ps. 106. 26. Heb. 3. 17—19. Jude 5. Deut. 1. 34, 35.
f Gr. our figures. Ver. 11. Jude 5—7. 2 Pet. 2. 4—6. Zeph. 3. 6, 7.
g Num. 11. 4, 33. Ps. 106. 14. & 78. 30—33, 17—20.
h Ver. 14. 1 John 5 21. ch. 5. 11. & 8. 7. with Exod. 32. 6. Gen. 26. 8. & 39. 14.
i Ch. 6. 18. & 5. 11. with Num. 25. 1—9. Ps. 106. 28. Rev. 2. 14. Col. 3. 5. k Exod. 14. 12. & 17. 2, 7. & 23. 20, 21. Is. 63. 9, 10. Num. 21. 5, 6. Deut. 6. 16. Ps. 78. 15, 56. & 95. 9. & 106. 14. Heb. 10. 26, 29. l Exod. 15. 22. & 16. 2. & 17. 2. Num. 11. 1. & 14. 2, 27, 29. & 16. 41, 46, 49. Ps. 106. 16, 25. Heb. 10. 28. Phil. 2. 14. Jude 16.
† Or types.
m Ver. 6. Rom. 15. 4. ch. 9. 10.
n Ch. 7. 29. Phil. 4. 5. Heb. 19. 25, 27. 1 Pet. 4. 7. 1 John 2. 18. Eph. 5. 15, 16.
o Luke 22. 32.
Rom. 11. 20. 1 Thes. 5. 4.
p Jam. 1. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 6, 7. & 4. 12.
‡ Or moderate.
q Ch. 1. 9. 2 Thes. 3. 3. Gen. 19. 20, 21. Exod. 13. 17. Ps. 125. 3. & 103. 12, 13. Is. 57. 7. 1 Thes. 5. 24.
r 2 Cor. 12. 9. 2 Pet. 2. 9. Jer. 29. 11. John 16. 33. Is. 46. 4. 2 Cor. 1. 10. Heb. 12. 4.

Verses 1—13. The apostle returns to the subject of eating the sacrifices offered to idols.

1. He reminds the Corinthians of the distinguished privileges, and fatal overthrow of the Israelites in the wilderness. Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, led by divine protection, covered from the heat by day, and cheered by the light of fire by night; preserved amidst the watery walls, and safely traversing the ocean's bed; and were all baptized into Moses in the cloud, and in the sea, sprinkled with some drops from the cloud, or the spray of the dashing waves; and were all brought under the Mosaical law, as we by baptism are visibly admitted into the church of Christ, and devoted to his service. And did all eat of the same spiritual meat, the manna which fell around their tents, the figure of Christ, the true bread which came down from heaven, on whom his redeemed sacramentally feed to the end of time; and did all drink of the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock which followed them; and that Rock was Christ. Through all the desert the living streams gushed forth to slake their thirst; and that divine Redeemer, whom the rock prefigured, the fountain of living waters, and streams from Lebanon, he, by his gracious presence, was in the midst of them: as he is still in the hearts of all his people a well of water springing up into everlasting life. But, though all enjoyed these distinguished privileges, with many of them God was not well-pleased, for they were overthrown in the wilderness; and, for their disobedience and rebellions, were not suffered to enter into the land of promise, the type of the heavenly Canaan, but their carcases fell in the desert. Note, It is not outward privileges enjoyed, but inward grace possessed, which alone can bring us to the eternal inheritance, and the rest which remaineth for the people of God.

2. From their examples, the apostle warns the Corinthians not to be secure, notwithstanding their distinguished privileges, lest, imitating their sins, they should be exposed to like punishment. (1.) He cautions them against the indulgence of their appetite. Dissatisfied with the manna, the Israelites lusted after flesh to eat. Against such luxury they must beware, and particularly avoid the idol-feasts or sacrifices, which could not but have the most fatal consequences. Note, To please the palate, how many have plunged both body and soul into hell! (2.) He warns them against idolatry, such as the Israelites committed, when, having offered their sacrifices to the calf, they sat down to feast upon them, and according to the heathen custom, rose up to dance around him, to do him honour; but they severely smarted for their folly, Exod. xxxii. 10, 28. (3.) He admonishes them against fornication, such as the Jews committed with the daughters of Moab, and to which they were led at their idol-feast; the dire consequence of which was, that in one day three and twenty thousand were cut off by the immediate judgment of God. With such an instance of divine vengeance before them, they had need tremble for themselves in a city so abandoned to lewdness as Corinth was, knowing that none of their privileges could protect them, if they sinned, but that whoremongers, and adulterers, God will judge. (4.) He warns them against all dishonourable distrust of the power and grace of Christ to carry them through their difficulties, remembering the vengeance inflicted upon those of old, who tempted and provoked God by their unbelief, Num. xxi. 14. and were destroyed by the fiery serpents. Note, When unbelief prevails, then the old serpent, the devil, resumes his dominion over the soul. (5.) He cautions them against all discontent under their sufferings or trials, and to beware of those who would instigate them to murmur against him, and the other ministers of Christ, for what they delivered from him. Thus murmured the Israelites against Moses and Aaron, and at the difficulties they apprehended, and were destroyed by the angel's hand. These things were all recorded for the admonition of the church; and what befell God's professing people of old, should be a warning to us at present, who live under the last dispensation which God will ever grant, that, having their fearful punishment, we might avoid the like provocation. Wherefore, let him that thinketh he standeth, secure and immoveable, take heed, lest, puffed up with high imaginations of his own sufficiency, he fall, as the Israelites did of old. Note, (1.) Others' falls should be our warnings. (2.) Distrust of ourselves, and dependence upon the power and grace of the Redeemer, are our great stability.

3. He encourages the faithful among them, under all their trials, to trust and not be afraid. There hath no temptation taken you, but such as is common to man, such as you might expect from the world around; or such as is incident to the human nature; or at least, none so grievous but you may well bear up under it. But however severe your temptations may be, God is faithful to his promises, who will not suffer you to be tempted above what ye are able, but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it, supporting you whilst it lasts, and in his good time giving you deliverance from it: so that you shall neither be drawn into sin, nor faint under your sufferings. Note, (1.) We must not think our trials, however severe, singular, and murmur; others have felt the same before us. (2.) God's faithfulness should be the anchor of our hope. (3.) Our Redeemer is mighty, we may safely trust him. (4.) God knows best what afflictions we need, and how long we should be exercised with them. To him let us always refer ourselves, casting our care upon him.

14. Wherefore, my dearly beloved, [s] flee from idolatry. 15. I speak as to [t] wise men; judge ye what I say. 16. [u] The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? 17. For [x] we, being many, are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that [y] one bread. 18. Behold Israel [z] after the flesh: [a] Are not they which eat of the sacrifices partakers of the altar? 19. What say I then? [b] that the idol is any thing? or that which is offered in sacrifice to idols is any thing? 20. But I say, that [c] the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye should have fellowship with devils. 21. [d] Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of devils. 22. [e] Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?

[s] Ver. 7. ch. 8. 10. 2 Cor. 6. 17. 1 John 5. 21. Rev. 2. 14. Exod. 20. 3—6.
[t] Ch. 1. 5. & 8. 1. & 2. 15. & 11. 13. Mat. 13. 9. 1 Thes. 5. 21.
[u] Mat. 26. 26—28. Luke 22. 19, 20. ch. 11. 23—29. Acts 2. 42, 46. & 20. 7.
[x] Acts 2. 41, 42, 47. Rom. 12. 5. ch. 12. 10, 27. Gal. 3. 26—28.
[y] Ver. 3. John 6. 33—58.
[z] Rom. 9. 6, 8. & 4. 12. Gal. 6. 16.
[a] Lev. 3. 3. & 7. 15. 1 Sam. 1. 4, 5. ch. 9. 13.
[b] Rom. 14. 14. ch. 8. 4. Tit. 1. 15. Ps. 96. 5.
[c] Lev. 17. 7. Deut. 32. 17. Ps. 106. 37. Rev. 9. 20. Is. 65. 11. 2 Chr. 11. 15. Eph. 2. 2 [d] Deut. 32. 18, 37, 38. Judg. 2. 12. Jer. 2. 13. 2 Cor. 6. 15, 16. Mat. 6. 24.
[e] Deut. 32. 21. Job 9. 4, 19. & 37. 23. & 40. 2. Ezek. 22. 14

Verses 14—22. From the foregoing premises the apostle returns to urge the necessity of shunning idolatry, its most distant approaches, knowing the dreadful consequences of it on the one hand, and the divine assistance promised on the other. He therefore, as dearly beloved, with warm affection, warns them to flee from idolatry, and as to wise men, whether really possessed of spiritual wisdom, or vainly puffed up with their fancied high attainments, he appeals to them for the reasonableness of what he advanced.

1. He instances in the case of the Lord's supper. The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? Do we not therein profess to hold communion with Christ in all his saving blessings? Do we not therein acknowledge our obligations to him, as bought with a price, to glorify him in our bodies and our spirits, which are his? The bread, or loaf, which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? Doth it not represent to us his broken body? Doth not our feeding upon it signify our communion with him who is the living bread? And do we not hereby profess our solemn devotedness to him, and union to each other? For we being many are one bread, as the different corns of wheat are moulded into one loaf, and intimately united in one body, of which Christ is the living head: for we are all partakers of that one bread, feasting together upon the sacrifice of Christ, herein shadowed forth; partakers of all the benefits obtained by his one oblation once offered; and thereby united to him in love, and to one another.

2. The case is the same with regard to the Jewish sacrifices, Behold Israel after the flesh, in their observance of the ritual services; are not they which eat of the sacrifices partakers of the altar? When they feast upon the remainder of the peace-offerings, they profess communion with, and subjection to that God, on whose altar they offered their sacrifice.

3. He applies what he had said to the point in hand. What say I then? that the idol is any thing? or that which is sacrificed to idols is any thing? No, I have declared the contrary, chap. viii. The idol is nothing, and the meat in its nature not altered, But I say that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not to God. The demons whom they worship are wicked and fallen spirits, with whom, in these sacrifices, they maintain communion, and to whom they pay divine honours. And I would not that we should have fellowship with devils, as by parity of reason, considering the foregoing cases, you must, if you feast with the idolaters on their sacrifices. Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, the symbol of his blood, and the cup of devils, the libations consecrated to these demons; ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table and of the table of devils, there is an utter inconsistency in such a conduct; Christ and Belial can have no communion. To feast, therefore, in idol temples, is to renounce Christianity, its sacraments, and privileges. Do we provoke the Lord Jesus to jealousy, by such idolatry, in direct opposition to his holy law? Exod. xx. 3—5. Are we stronger than he? and do we defy the wrath of the Almighty? Surely destruction must be the consequence. Note, When we have to do with a jealous God, how careful should we be that no idol in our hearts, as well as no outward object of idolatry, rob him of his peculiar honour.

23. [f] All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not. 24. [g] Let no man seek his own, but every man another's *wealth. 25. [h] Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, that eat, asking no question for conscience' sake. 26. For [i] the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof. 27. If any of them [k] that believe not bid you to a feast, and ye be disposed to go; [l] whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience' sake. 28. But if any man say unto you, This is offered in sacrifice unto idols, [m] eat not for his sake that shewed it, and for conscience' sake: for [n] the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof. 29. [o] Conscience, I say, not thine own, but of the other: for why is my liberty judged of another man's conscience? 30. [p] For if I by ‖ grace be a partaker, why am I evil spoken of for that for which I give thanks? 31. [q] Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God. 32. [r] Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the † Gentiles, nor to the church of God: 33. [s] Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.

f Ch. 6. 12. & 8. 8. & 14. 26. ver. 24. Rom. 14. 7, 19—21.
g Mat. 16. 24. Rom. 9. 3. & 15. 1, 2 ch. 13. 5. & 9. 19—23. Phil. 2. 4, 26. ver. 33.
* That is, welfare, good, or advantage generally.
h 1 Tim. 4. 4. Tit. 1. 15. ch. 9. 3, 4.
i Exod. 19. 5. & 9. 29 Deut. 10. 14. Ps. 24. 1. & 50. 12. Job 41. 21. ver. 28. 1 Tim. 4. 4. & 6. 17.
k Ch. 7. 12—15. 2 Pet. 3. 1.
l Luke 10. 7. ch. 8. 7. ver. 25.
m Ch. 8. 10, 11. Rom. 14. 16.
n Deut. 10. 14. Exod. 9. 29. & 19. 5. Ps. 24. 1. & 50. 12. ver. 26.
o Rom. 14. 15, 16, 20, 21. ch. 8. 9—13. ver. 32.
p 1 Tim. 4. 3, 4. Rom. 14. 6.
‖ Or thanksgiving.
q Zech. 7. 6. 1 Chr. 17. 24. Rev. 11. 5. Song 7. 13. Col. 3. 17. Mat. 5. 16. John 15. 8. Rom. 11. 36. & 14. 8. Prov. 16. 4. Phil. 1. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 12. & 4. 11.
r 2 Cor. 6. 3. ch. 8. 13. Rom. 14. 13. Phil. 1. 10. 1 John 2. 10.
† Or Greeks.
s Rom. 15. 2. ch. 9. 19—23 2 Cor. 11. 28, 29. & 12. 19. ver. 24.

Verses 23—33. The apostle here,

1. In general warns them against every abuse of their Christian liberty. All things are lawful for me, and these meats offered to idols are not thereby defiled, but all things are not expedient. There are circumstances in which it would be duty to abstain from what is, in its own nature, innocent and indifferent: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not; and therefore, if eating these sacrifices gave offence to a weak brother, it would be then duty to abstain, however clear I might be in the lawfulness of the thing. And this is a rule applicable to many other cases; therefore, generally, let it be your practice, that no man seek his own will, humour, or benefit, but every man another's wealth, ready to deny himself, in order to promote their advantage and edification.

2. He shows in what particular instances the meat offered to idols might be safely eaten. (1.) If it was exposed in the public market to be sold, then they need not make any inquiries, for conscience' sake, whence it came, but buy and use it for common food. For the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; and all the creatures are good when used to his glory. (2.) If any heathen acquaintance bid you to a feast, and you have any inducement or obligation to go, whatever the table affords may be eaten without scruple; but if any person at the table suggests, this is offered in sacrifice unto idols, eat not, for his sake that showed it, and for conscience' sake, bearing your testimony thereby against all such impious honours offered to demons, and keeping your conscience void of offence. For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof, and he hath provided sufficiency of other food, without dishonouring him by the least thing which might seem to countenance idolatrous worship. Abstain for conscience' sake, I say, not thine own, but of the other, who informed you, and might be grieved or stumbled by your example, though your own might receive no damage.

3. He answers an objection which might be raised. For why is my liberty judged of another man's conscience? His conscience is not to be the rule of my conduct. For if I by grace be a partaker, why am I evil spoken of for that for which I give thanks? In answer, he replies that the following rules must be applied to all particular circumstances. Some understand the apostle, not as speaking in the person of an objector, but as declaring what he did in such a case; and intimating how imprudent it would be to give others occasion to pass a wrong judgment upon him; for however lawful it might be for him to eat the meat which had been offered to idols, yet he was, for the sake of his influence and usefulness, to take care that his good might not be evil spoken of, Rom. xiv. 16. and therefore he would abstain. Two general rules he prescribes,

1. Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God, making that the ultimate end of all your actions.

2. Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God. Do nothing which should grieve or stumble them; particularly, avoid the meat offered to idols, which the Jews abominated, and might prove a snare to the weaker Gentile converts. And what he recommended to them, he practised himself. Even as I please all men in all things, that I lawfully can, not seeking my own profit, humour, or inclination, but the profit of many, that they may be saved; solicitous by every means, to win souls to the adored Redeemer, and to lead them in the ways of everlasting life.

CHAP. XI.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle blames, and endeavours to rectify, some great indecencies and manifest disorders in the church of Corinth. As (1.) The misconduct of their women in the public assembly, ver. 1—17. (2.) He blames them for their discord, riot, and neglect and contempt of the poor at the Lord's supper, ver. 17—23. (3.) To rectify these scandalous disorders he sets before them the nature and intentions of this holy institution, directs the u how they should attend on it, and warns them of the danger of a conduct so indecent as theirs and of all unworthy receiving, ver. 23. to the end.

1. BE ye [a] followers of me, even as I also am of Christ. 2. Now I praise you, brethren, that [b] ye remember me in all things, and keep the * ordinances, as I delivered them to you. 3. But I would have you know, that [c] the head of every man is Christ; and [d] the head of the woman is the man; and [e] the head of Christ is God. 4. Every man praying or [f] prophesying, † having his head covered, dishonoureth his head. 5. But [g] every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoureth her head: for that is even all one as if she were shaven. 6. For if the woman be not covered, let her also be shorn: [h] but if it be a shame for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered. 7. For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, forasmuch as [i] he is the image and glory of God: but [k] the woman is the glory of the man. 8. For [l] the man is not of the woman; but the woman of the man. 9. [m] Neither was the man created for the woman; but the woman for the man. 10. For this cause ought the woman to have [n] power on her head, because of the angels. 11. Nevertheless, [o] neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord. 12. For as the woman is of the man, even so is the man also by the woman; but [p] all things of God. 13. [q] Judge in yourselves: is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered? 14. Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, [r] it is a shame unto him? 15. But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her; for her hair is given her for a ‡ covering. 16. But [s] if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God.

a Ch. 4. 16. Eph. 5. 1. Phil. 3. 17. 1 Thes. 1. 6. 2 Thes. 3. 9.
b Ch. 4. 17. & 15. 1. 2 Thes. 2. 15. & 3. 6.
* Or traditions.
c Eph. 1. 10, 22, 23. & 5. 23. Rom. 14. 9. Phil. 2. 10, 11. Acts 10. 36. Prov. 8. 15, 16. d Gen. 3. 16. 1 Pet. 3. 1, 6. Eph. 5. 22, 24. Col. 3. 18.
e John 14. 28. ch. 15. 27, 28. & 3. 23. Rom. 8. 3. Gal. 4. 4. Phil. 2. 7—9. Is. 42. 1, 6. & 49. 3, 6. & 52. 13. & 55. 4. & 61. 1—3. John 4. 34.
f Ch. 12. 10. & 14. 1—39. ver. 14. 2 Sam. 15. 30. & 19. 4.
† That is, instructing and reproving by preaching and exhortation.
g Luke 2. 36. Acts 2. 17. & 21. 9.
h Num. 5. 18. Deut. 22. 5.
i Gen. 1. 26, 27. & 5. 1. & 9. 6. Jam. 3. 9. Ps. 8. 6.
k Gen. 3. 16. & 2. 23.
l Gen. 2. 21, 23. 1 Tim. 2. 13.
m Gen. 2. 18—23.
n That is, a covering in token that she is under the power of her husband. Gen. 24. 65. Eccl. 5. 6. with Mat. 18. 10. Heb. 1. 14. Eph. 3. 10.
o Gen. 2. 18—24. & 3. 16. ch. 12. 20—22.
p Prov. 16. 4. Rom. 11. 36. Heb. 1. 2, 3. Ps. 119. 91.
q Ch. 10. 15. John 7. 24. Luke 12. 57. 1 Thes. 5. 21.
r Ch. 14. 35.
‡ Or veil.
s 1 Tim. 6. 3, 4. ch. 14. 33.

Verses 1—16. The apostle had proposed to them, in the conclusion of the former chapter, his own example; and he here exhorts them, Be ye followers of me as I also am of Christ. He copied after his Divine Master, and therefore could speak freely, when his own practice was so eminently a comment on his discourses.

1. To introduce, with greater efficacy, the reproofs which he was constrained to give, he commends them for what was praiseworthy among them. Now I praise you, brethren, that ye remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them unto you; at least, the main body of the church loved, honoured, and respected him, and were observant of his instructions.

2. He lays a foundation for the rebuke which he was obliged to give, in reminding them of the superiority of the man over the woman. I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ; he is the Creator and Governor of all, and, in a peculiar manner, the head of his church: and the head of the woman is the man, who hath by creation and nature the superiority, and therefore the woman should be in subjection: And the head of Christ is God, considered as Mediator; and, in his human nature, he is inferior to the Father; though, in his Godhead, co-equal, and co-eternal.

3. The thing he blames is, that their men prayed and prophesied covered, the women uncovered. Veiling the head, in the Eastern countries, was regarded as a token of modesty and subjection in the woman; and having the head uncovered betokened the superiority of the man: when therefore any man prayed or prophesied, leading the devotions of the congregation, with a covering on his head, he dishonoured Christ his head, who had given him the superiority; on the contrary, if any woman, under an extraordinary inspiration, prays or prophesies in public, with her head uncovered, she dishonours the man who is her head, by such an affection of appearing like him; and, instead of modest subjection, pretends to an equality with him; and she might, with equal decency cut her hair short, and wear it in the form peculiar to men, and thus appear unveiled. But if such a sight would appear shocking and highly immodest, in a religious assembly, then let her be covered. The man ought not to cover his head; it would be to debase his dignity, forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God, invested with the supreme dominion: but the woman is the glory of the man, who hath the honour of being placed in the rank of creation above her, and hath a becoming dominion over her. For the man is not of the woman, created from her substance, but the woman of the man, from his rib. Neither was the man created for the woman, seeing he was in being before her, but the woman for the man, to be his helpmate, and therein was implied a reasonable subjection to him. For this cause ought the woman to have power on her head, and to be veiled in token of her subjection, because of the angels, or messengers of Christ, who should preside in the church, and it would be highly arrogant to affect equality with them. Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord, both sexes partaking alike of that common salvation which is in Jesus Christ; so that though subjection be due, the woman is not to be tyrannized over as a slave, but to be cherished with warmest affection and becoming respect. For as the woman is of the man, taken from his side, even so is the man also by the woman, springing from her, but all things of God, who hath placed each in their respective stations: which, therefore, for conscience' sake, they should discharge. Judge in yourselves; is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered, affecting to be like the man, and inverting the established order of God? Doth not nature itself teach you, that a distinction should be observed in the dress of the different sexes? And as such is the custom of the country where you live, to cut the hair short, it is regarded as a token of great effeminacy to appear otherwise. So that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him. But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her, comely, and becoming her sex; for her hair is given her for a covering, and should be managed so as to avoid all confusion of dress between the sexes. But if any man seem to be contentious, and disposed to vindicate such a preposterous practice, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God, where every appearance of a contentious spirit is condemned, and all such indecent affectation discountenanced.

17. Now in this that I declare unto you [t] I praise you not, that ye come together not for the better, but for the worse.

t 2 Tim. 4. 2. Lev. 19. 17. Prov. 27. 5. Gal. 2. 11, 14. 1 Tim. 5. 20. Rev. 3. 19.

18. For, first of all, when ye come together in the church, I hear that there be [u] divisions among you; and I partly believe it. 19. For there must be also [x] heresies among you, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you. 20. When ye come together therefore into one place, ‡ this is not to eat the Lord's supper. 21. [y] For in eating every one taketh before other his own supper: and one is hungry, and another is drunken. ‖ 22. What! [z] have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God and shame § them that have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.

u Or schisms Ch. 1. 10—12. & 3. 3. Heb. 10. 25.

x Or sects. Deut. 13. 3. Mat. 10. 34 & 18. 7. Luke 17. 1. & 2. 35. Acts 20. 30. Tit. 3. 10. 1 Tim. 4. 1, 2. 2 Pet. 2. 1. 1 John 2. 19.

‡ Or ye cannot eat.

y 2 Pet. 2. 16. Jude 12.

‖ The word here used does not necessarily import is drunk, but is filled, or has enough.

z Ver. 34. Lev. 19. 30. Ps. 89. 7. Jam. 2. 6.

§ Or them that are poor.

Verses 17—22. Shocking abuses early crept into the Corinthian church, some of which the apostle mentions, and sharply rebukes the offenders. Though he would praise them, (ver. 2.) in general, there were some among them who were a dishonour to their holy profession; who meet with them, not for the better, to receive edification, but for the worse, growing more corrupt, even in the very use of holy ordinances.

1. When ye come together in the church, I hear that there be divisions among you, one being for Paul, and another for Apollos, and the church thus torn with factions; and I partly believe it. For there must be also heresies among you; such is the corruption of man's nature, and the craft of the wicked one, that tares will be sown amongst the wheat, and for wise purposes God permits it should be so, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you, their faith tried, and their sincerity evidenced. Note, (1.) Nothing is more fatal to the church of Christ than uncharitable divisions and discords between the members. (2.) God can overrule, even the wickedness of apostates to the furtherance of his people in faith and holiness.

2. Some of them committed the most scandalous irregularities at the Lord's table. When ye come therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's supper, the method in which you proceed being utterly subversive of the very intention of that holy ordinance; for in eating every one taketh, before other, his own supper, as if it was a mere common meal; and what is still worse, one is hungry, the poor man goes away without any refreshment, the bread and wine being devoured, by those who come first, and another is drunken, the rich indulging themselves to the full, if not to excess. What a scandalous abuse! Have ye not houses to eat and to drink in, when you want to nourish your bodies? or despise ye the church of God, and put contempt on the poor members of it, and shame them that have not, have no houses of their own, nor ability to provide the elements for themselves? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this, thus to form parties even in the church, and devour the provision of which the poor should partake? No, assuredly; I praise you not; I blame you exceedingly.

23. For [a] I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, [b] That the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread: 24. And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, [c] Take, eat; this is my body, which is broken for you: this do * in remembrance of me. 25. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is [d] the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. 26. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, † ye do shew the Lord's death [e] till he come. 27. Wherefore, [f] whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. 28. But [g] let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh [h] damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. 30. For this cause [i] many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. 31. For [k] If we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. 32. But when we are judged, we are [l] chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world. 33. Wherefore, my brethren, when we come together to eat, tarry one for another. 34. And if any man hunger, [m] let him eat at home; that ye come not together unto ‖ condemnation. [n] And the rest will I set in order when I come.

a Ch. 15. 3. & 4. 2 Tim. 2. 2. Ezek. 3. 17. Mat. 28. 20. Deut. 5. 32. & 12. 32.

b Mat. 26. 26—28. Mark 14. 22—25. Luke 22. 19, 20. ch. 10. 16, 17. Acts 20. 7.

c John 6. 33—37. Prov. 9. 1—5. Ps. xxii, lxix. Is. liii. Dan. 9. 24.

* Or for a remembrance.

d Heb. 9. 15—18. Acts 10. 43. 2 Cor. 1. 20.

† Or show ye.

e Heb. 9. 28. John 14. 2, 3. Acts 1. 11. & 3. 19. 1 Thes. 4. 16. Rev. 20. 11, 12. & 22. 20.

f Num. 9. 10, 13. John 6. 51, 63, 64. & 13. 27. ch. 10. 21. Mat. 22. 11. 2 Chr. 30. 18. Heb. 10. 29.

g Lam. 3. 40. 2 Cor. 13. 5. Gal. 6. 4. Zech. 2. 1. Num. 9. 13.

h Or judgment. Ver. 30, 32, 34, 37. Rom. 13. 2. ch. 10 21. Mat. 22. 11. 2 Chr. 30. 18. Is. 27. 11.

i Amos 3. 2. Ps 78. 30, 31. & 89. 32. Heb. 12. 6. Rev. 3. 19.

k Ps. 32. 5. Prov. 18. 17. Jer. 6. 8. & 31. 18—20. & 3. 12, 13.

l Ver. 30. Deut. 8. 2, 3. Ps. 89. 32. Is. 27. 9. Jer. 24. 7. & 31. 18. Amos 3. 2. Heb. 12. 5—10. Rev. 3. 19. Ps. 94. 12—14. Job 5. 17, 18. with Hos. 4. 14, 17.

m Ver. 21, 22.

‖ Or judgment.

n Tit. 1. 5. ch. 7. 1. & 4. 19.

Verses 23—34. To rectify the gross abuses which he reprehended, the apostle sets before them,

1. The true nature of the sacred institution as he received it from the Lord, and had faithfully delivered it unto them. The Lord Jesus, the King of his church, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread: and when he had given thanks, he broke it, and said, Take, eat; this bread is the symbol and representation of my body which is broken for you, and offered upon the cross in your stead; this do in remembrance of me; continue, in this ordinance, a constant memorial of my dying love, and of the benefits you receive thereby. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the New Testament, or covenant in my blood, which is now ratified by the blood-shedding of the Mediator, and all the inestimable privileges contained in it secured to every believing soul. This do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me, frequently meeting to celebrate this sacred feast, remembering therein my matchless grace, manifest in those precious and plenteous drops of blood shed for your redemption; for as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come, declaring your dependence thereon, as the ground of all your hope towards God, and openly professing your faith in a crucified Redeemer, as all his people are called upon to do, until the day comes when they shall appear with him in glory.

2. He warns them of the danger of an irreverent use of this holy ordinance, Wherefore, whosoever eateth and drinketh this cup of the Lord unworthily, in such a scandalous, factious, and sensual manner, shall be guilty of the body, and blood of the Lord, incurring the heavy guilt of treating with contempt the blood of the covenant. But let a man examine himself, with regard to the truth of his faith, love, and conversion to God; and his knowledge of the design of this sacred institution, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup, to his soul's edification and comfort, For he who eateth and drinketh unworthily in the shocking manner before described, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, provoking some temporal judgment of God upon him; not discerning the Lord's body, nor making a difference between the sacred symbol thereof, and common food. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep, God visiting in sickness, disease, and death your provocations. For if we would judge ourselves, and seriously examine into our conduct, that with real penitence we might return unto God, we should not be judged with such heavy providential afflictions. But when we are thus judged we are chastened of the Lord in mercy that we should not be condemned with the world, left to go on securely, and perish in our sins. Note, (1.) None should be discouraged from the Lord's table, who, on examining themselves, can say, that in simplicity they desire to approve themselves to him. (2.) God never casts away his people, though often for their good he visits their offences with a rod, and their sin with scourges.

3. He directs them how to celebrate this sacred ordinance. Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another, till all are assembled, and you can eat together; sitting down, as children of one family, at the table of the Lord. And if any man hunger, let him eat at home, this being not designed as an ordinary meal: that ye come not together to condemnation, provoking God by your irreverence, dissensions, or excess. And the rest, if there be any thing further amiss, respecting the proper discipline to be observed, will I set in order when I come.

CHAP. XII.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, (1.) Considers the case of spiritual gifts, which were very plentifully poured out on the Corinthian church. He considers their original, that they are from God; their variety and use, that they were all intended for one and the same general end, the advancement of Christianity, and the church's edification, ver. 1—12. (2.) He illustrates this by an allusion to a human body, in which all the members have a mutual relation and subserviency, and each its proper place and use, ver. 12—27. (3.) He tells us, that the church is the body of Christ, and the members are variously gifted, for the benefit of the whole body, and each particular member, ver. 27—30. And then, (4.) Closes with an exhortation to seek somewhat more beneficial than these gifts, ver. 31.

1. NOW concerning [a] spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. 2. Ye know that ye were [b] Gentiles, carried away unto these [c] dumb idols, even as ye were led. 3. Wherefore, I give you to understand, [d] that no man speaking by the Spirit of God, calleth Jesus * accursed: and that [e] no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost. 4. Now [f] there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. 5. And there are [g] differences of administrations, but the same Lord. 6. And there are [h] diversities of operations, but it is [i] the same God which worketh all in all. 7. But the [k] manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. 8. For to one is given by the Spirit [l] the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; 9. To another [m] faith by the same Spirit; to another [n] the gifts of healing by the same Spirit; 10. To another [o] the working of miracles; to another [p] prophecy; to another [q] discerning of spirits; to another [r] divers kinds of tongues; to another [s] the interpretation of tongues: 11. [t] But all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will.

a Ver. 4, 8—10, 28. ch. 14. 1. Eph. 4. 11. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. Jam. 1. 17.
b Ch. 6. 11. Eph. 2. 11, 12. & 4. 17—19. Tit. 3. 3. 1 Pet. 4. 3. c Ps. 115. 5. Hab. 2. 18. Is. 44. 9—20. 1 Thes. 1. 9. Mat. 15. 14.
d Mark 9. 39.
* Or anathema.
e Mat. 16 17. John 13. 13. & 15. 26. ch. 8. 6. 2 Cor. 3. 5. & 11. 4. 1 John 4. 2. Gal. 2. 16, 20.
f Rom. 12. 6, 8. ver. 8, 10, 28. 1 Pet. 4 10. Heb. 2. 4. Eph. 4. 4, 11. Jam. 1. 17.
g Rom. 12. 4—8. Eph. 4. 5, 11. ch. 8. 6. ver. 28.
h Ver. 9, 10.
i Deut. 6. 4. John 10. 25, 37. & 14. 20. ch. 8. 6. Eph. 1. 19, 23. ch. 3. 7.
k Ver. 8—10, 28, 30. Eph. 4. 11—13. Mat. 25, 14, 15. Luke 19. 13.
l Ch. 1. 5. & 2. 6. & 13. 2, 8. & 14. 6. 2 Cor. 8. 7. Is. 50. 4. Mat. 13. 11. m Mat. 17. 20. ch. 13. 2. Acts 14. 9. Heb. 11. 33. n Mark 16. 17, 18. Jam. 5. 14. Mark 6. 13. Acts 3. 6. & 19. 11, 12. & 28. 8.
o Acts 5. 5. & 13. 11. & 14. 10. & 20. 12. & 19. 12. John 14. 12. p Ch. 14. 1, 3. Acts 11. 27, 28. & 21. 9, 11. Rom 12. 6. Joel 2. 18.
q 1 John 4. 1. Rev. 2. 2. Acts 5. 3. or ch. 14. 29.
r Ch. 13. 1. & 14. 5, 39. Acts 2. 4. & 19. 6.
s Ch. 14. 26—28. ver. 30.
t Ch. 7. 7. Rom. 12. 3. Eph. 4. 7. 2 Cor. 10. 13. Mat. 20. 13, 15. Heb. 2. 4. John 3. 8. Joel 2. 28, 29.

Verses 1—11. The church of Corinth was greatly enriched in spiritual gifts, and these had been sadly abused, and made an occasion of much pride and contention. The apostle therefore here leads them to consider the author, nature, design, and use of the extraordinary powers, which were given them.

1. He reminds them for their humiliation, of their former state. Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away unto these dumb idols, even as ye were led, hurried or blindfold to worship these senseless stocks and stones. Wherefore I give you to understand, now that God hath brought you out of darkness into his marvellous light, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed, it being a sure proof that both the Jewish exorcists and the heathen diviners who pretend to such inspiration, yet blaspheme him from whom the Spirit proceeds, are liars, and of their father the devil; and, on the other hand, no man can say that Jesus is the Christ, but by the Spirit of God; to discover his all-sufficiency for the work of redemption, and his suitableness to every necessity of our souls, we need a divine illumination: and though we may confess him to be the Christ with our lips, yet we can never experimentally know him to be our anointed Saviour, till it please God to reveal his Son in us. And all the miracles which are wrought in confirmation of this truth, are by the power of the Holy Ghost, who intends thereby to glorify Christ. Let a man pretend to what he will, if he doth not know and love the Lord Jesus, he must be destitute of the Spirit; but if he doth, then however low his gifts may be, he hath an assured interest in the Saviour.

2. He directs them in the proper use of the spiritual gifts which they enjoyed. Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit, who bestows them in all their variety on private Christians, or ministers; and there are differences of administrations, of offices and services, some superior to the others, but the same Lord appoints to each his employment, and they act under his authority. And there are diversities of operations, and miraculous powers, but it is the same Lord which worketh all in all, by whose mighty energy alone they are performed. But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal; whatever gifts or powers he is endowed with, that manifest the presence and energy of the Holy Ghost, they are designed to promote the edification of the body of Christ, and to advance his glory. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom, a clear understanding of the great doctrines of the gospel, and ability to express them with judgment and eloquence; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit, an insight into the types and prophecies of the Old Testament, and a readiness to explain and apply them. To another faith by the same Spirit, so in the midst of the most threatening dangers, he is enabled confidently and quietly to repose on God. To another the gifts of healing, by the same Spirit, all manner of bodily diseases by a word or a touch instantaneously. To another the working of miracles, in mercy or judgment, Acts ix. 40. v. 5, 10. To another prophecy, or the power of foretelling future events; to another the discerning of spirits, under what influence, divine or diabolical, men act, what is their real design and qualifications, and who are fit to be publicly employed in the church; to another divers kinds of tongues, so as to understand and speak fluently languages he had never learned; to another the interpretation of tongues, the ability of rendering with exactness and propriety a foreign tongue, which the congregation may not understand, into their own native language. But all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally, and sovereignly, as he will. Note, (1.) The Holy Ghost is a Divine Person; he acts with sovereignty in the distribution of his own gifts, and in energy and operation is one with the Father and the Son. (2.) All our gifts are bestowed for service, not to advance our own honour and interest, but the glory of God, and the salvation of men's souls.

12 [u] For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ. 13. [x] For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or * Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit. 14. For the body is not one member, but many.† 15. If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? 16. And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? 17. If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling? 18. [y] But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him. 19. And if they were all one member where were the body? 20. But now are they many members, yet but one body.‡ 21. [z] And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you. 22. Nay, much more those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary. 23. And those members of the body which we think to be [a] less honourable, upon these we § bestow more abundant honour; and our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness. 24. For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked: 25. That there should be no [b] schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another. 26. [c] And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it.

u Song 6. 9. Rom. 12. 4, 5. Eph. 4. 4, 16.

x John 3. 6, 26. Rom. 6. 5, 6. Eph. 5. 26. & 4. 5. & 2. 11, 13, 14, 16, 19—22. & 3. 6. Gal. 3. 26—28. Col. 2. 11, 12. & 3. 11. ch. 10. 2—4. Mat. 3. 11. John 6. 63. & 7. 37, 39. Joel 2. 28. Is. 44. 3—5.

* Gr. Greeks.

† Read and point thus. Since the body, therefore, is not one member, but many; if the foot should say, &c.

y Ver. 28. Rom. 12. 3—8. Eph. 4. 11. ver. 4—11.

‡ Rather, Being now, therefore, many members, but one body: the eye cannot say, &c.

z Num. 10. 31. Job 29. 15. 1 Sam. 25. 32.

a Ch. 1. 26—28. Jam. 2. 5. Ps. 68. 10.

§ Or put on. That is, by clothing them.

b Or division. Ch. 1. 10—12. & 3. 3. John 17. 21—23. 26. 2 Cor. 13. 11.

c Heb. 13. 3. Rom. 12. 15. Gal. 6. 2. 2 Cor. 11. 28, 29.

Verses 12—26. The apostle represents the union subsisting between the faithful who partake of the several gifts of the Spirit, under the similitude of a human body consisting of many members: it is but one, though composed of various parts, which have each their particular function for the good of the whole. So also is the mystical body of Christ; though consisting of different persons, with different gifts, and appointed to different stations, yet all who are vitally united to him compose but one spiritual body, into which all, whether Jews or Gentiles, who have been baptized with water, and the Holy Ghost, are by faith incorporated, and are nourished by that one Divine Spirit that resides in all his fulness in Christ, and is from him diffused through the several members, who thereby maintain communion with their exalted Head. Now in the natural body, (1.) Each member constitutes a part of the whole, and the meanest are needful: the foot and the ear, though less useful perhaps than the hand and eye, are yet equally parts of the body. The meanest Christian is dear to the Saviour, and regarded by him as truly a member of his body as the noblest. (2.) There is a beauty in the variety of the different members: if the body were all eye or all ear, it would be defective and monstrous. Thus the diversity of offices and gifts in the church display a beautiful symmetry. (3.) As in the body natural God gives, as he pleases, to every member its proper office: so in the body mystical, the Lord appoints to each his station, and furnishes him with gifts, which he is bound to receive with thankfulness, to use with diligence, and neither to murmur against the giver, nor envy the superiority of others. (4.) Every member of the body contributes to the good of the whole. The eye wants the hand, the head the feet, nay the feeblest members are necessary. Thus do those who are in the most exalted stations in the church need the inferior members, and must not despise them as insignificant or useless. (5.) In the body we show peculiar regard to our uncomely parts, covering them with proper clothing, which our comely parts do not need: and thus hath God ordered it, that we should give more abundant honour to the part which lacketh. In like manner ought the more eminent in gifts and abilities in the church to hide the infirmities of their weaker brethren; not to reproach or despise them, but treat them with kindness and regard, and desire to make them appear in the most respectable manner. (6.) In the body the suffering of one member gives pain to the whole, and all the members share in the honour conferred on any particular part; such a mutual sympathy prevents all schism in the body, and obliges the members to have the same care one for another. The like fellow-feeling should every Christian have for his brother: we should tenderly sympathize with the afflicted in body or soul; and their temporal or spiritual prosperity, far from being the occasion of our envy, should be a matter of our sincerest joy. All coldness and distance is as unnatural as a schism between the members, and should be shunned as the most dangerous evil.

27. [d] Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. 28. And [e] God hath set some in the church; first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, ‖ diversities of tongues. 29. [f] Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are d Ch. 3. 16. Rom. 12. 5. Eph. 1. 23. & 4. 12. & 5. 23, 30. Col. 1. 24. & 2. 19.

e Mat. 9. 38. Acts 13. 2, 3. & 20. 28. Rom. 12. 6—8. ver. 7—11, 18. ch. 14. 33. Eph. 2. 20. & 4. 11. & 3. 11. 1 Tim. 5. 17. Heb. 13. 17. 24.

‖ Or kinds.

f Ver. 4—11.

all * workers of miracles? 30. Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret? 31. [g] But covet earnestly the best gifts: and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way.

* Or powers.

g Ch. 8. 1. & 13. 1. & 14. 1, 39. Phil. 4. 8.

Verses 27—31. The apostle particularly applies the case in hand. Now are ye the mystical body of Christ, and members in particular, each being a part of the whole. And God, in infinite wisdom, and with admirable propriety, hath set some in the church, appointing one to a higher, another to a lower station. In the first rank stand the apostles, who received their commission immediately from Christ himself: secondarily, prophets, who are endued with the gift of foretelling future events: thirdly, teachers, who labour in the word and doctrine, and are the ordinary ministers of the gospel: after that miracles, which some are endued with the power of working: then gifts of healing the sick: helps, such as are assistant to the superior ministers: governments, those who preside over the affairs of the church: others are endued with diversities of tongues, the ability to speak or interpret them. Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret? No. Each has his appointed station and peculiar gifts; wherein the highest are not to be envied, nor the lowest to be despised. But covet earnestly the best gifts. It may be regarded as his advice: or, it may be read as an assertion, Ye do covet the best gifts, and blameably desire to excel in these extraordinary endowments; or, as an interrogation, Do you covet earnestly the best gifts? and envy each other's superior attainments? Yet show I unto you a more excellent way: a spirit of love, which prompts to every good word and work for the glory of God and the profit of men's souls, is far better and more desirable than the most shining gifts. Note, (1.) Gifts when valued because of the esteem which they procure us, more than for their use to the souls of men, prove the most fatal snare to the soul. (2.) One spark of Godlike charity is infinitely preferable to all the glare of the most eminent titles or abilities.

CHAP. XIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, 1. Recommends charity by showing the necessity and importance of it, ver. 1—3. 2. By giving a description of its properties and fruits, ver. 4—8. 3. By showing how much it excels the best gifts and other graces, by its continuance when they shall be no longer in being, or of any use, ver. 8. to the end.

a 1 Tim. 1. 5. Rom. xiv. & 13. 8—10. ch. 8. 1. ver. 2, 3.

b Ch. 12. 8—10, 28. Luke 17. 6. Mat. 17. 20. & 1. 22, 23. & 21. 21. ch. 14. 6—9. & 8. 1.

* To "remove mountains" was a proverbial expression amongst the Jews for overcoming great difficulties.

c Prov. 25. 21. Rom. 12. 8, 20. & 5. 7. Mat. 6. 1, 2. John 15. 13. 1 John 3. 16.

1. THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not [a] charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. 2. [b] And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, * and have not charity, I am nothing. 3. [c] And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

Verses 1—3. The more excellent way, which the apostle had been recommending, he here describes; and that is charity or love, which is the greatest of graces, shall endure for ever, when gifts are vanished away, and without it they are nothing worth.

1. Though I speak with the tongues of men, in all the various languages of the globe, or even of angels, and have not charity, or love, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal, so inharmonious, and a mere empty noise. Little reason therefore had the Corinthians to value themselves upon the gifts of tongues, which only afforded occasion for pride and contention. And,

2. Though I have the gift of prophecy, can foretell future events, and understand all mysteries, through divine illumination discovering the meaning of the most abstruse prophecies and figures; and have all knowledge, such as never mortal man attained before; and have not charity, or love, it signifies nothing to my salvation. Such light would only be sufficient to lead me into eternal darkness.

3. And though I have all faith, to work the most stupendous miracles, so that I could remove mountains, and have no love, I am nothing in God's account, and utterly destitute of the spirit of vital Christianity.

4. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, it would be utterly unprofitable to myself, if divine love was not the principle from which my alms-giving proceeded. Note, Many give largely to the poor, who never did a truly charitable act in their lives.

5. And though I give my body to be burned, for my profession of the gospel, and have not charity, or love, to the Redeemer, and to men for his sake, it profiteth me nothing. The affectation of leaving a great name, or the conceit of the meritoriousness of such a sacrifice, may even lead a man to a stake. He may burn for Christ, and yet be disowned by him, if this genuine mark of discipleship be lacking.

4. [d] Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity * vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, 5. [e] Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, 6. [f] Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth † in the truth; 7. [g] Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

d Prov. 10. 12. Num. 12. 3. Ps. 35. 13, 14. Jam. 3. 14—18. Col. 3. 12—14. Phil. 2. 1—5. Eph. 4. 31, 32. 1 Pet. 4. 8. with ch. 1. 11. & 3. 3. & 4. 8. & 5. 2.

* Or is not rash.

e Ch. xi. & 14. 40. Phil. 2. 4. & 4. 8. Rom. 15. 1, 2. & 12. 19. ch. 10. 23, 24. Deut. 1. 36. & 9. 7, 19. & 29. 29. 2 Cor. 12. 15.

f Rom. 1. 32. & 12. 9. Ps. 10. 3. & 15. 4. Exod. 18. 9. Phil. 1. 18. 2 John 4. † Or with the truth.

g Prov. 10. 12. Rom. 15 1, 2. Gal. 6. 2. with Lev. 19. 17. Rev. 2. 2. ch. 5. 4, 5, 7, 13. ch. 9. 19—23. 1 Pet. 4. 8. 2 Tim. 2. 10, 24, 25.

Verses 4—7. We have here the true properties of that most excellent of graces, charity, or love.

1. It suffereth long, patiently enduring provocation, unruffled with affronts, passing by offences, and suppressing every motion of resentment that would rise within the soul.

2. It is kind, courteous, affable, benevolent, and opens the lips, the hand, and heart, to every good word and work.

3. Charity envieth not the superior gifts, graces, attainments, honours, or affluence, which others enjoy; but takes pleasure in them, as if they were her own.

4. Charity vaunteth not itself, is not ostentatious of any excellencies or superior advantages, doth not treat inferiors with contempt and insolence, nor rashly or perversely utter any thing to a brother's disadvantage.

5. It is not puffed up, doth not fill the head with vain conceit of a man's importance, nor suffer him to think more highly of himself than he ought to think.

6. It doth not behave itself unseemly, admits of no conduct unsuitable to the age, station, or circumstances of the person; suffers nothing mean, indecent, or dishonourable, to enter the mind, or be carried into act.

7. It seeketh not her own, is influenced by no mercenary motives, nor pursues any private ends, inordinately craving honour, gain, or applause; but is generous, noble, and disinterested, sacrificing her own advantage for the good of others.

8. It is not easily provoked; but, under the most exasperating insults, can preserve a holy serenity, and even be angry and sin not; displeased at the sin, yet pitying the sinner; always restraining just resentment within bounds, and ready to be reconciled.

9. It thinketh no evil, never seeking to pry into others' conduct to discover faults, but ever ready to put the best construction on their words and actions; entertains no undue suspicions; and is willing to forget as well as forgive every injury.

10. It rejoiceth not in iniquity, nor looks, but with grief and sorrow, on the sins, perverseness, and infirmities of others. But,

11. Rejoiceth in the truth; glad of the success of the gospel; pleased with beholding its influence, wherever it appears; and ever delighting to bear testimony to the truth, and speaking from the heart.

12. It beareth all things: covers men's faults with the mantle of love; pities their weakness, and suffers without the thought of retaliating their perverseness.

13. It believeth all things; willing to entertain the most favourable opinion of all, averse to every ungrounded suspicion, and candidly disposed to receive the excuse and explanation where aught may have been mistaken.

14. It hopeth all things; where matters appear dark, and cannot but raise doubts, still charity will not despair but that they can yet be cleared up satisfactorily, or where the evil is evident, that the fault will be repented of and amended.

15. It endureth all things, with unshaken fortitude bearing up under every affliction, temptation, and persecution, and for the sake of Christ and his people ready to undergo any suffering.

Such is this transcendent grace of charity. In the glass of which we should often look, compare our features with this perfect pattern, and daily seek that we may grow more like him whose nature and name is Love.

8. [h] Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. 9. For [i] we know in part, and we prophesy in part. 10. But [k] when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part* shall be done away. 11. [l] When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I † thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things. 12. [m] For now we see through a glass, ‡ darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known. 13. And now [n] abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but [o] the greatest of these is charity.

h Ver. 10. with 2 Pet. 1. 19. ch. 7. 30, 31.
i Ps. 73. 22. Prov. 30. 2, 3. Phil. 3. 12, 13. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11.
k Jer. 31. 34. 2 Cor. 5. 7, 8. Is. 60. 17, 19, 20.
* We might render the Greek here, that which is imperfect.
l Is. 28. 11. ch. 3. 1, 2. & 14. 20.
† Or reasoned.
m 2 Cor. 3. 18. & 5. 7. Phil. 3. 12, 13. Exod. 33. 11. Num. 12. 8. Rom. 8. 18. 1 John 3. 2. Mat. 18. 10. Rev. 22. 4.
‡ Gr. in a riddle.
n 1 John 3. 9. 2 Pet. 3. 18. 1 Tim. 1. 5. 2 Tim. 1. 5.
o Ver. 4—8. 1 Tim. 1. 5. Rom. 13. 8—10. Mat. 22. 37, 38. Eph. 5. 2. ch. 16. 14.

Verses 8—13. The apostle proceeds in his commendation of charity, not only as superior to all gifts, but as the chief of all graces.

1. Charity never faileth: but will continue in the heart where it hath been once planted, enduring as the days of eternity. All gifts must quickly have an end; whether they be prophecies, the gift of foretelling future events, or interpreting the Scriptures, they shall fail, and be of no further use in the eternal world: whether there be tongues, they shall cease, when they have answered their present use of spreading the gospel through the world, and in heaven we shall have but one language; whether there be knowledge, the extraordinary insight into divine truth, it shall vanish away; in glory this knowledge will be no longer needed.

2. All gifts are suited only to a state of imperfection; when we arrive to maturity in glory we shall be above them. For we know in part, and prophesy in part, our greatest attainments are at present defective; but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away, and our nature being exalted to the highest pitch of which it is capable, all imperfection will be swallowed up in perfection of knowledge and holiness, absolute and everlasting. Our present and future state differ as much as manhood does from infancy. When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; and such, he insinuates, were all their highest present attainments: no better than the poor conceptions and lispings of babes; but when I became a man, I put away childish things; in the heavenly state so low thoughts shall we entertain of all our present most esteemed acquisitions, despise what in the days of childish folly we valued, and see, with a distinctness of spiritual vision, as much above our present state, as the thoughts of manhood are superior to the fancies of infancy: For now we see through a glass darkly, the mirror reflecting the object indistinctly, and, like a riddle, the truth is enveloped with obscurity; but then face to face, clearly and fully, by intuition, without any darkening medium. Now know I in part, and with all my singular gifts know but in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known, comprehending heavenly objects with the most distinct knowledge, and in the same way that God, who is a spirit, and his angels, know me.

3. Charity is the most excellent of graces, as well as above all gifts. And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three cardinal graces, inseparable from the Christian character, and which till death must be in constant exercise; but the greatest of these is charity, the others being as means to this as the end. And when faith is swallowed up in sight, and hope in the fruition of the eternal blessedness, love, the bright image of the Deity, shall glow towards the eternal Three, and the celestial hosts, in every bosom of the redeemed, and continue to burn, with unextinguished ardour, throughout the countless ages of eternity.

CHAP. XIV.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, 1. Begins with advising them of all spiritual gifts to prefer prophesying, ver. 1—6. 2. He goes on to show them how unprofitable the speaking foreign languages was, and useless to the church; whereas gifts should be used for the good of the church, ver. 6—15. 3. He advises that worship should be celebrated so as the most ignorant might understand and join in prayer and praise, and presses the advice by his own example, ver. 15—21. 4. He informs them that tongues were a sign for unbelievers rather than those that believe; and represents the advantage of prophecy above speaking with tongues, from the different suggestions they would give to the mind of an unbeliever, coming into their assemblies, ver. 21—25. 5. Blames them for the disorder and confusion they had brought into the assembly by their vanity and ostentation of their gifts, and directs them in using their gifts both of tongues and prophecy, ver. 26—34. 6. Forbids women speaking in the church, and closes the subject by requiring them to perform every thing in the public worship with order and decency, ver. 34. to the end.

1. [a] FOLLOW after charity, and [b] desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may a Mat. 22. 37, 38. Rom. 13. 8—10. Eph. 5. 2. b Ch. 12. 28, 31. Num. 11. 25, 29. Rom. 12. 6. ver. 3—8.

prophesy.* 2. [c] For he that speaketh in an unknown tongue speaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man † understandeth him; howbeit [d] in the spirit he speaketh mysteries. 3. But [e] he that prophesieth speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort. 4. He that speaketh in an unknown tongue edifieth himself; but he that prophesieth edifieth the church. 5. I would that ye all spake with tongues, [f] but rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that prophesieth than he that speaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the church may receive edifying.

* This word here seems not to mean uttering predictions, but preaching the word of God with effect, and in the vernacular language of the country.

c Gen. 11. 7. & 42. 27. Deut. 28. 49. Is. 36. 11. Acts 2. 4. & 10. 16. & 19. 6.

† Gr. heareth.

d Ps. 49. 3. 4. & 78. 2. Mat. 13. 11. Mark 4. 33. ver. 29.

e Acts 10. 44. & 16. 14. & 13. 15. Rom. 12. 8. & 15. 4.

Ver. 3, 4, 6. Num. 11. 25, 29.

Verses 1—5. Having recommended charity in the first place, he proceeds to show what spiritual gifts were most desirable.

1. Follow after charity (διωκετε) pursue it with the greatest eagerness, and desire spiritual gifts for the glory of God and the good of the church; but rather, or chiefly, that ye may prophesy, so as by divine illumination to be enabled most profitably to open and apply the Scriptures to the consciences of men for their comfort and edification.

2. He assigns this reason for his exhortation. He that speaketh in an unknown tongue speaketh not to men, who cannot understand him, but unto God; for no man understandeth him, howbeit in the spirit he speaketh mysteries, and advances the most glorious and important truths: but he that prophesieth, explaining and opening the Scriptures to the understanding and capacity of the hearers, speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort, and his ministry and gifts are made useful to their souls. He that speaketh in an unknown tongue, edifieth himself; but he that prophesieth, edifieth the church, and communicates an extensive benefit to others as well as to his own heart. I would that ye all spoke with tongues, and were furnished with this great gift; but rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that prophesieth than he that speaketh with tongues, he is a more useful and therefore a more excellent man, and to be more highly esteemed by the hearers; except he interpret that the church may receive edifying. Note, Our discourses should be adapted to the capacity of our hearers; high flights of eloquence, or affectation of learning, are absurd where the audience is illiterate. Our ambition must be to stoop; and we should ever be more solicitous to be understood than to be admired.

6. Now, brethren, [g] If I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, except I shall speak ‡ to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine? 7. And even things without life giving sound, [h] whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the ‖ sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped? 8. For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle? 9. So likewise ye, except ye utter by the tongue words § easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall [i] speak into the air. 10. There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them is without signification. 11. Therefore, if I know not the meaning of the voice, I shall be unto him that speaketh a barbarian, and he that speaketh shall be a barbarian unto me. 12. [k] Even so ye, forasmuch as ye are zealous * of spiritual gifts, seek that ye may excel to the edifying of the church. 13. Wherefore let him that speaketh in an unknown tongue pray that [l] he may interpret. 14. For [m] if I pray in an unknown tongue, my spirit prayeth, but my understanding is unfruitful. †

g Ch. 11. 34. Eph. 1. 17. ver. 26.

‡ The word signifies, to speak intelligibly.

h Jer. 9. 17, 18. & 48. 36. Job 21. 11, 12. Mat. 9. 23. & 11. 17.

‖ Or notes. We may read, unless they give a difference, (that is, in the measured distance between sounds,) in the notes.

§ Or significant.

Ch. 9. 26.

k Ver. 7, 8. ch. 12. 7, 31.

* Or of spirit.

l Ch. 12. 10. ver. 26, 27. Or let him pray in such a language as he can interpret.

m Luke 24. 25. Rom. 14. 19. ch. 1. 10. 2 Thes. 2. 2.

† That is, not productive of any benefit to others.

Verses 6—14. The apostle goes on to show the absurdity of making an ostentatious show of gifts, and speaks in his own person to insinuate the reproof which they deserved for their vanity in this respect. Now, brethren, if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, except I shall speak to you, interpreting what is made known unto me in an intelligible manner, either by revelation, if it be a new truth; or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine? opening the Scriptures, and enforcing them on the conscience. He illustrates this,

1. By a pipe or harp. Unless these instruments give a distinction of sounds to direct the dancer's motion, or to excite the different passions which music raises, they will be useless and inharmonious, and just so must speaking in an unknown tongue be absurd to one who is a stranger to the language.

2. By a trumpet, which if it give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle? And as the soldier in such a case must be utterly at a loss, so must the congregation be where the discourse is in an unknown tongue, or above their capacities; and such preaching is to them no better than the whistling of the wind.

3. A person speaking in such an unknown tongue appears as a barbarian to the hearers. Various as the languages are in the world, each serves to convey the ideas of the mind to those who are acquainted with it, but to no others: therefore if I know not the meaning of the language, it will appear mere gibberish, the speaker will appear a barbarian to me, and I to him.

Now this being evidently the case, the apostle exhorts them, since they so eagerly coveted spiritual gifts, to desire those that were of the most useful tendency; and if they spoke with tongues, to pray that they might be able to interpret them for the edifying of the church. For if I pray in an unknown tongue, my spirit prayeth, and my own soul may be engaged in devotion; but my understanding is unfruitful, and my prayers of no use to the hearer.

15. What is it then? [n] I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the understanding also: I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also.* 16. Else, when thou shalt bless with the spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned say [o] Amen at thy giving of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest? 17. For thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not edified. 18. I thank my God, [p] I speak with tongues more than ye all: 19. Yet in the church I n Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. Ps. 47. 7. ver. 19, 26. We may read here, What then ought to be done?

* That is, so as to be understood by others.

o Num. 6. 23. Deut. 27. 16. Neh. 5. 13. & 8. 6. 1 Chr. 48. 36. Ps. 106. 16. & 107. 1, 2.

p Rom. 15. 19.

had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue. 20. Brethren, be [q] not children in understanding: howbeit in malice [r] be ye children, but in understanding be [s] men.

q Ps. 119. 99. Rom. 16. 19. Eph. 4. 14. ch. 2. 6, 13. & 3. 1. Heb. 5. 12.

r Ps. 131. 1, 2 Mat. 11. 25. & 19. 14. & 18. 3, 1 Pet. 2. 2.

s Gr. perfect, or of a ripe age. Ch. 2. 6. Phil. 3. 15.

Verses 15—20. The apostle sums up what he had been saying.

What is it then that is proper to be done? I will pray with the Spirit, under a divine afflatus, and with any of the tongues which he hath given on proper occasions; and I will, in the congregation, pray with my understanding also, in such manner as that others may be edified: I will sing with the Spirit, when under a divine inspiration, in whatever language he is pleased to enable me to utter his praises; and I will, in public sing with my understanding also, that the church may join in my ascriptions of praise to God. Else, when thou shalt bless with the Spirit, though under his immediate inspiration, if it be in an unknown tongue, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned, say Amen at thy giving of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest, and therefore cannot join in the service. For thou verily givest thanks well: but the other, who knoweth not the meaning of the words, is not edified. I thank my God (and happy is it when we call him mine) I speak with tongues more than ye all; he did not depreciate this gift therefore, because he possessed it not, but because they made so evil a use of it: yet in the church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue, from which none of the hearers could receive the least benefit. Therefore, brethren, be not children in understanding, and foolishly boast yourselves on the showy gift of tongues: howbeit in malice be ye children, free from the malignant passions of envy, malice, and pride; but in understanding be men, and prove yourselves to be Christians grown to riper years, by knowing how to value things according to their intrinsic worth, and to prefer godlike charity to the most astonishing gifts. Note, (1.) That church must be erroneous, where ignorance is regarded as the mother of devotion, and the prayers are offered in an unknown tongue. (2) The least good done to the meanest soul, is an unspeakably greater acquisition than the highest applause gained to ourselves. (3.) A malicious, envious spirit is directly contrary to true Christianity. Among the first lessons of that school, we must learn to become as little children.

21. In the law it is written, [t] With men of other tongues and other lips will I speak unto this people; and yet for all that they will not hear me, saith the Lord. 22. Wherefore tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not:* but prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe. 23. If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all speak with tongues, and there come in those that are unlearned, or unbelievers, will they not say that ye are mad? 24. [x] But if all prophesy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all: 25. And thus are the secrets of his heart made manifest; and so, falling down on his face, he will worship God, and report that [y] God is in you of a truth.

t Is. 28. 11, 12. Deut. 28. 49. Jer. 5. 15.

* From this statement of the apostle it clearly follows that he means intelligible tongues; though it might be an unknown or foreign tongue to many present, yet that it should be recognised by some unbelieving strangers as their vernacular speech.

u Acts 2. 15. & 26. 24.

x Ch. 2. 15. Heb. 4. 12. John 16. 9—11. & 6. 63. Acts 2. 37. & 16. 14.

y Is. 45. 14. Zech. 8. 23.

Verses 21—25. The apostle further enforces what he had advanced by observing,

1. That it had been threatened to the Jews, as the punishment of their infidelity, that with men of other tongues and other lips will I speak unto this people; and yet for all that, will they not hear me, saith the Lord: which was primarily fulfilled, when they were sent into captivity to Babylon, where they heard the strange language of their conquerors; and secondarily, when, on the day of Pentecost, they heard the apostles speak with tongues, yet rejected the evidence which the Holy Ghost bore thereby to the doctrine which they preached; deaf to the warnings of Providence and the calls of grace. The Corinthians should not therefore be so inordinately fond of what God had before used in a way of judgment upon Israel. Wherefore,

2. Tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not, to carry the gospel into the lands of infidelity, and bear a testimony of the truth of it, which those who believe do not so much need; but prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, merely, but is also for them that believe, that they may be built up on the true foundation. So that to speak with tongues in a Christian assembly was useless and absurd, because none could be profited thereby.

3. The credit of their profession should restrain them from an ostentation of their gift of tongues. If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all speak with tongues, it will appear a second Babel; and if there come in those that are unlearned, either private Christians or other common people, and unbelievers, will they not say that ye are mad, and, instead of being converted, ridicule you as a parcel of frantic enthusiasts? But if all prophesy, in their turn, preaching, praying, or praising, in an intelligible manner, and there come in one that believeth not, out of curiosity; or by accident, or one unlearned, or ignorant, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all; his conscience is pricked under the word, his sin is brought to his remembrance, and the just wrath of God due thereunto is set before him; and thus are the secrets of his heart made manifest, as if the preacher had known his very soul, and described his case particularly; and so, falling down on his face, he will worship God, convinced by what he hears, that this is his work; and report that God is in you of a truth, since none could so discover the inmost soul, and speak with such power and energy, unless God's Spirit instructed them, and accompanied their administrations. Note, The word of truth, when rightly dispensed, is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart; and many, who have heard it, have felt by experience, that God's ministers often describe their case as particularly, as if they knew the secrets of their souls, and they wonder who hath told them.

26. How is it then, brethren?† when ye come together, [z] every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. [z] Let all things be done unto edifying. 37. If any man speak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course; and let one interpret. 28. But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church; and let him speak to himself, and to God. 29. [b] Let the prophets speak two or three, and let the other‡ judge. 30. If any thing be revealed to another that

† That is, What then, brethren, is your practice?

z Ver. 6. ch. 12. 8—10.

a 2 Cor. 12. 19. & 13, 10. Eph. 4. 12, 16, 29. 1 Thes. 5. 11. Rom. 14. 19. ch. 10. 20. ver. 5, 12.

b Ch. 2. 15. & 12. 10.

‡ Rather let the others.

sitteth by, let the first hold his peace.* 31. [c] For ye may all prophesy one by one, † that all may learn, and all may be comforted. 32. [d] And the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets. 33. For God is not the author of confusion, [e] but of peace, as in all churches of the saints.

* That is, be done with his address before the other commences.

c Rom. 12. 7. ver. 29, 30.

† Or, successively.

d Ver. 12, 29. 1 John 4. 1. ch. 12. 10. 1 Thes. 5. 20, 21.

e Ch. 12. 25. & 11. 16.

Verses 26—33. The apostle reproves their ill behaviour, and gives them rules for their conduct.

1. He blames their irregularities in the church. How is it then, brethren, that ye behave so unseemly in the house of God? for, when ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation; and, whilst every one is forward to exercise his own gift, the whole is a scene of disorder and confusion. Let all things be done to edifying, and no such unseasonable and unprofitable exercise of these divinely communicated gifts be permitted.

2. He orders how they should proceed in the congregation. (1.) If any man speak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, no more than these should at one meeting speak, and that by course, in their proper turn; and let one interpret, that the audience may receive instruction: but if there be no interpreter, let him that speaks in an unknown tongue, keep silence in the church, and not interrupt what is to the use of edifying; and let him speak to himself and to God in private prayer. (2.) Let the prophets speak two or three, at one assembly, and after each other, and let the other judge whether those who profess to be prophets really are so, and examine what they say by the word of truth. (3.) If any thing of peculiar importance be revealed to another prophet who sitteth by, let the first who was speaking, hasten to conclude his discourse, and hold his peace, for ye may all prophesy one by one, at proper opportunities, that all may learn, and all may be comforted; this being the great end for which the gift of prophecy is bestowed. And the spirits of the prophets, are subject to the prophets; these who are truly inspired are not like those under diabolical possession, but have the due government of themselves, and will not be hurried into any indecency or impropriety, as to the matter, time, or manner, of their speaking.

3. He enforces his discourse with this argument, For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace; such disorderly proceedings as these here remarked cannot arise from him: but as in all the other churches of the saints, so among you, it is his pleasure, and for his glory, that due order should be observed.

34. [f] Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; ‡ but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. 35. And if they will learn any thing, [g] let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church.

f 1 Tim. 2. 11, 12. Eph. 5. 22. Col. 3. 18 Tit. 2. 5. 1 Pet. 3. 1. Gen. 3. 16.

‡ The verb here means, to teach.

g 1 Pet. 3. 7. see on ver. 34. with ch. 11. 14.

Verses 34, 35. We have here silence imposed on women in the church. For it is not permitted unto them to speak as public teachers; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law, and to show it by such a modest silence. And if they will learn any thing, and desire that what they have heard, may be farther explained, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church, and renounce that due subordination which God hath enjoined. Note, (1.) If it be the woman's duty to learn in subjection, it is the husband's duty equally to maintain his superiority by showing himself able to inform her. (2.) Modesty is a woman's greatest ornament; and in them all boldness is peculiarly shocking.

36. What! [h] came the word of God out from you? or came it unto you only? 37. [i] If any man think himself to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord. 38. [k] But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. 39. Wherefore, brethren, [l] covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues. 40. [m] Let all things be done decently, and in order.

h Is. 2. 3. Acts xi—xviii.

i 2 Cor. 10. 7. 1 John 4. 6. ch. 7. 25. Luke 10. 16.

k Rev. 42. 11. Ps. 81. 12. Hos. 4. 17 Gen. 6. 3. Is. 6. 9, 10. & 44. 18.

l Ch. 12. 31. ver. 1.

m Ch. 11. 34. Col. 2. 5. ver. 26, 27, 33.

Verses 36—40. The apostle closes his discourse with warmth on this head. What mean you by your irregular behaviour? Came the word of God out from you? or came it unto you only? Are you the mother-church? ought you to set up yourselves as oracles? and are you to pay no respect to the usages of other churches, as if your own was infallible? how intolerably assuming is such behaviour? If any man thinketh himself a prophet, or spiritual, let him prove the truth of the inspiration which he challenges by subscribing to these truths, and acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord, since no man, truly under the influence of the Spirit, can possibly contradict what that Spirit, speaking in his apostles, dictates: but if any man be ignorant, and obstinately refuses to submit to these commands, let him be ignorant, treated with deserved contempt, and left to follow the wilful blindness and perverseness of his own heart. Wherefore brethren, on the whole, covet to prophesy, as the most excellent gift; and forbid not to speak with tongues, which are useful when managed according to the manner above prescribed. And for a general rule in all things pertaining to the public worship, let all things be done decently, and in order, and let every indecency and irregularity be banished from the house of God. Note, (1.) They who continue wilfully ignorant of, or obstinately reject the commandments of the Lord, evidently show by whose spirit they are led. (2.) When a man hates the light, he is justly abandoned to the darkness he hath chosen. (3.) In the public worship of God all the service should be rational, composed, orderly, edifying.

CHAP. XV.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle treats of the resurrection of the dead. 1. He establishes the certainty of our Saviour's resurrection, ver. 1—11. He from this truth sets himself to refute those who said there is no resurrection of the dead, ver. 12—20. 3. From our Saviour's resurrection he establishes the resurrection of the dead, and confirms the Corinthians in the belief of it by some other considerations, ver. 21—35. 4. He answers an objection against this truth, and takes an occasion thence to show what a vast change will be made in the bodies of believers at the resurrection, ver. 36—51. 5. He informs us what a change will be made in them that shall be living at the sound of the last trumpet, and the complete conquest the just shall then obtain over death and the grave, ver. 52—57. And, 6. Sums up the argument with a very serious exhortation to Christians to be resolved and diligent in their Lord's service, because they know they shall be so gloriously rewarded by him, ver. 58.

1. MOREOVER, brethren, I declare unto you [a] the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; 2. [b] By which also ye are saved, if ye [c] keep in memory a Acts 18. 4. ch. 1. 23, 24. & 2. 2, 15, 7. 1 Thes. 1. 5. 1 Pet. 5. 12 Rom. 5. 2. 2 Cor. 1. 24.

b Ch. 1. 21, 24, 30. Rom. 1. 16.

c Or hold fast. Heb. 4. 14. & 10. 23. Prov. 23. 26. Col. 1. 23. ch. 11. 12.

* what I preached unto you, [d] unless ye have believed in vain. 3. For [e] I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, [f] how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; 4. [g] And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures: 5. [h] And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: 6. After that he was seen [i] of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep. 7. After that he was seen of James; [k] then of all the apostles. 8. [l] And last of all he was seen of me also, as of † one born out of due time. 9. For I am [m] the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, [n] because I persecuted the church of God. 10. But [o] by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but [p] I laboured more abundantly than they all; [q] yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me. 11. Therefore, [r] whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.

* Gr. by what speech.
d 2 Cor. 6. 1. Gal. 3. 4.
e Acts 9. 15. & 26. 16—18. ch. 11. 23. Mat. 28. 20. Ezek. 3. 17.
f Gen. 3. 15. Lev. i—vi, xvi. Exod. xii. Num. xv, xxviii, xxix. Ps. xxii, lxix. Is. liii. Dan. 9. 24—26. Zech. 13. 7. Luke 24. 25—27, 44. Acts 26. 22. Mat. xxvi—xxviii. Luke xxii—xxiv. John xviii—xxi. 1 Pet. 1. 11. & 2. 24. & 3. 18.
g Ps. 16. 10, 11. Is. 53. 9. Hos. 6. 2. Jon. 1. 17. Mat. 12. 14. Luke 24. 26. Acts 2. 25. & 13. 33, 36. & 26. 22. Rom. 1. 4. & 4. 24. 1 Pet. 1. 11.
h Luke 24. 34. Mark 16. 14. John 20. 19—28.
i Mat. 26. 32. & 28. 10.
k Mat. 28. 16. Luke 24. 50. Acts 1. 4, 12.
l Acts 6. 3—5, 17. & 18. 9. & 22. 14. & 23. 11. & 26. 16. ch. 9. 1. 2 Cor. 12. 1—6.
† Or an abortive.
m Eph. 3. 8. 2 Cor. 11. 5. ver. 10. see Rom. 1. 1.
n Acts 8. 4. & 9. 1. 1 Tim. 1. 13. Gal. 1. 13, 23. Acts 22. 4, 5. & 26. 9—11.
o Eph. 2. 7, 8. & 3. 7, 8. Rom 1. 5. 1 Tim. 1. 13, 16.
p Acts 20. 19, 20. Rom. 15. 19. 2 Cor. 11. 23. & 12. 11. 2 Tim. 4. 7.
q Ps. 115. 1. Mat. 10. 20. 2 Cor. 3. 5. Phil. 2. 13. & 4. 13. 1 Tim. 1. 12.
r Ver. 3, 4. ch. 2. 2.

Verses 1—11. The resurrection of the dead being a chief article of the Christian faith, the apostle here asserts and establishes the doctrine in opposition to some false teachers who had attempted to undermine and overturn this glorious truth, 2 Tim. ii. 17, 18.

1. He reminds them of that gospel which he had formerly preached unto them, which they had received from his lips, and in the faith of which they had hitherto persevered. By which also, he adds, ye are saved with an everlasting salvation, if ye keep in memory, or hold fast, what I preached unto you, as ye certainly will, unless ye have believed in vain, taking up with mere notions, and resting in outward profession, without having ever really the root of the matter in you. For I delivered unto you first of all, or among the most capital points of the Christian faith, and as the foundation on which all our hopes in time and eternity are built, that which I also received by immediate revelation, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, which had foretold his substitution and sufferings in the sinner's stead; and that he was buried: having truly tasted of death, he was laid in the grave; and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures, being delivered for our offences, he was raised again for our justification; and in his resurrection we have the earnest of our own sin, which was the cause of death, being by him done away. And of the fact of his being risen we have the most authentic evidence, as I have told you that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve, which name they bore, though their original number, by the apostasy of Judas and the absence of Thomas was not complete. After that he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep in Jesus. After that he was seen of James, the brother or near kinsman of the Lord; then of all the apostles; all of whom were ready to seal their testimony with their blood; men, who could not be deceived themselves, nor could be under the least temptation of deceiving others, when they expected nothing but suffering and death in every tremendous shape for their fidelity. And last of all he was seen of me also, that I might be an eye-witness of his resurrection, when called in so miraculous a way to the office and honour of an apostle. Hereupon,

2. He makes a beautiful digression, with the deepest humility, acknowledging his own unworthiness, and Christ's rich grace in calling and qualifying him for the work of apostleship. He was seen of me as of one born out of due time; despicable as an abortive fœtus, and brought forth with violent pangs; for I am the least of the apostles, utterly unworthy of the high honour, and last called to it; that am not meet to be called an apostle, but deserved to have an eternal brand of infamy stamped upon me, because I persecuted the church of God. But by the grace of God, his amazingly rich and boundless grace, a happy alteration is wrought in me, and, I am what I am, have obtained mercy, and been called not only to the faith of the gospel, but to the dignity of an apostle; and his grace which was bestowed upon me, was not in vain, but wrought most effectually, so that under the influence of it I laboured more abundantly than they all, undergoing greater hardships, exposed to greater dangers, and with the most unwearied diligence, spreading the gospel through the world. Yet not I, though constrained to vindicate my character, I impute nothing to myself, but to the grace of God which was with me, enabling me for his work, and crowning it with success. Therefore, whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed: all of us bore the same testimony to a crucified and risen Redeemer, and you professed to make him your whole dependence for pardon, grace, life, and salvation. Note, (1.) A gracious soul remembers with deep humility those sad days when he lived in rebellion against God. (2.) Whatever we are or do, to the grace of God alone we are indebted for it, and he must have the glory. (3.) All true ministers of Jesus bring one message, determined to know nothing but Christ, and him crucified, glorified, for he is all, and in all.

12. Now, if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you [s] that there is no resurrection of the dead? 13. But [t] if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen. 14. And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. 15. Yea, and we are found [u] false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. 16. [x] For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: 17. And [y] if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. 18. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. 19. [z] If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.

s Acts 23. 8. & 17. 18, 32. 2 Tim. 2. 17.
t John 11. 25. & 14. 19. Rom. 4. 24, 25. & 8. 11. 2 Cor. 4. 14. 1 Thes. 4. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 3. u Job 13. 7. Acts 1. 22. & 2. 24, 32. & 4. 10, 33. & 10. 39—42. & 13. 30—33. & 20. 21.
x See ver. 13, 14.
y Ver. 14. Acts 5. 31. & 13. 38, 39. Rom. 4. 24, 25. & 5. 10. & 8. 33, 34. 1 Pet. 1. 3, 21.
z 2 Thes. 4. 14. Rev. 14. 13. with 2 Tim. 3. 12.

Verses 12—19. Having proved the certainty of Christ's resurrection, he proceeds to show the certainty of ours; refuting the opinion of those heretical teachers, who suggested that it was impossible, or that Christ did not rise in a public capacity, as the head and first-fruits of his redeemed people. Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? which if it were true, then the following absurdities must be admitted.

1. If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen, notwithstanding all the prophecies, and the undoubted testimony of so many unexceptionable witnesses.

2. If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain; useless and unprofitable, the resurrection of Jesus being the grand truth on which the whole gospel depends; and your faith is also vain; the doctrine on which it is built would have no solid foundation, and the hopes you derive from thence must disappoint and deceive you. Yea, and on this supposition, we are found false witnesses of God, and must have made use of his sacred name to support a most impious falsehood; because we have testified of God, professing to act by his authority, and under his commission, that he raised up Christ to a glorious and immortal life, in token of his acceptance of his undertaking, as the reward of his sufferings, and as the head of his redeemed people, who should follow him into his kingdom: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not: for it is evident, if the dead rise not, then is not Christ, who was once numbered among the dead, raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain, and all the hopes arising from him are delusive; ye are yet in your sins, under the guilt and condemnation of them; for as there is no atonement for sin, but that which he offered, and on his resurrection the acceptance of his sacrifice depended, if he had continued in the grave, and seen corruption, we must have sunk into despair, and concluded his oblation unsatisfactory: nor could we have expected, that he who remained himself the prisoner of death, should ever be able to deliver us from the power of it.

3. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished, this being the necessary consequence of the above horrid supposition: for if Christ be not risen, their hope in him is vain; and then, though they died martyrs for his cause, they have departed with a lie in their right hand, and are lost for ever, than which thought nothing can be more shocking or discouraging to surviving Christians.

4. If this were the case, that in this life only we have hope in Christ, and after death have nothing to look for, we, who are Christians by profession, and especially the ministers of Christ, who stand most exposed to persecution and all kinds of suffering for his sake, are of all men the most miserable; foregoing all the comforts and advantages of this life, and wading through a sea of difficulties and trials: and how absurd would this be, if after death, we had no respect to the recompense of reward, and expected not a joyful resurrection? and who would ever seek to be crucified unto the world, and the world unto him, if he looked no farther than the grave, and hoped for nothing in eternity?

20. [a] But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept. 21. [b] For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. 22. [c] For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. 23. But [d] every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. 24. Then cometh the end, when he shall [e] have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule, and all authority and power. 25. [f] For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. 26. [g] The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. 27. For he [h] hath put all things under his feet. But when he saith, all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which did put all things under him. 28. [i] And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all. 29. Else what shall they do which are [k] baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead? 30. [l] And why stand we in jeopardy every hour? 31. I protest [m] by ‡ your rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, [n] I die daily. 32. If ‖ after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? [o] let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die. 33. [p] Be not deceived: [q] evil communications corrupt good manners. 34. [r] Awake to righteousness, and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God: [s] I speak this to your shame.

a Ver. 3—8. Acts 26. 23. Rom. 8. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 3. Col. 1. 14. Rev. 1. 5. John 14. 19. & 11. 25. ver. 23, 25, 26, 45, 49.
b Rom. 5. 12, 15—21. & 6. 23.
c Gen. 2. 17. & 3. 6, 19. Rom. 5. 12—21. & 6. 23. John 6. 39, 40, 54. & 11. 25.
d Acts 26. 23. Rev. 1. 5. Is. 26. 19. John 14. 19. & 11. 25. 1 Thes. 4. 15—17. ver. 45, 49.
e 2 Cor. 4. 14. Eph. 5. 27. John 17. 2. Mat. 11. 27. & 28. 18. John 3. 35. & 13. 3. Heb. 2. 8. Ps. 2. 6. Dan. 7. 14. Is. 9. 7. 1 Tim. 6. 16.
f Ps. 110. 1. Eph. 1. 22. Acts 2. 34. Heb. 10. 13. & 1. 13.
g Hos. 13. 14. Is. 25. 8. Luke 20. 36. Rev. 20. 14. & 21. 4. Heb. 2. 14.
h Ps. 8. 6, 7. & 110 2. Mat. 11. 27. & 28. 18. Eph. 1. 22. Phil. 2. 9—11. Heb. 1. 13. & 2. 8. & 10. 13. 1 Pet. 3. 22.
i Phil. 3. 21. Mat. 13. 41, 43. ch. 3. 23. & 11. 3. Eph. 1. 10. Is. 49. 3. John 14. 28. k Ver. 32. Mat. 20. 22. Luke 12. 50. or Rom. 6. 3—5.
l Rom. 8. 36. 2 Cor 11. 26. Gal. 5. 11, 13.
m 1 Thes. 2. 19. 2 Cor. 1. 12. & 2. 14.
‡ Some read our.
n Rom. 8. 36. Acts 20. 23. ch. 4. 9—13. 2 Cor. 4. 8—12. & 1. 8, 9. & 11. 23—27. Gal. 6. 17. Col. 1. 24. 1 Thes. 2. 2. Acts 19. 30, 31. 2 Tim. 3. 11.
‖ Or to speak after the manner of men.
o Is. 22. 13. & 56. 12. Eccl. 11. 9. p Ch. 6. 9. Gal. 6. 7.
q Ps. 1. 1. Prov. 9. 6. & 13. 20. Gal. 5. 9. & 1. 6. ch. 5. 6. 2 Tim. 2. 17.
r Rom. 13. 11. Eph. 5. 14. Mat. 22. 29. Hos. 4. 6. s Ch. 6. 5. Heb. 5. 11, 12.

Verses 20—34. The certainty of Christ's resurrection being proved, and the glaring absurdities demonstrated which must follow from a contrary supposition, the apostle passes on to the blessed effects of Christ's resurrection, as ensuring ours, which he proves,

1. Because Christ is risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept, and shall sleep in him. He is first begotten from the dead, and the first-born of many brethren, whom he shall bring unto glory; and his resurrection is the pledge and earnest that all his redeemed shall live with him for ever. God in raising him up hath given them assurance, that they shall be blessed and gathered in with him in their season: For since, or because, by one man came death which followed on the first sin, by man came also the resurrection of the dead, by the second man, the Lord from heaven. For as in Adam, our common parent and covenant-head, all die, involved in his guilt, and exposed to death, spiritual, temporal, and eternal; so in Christ, the other covenant-head of his redeemed, shall all those whose sins he bore in his own body on the tree, be made alive; by virtue of their union with him, raised to a life of grace here, and to a life of glory hereafter. But every man in his own order, (ἰδίῳ τάγματι) Christ and his members shall, each in their time, rank, and order, rise in glory. Christ the first-fruits, who consecrates the harvest, and is the pledge of our resurrection; afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming, his peculiar people, whose eternal redemption he hath completed.

2. The apostle proves we must rise, because death is among those enemies which the exalted Mediator shall destroy. Then cometh the end of the world, and of all the sorrows of the faithful, when, having gathered in all his redeemed, and not one of them being wanting, he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, that mediatorial kingdom, the peculiar administration of which hath been entrusted to him as the Son of man: when he shall have put down all rule, and all authority and power; abolishing every form of civil and ecclesiastical government, and subduing every enemy, human or diabolical, that tyrannized over his people; for he must reign, as Mediator, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death, when the dead bodies of his people shall be raised to immortal life, no more to see corruption. For he, even God the Father, hath put all things under his feet, and appointed him to be head over all things to his church. But when he saith all things are put under him, it is manifest that this refers only to all created beings, and that he is excepted which did put all things under him; for God himself can be subject to none. And when all things shall be subdued unto him, and the ends of his mediatorial kingdom answered in the complete salvation of his people, both in body and soul, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him; he will then resign the peculiar administration committed to him, surrendering himself as the head of his church, and the members of his body mystical, into his Father's hands, to receive those eternal rewards which are due to him in virtue of his finished work; that God may be all in all: and henceforth the delegated power and authority of Jesus, as Mediator, shall cease, and the one glorious God, the Father, Son, and the Holy Ghost, shall be the immediate fountain of dominion and blessedness to the church triumphant for ever.

3. He argues the certainty of the resurrection from the very baptism of Christians. Else what shall they do which are baptized? if there be no resurrection, how absurd and strange would it be to take up the Christian profession, when, if they had nothing in prospect after death, and here stood exposed to every misery, and the danger of daily martyrdom, they would seem merely baptized for the dead, and to be of all men most miserable, if the dead rise not at all. Why are they then baptized for the dead? who, with such a prospect, would ever be prevailed on to embrace Christianity? And why stand we in jeopardy every hour, and ready to seal our testimony with our blood, if we had not the glorious hope of a better resurrection? I protest by your rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus, by all the comforts of Christianity, and as surely as that Spirit lives who is the author of them, I die daily, living continually in the nearest views and expectations of martyrdom. If, after the manner of men, I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, encountering men brutish and savage in their tempers, and have exposed myself to conflicts as dangerous as those which the condemned criminals sustain, when obliged to encounter wild beasts in the public theatres; what advantageth it me, what benefit could I reap from such perilous adventures, or what could ever induce me thus to hazard my life, if the dead rise not? Surely if this was the case, that nothing was to be hoped for after the grave, it would be our wisdom rather to adopt the principles of Epicurus, than of Christianity, and to say, Let us eat and drink, for to morrow we die, and rather enjoy present pleasure, than suffer needless pain, if there were no hereafter, and death put an end to us for ever. Note, (1.) Nothing but the prospects of eternity can possibly engage any to the practice of Christianity. Till we have realized views by faith of the things not seen, it is impossible we should truly take up the cross. (2.) One great support in suffering, is a respect to the recompense of the reward.

4. The apostle closes with a solemn caution. Be not deceived by those false teachers who endeavour to sap the foundation of your hopes: Evil communications corrupt good manners: the bad principles of these seducers could not but produce immoral practices; and to be connected and intimate with such men was dangerously infectious. Note, Bad company should be shunned as the plague. Awake, then to righteousness; be on your guard, and see that ye walk as becomes your holy profession; for I perceive by these dangerous doctrines which are broached among you, that some of you have not the knowledge of God, and of his mind and will, as revealed in his gospel. I speak this to your shame, that men of such bad principles and corrupt conversation should be among you, permitted as teachers, or suffered to communicate with the church as members. Note, We are blameable not only for the evils we commit ourselves, but for those which we connive at in others.

35. But some man will say, [t] How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come? 36. [u] Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die. 37. And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain,* it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain: 38. [x] But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him; and to every seed his own body. 39. [y] All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds. 40. There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. 41. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory. 42. [z] So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: 43. It is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: 44. It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. 45. And so it is written, [a] The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit. 46. Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural: and afterward that which is spiritual. 47. [b] The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven. 48. [c] As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly. 49. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

[t] John 3. 4. Ezek. 37. 3. Mat. 22. 29.
[u] Luke 24. 25. John 12. 24. The apostle gave the false teacher at Corinth the appellation of fool, in the same sense, and for the same reason, that our Lord himself called the Pharisees fools, (Mat. 22. 18.) namely, on account of their ignorance and wickedness.—Macknight.
* In the opinion of some, the example of the grain, which first dies and then revives, is mentioned to insinuate that in the human body there is a seminal principle which is not destroyed by death; and which, at the appointed season, will reproduce the body in a more excellent form than before, through the quickening influence of his power. But, is a seminal principle any thing different from that power? What occasion then have we to carry our thoughts in this matter beyond God's power? Besides, as there is no inextinguishable principle in plants, the analogy doth not hold.—Macknight.
[x] Ch. 3. 7. Ps. 104. 14.
[y] Gen. 1. 16—26.
[z] Dan. 12. 3. Mat. 13. 43. Col. 3. 3, 4. ver. 50—54. Phil. 3. 20, 21. Luke 20. 36.
[a] Gen. 3. 6. Rom. 5. 12—14. Acts 3. 15. 2 Cor. 3. 17. John 6. 33—57. & 10. 10, 28. & 14. 6. & 11. 25. Rom. 8. 10, 11. 2 Cor. 4. 10. Phil. 3. 10, 11.
[b] Gen. 2. 7. & 3. 19. with John 3. 13, 31. Eph. 4. 9.
[c] John 3. 6. ver. 21, 22. Gen. 5. 3. Rom. 5. 12—21. Phil. 3. 21. 1 John 3. 2. Mat. 13. 43. Rom. 8. 29. 2 Cor. 3. 18. & 4. 10, 11.

Verses 35—49. Two plausible objections against the resurrection are here suggested. (1.) How are the dead raised up? or what power is sufficient for such a work, to recover the scattered atoms? and, (2.) With what body do they come? with the same identical particles, or in some other shape and form? In answer to the objector, the apostle replies, Thou fool. Probably the persons who opposed the doctrine of the resurrection pretended to high attainments in science, and to reason as philosophers; but they proved their ignorance, rather than their wisdom, and erred, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God.

1. That which thou sowest is not quickened except it die. The same power therefore that every year raises from under the clod, where the seed was sown and corrupted, a plenteous harvest, can raise from the grave the body which hath returned to its dust again; and it would be as absurd to object against the possibility of the one as the other.

2. As to the manner of the resurrection, and with what body we shall come from the grave, to continue the similitude, I answer, That which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, without any of that rich clothing which afterward it produces, the blade, the ear, and then the full corn in the ear; it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain, that dies and revives again: but God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him and to every seed his own body; so ordering it in infinite wisdom, that every seed produces its own species. In quality, indeed, the resurrection-body will differ from the present, though in identity of person the same. Nor is this strange, when we see out of the same materials, that bodies of very different qualities are formed. All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes and another of birds; the substance is originally the same, though by divine power wonderfully diversified in quality. There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial; but though all formed of the first created matter, they greatly differ in excellence; the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another: such difference will there be between the present and the resurrection-body, as between a clod and a star. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory, is of greater magnitude, and shines with greater splendour; so also is the resurrection of the dead: we are raised by the same divine power as the corn vegetates; and that Almighty hand which modifies the same matter in the different bodies around us, can make the like glorious difference between our present and our resurrection-body, though the manner how may be to us inconceivable. It is sown in corruption, from the day of its generation till it is putrefied in the dust; it is raised in incorruption, incapable of putrefaction or dissolution. It is sown in dishonour, in life full of defilement, covered with shame, in death loathsome and most contemptible; it is raised in glory, like unto Christ's glorious body, shining as the stars for ever and ever. It is sown in weakness, is at present liable to a thousand infirmities, pain, weariness, sickness, accidents, and death, and in the grave must be a prey for worms; it is raised in power, vigorous and active, fit to join the immortal soul, and without weariness to serve God in his temple day and night without ceasing for ever. It is sown a natural body, that needs the constant support of meat, and drink, and sleep, like the beasts that perish: it is raised a spiritual body, requiring none of these animal refreshments, and will be like the angels. There is a natural body, such as we now possess; and there is a spiritual body, suited to the celestial world, which is the inheritance of the saints. And so it is written, The first man Adam, from whom we derive our present body, was made a living soul, was endued with animal life, and required all those supports which we do: the last Adam, the Lord Jesus, our second covenant-head and representative, was made a quickening spirit, possessing life in himself, and the fountain of it to his people; having since his resurrection a spiritual body, and by virtue of his power, and our union with him, he shall fashion our bodies like his own. Howbeit, that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual: Adam's animal body was first, Christ's spiritual body afterwards; and such is the order also established for us, first to bear the natural, then to receive the spiritual body. The first man was of the earth, formed from the clay, and by his sin he became earthy, returning to the dust from whence he came. The second man, our better representative, is the Lord from heaven, coming from thence to take our nature upon him, is now returned thither with this nature glorified, and we expect him to come from thence to make us like himself. As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; as Adam's body was, so must ours be, who sprung from him, mortal and corruptible; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly, as many as are born from above, and made partakers of a divine nature shall be conformed in their bodies to the Lord, and shall shortly be glorified together. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, by nature the children of corruption, sprung from a fallen parent, and like him must return to dust, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly, as many as are by faith united to Jesus, and renewed in the spirit of their minds, shall bear shortly his bright image in their bodies as well as souls for ever.

50. Now [d] this I say, brethren, that [e] flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. 51. Behold, I shew [f] you a mystery; [f] We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, 52. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the [g] last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, [h] and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. 53. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. 54. So, when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, [i] Death is swallowed up in victory. 55. O death, where is thy sting? O * grave, where is thy victory? 56. [k] The sting of death is sin; [l] and the strength of sin is the law. 57. [m] But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. 58. [n] Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord: forasmuch as ye know [o] that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

[d] Ch. 1. 12.

[e] Mat. 16. 17. John 1. 13. ch. 6. 15. 2 Cor. 5. 1. Gal. 1. 16. John 3. 5, 6.

[f] A doctrine of Christianity hitherto unknown. What God always purposed to do; but regarding which did not declare his purpose till then. 1 Thes. 4. 14—17. Rev. 14. 13.

[g] Mat. 24. 31. 1 Thes. 4 16. John 5. 29. Ps. 50. 4.

[h] See ver. 42—44, 50. 2 Cor. 5. 2, 4. Phil. 3. 21.

[i] Is. 25. 8. Hos. 13, 14. Heb. 2. 14. Rev. 20. 14.

* Or hell.

[k] Prov. 14. 32. John 8. 21. Ps. 9. 17. Is. 3. 11.

[l] Rom. 4. 15. & 5. 13, 20. & 7. 5, 9, 13. with 7. 4. & 6. 14. & 8. 2.

[m] Rom. 7. 25. Gal. 3. 13. & 4. 4. Tit. 2. 14. Rom. 8. 11. 1 John 5. 5, 11, 12.

[n] 2 Pet. 3. 11—14, 18. & 1. 4—9. 1 Pet. 1. 13. Tit. 2. 11—14. Luke 1. 74, 75. 2 Cor. 7. 1. Col. 1. 23.

[o] 2 Chr. 15. 7. Ps. 19. 11. Is. 3. 10. Gal. 6. 9. Heb. 6. 10. Rev. 22. 12, 14.

Verses 50—58. The apostle here,

1. Gives the reason of the change which he had described. Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood, such as our bodies are at present, cannot inherit the kingdom of God; they are unable to bear the eternal weight of glory, and incapable of tasting the delights, or being employed in the services of that blessed world to which we go. Neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. The body must be refined from its corruptible dross, before it can enter upon or enjoy the incorruptible inheritance.

2. He informs them of a secret unknown to them. Behold I show you a mystery, we shall not all sleep in the dust, but we shall all be changed; on as many of his people as shall be found alive at Christ's last appearing, a change will pass equivalent to death and resurrection, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump, when the voice of Jesus shall awake the dead. For the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed, our bodies undergoing a happy alteration in their qualities, though preserving their identity; for this corruptible body, which we carry about, must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality, that we may be capable of enjoying that celestial happiness for which we are designed.

3. When this awful season comes, then shall death be for ever abolished. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Isa. xxv. 8. Death is swallowed up in victory. And that king of terrors shall be so utterly destroyed, that he shall never more be able to lift his arm against one of the redeemed; and, in the prospect of this glorious day, the faithful soul can even now antedate his eternal triumphs, and exulting, cry, O death! where is thy sting? I defy it. O grave! where is thy victory? I rise immortal, and tread thee beneath my feet for ever.

4. The ground of the believer's triumph is here declared. The sting of death is sin; this arms the monster with all his terrors; and the strength of sin is the law, binding over the transgressor to a future judgment, and not merely denouncing bodily death as the wages of sin, but passing sentence of eternal death, and consigning body and soul to hell. But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. In his adored name we lift up our banners; in his righteousness we make our boast; since he hath died in our stead, he hath led our captivity captive; though we see corruption in the grave, death cannot hold dominion over us; we shall rise glorious and immortal; and, through our dear Redeemer's power and grace, come and reign with him in glory everlasting. Note, (1.) Death is no longer dreadful, when the sting of sin, through the atoning blood, is taken out of the conscience. We shall find in the grave the golden gates of life and immortality, which open into the paradise of God. (2.) That which will be the subject of our everlasting praises, should now be the matter of our songs; and since the victory is actually obtained, we should antedate the triumphs of eternity, and to our Redeemer's honour adore him in the full assurance of the conquest which he hath completed.

5. He closes the whole with a warm exhortation arising from the foregoing discourse. Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, firm and unwavering in the faith and hope of the gospel, especially in the great doctrines of the atoning death, and resurrection of Jesus, with the blessed effects thence flowing of our immortal life and glory; unmoveable by any of the artifices of Satan, the craft of seducers, or the corruptions of your own hearts, founded on the rock which storms assail in vain; always abounding in the work of the Lord, zealously and abidingly engaged in his service, cheerful and willing to undergo any sufferings, in spite of every opposition, increasing with the increase of God; knowing, as the most assured truth, that your labour shall not be in vain in the Lord, but that he, to whom you are by faith united as your living head of vital influence, will strengthen, uphold, and own you in life, in death; and after death, raise up your bodies to immortal life, and bestow the never-fading crown of righteousness and glory upon you, the reward, not indeed of debt, but of grace. Note, (1.) Our practice will bear pace always with the strength of our faith; the more sure and realizing our views of eternal things are, the more vigorously shall we press towards the mark of the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus. (2.) It is the strongest encouragement to labour for the Lord, because we are sure to succeed in his service. (3.) Whatever we do or suffer for Christ, we shall never regret it in a resurrection-day, and shall then only be ashamed that we have loved him no more, and served him no better.

CHAP. XVI.—ANNO DOMINI, 59.

In this chapter the apostle, (1.) Gives directions about some charitable collection to be made, ver. 1—5. (2.) He talks of making them a visit, ver. 6—10. (3.) He recommends Timothy to them, and tells them Apollos intended to come to them, ver. 11—13. (4.) He presses them to watchfulness, constancy, charity, and to pay a due regard to all who helped him, and his fellow-labourers in their work, ver. 14—19. (5.) After salutations from others, and his own, he closes the epistle with a solemn admonition to them, and his good wishes for them, ver. 20. to the end.

1. NOW [a] concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. 2. [b] Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, [c] that there be no gatherings when I come. 3. And [d] when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, them will I send to bring your * liberality [e] unto Jerusalem. 4. [e] [f] And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

[a] Acts 11. 28, 29. & 24. 17. Rom. 12. 13. & 15. 25, 26. ver. 3. 2 Cor. viii, ix. 1 John 3. 17. Gal. 2. 10. Acts 16. 6.
[b] Luke 24. 1. John 20. 19, 26. Acts 20. 7. Rev. 1. 10. Prov. 3. 27, 28. 1 John 3. 17.
[c] 2 Cor. 8. 11. & 9. 1—5.
[d] Ch. 4. 19. & 11. 34. with 2 Cor. 8. 16, 19. Gal. 2. 10.
* Gr. gift.
[e] Acts 11. 29. & 24. 17. Rom. 15. 25, 26.
[f] Acts 24. 17. Rom. 15. 25. Acts 20. 4.

Verses 1—4. The church at Jerusalem having undergone peculiar oppression and sufferings, and many of the saints being reduced to great poverty, the Gentile brethren, at the apostle's instigation, generously contributed for their relief.

Now concerning the collection for the saints in Judea, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Since in wealth the Corinthians exceeded the Galatians, and in spiritual gifts were so eminent, it would be a shame if they came behind in benevolence and charity. Upon the first day of the week, the day held sacred among Christians, and hallowed by their solemn assemblies, let every one of you lay by him in store, contributing to the collection for the poor, as God hath prospered him, each according to their ability; the rich more abundantly, and they who have little cheerfully giving a portion out of that little, that there be no gatherings when I come. And, being thus in readiness, when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, and recommend as faithful men, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem, concurring in your recommendation. And if it be meet, and judged necessary for this benevolent design, that I go also, they shall go with me. Note, (1.) Every Christian is bound, according to his abilities, to minister to the necessities of his brethren. (2.) All our success comes from God's gracious providence, and is gratefully to be acknowledged. (3.) The more we receive from God, the more are we called, as good stewards, to improve it for his glory, and the advantage of our brethren.

5. Now I will come unto you when [g] I shall pass through Macedonia: for I do pass through Macedonia: 6. And it may be that I will abide, yea, and winter with you, that ye may [h] bring me on my journey whithersoever I go. 7. For I will not see you now by the way; [i] but I trust to tarry a while with you, if the Lord permit. 8. But I will tarry at Ephesus until [k] Pentecost. 9. For [l] a great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

[g] Acts 19. 21. 2 Cor. 1. 16.
[h] Acts 15. 3. & 20. 38. & 21. 5. Rom. 15. 24. 2 Cor. 1. 15, 23.
[i] Ch. 4. 19. & 11. 34. Jer. 10. 23. Acts 18. 21. Rom. 1. 10. Jam. 4. 15.
[k] Acts 2. 1. Lev. 23. 15—21. Num. 28. 26. Exod. 23. 16.
[l] 2 Cor. 2. 12. Col. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 7, 8. Acts 14. 27, & 19. 8—23. ch. 15. 32. 2 Cor. 1. 8.

Verses 5—9. The apostle, in his own mind, had planned a visit to Corinth, of which he informs them, though Providence prevented, at this time, the execution of his design.

Now I will come unto you, such is my present intention, if the Lord please, when I shall pass through Macedonia, for I do purpose soon to pass through Macedonia. And it may be that I will abide a considerable time among you, yea and winter with you, that ye may bring me on my journey, whithersoever I go, returning to your former affection, and testifying your wonted respect for me, notwithstanding those prejudices which the false teachers have laboured to instil. For I will not see you now on the way, (εν παροδῳ,) to make a transient visit, which would not answer the end I propose of settling your affairs, establishing you in the truth, and enjoying your company; but I trust to tarry a while with you, if the Lord permit, at whose disposal I am, and by whose providence I desire ever to be directed. But I will tarry at Ephesus (from whence he seems to have written this epistle) until Pentecost, either till the feast was past, or till its approach, when he intended to be at Jerusalem, a great concourse of Jews from all parts assembling there at that season. And the reason for his long stay at Ephesus he gives; for a great door and effectual is opened unto me, a signal blessing hath attended my labours, and great multitudes are by the Spirit converted to the faith of Christ, and, as might be expected, there are many adversaries, both Jews and Gentiles, who, instigated by Satan, oppose with all their might and craft the progress of the gospel, against whom he chose personally to stand up, and boldly to vindicate the glorious cause. Note, (1.) Wherever Christ is preached successfully, there the malice and cunning of earth and hell will be exerted, to stop the rising interest of truth and godliness. (2.) Success in our labours is a great argument and encouragement boldly to persevere. (3.) Faithful ministers, instead of being daunted by outward opposition, have their zeal but the more kindled. What weakens their hands and discourages their hearts, is the unfaithfulness of professors, and the insensibility of their hearts.

10. Now, [m] if Timotheus come, see that he may be with you without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do. 11. [n] Let no man therefore despise him: but conduct him forth in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren.* 12. As touching [o] our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him to come unto you with the brethren: [p] but his will was not at all to come at this time; but he will come when he shall have convenient time.

m Ch. 4. 17. Rom. 16. 21. Phil. 2. 19—23. 1 Thes. 3. 2.

n Tit. 2. 15. 1 Tim. 4. 12.

* Namely, Erastus, who had been sent with Timothy to Corinth, (Acts 19. 22.) and Titus, who carried this letter, and another, whose name is not mentioned. See 2 Cor. 12. 17, 18.

o Acts 18. 24. & 19. 1. ch. 1. 12. & 3. 5. Tit. 3. 13.

p Eccl. 3. 11. ch. 6. 12. & 10. 2. & 14. 26, 40.

Verses 10—12. The apostle here,

1. Recommends Timothy to them, who was now on his journey to Corinth. If Timotheus come, see that he may be with you without fear of any insult from any of the factious leaders: regard him with affection, treat him with respect, and hear him with attention: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do, zealous for the cause of the same Divine Master, and tried and found faithful. Let no man therefore despise him because of his youth, slight his reproofs, or think lightly of his ministry, but conduct him forth in peace; give him a proof of your affection and esteem, by providing him with necessaries for his journey, and bringing him on his way, that he may come unto me; for I look for him with the brethren, either I and the brethren here expect him, or I desire his return with the brethren who may accompany him thither. Note, Young ministers should be encouraged, not despised; and their ministrations, though without the sanction of grey hairs, yet, seconded with the weight of zeal and piety, deserve the most serious attention.

2. He informs them that Apollos declined a visit to them at present, though he had earnestly pressed him thereto. As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him to come unto you with the brethren, but his will was not at all to come at this time; but he will come when he shall have convenient time. Though a party at Corinth had affected to set up Apollos in preference to Paul, the apostle entertained no jealousy of his brother labourer, assured that he never would encourage but discountenance such a spirit of division. The faithful ministers of Christ will not harbour mean distrusts of each other; no, not though those who love to sow discord among brethren, endeavour to instil base suspicions. On the other hand, Apollos, probably out of respect to his honoured brother Paul, declined at that time the visit, lest, in the present ill disposition of the Corinthians, it might be abused by those who wanted to make him the head of a party. Though when the present feuds were subsided, he meant to go thither, and labour among them. Such a spirit of love should ministers cultivate, jealous for each other's reputation as their own, and frowning on every flatterer that would attempt to raise their credit at the expense of their brother.

13. [q] Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. 14. [r] Let all your things be done with charity. 15. I beseech you, brethren, (ye know the house of Stephanas, that [s] it is the first-fruits of Achaia, and that they have addicted themselves to [t] the ministry of the saints,) 16. [u] That ye submit yourselves unto such, and to every one that helpeth with us, and laboureth. 17. I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: [x] for that which was lacking on your part they have supplied. 18. For [y] they have refreshed my spirit and yours: therefore [z] acknowledge ye them that are such.

q Mat. 24. 42. & 25. 13. & 26. 41. 1 Pet. 5. 8. Rev. 16. 15. & 3. 2. 1 Thes. 5. 6. & 3. 8. 2 Thes. 2. 15. Acts 20. 31. ch. 1. 5. & 11. 2. & 15. 1 58. 2 Cor. 1. 24. Gal. 5. 1. Eph. 6. 10, 14. Phil. 1. 27. & 4. 1, 13. Col. 1. 10, 11. & 4. 2, 12. 2 Tim. 2. 1.

r Ch. 8. 1. & 12. 31. & 14. 1. & 13. 4—7, 13. Gal. 5. 6. 1 Tim. 1. 5. Rom. 13. 8—10. Mat. 22. 37—39.

s Ch. 1. 16. Rom. 16. 5. Rev. 14. 4.

t Acts 6. 3, 5 Rom. 15. 31. 2 Cor. 8. 4. & 9. 1. Heb. 6. 10.

u Phil. 2. 29. 1 Thes. 5. 12. 1 Tim. 5. 17. Heb. 13. 17. ch. 4. 8, 12. & 9. 7.

x 2 Cor. 11. 9. Phil. 2. 30. Col. 4. 18. Philem. 13. 13. 2 Cor. 7. 6, 13.

y Rom. 15. 32. 2 Tim. 1. 16. Prov. 25. z 1 Thes. 5. 12.

Verses 13—18. The apostle proceeds,

1. To some general exhortations. Watch ye against every enemy of your souls, especially those who would seduce you from the doctrines of truth; stand fast in the faith grounded and settled in the hope of the gospel, so as never to be moved from your holy profession; quit you like men, with wisdom, zeal, and fidelity, in the midst of the opposition of enemies, and the snares of deceivers; be strong in the grace which is in Jesus Christ, exercising yourselves unto godliness, and fighting manfully under the Lord's banners, against every enemy within and without. And whilst you thus show yourselves courageous for the truth, let all your things be done in charity, and let a spirit of meekness temper all your zeal. Note, (1.) A Christian is compassed with enemies; he need be ever on his guard. (2.) When we are firmly established in the principles of the gospel, no danger or sufferings will deter us from the path of duty. (3.) Charity is the great ornament of our profession; to bear with the perverseness of mistaken friends, and meekly to sustain the attacks of avowed enemies, is to be like our Master.

2. He commends to their particular regard the house of Stephanas. I beseech you, brethren, (ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is the first-fruits of Achaia, converted by my ministry, and whom I baptized myself, and that they have addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints, laying themselves out in the Lord's immediate service, and zealously employed in assisting his people to their utmost, both in their temporal and spiritual concerns,) I beseech you, brethren, that ye submit yourselves to such, directed by them, imitating their examples, and not led away by upstart teachers; and that ye in like manner reverence, regard, and attend to, every one that helpeth with us and laboureth to promote the interests of the same Divine Master, and the edification of your souls.

3. He testifies his satisfaction in the good account he had lately heard concerning them. I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for that which was lacking on your part they have supplied; giving the apostle a more clear statement of the matter than was conveyed in the letter they brought, and explaining things much to his satisfaction, which reports had greatly exaggerated. Note, It is a great joy to every minister and Christian's heart to hear unfavourable reports of their brethren contradicted by those who are best acquainted with their circumstances.

4. He enjoins them to respect those faithful men at their return. For they have refreshed my spirit by their conversation, and the accounts they have given; and this cannot but afford a like satisfaction to yours; therefore acknowledge ye them that are such, and show them that respect and regard which their kind, candid, and charitable construction of your conduct merits at your hands. Note, Good offices done us demand a grateful return.

19. [a] The churches of Asia salute you. [b] Aquila and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with [c] the church that is in their house. 20. [d] All the brethren greet you. [e] Greet ye one another with an holy kiss. 21. The salutation of me Paul [f] with mine own hand. 22. [g] If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maran-atha. 23. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. 24. [i] My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

a Rev. 1. 4, 11. with Acts 16. 6. & 19. 10.
b Acts 18. 2, 18, 26. Rom. 16. 3. 2 Tim. 4. 19. c Rom. 16. 5, 23. Col. 4. 15. Phil. 2. d Heb. 13. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 17.
e Rom. 16. 16. 2 Cor. 13. 12. 1 Thes. 5. 26. 1 Pet. 5. 14. f Rom. 16. 22. Col. 4. 18. 2 Thes. 3. 17, 18. Gal. 6. 11.
g Gal. 1. 8, 9, & 6. 14. 1 John 4. 8—10, 19. Heb. 10. 26—29, 4—8.
h Rom. 16. 20, 24. 2 Cor. 13. 14. Gal. 6. 18. Eph. 6. 23, 24. Phil. 4. 23. Col. 4. 18. 1 Thes. 5, 28. 2 Thes. 3. 18. Heb. 13. 25. 1 Pet. 5. 14. Rev. 1. 4, 5. & 22. 21.
i Ch. 4. 15. 2 Cor. 12. 15. Phil. 1. 8. 2 Thes. 2. 8.

Verses 19—24. St Paul closes his epistle,

1. With affectionate salutations. All the churches of Asia salute you, cordially wishing you every blessing of the everlasting gospel. Aquila and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their house, even all the members of that amicable family which compose a little church among themselves; and such a family is happy indeed. All the brethren salute you, with warm affection. Greet ye one another with a holy kiss. The salutation of me Paul with mine own hand. And thus he signs what his amanuensis wrote from his lips, as genuine and authentic.

2. He subjoins a solemn warning. If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, be his eminence of station ever so great, his gifts ever so extraordinary, his profession ever so glaring, if his heart be unsound, his principles erroneous, and his practice dishonourable to the gospel, fomenting divisions, puffed up with pride, and at bottom an apostate, let him be Anathema Maran-atha, excommunicated from the body of the faithful, and consigned over to that fearful judgment, which the righteous Lord, in the day of his appearing and glory, will inflict on such impenitent offenders. Note (1.) It is not enough to be Christians in word and tongue; do we love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity? that is the question. (2.) None sink under heavier vengeance than those who have been false and faithless to their holy profession.

3. He concludes with his usual benediction and prayer. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you, and therein is comprehended every blessing in time and in eternity. My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Sharply as I have been constrained to rebuke you, in him I love you affectionately, and every thing I have said flows from the most unfeigned desire to promote your present and eternal happiness. Amen! May this be the happy issue. Believe my kind intentions and regard; join with me in my prayers, and then the issue shall be peace.

A PRACTICAL COMMENT

UPON THE

SECOND EPISTLE OF ST PAUL

TO THE CORINTHIANS.

Introduction.

IN his former epistle the apostle had signified his intention of coming to Corinth as he passed through Macedonia, chap. xvi. 6. but being providentially hindered for some time, he writeth this second epistle to them about a year after the former; and there seem to be these two great urgent occasions: 1. The case of the incestuous person that lay under censure, required that with all speed he should be restored and received again into communion. This therefore he giveth directions about, chap. ii. and afterwards, chap. vii. he declareth the satisfaction he had upon the intelligence he received of their good behaviour in that affair. 2. There was a contribution now making for the poor saints at Jerusalem, which he exhorteth the Corinthians to join in chap. viii. and ix.

There are divers other things very observable in this epistle, e. g. (1.) The account the apostle giveth of his labours and success in preaching the gospel in several places, chap. ii. (2.) The comparison he maketh between the Old and New Testament dispensations, chap. iii. (3.) The manifold sufferings that he and his fellow-labourers met with, and the motives and encouragements for their diligence and patience, chap. iv, v. (4.) The caution he gives the Corinthians against mingling themselves with unbelievers, chap. vi. (5.) The way and manner in which he justifieth himself and his apostleship from the opprobrious insinuations and accusations of false teachers that endeavoured to ruin his reputation at Corinth, chap. x, xi, xii. and throughout the whole epistle.

CHAP. I.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

After the introduction, ver. 1, 2. the apostle begins with the narrative of his troubles and God's goodness which he had met with in Asia by way of thanksgiving to God, ver. 3—6. and for the edification of the Corinthians, ver. 7—11. Then he attests his and his fellow-labourers' integrity, ver. 12, 13, 14. and afterwards vindicateth himself from the imputation of levity and inconstancy, ver. 15—24.

1. [a] PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and [b] Timothy our brother, unto [c] the church of God which is at Corinth, with [d] all the saints which are in all Achaia: 2. [e] Grace be to you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. 3. [f] Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, [g] the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; 4. [h] Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God. 5. For [i] as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ. 6. [k] And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which * is effectual in the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation.

a See 1 Cor. 1. 1. Rom. 1. 1, 5. Gal. 1. 1. 15. Phil. 1. 1. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 2. b Acts 16. 1—3. & 17. 14. & 18. 5. & 20. 4. Heb. 13. 23. 1 Cor. 16. 10, 11. & 2 Tim. 1, 2. c Acts xviii. 1 Cor. i—xvi.
d 2 Cor. 1. 2. & 6. 11. Eph. 1. 1. Phil. 1. 1. Col. 1. 2. Heb. 3. 1.
e Rom. 1. 7. 1 Cor. 1. 3. Gal. 1. 2. Eph. 1. 2. Phil. 1. 2. Col. 1. 2. 1 Thes. 1. 1. 2 Thes. 1. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Jude 2. 1 Tim. 1. 2. 2 Tim. 1. 2 f Eph. 1. 3. 1 Pet. 1. 3. ch. 11. 31. Rom. 15. 6. Col. 1. 15. Heb. 1. 3. John 20. 17. Ps. 40. 8.
g Exod. 34. 6. Ps. 86. 5, 15. Mic. 7. 18.
h Rom. 15. 5. 2 Thes. 2. 16. Is. 51. 3, 12.
i Acts 9. 4. Col. 1. 24. ch. 4. 9, 10. & 11. 3. Ps. 34. 19, 20. & 94. 18, 19. k Ver. 4. ch. 4. 15, 17, 18. Rom. 8. 18, 28. 2 Tim. 2. 10—12. & 1. 8.

* Or is wrought.

Verses 1—6. The apostle opens the epistle,

1. With his usual address and salutation. Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, eminently called to this high office, and Timothy our brother, who joins me in heartiest affection towards you; unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints which are in all Achaia, who in profession and practice appear to be separated from the world as the Lord's people: Grace be to you and peace, with all their happy fruits, from God the Father, the author of all our blessings, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the meritorious cause of them.

2. He blesseth God for the signal mercies he had experienced. Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and who in and through him, as the divine Mediator, is now become to us the father of mercies, and the God of all comfort, multiplying his pardons, showering down his benefits, and giving us spiritual, temporal, and eternal consolation through this Son of his love, who comforteth us in all our tribulations, by his word and Spirit bringing home the great and precious promises with power to our souls, and shedding abroad his love in our hearts, that from experience of the riches of his goodness, we may be able to comfort them that are in trouble, whether of soul or body, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God, tenderly sympathizing with them, and suggesting those encouraging words of Scripture, which, in distress, we have found reviving to our own souls. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, to whom we are thus conformed, and who is still afflicted in all the affliction of his members, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ, who fails not to minister supports and comforts proportionable to our sufferings. And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, it is designed for your advantage, that by our examples of patience, fortitude, and perseverance, you may be encouraged to bear up under every trial, and boldly stand fast, till your salvation is completed; which is effectual, and greatly promoted by such exercises of faith and patience, in the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer; or whether we be comforted, by divine supports under our afflictions, or by seasonable deliverances from them, it is also ordered for your consolation and salvation. Note, (1.) All our mercies from God call for perpetual, grateful, acknowledgments. (2.) They who have been exercised with trials in their own souls and bodies, will be the most able comforters to others under the like troubles. We speak best when we speak from experience. (3.) Though our afflictions may be at present grievous, the time will come when we shall see peculiar reason to bless God for them, and know that they have been especially conducive to our eternal salvation. (4.) All our comforts flow from God in Christ, as reconciled to us in a covenant of everlasting love.

7. And our hope of you is stedfast, [l] knowing, that, as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation. 8. For we would not, [m] brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure, above † strength, insomuch that we despaired [n] even of life: 9. But we had the † sentence of death in ourselves, that [o] we should not trust in ourselves, but in God which raiseth the dead: 10. Who delivered us from so great a death, and l Rom. 5. 3, 4. & 8. 17, 18. 2 Thes. 2. 13. & 3. 3. 2 Tim. 2. 12. Heb. 6. 9, 10. m Acts 19. 23, &c 1 Cor. 4. 9—11. & 15. 32. & 16. 9. ch. 4. 7—12, 16. & 11. 23—27. 2 Tim. 3. 11. Acts 14. 19.

† Or answer.

n Ch. 4. 7. Jer. 17. 5, 7. Rom. 4. 17—20.
o Job 5. 17—23. Ps. 34. 19, 20. Is. 41. 10—16. & 46. 3, 4. 1 Cor. 15. 31, 32. Ch. 11. 31. 1 Sam. 17 37. 2 Tim. 4. 17.

doth deliver: in whom we trust that he p Rom. 15. 30. ch. 4. 15. Phil. 1. 19. Philem. 22. Is. 45. 11. Jam. 5. 16. Phil 4. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 7. Acts 12. 5. will yet deliver us; 11. [p] Ye also helping together by prayer for us, that for the gift bestowed upon us by the means of many persons thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

Verses 7—11. St Paul,

1. Expresses his confidence in them. And our hope of you is stedfast, that ye will never be discouraged by any tribulations which you see us endure, or are called to bear yourselves; knowing, that as ye are partakers of the sufferings with us, so shall ye be also of the consolation, rejoicing with us here in the experience of God's love, and shortly to arrive where sorrow shall be for ever banished, and our joys will be perfected.

2. He informs them what a fight of afflictions they had undergone, For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, (see Acts xiv, xvi, xix.) that we were pressed out of measure, above strength, loaded with burdens more than our natural strength could sustain; so that we despaired even of life, not knowing which way to escape, and our case to all appearance desperate. But we had the sentence of death in ourselves, and concluded we must be destroyed; the Lord in his providence suffering us to be brought to these extremities, that we should not trust in ourselves, feeling by experience our own utter insufficiency to help ourselves, but in God who raiseth the dead, whose wisdom, power, and grace, alone could extricate us from our troubles, and save us from the jaws of death. Note, The Lord suffers his people often to be reduced, as it were, to the last gasp, that he may convince them more deeply of their own helplessness, and magnify his grace and power more signally in their deliverance.

3. He gratefully acknowledges the divine interposition. Who delivered us from so great a death, when to human view it appeared inevitable, and doth deliver, in jeopardy as we stand every hour: in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us, content to cast our care upon him, in the fullest confidence of his protection and support. You also helping together by prayer for us, and joining in affectionate supplications on our behalf, that we may be still preserved in the midst of danger; that for the gift of so signal a deliverance as we have experienced, bestowed upon us by the means of many persons, in answer to the prayers of those faithful souls, who, ceaseless at a throne of grace, besought the Lord for us, thanks may be given by many on our behalf, and God glorified and praised for the mercy he hath extended towards us. Note, (1.) Past experience of God's interposition should engage us still to hope in his mercy. (2.) None ever trusted God and were confounded. (3.) We owe much to the prayers of those who interest themselves for us in their approaches to God. (4.) The blessings received in answer to prayer call loud for a due return of praise.

q Ver. 10. 2 Kin. 20. 3. Acts 23. 1. & 24. 16. Gal. 6. 4. 2 Tim. 1. 3. Heb. 13. 18. Ps. 32. 2. John 1. 47. 1 Cor. 2. 4, 13. & 4. 4. & 9. 15. ch. 2. 17. & 4. 2. & 7. 14. & 11. 6.
12. [q] For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace* of God, we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-ward.

* The Unitarian version absurdly renders this favour. The χαρις του Θεου as opposed to σοφια σαρκικη, evidently means an influencing principle on the mind.

13. For we write none other things unto you, than what ye read or acknowledge; and I trust ye shall acknowledge even to the end; 14. As also ye have acknowledged us in part, [r] that we are your rejoicing, even as ye also are ours in the day of the Lord Jesus.

r Ch. 5. 12. Phil. 2. 16. & 4. 1. 1 Thes. 2. 19, 20.

Verses 12—14. The apostle here,

1. Vindicates himself in general from the insinuations of his traducers. For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, maintaining a single eye to God's glory; not with fleshly wisdom, purposing any mean ends, or selfish designs of our own; but by the grace of God, having this for our governing principle, taught by his word, and guided by his Spirit, we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-wards, who cannot but be conscious how holily and unblameably we behaved ourselves among you; and if I have now disappointed you of my intended visit, it was no double-mindedness, but the providence of God, which prevented me. Note, A good conscience affords always matter of real joy.

2. He appeals to themselves for the truth of what he said. For we write none other things unto you than what ye read or acknowledge, and I trust ye shall acknowledge even to the end: our future conversation shall, we trust, be as exemplary as the past. As also ye have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye also are ours in the day of the Lord Jesus, when we hope to appear with you before him as the seals of our ministry, our joy and crown.

15. [s] And in this confidence I was minded to come unto you before, that ye might have a second ‡ benefit: 16. And to pass by you into Macedonia, and [t] to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be brought on my way toward Judea. 17. [t] When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightness? or the things that I purpose, do I purpose according to the flesh, that with me there should be yea, yea, and nay, nay? § 18. But [u] as God is true, our ‖ word toward you was not yea and nay. 19. For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, [y] who was preached among you by us, even by me, [x] and Silvanus, and Timotheus, [y] was not yea and nay, but in him was yea. 20. For [z] all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God by us. 21. Now he [a] which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God; 22. [b] Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts. 23. Moreover, [c] I call God for a record upon my soul, [d] that to spare you I came not as yet unto Corinth. 24. [e] Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand.

s 2 Cor. 16. 5. & 4. 19. & 11. 34. Rom. 1. 11. & 15. 29.
‡ Gr. grace.
t 1 Cor. 4. 19. & 10. 33. & 11. 34. ch. 10. 2. with Acts 16. 6, 7. Gal. 2. 2.
§ That is, yes, or no, just as suited my own inclination or convenience.
u Ver. 23. Rom. 1. 5. & 9. 1. ch. 11. 31. Mat. 5. 37. Jam. 5. 12.
‖ Or preaching.
x Acts 15. 40. & 16. 17. & 18. 5.
y Exod. 3. 14. John 8. 58. Heb. 13. 8.
z John 14. 6. & 1. 14, 17. Gal. 3. 17. Luke 24. 27, 44. Heb. 9. 15—17.
a 1 John 2. 26, 27. ch. 5. 5.
b Rom. 8. 16. ch. 5. 5. Eph. 1. 13, 14. & 4. 30. 2 Tim. 2. 19 Rev. 2. 17. c 1 Tim. 5. 21. 2 Tim. 4. 2. Rom. 1. 9. & 9. 1. ch. 11. 31. Gal. 2. 20.
d 1 Cor. 4. 21. ch. 2. 3. & 12. 20. & 13. 2, 10. 1 Thes. 2. 5. 2 Tim. 2. 10. e Mat. 23. 8—10. 1 Cor. 3. 5. ch. 4. 5. & 2. 1—3. 1 Pet. 5. 3. Rom. 11. 20. 1 Cor. 15. 1. 1 Pet. 5. 12.

Verses 15—24. In answer to the insinuations of his enemies, who accused him of levity and inconstancy.

1. He avers the sincerity of his intentions at the time he gave them his promise. In the confidence of their affection and esteem, he was fully purposed to visit them, in hopes of affording them further spiritual assistance; and not merely to call on them in his way to Macedonia, but to return from thence, and make some considerable stay among them, and then to have been helped forward on his journey by them to Jerusalem. When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightness? promising rashly, and altering my mind, without sufficient reason? or the things that I purpose, do I purpose according to the flesh? was I influenced by any secular views? or did I want to flatter you, and tell you what I never intended to perform? that with me there should be yea, yea, and nay, nay, talking backwards and forwards to serve a turn? No. Paul, as every faithful man doth, spoke the truth from his heart.

2. He vindicates his doctrine, which the seducers wanted to represent as equally erroneous as his promise was deceitful: and this he doth with a solemn appeal to God. But as God is true, our word toward you was not yea and nay, our doctrine was not various and changeable, but uniformly the same; for the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, even by me and Silvanus, and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea; the same crucified Jesus was the subject of our ministry, and we taught with perfect harmony all the glorious truths of gospel grace: for all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, infallibly certain, and invariably the same; not conditional, and depending upon any thing in our miserable selves, but everlastingly sure, flowing from the sovereign favour and love of God, purchased by the obedience to death, and ratified by the bloodshedding of the Redeemer, unto the glory of God by us, who, by our ministrations, is thus exalted in the highest.

3. He mentions some of the inestimable blessings which God in Christ Jesus had bestowed. (1.) Now he which stablisheth us with you in Christ is God, we are built up in him, and, being together united to him as our living Head, nothing shall ever be able to separate us from him. (2.) He hath anointed us with the gifts and graces of his Spirit. (3.) He hath also sealed us unto the day of redemption, securing us for his own in a covenant of grace, and stamping his blessed image on our souls. (4.) He hath given us the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts, shedding abroad his love, as the pledge of that eternal felicity whereunto we are appointed.

4. He gives a weighty reason for not coming at present to Corinth, and solemnly calls God to witness thereto, that it was out of mere tenderness towards them, to spare them, that he might not be obliged to inflict on the offenders condign punishment. But, to prevent mistakes, he adds, Not for that we have dominion over your faith, we assume no tyrannical power, nor pretend to be lords over your conscience; but are helpers of your joy, desiring to promote your spiritual and eternal consolation: for by faith ye stand, grounded not on fallible human testimony, but on the word of God, and therefore shall never be moved away from the hope of the gospel. Note, They who have true faith shall never finally or fatally fall.

CHAP. II.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter the apostle proceedeth in the account of the reasons why he did not come to Corinth, ver. 1—4. Then he writeth concerning the incestuous person that lay under censure; and giveth direction for the restoring him, together with the reasons for their so doing, ver. 5—11. And afterwards informeth them of his labours and success in preaching the gospel in several places, ver. 12—17.

1. BUT I determined this with myself, [a] that I would not come again to you in heaviness. 2. For [b] if I make you sorry, who is he then that maketh me glad, but the same which is* made sorry by me? 3. And [c] I wrote this same unto you, lest, when I came, I should have sorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice; having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all. 4. [d] For out of much affliction and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears; not that ye should be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

a Ch. 1. 23. & 1. 2, 20. & 13. 2, 10. 1 Cor. 4. 21.

b 1 Cor. 4. 15. & 9. 2. ch. 1. 14.

* The same who are. The singular is here used for the plural, as is not unusual in collectives.

c 1 Cor. v. ch. 12. 21. & 1. 14. & 8. 22. Gal. 5. 10.

d Ch. 7. 8. & 11. 28, 29. & 12. 14, 15. Phil. 3. 18. Lev. 19. 17. Prov. 27. 5. Ps. 141. 5.

Verses 1—4. The apostle suggests another reason why he would not come now to Corinth, lest he should be compelled to exercise such severity on offenders as would be bitter to them and painful to himself; and in such circumstances it must be a melancholy meeting, when he must make those sorrowful who should have made him glad; and, whilst this was the case, his tender sympathy with them must occasion heaviness to his own spirit. He wished therefore, rather that all offences might be first removed, for which end he had written the former letter, and that he might not be obliged to sorrow over those as impenitent, in whom he hoped to rejoice as faithful: and he would fain hope, from his confidence in their affection and regard, that his joy was theirs, and that they would be ready to remove every cause of uneasiness and delight to make him happy. With much anguish of heart, and many tears, he had dictated this epistle, not to grieve them, but to profit them, and that his own love towards them, and jealousy over them, might be more abundantly manifested. Note, (1.) Faithful rebuke is the surest mark of love. (2.) Correction is an unpleasing though necessary task. (3.) The design of every reproof should not be to grieve but to recover.

5. [e] But if any have caused grief, he hath not grieved me, but in part: that I may not overcharge you all. 6. Sufficient to such a man is this [f] punishment, which was inflicted of many. 7. [g] So that contrariwise ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, lest perhaps such an one should be swallowed up with overmuch sorrow. 8. Wherefore I beseech you that ye would confirm your love toward him. 9. For to this end also did I write, [h] that I might know the proof of you, whether you be obedient in all things. 10. [i] To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for if I forgave any thing to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it † in the person of Christ; 11. [k] Lest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

e 1 Cor. 5. 2, 5. Gal. 4. 12. The apostle, with great delicacy, avoids mentioning the name of the incestuous person, and even his crime.

f Or censure. 1 Cor. 5. 4, 5. ch. 13. 10.

g Ch. 12. 13. Gal 6. 1, 2. Eph. 4. 16, 32. Col. 2. 13. & 3. 13. 1 Thes. 5. 14. Heb. 12. 12, 13.

h Ch. 7. 12, 15. & 8. 24. & 10. 6. Phil. 2. 22. 2 Tim. 4. 5.

i Mat. 18. 18. John 20. 23. 1 Cor. 5. 4. ch. 5. 20.

† Or in the sight. Others render it, by the authority of Christ.

k Luke 22. 31. 1 Cor. 7. 5. ch. 11. 3. Eph. 6. 11, 12. 2 Tim. 2. 25, 26. 1 Pet. 5. 8.

Verses 5—11. The apostle here directs them how to behave towards the incestuous person, who had been, according to his orders, excommunicated.

1. He had been grieved in part that he was compelled to punish; but since this man had testified his repentance, the cause of his sorrow was removed: and though he had found fault with many who were puffed up, and had not mourned on this occasion, he would not overcharge them with farther reproof, since they had, as a body, cleared themselves by their obedience to his letter.

2. The punishment which had been inflicted on the offender was sufficient; and, since he was humbled and restored, the sentence of excommunication should be removed. He exhorts then, therefore, (1.) To forgive him; (2.) To comfort him under the deep wounds of shame and remorse which he must have felt, lest Satan should take advantage of his distress to overwhelm him with despair. (3.) To confirm their love towards him, and receive him into their church, and into their bosom, with all the cordiality of warm affection. Note, We ought to be peculiarly tender of broken spirits, not aggravating their offences, but sympathizing with their anguish.

3. This was the end the apostle proposed, both in his former and present epistle, that he might have a proof of their obedience. And, to engage them to a ready compliance with his present exhortation, he mentions his own willingness to concur with them in forgiving this penitent: and according to the divine authority delegated to him, in the name of Jesus Christ he pronounced his absolution; and this he did for their sakes, as a fresh mark of his love to them, and to promote their welfare, lest Satan should take advantage, from any severity shown to this offender, to discourage the hearts of backsliders from returning, through despair of pardon, or raise prejudices against the members of the church as of an unforgiving and inexorable spirit. For we are not, says he, ignorant of his devices, how by every method he strives to obstruct the success of the gospel, and disturb the peace of the church.

l Acts 16. 8. & 20. 6.
m Mark 16. 15. Luke 2. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 1. 23. & 2. 2. & 15. 3, 4. n Acts 14. 27. 1 Cor. 16. 9. Col. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 7, 8.
o Ch. 7. 5, 6.
p Rom. 8. 37. ch. 4. 7—12. Phil. 4. 4. & 3. 3. Ps. 149. 2. 1 Thes. 5. 16. Is. 61. 10.
q Rom. 10. 17, 18. & 15. 19. 1 Tim. 1. 15. Song 1. 3. Col. 1. 6, 23.
r 1 Cor. 1. 18. ch. 4. 3. s Luke 2. 34. Acts 13. 46. Mat. 13. 11. & 11. 20—24. John 3. 19, 36. & 9. 39. 1 Pet. 2. 7, 8. Rom. 1. 16. Is. 40. 5, 6.
t Ch. 3. 5, 6. 1 Cor. 15. 9. ch. 12. 11.
‡ Or deal deceitfully with.
u Is. 1. 22. ch. 1. 12. & 4. 2. & 11. 13. 2 Pet. 2. 3. 1 Tim. 6. 5. Tit. 1. 11.

12. Furthermore, when I came to Troas to [m] preach Christ's gospel, and [n] a door was opened unto me of the Lord, 13. [o] I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother: but, taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia. 14. [p] Now thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and [q] maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place. 15. For we are unto God [r] a sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish: 16. [s] To the one we are the savour of death unto death; and to the other the savour of life unto life. And [t] who is sufficient for these things? 17. For we are not as many, which ‡ [u] corrupt the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God; in the sight of God speak we in Christ.

Verses 12—17. The apostle,

1. Acquaints them with another thing which retarded his journey to Corinth. Furthermore, when I came to Troas to preach Christ's gospel, that constantly delightful theme on which I dwell; and a door was opened unto me of the Lord, he who hath the hearts of all men in his hand, having given me a pleasing prospect of success: yet so anxious was I to hear of you, that I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother, whom I expected to arrive there from you; but, taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia, where I met him, and heard with delight the account which he brought from you.

2. Having hinted his successful labours at Troas, he breaks forth into thanksgiving to God. Now thanks be unto God which always causeth us to triumph, in the midst of all our tribulations, raising us superior to our foes, and filling us with exultation and joy in Christ the rock of our confidence; and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place, diffusing his gospel as fragrance, and causing our labours to be acceptable to himself, and profitable to those among whom he sends us to minister, For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ, his precious name in our lips, and his grace in our hearts, render us pleasing to God, in them that are saved, in whom God's rich mercy is magnified, being called by him to the faith and privileges of the gospel, and also in them that perish, in whom his justice is displayed in punishing their obstinate infidelity; and though they are not gathered, yet are we alike glorious in the eyes of the Lord, who regards not our success, but our fidelity. To the one we are the savour of death unto death, a despised and abused gospel aggravating their guilt, and increasing their condemnation; and to the other the savour of life unto life; like a sweet perfume, that recovers the fainting spirit, so doth the gospel, through the power of the Holy Ghost, quicken the souls of many from the death of sin unto a life of righteousness, and continues to refresh and revive them amidst all their trials and sufferings here, till they come to eternal life and glory hereafter. And, in the view of these eternal important events, and the awful and difficult charge lying upon us, who needs not to tremble for himself, and to cry out, Who is sufficient for these things? The greatest, the best of men, will be most conscious of their own weakness, and be looking up for more than human power, to enable them for the discharge of this arduous employment. Note, (1.) They who are truly found in Christ will always have cause to triumph in him over all their foes. (2.) The gospel word never returns void. Where it is not a savour of life, it will be a savour of death. (3.) The more we are sensible of our own insufficiency, the more shall we look up to him who giveth strength to the weak.

3. He vindicates himself, and glances at their false teachers. For we are not as many, which corrupt and adulterate the word of God to make advantage thereby; but as of sincerity, without guile or deceit; but as of God, speaking under his influence, guidance, and authority, in the sight of God speak we in Christ, approving ourselves to the great Searcher of hearts, with a single eye to the Redeemer's glory, and making him the grand subject of all our ministrations.

CHAP. III.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle makes an apology for his seeming to commend himself, and is careful not to assume too much to himself, but to ascribe all praise unto God, ver. 1—5. He then runs a comparison between the Old Testament and the New, and showeth the excellency of the latter above the former, ver. 6—11. From whence he infers what is the duty of gospel ministers, and the advantage of those who live under the gospel, above those that lived under the law, ver. 12. to the end.

1. [a] DO we begin again to commend ourselves? or need we, as some others, epistles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you? 2. [b] Ye are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men: 3. Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be [c] the epistle of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart. 4. And [d] such trust we have through Christ to God-ward: 5. [e] Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God:

a Ch. 1. 12. & 6. 12. & 10. 8, 12. & 2. 14, 17. & 4. 2. & 11. 5, 13. & 12. 11. with 1 Cor. 2. 6, 12. & 3. 10. & 4. 15. & 9. 1, 12, 19. & 10. 33.
b 1 Cor. 4. 15. & 9. 1, 2. & 3. 10. ch. 7. 3. & 11. 11. & 12. 15. Phil. 1. 7. Rom. 1. 8.
c Exod. 24. 12. & 34. 1. & 31. 18. & 32. 16. Ps. 40. 8. Jer. 31. 31. Heb. 8. 10. Ezek. 11. 19. & 36. 26, 27.
d Ch. 2. 14. Phil. 1. 7. Heb. 3. 1. 1 Cor. 1. 2.
e John 15. 5. 1 Cor. 3. 5—7. & 15. 10. ch. 2. 16. & 4. 7. Phil. 2. 13. & 5. 13.

Verses 1—5. To silence his traducers the apostle was compelled to protest his sincerity; and here,

1. He apologises for thus seeming to commend himself. Do we begin again to commend ourselves? or need we, as some others, the false apostles, epistles of commendation to you from other churches, or letters of commendation from you, in order to gain credit and influence? no: we need them not; our conduct speaks for us. And ye yourselves are our epistle, our best letter's testimonial, written in our hearts, in the deep affection we bear you: some read your hearts, where their conversion bore an honourable testimony to the instrument of it; known and read of all men, who observe the work of God's grace evident in you through our labours; forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ, ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God, the author of all the gifts and graces which you possess; not on tables of stone as the law of Moses, but in the fleshly tables of the heart, softened and renewed by grace, where the impression of the gospel-word is deep and lasting, And such trust have we through Christ to Godward, that our ministry hath been thus effectual to you, to God's glory, your benefit, and our own commendation.

2. He prevents any suggestion as if he herein arrogated ought to himself. Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves, who cannot from ourselves naturally produce one good thought, and much less by the mere power of our reasoning effect your conversion: no; but our sufficiency is of God, who alone furnishes us with ability, and crowns our labours with success. To him therefore should the praise of all be for ever ascribed. Note, The best of men have always the lowliest thoughts of themselves.

6. Who also[f] hath made us able ministers of [g] the new testament; [h] not of the letter, but of the spirit: for [i] the letter killeth, but [k] the spirit * giveth life. 7. But if [l] the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away; 8. How shall not the ministration of the Spirit be rather glorious? 9. For if [m] the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory. 10. For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth. 11. For if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.

f 1 Cor. 12. 28. Eph. 4. 11. ch. 5. 18—20. Rom. 1. 5. g Jer. 31. 31. Heb. 8. 6—13. & 9. 15—17. & 10. 16. Mat. 26. 28.
h Rom. 2. 27—29. & 7. 6. Heb. 9. 10. Eph. 2. 15.
i Deut. 27. 26. Gal. 3. 10, 21. Rom. 3. 20. & 4. 15. & 7. 6, 9—13. ch. 2. 16. k John 6. 63. Rom. 1. 16, 17. 1 Cor. 1. 24. ch. 2. 16. & 5. 18. 2 Tim. 1. 10. Heb. 8. 6, 8. Acts 16. 14. & 26. 17, 18. 1 John 1. 1.
* Or quickeneth.
l Rom. 7. 10. Deut. 10. 1. Exod. 24. 12. & 31. 18. & 32. 16. & 34. 1, 29, 30. m Gal. 3. 5. Rom. 1. 16, 17. & 3. 21. Is. 46. 12, 13. & 49. 3. Luke 2. 14. Eph. 3. 10, 21. Ps. 21. 5. & 72. 17—19. Heb. 8. 6—13. & 10. 16—22. ch. 5. 18—21. Rom. 5. 15—21.

Verses 6—11. The apostle runs a parallel between the Mosaical and gospel dispensation, showing the superior excellency of the latter, and the honour of those who were the ministers of it.

Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament, furnishing us with abilities and giving us success: not of the letter, not ministers of the law, which the Judaizing teachers so affect; but of the spirit, of the gospel which the Holy Ghost accompanies with his divine energy: for the letter, the law, killeth, commanding a perfection men cannot perform, and denouncing a curse on the least transgression; but the spirit, the gospel, attended with the quickening power of the Holy Ghost, giveth life, bringeth sinners into a state of favour with God, raising them to spiritual life here, as the pledge and beginning of eternal life hereafter.

But if the law, which was the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, when the two tables were delivered with such solemn pomp on Sinai, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance, so bright it shone, which glory was to be done away in a while; how shall not the ministration of the Spirit, in the gospel, be rather glorious, which is attended with such mighty energy and quickening influence? and how much do its ministers also exceed in glory? for if the ministration of condemnation, which could only denounce wrath on the disobedient, be glory: how much more doth the ministration of righteousness, even of the righteousness of God by faith, exceed in glory. And they who minister this glorious gospel must as much excel the ministers of the law, as righteousness and eternal life are preferable to condemnation and wrath: for even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth, as stars disappear before the rising sun. For if that which is done away, as is now the case with the Mosaical dispensation, was glorious, and introduced with such majesty and splendour; much more that which remaineth, the gospel dispensation, is glorious: its privileges and blessings are infinitely greater, and will endure to eternity.

12. Seeing then that we have such hope,[n] we use great †plainness of speech: 13. And not as Moses, [o] which put a vail over his face, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look [p] to the end of that which is abolished: 14. But [q] their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the old testament; which vail is done away in Christ. 15. But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is upon their heart. 16. Nevertheless when [r] it shall turn to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away. 17. Now [s] the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. 18. But [t] we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, [u] are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as ‡ by the Spirit of the Lord.

n Ch. 4. 2, 13. & 7. 4. Eph. 6. 19.
† Or boldness.
o Exod. 34. 33, 35. p Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 3. 23, 24. Col. 2. 17. Heb. 10. 1.
q Ch. 4. 3, 4. Is. 6. 9, 10. Ezek. 12. 2. Mat. 13. 11—15. John 9. 39. & 12. 40. Acts 28. 26. Rom. 11. 8, 25. Ps. 69. 23.
r Rom. 11. 23, 26. Mat. 13. 11. 1 Cor. 2. 10. Hos. 3. 5. & 6. 3. Is. 11. 9. & 48. 17. & 54. 13. Jer. 31. 34. Is. 25. 7. & 29. 18.
s John 4. 24. & 6. 63. 1 Cor. 2. 10. ch. 4. 18. Rom. 8. 15. Gal. 4. 6.
t 1 Cor. 13. 12. ch. 4. 4, 6. & 5. 7. Col. 1. 27. 2 Tim. 1. 10, 11. 1 Tim. 1. 11, 15.
u Rom. 8. 29. 1 Cor. 15. 49. Col. 3. 10. Eph. 1. 4, 5. & 2. 10. & 4. 24. ch. 5. 17. Gal. 6. 15. & 5. 6, 22, 23. 2 Pet. 1. 5—9. John 17. 17.
‡ Or of the Lord the Spirit.

Verses 12—18. These words are the inference from the foregoing comparison.

Seeing then that we have such hope, in the superior excellence of the gospel above the law, and trust on the divine power to make it effectual, we use great plainness of speech, freely delivering our message, and affecting no embellishments. Not as Moses, who put a vail over his face, to hide the splendour of his countenance, intimating thereby, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look to the end of that which is abolished; they stuck at the letter and the shadows, and perceived not that all was intended to lead them to Christ, that they might be justified by faith; but their minds were blinded, stupified, (ἐπωρώθη) for not only then, but until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the Old Testament; besides the natural vail of darkness on their minds, there was an obscurity in the revelation itself as wrapped up in types and figures; and though they read the Scriptures, they understood not their true meaning and design; which veil is done away in Christ, in whom all the types and prophecies received their accomplishment, and who is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth, as they know into whose heart he shines with the light of his gospel; but even unto this day, when Moses is read, the carnal Jews are so hardened through pride, prejudice, and sensuality, that the veil is still upon their heart, and they continue ignorant of him to whom the law and the prophets bear witness. Nevertheless when it shall turn to the Lord, either the heart of any individual among them, or the people in general in the last days, the veil shall be taken away, and they shall see, know, and receive the true Messiah. Now the Lord Jesus Christ is that quickening Spirit, who alone can effect this mighty work: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, and the gospel is truly embraced, there is liberty, freedom from darkness, guilt, and bondage, and access with boldness to a reconciled God. But we all, with open face, who, through the illumination of the Spirit, have received the gospel in the light and love of it, beholding there, as in a glass, or mirror, which distinctly reflects the person, the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image of the adorable Jesus, from glory to glory, from the bright traces which his grace begins in time, till his likeness in us is perfected in eternity; and all this is effected even as by the Spirit of the Lord, or by the Lord the Spirit, the great and glorious Agent in this new creation, who is very God, and in the ministration of his gospel effectually brings the redeemed to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. Lord, thou Spirit of all grace, thus transform my soul into the Saviour's perfect image!

CHAP. IV.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter we have an account, 1. Of the constancy of the apostle and his fellow-labourers in their work. Their constancy is declared, ver. 1. Their sincerity is vouched, ver. 2. An objection is obviated, ver. 3, 4. And their integrity proved, ver. 5, 6, 7. 2. Of their courage and patience under their sufferings. Where see what their sufferings were, together with their allays, ver. 8—12. And what it was that kept them from sinking and fainting under them, ver. 13. to the end.

1. [a] THEREFORE, seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not; 2. [b] But have renounced the hidden things of * dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God. 3. But if our gospel be hid, [c] it is hid to them that are lost: 4. In whom [d] the god of this world hath [e] blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest [f] the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is [g] the image of God, should shine unto them. 5. For we preach [h] not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake. 6. For God, [i] who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath [k] shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God [l] in the face of Jesus Christ. 7. But we have [m] this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

[a] 1 Cor. 7. 25. ch. 3. 6 & 5. 18. Eph. 3. 7, 8. 1 Tim. 1. 11, 12. ch. 2. 14. 2 Tim. 2. 1. Phil. 6. 13.
[b] Ch. 1. 12. & 2. 17. & 5. 11. & 6. 4. & 11. 3, 6, 13. Eph. 4. 14. & 5. 3, 12. 1 Thes. 2. 3, 5.
* Or shame.
[c] Rom. 2. 16. Col. 1. 23. Eph. 3. 8.
[d] Mat. 11. 25. 1 Cor. 1. 18. ch. 2. 15, 16. & 3. 14. 2 Thes. 2. 10, 11. Is. 6. 9, 10.
[e] Mat. 4. 8, 9. John 8. 44. & 12. 31. & 14. 30. & 16. 11. Eph. 2. 2. & 6. 12. Ps. 17. 14.
[f] 1 Kin. 22. 22. Is. 6. 10. Mat. 11. 25. 2 Thes. 2. 10, 11.
[g] John 8. 12. & 12. 35. ch. 3. 8, 11, 18. Acts 26. 17, 18. Col. 1. 27. 1 Tim. 1. 11. 2 Tim. 1. 10. 2 Thes. 1. 8.
[h] Phil. 2. 6. Zech. 13. 7. John 1. 18. Col. 1. 15. John 14. 9, 10. & 10. 30. Heb. 1. 3.
[i] Mat. 16. 24. 1 Cor. 1. 13, 23. & 2. 2. & 3. 5, 21. & 9. 19—23. & 10. 33 Rom. 15. 1, 2. ch. 1. 24. with Jer. 23. 16, 26.
[k] Gen. 1. 3, 4, 15. Ps. 74. 16. & 136. 7—9. 1 Eph. 1. 17, 18. & 5. 1 Pet. 2. 9. 2 Pet. 1. 19. Acts 26. 17, 18. ch. 3. 18.
[l] Heb. 1. 3. Col. 1. 15. John 14. 9, 10. with ch. 3. 7, 13.
[m] Mat. 13. 44, 52. 1 Cor. 1. 26. & 2. 5. ch. 3. 5, 6. & 5. 1, 6. & 6. 7 & 12. 9. Eph. 3. 8. Col. 2. 2, 3. 1 Thes. 4. 4. 2 Tim. 1. 8. & 2. 20. 1 Pet. 2. 7. with Judg. 7. 13, 16. Col. 1. 27.

Verses 1—7. The apostle having shown the excellence of the gospel above the law, passes on to give an account of the diligence and sincerity with which he and his companions discharged their ministry.

1. They laboured with perseverance and fidelity. Therefore seeing we have this ministry from the Lord, as we have received mercy, and support under all our infirmities, we faint not, amidst our greatest trials cheerfully holding on unwearied in our glorious course, but have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty, abhorring every thing scandalous or reproachful: using no cover or concealment, not walking in craftiness, to beguile unstable souls by any mean arts: nor handling the word of God deceitfully, corrupting the pure truth by any base alloy of our own, or attempting to accommodate it to the taste of our hearers; but, by manifestation of the truth, commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God, in all plainness of speech applying the gospel to men's hearts, under a deep sense of the solemn account we must shortly give of our ministry. Note, (1.) The business of ministers is not to adapt their word's to men's humours, but to strike at their hearts. (2.) They who lay their hands to the gospel plough must never faint or look back, whatever trials they may meet in the discharge of their office.

2. He obviates an objection, How, if he spoke so plainly, the truth was yet received by so few. But if our gospel, after all the pains we take, be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, who wilfully persist in their impenitence and unbelief, and reject the counsel of God against their own souls; in whom the god of this world, the devil, hath blinded the minds of them who believe not, increasing and confirming, by his malignant influence, the native hardness and darkness of their hearts, by his allurement or discouragements keeping them safe under his dominion, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, should shine unto them, enlighten their darkness, and convince and convert their souls. Note, (1.) They must be lost from whom the gospel is hid, since it is the only means of salvation. (2.) The devil hath the general sway in this world: and is, though men perceive it not, the real object of their worship. (3.) The way in which Satan's kingdom is maintained in the world is by ignorance, and the prejudices he raises against the glorious gospel of Christ.

3. He declares their integrity. For we preach not ourselves, not our own inventions, nor seek to promote our own honour or interests, but Christ Jesus the Lord, making him the grand subject of all our discourses, his person, offices, grace, righteousness; and owning ourselves to be no more than your servants for Jesus' sake, whose glory we seek to advance in the salvation of your souls. For God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, by his almighty word at the beginning, hath, by the like divine energy, shined in our hearts, dispelling the thick clouds of spiritual darkness, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ, as it appears in that glorious gospel of which he is the sum and substance, and wherein all the divine perfections are exalted to the highest. But we have this treasure of the gospel in earthen vessels, committed to frail, poor, and perishing worms, such as we are, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us. When such weak instruments are enabled to bear up under all persecutions, and are made so amazingly successful in their labours.

it must with the strongest demonstration be evident, that the work is more than human, even of divine operation. Note, (1.) None can illuminate the darkness of a fallen soul but he that at first said, Let there be light, and there was light. (2.) The weaker the instruments are, the more is the power and grace of God magnified, who worketh by them, and makes their ministry effectual to the salvation of lost sinners.

o Ch. 1. 8. & 7. 5. Rom. 8. 35, 36. 1 Cor. 10. 13. ch. 1. 10. Is. 46. 4.

† Or not altogether without help, or means.

p Ps. 37. 24. Is. 43. 2. Job 5. 17—19. ch. 1. 10. & 12. 9. Heb. 13. 5. Is. 41. 10, 14.

q Gal. 6. 17. Rom. 8. 17, 19. 1 Cor. 15. 31. ch. 1. 5, 9. Phil. 3. 10, 11. 2 Tim. 2. 11, 12. 1 Pet. 4. 13. & 5. 10.

r Ps. 44. 23. Mat. 5 11. Rom. 8. 36. 1 Cor. 4. 9. & 15. 31, 49. ch. 6. 9. Col. 3. 3, 4. John 14. 19.

s Ch. 13. 9. 1 Cor. 4. 10.

t Acts 15. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 17.

u Ps. 116. 10. ch. 3. 12, 17.

x Rom. 8. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 14. Acts 2. 24. John 11. 25. 1 Cor. 15. 20—23, 45, 49—57.

y Rom. 8. 28. 1 Cor. 3. 21. Col. 1. 24. 2 Tim. 2. 10. ch. 1. 6, 11. Eph. 3. 10, 21. 1 Pet. 4. 11.

z Ver. 1. Ps. 27. 13. & 119. 81. Is. 40. 29—31. & 41. 10—16. & 46. 3, 4.

a Rom. 7. 22. Eph. 3. 16. Col. 3. 10. 1 Pet. 3. 4. Is. 40. 31.

b Rom. 8. 18, 37. Ps. 30. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 4, 7. & 5. 10. Mat. 5. 12 2 Thes. 1. 5. 1 John 3. 2. Ps. 31. 19. Is. 45. 17. & 6. 19, 20.

c Rom. 8. 24. Heb. 11. 1, 26. & 10. 35.

8. ° We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but † not in despair; 9. ᵖ Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed; 10. ᵠ Always bearing about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body. 11. ʳ For we which live are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh. 12. So then ˢ death worketh in us, but life in you. 13. We having ᵗ the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, ᵘ I believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak; 14. ˣ Knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you. 15. ʸ For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God. 16. ᶻ For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet ᵃ the inward man is renewed day by day. 17. ᵇ For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; 18. While ᶜ we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal: but the things which are not seen are eternal.

Verses 8—18. Many were the dangers to which, for the gospel's sake, the ministers of Christ were exposed; yet none of these things moved them.

1. Their trials were great. We are troubled on every side, with manifold afflictions in every place, yet not distressed with anxiety, or discomposed as if we had no way to escape; we are perplexed, and in doubt what step to take, but not in despair of the Lord's help and interposition; persecuted by wicked men with unrelenting malice, but not forsaken of God, so as to be given up for a prey to their teeth; cast down through the infirmity of our flesh, and the prevalence of fear and unbelief, but not destroyed as the wicked, but rising again by grace, and finally triumphant over all the power of evil; always bearing about in the body, the dying of the Lord Jesus, carrying the marks of our sufferings, that show that we belong to our crucified Master, who sympathizes with us and counts our griefs his own, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body, He, as the living principle within, sustaining us under all our conflicts. For we who live spiritually by his grace, and amidst our continual persecutions are still preserved, are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, each day in jeopardy, and ready to be cut off for the testimony which we bear, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh, it being evidently seen, by the protection he vouchsafes to us, that he is risen and at the right hand of God, and that his Spirit hath quickened us to newness of life, whilst with unshaken courage, patience, and perseverance, in the midst of our sufferings, we desire to finish our course after his example. So then death worketh in us, and we, who are Christ's ministering servants, are exposed to the most fatal dangers; but life in you, who enjoy its comforts in peace: and even our sufferings, as they are a confirmation of the gospel which we preach, are the means of advancing your spiritual and eternal life.

2. If their trials were great, their supports were greater. (1.) They stood by faith. We having the same spirit of faith with the saints of old, which animated the divine Redeemer, and is wrought by the Holy Ghost in us and you; according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak, fully persuaded of the heavenly doctrines which we preach, and confident that the Lord will support us in our testimony to his gospel, and fulfil all his promises unto us both in time and eternity. Note, They who have true faith will never fail. (2.) They were upheld by the hope of a joyful resurrection. Knowing with fullest assurance, that he which raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise up us also by Jesus, in virtue of our union with him, and shall present us with you faultless before the throne of his glory; and the expectation of this raises us above the fears of death. (3.) The consciousness that God would be glorified, and men's souls profited, supported and quickened them. For all things are for your sakes, all our labours and sufferings ultimately tend to promote your present and eternal happiness; that the abundant grace, held forth in our ministrations, might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God, who, embracing the gospel, and made partakers of its inestimable blessings, cannot but with ceaseless praises adore and magnify that gracious God, who hath called them to his kingdom and glory. For which cause we faint not, but for your sakes, and God's glory, patiently and cheerfully persevere. (4.) Their own souls were profited by their afflictions, which was another reason why they should bear up under them. But though our outward man perish through our hardships, labours, and sufferings, yet the inward man is renewed day by day, with fresh supplies of grace, strength, and consolation, growing more meet for the eternal world to which we are going: and we may well be content with every outward cross that tends to bring us thus nearer to our crown. (5.) The near and assured prospect of glory was their grand support and comfort. For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, so faith teaches us to judge; our afflictions are light, compared with the weight of glory which we expect; and momentary, however long continued through life, if viewed against the eternity which succeeds; and what is more, it worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. The words are amazingly emphatical, (Καθ' ὑπερβολὴν, εις ὑπερβολὴν, αιωνιον, βαρος δοξης,) and such as no translation can fully render. Steadily therefore we persevere, while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, the glorious objects above, which faith realizes to the soul; for the things which are seen are temporal, transitory, and momentary; but the things which are not seen are eternal, glorious beyond conception, and to be enjoyed without measure and without end.

CHAP. V.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

The apostle proceedeth in showing the reasons why they did not faint under their afflictions, viz. their expectation, desire, and assurance of happiness after death, ver. 1—5. and maketh an inference for the comfort of believers in their present state, ver. 6, 7, 8, and another to quicken them in their duty, ver. 9, 10, 11. Then he maketh an apology for seeming to commend himself, and giveth a good reason for his zeal and diligence, ver. 12—15. And mentions two things that are necessary in order to our living to Christ, viz. regeneration and reconciliation, ver. 16. ad finem.

1. FOR we know, that, if [b] our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have [c] a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. 2. For [d] in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven: 3. [e] If so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked. 4. [f] For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life. 5. Now he that hath [g] wrought us for the self-same thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit. 6. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst [h] we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord: 7. [i] (For we walk by faith, not by sight:) 8. We are [k] confident, I say, and [l] willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. 9. Wherefore [m] we * labour, that, whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him. 10. [n] For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; [o] that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. 11. [p] Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but [q] we are made manifest unto God; and I trust also are made manifest in your consciences.

a Ch. 4. 1, 2, 13,16.
b Job 4. 19. 2 Pet. 1. 13, 14. ch. 4. 7.
c Heb. 11. 10, 11, 16. ver. 8. Phil. 3. 21. 1 Thes. 4. 17.
d Rom. 8. 23. Phil. 1. 23. 1 Cor. 15. 47. 1 Pet. 1. 3, 4. John 17. 24.
e Mat. 22. 11. Rom. 13. 14. Gal. 3. 27. Rev. 3. 18. & 12. 1. & 16. 15. & 19. 8, 14. Is. 61. 10.
f Rom. 8. 23. & 7. 24. 1 Cor. 15. 51—55. Is. 25. 8.
g Is. 29. 23. & 43. 20, 21. Rom. 8. 16, 23. Col. 1. 12. ch. 1. 21, 22. ver. 15. Eph. 2. 10. & 4. 30. & 1. 13, 14. 2 Tim. 1. 14. 1 John 3. 24. h 1 Chr. 29. 15. Ps. 39. 12. & 119. 19. Phil. 1. 23. Heb. 11. 13. 1. Pet. 2. 11.
i Heb. 11. 1. Gal. 2. 20. Hab. 2. 4. Rom. 8. 24, 25. 1 Cor. 13. 12. ch 3. 18. & 4. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 8. 1 John 3. 2. ver. 6. Deut. 12. 9.
k Heb. 11. 1, 13. ver. 1. 2 Tim. 1. 12. & 4. 7, 8.
l Ver. 2, 4. Phil. 1. 23.
m Rom. 15. 20. 1 Thes. 4. 1, 11. Mat. 25. 21, 23. Luke 19. 17.
* Or endeavour.
n Rom. 14. 10—12. Eccl. 12. 14. Acts 10. 42 & 17. 31. Rev. 20. 11, 12. John 5. 22, 27.
o Job 34. 11. Ps. 62. 13. Eccl. 12. 14. Jer. 17. 10. & 32. 19. Mat. 16. 27. & 25. 32. Rom. 2. 6—10. 1 Cor. 3. 8. & 4. 5. Gal. 6. 5, 7. Eph. 6. 8. Rev. 2. 20. & 22. 12. & 20. 12, 13. p Job 31, 23. Heb. 10. 31. Jude 23. Is. 33. 14. Nah. 1. 6. with Col. 1. 28, 29. 2 Tim. 4. 25. Acts 20. 18—27, 31. ch. 12. 5. q Ch. 1. 12. & 2. 17. & 4. 2. & 11. 6. 1 Thes. 2. 3—11.

Verses 1—11. No marvel, with such a scene full in his view, the apostle fainted not. He enlarges here on the delightful theme, which cannot but minister something of the like courage and consolation to every gracious soul. We have,

1. The apostle's expectation and desire, which every faithful servant of Jesus can, in a measure, adopt as his own. For we know, by the evidence of God's word, the testimony of our conscience, and the witness of the Spirit, that if our house of this tabernacle, the frail body in which we as pilgrims at present sojourn for a day, be dissolved, and returned to the dust from whence it came, we have a building of God, infinitely more magnificent, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, a celestial palace prepared for our everlasting residence, and suited to the excellence of the glorified soul. For in this tabernacle of clay we groan, loaded with many afflictions, and burdened with many corruptions, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven, and to arrive at the celestial city, where sin nor sorrow shall never enter more. If so be that, or since being thus clothed with robes of light and purity, we shall not be found naked, exposed any longer to the storms of this wretched world, but be in eternal joy and felicity. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened longing for our perfect state of holiness and happiness, when we shall be for ever released from the burdens of outward afflictions, and indwelling sin; not for that we would be unclothed, and wish to part with our bodies, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life, translated as Enoch, or changed in a moment, as their bodies shall be who are alive at the coming of the Lord. Note, (1.) Our present abode is a wretched tabernacle that must quickly be taken down; have we an eternal mansion ready to receive the immortal soul? (2.) To a soul that hath ever tasted of the bitterness of sin, and groaned under the trials and temptations of this mortal state, the exchange of worlds is a consummation devoutly to be wished for.

2. The apostle mentions the ground of his expectation and hope. Now he that hath wrought us for the self-same thing is God, whose mighty energy hath spiritualized our souls, and led them up to seek those high and heavenly things; who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit, in his graces, consolations, and abiding residence in our hearts, which seal to us the purchased possession. Therefore we are always confident in the assurance of the fulfilment of the divine promises, and of support under all our trials till they shall happily end; knowing that whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord, and, like pilgrims, distant from our true home and rest. For we walk by faith, not by sight, looking above all present objects to the eternal world; and having our hearts influenced, and our conduct regulated accordingly; we are confident I say, in the experience of God's present love, and the assurance of his eternal favour, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord, well pleased, if God so ordained, to bid an eternal adieu to all our infirmities and afflictions, and enter immediately into the beatific vision of our Lord. Wherefore we labour, that whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him. This is our holy ambition, so to be found in him, sprinkled with his blood, clothed with his righteousness, and walking under the influence of his grace, that now, and in the day of his appearing and glory, both our persons and services may meet with his approbation. Note, (1.) None enter the heavenly world, but those who have the earnest of the Spirit in their hearts, and are made meet for the inheritance among the saints in light. (2.) Faith in God's promises inspires confidence of the fulfilment; we know we have not followed cunningly devised fables. (3.) They who have seen the glories of a better world, and are assured of their portion there, cannot but with pleasure look forward to the happy change. (4.) The more sure our hope of heaven is, the more enlightened will be our diligence in the way that leads thither.

3. He reminds them of the awful day which approached, as a spur to himself, and a warning to them. For we must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, where without disguise every man's real character will appear, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad; admitting graciously to the reward of eternal blessedness, or sinking under righteous vengeance into the abyss of endless misery. Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, and the fearful end of the hypocrite and ungodly, we persuade men by every alarming and alluring motive, to fly from the wrath to come, and embrace the gospel which we proclaim. But whether they will hear or forbear, we are made manifest to God, who knows our simplicity in all our ministrations, and I trust also are made manifest in your consciences; for our labours and sufferings bear witness to the unfeigned concern we have shown for your souls. Note, (1.) The sense of an approaching judgment should awaken a holy solicitude to be ready for it. (2.) The terrors of the Lord his ministers must use, to rouse the lethargic sinner, and urge him to fly from his impending ruin.

r Ch. 1. 14. & 3. 1. & 10. 8. & 11. 2—15.
† Or in the face.
s Ch. 11. 1, 16, 17. & 12. 6, 11. with 1 Cor. 10. 31. & 4. 3, 4. & 9. 17—23. 2 Tim. 2. 10. 1 Thes. 2. 3—11.
t Luke 7. 47. 1 John 4. 10, 19. Psa. 110. 3. Song 1. 4. Rom. 5. 1. 1 Tim. 2. 6. John 11. 51, 52. 1 Pet. 4. 1, 2.
u Rom. v, vi. & 14. 7, 8. 1 Cor. 6. 19, 20. 1 Thes. 5. 10. Tit. 2. 14. Gal. 1. 4. & 2. 20. 1 Pet. 4. 2. Eph. 5. 2—17. Luke 1. 74.

12. For [r] we commend not ourselves again unto you, but give you occasion to glory on our behalf, that ye may have somewhat to answer them which glory [†] in appearance, and not in heart. 13. For whether we be [s] beside ourselves, it is to God; or whether we be sober, it is for your cause. 14. For [t] the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead: 15. [u] And that he died for all, that they which live should not hence-forth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.

Verses 12—15. The apostle,

1. Prevents an insinuation which might have been suggested by his enemies, as if he meant to commend himself. For we commend not ourselves again unto you, nor speak this with a view to ingratiate ourselves into your good opinion, but to give you occasion to glory in our behalf, that ye may have somewhat to answer them who glory in appearance, and not in heart, furnishing you with arguments to silence the vain boastings of those Judaizing teachers, who would malign and traduce us. For whether we be beside ourselves, and in our zeal for the gospel talk as men distracted, as they would insinuate, it is to God, and for his glory, that we thus speak; or if we be sober, and, as the wiser part among you justly think, say nothing but the words of truth and soberness, it is for your cause, whose salvation we seek to promote.

2. He declares the noble principle which influenced his preaching and practice. For the love of God constraineth us, because we thus judge, and have determined, on maturest deliberation, that if one died for all, for sinners of all degrees, whether Jews or Gentiles, without distinction, then were all dead, alike in need of his redemption, by nature the children of wrath, and under the curse of a broken law, or all those for whom he died, became mystically dead in him, delivered from the curse and condemnation of the law, by his suffering the penalty in their stead; and that he died for all, that they which live redeemed by his blood, and quickened by his Spirit, should not henceforth live unto themselves, for their own ease, interests, or honour, but unto him who died for them, and rose again, devoting themselves to his blessed service, who purchased them at so dear a rate. Note, (1.) A sense of Christ's love upon the heart is the only genuine principle of true obedience. (2.) We then truly live, when the Redeemer's glory is made the grand aim of all our conversation.

x Mat. 12. 50. John 15. 14. Gal. 5. 4 & 6. 15. Phil. 3. 8—14. Col. 3. 11. with 1 Cor. 10. 18. 1 Thes. 5. 12. Jam. 2. 1. John 20. 17. & 6. 63. & 7. 5.
y 1 Cor. 1. 30. Eph. 2. 10 & 1. 3. Gal. 5. 6. & 6. 15. John 3. 3, 5, 6. Ezek. 36. 26. Eph. 4. 23, 24. Col. 3. 10. Is. 65. 17. Rom. 6. 4—6. & 8. 9. 10. ch. 4. 16. Is. 43. 18. 1 Thes. 5. 24. Mat. 16. 24. Rev. 21. 5. ‡ Or let him be.
z Rom. 11. 36. John 3. 16. Jam. 1. 17. Rom. 5. 10. Eph. 2. 16. Col. 1. 20. 1 John. 2. 2. & 4. 9, 10. Rom. 5. 21—26.

16. [x] Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more. 17. Therefore, [y] if any man be in Christ, ‡ he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. 18. [z] And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation; 19. To wit, that [b] God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath [c] committed unto us the word of reconciliation. 20. Now then we are [d] ambassadors for Christ, as though [e] God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God. 21. [f] For he hath made him to be sin for us, who [g] knew no sin; [h] that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.

a Mark 16. 15, 16. Mat. 28. 19. Rom. 1. 5. & 15. 19.
b Rom. 3. 24—26. Ps. 32. 1, 2. Is. 43. 25. & 44. 22.
c Or put in us, ver. 8.
d Mat. 2. 7. Job 33. 23. ch. 3. 6. Eph. 6. 20.
e 2 Kin. 17. 13. 2 Chr. 36. 15. Neh. 9. 29. Jer. 44. 4. Mat. 28. 19, 20. Mark 1. 5. Mat. 10. 40.
f Is. 53. 4—6, 10—12. Dan. 9. 24. Zech. 13. 7. 1 Pet. 2. 24. & 3. 18. Mat. 20. 28. John 1. 29. Rom. 3. 24, 25. & 4. 25. & 5. 6, 8. & 8. 3. Gal. 3. 13. Eph. 5. 2. 1 John 2. 2. & 4. 9, 10. Ps. xxii, lxix.
g Is. 53. 9. 1 Pet. 2. 22. & 1. 19. Heb. 7. 25. Luke 1. 35. 1 John 3. 5. John 14. 30. & 8. 46, 49. Mat. 3. 15.
h Is. 42. 21. & 45. 24, 25. & 53. 4, 5, 11. & 56. 17. & 61. 10. Jer. 23. 6. & 33. 16. Dan. 9. 24. Rom. 1. 17. & 3. 21—26. & 8. 1—4. & 5. 15—21. & 4. 24, 25. & 10. 4. 1 Cor. 1. 30. Phil. 3. 9. Rev. 1. 5. & 5. 9. & 7. 14. & 19. 8, 14.

Verses 16—21. From the foregoing premises,

1. The apostle determines, without respect of persons, to preach the gospel alike to Jews and Gentiles, who are both redeemed by the same Lord. Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh, paying no regard to any external privileges of descent from Abraham, or circumcision; yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, and formerly thought during his abode on earth, that he was come to erect a temporal kingdom, and exalt the Jewish nation to the pinnacle of human glory, yet now henceforth know we him no more; these foolish prejudices are removed: we have got an acquaintance with the spiritual nature of his salvation, and know that the great design for which he became incarnate was to advance the divine glory in the recovery of lost souls, whether Jews or Gentiles, without distinction, even of as many as should believe in his name.

2. He urges, as the main point of Christianity, a real change of heart. Therefore if any man be in Christ, vitally united to him, he is a new creature, though the same person, yet morally so renewed in the spirit of his mind, and in understanding, will, and affections so spiritualized, that he is quite different from his former self: old things are passed away; his naturally corrupt principles and practices are laid aside, and behold, with wonder the amazing alteration! all things are become new; he hath new light in his mind; a new bias given to his will and affections; his whole course of life is altered; his principles, prospects, ways, thoughts, pursuits, company, are as directly opposite to what they were before, as if he were really another man. Reader, hast thou experienced this change?

3. This new creation is God's work, and wrought by means of his gospel. And all things are of God, who planned and executed the wondrous scheme of our salvation, and hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, through his atoning blood and justifying righteousness, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Christ, according to his eternal counsels, reconciling the world, Gentiles as well as Jews, unto himself, by that amazing expedient of the substitution of his own Son in the sinner's stead, not imputing their trespasses unto them, but laying upon him the iniquities of us all! and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation, that we should publish this gospel of peace to every creature. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, sent in his name, to heal the dangerous breach between the holy God and the sinful soul, as though God did beseech you by us, under whose commission we act with authority, and speak in his name; we pray you, by every endearing argument, as you value your immortal souls, and urge you in Christ's stead, whose person we represent, and whose gospel we minister, be ye reconciled to God; submit to his righteousness, accept his proffered pardon and grace; bow humbly at his feet; without reserve yield up yourselves to him, that the reconciliation may be mutual, and the friendship perpetual. For he hath made him to be sin, a sin-offering, for us, who knew no sin of his own, but willingly took our iniquities upon himself, and suffered for them, making a full atonement and satisfaction to the justice of God, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him, by virtue of our union with him, interested in his everlasting righteousness, accepted and regarded of God for ever as complete and perfect, and entitled thereby to eternal life and glory. My soul with wonder and delight hear and embrace these glad tidings; be thy sins all laid at Jesus' feet, and in his righteousness arrayed thou mayest boldly appear in the presence of God!

CHAP. VI.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter the apostle, (1.) Giveth an account of his general errand to all that he preached unto; with the several arguments and methods he used, ver. 1—10. (2.) He addresses himself particularly to the Corinthians, giving them good cautions, with much affection and strong arguments, ver. 11—16.

a 1 Cor. 3. 9. ch. 5. 18—20.
b Heb. 12. 15. ch. 11. 2. Tit. 2. 11. Acts 14. 3. ch. 5. 18, 19. c Is. 49. 8. & 61. 2. Luke 4. 19. & 19. 5, 9, 42, 44. Rom. 13. 11. Heb. 3. 7, 13. & 4. 7.
d Rom. 14. 13. 1 Cor. 8. 9, 13. & 9. 12, 22. & 10. 23, 32. Acts 24. 16. ch. 1. 12.
e 1 Thes. 2. 3—11. Mat. 18. 6, 7. 2 Tim. 2. 15. & 4. 2, 5. Col. 4. 17. 1 Pet. 5. 1—4. Rev. 3 10. 1 Cor. 4. 1, 2, 9—13. ch. 1. 4, 12. & 2. 17. & 4. 2. & 5. 11. & 11. 6. & 12. 10. 2 Tim. 2 10. & 3. 10—12. Rom. 2. 29. & 8. 35.
* Or commending.
f Ch. 11. 23—27. 1 Cor. 4. 9—12. 2 Tim. 3. 10—12. Acts 13. 50. & 14. 5, 19. & 16. 22, 24. & 17. 5. & 18. 12. & 19. 23. & 22. 22—24. 1 Cor. 15. 10, 58. Phil. 4. 12. Col. 1. 29. 1 Thes. 2. 9. & 3. 5. 1 Tim. 4. 10—16.
† Or in tossings to and fro.
g 1 Cor. 4. 12. & 7. 7. & 9. 22. Acts 20. 26, 27. ch. 4. 2. & 11 2, 28. & 12. 14, 15. 1 Tim. 5. 22. 2 Tim. 3. 10. 1 Thes. 2. 2—11.
h 1 Cor. 2. 4. ch. 10. 4, 5. & 4. 2. & 1. 12. & 12. 12. Eph. 6. 11, 13. 2 Tim. 4. 7. i 1 Cor. 4. 7—12. Mat. 10. 25. & 27. 63. John. 7. 12. Acts 17. 33.
k Ch. 4. 2. & 5. 11. Ps. 118. 18. Is. 26. 19. Rom. 8. 36. 1 Cor. 4. 9. & 15. 31, 32. ch. 1. 8 & 4. 10, 11. & 11. 6. Gal. 6. 17. l Mat. 5. 12. Acts 5. 41. & 16. 25. Heb. 10. 34. Rom. 5. 3. Jam. 1. 2. & 2. 5. m Prov. 13. 7. & 17. 1. Mat. 6. 32, 33. Luke 18. 29, 30. 1 Cor. 1. 5. & 16. 17. & 3. 21, 22. ch. 8. 9. & 11. 8, 9. & 2. 20. Phil. 4. 11, 18. Mark 10. 28—30. 1 Tim. 4. 8.

1. WE then, as [a] workers together with him, beseech you also that [b] ye receive not the grace of God in vain. 2. [c] (For he saith, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.) 3. [d] Giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed: 4. But [e] in all things * approving ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses, 5. [f] In stripes, † in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings; 6. [g] By pureness, by knowledge, by long-suffering, by kindness, by the Holy Ghost, by love unfeigned, 7. [h] By the word of truth, by the power of God, by the armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left, 8. [i] By honour and dishonour, by evil report and good report: as deceivers, and yet true; 9. [k] As unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and, behold, we live; as chastened, and not killed; 10. [l] As sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; [m] as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

Verses 1—10. We have here an account,

1. Of the general exhortation which, as ambassadors for Christ, Paul and his fellow-labourers addressed to all their hearers. We then as workers together with him, as the instruments he employs in calling lost sinners to a state of reconciliation with God, beseech you also, among others to whom we are sent, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain, nor slight his gospel, remaining empty professors, instead of actually possessing the power and life of godliness. For he saith, addressing his Son, the Messiah, Isa. xlix. 8. I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: answering his prayers, as most acceptable before him, and supplying him with the needful strength to finish his arduous undertaking for the complete redemption of his people: behold, now is the accepted time, when the sinners of every nation are invited to partake of the blessings he hath purchased, and are sure of acceptance with God through his dear Son; behold, now is the day of salvation; seize therefore the present moment, and fly for refuge to Jesus the hope set before you, and then you will be saved with an everlasting salvation. Note, (1.) To-day God invites, to-day we should hear and obey; no moment is to be trifled with: every breath we draw is precarious; to-morrow may not belong to time, but to eternity. What an awakening consideration! How are we called to improve the present NOW! (2.) Ministers must with importunity and eagerness urge upon dying men the necessity of attending instantly to the things of their everlasting peace, before they be hid from their eyes.

2. Of their carefulness to avoid every occasion of offence, giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed: behaving so discreetly, both among Jews and Gentiles, as to give neither any ground of prejudice against that gospel which we preach, but in all things approving ourselves as the ministers of God, becoming the character we bear: in much patience, meekly resigned, and steadily persevering; in afflictions, of various kinds, which we suffer for our workS' sake; in necessities, wanting even food and raiment; in distresses, from which we see no way to extricate ourselves; in stripes, beaten both in the synagogues and before the heathen tribunals; in imprisonments, cast into dungeons; in tumults, from outrageous mobs; in labours, unceasing; in watchings, in fastings, having our rest broken, and our provision scanty, and sometimes voluntarily denying ourselves food and sleep on a religious account. And in these sufferings we are supported by pureness, acting with the greatest simplicity of intention, and integrity of conduct; by knowledge, fully acquainted with the truths which we deliver; by long-suffering, bearing with the perverseness and provocations of opposers; by kindness, in temper and manners gentle and courteous; by the Holy Ghost, of whose gifts, graces, and consolations we abundantly partake; by love unfeigned to God and man; by the word of truth, which unadulterated we deliver; by the power of God, whose everlasting arms are under us, and who, in the miracles he enables us to work, bears testimony to our doctrine; by the armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left, furnished out of the armoury of God with every thing necessary for our spiritual warfare; by honour and dishonour, not elated with the high esteem of some, nor discouraged by the insolent contempt of others; by evil report and good report, mentioned with great commendation by our friends, and branded with the most infamous slanders by our enemies; as deceivers, so treated by many, and yet true, proved and found faithful to Christ, and the souls of men; as unknown, represented as men of no figure and despicable, yet well known, those who are best acquainted with us, are sensible of our real characters, of our importance and usefulness; as dying, and every hour in jeopardy, and behold we live, amidst all our dangers; as chastened from the Lord, and by the hands of men, and not killed, immortal till God's time comes; as sorrowful, under manifold temptations, yet always rejoicing in a sense of the divine love and favour; as poor in this world, yet making many rich, in spiritual and eternal treasures; as having nothing, that here we can call our own, dependent on Providence for daily bread, and yet possessing all things, having a present fulness in the contentment we enjoy, blessed with all the internal riches of grace, and holding firm a sure title to the eternal riches of glory.

11. O ye Corinthians, [n] our mouth is open unto you, our heart is enlarged. 12. Ye are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened in your own bowels. 13. Now, for a recompence in the same, (I speak as unto [o] my children,) be ye also enlarged. 14. Be ye not [p] unequally yoked together with unbelievers: [q] for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? 15. And [r] what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? 16. And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for [s] ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, [t] I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and [u] I will be their God, and they shall be my people. 17. [x] Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, 18. [y] And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

n Ch. 2. 2, 3. & 7. 3. & 12. 14, 15. 1 Thes. 2. 1—11.
o 1 Cor. 4. 14, 15. & 3. 10. Gal. 4. 12—19. Is. 8. 18. p Lev. 19. 19. Deut. 7. 2. 5. & 22. 9. Ps. 106. 35. 1 Cor. 5. 9, 11. & 7. 39.
q Ps. 5. 1—7. 1 Kin. 18. 21. Prov. 29. 27. 1 Cor. 10. 14. Eph. 5. 7, 11. Deut. 22. 10. r 1 Sam. 5. 3, 7. Deut. 14. 27. & 18. 1. Josh. 22. 25. 1 Kin. 18. 21. Acts 8. 21. 1 Cor. 10. 7. s 1 Cor. 3. 16. & 6. 19. Eph. 2. 21. Heb. 3. 6. 1 Pet. 2. 5.
t Lev. 26. 12. Ezek. 36. 28. & 37. 26, 27. Rev. 22. 3. u Gen. 17. 7. Jer. 31. 33. & 30. 22. & 24. 7. & 32. 38. Ezek. 11. 20. & 36. 28, 37. Zech. 8. 8. & 13. 9.
x Is. 52. 11. Jer. 51. 6. Zech. 2. 6. Acts 2. 40. Rev. 18. 4. 1 Cor. 10. 20. ch. 7. 1. with Lev. 11. 24, 29. & 21. 11.
y Jer. 31. 1, 9, 33. Rev. 21. 7. 2 Sam. 7. 14.

Verses 11—18. The apostle's heart glowed with warm affection, and he cannot but unbosom himself. O ye Corinthians, our mouth is opened unto you, our heart is enlarged: we speak with the greatest freedom, and long for your salvation. Ye are not straitened in us; we love you ardently: we would keep back nothing from you that could promote your spiritual and eternal interests; but ye are straitened in your own bowels, and fail to make the suitable returns of gratitude, nor are open to receive the blessings we communicate. Now for a recompense in the same, (I speak as unto my children, from whom I may justly expect the strongest filial regard,) be ye also enlarged, in mutual love towards us your faithful ministers, and in your cordial reception of that blessed gospel, with all its precious doctrines and inestimable privileges, which we declare unto you. As a father then I admonish you, for the credit of your profession, and for the good of your own souls, Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers, intermarrying with the unconverted heathen; or otherwise entering into near and close connections with them, particularly not joining in any of their religious services; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? What holy friendship can subsist between a renewed and an unsanctified soul? And what communion in society and converse hath the enlightened Christian with the unawakened sinner, any more than light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? What harmony can subsist between the members of Christ and the children of the wicked one? Or what part or lot hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? How can the worshippers of the true Jehovah, and who are themselves his living temple, join with heathens in their idolatrous worship? How absurd is it, and incongruous? for ye are the temple of the living God, where his Divine Spirit is pleased to take up his abode! as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them, in a nobler sense than he ever was in his temple of old, blessing them with his presence and abiding communion; and I will be their God in an everlasting covenant, in which all my perfections are engaged to make them happy, and they shall be my people, effectually engaged to give themselves up to my service, and, by my power and grace, made such as I would have them be. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate from all unnecessary intercourse and familiarity with the surrounding heathen, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; keep at the greatest possible distance from idolatry, and every abomination, and I will receive you as my peculiar people, and I will be a Father unto you, showing you the most endeared affection, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty, admitted to that high dignity and most inestimable privilege. Note, (1.) A child of God must separate himself from the ways and manners of a world that lieth in wickedness. (2.) God cannot bear a rival in our hearts; no idols must be harboured there. (3.) The covenant of grace saith, I will and you shall; for it is entirely God's work, that we are conformed to his will.

CHAP. VII.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

This chapter begins with an exhortation to progressive holiness, and a due regard to the ministers of the gospel, ver. 1—4. Then the apostle returns from a long digression to speak further of the affair concerning the incestuous person, and tells them what comfort he received in his distress about that matter upon his meeting with Titus, ver. 5, 6, 7. and how he rejoiced in their repentance, with the evidences thereof, ver. 8—11. And, lastly, he concludes with endeavouring to comfort the Corinthians, upon whom his admonitions had had so good an effect, ver. 12—16.

1. [a] HAVING therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God. 2. [b] Receive us: [c] we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man. 3. [d] I speak not this to condemn you: for I have said before, that ye are in our hearts to die and live with you. 4. [e] Great is my boldness of speech toward you, great is my glorying of you: [f] I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation. 5. [g] For, when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side; without were fightings, within were fears. 6. Nevertheless [h] God, that comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus: 7. And not by his coming only, but by the consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us [i] your earnest desire, your mourning, your fervent mind toward me; so that I rejoiced the more. 8. [k] For, though I made you sorry with a letter, I do not repent, though I did repent: for I perceive that the same epistle hath made you sorry, though it were but for a season. 9. [l] Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but a Ch. 6. 16—18. Rom. 5. 20, 21. & 6. 1—23. 2 Pet. 1. 4—9. & 3. 11—14. Luke 1. 74, 75. 1 John 3. 1—3. 1 Pet. 2. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 20. Tit. 2. 11—14. Phil. 2. 12, 13. & 3. 8—14. Mat. 5. 8. 1 Tim. 4. 8.

b Mat. 10. 14, 40. 2 John 10. 3 John 10. c Acts 20. 33. ch. 4. 2. 1 Thes. 2. 5. Rom. 16. 18. 1 Cor. 6. 12, 18. & 10. 33. ch. 1. 12. & 2. 17. & 6. 3—12. & 11. 7, 13. & 12. 13, 17. Gal. 4. 17. 2 Thes. 3. 8. 1 Tim. 6. 4—11. 2 Tim. 3. 2—6. Tit. 1. 10. 2 Pet. 2. 14. Jude 11, 16.
d 1 Cor. 4. 14. ch. 3. 3, 4. & 6. 11, 12.
e 1 Cor. 4. 15. & 6. 1. ch. 3. 12. & 9. 2. & 6. 11—13. 1 Thes. 2. 19.
f Col. 1. 24. Jam. 1. 2. ch. 6. 10. & 2. 14. John 16. 33. Phil. 2. 17. Mat. 5. 12. Acts 5. 41. Rom. 5. 3.
g Acts 16. 19, 23. 1 Cor. 2. 3. & 15. 32. ch. 2. 13. & 4. 8—12. & 6. 4—10. & 11. 2, 3, 23—28. & 12. 20.
h Ch. 1. 3, 4. 1 Thes. 3. 6. 2 Thes. 2. 16, 17. Deut. 33. 25. & 32. 36. ch. 2. 13. Gen. 22. 14.
i Prov. 28. 23. & 9. 8, 9. & 27. 5. Ps. 141. 5. Mat. 18. 15.
k 1 Cor. 4. 18—21. ver. 6, 11. ch. 2. 4.
l Jer. 31. 18—20. Luke 15. 6, 7, 9, 10, 24, 32. 1 Pet. 2. 10.

that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry [m] after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing. 10. [n] For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation, not to be repented of: [o] but the sorrow of the world worketh death. 11. For, behold, this self-same thing, * that [p] ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge! In all things ye have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter.

m Or according to God. Ver. 10, 11. Acts 20. 21. Is. 55. 7.

n 2 Sam. 12. 13. Mat. 26. 75. Luke 18. 13. Jer. 31. 18—28.

o Mat. 27. 4, 5. Heb. 12. 17. Prov. 17. 22. & 15. 13, 15.

p 1 Cor. 5. 2. Acts 11. 18. Is. 57. 15. & 66. 2. Jer. 3. 12, 13. & 22. 23, 24. & 31. 18, 19. & 50. 4, 5. Ezek. 6. 9. & 7. 16. & 16. 63. & 36. 31. Zech. 12. 10—14. 1 Cor. 5. 13.

* Rather, Now consider the very circumstance of your being led to contrition after, &c.

Verses 1—11. Having mentioned the amazingly rich and gracious promises of God, he makes here,

1. An inference from them. Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, avoiding every kind of intemperance or uncleanness, which would pollute our bodies, and mortifying the inward abominations of pride, malice, falsehood, &c. which defile the soul, perfecting holiness in the fear of God, growing in grace, and going on till ultimately our course shall be completed in sinless perfection.

2. He returns from the digression he had made to vindicate himself and his fellow-labourers from the slanders of the false teachers. Receive us with cordial regard; we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man; our principles have been according to God's word, and our practice upright and unblameable. I speak not this to condemn you, reflecting on you as a body, as having traduced us: for I have said before, that ye are in our hearts to die and live with you; such confidence have we in you, and such warm affection towards you. Great is my boldness of speech towards you, in censuring the disorders among you; great is my glorying of you, as, in general, obedient children, and ornaments to your profession. I am filled with comfort in you; I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation, to hear the late gracious accounts from you. For when we were come into Macedonia, in search of Titus, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side, not only with the opposition of our enemies, but with the anxiety of our minds on your account; without were fightings from our foes, within were fears for you, lest you should be removed from the simplicity which is in Christ. Nevertheless, God that comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus, whose arrival revived our drooping hearts; and not by his coming only, but by the consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, by the affectionate and respectful reception he met with at Corinth, when he told us your earnest desire to obey our injunctions, your mourning for the offences which had been committed, your fervent mind towards me, vindicating with zeal my character against the false teachers, and longing for my coming, so that I rejoiced the more, and his report exceedingly heightened the pleasure of his arrival. For though I made you sorry with a letter, wherein I was constrained to use sharp rebukes, I do not repent, though I did repent, and grieved exceedingly, even at the time, that I should be necessitated to use such severity; for I perceive the same epistle made you sorry, though it were but for a season, and engaged you immediately to correct what was amiss. Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry; in that I could have no satisfaction, and sympathized tenderly with you; but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry after a godly manner, mourning over your unfaithfulness, and returning in deep humility to God, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing, but contrariwise be abundantly profited. For godly sorrow worketh repentance unto salvation, not to be repented of; and what hath such a gracious effect cannot but in the issue prove matter of the most solid satisfaction; but the sorrow of the world, which men of earthly minds feel, on account of the losses and crosses here below, worketh death, driving them to despair, impairing their health, and sometimes even causing them to lay violent hands on themselves. For behold this self-same thing that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what a blessed influence it had upon you! what carefulness it wrought in you to remove the cause of offence; yea, what clearing of yourselves from any connivance of iniquity, yea, what indignation against what was evil in yourselves, or in the notorious delinquent; yea, what fear of God, and jealousy for yourselves: yea, what vehement desire to make a thorough reformation of all disorders; yea, what zeal for God's glory, and the honour of your holy profession; yea, what revenge, punishing with due severity the criminal. In all things ye have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter; by your ready amendment. Note, (1.) Godly sorrow is the most profitable physic for the soul. (2.) Whatever bitterness we may have tasted, we shall never at last repent of that which worketh repentance unto salvation.

12. Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, [q] I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, nor for his cause that suffered wrong, † but that our care for you in the sight of God might appear unto you. 13. Therefore we were comforted in your comfort: yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, [r] because his spirit was refreshed by you all. 14. For [s] if I have boasted any thing to him of you, I am not ashamed; but as we spake all things to you in truth, even so our boasting which I made before Titus, is found a truth. 15. And his [t] inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilst he remembereth the [u] obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling ye received him. 16. [x] I rejoice therefore that I have confidence in you in all things.

q 1 Cor. 5. 1. with ch. 2. 9.

† It would appear from this that the injured father was still alive. Michaelis, however, thinks that by the injured person, Paul here meant himself.

r Ver. 15. ch. 8. 16.

s Ch. 1. 12, 19. & 2. 17. & 4. 2. & 6. 7.

t Gr. bowels. Ver. 13. Phil. 2. 20.

u Ch. 2. 9. & 9. 13. Phil. 2. 2, 12.

x Phil. 2. 12. 1 Thes. 3. 4. Philem. 21. ch. 2. 9. & 10. 1—8.

Verses 12—16. Since his admonition had so good an effect, the apostle cannot but rejoice. Wherefore, though I wrote unto you with some sharpness, I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, not merely that the incestuous person should be punished, nor for his sake that suffered wrong, out of any partial favour to his injured father, but that our care for you in the sight of God might appear unto you, and the church be preserved from scandal. Therefore we were comforted in your comfort, the peace and purity of your society being restored: yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all, by the kind, obedient, respectful, and affectionate behaviour which you showed towards him. For if I have boasted any thing to him of you, I am not ashamed of the character I gave you; but as we spake all things to you in truth, in simplicity and godly sincerity, even so our boasting which I made before Titus is found a truth, and the commendation I gave you hath been proved to be but just. And his inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilst he remembereth the obedience of you all to my apostolic injunctions, how with fear and trembling ye received him, with deepest reverence and holy jealousy, lest you should not duly profit by his advice. I rejoice therefore that I have confidence in you in all things, that you will continue to obey my admonitions, and to refresh my spirit by your dutiful and becoming conduct on every occasion. Note, It is a singular comfort to a minister, that he hath confidence in the fidelity of his people.

CHAP. VIII.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter he acquainteth the Corinthians with, and commendeth, the good examples of the Macedonians in their work of charity, and that Titus was sent to Corinth to collect their bounty, ver. 1—6. He then proceedeth to urge this duty with several cogent arguments, ver. 7—15. and commendeth the persons that were employed in this affair, ver. 16—24.

1. MOREOVER, brethren, * we do you to wit of [a] the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia; 2. How that, [b] in a great trial of affliction, the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality. 3. [c] For to their power, I bear record, yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves; 4. Praying us with much entreaty [d] that we would receive the gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the saints. 5. [e] And this they did, not as we hoped, [f] but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God: 6. [g] Insomuch that we desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same [h] grace also.

* Gr. we must inform you.

a Rom. 15. 25. Gal. 2. 10. ver. 2—7, 10, 19, 20. ch. 9. 1, 5, 9, 12—14.

b 1 Thes. 1. 6. & 2. 14. Mark 12. 44. Rom. 5. 3. & 12. 8, 12. ch. 7. 5. & 9. 11. Jam. 2. 5.

c Acts 11. 29. 1 Pet. 4. 11. 1 Cor. 16. 2. ch. 9. 6, 7.

d Acts 11. 29. Rom. 15. 25, 26. 1 Cor. 16. 1. ch. 9. 1. Heb. 6. 10.

e Ver. 3. with Acts 11. 29. 1 Cor. 16. 2.

f Is. 44. 4, 5. Jer. 50. 5. Ps. 116. 16. Mat. 25. 40. Phil. 4. 18. Heb. 13. 16.

g Ch. 12. 18. 1 Cor. 16. 1, 2.

h Ver. 1, 4, 7. 14, 19, 20. ch. 9. 1, 5, 9, 12—14. Phil. 4. 15, 18.

Verses 1—6. As the brethren in Judea had undergone peculiar sufferings, and were reduced to great poverty, the Gentile churches, at the instigation of the apostles, had made a collection for their relief. The churches of Macedonia had begun it, and the churches of Achaia ought not to be backward in so good a work.

1. The apostle acquaints them with the generous conduct of the Macedonian brethren. Moreover, brethren, we do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia, inclining them to exercise their generous benevolence; how that in a great trial of affliction, amidst sore persecutions, the abundance of their joy in the Holy Ghost, and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality, and set off with great lustre, their distinguished charity. For to their power (I bear record) yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves, needing no instigation, but praying us, with much entreaty, that we would receive the gift of their kind alms, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the saints, distributing their bounty to the Christians in Judea. And this they did, not as we hoped merely, but with a noble generosity, far exceeding our most sanguine expectations; they first gave their own selves to the Lord, solemnly surrendering themselves, and all their possessions, to his glory, and unto us by the will of God, resolving to be directed by us as his ministering servants, according to his revealed word. Note, (1.) The grace of God opens the heart with love, and the hand with liberality. A lively Christian will rather go beyond his power, than be backward in acts of piety and charity. (2.) They who have truly given themselves to the Lord, will hold back nothing from him which may serve to promote his glory and the interests of his kingdom.

2. He recommended it to Titus, who had been so acceptable to them before, to go and finish what he had begun, exciting them to the exercise of the same grace of liberality, which had so eminently appeared in the Macedonian churches. Note, The success of our designs, in a great measure, depends upon the choice of proper instruments.

7. Therefore, as ye [i] abound in every thing, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also. 8. [k] I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love. 9. For [l] ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, † that ye through his poverty might be rich. 10. [m] And herein I give my advice: for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but also to be ‡ forward a year ago. 11. Now therefore perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have. 12. For [n] if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not. 13. [o] For I mean not that other men be eased, and you burdened: 14. But by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want; that there may be equality: 15. As it is written, [p] He that had gathered much had nothing over; and he that had gathered little had no lack.

i 1 Cor. 1. 5. & xii xiv. ch. 7. 7, 11 Phil. 1. 9—11.

k 1 Cor. 7. 6, 12, 25, 40. Phil. 4. 11, 14—18. ver. 24.

l John 10. 30. Ps. 24. 1. & 50. 12. Heb. 1. 2. Phil. 2. 6—8. Mat. 20. 28. & 8. 20. Gal. 4. 4—6. & 3. 13, 14. ch. 5. 21. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Rev. 5. 9. Eph. 5. 2. Gal. 2. 20. 1 John 4. 9, 10. & 3. 5, 8.

† The Biblical use of the verb here demands that we understand it in the sense to become poor, from a previous better condition. Hence an argument for the pre-existence of Christ.

m See ver. 8. Prov. 19. 17. Mat. 10. 42. Heb. 13. 16. ch. 9. 2. ver. 11. 1 Cor. 16. 2. 1 Tim. 6. 18.

‡ Gr. willing.

n Ch. 9. 7. Exod. 35. 6. Prov. 19. 22. & 3. 28. Mark 12. 43. Luke 21. 3. 1 Pet. 4. 10. Heb. 11. 17. & 13. 16.

o Acts 4. 34. Mat. 7. 12.

p Exod. 16. 18. Luke xii.

Verses 7—15. The apostle proceeds to excite the Corinthians to give liberally to the necessities of their brethren, by the most persuasive arguments.

1. Their eminence in other gifts and graces should make them ambitious to excel in this. Therefore as, or but as ye abound in every thing, great and gracious, in faith, in utterance, and eloquence, in clear knowledge of the mysteries of the gospel, and in all diligence, to advance the Redeemer's cause and interest; and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also, of Christian liberality. And this I speak not by commandment, as particularly ordered of God, or by my apostolic authority; but rather recommend it to you, by occasion of the forwardness of others, that you may not come behind them in any spiritual attainments; and to prove the sincerity of your love to Jesus and to his poor members for his sake. Note, (1.) We should be ashamed to be outdone in liberality by those who have less ability than ourselves. (2.) Where our love to Jesus is sincere, it will appear by a readiness to every good word and work.

2. He urges the example of the great Redeemer. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the greatness of his love to poor and perishing souls; that though he was rich in uncreated glory, the Maker and Governor of all things; yet for your sakes he became poor; so poor, as to want a house of his own to cover him when alive, and, when dead, was indebted to the charity of a friend for a grave. And to this he submitted, that ye through his poverty might be rich; filled with all the treasures of his grace here, and his glory hereafter: therefore standing so indebted to him, how could they withhold a pittance of their perishing goods from his necessitous saints and their brethren?

3. Their promising beginnings called for a suitable conclusion. And herein I give my advice: for this is expedient for you, and becoming the high rank in which you stand, who have begun before, not only to do something by way of such a collection, but also to be forward a year ago, testifying the greatest readiness to concur in this generous service. Now therefore perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have, that your practice may correspond with your professions, and your contributions be according to your abilities; for if there be first a willing mind, and real charity in the heart, the gift is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not; for it is not the sum contributed, so much as the spirit from whence it proceeds, that God regards.

4. Since the divine providence had favoured them with abundance of worldly goods, they were peculiarly obliged to liberal distribution to the poor. For I mean not that other men be eased, and you burdened; either that you should impoverish yourselves, to enrich the poor in Judea; or that other churches should be excused, and you alone be called upon to bear the whole charge of their necessary relief: no, but by an equality, proportioning your gifts to your abilities, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that, if by the strange vicissitudes of divine providence you should be hereafter reduced, and they prosperous, their abundance may be a supply for your want, that there may be equality, in the mutual beneficence exercised towards each other. As it is written, concerning the manna, He that had gathered much had nothing over, and he that had gathered little had no lack; each had their omer; what remained to those who had gathered more being given to supply the wants of the aged and infirm, who had gathered less. In like manner should we who abound, reckon our superfluities as the debt we owe to the indigent.

16. [q] But thanks be to God, which put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you. 17. [r] For indeed he accepted the exhortation: but being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you. 18. And we have sent with him [s] the brother, whose praise is in the gospel * throughout all the churches; 19. And not that only, but who was also chosen of the churches to travel with us with this [t] grace, which is administered by us to the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your ready mind: 20. [u] Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance which is administered by us: 21. [x] Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men. 22. And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which ‡ I have in you. 23. Whether any do enquire of Titus, [y] he is my partner and fellow-helper concerning you: or our brethren be enquired of, they are the messengers of the churches and the glory of Christ. 24. Wherefore shew ye to them, and before the churches, [z] the proof of your love, and of our boasting on your behalf.

q Phil. 4. 6. Col. 3. 17. Eph. 5. 20.

r Ch. 12. 18. ver. 6, 16. 1 Chr. 29. 2, 3, 6.

s Ch. 12. 18. ver. 22, 23. Acts 15. 22, 25. Generally supposed to have been St Luke. But some think it was Barnabas; and others, Mark.

* That is, in teaching the gospel.

t Or gift. See ver. 1, 4, 6. ch. 7. 14, 20. & 9. 1, 5, 9, 12, 13. Phil. 4. 15—18.

u 1 Cor. 16. 3, 4. Mat. 10. 16. Eph. 5. 15.

x Prov. 3. 4. Acts 24. 16. Rom. 12. 17. Phil. 4. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 12.

‡ Or rather, which he hath.

y Ch. 7. 6. & 12. 18. Phil. 2. 25. John 15. 8. ch. 1. 20.

z Ver. 8. ch. 7. 14. & 9. 2.

Verses 16—24. The apostle here,

1. Thanks God, who put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus, to engage them in this blessed work, so that he needed no entreaty to undertake the journey; but full of zeal, as the apostle himself, for the honour of the Corinthian brethren, and for the relief of the poor, he was a volunteer in the service, and under a divine direction readily undertook to go. Note, Readiness to a good work shows the temper right.

2. He commends to them a brother, who accompanied Titus. We have sent with him the brother, whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches, for his fidelity and zeal in the ministry; and not that only, but who was also chosen of the churches to travel with us with this grace, or free gift, which is administered by us, and to be distributed to the necessitous in Judea, to the glory of the same Lord, who is hereby honoured as our common Master, and to the declaration of your ready and liberal mind, which is hereby manifested.

3. He intimates the care he took to remove all suspicion of dishonesty or partiality, by thus having others joined with him in this charge. Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance, which is administered by us, as if we misapplied or embezzled the least mite; providing things honest, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men, whom we would convince of our unblemished integrity. Note, In this censorious world we cannot be too careful to avoid every occasion of scandal; and ministers, for the gospel's sake, should be peculiarly cautious, and especially in money matters.

4. He commends to them another brother, who also accompanied Titus, but who it was is uncertain. He speaks of him with distinguished respect, as one whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which I have in you, that ye will receive him with respect, and attend to his exhortations.

5. In answer to any cavils of the false teachers, he adds, Whether any do enquire of Titus, he is my partner, and fellow-helper concerning you in the work of the ministry: or our brethren be enquired of, they are the messengers of the churches, deputed by them to this service, and the glory of Christ, ornaments to the gospel which they preached. Wherefore shew ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love to Christ, to me, and your afflicted brethren; and of our boasting on your behalf, that you may be found to answer the high opinion we have entertained of you, and the encomiums we have bestowed upon you.

CHAP. IX.—ANNO DOMINI, 60.

In this chapter the apostle seemeth to excuse his earnestness in pressing the Corinthians to the duty of charity, ver. 1—5. And proceedeth to give directions about the acceptable way and manner of performing it, viz. bountifully, deliberately, and freely; and giveth good encouragement for so doing, ver. 6. to the end.

1. FOR, as touching [a] the ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to [b] write to you: 2. For I know [b] the fora 1 Cor. 16. 1, 2. Rom. 15. 25, 26. Acts 11. 29. ch. 8. 4. 19.

b Ch. 8. 10, 19, 24. 1 Thes. 1. 7, 8. Heb. 10. 24.

wardness of your mind, for which I c 1 Cor. 16. 1. ch. 7. 14. & 8. 17, 24. boast of you to them of Macedonia, that d Ch. 11. 17. & 8. 2, 4. ver. 2, 3. Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal hath provoked very many. 3. [c] Yet
* Or, on account of this same confidence. Griesbach rejects the words of boasting. have I sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in this behalf; that, as I said, ye may be ready;
e Ch. 8. 6. 1 Cor. 16. 2. 4. [d] Lest haply, if they of Macedonia come with me and find you unprepared, f Gr. blessing. Gen. 33. 11. Lev. 25. 21. 2 Kin. 5. 15. Job 29. 13. & 31. 19. we (that we say not, ye) should be ashamed in this same confident boasting.* 5. Therefore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren, that they [e] would go g Or which hath been so much spoken of before. Ver. 12. before unto you, and make up beforehand your [f] bounty, [g] whereof ye had † Rosenmuller thinks that the word here used means any small parsimonious gift. notice before, that the same might be ready, as a matter of bounty, and not as of covetousness.†

Verses 1—5. The apostle, with admirable address, whilst he seems to wave many arguments he might have urged, yet by his confidence expressed in their readiness to comply with his request, lays the strongest obligations on them to show their generosity. He knew their forwardness; he boasted of their zeal; and it had excited a holy ambition in the Macedonians to follow them. For their own sakes therefore, as well as his, he wished them to be ready, and had sent Titus and the brethren for this purpose, that if any of the Macedonians came with them, he, not to say they themselves, would be put to shame, in the confident boasting he had made of them, should they be found unprepared, and their collections not completed. He sent therefore, that, having timely notice, all might be ready in the way most honourable for them, and most agreeable to the commendations he had given them: not as an extorted alms, but as a noble, generous, willing contribution, the grateful acknowledgment due to God for all the singular mercies they had received. Note, Alms given with reluctance, or squeezed out by mere importunity, only prove the covetousness, not the charity of the giver.

h 1 Cor. 1. 12. & 7. 29. & 15. 50. Gal. 3. 17. & 5. 16. Eph. 4. 17. Col. 2. 4. 6. [h] But this I say, [i] He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap i Eccl. 11. 1. Mat. 7. 2. Ps. 18. 25. Prov. 11. 24, 25. & 19. 17. & 22. 9. Gal. 6. 8. Luke 19. 16, 19. also bountifully. 7. [k] Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so k 1 Sam. 25. 16. Deut. 15. 7. Luke 12. 20. Exod. 25. 2 & 35. 5. Lev. 1. 3. Rom. 12. 8. Prov. 11. 25. & 22. 9. ch. 8. 12. let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver.
l Prov. 10. 22. & 11. 24, 25. & 15. 16. & 19. 17. & 28. 27. Ps. 37. 16. & 84. 11. ch. 6. 10. & 8. 1, 6, 19. Phil. 4. 11, 18, 19. 1 Tim. 6. 6. Mat. 25. 34. Luke 16. 9. 8. And [l] God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work: 9. As it is written, [m] He hath dispersed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth for ever. 10. [n] Now he that ministereth seed to the sower both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your [o] righteousness; 11. [p] Being enriched in every thing to all bountifulness, which causeth through us m Ps. 112. 9. ver. 10, 11. n Ps. 104. 13. Is. 55. 10. Hos. 10. 12.
o Ver. 9. Mat. 6. 1.
p Ch. 8. 2, 3, 16, 19. & 1. 11. & 4. 15. 1 Tim. 6. 18. Luke 16. 9. thanksgiving to God. 12. For the administration of this service not only q Ch. 8. 14, 15. Phil. 2. 25. & 4. 18. [q] supplieth the want of the saints, but is r Ch. 5. 16. Rom. 15. 26. ch. 2. 9. & 6. 15. & 8. 4. Heb. 13. 16. Phil. 4. 10, 17—19. abundant also by many thanksgivings unto God; 13. Whiles by the experiment of this ministration they [r] glorify s Prov. 11. 26. 2 Tim. 1. 18. Phil. 4. 19. Luke 16. 9. God for your professed subjection unto t Ch. 8. 1, 6, 7. 1 Cor. 1. 4, 5. ch. xii, xiv. the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution unto them, and unto all men; u Ch. 3. 5. Ps. 115. 1. Rom. 11. 36. 1 Sam. 1. 17. 14. And [s] by their prayer for you, which long after you for the [t] exceeding grace x Is. 9. 6. & 42. 6, 7. & 49. 6. & 55. 4. John 3. 16. & 4. 10. Rom. 8. 32. & 6. 23. of God in you. 15. [u] Thanks be unto God for his [x] unspeakable gift.

Verses 6—15. The apostle proceeds to direct them,

1. Concerning the right manner of giving. It must be done, (1.) Bountifully, according to our abilities. (2.) With deliberation, not inconsiderately, but after weighing well what we can afford, consistent with the provision we owe to our own house.

(3.) Not grudgingly, or of necessity, as if it was extorted by importunity; or that we were ashamed not to do as others; or as if our heart grieved to part with what our hand bestowed; such a spirit would mar the deed.

